This bill does not just apply to people who lost a job during the recession. It does not just talk to people who are out of work. This bill allows people who may have been docked pay, for instance, on account of Sunday shopping legislation or on account of certain areas of breach under the Employment Standards Act, and who are still working, to come and access the fund. That is clear in this legislation. It became clear during our committee deliberations and it became patently clear during our previous clause-by-clause analysis. The bill does not apply just to people who have lost a job and are out of work. This bill also applies to people who never did lose a job and who are not out of work. The amendment here proves and goes along to bring forward that principle.

I have concerns with the amendment because it seems to strike at the eligibility of employees. It seems to foist on an employee who is not working, who is jobless, a certain degree of having to wait, having to prove what "chronically fails to pay" means. I do not know what that means, but I do know that if we are talking about somebody who is out of work and who does not have a job, it creates a certain whole other procedure.

How do you prove "chronically fails"? What is the time frame? Who brings the application? How long does that application have to be brought forward? Who hears it? What does the employee do? Who looks after the interests, the rights, the responsibilities of the employee and the employer? Who protects those interests of the employer and the employee? That is not contained in this particular amendment.

It causes me some difficulty when we talk about an amendment that uses the phrase "chronically fails to pay the employee's wages" and we do not talk about: How do you prove that? What do you have to show? When do you have to show it? Where do you go to prove it? What standard of proof is necessary? Who brings what, where? All I know is that in the instance the employee is not working and is out of a job. I think this might create a certain burden that might be unfair.

I am pleased the member for Waterloo North has expanded the eligibility to include bankruptcy, insolvency and "chronic fails" and has not limited it just to the way the federal Tories have done in their proposed legislation, which only comes into play in the event of a bankruptcy. But I have a concern with the amendment because it leaves too much out. It leaves too much to be determined somewhere else. I do not know if an employer's best interests are going to be served well by this amendment, nor do I know if an employee's interests are going to be served. There are too many questions through this amendment.

1620

Although I have concerns with the amendment, I think the principle is important. This is the first opportunity, because when we started this bill we asked, and Mr Chair will remember, that sections 1 to 4 of the bill be stood down. We will be debating those sections at the end of the bill. Those sections clearly indicate that this bill is not limited to people who are out of wages, out of vacation pay, out of termination, out of severance pay that are owed to them, and out of a job. This bill is much more. If one indicates that the principle of the legislation is to protect those people who are the victims of the recession, then I say that the stated principle of the legislation flies in the face of the words of the legislation. The words of the legislation are much broader.

We are going to have to discuss this. We are going to have to really talk about what that means to those people who are trying to create wealth, jobs, employment and opportunity in this province. We are really going to have to discuss whether that principle is one which should be in this legislation. That is going to come at another time. It is going to come at the end of this piece of legislation.

I indicate that I have concerns with the amendment because of what is not said. I do not know how it is going to affect employees and employers. I do not know how the burden of proving "chronically fails" will come into existence. I indicate my concern on this amendment to the bill, but I really signal to all members of the Legislature that this now marks the first time in this Legislature that we are talking about the true principle of the legislation, the real principle, the real import and impact of this legislation. It is something we are all going to have to grapple with in the next while ahead, but in terms of the amendment before me, I want to indicate that I have some strong reservations.

Mr Cousens: I can see the member has reservations. I wish he had had reservations a few years ago when his party had a chance to do things a little bit more right, but the Liberals were awfully quiet during those stages, except when they wanted to bring in payroll taxes. Now we will probably have a new payroll tax probably brought in for Bill 40. Reservations are one thing. I think we really have a job to try to get this government to accept some sense of responsibility. Never mind reservations; it is called responsibility.

The concern we always have to have is that the workers' rights and privileges have to be protected. I do not think that anyone, ever, should try to take away those rights and privileges, but we have to understand that there has to be a context for that to take place in. Part of that context is to create a climate for business to prosper, so that there is an environment for business to understand that the world of business is welcome in Ontario. What we are trying to do is make sure that happens.

Unfortunately the New Democratic Party, through Bill 70 and through the earlier stages of this bill, really did not show very much sense as to what it takes to keep this province going. It is marvellous that they were able to back off on a number of those amendments and I compliment the government for having had the wisdom to do that. Mind you, it took an incredible amount of pressure by everybody to get them to wake up to the need, but aside from that, we want to be graceful and kind and supportive where we can be.

The fact of the matter is that when we bring forward a bill such as this, what we are really trying to say is that there are exceptions that are going to come into the scene and that should be considered.

I happen to have a number of people within my own riding who have been given notice from their employer. They have been told they are no longer on staff. Here is how the letter went. I will leave the names out but the company is owned by Columbia Lumber Co on Victoria Park Avenue in Toronto. They have a very large establishment in my riding in which a large number of people have worked. When they said, "We want to get rid of a certain number of employees," they said: "Due to the company-wide reorganization and downsizing of the Building Centre and the emergence of the Giant Home and Building Supply Stores, we are forced to lay you off effective Saturday, September 14, 1991, in order for us to complete the massive changes and transition involved in the new venture. In connection with the emergence of the Giant Home and Building Supply Stores, it is anticipated that a callback from your layoff might be in place by the end of November 1991."

Dig that one, "that a callback from your layoff might be in place by the end of November 1991." Therefore, instead of this being interpreted by the Ministry of Labour as what it is, a dismissal, because the company is obviously on another plan to close down its business, it is taken as a layoff. So this company, which is going out of business, has laid these employees off with nothing more than their vacation pay and they are out on the streets, some of them having worked for the company for as much as 18 years. Of the four who came to see me, one had worked for four years, another 17 years, another 10 years and another 18 years.

The letter of dismissal they were given says, "We're letting you go, but 'it is anticipated that a callback from your layoff might be in place by the end of November.'" A callback; that was said on September 14. Just a short time after that, what you get in the paper, and this a photocopy, is that they are closing down for ever. They are going out of business. It is a total liquidation. "First come, first served. All merchandise up for grabs. Many items at cost or below cost." It is under the business liquidation Metro licence number 18-588 and another number.

What they did as a company is despicable, and I say that in the House. I would probably have a lawsuit chasing me as soon as I said it outside here because "despicable" is a little bit strong, but I am talking about people who are being hurt because someone is using the existing laws to his own advantage and the workers are being abused because of it. None of us in this House can ever tolerate that. We have to stand up to make sure the people within our province are protected. When we have companies coming along and playing the law, there are losers out there. The four people who met with me just over a week ago are among the losers, because they lived in a trusting relationship with their employer that they should stay there.

One of the people who was let go had recently been offered a position with another lumber company and turned it down because he felt he had his friends in this business. They were there and he would stay with them. That was a few months before he got another letter, and his letter really had the same kind of effect: "Due to the company-wide reorganization and downsizing to the Giant name in our stores, we are forced to lay you off effective Friday, August 30, 1991, in order for us to complete the massive changes and cost controls in the new venture.

"We thank you for your support in the past and wish you success in the future."

What does this constituent get? He gets a letter, he gets his vacation pay but he does not have anything for the years of service he has given.

So they close down, they go out of business and what happens to them? There is going to be someone around there interpreting the law to his own advantage. We have to have something within the law that protects the employee from unscrupulous employers. What we are trying to address by raising this kind of amendment in the bill is that there has to be something for an understanding of when an employer tries to play the game. What we see here is an amendment that would begin to address some of those kinds of concerns.

1630

I respect the position our PC critic is coming from on this. Having sat down and looked at it, she is really trying to address part of the concern that has been raised by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, to prevent recourse to the fund when a small business fails to meet payroll due to a temporary cash flow problem. Some people will call a temporary cash flow problem just the kind of thing I described here. Who is ever going to know what is happening? They send one letter to an employee saying, "We're going to be having some changes to the corporation," and then come along a few weeks later and say, "We're closing down." Meanwhile, what does the employee do?

There are enough laws in trouble in this province and enough people who are taking advantage of employees that we have to look at some way of balancing the act. If we look at what is going on, we are in a position in this Legislature to modify a bill that needs just a little more control to it. What we are asking for is the kind of balance that would make that happen. What we are really saying is that the employment standards branch could bring up other creditors and the fund could inadvertently force small companies into bankruptcy. We want to be very careful that this does not happen.

I started by questioning where the Liberal critic was coming from. I thought the Liberals would have had some kind of balance to this thing. Maybe he is in a position to review his thinking on it.

Mrs Marland: I rise to speak in support of this particular amendment. Because it seems to be so difficult for this socialist government to understand where business is coming from in Ontario today when businesses say, "Please, please, no more," and as continually the interjections across the floor of this House are, "Protect the workers; save jobs," I think it is appropriate that I tell members about a letter I received from a business person in Mississauga.

This business person is Mr Donald K. Sheardown. He is the owner of Ontario Bus Industries. On May 9 of this year he wrote a very short, explicit letter to the Premier. The easiest thing for me to do is to read it, because it has direct relevance to the amendment that is on the floor at this time.

"Dear Premier Rae:

"I'm writing this letter to you as a concerned owner of a manufacturing business in Mississauga, Ontario.

"Our company, Ontario Bus Industries Inc, manufactures urban transit buses, presently operating in 260 cities in North America and Europe.

"We are a nonunion company, with 670 employees located in Mississauga, supported by approximately 450 local Ontario-based vendors who employ approximately 2,400 employees.

"Our subsidiary company, Bus Industries of America Inc, is located in Oriskany, New York, and employs 470 employees.

"At the present time we are number two in our industry in North America, with a 30% market share, and 80% of our product is exported from our Mississauga plant to the United States and Europe.

"Our costs to operate in Mississauga, Ontario, versus Oriskany, New York, are as follows:

"1. Labour costs—30% higher in Mississauga.

"2. Average hourly rate of pay: C$16 per hour, Canada; C$11.50 per hour in the US.

"3. Employee benefit package is approximately equal in both locations.

"4. Workers' compensation costs 50% higher in Ontario.

"5. Realty taxes—60% higher in Mississauga.

"6. Bank interest costs—4% less in US.

"7. Industrial land costs $5,000 per acre in Oriskany and $600,000 per acre in Mississauga. Industrial building rental costs $4 per square foot in Mississauga and $2 per square foot in Oriskany.

"Mr Premier, this is a small example of the high cost of operating in Canada. You can understand, therefore, my concern over an article which appeared in the Toronto Star's business section on May 2, 1991, with regard to the proposed changes in the Ontario labour laws which will, if enacted, force companies such as ours to look for other alternatives.

"The province of Ontario has the most progressive labour laws in North America, of which we can all be proud. Changes made to these laws have always come slowly and are well-thought-out and balanced. The present proposed changes, however, will be unacceptable to today's business leaders.

"We have worked hard to build a strong and viable company, which has never experienced a layoff in 12 years. We are constantly facing new business challenges throughout North America, challenges we can meet and solve. However, the proposals as outlined are challenges we are not prepared to face unnecessarily.

"Due to the seriousness of this matter, I am requesting a meeting with you to further explain the issues which I feel could further erode manufacturing businesses presently located in Ontario."

What I want to say about the amendment on the floor at this moment, in reference to Mr Sheardown at Ontario Bus Industries, is that he is just an example of what businesses in Ontario are saying. If this socialist government does not care to listen, Mr Sheardown, who, I may say, from the figures I have just given, is responsible for over 3,000 jobs in Ontario today, is not going to be here.

Mr Sheardown is a passionate Canadian. He is a passionate Ontarian. He is doing business today in Mississauga and this province even though the cost of doing business for him today is 30% higher than at the same plant in the same business in the United States. This is not fiction; this is fact. Mr Sheardown has a plant in Mississauga and he has a plant in New York state. He has accurate figures to compare the costs of doing business, but because he is a loyal Canadian and feels so strongly about keeping his business, which is obviously a tremendous success if he has 80% of the market share—because he is so concerned about keeping his business in Ontario, he is already willing to write off one third of his potential profit by doing business here.

If it costs him 30% more to do business in Ontario, he is quite happy to do that. He has been absorbing that 30% differential for some number of years now and he is willing to do that. He is willing to stay in Ontario and do business although he could do the same business in the United States at 30% less, which means 30% more goes into his pocket in profit. That is not what he is about. That is not what this superb human being is about in business today in Ontario. He is about protecting the economy of this province. He is about protecting those 3,000 jobs in this province with which he is involved directly and indirectly. He is about keeping a vision for Ontario in terms of successful industry and business here.

1640

What he said on May 9 to the Premier was, "I would like a meeting with you." What happened? He got referred to the Minister of Labour; he did not even get a meeting with the Minister of Labour. This socialist government does not care about those 3,000 jobs that are directly attributable to Mr Sheardown doing business in this province. He is simply saying that if this socialist government wants to keep those 3,000 jobs, then: "Would you please listen to me? I have a story to tell. I would like to sit down with the Premier and tell him that it costs me 30% more to do business than in the United States, but I am happy to stay here." But the Premier would not meet with Mr Sheardown, and the Minister of Labour would not grant a meeting with Mr Sheardown.

Do members know what he did? I have the letter here. I will read it. This is the kind of thing we get from this socialist government.

Hon Mr Pouliot: Stop that word.

Mrs Marland: Oh, we are touching a nerve. It is so interesting; we are touching a nerve now.

Interjections.

Mrs Marland: Because we call this government what it is, which is socialist, we have the Minister of Transportation saying, "Don't use that word," and we have the parliamentary assistant saying, "Use it; we're proud of it." I suggest they get together. It would be great if they would either unite or divide on what it is they all believe in over there, but certainly the Minister of Transportation is very sensitive when I use the word "socialist." I call things the way they are, and this is a socialist government in the history of Canada at the same time that the rest of the world is discontinuing socialism and socialist governments.

The Second Deputy Chair: I want to remind the honourable member that we are working on amendments to Bill 70. It may involve some of what she is saying, but please, do try to stay on topic.

Mrs Marland: I appreciate that. I am trying to stay on the amendment.

Interjections.

Mrs Marland: There is one member here who is interjecting who is not even in his own seat, but I guess he does not care about the House rules either.

I want to emphasize the kind of arrogance and ignorance that this socialist government shows the business community of this province. As an example, I have just given members the request of Mr Don Sheardown of Ontario Bus Industries to meet with the Premier, which was then referred to the Minister of Labour. The kind of answer we get is this; I quote from a letter to me of August 20. Bear in mind from May 9, I might add. This is a letter over the signature of Valorie Taylor, secretary to the minister, on Ministry of Labour letterhead.

"Dear Mrs Marland:

"On behalf of the Minister of Labour, the Honourable Bob Mackenzie, I wish to acknowledge receipt of your letter of July 31 (which we received in our office August 15) regarding your constituent Mr Donald K. Sheardown, president of Ontario Bus Industries Inc, and the proposed changes to the Labour Relations Act.

"We have had Mr Sheardown's name added to the list of those who will be considered for consultation on the proposed changes."

I think that is the biggest insult, to suggest that Mr Sheardown's name was added to a list of those "who will be considered for consultation." Who do the members of this socialist government think they are? This man is directly responsible for 3,000 jobs and the Minister of Labour says: "We'll put you on a list. We'll consider consulting with you." I think that is the height of insult to a prominent, successful businessman who wants to stay in Ontario, even though today it costs him 30% more.

If Bill 70 goes through without the amendments my colleague the member for Waterloo North is proposing, if these amendments are not supported to try to clean up this dreadful piece of legislation, then when these 3,000 jobs are lost, I would suggest to the Minister of Transportation who finds it humorous, that he no longer come into this House and say, "Protect the workers." I say with sincerity, if he wants to protect the workers, he has to protect the businesses that employ them. Without this amendment to Bill 70, the businesses are not protected and the jobs will be gone and the workers will be out of work.

Hon Mr Pouliot: Briefly, I have listed some questions for the parliamentary assistant. They deal with the intricacies of the bill in terms of workers' protection. I wish to avail myself of the opportunity, with high respect for the member and of course the minister involved and the ministerial staff, who have worked diligently to come forward with what are not complexities in the deal.

It never ceases to appal and, yes, to shock me to some extent, that people standing in their places, representing the workers in their constituencies in this instance, will choose to ignore the compendium, the intent and the purpose of the bill, which is simply to guarantee that an hour's work will be equal to an hour's pay.

It is to guarantee, for instance, with the highest of respect to the banking institutions, that people, only too often a member of a minority, a worker, one of the working poor, who are exchanging their dedicated labour at the marketplace for the minimum wage or a few cents above the minimum wage, in terms of the legislation, because of the complexities of our system, because of what has been allowed to happen, not only are treated as second-class citizens but are treated in a climate of uncertainty, that of unsecured creditors. It is appalling and shocking indeed.

The words of my colleague, what has been put forth here, will correct that anomaly. It is appalling and shocking inasmuch as fictitious Maria Lopez, having worked at a dress factory, and be it a worst-case scenario—I do not wish to catastrophize but merely to illustrate—working at a few cents more than the minimum wage, will have to wait for her two or three weeks' wages behind the Royal Bank of Canada, for it has first recourse.

The human dimension is what is being put forth. Surely not one member, not one distinguished colleague, could ever deny the right of workers to get compensated for each and every hour spent at a designated workplace constituting a day's work. Who can deny this? It is so commonsensical. This is the essence of life. This is what it is all about.

My colleague has answered all the questions. She has been a tower of strength. If only the opposition would have availed itself of the opportunity to say the method, the mechanism, the road to arrive at, and to meticulously describe, by way of offering alternatives, how to arrive at that. This is not what has been said.

We have been the victim—and it is okay, but sometimes it lacked in substance and rationale as well—of an unwarranted attack. All we are trying to do here, and we say this with a great deal of pride, is to reconcile and to recognize what had been lacking in the administration—I do not wish to be unduly harsh, but it is a fact of life—previous to ours. Ours is a lifelong commitment. Ours is an evolution. We do not wish to scare anyone, certainly not the workers. We wish to give them their due; no more than this, no more than that.

1650

Ms S. Murdock: Just to respond to the amendment and to explain why we will not support this amendment, I want to say first of all that all the speakers from the opposition and from the third party have mentioned putting small business persons prematurely into bankruptcy. The corollary of that is that workers are not charity operations. They do not work for nothing. For one of the members to have said that some small businesses may have an understanding with their employees, so that when they cannot meet payroll their employees will understand how that can happen, then in no way are the employees able to meet their bills, able to pay their rent, able to order food.

In any case, regardless of the bill that we are putting through, under the existing act you can still have an order to an employer and then, if members look at the process and as members well know, if someone is not paid for whatever reason, the employee then has access to the employment standards branch and can file a complaint or ask for an investigation to be done.

At the end of that investigation, the employment standards officer will write an order. The employer, as well as the employee, has a right at that point to appeal the decision. The employee obviously will not appeal if it is to his benefit, but if it is not, then he has that right. The employer still can appeal that, so bankruptcy is not the name of the game. But if an employer is in a position where he cannot meet payroll, maybe he should be looking at the whole idea, number one, of looking at insolvency.

The other point I want to make, which was raised on the other side, is the possibility that other creditors of small businessmen are going to find out these people's names and, because of the fact that they have put in a complaint to the employment standards branch, are going to suddenly then force small businessmen into bankruptcy. There is absolutely nothing under the employee wage protection program that allows for any listing in any trade journals announcing the names of the people who have employed or the companies that have employed.

I also point out that this amendment would cause immeasurable administrative problems both in process and in terms of costs. The definition alone under this amendment of what could be considered chronically failed—does that mean that you can chronically fail every month or does it mean every week or does it mean yearly? There is no definition. It is very vague and ambiguous, and we cannot support it on that basis.

I just want to stress that the existing Employment Standards Act has already got orders to pay in it and that this amendment will do nothing but just create an administrative nightmare. We are not in favour.

Mr Harnick: I am dismayed because the whole essence of this amendment seems to have been misconstrued. The essence of this amendment is to ensure that people maintain their jobs so that companies remain viable. There is no point having an act which is going to force people into bankruptcy, and that is what this amendment is trying to prevent. This is trying to prevent a situation where an employer, for whatever reason, has his business suddenly fail because he has lost a customer and he is trying to keep that business alive. This amendment prevents the bill from becoming the nail which closes the coffin on that business.

I am dismayed that the parliamentary assistant, the member for Sudbury, has construed the amendment in the way she has, because this is an amendment that is going to provide continued jobs in viable businesses. It is a last-ditch attempt to take a business that is in trouble and make sure it remains viable.

The government should give it that last chance. They should not create unemployment so that they have to call on the fund. They should do things that are going to keep these businesses viable. Is that not the first priority, or is the priority to say, "Everything's going to fail, so we'll just have this act and we'll call on the fund and that'll be it"? Is this not an opportunity for this government to show it is trying to help businesses, that it is trying to give businesses that last little bit of support so they do not fail?

Is this not a place where the employer and employee can work together? Certainly that is the spirit of this amendment and that is the intent of this amendment, but the fact is that it has been totally misconstrued by the member for Sudbury and the member for Lake Nipigon. Certainly if they are concerned about the words "chronically fails to pay" or the fact that it may be difficult to define, then let's hold it down and let's work together and let's come up with a definition that is compatible rather than see this amendment defeated and see the whole spirit of what this bill should be thrown out.

That is what the attitude towards this amendment is going to do. It is an opportunity for a socialist government to indicate to business that it is supportive of business, particularly small business. The way the member for Sudbury has defined this amendment and tried to explain it is quite contrary to that. I am frankly surprised, and I urge her to reconsider and not defeat this amendment. If she wants to tidy up the language or there is something we can do to make it better, she should hold it down but not defeat it.

Ms S. Murdock: I am going to respond to the comments that have just been made in that regard, because I have not misconstrued anything. I have read this. I am not questioning the intent or the spirit that was intended by those who drafted this amendment. I am simply saying the effect is unrealistic.

The other thing is that it is not the fund that is the nail in the coffin for the small business. Those things already exist under this act. The existing Employment Standards Act is already there, except that it gives them money to go in and get it, to pay the employees who would normally get nothing if the employer was insolvent and had no money to pay them. That is what this provides.

I do not know where the mistaken idea is coming from that this fund, in and of itself, suddenly slams a small businessman into bankruptcy. If he is in that position, if the situation was such that there was no Bill 70, right now under the existing Employment Standards Act, if I was working for a small employer and my boss was unable to pay me, I automatically have the right under the existing act to put in a complaint to the employment standards branch. An officer investigates, determines that I am owed wages or whatever and puts in an order to pay against the employer.

If the employer does not have the money, the employer then has to find the money somewhere, close his doors or whatever, and the employee then is stuck with nothing. Even if the employer does declare bankruptcy, the employees are still sitting there with no money, because they are not a priority creditor and so they have no status on the bankruptcy list.

This fund, however, once we finally get this passed and into law, will allow an employee rights to money, so that when a small business does go under and has no money to pay workers who have not been paid wages, vacation, severance or termination, they will get some money, at least up to a maximum of $5,000. They are not left out in the cold and the creditors can still go the bankruptcy route. But as it is in this province, workers have to have access to something and deserve the money they have earned.

1700

Mrs Cunningham: I am speaking basically to respond to some of the remarks made by the member for Lake Nipigon on this particular piece of legislation, Bill 70—and to the member for Sudbury, to a point.

What we have all been advised to do as we represent the public is to go back to what it is all about, that is, to express the views of the people we represent and from time to time explain to them just what the government is trying to do. I did make that effort on a number of occasions, and that is one of the reasons our party has put forth the amendment we are supposed to be speaking to right now.

This amendment really is to address the concern raised by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, which I think most of us take rather seriously. I do not think it is an amendment that should worry the government in any way. From everything I have heard from the member for Sudbury, I would think she would support the amendment, because all it really does is clarify everything she said happens anyway.

We are just reassuring the business community under very definite circumstances, and the word “only” in the amendment is the important one. It says: “Despite subsection (1), an employee is eligible for compensation from the program only”—I underline “only”—“where his or her employer is bankrupt, is insolvent for an extended period or chronically fails to pay the employee’s wages.” Therefore, the citizens of Ontario will pay up to $5,000 if a company goes bankrupt and it has employees who are entitled to money they have paid into a fund. It is like insurance. There are many who are watching us right now who would ask, “Why should we pay anything?” but we are saying that is fair.

Personally, I would like to hear better arguments from the government as to why that is not fair and does not clarify the situation. If we do not, then perhaps my letter, which I wrote in kindness, that the government would be listening to amendments put forth by the opposition parties or would amend the bill itself, to people like the president of Aylmer Toolcraft Ltd—I tried to reassure that this government would be listening to the public. He certainly made his views known. His name is Mr Nutley, the president of Aylmer Toolcraft Ltd, and he wrote to us. I have to listen to them. These are the people who are in the front lines, who are trying to run a business. He is really angry, and I do not blame him.

It is not just this bill, although this bill is the reason he was prompted to write to us in the spring of the year. I have responded and I think others have to many members in their constituencies. Sometimes people are writing to myself and to members of the opposition parties because they are not getting timely responses from some members of the government. I am certain the member for Sudbury would not be one of those people, but some of her colleagues are, and from time to time we get letters instead. This letter is addressed to myself and it says, “I would like to express my views on Bill 70, as far as what I have been able to digest from watching the debate in the House”—it is not always of the highest quality, Mr Chairman; I am sure you would agree to that—“and from the media.”

I think this amendment today has been spoken to by both sides of the House and I do not see a problem with it. It just underlines and clarifies the intent of the government.

Mr Nutley goes on to say, “As a small businessman in Ontario, I don’t mind telling you I am as scared as hell.” That is a pretty strong statement to start with. “It is hard enough keeping a business going”—I think members had better listen to this, because this is the impression of small business people. This fellow is the president of a company. In fact, he is a builder of special equipment, machining and welding; very important to our economy, I would say. “It is hard enough keeping a business going without a bunch of union-oriented buffoons putting up more road blocks.” I am not here to insult the government, but that is the impression the government members are leaving with our communities.

I will say something about my own party here. I do not mind taking criticism when it is warranted. The letter goes on to say: “I watched the leader of the NDP and PC parties in Ottawa some time back.” I have to take this criticism from time to time. “They both stated that they wanted more high-tech jobs, instead of lowering our standard of living and becoming more competitive.” We are all good at talking about what we are going to do, but boy, in my critic responsibility as the critic for Skills Development, I am still waiting for this government—they were the best critics when they were in opposition and I applaud them for it. They were very keen about bringing forth programs, in co-ordination with colleges and universities and school boards, to provide the training programs for our young people. There is not one of us who is not concerned about a dropout rate of some 27%. This gentleman is just saying: "You talk about it. What are you going to do about it?"

After he talks about lowering our standard of living and becoming more competitive—that is what is happening if we do not have the high-tech jobs—he says, "The fact of the matter is, when you compare us with the USA, we are not competitive and our standard of living is much higher on average." I do not see any editorial comment, whether he thinks that is a good thing or a bad thing, but he goes on to say: "It may come as a surprise to them, but I have lots of low-tech employees, and the low-tech jobs are going south because we are not competitive. What will they do in a high-tech world?"

That is a very responsive chord. We do think of us just losing people who are highly skilled and highly trained, but we are losing regular, everyday persons whom we depend upon to keep our province and our country moving. What this employer describes as low-tech jobs has a lot to do with young people and family people trying to earn a living and paying very high taxes in the province.

I am quoting again: "Companies are leaving Canada in droves, and if our Treasurer, Mr Laughren, doesn't believe it, as he has stated, then he is living in a never never world and needs to get out into the real world. Maybe he should talk to the B. F. Goodrich employees, or maybe Tupperware. Does he really think General Motors is kidding? Does he really think they can't build a better product more efficiently and generate more profit for their shareholders south of the border? I really think he needs to wake up and smell the roses."

Why do members think this gentleman is writing to us under the guise of his concerns around Bill 70? Because every little piece of legislation that affects the ability of employers to do their work concerns the public. That is why he is writing all these concerns he has.

It is just one more piece of legislation, one more intrusion into the small businessman's world, one more expense, one more fear. As the member for Sudbury says, it may have nothing to do with Bill 70, but in the eyes of the public it does have something to do with Bill 70, and we are trying clarify it or make it stronger on behalf of the public we represent. This is an amendment that was raised in response to the concerns of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business. I do not see that the government has told us why it does not support it, not to the extent I would like to be briefed at least.

This gentleman, who is the president of Aylmer Toolcraft Ltd in Aylmer, goes on to say in this letter:

"Let's talk about the liability of directors and owners if a company goes bankrupt. It's not always their fault and in most small businesses the owner has probably invested all that he has, is taking all of the risks and has the least protection. He does this not only to provide a living for himself, or because he enjoys the challenges, but also to provide employment for members of his community."

1710

I suppose the point in my even reading this letter today and raising this issue is that we want people to do business in Ontario, we want our people working and we really want our young people to have a future to look forward to, whether in the view of Mr Nutley they are low-technology or high-technology employees. It takes all of us to produce and work so we can enjoy a quality of life we have become used to in the past.

"Believe me, in most small businesses the owner puts out the most effort, longest hours, takes all of the risks for the least thanks. People think just because you own the business, you're the highest paid and least worked. I have news for them. In fact I have several employees who take home more than I. Yet if my business goes under for any reason, not excluding government roadblocks to free enterprise in the form of excessive taxes or a horrendous debt"—that is underlined in big, black letters—"that scares away our customers, and that we will probably never be able to put aside once incurred, or just because of poor economic times we as owners or directors are expected to shoulder the whole burden."

I think this person who employs people in Ontario is saying it is not always the words that matter but the signal we send out. The problem with Bill 70 is the very first signals it sent out. Let's face it, the biggest problem of all was when people who were giving volunteer hours on boards of directors were going to be liable. That was a silly thing to send out, a wrong message, and it is one that is hard to overcome.

If the members of this government have learned anything in one year, they had better think clearly about the message they send out before writing their legislation. If they do anything in the next few months, if there is legislation on the table that is frightening to our business community, for heaven's sake, they should deal with it right away and get it off the table. I think the damage has been done and we can only hope to recoup what we can.

"It may come as a surprise, but we'll be out of work also, without the benefit of unemployment insurance to help us find new jobs." I think he is referring to a country and a province that are basically bankrupt. "We are, to all intents and purposes, workers also just doing a different jobs. If we as a company do go bankrupt, it's because we have no money, and yet they want me to dip into my own pocket and shell out I believe the figure I heard bantered around on TV was an average of $20,000 per employee."

Can the members imagine the kind of public relations we have as politicians? We took care of that in responding to this gentleman and clarified it on behalf of the government. At one point he thought that if he had 25 employees, he had to dish out $500,000, but that is the kind of misunderstanding we clarified immediately.

He had another concern: "If I have to dish out that kind of money after we go bankrupt (praise God we don't), then the only alternative left to me is to put a gun to my head, but even then the insurance would not be enough." He is saying he cannot get that kind of insurance.

Let's face it, he does not have to divvy it out but, boy, we had better be pretty wealthy in Ontario, because guess who has to give it out? The province of Ontario, out of its coffers. We had better make sure that people are paying into that fund and that we are investing it wisely so that we are not always going into debt and adding to the debt. Although he thinks he probably has to pay it, he does not have to pay it, but the taxpayers do. Mr Chairman, I should be looking at you when I am speaking. That is why, if we are clever at all, we want to instil confidence in the business community. We want them to stay in Ontario. We want people still to work. We do not want bankruptcies so this bill never has to come into effect. That would be the ideal world. Having said all that, I still do not know why the government will not accept our amendment to section 5 of the bill as we put it forth.

Mr Nutley goes on to say:

"There is more to a successful business than just good management. Employees have to do their share as well, and since we all reap the profits (employees through wages and benefits), we should all share in the risks. I am not saying that there should not be some sort of protection from unscrupulous owners who abuse their powers and privileges, but don't paint us all with the same brush.

"Employees are paid to do a job, just as we as a business are paid by our customers to do a job." We forget that some days. "What this country and in this case this province needs to get back to is a day's pay for a day's work. If we don't get our heads back out of the clouds and down to earth, there will be no jobs for anyone in Ontario and the jobs that companies like mine have now will be filled by Americans or Mexicans that want to work." We are seeing that.

"To our current government I say: "Wake up. You are creating another made-in-Ontario recession and destroying all that it has taken generations for us to build."

I know sometimes we do not like to think of people going to the US or to Mexico for lesser wages, but I think people have to go where they can work. If that is what is happening in Ontario, I hope at the end of the term of this government we can stand up and say they turned it around somehow. But if more people are leaving and we do find ourselves, with our young people, lacking in confidence, if we find them not investing in Ontario and starting their own businesses—because after all, this amendment is for the Canadian Federation of Independent Business—if we do not find them with confidence and if we do not listen to them, then I say right now this government will have failed after the promises it has made for decades. We have to start listening to the front-line workers and to the front-line business people, and that is what we are trying to do today.

"To Mr Laughren and Mr Rae, if you still don't believe that business is packing up and leaving Ontario in droves, then you are welcome to look at the package I have received from North Carolina"—and many of us have received others—"and then tell me why any businessman in his right mind that is capable of making a move would stay.

"To all MPPs"—that is me as well—"I urge you to stop this madness and start building an environment in this province that will encourage business to locate and to stay, thus creating and securing the jobs that are so important to all of us. The NDP don't have a monopoly on caring. We all care. It's just that some of us can manage to see past the blinders."

For one thing, I have to say I have noticed a difference, I hope, in the attitude in the House in the last year: All of us have come to understand that when we got ourselves elected to this Legislative Assembly, it was to represent all our constituents. No one has a monopoly in this province as an elected member on caring.

I may have deviated just a little from the intent of the amendment, but I felt that Mr Nutley has a right to be heard in this House. He as well as many others—and I may have to read other letters in—is concerned about the bigger picture, that is, the intentions of this government when it comes to some of the labour amendments it tabled in this House last spring.

In listening today, I hope the government will move very quickly to put aside the concerns of the constituents, not only as they relate to Bill 70 but as they relate to other legislation this government has on the public agenda, many intentions that have not yet been spoken to because we have not gotten the legislation from the government. I would say the sooner the better. The sooner the fears are put aside with regard to labour amendments, the better with regard to the rumours and misunderstandings—I hope they are misunderstandings—that are going out in the province.

Thank you, Mr Chairman, for the opportunity to speak to this amendment this afternoon.

1720

Mr Cousens: One of the things raised by the member for London North has to do with the whole issue of competitiveness. If there is anything I believe, it is that if we can adjust or modify bills coming from this government so as to improve Ontario's competitiveness so that business will want to invest in this province, we will have done the right thing. We have to do an awful lot to correct the impression that this government is antibusiness. The government really does not accept the fact that it is antibusiness, and it may not be.

Mrs Caplan: You can't correct that impression because that is the reality.

Mr Cousens: I have to respect the fact that the member for Oriole would say that. She is saying it is a reality that the government is antibusiness. It is the perception of the business community that this government does not care about what the business community is all about, and that this government, by having its own philosophical positions, is really going to disregard what an owner of a business or someone who has an investment in Ontario might have to say on what their long-term interests are. Therefore, it ends up having legislation that is antibusiness.

Antibusiness really amounts to an impression. I have to believe that there is not a member of the New Democratic Party who sees himself or herself as antibusiness, and yet the perception by the marketplace, by those who already have businesses in Ontario and by those who are looking at this province, is that this is a dangerous climate for them to invest in.

I have to challenge the government in another way. Maybe we have not been successful because we try to browbeat them and we try to beat them up. Maybe we need to have more of a love-in here that says, "Hey, please come along and try to open up your minds to some of the concerns the business community has so that the province begins to prosper again." We are not seeing that now.

It was unusual, to say the least, that an ambassador from Sweden was here in the House today and would twig our minds, sitting beside the member for Leeds-Grenville. Is it not odd that he is coming over here to look at what we are doing, and yet what we are doing is mimicking in so many ways the way in which Sweden has gone for the last 30 or 40 years, since the Second World War? Their socialist government has now gone off the rails and they have now removed the socialist government. They are trying to move out of socialism and to have more of a capitalistic society so that a balance can exist.

I want to see balance. I see the people in Sweden shifting away from socialism and moving into capitalism as Ontario now has a socialist democratic government moving us into—

Mr Duignan: What about Saskatchewan and British Columbia?

Mr Cousens: The honourable member asks about Saskatchewan and BC. I have to say that I am very worried about what is going to happen to Canada when we have three governments that are New Democratic governments, and we might well have a fourth government.

Ms S. Murdock: Deal with the amendment, Don, the amendment.

Mr Cousens: I did not say it. It was raised by the honourable member. I am dealing with the amendment. I am dealing with the taking away of Ontario's competitiveness by having a spirit here that is just removing that sense of zeal for business, and it is a perception.

Hon Mr Pouliot: That is unfair.

Mr Cousens: I am being told by my very good friend the Minister of Transportation that it is unfair. It is a perception, though. It is a perception of the business communities, not only the existing communities here in Ontario but the ones that fly over, look at Ontario and say: "Oh, oh. We have a socialist government there. They are not going to be a good climate to invest in."

I do not think there is as much money to be invested anyway right now. Japan is certainly retrenching. They are not investing as much as they were a little while ago. With eastern Europe opening up now, there is money flowing in to try to get them started. So where are we going to find capital to invest here in Ontario? A friend of mine was at a conference recently, and in the northeastern United States—I do get some things I am not going to read, that kind of biased view. I do not know how the honourable member ever bought that writer, and I would have to look at—before you start quoting from something, you have to know what you are quoting. That is really a danger.

Ms S. Murdock: It is nice to see you are blushing.

Mr Cousens: You will have to understand that in this House sometimes there are dynamics that go on that one does not fully understand. I do not know where that came from. The fact of the matter is—

Mr Mammoliti: What does it say?

Mr Cousens: Mr Chair, control these people. It is almost feeding time for the New Democrats. When they get to the trough again, they can dig in deeper, roll up their sleeves and eat away, which they are going to do for four years. Then it is going to come to an end, because the people of Ontario do not want to see Ontario swing so far to the left. I thought the pendulum had swung far enough when David Peterson was in power and it swung to the left. Then what happened? We elected—we? Not me. Enough people in Ontario, 38% of them, elected a New Democratic government, and the pendulum is still swinging.

Unfortunately, when you get the pendulum away up there, you cannot just bring it right back to normal. It is going to take a while to notch it back so that people can have the kind of environment I am talking about, where business will prosper. The pendulum is up there; let's bring it back. I am suggesting to this government that through the kind of amendment we are tabling today, we will do something to give confidence back to the business community. The business community at this point in time has the lowest morale.

Members in this House keep talking about Saskatchewan. I worry about Saskatchewan not just for a few reasons, but number one has to be that if it goes and elects another socialist government in this country, it is going to be eating the same kind of legislation we are going to have tabled.

Mr Turnbull: That is all we will have to eat.

Mr Cousens: That is it. Words do not feed people. The kind of dogma and doctrine that is motivating this government to bring in such legislation, that is causing such dis-ease among the business community, is a matter we have to face up to.

The business community is calling upon all of us to set up a climate so that it can succeed and prosper, so that we can draw in business. Right now there has been an exodus of business, from my community at least, to parts of the United States. They are not going to Quebec at this point. A lot of them are moving to the United States. We had the movement from Quebec to Ontario, and now those people have sensed they are no longer welcome here. They are going to go elsewhere. I do not want to see that happen. With the kind of legislation we are bringing in, we have to make it possible for them to say: "I want to be here. I want to raise my family here. I want to have my business here. I want to make my money here." We are not doing anything to create capital in this province. What the government does is to tax it away.

This kind of bill, through this kind of action, just removes that sense of confidence. It is such a simple thing. Business people have come before our committee in the Legislature. The committee only sat two weeks, and I think I am correct on that one. The member for Waterloo North is our critic for the Ministry of Labour. There were two weeks; one week in which we received public input. It would have been far better—I do not agree with the Liberals all that often—if we had gone across the province and solicited more views. For once, the member for Mississauga North—

Mr Offer: You voted against it.

Mr Cousens: I was not on the committee that day. I would sometimes support the member for these things. The fact is, the member would probably do a lot of politicking for the leadership when he went into those communities.

Mr Offer: You were complimenting me. Pick that up from there.

Mr Cousens: This is another moment of truth, when I come along and compliment the member for Mississauga North, who is now running for the Liberal leadership. If he is not, he should be, because they could use a man of his kind of integrity. There is not much integrity in the Liberal Party, but if the member can bring some to it, I would be very pleased.

The Second Deputy Chair: Would the honourable member please stay on topic? We are addressing amendments to Bill 70.

Mr Cousens: I am sorry, Mr Chair; I get carried away.

We are dealing with the Employment Standards Amendment Act, and we are talking about an amendment to the motion that has been proposed by our critic for Labour. I am speaking in support of that because I believe that in supporting her amendment, we are trying to give business a better climate for prosperity in this province. Through this kind of action, we might be able to entice more investment back to the province.

If we measure the movement of funds away from Ontario to other jurisdictions, we are seeing a permanent decline in the manufacturing sector in this province. Manufacturers want to make sure that if they establish their business here, there is going to be an ongoing climate between government and themselves of a trusting relationship. If that relationship is being destroyed through initiatives of this government—do members know what the problem is? This small amendment is not going to change it. It is more symbolic of the kind of change that could exist, where this government shows itself to be listening to business rather than listening to Bob White. He is behind the Premier, giving him guidance on what he should be doing. If they could somehow show that it is not Bob White running this show, that they are really open-minded to business and have a business sense of things, then the people of Ontario would begin to have more confidence in them, and they are lacking that now. Here is a chance of a symbolic gesture by the New Democratic Party to do a pro-business decision, and that would be to support the amendment that has been tabled by the member for Waterloo North. In that way we are at least showing good faith to the business community.

1730

Labour legislation has business terrified, not only with the leaked cabinet document that is going to be brought forward in the House very soon which shows a very strong bias against business, but if the government is able to remedy Bill 70 in a way that touches on some of the concerns we have, I give credit to the New Democratic government.

I do not think the public realizes that the New Democrats have backed off on a lot of the stupid parts of this bill from when they first brought it in. When the Minister of Labour announced that he would bring amendments to it and he was able to back off on those amendments as they affected directors, as he was able to limit—okay, there were several points, and they really do not pertain to this amendment, but the fact is that the government has moved. I give credit to the socialist government here in Ontario that it did make a number of amendments to this bill, but it has not gone far enough. They have not gone far enough but there is still time for them to take just a few more steps.

They have taken all business and the people of this province right to the edge of the cliff. We are looking over that edge and seeing people moving elsewhere. The government should bring them back, bring them back through a couple of moves like this.

It is not an awful lot to ask. It is just a simple amendment, and we have explained it. It would appear that there are a number of New Democrats in this House who would vote in favour of this. I know it is time, and maybe the member for Mississauga North would have a few more comments.

Ms S. Murdock: He is supporting us. He is not supporting your amendment.

Mr Cousens: I just complimented him for the Liberal leadership; I would have thought he would come back now and support this bill. I think he has now had a conversion because there is a chance that could be done.

Mr Harnick: Make him an offer.

Mr Cousens: Make Offer an offer; I would really like to do that.

Anyway, this is something that has to be dealt with. The Second Deputy Chair would certainly lead this House in understanding what we have been talking about.

Mr Perruzza: It is very much an honour to be able to stand and speak to such an important piece of legislation as a new member in this House. I note that my Conservative colleague who just sat down is applauding the fact that I am standing and speaking to this particular bill, Bill 70.

As I listen to some of the comments that have been made by both the Liberal Party and the Conservative Party about abstract concepts, about pendulum swings and about socialism versus capitalism and about a movement to the left and how this party and this government is mimicking what is taking place in Sweden and so on, I cannot help but think how quickly some of the more senior members of this Legislature, people who have had a full-time paycheque, people who have been on the payroll and have been secure in their payroll for many years, forget some of the pain and some of the suffering that is being experienced by families, both in Ontario and across this country, the kinds of pain that hard times inflict on people. We have a tendency to forget some of those things. We have a tendency to not see how the screws are tightened on people, from government pressures to private-interest pressures. The pressures on families and on working people to make ends meet are very great indeed.

As I watch the proceedings in this House as a new member I cannot help but be dismayed by how lightly we take the plight and the hardships of working people in this province and this country. If I were an unemployed person sitting at home right now looking for work and looking around and trying to figure out where my next paycheque would come from, I would be applauding the initiative of this government. I would be applauding the initiative that has been taken by the Premier of this province and by the socialist government, the labour government, the NDP government, the people on this side of the House.

Whatever label you want to give to the people on this side of the House, you would stand in your seat and you would applaud it, because this gives and renders some sense that there is some protection out there, that there are people in politics who are sensitive to some of the needs and pain that is being inflicted on working people across this province and across this country.

If I were an employed person just getting home from work and tuning in to the television I would applaud it as well, because what this says to me is that there is a government that is actually talking about implementing a program which says that if I all of a sudden find myself out of a job, and for whatever reason my employer has not been able to pay the kind of moneys I was owed, there are some moneys and there is some tide-me-over hope that by the time I find my next job I will be able to make my mortgage payment, I will be able to pay my property taxes, I will be able to pay my heating bill, and yes, I may be able to put some bread on the table to feed my children. That is what this says.

When I look across and see people making light of such a sensitive subject, when I see people in this House who have been used to receiving paycheque after paycheque for years on end and secure in those paycheques, then I can see why we lose touch with the hardships that are experienced by working families, by working people in this province and right across this country. I would hope that we move from discussions of abstract, intangible kinds of things and really deal with the meat of this bill.

What this bill says is that there is some sense of protection for working families. What it says is that working families in this province—and it should be across the country. I welcome the thought that there may be some NDP governments elsewhere in Canada besides the Yukon which may do the same kind of thing for the working families within their jurisdiction. I applaud that.

Mr Harnick: I have listened intently to the member for Downsview and it is quite clear that he just has not read this amendment. He does not understand the intent of this amendment. Nobody denies what this bill is intended to do, nor does anybody in this party deny the necessity of having this bill and for having a fund available for employees who lose their jobs because a business becomes insolvent or is bankrupt or fails to pay an employee's wages. No one denies that at all.

1740

What this amendment says is: "Don't do anything prematurely to cause a business to fail. A premature payment from this fund can in fact cause this business we are trying to save to fail." We all know that an order to pay from the employment standards branch could prematurely bring in other creditors, and the result of bringing in other creditors is that a business could face premature bankruptcy when a business might otherwise be able to survive.

All we are saying by this amendment is, "Don't force an employer to go out of business so that everybody loses his job." The members opposite should do everything they can to save that business. They should make the intent of this bill positive and such that we are going to continue to help business people keep their businesses solvent, so that we can keep people employed.

Mr Mammoliti: Hypocrite.

Mr Harnick: It is interesting that the member for Yorkview calls me a hypocrite.

The Second Deputy Chair: Order, please.

Mr Harnick: Mr Chairman, the member for Yorkview quite obviously—

The Second Deputy Chair: Order. Please take your seat. Did I hear someone accusing someone of being a hypocrite? I believe I heard it. Would you please withdraw it?

Interjection.

The Second Deputy Chair: Thank you.

Mr Wiseman: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: Am I correct in interpreting that you have just declared that the use of the word "hypocrite" in this chamber is unacceptable?

The Second Deputy Chair: I have not tolerated one member accusing another of being a hypocrite.

Mr Wiseman: This has happened on at least two occasions in this House prior to today, and we have had two occasions where the ruling of the Chair has been contradictory. On one occasion the Speaker ruled that the use of the words "hypocrite" and "hypocrisy" was not unacceptable.

The Second Deputy Chair: Order. Would the member resume his seat, please. I understand what you are saying. I believe the words "a hypocritical statement by the government" were used. I was here then and I believe it was let go. One member accused another of being a hypocrite. I will not tolerate that. I am sorry.

Interjection.

The Second Deputy Chair: I am sorry. To the honourable member for Durham West, that is the ruling.

Mr Wiseman: I am merely asking for clarification or a ruling on when the words "hypocrite" or "hypocrisy" can be used.

The Second Deputy Chair: The ruling is made.

Mr Cousens: One honourable member did call the member for Willowdale a hypocrite. He is now sitting in his seat. It would be appropriate, I think, for him to stand in his place and at least apologize for it, because it is not parliamentary language. I would really appreciate it if he would do it, because it really takes down the whole tenor of this place when one member—

The Second Deputy Chair: Your point is well taken. The honourable member for Yorkview.

Mr Mammoliti: Mr Chairman, yes, I did call the honourable member a hypocrite and I do withdraw that. I will let the viewers at home determine whether the member is a hypocrite.

Mr Harnick: The fact that the member would use that terminology about my position on this bill shows quite clearly that he does not understand this amendment. It also shows that he is predisposed to seeing every business in this province fail. That is what he wants. He wants a province where no one is left to create the wealth that pays the people who are employed. That is exactly what this member wants.

This member cannot look at the words of this amendment and see anything in those words that he can interpret in a positive way. He will twist those words and turn those words, because he believes every business in this province should fail and when that happens he will be happy. But let me tell that member, when every business in his riding closes up and every person is unemployed, let them stand at his door—which I understand is somewhere in Bowmanville—and let them seek refuge at his doorstep.

Mr Mammoliti: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: I do not know whether the member is referring to me or not, but first, I do not live in Bowmanville and, second, I cannot understand the logic—

The Second Deputy Chair: That is not a point of order.

Mr Mammoliti: Let me finish, Mr Chairman. I cannot understand the logic in what he is saying and what his federal government is doing when we talk about free trade. If he is so worried about business, why is he not out there trying to convince his federal government to change its policy on free trade?

The Second Deputy Chair: Order. Would the honourable member for Yorkview please be seated. You will have your opportunity to participate as soon as your turn comes up.

Mr Offer: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: I recognize that the government members and the third party members are engaging in duelling points of order. The Liberal caucus just wants to get on with debating this bill.

The Second Deputy Chair: Please resume your seat. The honourable member for Willowdale.

Mr Harnick: Duelling points of order? I have to take a moment from berating my friend the member for Yorkview to compliment my friend the member for Mississauga North. "Duelling Points of Order" could almost be the theme song of a movie.

To get back to what I was saying, I only want the member's address so that when all of the businesses in Yorkview fail his constituents can know where to find him, because they will probably want to come for breakfast, lunch or dinner and for shelter over their heads.

How he could interpret this section in anything but a positive way is beyond me. I put it to him to take a look at that amendment. I really wonder, on the basis of what he said, whether he ever really read the amendment. I suspect he has never read it, but I am going to read it to him. What it says is, "Despite subsection (1), an employee is eligible for compensation from the program only where his or her employer is bankrupt, is insolvent for an extended period or chronically fails to pay the employee's wages."

I said it before and I am going to say it again, because I do not think he was here earlier. What I put to him is, what happens when a business that is viable loses its biggest customer and is on the verge of failure or cannot make its payroll for one or two or three weeks? What happens if in the interim there is an order to pay from the employment standards branch? As soon as that order to pay becomes public, every creditor of this business is going to be at the doorstep of the registrar in bankruptcy with its petition, and this business is going to fail. When this business fails because he has not given it three or four or five more weeks to get back on its feet—

Hon Mr Pouliot: GST.

Mr Harnick: No, the one thing has nothing to do with the other. The GST may be bad and he may not like it, but to heap this on top of the GST when he knows the GST is there is only going to make it worse. He should not heap one bad item on top of another. I am giving him the chance not to make the GST even worse. I am giving him that chance.

The fact that he will not give a business three or four or five weeks to dig itself out of the problem it is in, the fact that he will not do that and the fact that he wants that business to close and he wants all of those people who were, up to that date, employed gainfully with secure jobs to be out on the street and to collect their $5,000 under this act and then be unemployed for an extended period is appalling. The fact that he wants that to happen and he wants to put small businesses in jeopardy is appalling.

1750

I cannot believe that a person who knows that 63% of all workers in this province are employed in small businesses would suggest what he has suggested in this Legislature. I urge all the people on the government side, if they do not like the GST, fine, but they should not pass legislation that is only going to compound the problem of GST on small businesses. That is what they are doing. This amendment gives them an opportunity to opt out of what this act can do to hurt businesses. This can make the act better.

I appreciate that they did not think of this amendment, so right off the bat it has one strike against it. They did not think of it, so they may not want it. But I am urging them to look at the intent of this amendment and I am urging them to go ahead and pass this amendment, because it is going to make this bill better.

Mr Wiseman: I would like to make a few comments. The honourable member for Willowdale has raised a very interesting point about wages and the impact that wages will have in terms of their not being paid and the cataclysmic events that then will cascade on to a business.

If a company is in default to the extent that the member is talking about and has that number of employees, it is very difficult for the rest of the creditors and the banks to hold off looking at that company in terms of calling its solvency. The federal government in the Bank Act makes it almost impossible for a company to hide the way the honourable member has suggested it could do if this amendment was there. The federal banking act very quickly calls in these questions. As soon as the bank thinks there is any kind of insolvency in a company, it reacts very quickly. So this amendment does not aggravate that situation, and in fact we are hopeful that the federal government will see fit to make some changes to the federal Bank Act to allow companies to have a greater latitude.

Mrs Cunningham: Is it not the Bankruptcy Act?

Mr Wiseman: The Bankruptcy Act, sorry. I thank the member for that.

I would like also to address at this point the notion of competition that has continually come up this afternoon. I would like to make a few quotes.

I have a quote from a person by the name of Rob Hammond, a Guelph manufacturer who builds transformers. He states that he is not panicking about what the government is doing or the economy is doing, because he sees that there is a good competitive advantage for him to be in the Ontario market. He goes on to say that OHIP provides at least a $2,500 to $3,000 employee benefit over the US market to be here.

He also says in the Kitchener-Waterloo Record of May 24: "We don't know why the Canadian dollar is so high, we don't know why interest rates are so high and we don't know why free trade came. No one phoned us for advice." I think this speaks to the notion of competitiveness and saying that we do not have a market here that will be beneficial.

I would also like to address for a moment the notion that this bill somehow is going to bring companies into jeopardy and that we do not care about businesses and say that this government has brought a number of things through the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology that allow companies to be and will make companies even more successful. For example, if you have a company that has more than 10 employees but fewer than 200, you can qualify for grants to hire people to help you expand your company, help expand the export market. This is not a government and this is not a program that says this government is not interested in promoting business.

This socialist government that the honourable members from the third party continue to deride has also supplied a great deal of funding for other businesses. For example, in Hamilton the Enersearch company, a subsidiary of Westinghouse motor company, has received $114,000 to improve industrial electric motors, which represents approximately 37% of a $308,000 project. This is not a program in terms of the wage package—

Mrs Marland: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: Earlier this afternoon, everyone on the government side of House was complaining about being referred to as a socialist government. I find it very interesting—

The Second Deputy Chair: Sorry, that is not a point of order.

Mrs Marland: My point of order is that this member is not addressing the amendment that is on the floor.

The Second Deputy Chair: That is not a point of order. Would the honourable member please stay on the amendment to Bill 70.

Mr Wiseman: Yes, Mr Chair. I agree with you there.

This amendment, as I mentioned earlier, will kick in if companies are not solvent, if they are indeed on the verge of bankruptcy. Out of that discussion earlier came this notion that we were promoting an uncompetitive climate which would in fact force this amendment to be used. I am trying to point out that in fact when this government gives a $300,000 grant to General Motors of Oshawa, it clearly is an indication that we are trying to promote jobs in this province and to prevent the need for this bill or for any part of this bill to be enacted.

When the Canadian Photovoltaic technological company in Ottawa receives $138,000, this is another attempt to forgo the cataclysmic events that would trigger the use of this bill, and when the St Joseph Printing Co in Concord receives $213,000 from this socialist government to keep people employed and therefore prevent the need for this bill to be used, I think there is an important point to be made, that we are encouraging companies to expand.

I would also like to say that we need to put this in perspective.

Mrs Cunningham: On a point of order, Mr Chair: With due respect to the member for Durham West, some of us were reading letters of concern from constituents with regard to Bill 70 and we were reading from those letters as we presented our position in the House today on their behalf. There is a very big difference between somebody standing up and making a political speech in his own words as opposed to what we were saying on behalf of the public.

The Second Deputy Chair: Sorry, that is not a point of order.

Mrs Cunningham: I object to this speech. I think it is totally out of order.

The Second Deputy Chair: That is not a point of order.

On motion by Mr Pouliot, the committee of the whole reported progress.

À la suite d'une motion présentée par M. Pouliot, l'étude du projet de loi en comité plénier de la Chambre est ajournée.

The House adjourned at 1800.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Hon/L'hon Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND)
Minister of Community and Social Services/
Ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND)
Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario
au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Education, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre de l'Éducation, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/
Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/ Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND)
Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Oriole L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND)
Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND)
PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/
Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la
Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND)
Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/
Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/
Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du
Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement
Grandmaître, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND) Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)

Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général

Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques

Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)

Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement

Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications

Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)

Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)

Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires

Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie

Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses

Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises

Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu

Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)

Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)

Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources

Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)

Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND) Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale

Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie

Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités

Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND) Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail

MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative

Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition

Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale

Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales

Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses

Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines

Martin, Tony (Sault Ste. Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation

Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement

McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)

McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)

McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux

McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)

Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition

Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général

Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice

Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)

Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail

North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs

O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)

O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)

O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition

Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement

Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Phillip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)

Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General, Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général, ministre des Services correctionnels

Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)

Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des comptes publics

Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND) Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones

Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre, ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales

Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)

Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)

Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux

Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)

Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)

Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement

Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)

Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)

Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)

Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)

Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)

Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques

Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West /-Ouest ND)

Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)

Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)

Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie

Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu

Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND) Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation; Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources

Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé

White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND)

Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister of Government Services/Ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND) PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications

Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)

Wininger, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des Services correctionnels

Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)

Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles

Ziemba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND) Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli, Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills, Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan, Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/

Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland

Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison, Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti, Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott, David Turnbull

Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon

Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford, Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen, Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil, Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway, W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson, Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson, Drummond White

Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/

Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Vacant

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher, Leo Jordan, Ellen MacKinnon, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Drummond White, Jim Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters

Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary, George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp, Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano

Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck, Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod, Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/

Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson

Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves, Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski, Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner

Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan

Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini, Kimble Sutherland

Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Monday 7 October 1991

Members' statements

Canadian Forces Base Trenton	2743
Mr H. O'Neil
Food drive	2743
Mr Jackson
City planning	2743
Mr Frankford
Life Sciences Technology Park	2743
Mr Daigeler
AIDS Awareness Week	2744
Mr J. Wilson
Whitby Centre Recreation Complex	2744
Mr White
Employment equity	2744
Mr Curling
Kay Livingstone Award	2744
Mrs Cunningham
Shelter for women	2745
Mr O'Connor
Correction	2745
Ms Poole
Visitors	2746
The Speaker
Visitors	2747
The Speaker

Oral questions

Retail sales tax	2745
Mr Elston
Mr Laughren
Soft drink containers	2746
Mr Elston
Mrs Grier
Labour legislation	2746
Mrs Witmer
Mr Mackenzie
Public safety	2747
Mr Runciman
Mr Pilkey
Ontario economy	2748
Mr Phillips
Mr Laughren
Budget	2749
Mr Sterling
Mr Laughren
Non-profit housing	2749
Mr B. Ward
Ms Gigantes
Sabrina Panetta	2750
Mr McClelland
Ms Akande
Blue-green algae	2751
Mr Cousens
Mrs Grier

Heritage conservation	2751
Mr Winninger
Mrs Haslam
Agricultural land	2752
Mr Bradley
Mr Buchanan
Child care	2752
Mr Jackson
Ms Akande
Agriculture programs	2753
Mrs MacKinnon
Mr Buchanan
Property assessment	2753
Mr Mahoney
Ms Wark-Martyn
Notice of dissatisfaction	2751
Mr McClelland
Use of question period	2754
Mr Mahoney

Petitions
Nursing homes	2754
Mr Daigeler
Pornography	2754
Mr Carr
Parking facilities	2754
Mr Wessenger

Committee of the whole House

Employment Standards Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 70	2755
Mrs Witmer	2755
Mr Carr	2755
Mr Offer	2756
Mrs Marland	2757
Ms S. Murdock	2759
Mr Mammoliti	2760
Mr Harnick	2762
Mr Cousens	2763
Mr Pouliot	2766
Mrs Cunningham	2768
Mr Perruzza	2772
Mr Wiseman	2774
Progress reported	2775

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities
Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le lundi 7 octobre 1991

Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Listes des députés

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur les normes d'emploi, (Programme de protection des salaires des employés), projet de loi 70	2755
Étude ajournée	2775

Les députés et leurs responsabilités Comités de l'Assemblée législative

65 1991

65 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Tuesday 8 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le mardi 8 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Tuesday 8 October 1991

The House met at 1330.

Prayers.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

GOVERNMENT FACILITIES

Mr Callahan: I rise today to thank the Attorney General for the announcement that was made in Brampton today that there will be a consolidation of courthouses, provincial and general divisions, something I have worked very hard on since 1985 with the former Attorney General, the member for St George-St David. He placed this on a high priority list.

I understand the construction will be completed by 1996. I hasten to add that the other night, city council of Brampton alone agreed to increase the urban envelope from 200,000 to 500,000 people. It becomes obvious that six or seven courtrooms, which is the totality that will be received, will have to be revised very much earlier.

As members know, Askov originated in the region of Peel. We would hope that Mr Askov would not revisit us and that the Attorney General and this government would continue to co-operate in bringing to us a justice system that can serve the people of the community in a due and fast fashion.

That completes or at least puts on the rails one of the things I have striven for since I was elected. The other was for a community health care centre in my community. As I look over at the Minister of Health, I would hope she too will come bearing goodies to the region of Peel. The minister has heard my comments about the growth in our area. The original documents were certainly put well on the rails by the former government, and I would hope for the benefit of the people of my community and for good health care that she would consider moving this along as quickly as possible.

EMERGENCY TELEPHONE SERVICES

Mr Cousens: York region does not always have the things Metropolitan Toronto has. One of the things we do not have and are in the process of implementing is the 911 exchange north of Steeles Avenue. If you dial the 911 number and you are north of Steeles, in any one of our nine municipalities, you will get the Bell telephone operator. If you have an emergency of some kind, you are not going to get the fire wheels or the police station or the ambulance; you will just get a Bell operator.

The regional municipality of York has invested a great deal to make sure we have street numbers and street names, and now it is in the process of installing a telephone switch. Unfortunately, they could not order the telephone switch on time, because they never got a response from the New Democratic government's Minister of Municipal Affairs for over a year, when they tried to get some feedback from him as to what was going on with regard to the approval needed for legislative change in the Regional Municipality of York Act. At last, they are going ahead without the legislative approval.

Here we have another situation where, through the government's bureaucratic bungling, through its inability to respond to letters and phone calls, a region has had to delay the process of getting this done. I have to say, although the minister is now going to bring in the bill, he could at least have responded to the letters and got the thing on the rails an awful lot faster. We need 911 in York region, and we will soon have it in spite of him.

HOUSEHOLD APPLIANCE STANDARDS

Mr Kormos: I do not have to tell you again, Mr Speaker, because most people know I have little use for those $1,000-a-day consultants, but the fact is there are all sorts of people out there in Ontario who have good insights into a whole lot of things and who are prepared to share those insights—for example, Don Hammond. For 25 years Don Hammond down in Welland has been operating Hammond Appliances up at the Fitch Street plaza, handling air-conditioners, kitchen appliances, washers and dryers.

Don Hammond knows that people are crossing the border to shop, buying appliances, everything from a Mr Coffee to a fridge and stove. They think what they are buying is cheaper, but what they are buying are appliances that have not been passed by the Canadian Standards Association. These items are not cheaper. They are deficient, they are inferior and indeed they put those same consumers at risk, anything from the coffee pot that melts on the kitchen counter to the washer or dryer or stove that blows up in the middle of the night, setting the house on fire.

The federal government is doing nothing to halt the importation of these illegal products that do not pass Canadian standards. If we really want to talk seriously about cross-border shopping we should listen to people like Don Hammond from Hammond Appliances up at the Fitch Street plaza, a responsible retailer who knows that all it is going to take is for the federal government to say, "No, we're not going to let non-CSA appliances into this country." That is going to be part of the solution and that is why we should be listening to people like Don Hammond and not to the consultants.

FOREST FIREFIGHTING

Mr Miclash: In his announcement last week, the Treasurer cited the need for $53 million in extra forest firefighting dollars. Let me point out some interesting facts which surround this allegation.

For the last 12 years the cost of extra forest firefighting has averaged $25 million per year, yet last year's estimates approved only a $7-million allocation, a figure which baffled many. Yes, moneys were allocated to regular forest firefighting, and yes, fires are unpredictable, as are the costs, but as climatologists increasingly take the view that our climate is becoming warmer and drier, expecting more fires and higher costs would be responsible.

I cannot argue with the need to fight the fires, and I must at this time praise the bravery and hard work of the staff of the Ministry of Natural Resources who undertake this hazardous work. However, I ask the Minister of Natural Resources and the Treasurer if they intentionally low-balled the estimates' total for extra forest firefighting. Were these gentlemen betting the public would not even give a second glance and nod their heads and say, "Well, sure, we have to fight those fires"?

The estimates should more accurately reflect what can be reasonably expected in an expenditure. An estimate of $7 million, when the average over the last dozen years has been $25 million, is both misleading and, I feel, totally irresponsible. I cannot help but think that as the forests of Ontario burn, the government accountants fiddle.

LAND REGISTRATION

Mr Jordan: Thank you, Mr Speaker, for the opportunity to once again raise the issue of closing the new $1-million registry office in Almonte. The honourable minister has refused to consider new information provided to her regarding the service area extended outside of north Lanark, namely, West Carleton and Kanata.

The decision at present is based on flawed information. The people of Lanark, including the president of the local NDP association, travelled to Toronto in all sincerity to make sure the minister would have the correct information and carry out her promised review of the decision. Not to do this is undemocratic and a dictatorial expression to the people of Almonte, who are under the assumption that no action will be taken until a full report to the committee has been reviewed.

In one way I am not surprised at her action, as the delegation was referred to at the hearings by an NDP committee member as just a group of lobbyists. This cold and callous approach to Mayor Finner of Almonte, lawyer Pat Galway, NDP president Jonathan Robinson, Reeve Barr of Pakenham, Garth Turner of the real estate board and Warden Paul Finner is just not acceptable in my riding. The minister should extend the time, give further review and give our democratic process some credibility.

1340

AGRI-FOOD WEEK

Mrs Mathysen: I would like to remind the House that this week is Agri-Food Week. These few days before Thanksgiving are indeed a fitting time to pause and pay tribute to the people who grow and prepare our food. It is also a good opportunity to promote the purchase of Ontario products to keep this important sector of our economy viable.

The agriculture and food industry contributes some $17 billion to the economy. This is second only to the automotive industry. More than 200 commodities are produced and either shipped to market here at home or exported to a dozen international destinations. Our food processing companies account for 40% of the entire country's industry, employing some 85,000 people.

The family farm is the cornerstone of this industry and the heart of many rural communities throughout Ontario. Some 72,000 Ontario farm families work tirelessly to assure us of a reliable, high-quality food supply at a reasonable cost.

This week, special events throughout the province will draw attention to the people and processes that help bring good food from the farm gate to the dinner plate. These include a farmers' market in downtown Toronto, food demonstrations at Norfolk County Agricultural Fair, a partners-in-agriculture luncheon in Thunder Bay and much more. There are also promotions in the form of local print and radio advertising, farm tours, contests and mall displays.

In my own riding of Middlesex, members of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture are sponsoring a six-bill-board agricultural awareness campaign as well as participating in radio and television programs.

SEXUAL ABUSE OF CHILDREN

Mrs McLeod: The Minister of Community and Social Services will be aware that recently eight more women came forward to reveal that they were the victims of sexual abuse at the Grandview training school for girls in Cambridge. This is not the first time that Ontarians have become aware that children in residential institutions have been abused by those charged with caring for them, nor will this likely be the last time we hear such news.

In the past, governments have responded to calls for a public inquiry into this problem by indicating that the police investigation must take its course before an inquiry can take place. The Liberal government responded to past allegations by commissioning the Campbell report, a Review of Safeguards in Residential Treatment Centres. The present government responded to the findings of this report by ensuring that steps would be taken to prevent further abuse in residential settings, and I commend it for that.

In the face of growing evidence that this type of abuse has been and perhaps continues to be more widespread than any of us would like to believe, I believe it is time to address this issue in a broader way.

I am concerned that the problem of abuse of children is much broader and more prevalent than we have previously acknowledged. We must determine the most effective way of understanding this issue in its full dimensions. We must find a constructive method which assists victims and works towards an end to the abuse.

The time has come to confront this issue so that we can begin to address it in all the ways and all the places it occurs in our society. I therefore call on the government to undertake a province-wide inquiry into the occurrence of abuse in children's residential settings in this province.

NORTHERN ECONOMY

Mr Carr: We have seen this government stumble from crisis to crisis without any overall economic strategy for growth and development. They have reneged on promise after promise, with no long-term planning for renewal or revitalization of our economy. We need some proactive solutions to the problems facing Ontario, especially in the forest and resources industries.

This morning MacMillan Bloedel announced that it is permanently closing its hardboard division at its mill operation in Sturgeon Falls. As a result, 162 jobs will be lost. This government knew it was happening. The northern Ontario heritage fund, which was created specifically for the diversification of northern Ontario's economic base, could have been tapped.

MacMillan Bloedel has developed plans for the creation of a mill to facilitate recycling, something which this government supposedly encourages. The member for Nipissing has spoken to officials of Fednor about this proposal and they believe it is viable. Yet our government, which says it cares so much about the north, has not provided a concrete response to this proposal.

We have seen this government respond on an ad hoc basis to eleventh-hour crises, usually after it is too late and at tremendous cost to taxpayers. What we need to see from this government is job training and retraining, private sector partnership, industrial restructuring and investment strategy. We need a government which is proactive not reactive.

BELLEVILLE FARMERS' MARKET

Mr Johnson: I would like to share with my colleagues in the House today the fact that the Belleville farmers' market is celebrating its 175th anniversary this Saturday, October 12. The Belleville farmers' market has existed in many venues in Belleville, but for the last few years it has been located behind the Belleville city hall.

It is a site where farmers have come to town in order to sell their produce for the last 175 years. It has had a very important historical role in the town. It has also had a very important social value, as I am sure many political debates have taken place at this very farmers' market.

Presently the role and function of the farmers' market is one of an opportunity for my farmer constituents from Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings to come to Belleville in order to sell the freshest, most nutritious produce that one can buy in Ontario. This allows farmers an opportunity to maximize their profit. If they sell their produce directly to the people of Ontario, they will make the maximum amount of profit.

I would like to encourage the people who have access to farmers' markets across the province to buy their fresh produce there. I congratulate the Belleville farmers' market on its 175th anniversary.

1350

The Speaker: Statements by ministers. The member for York Centre.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENTS

Mr Sorbara: Mr Speaker, I am rising today on a point of order. I note that you just called for ministers' statements, and there was no minister's statement by the government today. I am rising today to put to you the argument that the course of conduct of the government, certainly since we have returned here on September 23, represents a violation of the rules of this House and of standing order 31, which provides for ministers' statements and an opportunity for members of the opposition to respond to ministers' statements.

You will recall, sir, when we revised the rules of this House substantially under a Liberal administration we provided for government ministers to make statements before the House. The interesting innovation and reform of that process was to provide members of the opposition with an opportunity to respond, and that is now found in subsection 31(e), which provides that:

"Following ministerial statements a representative or representatives of each of the recognized opposition parties in the House may comment for up to a total of five minutes for each party commencing with the official opposition."

I want to inform you, Mr Speaker, that the Attorney General, who is once again absent from the House, made an announcement today of a very substantial expenditure of money to look at the possible construction of more courthouses, not only in the community of Brampton but beyond that. My colleague the member for Brampton South has had an opportunity to comment on that during members' statements.

Over the past couple of days we have heard a statement outside of the House, not in this House, from the Minister of Health announcing funding for an AIDS program. We have heard via the grapevine and through the newspapers of this province an announcement from the Minister of Housing, who is not paying attention, a statement of significant expenditures, not made in this House.

I know you have commented on individual instances of this sort before, Mr Speaker, but you ought to take a look now not at the individual instances but at a course of conduct. The reforms you helped to pass when you sat here as a member from Scarborough were designed to give opposition members an opportunity to comment on government policy on a day-to-day basis.

The historic precedents of this House—and I tell my friend the government House leader that he was most vociferous on this point during his time in opposition—if you just bear with me for a moment, sir, I suggest you reflect on the fact that a course of conduct that has ministers making announcements outside of this House every day of the week violates the very rules we reformed during the last Parliament. We are denied the opportunity of commenting on statements.

The Speaker: To the member for York Centre, in standing order 31(a) the operative word is "may." "A minister of the crown may make a short factual statement." I appreciate—

Mr Chiarelli: They are an arrogant government over there, Mr Speaker. Shape them up.

The Speaker: Order. I appreciate the point raised by the member and the context in which he places it. There is nothing in the standing orders which compels ministers to make statements in the House rather than outside the House. I certainly am, as most members are, quite mindful of the precedents and procedure of our jurisdiction and of others operating in a parliamentary system, but I must report to the member that there is nothing out of order.

Mr Conway: It is surely a brave new world in which that supersleuth of Queen's Park fame, Gerry McAuliffe, now apparently on the public payroll at a cost of $100,000 annually, should be advising this cabinet to stay away from this Legislature.

ORAL QUESTIONS BUDGET

Mr Conway: My question is to the Treasurer. I continue to be concerned that he knows more about the revenue difficulties in which the government now finds itself than he is prepared to admit to this Legislature. Until very recently he persisted in telling the chamber, the elected members of this assembly, that his revenues for this fiscal year 1991-92 were spot on.

Last Saturday night the viewing public of Global's public affairs program Focus Ontario heard the Treasurer say, "We now know that next year our revenues are going to be fairly flat." I took some regard for the answers he provided to my leader, the member for Bruce, and the responses yesterday to the Tory Treasury critic, the member for Carleton.

Having regard to (a) his oft-repeated statement in this Legislature that his revenues are spot on, (b) his global comments that next year's revenues are going to be "fairly flat," (c) his remarks that this year's budgetary deficit will come in at not more than $9.7 billion and that next year's deficit will be absolutely held to $8.9 billion, can the Treasurer now confirm that he is very confident that, notwithstanding what he has said, next year's budgetary revenues will be at $47.2 billion as projected?

Hon Mr Laughren: There is a lot built into that question, which deals with this year's and next year's revenues. I will try to get to what I think is the essential part of the member's question which, as I understand it, is to determine to what extent the forecast we laid out for next year in this year's budget will be achieved in terms of revenues.

I would put it into a context and I hope you will allow me to do this, Mr Speaker, but if you want to stop me midway, I will finish in the supplementary.

In the economic document, the budget, which the member has, he will note that for the next three years we have forecast economic growth averaging 7.2%, I believe, and that revenues would take a part of that economic growth almost by definition. There is a tradition that about 90% of economic growth reflects itself in revenues in terms of percentages, which means that our revenues would go up around 6.3% over the next three years. At the same time, we know we are going to have very heavy expenditure pressures during that time.

We said there is a gap between the natural growth in the economy because of rebounding out of the recession and the new revenues that flow from that, compared with the expenditures we anticipate. That gap will have to be filled either by new tax revenues or by containing expenditures in a very meaningful way, and perhaps even reducing them. That is all we said in our anticipation of where the next few years will take us.

Mr Conway: The Treasurer will know that this is the most controversial budget Ontario has seen in the modern period. There is growing concern on all sides that at the midpoint of this budget cycle the 1991-92 budget is in trouble. We had a midcourse correction last week in which the Treasurer took some very tentative steps, but quite frankly a lot of people in Ontario were distressed to see that a great many of the tough decisions about this year's budget were transferred to next year.

Would the Treasurer now confirm that he has no reasonable prospect of achieving this year's revenue target in this fiscal year and that he cannot possibly achieve next year's revenue target without two things happening: multi-billion-dollar program cuts next year and at least a tax increase of anywhere between $1 billion and $2.5 billion?

Hon Mr Laughren: I disagree with the member on virtually every count. First, simply because we made a midyear adjustment to our expenditures does not mean we are in trouble; as a matter of fact, it means we are not in trouble. We did it in order to maintain our expenditures at the level we forecast.

Mrs Caplan: You said so yourself. You're out of control.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Laughren: I will speak more quietly and then perhaps the member for Oriole will yell more quietly.

The reason we made the midyear adjustment was so that we could maintain our expenditures at the level we forecast in the budget in the spring.

Second, I believe we are going to achieve our revenue figures this year based on our own revenue sources. The only proviso I put is that historically—the member for Renfrew North would know this better than I—the revenues the federal government pays back to us in the form of provincial income taxes have been a very volatile figure. We do not know that number yet. That is my only warning.

Mr Conway: I am glad the Treasurer makes the last point. He and I had an exchange back in early May of this year when I alleged, and it is still my belief, that one of the reasons this revenue line for fiscal 1991-92 cannot be credited is that all the evidence suggests the Treasurer built into his revenue base last year's $930-million windfall, which he has absolutely no reason to believe will be in this year's federal transfer.

I believe he cannot reasonably expect to meet this year's revenue projections because, inadvertently to be sure, he overstated his personal income tax revenues on that account. He built into his base a windfall of some $930 million from last year that I believe will not be here this year and that certainly will not be there next year.

My final supplementary on this point is, if the Treasurer is really going to pull out all the stops and do the incredibly fantastic restraint measure that good democratic socialists would expect, that he is going to fight to the bitter end to keep this year's deficit to $10 billion and next year's to $9 billion, would he not agree that he is going to have to contemplate next year at least a $1-billion to $2.5-billion tax increase?

1400

Hon Mr Laughren: I am not sure what the member for Renfrew is getting at. In the budget this year, we deliberately put in three what we call "out years," the next three years. We deliberately put in numbers there. It is not traditional that the province does that. We wanted to say to the people of Ontario: "We have a $9.7-billion deficit this year. We know that is going to be controversial, but we felt we had to do it in the middle of a recession in order to maintain essential services, especially in education, health care and social services."

Interjection.

Hon Mr Laughren: Some day the member for Oriole is going to make a meaningful contribution to this debate rather than just yelling.

The Speaker: Would the Treasurer conclude his remarks, please.

Hon Mr Laughren: The reason we put in next year's numbers, and the next three years' numbers, was to say to people in the province: "We are going to reduce the deficit in the next three years. We have a plan to do it and we are going to do it." And that remains our position.

Mr Conway: I have a new question to the same minister on the same subject. I want to come back to the Treasurer about the fiscal plan, next year's fiscal plan, about which he now seems to be quite knowledgeable. He is prepared to say some things about next year's revenue but he does not seem to want to talk about this year's revenue. He tells Global television that he already knows next year's revenues are going to be "fairly flat." A lot of people would believe that to mean he is not going to be able to achieve the 9.8% growth, year over year, in revenues. To look at next year's budget plan—and the Treasurer has said he is going to hold the line to his $8.9-billion deficit—revenues must grow by at least 9.8%. He has to get real growth in the economy of somewhere between 3.5% and 4%. He now has to deal with the hundreds of millions of dollars of expenditure pain that he has transferred from this year to next year.

The Speaker: And the question?

Mr Conway: The Treasurer is clearly going to have to raise taxes to meet that objective. What taxes is he now considering to levy next year on the businesses and the citizens of this province to meet this $9-billion deficit projection?

Hon Mr Laughren: I am sure the member understands that at this point we have not looked at any potential tax increases or reductions at all. Right now, having made the midyear adjustment to this year's expenditures, we are in the process of examining all the major allocations of government: every ministry, every major allocation. That is what we are doing now to see what savings or what efficiencies can be effected for the next fiscal year. We have not reached the point yet where we are even talking about taxes for next year.

Mr Conway: It is quite clear to me, and I think to a lot of more dispassionate analysts, that if the Treasurer and the government of which he is a part have any hope of meeting these targets, they are—and I repeat—in the next fiscal year going to have to cut programs, I believe, by at least $1 billion to $2 billion, and they are going to have to consider tax increases of a corresponding amount to meet the objectives the Treasurer has already set. He repeated on the Global telecast that he is going to stand firm on a $9-billion deficit next year.

If he has any hope of meeting any of these very optimistic objectives, he is going to have to do it with the engine of small business in Ontario. I am sure the Treasurer has now read last week's survey document published by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, where some 83% of those surveyed in this province in recent days are very distressed about the situation in which they find themselves; their single biggest concern, almost 88%, is the tax burden.

What specific measures will this Treasurer, on behalf of this government, undertake in the very near future having regard to what he has to do about tax increases in the upcoming fiscal year? What kind of meaningful dialogue is he going to begin with small business, the engine of his recovery, if he is going to address the overwhelming concern of these people; namely, that they have no hope of participating and of producing the kind of recovery if more taxes are about to fall on their heads?

Hon Mr Laughren: First of all, I am sure the member opposite would agree that we did not impose very many new taxes this year, in particular on the small business community. Therefore, what he is castigating me for are the taxes that his government imposed in the last five years, not the ones this government imposed.

Interjection.

The Speaker: Order, the member for Oriole.

Hon Mr Laughren: I look forward to the day when the member for Oriole will ask me a question instead of yelling at me across the floor.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Everyone has become calm quickly, which is nice. Time is fleeting, so perhaps we could wrap up the response and then we could have a brief final supplementary.

Hon Mr Laughren: I really believe that what we did in the budget this year was probably the best stimulant for the Ontario economy we could have done, given the circumstances. I would remind the honourable members that in the budget we created or maintained 70,000 jobs with our expenditures. Second, we created a $700-million anti-recession package, which no other jurisdiction in this country did. I think we have already gone a long way to making sure the economy is in a stage of recovery rather than just accepting the fact that we are in a recession.

Mr Conway: The relationship between this government and small business reminds me of a Liz Taylor romance: flamboyant, short-lived and not very happy. Clearly that is going to have to change if the Treasurer's own budgetary forecasts are going to be met. When he has small business telling him that it is overwhelmingly concerned about his budget, overwhelmingly concerned about the tax burden, when it tells him in its fall survey that it is overwhelmingly concerned by this government's anti-business bias, how does the Treasurer expect to meet his very optimistic budgetary plan if he cannot to a greater extent inspire confidence in this, the fundamental engine of this province's economy and its recovery, namely, the small business sector?

1410

Hon Mr Laughren: I would only hope this government will be re-elected as often as Liz Taylor has been remarried. I think I would prefer to end the analogy right there.

I would say, in a serious way to a serious question, that this government has negotiated and consulted more with the business community than any government in Ontario ever has done. We recognize the importance of the small business community in this province. We recognize the fact that we depend on the health of the small business community to create and maintain jobs. It is our intention, through the Premier's Council and other mechanisms, to continue to consult with the small business community, because we believe it is important.

Mr Arnott: I would compare this government's virtue to that of Elizabeth Taylor any time.

LAND REGISTRATION

Mr Arnott: My question is to the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations. This past weekend, my home town of Arthur experienced an unprecedented act of skulduggery by this government. Movers arrived in the dead of night to carry out this government's ill-conceived plan to close down the local registry office. The OPP was called in to this otherwise quiet village. How can the minister condone this type of sneak attack on the people of Arthur?

Hon Ms Churley: It appears to me that both members of the opposition across the floor get their research from the National Enquirer.

I want to point out that there were no moves made from the land registry office in Arthur in the dead of night. There were attempts made over the weekend and at the planned date.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Ms Churley: There were attempts made, as I said, over the weekend. Because there were demonstrations at the office at that time, the movers conferred with the OPP and made a very sensible decision so as to make sure nobody got hurt.

Mr Villeneuve: Police state.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Ms Churley: They decided they would leave at that time and attempt to make the move on another day. That is exactly what happened.

Mr Arnott: The minister is wrong. I was there. On Sunday morning, I stood beside many Arthur residents in the rain and the wind to show my support for our registry office, but once again we were left out in the cold by this government.

The residents of Arthur have been asking for a meeting with the minister as well as a meeting with the Premier, but to no avail. The minister has not consulted. If she had, this type of pre-dawn raid against the people of Arthur could have been prevented. Will she halt all further closings immediately, before another town falls prey to her heavy-handed plans?

Hon Ms Churley: As the member knows, in the judicial review held over the Arthur closing, the judge came down very clearly and took the position that this government had the perfect right to make those kinds of policy decisions and dismissed the case.

We are convinced that although this is not fun—this decision was not made for fun; it was a very difficult decision—as I have explained many times in this House, it is saving the taxpayers of Ontario $1 million a year, plus $8 million in capital dollars. At this time, with all of the noise that is being made about our deficit and the difficult economic times we are in, the opposition continues to try to have it both ways. We have to make some difficult choices and get on with them.

Mr Arnott: Who knows what will happen next? The registry office in Almonte is slated to close in 10 days. Three more are slated for closing in the riding of S-D-G & East Grenville. The minister has ignored the people of Arthur. She has ignored other affected communities. She has ignored the views of the standing committee on general government. That committee is meeting this Thursday to discuss the registry office issue. Is the minister going to start listening, or should we cancel that meeting of the standing committee on general government?

Hon Ms Churley: No. In fact, I am looking forward to hearing the report from the standing committee. I am quite looking forward to—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I realize that this is a contentious issue. At the same time, the member for Wellington posed a question to which I anticipate he would like to hear the response.

Hon Ms Churley: As I was saying, I am quite looking forward to the results from the committee. I would like to point out to the member that—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Ms Churley: I would like to point out, if the members would listen, that I understand this is very hard for the areas where the closings are taking place. There are some places in Ontario where people have to travel up to 200 kilometres to register in a land registry office. We have to equalize the system. Most of these closings still do not leave very many kilometres for people—

Interjections.

Hon Ms Churley: Please, Mr Speaker, this is important. People are asking me very pointed questions. I just want to make it clear that this is not indeed that much of a hardship compared to what other people in other parts of Ontario have had to deal with in terms of travel time for many years.

Hon Mr Wildman: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: In the cacophony from the other side, I heard an accusation—I believe it came from my friend from the united counties—that this was a police state. I would ask you to review the record and determine if that is parliamentary.

The Speaker: I did not hear the offending remark.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Members come to order, please. As I did not hear the remark to which the member for Algoma refers, I will be pleased to take a look at the record. If indeed a member from the other side made such a comment and would be so gracious as to withdraw that remark, then that would be helpful.

Mr Villeneuve: Mr Speaker, when the police are called in at 6 o'clock in the morning to make a move of a registry office, I have some difficulty with that. If "being a police state" is not parliamentary, then I will withdraw and I will allow the government to make up its own mind as to what kind of a state it is.

The Speaker: My own state of mind is slightly confused at this point, but I take it that there was a withdrawal, and we now have a new question being posed by the member for London North.

EDUCATION FUNDING

Mrs Cunningham: My question is for the Minister of Colleges and Universities. Last year, within a month of being elected, his Premier told Ontario's 23 college presidents, "Accessibility is a critical issue."

Last week, the Treasurer clawed back $3.6 million in the 1991-92 fiscal year from Ontario's colleges, yet he gave increases to senior civil servants of 11% or $17 million. This government had choices: civil servants' salaries or students' education and training in our province.

Would the minister tell this House if a $3.5-million cut is his answer or the Premier's answer to accessibility?

Hon Mr Allen: As I think the House is quite aware, the government undertook an adjustment program in mid-year with respect to its revenue and expenditure situation. In being asked to respond in some measure to that, my ministry had a choice of addressing the question of whether to secure an adjustment in one of two programs we offer, the only two major programs we have. One was OSAP, student support, and the other was the transfer. We chose not to touch OSAP, which we had in fact expanded this year to expand access. We preserved access to the system of colleges and universities.

With respect to the question of access, the member knows that every registration in the college or university system is ultimately paid for in the formula, so there is no reduction in access. Those students will be paid for. There is a marginal adjustment that we cash-float in such a way as to not impact on this fiscal year. So we have done everything we can to address the access question and the management capacity of both the colleges and the universities in the present circumstances.

1420

Mrs Cunningham: I will send over to the minister his own statement with regard to operating grants prior to adjustment and revised operating grants which clearly show a reduction. That is real dollars, real programs and real students. The overall enrolment in our community colleges increased this year between 10% and 11%. That is a lot of students.

Mrs Caplan: Where are your priorities?

The Speaker: Right now it is the member for London North who has the floor and the opportunity to pose a supplementary, not the member for Oriole.

Mrs Cunningham: Last year the overall enrolment in our community colleges increased 10% to 11%. There were some serious reasons for that. At Fanshawe College in London it increased by 8%: more students enrolled in classes this year than last. Yet the Treasurer has cut $221,367 from Fanshawe's operating budget. That is real dollars. No matter what way he tries to explain it, it is money that will not be there.

Since the students are already in the classroom and the budget has been set, Fanshawe has only two choices: increase its deficit or cut staff. Will the minister tell this House which course of action he will be advocating?

Hon Mr Allen: The colleges and universities are large systems. They, like government, have to examine their expenditures and revenues and they are obliged to manage those resources as best they can. We all in this province are confronted with a major recession problem in the economy. Somehow all of us have to take possession of that problem and deal with it as best we can, and that is true of the universities and it is true of the colleges.

I want to tell the member that with respect to the funding implications of all that, I have in place at this time a funding review for the colleges which will examine all the funding problems and the pressures that are there, in the hope of being able to respond to those problems.

Mrs Cunningham: When I go to Fanshawe College this weekend, I will be telling the students that this government preferred to give senior civil servants, who make lots of money, 11% in this fiscal year. That is what I am going to tell them. That is $17 million and that is a reality. So I do not know why the government would go ministry by ministry.

Right now this government talks about fighting the recession, yet it made our community colleges the very first victims of battle. At a time of record job losses and massive plant closings, we are counting on our community colleges and the students there to help get Ontario out of this recession. Community colleges are the institutions that are working to make victims of the recession productive, and they are there. The average age of students is over 24 years of age. It has gone up in the last two years.

Since his ministry was the only one to receive a cut in funding, other than deferred program payments—

Hon Mr Pouliot: That is not true.

Mrs Cunningham: Yes, it is true. The member should not tell me it is not true, or he should stand up and tell me—

The Speaker: Would the member place her final supplementary.

Mrs Cunningham: Mr Speaker, somebody said I did not tell the truth, and I do not like it.

Hon Mr Pouliot: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: Of course the member always tells the truth; it is just that the subject matter she is addressing is totally incorrect.

The Speaker: It would actually be much better form should I just hear those little magic words, "I withdraw."

Hon Mr Pouliot: With magic and respect, I withdraw.

The Speaker: Now if we could have the supplementary.

Mrs Cunningham: I will repeat the statement so there is no misunderstanding as to what I said. This ministry was the only one to receive a cut in funding. Other ministries had program spending deferred to next year. If the government is not prepared to give community colleges priority at the cabinet table, will colleges be forced to cut enrolments for next year?

Hon Mr Allen: I want to assure the colleges and the member opposite that no, the colleges will not be forced to cut enrolments next year. As I have explained to the member, there is a rolling formula which compensates the colleges for their student enrolments, and they will get their money in due course for every enrolment they receive.

At the same time I also want to say to the member that she is quite incorrect in saying that this is the only ministry that has taken a reduction in expenditures in the course of the current exercise. That is simply not true. It just happens that in this circumstance we have one program that could possibly have been adjusted and another program which is a transfer that could be adjusted. We chose to make the adjustment in one place, Health took the adjustment in another, Municipal Affairs took it in another, Education took it in another, and they all took it in very significant measure. There is not one single ministry that has been singled out for attack in the whole exercise.

NDP CAUCUS OFFICE

Mr Mahoney: In the last few question periods I have been somewhat disappointed to wind up at the bottom of the question list with a question to the Premier. Today I get at the top and I find the Premier has not shown up. So he either leaves early to avoid my question or he does not show.

The Speaker: To whom do you wish to place your question?

Mr Mahoney: I am getting a complex. It is really somewhat bothersome. I will think of someone to ask this question to.

As you know, Mr Speaker, the province is currently entrenched in the worst recession since the 1930s: 300,000 people have lost their jobs in the last year and over 50,000 people have gone bankrupt, and the new provincial deficit is being projected at more than $12 billion. In these tough economic times people look to this government for leadership, guidance and support.

My question, in the absence of the Premier, is for the Minister without Portfolio, the minister responsible for the NDP caucus services, the chief government whip. As this minister is aware, her office authorized the redecoration of the NDP caucus room, room 247, in the Legislative Building. Estimates are that she spent in excess of $100,000 on these frivolous decorating costs.

Can the minister tell us if this is true, and if it is not true, what was the total cost of these frivolous redecorating dollars? How much did she spend and did it conform to the Ministry of Government Services unit price accommodation guideline released in July 1991?

The Speaker: It is a bit awkward in that normally in Parliament questions are not allowed to the chief government whip in that the person does not have any ministerial responsibilities.

Mr Offer: She is a minister.

The Speaker: Order. If the chief government whip is prepared to respond, that is at her own—

Hon Mrs Coppen: I thank the member from the other side. If my figures are incorrect, I will apologize later. The caucus room had not been done over in many years. We had problems with the electrical system in that office. There was not enough lighting in there, and it was unsafe. That was one of the costs. The carpeting was done over, it was wallpapered, new draperies, the desk, the chairs—nothing else was changed in that office, none of the woodwork. If I am not mistaken, and I apologize if I give the member the wrong figure, the total cost of doing that room over with the change to the electrical system was approximately $20,000, not $100,000.

1430

Mr Mahoney: I appreciate the minister attempting to answer the question. Our facts and our figures would indicate that she is substantially wrong in that estimate. If you take into account the fact that apparently the wallpaper alone was $50 a square foot—

Interjections.

Mr Mahoney: The minister should check her facts, and I would like her to come in with the proper facts.

Apparently the place has been recarpeted twice in the one year these people have been in office. It is quite clear to me that the socialists are enjoying life at the public trough and are being totally irresponsible in their expenditures. Does this minister, who I understand signed for these redecorating costs and approved all of them as the minister responsible for the services to that caucus, think this kind of use of public dollars is appropriate in light of the economic difficulties all Ontarians are facing, lining up for food banks and waiting for housing?

Mr Speaker: Would the member conclude his question, please.

Mr Mahoney: We hear all the ministries are being cut, their budgets are being decimated, yet these people are spending tens of thousands of dollars on bloody wallpaper and carpet.

Hon Mrs Copen: The amounts of money spent for that office were caucus allocations approved by the Board of Internal Economy, of which the member from the other party was a member. This was no secret. This is our caucus money.

To inform taxpayers of the province, I have the smallest ministry in this whole government. Like other ministers, I have been able to save 7% in my budget this year. I do take it seriously that this is taxpayers' money, unlike the members from the other side who thought the SkyDome would be a wonderful thing for the taxpayers of Ontario.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Tuesdays are lively days.

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE

Mr Tilson: In view of the absence of the Premier, I have a question for the Minister of Financial Institutions. In 1987, when he was leader, the Premier made a submission before the Coulter Osborne commission in which he stated, with respect to the auto insurance proposals of the Liberal government: "Nor do we consider it necessary or appropriate to improve any kind of threshold requirements limiting the right to sue to those whose loss exceeds a specified dollar amount or a stated degree of injury. New Democrats are opposed to the loss of individual legal rights entailed by such thresholds."

That is an interesting statement. I am sure the member for Welland-Thorold is thrilled to hear it. All that appears to have changed, particularly from the minister's statements and statements by members of his government. The government has spent $5 million on studies as to why it is not going to nationalize the insurance industry. Contrary to their party's position, they have said they are going to have a threshold test but are not going to allow anyone to sue for economic loss. They have given to the insurance industry a discussion paper entitled Automobile Insurance Reform Objectives, a paper that none of the members of this House has seen, that no one else has seen except the insurance industry.

Can the minister tell the members of this House when he is going to introduce his bill?

Hon Mr Charlton: We have given no discussion paper to the industry, nor to anyone else. I said, in response to a question the member raised two weeks ago, that we are in the process of consultations with the industry and all of the stakeholder groups. It is this government's intention to announce here in this House a policy position later this month and then to proceed to develop legislation in consultation with all of the groups with which we have been consulting. This minister is not prepared to accept from the member that this government is doing anything other than consulting in a fair way before it announces its policy position.

Mr Tilson: The Insurance Brokers Association of Ontario has indicated that it has received from the ministry a discussion paper entitled Automobile Insurance Reform Objectives, which listed seven objectives. They distributed that to all of their members. No one else has received this paper. The minister had better review his notes, because other people have received this paper.

I would like the minister to comment on a statement by his deputy minister, Blair Tully, to a group called People Against the Insurance Nightmare in a meeting on September 26, 1991. He said that legislation would not be introduced until next spring, tentatively July 1992. Is it going to take that long before he introduces his bill? Why is the minister taking so long?

Hon Mr Charlton: Obviously the member has difficulty both reading and comprehending.

Interjection.

The Speaker: The member for Dufferin-Peel, I realize the issues brought to the floor of the House are contentious. It would be helpful if we did not use language that other members could construe as insulting. Perhaps the minister, in his response, could refrain.

Hon Mr Charlton: If the member is upset by the comment, I withdraw it. The seven objectives the member has referred to are the same seven objectives released on September 6 and the same seven objectives the Premier and this minister have talked about over the course of the last month at every press opportunity and every question opportunity in this House. The papers which we sent out to all of the stakeholders who were involved in the debate on auto insurance over the course of the last year contain the same seven objectives that were announced on September 6.

Mr Tilson: No one has seen it. That's bunk.

The Speaker: The member for Dufferin-Peel, just relax.

Hon Mr Charlton: In relation to the member's question regarding the deputy minister, the deputy's comments have been substantially misinterpreted by the opposition. I have said in this House that we intend to introduce legislation this fall, legislation which we hope will be effective, after public hearings next winter, in June 1992.

ALGOMA CENTRAL RAILWAY

Mr Martin: I would like to direct a question to the Minister of Northern Development and Mines. Late last week, one of the major employers in my riding of Sault Ste Marie, the Algoma Central Railway, gave 16 weeks' notice of layoffs to its employees. These are troubled times in the Sault. Certainly a 565-person layoff by a major employer like the ACR will cause continued hardship in the Sault. Is the minister aware of this layoff notice and what does she intend to do about it?

Hon Miss Martel: I know of the member's concern for the residents in the community and how he has worked for the last year to try and have a positive result for some of the difficult times being faced by residents in Sault Ste Marie. I am aware of the layoff notices that were given to the employees and I am aware of the uncertainty this has caused in the community. It is unfortunate that the notices were given at this time, given the negotiations going on with respect to restructuring at Algoma Steel.

I do not want to speak for Stan Black, the president, but I can only assume he did so because under the Canada Labour Code he must provide 16 weeks' notice of termination. I assume he was responding to a business plan that was released by Algoma Steel last week which indicated that the ore division in Wawa would not continue under the new plan. I want to remind all members in this House that nothing is etched in stone, that negotiations on the restructuring of Algoma Steel continue, and that this government and, I believe, all members of the House hope the outcome of those negotiations is positive.

Mr Martin: I bring to the attention of the House and the minister the fragile nature of the mental health of our community. The Algoma Steel restructuring is something the whole community supports. As a matter of fact, we have with us today in the visitors' gallery Mr Frank Sarlo and Mr Tom Bonnell, leaders of the community action team. What commitment are the government and the ministry going to make to our community to lessen this anxiety?

1440

Hon Miss Martel: There are a couple of things both the ministry and the government have done. Members will recall that last December the government provided, through the northern Ontario heritage fund, $5 million to ACR in order to have the operation continue. We also said at this time that the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission and ACR would enter into negotiations in order to determine their joint future.

All members will recall, of course, that given the restructuring going on right now, some of our negotiations with respect to that future are in limbo until we know what the results of the restructuring are. But in the last year we have committed $25 million to the city through anti-recession funding. We have put $3.8 million into reducing the municipal debt and we have put in $2.6 million to retrain steelworkers who have been laid off. My own ministry in particular has taken the lead in working with the mayor and the council and the federal and provincial members to put together a long-term plan for economic diversification. We expect that will be released in the new year. We look forward to working with the community to develop those proposals.

SMALL BUSINESS

Mr Offer: I have a question for the Minister of Labour. I want to refer to the recent survey by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, which, as the minister knows, represents many thousands of businesses and hundreds of thousands of jobs. An overwhelming 85% of the firms surveyed found the current Ontario business climate to be unfavourable or very unfavourable, and one of the major factors affecting business owners' assessment of the business climate was the government's apparent bias against business.

We are now dealing with Bill 70, the wage protection plan, in committee of the whole House. An amendment to the bill has been presented which would exempt small business from the enforcement mechanism of the bill while at the same time providing protection to the workers. In committee, the government turned this amendment down. The minister has an opportunity before him to send out a positive message to the small business community in this province. Will the minister support this amendment?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: No, I will not be supporting that amendment.

Mr Offer: I, as well as the small business community in this province, am quite disappointed with that response. This is a no-cost amendment. It does not in any way erode the principle of the legislation. It sends out a positive message to the small business community to expand in this province. Could the minister share with us what possible reason he has for not accepting an amendment that does not detract from the principle of the legislation and does not detract from the protection afforded under the legislation, while at the same time providing a positive message to the small business community in this province?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: The member knows very well the bill covers money that is already earned and owing to the workers. I do not see any purpose in setting a double standard, whether the company is large or small, in terms of money that has actually been earned by the workers and not paid.

ASSISTED HOUSING

Mr Turnbull: My question is to the Minister of Housing. At a sod-turning ceremony tomorrow, construction of a 111-unit co-operative apartment building in North York will begin. The total annual subsidy for these apartment units is estimated to be more than $2 million, greater than $1,500 per unit. That is over and above what the tenants will pay. Does the minister believe that spending over $1,500 per month per unit in subsidies is an efficient use of tax dollars at a time when there are over 20,000 people in Toronto who have no accommodation at all?

Hon Ms Gigantes: I will not question the facts as presented by the member opposite, because I simply do not have enough information to question what he presents as facts. I would be glad to receive whatever information he feels he has and review it.

Mr Turnbull: I got the facts in a news release from the ministry. Perhaps the minister does not read what she puts out. I looked in the papers today at what $1,500 will rent in the area. I cannot find anything at $1,500. All the things that are for rent in that immediate area are for less. Let me just read: "Avenue Road north of Lawrence, two bedroom, eat-in kitchen, fridge and stove, parking, $950 a month. Avenue Road south of Wilson, two-bedroom apartment with patio, totally renovated"—

The Speaker: Order. Your supplementary.

Mr Turnbull: —"with or without appliances, $1,100."

There is no dispute among any of the members of this Legislature that we need to provide affordable housing for those truly in need.

The Speaker: Does the member have a supplementary?

Mr Turnbull: But spending $1,500 a month of taxpayers' money per unit does not make sense when the private sector is ready, willing and a lot more able than the government sector to provide it. By 1995, subsidies will cost about—

The Speaker: Would the member take his seat, please.

Mr Turnbull: My question, Mr Speaker—

The Speaker: I asked twice if you had a supplementary. Apparently you do not.

Mr Turnbull: I have a question, Mr Speaker. I can place it.

The Speaker: Can you quickly place a supplementary?

Mr Turnbull: In view of the astronomical figure, will the minister commit today to study the idea of shelter allowances to ensure the best use of taxpayers' money in order to give housing in this province?

Hon Ms Gigantes: I certainly would not suggest that anybody should question the information in a Ministry of Housing press release, but what I would suggest is that if my friend opposite would like to identify the press release, we will have somebody take a look at his long division.

Mr Turnbull: I would be happy to identify it.

The Speaker: No, would the member take his seat, please. He can pass that information along at some other time.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Mr Sutherland: Given the desperate financial situation farmers across Ontario are facing, the farm community welcomed the $35.5 million emergency assistance package announced last week by the Minister of Agriculture and Food as part of this government's plan for economic renewal in this province. At that time the minister said he would "call on the federal government to live up to its commitment to provide financial assistance to Ontario farmers in these extraordinary times." Can the minister tell the House what he has done to prompt the federal government into action?

Hon Mr Buchanan: I thank the member for Oxford for the question. First of all, I spoke to the minister, Mr McKnight, last week. I have written him letters calling for aid, as have other ministers across the country, calling on the federal government to respond to the farm crisis we have in this country. To this point in time, none of the other provinces has had a response. The federal government says it is listening.

I would say to the member, though, that I think taking action in this province and setting a good example, by having done some consultation and listening to what the farm organizations have to say and responding, is the best way to lever some money out of the federal government, to show what needs to be done by example rather than simply calling on it to respond.

Mr Sutherland: In the emergency assistance package for Ontario farmers, there is an additional $11 million for the $50-million farm interest assistance program announced last April. In my riding of Oxford, 538 farmers have received more than $2.7 million from the interest relief fund. That financial aid is a welcome relief for farmers facing severe financial pressure. Given that the Minister of Agriculture and Food has just told this House that he has been actively prodding the federal government to come through on its promise of third-line defence assistance, can he tell us when he expects to have a response from the federal government on his request?

Hon Mr Buchanan: To date, the federal government has said there is no money for farmers. The other point Mr McKnight made to me last week was that the Prime Minister was in Winnipeg to listen to farmers and that there would be no announcement. We certainly share the frustration farmers have with that response.

The one good point I can report to the House today is that at noon we received notice that there will be a federal-provincial ministers' meeting in Winnipeg next Tuesday. Hopefully at that time the government of Canada will have something good to say to the farmers of Canada.

1450

DRUG OFFENCES

Mr Ruprecht: I have a question of the minister responsible for law and order in this province, the Solicitor General. Every day the illicit drug trade on our streets claims new victims. Our young people are a special target for drug pushers and pimps, and our police tell us that those who are hooked on drugs turn to a life of crime and destruction that costs this province literally billions of dollars.

Today, I received new statistics that will open members' eyes. This year alone, 1,703 seizures of crack cocaine were made, an increase of 343 cases over last year. In addition, because of the new, devastating guns used by the drug pushers, many more innocent people are getting killed, including some of our police officers. When will the Solicitor General get serious with these drug pushers and drug traffickers?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I am not aware that the law enforcement officers in this country, whether they be OPP or municipal police or the RCMP, have been anything but serious with drug pushers.

Mr Ruprecht: As members just heard, that surely is not the point. The question originally was, what is he doing and when is he going to act? But I will ask my supplementary.

Just yesterday I attended a meeting in my community and was told that our Metropolitan Toronto Police drug squad keeps confiscating large amounts of crack cocaine and Uzi machine guns, automatic machine pistols, Saturday-night specials and handguns. These are killing machines.

Most of the drug deals, as the Solicitor General knows, are made in connection with cars and the ready access to automobiles. In fact, the experience the police are telling us about has shown that the success of drug trafficking is facilitated by ready access to motor vehicles. Metro council made a recommendation to this minister. The recommendation was simple: There should be an automatic driver's licence suspension for a person convicted of dealing in drugs.

When will the minister finally implement the recommendation by Metro council to stem the tide that is destroying not only our young people but also whole communities in Metro Toronto?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I will undertake to review the resolution of Metro council and respond to the member in the House subsequently.

FARM PAYMENTS

Mr Villeneuve: My question is for the Minister of Agriculture and Food. I am sure that not only members of my caucus but members right across this Legislature have received questions from white bean producers as to when the Ontario government will sign the tripartite agreement with the federal government in order to receive the approximately $100 per acre that is due to them. I have correspondence here that says the agreement was supposed to be signed in April. I gather it is not yet signed. Farmers are desperate for money. When does the minister feel the cheques will be forthcoming to these farmers?

Hon Mr Buchanan: I thank the member for the opportunity to answer that question publicly. The program he refers to is a federal-provincial program. White beans are grown in more than just Ontario. The reason for the holdup is that Manitoba has not yet agreed to the proposals that Ontario and the federal government agreed to back in the spring. We have no problem as a province and are quite willing to sign the agreement. The federal government, on the other hand, has decided not to proceed until we get Manitoba on side.

I was told last week that Manitoba is almost ready now to agree to the deal that was agreed to by other provinces in the spring. As I mentioned earlier, I will be in Winnipeg next week and I intend to talk to the minister about getting on with this program so that we can get the money out to white bean producers as soon as possible.

NOTICE OF DISSATISFACTION

The Speaker: Pursuant to standing order 33, the member for Brampton North has given notice of his dissatisfaction with the answer to his question given yesterday by the Minister of Community and Social Services concerning the minister's disposition of a request for an order in council concerning Sabrina Panetta. This matter will be debated at 6 pm today.

MOTIONS

PRIVATE MEMBERS' PUBLIC BUSINESS

The Speaker: Mr Cooke moves that Mr Cooper and Mr Christopherson, Mr Ruprecht and Mr O'Neil (Quinte), and Mr Wilson (Simcoe West) and Mr Mancini exchange places respectively in the order of precedence for private members' public business.

Motion agreed to.

PETITIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mrs Caplan: I have a petition that I would like to table. It reads as follows:

"To the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas Her Majesty the Queen, at her coronation in 1953, took a personal oath to the people of Canada, and Canadians have always reciprocated with oaths of allegiance and service to the person of the sovereign;

"Whereas, it is our right and duty to take oaths of allegiance and service in such form;

"Whereas, Ontario Regulation 144/91 made under the Police Services Act, 1990, denies Ontarians this right;

"We, the undersigned residents of Ontario, loyal to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to resolve that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor in Council be requested to revoke Ontario Regulation 144/91 and restore the traditional oath of service to Her Majesty for police personnel in Ontario."

I present this petition to the Speaker and I point out that there are seven pages to the petition.

Mr J. Wilson: It is my privilege to present a petition to the Legislature of Ontario:

"Whereas the Queen of Canada has long been a symbol of national unity for Canadians from all walks of life and from all ethnic backgrounds;

"Whereas the people of Canada are currently facing a constitutional crisis which could potentially result in the breakup of the federation and are in need of unifying symbols;

"We, the undersigned, respectfully petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to restore the oath to the Queen for Ontario's police officers."

That is signed by a number of residents from the village of Tottenham in my riding of Simcoe West, and I too have affixed my name to this petition.

NURSING HOMES

Mrs Sullivan: I have a petition which reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned, request that the government of Ontario immediately rectify the inequity in funding between nursing homes and homes for the aged. We strongly support the Ontario Nursing Home Association in their efforts to provide better care for residents of nursing homes through increased funding."

This petition is signed by 120 people, and I have affixed my signature.

TOBACCO TAXES

Mr Stockwell: "To the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas the present high level of taxes on tobacco products are excessive and contrary to the interests of Ontario's two million smokers; and

"Whereas high tobacco taxes are contributing to retail theft and to our province's cross-border shopping crisis; and

"Whereas these punitive taxes and resulting lost sales are contributing to inflation as well as costing jobs in Ontario; and

"Whereas high cigarette taxes are regressive and unfair to low- and modest-income citizens;

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That Ontario's tobacco taxes should not be increased in 1991 and, further, that these taxes should be repealed and a new lower and fairer tax be introduced."

I have 1,120 names on this petition, signed from the Western Fair in London between September 6 and 15, and I have affixed my signature as well.

Mr Runciman: I have a petition which is signed by citizens of Ontario attending the Ottawa Exhibition between August 15 and August 25 of this year. It reads:

"Whereas the present high levels of taxes on tobacco products are excessive and contrary to the interests of Ontario's two million smokers; and

"Whereas high tobacco taxes are contributing to retail theft and to our province's cross-border shopping crisis; and

"Whereas these punitive taxes and resulting lost sales are contributing to inflation as well as costing jobs in Ontario; and

"Whereas high cigarette taxes are regressive and unfair to low- and modest-income citizens;

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That Ontario's tobacco taxes should not be increased in 1991 and, further, that these taxes should be repealed and a new lower and fairer tax be introduced."

This has been signed by over 1,000 citizens of Ontario.

1500

ORDERS OF THE DAY

House in committee of the whole.

La Chambre en comité plénier.

EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS AMENDMENT ACT (EMPLOYEE WAGE PROTECTION PROGRAM), 1991

LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LES NORMES D'EMPLOI (PROGRAMME DE PROTECTION DES SALAIRES DES EMPLOYÉS)

Resuming consideration of Bill 70, An Act to amend the Employment Standards Act to provide for an Employee Wage Protection Program and to make certain other amendments.

Suite du débat ajourné sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 70, Loi portant modification de la Loi sur les normes d'emploi par création d'un Programme de protection des salaires des employés et par adoption de certaines autres modifications.

Section/article 5:

The Acting Chair (Ms Haeck): Are there any further comments on Mrs Witmer's amendments?

Mr Wiseman: I would like to complete those few comments and say that I think it is important that this bill be passed expeditiously so that the negative effects of the federal policies with the dollar and the interest rates and the consequent loss of businesses do not negatively impact on the workers of this province. I hope the members of this House will take this opportunity to move quickly through these amendments and to pass this bill so that respite and funding can then be channelled to the workers who are being negatively impacted by the federal policies.

The Second Deputy Chair: Is it the pleasure of the House that Mrs Witmer's amendment carry?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the ayes have it.

Vote deferred.

Mr Offer: Mr Chair, I thought I heard you say that in your opinion the "ayes" have it.

The Second Deputy Chair: I did.

Mr Offer: I just wanted to make that clear.

The Second Deputy Chair: The vote is now deferred according to our standing orders and stacked with the other amendments.

We are now moving to an amendment by the official opposition.

Mr Offer: Thank you, Mr Chairman. I am still running past that last vote.

The Second Deputy Chair: Mr Offer moves that section 40i of the act, as set out in section 5 of the bill, as reprinted, be amended by striking out "or such greater amount as is prescribed" in the fourth and fifth lines.

The honourable member for Mississauga North may want to expand on this amendment.

Mr Offer: I certainly do, and I thank you for that opportunity, Mr Chairman. This particular amendment, I believe, is very important in so far as it goes to meet some of the concerns raised by many individuals who came before the committee during our public hearing process. I hasten to add that this public hearing process was quite short. It was but two and a half days, I believe, on a bill which I felt and my caucus felt required—in fact demanded—a great deal more input, more consultation, more discussion and travelling. Unfortunately, the members of the government did not agree to that type of consultation, listening to the business community, listening to individuals who would have been impacted and will be impacted by this bill and, as such, we had a very short hearing process.

Notwithstanding that, even in that shortened period of time, a great many people came before the committee and spoke about the need to have a certainty that any changes to the legislation would be made in this Legislature, would be made by amendment to the bill, would be introduced by the Minister of Labour, would then be subjected to the necessary rules of procedure in this Legislature, the first reading, the second reading debate, the committee deliberation, the public hearing process, the clause-by-clause deliberation, and back to this Legislature for final passage.

The way the bill is now written is that any change to the dollar amount in the bill will be done by regulation as opposed to legislation. I have spoken about this point earlier on and will continue to do so today, because I believe this to be of crucial importance and in a very real sense underlines the concerns of those people, the business community and the like, over this legislation.

No one denies that a government has the right to introduce legislation or to change the legislation as it sees fit, but when one does it through regulation it means those changes are not brought before this Legislature. It means that changes to the bill, changes to the monetary amount of the bill, will be done outside of the Legislature, will be done through a cabinet meeting.

I see the member for Cochrane North shaking his head. With due respect, he is absolutely wrong. The fact is that when things are done through regulation, when things are done outside of this Legislature, he will not, as a member for his constituents, have any say in those changes. Those changes will be made without the member, without anyone, being able to assess from his constituents the impact of those changes. That is something that is very important. It is certainly very important for us as legislators. This is not a partisan issue. This is not a Liberal, Conservative or NDP matter. This is an MPP matter. This is the reason we were elected. Are we here to represent, to assess, to discuss how any change in legislation impacts on our constituents or are we not?

When one does things by regulation, though members may want to—I try to make this non-partisan—they will be unable to do so. They will be unable to do so because the change is one which they will read about in a news release. They will have no say in whether a $5,000 change should be changed at all, or changed to $7,000 or $10,000 or $15,000. They will have no say in that. They will not be able to stand in their places and discuss the impact of those changes on their constituents, their business community, or even whether there is a need for change.

1510

One of the things we have been elected to do is to bring those types of concerns, those opinions, to this floor, to discuss freely whether change is necessary and, if so, what the impact of that change may be.

When one does this by legislation, of necessity there is the opportunity to make those types of arguments. Of necessity, through our rules of procedure, those changes have the opportunity of being moved to committee where we can have full discussion, full consultation, with people who feel they are affected by any change.

In this amendment, we and members on the government side have an opportunity. We have the opportunity to send out a positive message that we are willing to listen, that we are ready to provide the forum where those concerns can certainly be made known.

I think we should also recognize what happens if government members vote against this. What happens if they say no to this amendment? What happens if they say no, no legislative debate, no public hearing? How can they then stand up, as I am sure they all will do, and make their speeches about the need for consultation? How can they stand and make their speeches, as I am sure they will, about the importance of creating a new climate of consultation and confidence with the business community? How do they make those speeches when they have shut the door to this chamber? They shut the door when they say "regulation" instead of "legislation."

What do they say to their constituents when they come into their offices and say: "A change has happened to the wage protection plan where the $5,000 level has been increased, and this is how it is going to impact upon my business. This is what it means to jobs in your riding"?

What do they say to those people who have come to their offices?

Do they tell the people that the government members are the ones that shut the door for debate? When voting against this amendment, that is what they are doing. They are shutting the door on those valid concerns by their constituents. They are shutting the door of this chamber, they are shutting the door of their constituency offices, they are shutting the door of committee rooms. They are saying that as far as change to the wage protection plan is concerned, there is absolutely no need to listen to the people, there is absolutely no need to listen to what the impact of any change will be. They are saying they know what the right change should be and they know what the impact will be.

The government members know as well as I that the fact is they do not know the impact. They do not know what it means to a small business if the $5,000 limit is changed to even $6,000 or $10,000. They do not know how that affects the liability of the employer and the directors of the company. They do not know what that means in terms of the ongoing costs of carrying on business. They do not know what it means in terms of the potential premiums those small business people are going to have to pay. I do not say this as a criticism. The fact of the matter is they just do not know.

We cannot know, but what we can do is provide the opportunity to know, we can provide the opportunity to be aware of the impact of any change. Legislation allows that; that is why we have it. Regulation does not. Regulation in such a crucial aspect of this bill sends out the message that the government has absolutely no reason to listen to the people of this province, to the business community, large, medium and small. They have no desire to listen to the potential impact any change will have on their constituents. They have no interest in listening to what this means in terms of jobs and the creation and expansion of wealth in the province.

It is so unnecessary. That is what is very difficult for me to truly understand. It is so unnecessary that this very negative message has to go out. That message can be overturned by voting in favour of this amendment. This amendment will open the doors to this chamber, to committee rooms, to their constituency offices, to their Queen's Park offices. It sends out a more positive message.

Earlier today I spoke about the survey done by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business. We all know the importance of that federation and the work it has done in the past and the many thousands of businesses that are part of this federation and, as we all know, the many hundreds of thousands of jobs that are part of that.

We all know about the impact of negatively affecting small business. I believe that as late as yesterday the parliamentary assistant, in response to a question, alluded to the fact that small business is the single largest creator of new jobs in this province. We all recognize that. We have all made speeches about that. Now we have an opportunity to put some substance behind those speeches. Excuse me.

Hon Mr Wildman: I had a hard time with that one too.

Mr Offer: When I feel an issue, members hear it.

By accepting this amendment, we indeed are able to put that substance behind those speeches. I refer to the survey from the CFIB. The survey did not just appear. It came as a response—I am reading in part from this—to a groundswell of concern from small and medium-sized businesses in Ontario.

This survey was sent to over 3,500 members. They did confirm what I guess we all feel, that is, the deep malaise in the small business sector about the economic and political future of the province. I am going to stick to the economics of all of this, because I believe that is what is right and proper. An overwhelming 85% of the firms surveyed find the current Ontario business climate to be unfavourable or very unfavourable. We have to think about that: 85% say unfavourable or very unfavourable, from a federation which represents thousands and thousands of businesses and has an impact on hundreds of thousands of jobs.

1520

One of the major factors was the Ontario government's bias against business. I think this is too important a report not to be looked at word for word. I noted from across the chamber the parliamentary assistant stating that this was the CFIB's perceived bias against business. I must say, if the government members do not put any faith in the CFIB, if they are echoing concerns over the CFIB and what it is doing, then I suggest they should take the time to talk to some of the members of the CFIB. In fact, I would suggest they take the time to reread the submissions made to our committee during the Bill 70 hearings, because that type of concern was extremely evident as we carried out those hearings, shortened as they were.

We have to listen to those types of concerns. That is what people have elected us to do, to listen and to act. We have the opportunity to act today. We have the opportunity to say yes to this amendment. We have the opportunity to say we have heard the concerns. We want to make certain that this bill does contain within it, and through our rules of procedure here, the opportunity for those who are affected by any change in the bill to have their say, to talk to us about any impact that change may have, to be able to feel they can come to us in our constituency offices, our Queen's Park offices, to talk to us about changes, before they become the law of the day as opposed to after.

That is what the business community is talking about. They want to talk to us about impact. They want to talk to us about what it means to them to carry on business, to create new business, to expand existing business, to create wealth, jobs and an underpinning of economic strength. The government does that in a variety of ways, and one of the ways it can do that is by listening. That does not mean it is always going to agree, but it does mean it is going to listen. When the government does things by regulation, it is not listening.

Anybody over there on the government side who thinks that is the case is not in the real world. As members of the government, the backbenchers will have absolutely no say as to any change that is made at the cabinet table. They are going to read a press release by the Minister of Labour, and that press release will talk about the change to the wage protection plan. They are going to say, probably in caucus, "Hey, what's happening here?" and they are going to be told, "Well, that's what we've decided."

Then the government members are going to go back on Thursday or Friday to their constituency offices, and the lineups will already be occurring from the small business people in their ridings who are going to be saying: "Do you know what this change means to me? Do you know what this change means in terms of my being able to carry on business, in terms of my being able to expand, to create jobs?" And what are they going to say? They are going to say, "I'm sorry, the change has already been made." By accepting this amendment, they are able to say: "I will bring your concerns back. I will debate those concerns. I will make certain your concerns are heard."

By voting against this amendment, the members are not going to be able to do that; they are just not going to be able to do that. They are going to have to live with those types of changes. They are going to have to live with the impact on small business. They know as well as I that we are living in very competitive times. Every day, we are sending out more and more messages to the business community, and we want to make certain that those messages, which to this point in time have been negative—I refer back to the CFIB report—start to become positive.

I do not speak in a partisan manner. Creation of jobs in this province is everybody's concern and hope. We want all of our constituencies to be as strong as they possibly can. Do the members think we want to raise job loss each and every day? Do they think we want to continue to remind the government that more and more firms are leaving this province, that more young people who have a little capital either in terms of cash or intelligence and want to open up a small business are now considering whether to open it up in this province?

One of the things we want to do is take that element out of the decision. We want the young people of this province to open up businesses here. We want them to create jobs. We do not want it to be in their decision-making whether it should or should not be in Ontario. We want it in this province, but one of the things we have to do here is make certain we have created a climate for that.

One of the things we can do is accept this amendment. To a lot of people, what does this amendment mean: "Legislation or regulation? It doesn't really mean that much to me." But to us here it does and to the business community it does, because we are all very well aware of the impact of legislation and any change to legislation. What legislation as opposed to regulation means is that we know of that impact prior to it becoming law.

We have discussed moving this part of the bill to the legislative process, and in the past the members of the government side have voted against that. I hope that maybe today, after having had the opportunity to think about what their role in this Legislature is, they will see the light in many ways and see the need for this aspect of the bill to be part of our legislative process.

What is it that we were elected to do? We were elected to bring forward some of these concerns. We were elected to reach out to our communities, not just in our constituency offices but through committees, to a much larger group. We can do that and we try to do that. We have our arguments back and forth. We all have our different visions of what is the best and most proper course for this province to take in terms of health care, social services, housing or the economy.

I think people understand that we do have differing opinions. What people really understand is that they either have the opportunity to view us debating those differing views through our television station or actually coming before committees and being part of the process. I do not think people understand or accept the fact that they are shut out, and that is what this bill now does. It shuts people out. It excludes people who want to talk about why a change is necessary. It excludes people not just talking against it, but talking about why change should take place. It excludes equally those people and those speaking against it.

1530

What we do here affects in so many ways the way people live their lives. More and more people are becoming aware of that. They are tuning in. They know what we do and what we talk about increasingly has a real impact on how they lead their lives and on how they are able to compete. I think the message is clear. People want to be part of that. They want to have the option of being a part of the process.

By making this regulation, the government is taking away that option. It is saying to those people: "You don't have a choice. You can watch, but don't speak. You have an opinion but it is just not going to be listened to. You have a thought, a comment, but it is not going to be part of this debate." I do not think that is the way people, not only in this province but probably throughout the country, want to look at this institution.

They recognize that whenever they tune in, they may not agree with everything that is being done all the time. They recognize that there are times when they will disagree just as there are times when they will agree. There are times when they will say to the opposition parties, "You're absolutely right." We want to say to those people, "You should at least have the opportunity of being a real part of what we do." When the government does things by regulation it is just saying no to those people having any real part of this process.

Mr Cousens: Finish up, Steve. We have other things to do.

Mr Offer: I see that the member for Markham has made some comment. I think he would like to have some debate on this, and I hope he will take part in this debate because he recognizes there is certainly a need for the people of this province to have some impact on and input into any changes made to this bill. Whether or not they are in favour of the bill, they certainly want to be able to feel they can have a part to play in any change.

I ask the members of the government side to vote in favour of this amendment and in favour of debate. I hope that by supporting this amendment they recognize they are not detracting from this bill at all. This amendment in no way detracts from the principle of the bill. In no way does it erode the rights of the employees or impact on the liabilities of business under this legislation. In no way does it affect the enforcement mechanism of the bill.

All this amendment does is to say that if there is going to be any further change to the bill, it should be done through the legislative process; that we as members are able to debate those changes; that we are able to bring to this floor the concerns, the opinions and the comments of our constituents, and that we, through the rules of procedure, are able to make certain that any changes receive the fullest public consultation.

That is what this amendment does. The question will be whether government members want to open up the floor of this chamber, whether they are in favour of public consultation and whether they are in support of listening to constituents' concerns about the impact of any change.

Mrs Witmer: I would like to speak to the motion that has been put forward. I certainly share the concerns that have been expressed by the member for Mississauga North.

This past summer we did have an opportunity to listen to many business people. They represented businesses throughout this province and spoke to us about the grave concerns they had about giving the government responsibility and the ability to make changes arbitrarily. The type of amendment that is being proposed here would make the government fiscally responsible and responsible to the taxpayers.

However, government members need to consider what they are going to be doing. They need to consider, on matters of fiscal expenditures, whether or not there should be public consultation and scrutiny. If they go ahead and determine arbitrarily what amount is needed to fund the payroll tax and what changes are to be made, there will be no public accountability and no fiscal responsibility.

It is absolutely important that any future changes to this bill be made by amendment to the act. It is absolutely important that we allow for a full public debate.

The people who appeared before us this summer were concerned about the legislation as it had been presented. However, they were totally terrified about the ability of the government to prescribe an even larger amount than was being suggested here, the sum of $5,000, and the fact that this was going to be done without any public consultation or accountability to the taxpayers.

The employer groups are very concerned about this. I ask government members why they do not feel it would be appropriate or fair to consult with the people of Ontario. Why are they not willing to subject this to public scrutiny?

I and my party believe very strongly that whenever program spending increases are going to impact the taxpayers of this province we need public debate and public scrutiny and the MPPs need to be accountable to the taxpayers. The concern we have about this particular legislation being proposed here is that it gives such great power to the government without any consultation whatsoever. I certainly support the amendment as it is written here at the present time.

I suggest to the members of the government that they consider very seriously their responsibilities as members of this House. One of the things they have stressed and continue to stress is that they believe in the need for consultation. They believe each taxpayer in this province needs to provide input, and what they are suggesting here is totally contrary. It will not allow for consultation. There will be no public input from consumers, from employers or anyone else.

I believe very strongly that if government members are going to make any changes, if they are going to change the amount of the package, they need to do it by amendment and they need full public debate. I suggest that they give very serious consideration to approving the amendment as written here.

1540

Ms S. Murdock: I am just going to respond briefly with the reasons, as we stated in committee, why we are not in support of this amendment. Before I get into that, I would like to make some comments to the member for Mississauga North.

When Ms Ganong from the Canadian Federation of Independent Business was at the hearings—I am sure the member will remember—the intimation was made that the consultation was not happening with business. When she was questioned, her response was, “We’re consulted to death.” I am not saying by any degree that this means she agreed with the $5,000 cap or any of that kind of thing. I just do not want people to believe that business is not being talked with or consulted with.

The CFIB survey has to be looked at word for word; I agree with the member and we intend to do that. We just got a copy yesterday of the exact survey and the questions asked and we will be looking at that. The survey did relate to labour changes, but it was specifically related to the proposed discussion paper coming out on the Labour Relations Act and was not specific to the employee wage protection act.

The arguments being made about talking to the public and not having this come before the House in legislative form in terms of future changes in this particular amendment, in our view, would mean we would then have to come before the House to make changes on the basis of the plans for this amendment to section 40i, the changes that would be required for inflationary measures. This amendment is with regard to the actual cap. For instance, it is with regard to $5,000 in this day and age being worth a certain amount of money and in 10 years from now perhaps not being worth that much. I started working 25 years ago at $290 a month; $290 a week would not be sufficient to live on now.

Times change and this regulatory power gives us the power to make those kinds of changes. It would require then that every time that happened we would have to come before the House and have it debated, as we are doing in this particular instance. I would point out that there are other acts, such as the Workers’ Compensation Act, which are indexed and automatically increased without coming before the House; old age security Canada pensions are increased quarterly, rather than legislatively.

The effect on small business in this particular instance is also going to be nil. The people who would be applying for that cap, small businesses, would not be solvent. Therefore, it would be coming out of the fund and not out of the small businesses, and those that are solvent should be paying their bills to their workers anyway.

Mr Offer: I had anticipated that the debate on this particular amendment was going to be complete, but then I heard the parliamentary assistant’s final comments and two questions arise. First, she said small business would not be affected by this bill. I am wondering whether she can explain that. Second, as an addendum to that first question, how is small business or any business not going to be affected by any change in legislation which has the potential of increasing liability?

The Second Deputy Chair: Thank you. Further debate or comment?

Mr Offer: Mr Chair, I asked a question of the parliamentary assistant. If she is going to respond, I would like to have the opportunity of listening to that response. If not, I have a few other comments.

The Second Deputy Chair: Does the parliamentary assistant wish to reply?

Ms S. Murdock: I will certainly reply to those two questions. I just wonder, is this getting into a debate format or are we going to be responding to the amendments?

The Second Deputy Chair: This is the place for both debate and questions and answers, so it is up to the parliamentary assistant.

Ms S. Murdock: Okay. First, I did not say there would be no effect on small business by this bill. I said that for this particular amendment, 40i, the regulatory power of increasing the $5,000 ceiling would not affect small business in that where employees would be applying under this fund to access the $5,000, the small business the employee had worked for would either be insolvent or, if it was already operating, those employees probably would not be accessing this particular fund. If they had accessed it, then the employment standards branch people would be going after the employer if the employer were solvent. Our estimation is that if 1% of the employers are solvent, that will be high, in the people who access this.

The second part of your question was—remind me; I have forgotten.

Mr Offer: The second part of my question was really for you to explain how small business could not be affected by a particular amendment, part of the bill, which has as its object the possibility of increasing liability.

Ms S. Murdock: It was the liability aspect I wanted to respond to. The liability here is to the consolidated revenue fund, obviously, which has the money set aside, except for those employers who are solvent. Otherwise, there would be no liability except for what they owe the workers for work that has already been done, when the worker has earned the moneys that are owed as determined by the employment standards officer.

Mr Offer: As a short follow-up to this debate, I think the parliamentary assistant, with all due respect, is limiting the impact of the bill. I am trying to be as kind as I can be in this.

One does not look at the cost to small business as, well, the business has gone bankrupt, so any employee is going to access the fund, so there is no cost to the small business because it is out of business. That might be qualified as sort of correct, but that is not the impact this bill is going to have. I hope the parliamentary assistant, the Minister of Labour and the ministry officials recognize that the impact of the bill is going to be an ongoing cost of doing business.

The government has every right to bring forward a bill of this nature, and we have every right to bring forward concerns. But do not say there is not a cost to small business or to business generally, because the fact is there is going to be a cost to business. They are going to have to obtain insurance to cover the possibility of personal liability. That is going to be a cost of doing business. It is going to be a cost of doing business prior to the business getting into financial difficulty or going bankrupt, or for years and years and years in its existence, but it is going to be a cost, and that cost is going to be as a result of the bill.

1550

I am not saying it is something we should not be discussing. We should be. But I am concerned when members of the government believe there is not going to be an ongoing cost of doing business as a result of this bill. It may be that they are saying the cost is worth it. They have every right to say that, they have every right to argue that. We have every right to disagree or agree. But I cannot understand how they can day in and day out say that this bill, in itself, will not be a cost of doing business. It just is not in the cards. It is not in the real world.

People run businesses. They are not all big business people. They want to protect themselves, they want to protect their families, they want to protect themselves in a personal sense, and the way in which they are going to do it against this bill is to get insurance. The cost of that is going to be a cost of carrying on business. So please do not continually try to argue that there is not going to be a cost, because that is talking about a bill that is just not in existence.

It is going to be a cost. Let's talk about that. It is very difficult. I would suggest that business gets extremely concerned when the government, after looking at the bill, does not feel there is any cost involved. I think they get that negative sense that government does not understand. I think the government has an opportunity to say, "Yes, there is a cost, but we in the government believe the cost is worth it." They have every right to say that. But when they say there is no cost, the business community says, "My goodness gracious, these people are making up legislation and they don't even understand what the impact of it is." Please, at least acknowledge there is going to be a cost to the business community as a result of the passage of this legislation.

The second area I want to talk about—the parliamentary assistant was interesting in terms of her response. She talked about my amendment and why they cannot support my amendment because it really applies to some inflationary or possible inflationary aspect of the $5,000 limit. That is sort of a neat way of arguing the matter. The fact remains that her government is not prepared to accept a change to the monetary limit of this legislation going through the legislative process.

I recognize that the parliamentary assistant does not have to answer the question, but I will pose it. If she and her colleagues are prepared to accept an amendment which will have as its effect the change of the monetary amount being moved from regulation to legislation, would she please say so now? If they are not, as has been their stated case, could she please explain the fear they have of bringing forward changes in this legislation to this Legislature?

The Second Deputy Chair: Further debate on Mr Offer's amendment to Bill 70? Seeing none, is it the pleasure of the House that the motion carry?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the nays have it.

Vote deferred.

The Second Deputy Chair: I want to remind members that to participate in the debate or to stand up, they must be in their seats.

We now move on to a Progressive Conservative amendment.

Mrs Witmer moves that section 40i of the act, as set out in section 5 of the bill, as reprinted, be amended by striking out "$5,000 or such greater amount as is prescribed" in the fourth and fifth lines and substituting "$4,000."

Mrs Witmer: This is certainly compatible with our first amendment. Our first amendment was to limit the definition of "wages" to earned wages. What we were proposing was that we would only include earned wages, and that would include vacation pay. However, we were suggesting at this time, given the very uncertain economic climate and the hardships that many people in this province are facing, that we would like to see this fund compensate employees only for actual wages they had worked for and earned. To go beyond the normal definition of wages and to include termination pay—those are usually contractual obligations. We certainly question whether or not all taxpayers in this province should be paying for contractual obligations as opposed to actual earned wages.

We are very concerned about the generosity of this program. Although we very strongly support the right of workers to protection, we question whether or not this government, given the current economic uncertainty, can be this generous at this time. Certainly, if we take a look at what is happening in other provinces, we can see that we are leading the way. Only Manitoba has a plan similar to ours. It only gives compensation up to a total of $1,200. The amount we are suggesting here, to limit maximum compensation to $4,000, is far beyond the Manitoba total, and as I have just indicated, that is the only province in Canada that presently makes this type of allotment to employees. We feel the $4,000 would adequately cover the earned wages. It is also the amount that parallels the current maximum liability an employment standards officer can order an employer to pay.

We very strongly urge the government to consider supporting this amendment. I think the one thing we need to take into very serious consideration is that in this province, because of bills such as Bill 70 and the one being proposed around the Labour Relations Act, and even the one related to the parental leave plan, we have created what appears to the business community to be a very hostile environment.

Businesses are frightened. In fact, some of them have indicated they are terrified. They are finding it very difficult to compete with their American and Mexican counterparts. They are finding the labour rates very high. They are finding the taxes very high. They are suffering from this recession. When they take a look at a piece of legislation such as Bill 70, they find it very threatening. They see the potential of bankruptcy in the event of their business failing. They are starting to ask themselves the question, "Why would I want to do business in Ontario when I'm faced with legislation that threatens my livelihood?"

1600

This bill has prompted many employers throughout the province to downsize their present operation. It has encouraged others to prepare to close down their operation altogether and move south of the border or to another province. I would urge the government to very seriously consider the impact this type of legislation has on jobs. Although we want employees protected when jobs are lost because of bankruptcy or insolvency, we have to balance that with the creation of new jobs. I think if we were to consider seriously what the number one desire or objective of most people would be, they would want a job as opposed to receiving compensation from this fund. I believe this government needs to do everything possible to make this environment more friendly for business people.

I take exception to one of the comments made by the parliamentary assistant, when she indicated that consultation was taking place. I am concerned that although consultation is taking place with the business community, its concerns are not being considered in the legislation.

I am very concerned that after two weeks of dealing with Bill 70 this summer, there was not one substantive amendment made as a result of those hearings. I question why we invited people to come and share their concerns about this bill when the government was not prepared to make any changes. If that is the way it is going to be, I feel we wasted taxpayers' money meeting here for two weeks and receiving additional pay for doing so. I suggest to the government that it take a look at real consultation, and that means changing the legislation so it has input from all the parties that have made representation.

I would like to indicate to the government that there were many small business people who came before us and shared with us their concerns about this legislation. They indicated to us it was going to increase the cost of doing business in this province, because they were going to be forced to buy insurance. I do not believe this government has seriously considered whether or not this insurance is even going to be available for all companies. The indication we have is that those companies most in need of insurance, those companies that are in severe financial straits, will not be able to get the insurance anyway.

What we are doing by bringing forward this legislation, by placing a cap of $5,000 and giving the government an opportunity to change the cap and the compensation package at any time, is saying to the small business people throughout the province, "Your concerns do not matter." I would remind the government again that it is the small business community that creates most of the jobs in this province. I ask them to start to consider not only the needs of employees, but also the needs of employers and to do everything they can to help create jobs in Ontario and give back to those who have lost their jobs the self-esteem they desire.

Mr Offer: I have a few comments on this amendment. The amendment, I think, raises three areas that have to be addressed, and hopefully the parliamentary assistant and her officials might be able to help.

The first is, what would the impact be on employees who would be eligible under this plan in the event that the ceiling were lowered from $5,000 to $4,000? The second question that arises is, is the word "prescribed" a difficulty in being taken out of this section? The third is whether there has been any agreement between the provincial Minister of Labour and his federal counterpart in terms of harmonizing the recent announcement by the federal government over a similar national wage protection plan. I wonder if we might be able to get some sense as to what the impact might be.

Ms S. Murdock: On the intimation that this government is not willing to change anything or is not willing to accept any of the amendments, I point out again that before second reading we came in with 40 to 50 substantive amendments, predominantly due to the opposition's heated remarks and the many numbers of letters the Minister of Labour and I received on the very issues of their concern. So before we went into committee we had already come up with a number of amendments that took out most of the controversial aspects of the bill.

The second thing is that I think it is a mistaken belief that insurance costs would increase for the small businessman, employer, director. That is not the case at all. Under the present Ontario Business Corporations Act they already have those liabilities. Nothing has changed in terms of their kind of liability. It is just simply the enforcement provisions.

The other thing is that the average claim by a worker is $4,200, as we have stated, and the $5,000 at least is within that. That means there is going to be a large number of people under $4,200 and there is going to be an equally large number of people above the $4,200 mark. The $5,000 cap does allow us to at least hit the average claim. That is why we are not supporting this amendment.

Mr Offer: The response by the parliamentary assistant really shows why there is such great concern, which was brought forward by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business's current survey. I think we have to recognize that in that survey it was found that over a third of the small firms surveyed are considering moving some or all of their operations out of this province. It indicates that as many as 500,000 jobs in Ontario in the small business sector, 100,000 in small manufacturing firms, are at risk. If even only a fraction of these small firms actually follow through on their plans, job losses to Ontario from the small-firm sector alone can be forecast in the tens of thousands.

It goes on to say: "There is a widespread belief across the small business community that they could cope with all the negative economic factors, but the political uncertainty has pushed them beyond the breaking point. Many small firms feel that small business is unwelcome in Ontario."

Interjections.

Mr Offer: I note that some members on the opposite side do not like to hear this.

Mr Bisson: You're lying.

Mr Offer: The member for Cochrane South has indicated that the survey from the CFIB is lying.

1610

Interjection.

Mr Offer: Pardon me? I am sorry? Mr Chair, I think the—

The Second Deputy Chair: Order, please. The honourable member for Cochrane South has made a statement for which he has apologized. He may want to make sure it gets on the record.

Mr Bisson: Yes, I do.

Mr Offer: Just to make certain, actually, as I was referring to this survey from the CFIB, the survey which represents thousands of firms in this province and creates and is responsible for hundreds of thousands of jobs, the member for Cochrane South referred to the fact that I was lying.

The Second Deputy Chair: The honourable member has withdrawn.

Mr Offer: There is no question that this is obviously the essence as to why the CFIB, and not just the CFIB but the business community, and in fact people not even involved in the business community, have a great deal of concern about the current government. What type of message is it actually sending out? Why the heck would anybody want to invest in this province? Why the heck would they ever want to create a firm in this province? Why would they like to create a job in this province when they have members on the government side who pay short shrift to a report and a survey which has so many thousands of member firms as part of it?

Mr White: No reliability or validity.

Mr Offer: The member—I cannot recall what riding he is from.

Mrs Witmer: Durham Centre.

Mr Offer: The member for Durham Centre has seen fit to make some comment as he walks to and fro, but it would be nice for that member, if he feels it appropriate, to make some comment from his seat. We on the opposition side would certainly like to hear any contribution the member has to make that might be recorded in Hansard as opposed to the throwing out of comments as he moves from one member's seat to another member's seat in certain anonymity from Hansard from recorded comment, but there will be opportunity for that member once debate on this matter has been completed.

We will wait to see if the member feels strongly enough to stand in his place and make some comment on this bill. I am sure there are businesses in his riding that have felt the effects of the recession. I am certain there are businesses and people who have lost their jobs who might have benefit from the bill.

Mr Mammoliti: What does this have to do with the bill?

Mr Offer: I see a member has asked, "What does this have to do with the bill?" In fact, the genesis of this bill was the recession and this bill was designed to help those people who are the victims of the recession. It will be interesting to see if members of the government side feel strongly enough to talk about the bill and about what it means to their riding.

As I was indicating: "...that even with the negative economic factors small firms have said in the past that they realize it costs more to do business in Ontario but that other benefits of being here have made this differential worth paying." I think that is important. "They are now re-evaluating their choices. They perceive themselves as truly unwelcome in the current environment as well as being uncompetitive as the extra cost of doing business in Ontario continues to grow."

As I was trying to make this point, some members from the government side were certainly quite critical in terms of my reading this particular part of the report I believe to be in context. I do not believe I have made up anything; it is part of the public record. Maybe the disparaging comments which have been cast by the members of the government side prove the point as to why businesses are now re-evaluating their choice, why they recognize that they are feeling truly unwelcome. I think that not just members of the government but all members have to recognize that if people feel that, then there is something that has to take place and we have to send out a stronger message.

The amendment put forward by my colleague the member for Wentworth North is, I believe, an important amendment. It is important because it tries to come to grips with some of the realities of the business community. I had asked a question of the parliamentary assistant. I know she does not have to respond, but it would be nice to know what the interrelationship is between this bill, not yet passed, and the federal bill now before the House of Commons, again not yet passed.

That federal bill calls for, in essence, a national wage protection plan with, I might simplistically say, a ceiling of $2,000 and funded through an employer tax, if memory serves me correctly. It will be interesting to know what discussions have gone on between the Minister of Labour and his federal counterpart on the harmonization of these two bills, both not yet law.

Are we talking about a potential liability of $7,000, being the $5,000 and the federal $2,000, or are we talking about a total liability of $5,000 of which $2,000 will be paid by the federal bill? It is important to note that. Employees certainly came before the committee and said it was their hope that when these discussions took place on the harmonization, the liability would not be $5,000 in total but rather $7,000. There would not be a claim, as it were, for $2,000 of the $5,000.

Why do I read this? I read this from the CFIB survey because the parliamentary assistant continues to state that this bill will have no impact on the cost of doing business in this province. That is just patently untrue. I state that as a subjective matter on my part. I am allowed to say that.

Interjection.

Mr Offer: I see that another member not in his seat is causing some problems. If the member truly feels it is not parliamentary, then let him go to his seat, stand up on a point of order and state that. I have the right to say I do not believe that to be the case. It is just not the case of doing business in this province. People are going to have to get insurance. The cost of that insurance is going to be based on a variety of items.

The first will be how large the liability is. That will be determined at the outset by two factors. The first is the number of employees, because the number of employees multiplied by the maximum limit will in fact increase the liability. We all know an insurance policy of $100,000 is going to be more than an insurance policy of $100. It is a matter of multiplication.

1620

The second aspect in determining the liability will be the whole question of what the ceiling is. If it is $5,000 and if there are five employees, the potential liability for those five employees multiplied by the limit will be $50,000. If the limit is increased or if the number of employees is increased, then the potential liability increases. If the liability increases, so does the premium. If the premium increases, so does the cost of doing business. It is absolutely ridiculous to think this bill does not increase the cost of doing business.

I invite the parliamentary assistant to clarify how this bill does not affect a business owner, small, medium or large, and how this bill does not affect the cost of doing business. If the parliamentary assistant says it does not, then I see the reason for the CFIB survey stating, "My goodness, the government just doesn't understand." If it is a cost, then I would certainly like the parliamentary assistant to express that, because I think the business community would at least come to realize that the government side is now starting to understand that this bill does have an impact.

The Second Deputy Chair: Further debate? Seeing none, are we ready for the question?

All those in favour of Mrs Witmer's motion will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the nays have it.

Vote deferred.

The Second Deputy Chair: Do we have any further amendments to section 5? Seeing none, we will proceed to amendments to section 6.

Section/article 6:

The Second Deputy Chair: Mr Offer moves that section 40r of the act, as set out in section 6 of the bill, as reprinted, be amended by adding the following subsection:

"(6) This part does not apply to directors of corporations that employ fewer than fifty (50) employees."

The honourable member for Mississauga North may want to expand on his amendment.

Mr Offer: I certainly do. I want to go back really to the basic distinction of the bill. The bill is divided into two parts.

The first speaks to the fund itself, the access to the dollars, and talks about eligibility. It talks about who is eligible and for what. We know who is eligible and we know that, as the bill stands now, they are eligible for wages, vacation pay, termination and severance up to $5,000. We know that.

There is a second aspect to this bill, that is, the enforcement mechanism. The bill in itself does not create any new rights. Those rights are found now under the Business Corporations Act and continue to be in existence, so this bill in itself does not create anything new. What it does do in this second area is talk about enforcement. In the event that a person who is eligible makes a claim against the fund, proves that claim and receives dollars, then we move into this second aspect.

The employment standards branch, through its officers, will enforce the amount the employee received against the employer or the director. There is a limitation to what they can personally enforce, and that is wages and vacation pay. Through amendment, the liability in terms of severance and termination pay has been deleted, but the directors still remain personally liable to the enforcement mechanism in so far as wages and vacation pay are concerned.

We have skirted around this issue almost since the first day the bill was introduced. As I indicated before, there is a cost to business once this bill is passed. I recognize government members have the right to introduce legislation and have the right to change it. I spoke earlier about how I believed that right should be exercised. I believe it should be exercised through the Legislature as opposed to through the regulatory mechanism, but they have that right.

What we want to do through this amendment is to say clearly to the small business community and to the directors of companies which have less than 50 employees: "Your obligation remains under the Business Corporations Act. It's clear that, in the event of your becoming insolvent or bankrupt, your employees will still be able to have access to the fund but you, as a small business person, will be exempt from the enforcement mechanism under the bill."

What does all that mean? It means that, in general, small businesses, those with 50 employees or less, will be, as far as the directors are concerned, in about the same position they are today: Their employees will be able to access the fund but the directors will not have their position changed by this particular bill. What is the matter with that? I am sure the parliamentary assistant will have some comments on this, but what is the matter with that?

This particular amendment will not erode the principle of the legislation. It will have no effect on employees being able to have access to the fund. It will have no effect on what the obligations and responsibilities of directors are under the Business Corporations Act, no effect whatsoever. That will remain the same. Employees will be able to access the fund as easily as they could before or after this amendment. The directors of those businesses will be as responsible and liable today as they were yesterday under the Business Corporations Act.

1630

It sends out a very strong and powerful message to the business community. It sends out the message that you will not have to worry about getting insurance to protect your person from this bill. It sends out a message that the government is ready to listen to some of the concerns that were raised by the business community. It sends out a message that the speeches that are made about how important small business is to this province, about it being the single greatest creator of new jobs in this province each and every year—the government is ready to listen to that, to recognize that importance and in fact to put some substance behind some of those speeches. That is what this amendment is designed to accomplish.

It does not cost the government any money. I think the parliamentary assistant herself, the minister and, I am sure, ministry officials all recognize that the actual possibility of recovering against those directors is minimal indeed. It just will not be there, because people in small business really sign away everything to the bank. They do that anyway; they do that to the lending institutions. So there really is nothing left to claim over against the directors.

So why not? Why not an amendment which does not cost the government any money, which does not affect the rights of the employees to access the fund, which does not take away from the principle of the legislation, which sends out a very strong and powerful message to the business community that the government is willing not only to listen but also to act? This amendment will accomplish those four objectives. We have to make this province more competitive. Small business does create more new jobs than anyone else in this province. What we want to do is make it, as best we can, easier for them to do it, easier for them to create, expand, continue to grow. This amendment keeps everything intact under the bill.

Everything that was there—all the protections to the employees, all the rights of those who have access to the bill—still remains in effect. All we are doing by this amendment is saying that the position of the small business and those directors will not be changed when this bill is passed. All we are saying is that the position they had yesterday will be the same tomorrow.

We are saying the province can be competitive, can send out the message that it is listening to business and can respond, and we now have a wonderful opportunity at hand, because it is rare to be able to send out such a message without it having to cost the government money. I know the government has made some statements about its concern, but the fact is that this is an opportunity.

Hon Mr Wildman: I actually thought you were right until I heard your comments.

Mr Offer: The Minister of Natural Resources has made some comment about my being right. I do not know if that was on this amendment or philosophical, but whatever the case, I am ready to accept that if we can get the minister's support.

I know the minister and all the members on the government side recognize this wonderful opportunity we have. We have the opportunity to make the bill sensitive not only to the needs of those who have lost jobs but also to the small business community, and without it costing dollars. This will not create any higher liability on the part of the government than now exists. We can do it all by accepting this amendment.

It will be strange indeed to hear whether the government members vote against this. I will be curious to see the government members, who so often speak about the small business community through those speeches to chambers of commerce, boards of trade, local business establishments. It will be interesting for them, I think. I cannot believe this government would vote against this amendment. Then what does it say to all those boards of trade, chambers of commerce and business establishments that say, "This amendment allowed you to give us a break without it costing you money, without it costing the taxpayers dollars and without it affecting the rights of the employees under this bill"?

This government has a wonderful opportunity at hand. It has an opportunity to put some of that substance behind those messages and speeches it has been giving. If it decides to vote against this amendment—I would be shocked—it is then going to have to answer the question: "Why did you? What reason did you have to vote against an amendment that did not cost the taxpayers any money, that did not affect the rights of the workers who lost their jobs, that had the objective of sending out a very positive message to business?" They are going to ask, "Why didn't you give us that break?"

That is a question government members are going to have to answer in their ridings if they vote against this amendment. I hope to save them from having to answer that question. They can do so by voting in favour of this amendment.

This amendment not only builds into it a balance that is for the employees, the victims of the recession, but also builds a balance in favour of the small business where it is possible, without any cost to the taxpayers. The Treasurer was here earlier, but I know the Chairman of Management Board of Cabinet is here; he will be happy to hear that it will not cost the taxpayers any dollars and will not, of course, affect and erode the rights of employees, of those people who lost their jobs.

I truly hope this government accepts this amendment, because I believe this amendment is one which we can hold up as part of the bill and say this is a much better bill, because it meets the needs of those who have lost a job, who are owed wages, vacation pay, termination and severance, and it does not foist an expense on to the small business community, those people who create jobs in this province, who create strength in this province, who create wealth in this province.

It has the effect of meeting the concern that was brought forward by the report of the survey of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business. Small firms have said in the past that they realize it costs more to do business in Ontario, but other benefits of being here had made this differential worth paying. They are now re-evaluating their choice as they perceive themselves as truly unwelcome in the current environment.

1640

By accepting this amendment, we are sending out the message that this survey, as important as it is in terms of the message it gives, has been listened to and that they should not re-evaluate their choice, they should not perceive themselves to be truly unwelcome in the current environment, because this amendment, in terms of small business, has been accepted and is now part of the legislation, that this is now a balanced piece of legislation where you can remain competitive, where we can provide protection to employees—the victims of bankruptcies—but at the same time do it without any extra cost to taxpayers and without any cost to the small business sector.

We have this opportunity before us. It is one I believe we should not fumble and hope we will not. Let us accept this amendment. Let us make this bill more balanced, more sensitive to the concerns of business, while at the same time protecting the rights of those who need access to those funds.

Mrs Witmer: I would like to speak to the amendment that would seriously improve the conditions for small businesses in this province by exempting those with 50 or fewer employees from Bill 70. I would ask the government to give very serious consideration to this amendment. We have talked at length this afternoon about the very important, significant role that small business plays in this province. We have repeated and emphasized that they are the ones that create the jobs in this province and, unfortunately, it is also the small business person who is suffering the most as a result of some of the legislation that is being proposed and from the effects of the recession.

These individuals have asked us to take a serious look at exempting them from this bill. They recognize that they are still liable under the Business Corporations Act, and they are quite willing to fulfil their responsibilities and their duties to their employees. In fact, this amendment will still make it possible for the employees, the individuals we are trying to protect, to access the fund. There is no cost whatsoever to the employees, and they were the purpose for introducing the bill in the first place.

Many people appeared before this committee and many people have written us. They have told us they fear the impact of this bill. They fear they have a great deal to lose. They are very concerned about their ability to get insurance coverage. As I mentioned earlier in my remarks, many of the small business people currently do not have insurance. They are not in a position to pay the additional cost of obtaining insurance, because money they use to do so is going to take money out of the operation and it is going to mean the loss of some jobs—that is, if they can even get insurance. Unfortunately, the government has never, ever given any assurance to the members of the business community that they are going to be able to find insurance to cover the liabilities and that they are going to be able to obtain it at a fair rate they can afford.

As we know, now that the enforcement mechanism has been enhanced, they will need the insurance. Although the government keeps telling us there is no cost to small business, I would dispute that. There is fear in this province about the impact of Bill 70—

Hon Mr Wildman: You are whipping it up.

Mrs Witmer: It is not fear that we are whipping up, as the Minister of Natural Resources has just indicated. It is fear that has been generated by the men and women in this province who are trying to provide jobs for employees.

That is one of the frustrations I hear repeatedly. People ask me, “Doesn’t the government listen when you tell them we’re concerned about our business, we’re concerned about jobs?” I try to tell them that we do try to make the government aware of it and we do hope it will seriously consider these concerns, that we do seriously hope it will provide a balance in all of the legislation it puts forward. We would hope it would consider not only the employee but also the employer. We hope it would demonstrate it is concerned about jobs for the people in this province and is not going to introduce legislation that is going to lead to further job loss because of companies closing because of conditions in this province that they simply cannot afford.

If we are truly concerned about employees and if we are truly concerned about the creation of new jobs and if we want to make absolutely certain that we do not lose any more, I believe we have to start looking at this legislation and attempting to create a balance. We have to start responding to the concerns of the small, medium-sized and large business community. I certainly support the amendment that has been placed here and encourage the government to consider seriously the jobs in this province and the possible loss of those jobs if this legislation is passed without this type of amendment.

Hon Mr Wildman: I want to clarify something the member for Mississauga North raised in his remarks, in which he indicated that I had said he was right. I want to assure him that I meant that with a capital R.

Ms S. Murdock: I want to respond to the provisions of this amendment, which is to remind everyone that it is directors of corporations who employ fewer than 50 employees, and that is the amendment provision, whereas we are recommending that, regardless of the number of employees, directors of companies are held liable, as they presently are under the Ontario Business Corporations Act. Both members of the opposition have stated that.

The thing is that the liability provisions, as they presently are under the OBCA, are such that it is much more onerous for the employee to have any kind of satisfaction or reimbursement. This provision, in conjunction with the amendments to the Employment Standards Act, will allow the ministry offices to go after the primary person responsible, which is the employer. Then, if it looks like they are not going to get anything from the employer, the employer has absconded to Mexico or has closed his doors and there is just nothing there, if that determination can be made, they can go after the director.

Under the present OBCA, what happens is you have to exhaust all provisions with the employer first before you can go after the directors. We have stated that the intent of this bill is speed, efficiency, payment to the workers and also, if you can recoup some of your losses or some of the consolidated revenue fund's payments, then you should be able to do that. Also, directors have responsibility and have liabilities for the duties they take on.

I am not going to speak to any of the other comments that have been made, because I am sure that we will be getting to many of the points that the member for Mississauga North raised later in some of the other amendments.

Mr Offer: In reply to the Minister of Natural Resources, his response is not surprising. In terms of the response of the parliamentary assistant, I think the comments of the parliamentary assistant exactly make the case. In this bill and in this amendment we are not trying to say that the directors of small businesses are not liable. We are saying their liability exists under the Ontario Business Corporations Act. That is not going to change. What we are saying is that directors of small business should be exempt from the enforcement mechanism.

1650

The comments made by the parliamentary assistant were, "Under the current legislation it is very difficult to recover against the directors." That is, of course, the case, because employees who are out of a job do not have the resources to carry forward in trying to sue directors. That is now going to be the part of the government. That is why we are saying directors of small businesses should be exempt.

What happens is that a business goes bankrupt, people are owed money and they are able to access the fund. The government then takes action against the directors of a small business. Those directors either do not have anything left or the government gets a judgement. When the government gets a judgement, it can do a number of things. They can register it against property; they can start garnishment proceedings. There is a variety of ways in which a judgement can be enforced.

The Attorney General, who is now here, recognizes those ways. The fact of the matter is that the directors of small business really are not able to forecast what is going to happen in the long-term future as well as the medium and large businesses can. They do not have the personnel to do that. They are in there to create jobs, to create business. That is what they are doing. By not accepting this amendment, the government is sending out a very bad message to the small business community. It is sending out the message that an amendment was possible that would have the effect of keeping the liability without the onerous enforcement, not eroding the principle of the bill, not affecting the rights of the employees and not costing the taxpayers any dollars, and the government is saying no to that.

The business community is saying, "We don't have a lot of confidence and faith in the government because our concerns are not being listened to, are not being dealt with." Here the government had an opportunity to say, "But we do listen to your concerns." If the government is not going to deal with their concerns in a matter that does not affect taxpayers, in a matter that does not affect the rights of those who have lost their jobs, in a matter that does not affect the legal obligation under the Ontario Business Corporations Act, then when is it going to deal with them? They are never going to.

The concerns of the business community, as found in the survey of the CFIB, are absolutely well founded. The government had the opportunity to cut into some of that concern. They had an opportunity to send out a different sort of message, and they did not do it. It is just absolutely incredible that having that opportunity, when taxpayers are not affected, when the workers are not affected, when legal liability is not affected, they are still unwilling to act. What other result do they think is going to happen except an increased lack of confidence by the business community in this government's ability to deal with the realities of the day, the stress of being competitive?

My goodness gracious, I asked the Minister of Labour a question today in the Legislature: "We are going to be putting forward this amendment and this amendment is going to be there for the small business person. This amendment is not going to erode the principle of the bill, it is not going to affect those people who have lost their jobs and it is not going to affect taxpayers. Will you accept the amendment?" The minister said no.

That no is a message by his government to business generally. It is a no that will reverberate not only today but through each and every one of the government members' constituency offices to anybody who wants to create jobs in their ridings. The government has said no to them and it is something they are going to remember for a long period of time. I would like to know what government members are going to say to their communities, to their local business establishments, to their small business people, to their chambers of commerce, to their boards of trade, when they ask the question, "Why not?"

The First Deputy Chair: Shall the motion carry?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the nays have it.

Vote deferred.

The First Deputy Chair: Mr Offer moves that subsection 40s(2) of the act, as set out in section 6 of the bill, as reprinted, be struck out and the following substituted:

"(2) Despite subsection (1), the employer is primarily responsible for the employee's wages and proceedings may not be commenced to collect wages from directors under this part until proceedings against the employer under this act are exhausted."

Mr Offer: I have a few comments on this particular aspect of the bill. Previously we had been discussing some areas of the bill dealing with the monetary amount of the liability and, for us on this side, how changes to that amount should only be made through legislation as opposed to regulation. We have also spoken about giving a break to small business, and those types of amendments, as we have noted, have been defeated by the government members.

This is more of a technical nature. Under this particular piece of legislation there is no obligation on the part of the employment standards branch, those people who are responsible for the enforcement of this legislation, to take all steps under the Employment Standards Act against the employers. Basically, if there is a claim made by an employee, they can, after validating the claim, immediately go against the director. They do not have to go against the employer of the company. They do not have to take any action under their own act, the Employment Standards Act.

1700

I thought maybe the amendment should read that the employer is primarily responsible and that proceedings may not be commenced until all proceedings have been exhausted. I thought it might be a bit too onerous for the officers under the employment standards branch to take all actions against an employer, because that would be even wider than the Employment Standards Act. They would have to take the actions they can take under the Employment Standards Act together with all their civil remedies. They would have to get a judgement. They would have to make certain the sheriff tried to serve that judgement. In that respect it might widen out the process and make it unduly long. There may be a substantial delay before any dollars are recouped.

I thought I would try to balance that type of amendment, so I cut it down by saying that under this legislation the branch officers must at least take all action against employers under the Employment Standards Act; they must at least get an order against an employer under their own act. I believe that to be essential before going against the director, because we know what is going to happen. The members on that side know what is going to happen. We can all read between the lines on this bill.

Notwithstanding the greatest and loftiest intentions now, when there is a claim made to the employment standards branch those officers are going to take the quickest route, in accordance with the wishes of the government. That route is going to be: "Who are the directors? Who is the director with the deepest pocket? Who is the director I can get the easiest? I'm not even going to try to get the employer. I'm not even going to use any effort to seek out whether an employer is there and whether he has funds that can be used to recover some of the moneys that have been laid out."

We know that is going to happen. In fairness to directors—some of the members may have been directors of corporations. If they were directors of companies that had difficulty, would they not like to know that before this legislation kicked in to their personal liability, every effort under the Employment Standards Act would be taken against the employer? It sounds right, sounds fair.

This amendment puts in legislative form what the stated intention has been of the minister, of the parliamentary assistant and, I expect, of ministry officials. The intention is not good enough. If it is the government's intention not to take action against directors until it has exhausted remedies against employers, it has the obligation to put that in the legislation. That is where people are going to look and that is where people get their direction. If the government's intention is in word only, then when a company gets into difficulty, officers in the employment standards branch are going to look at the director who is easiest to attach to.

I hearken back to the CFIB research survey, because when we started this discussion we did not have this survey. I am certain even members on the government side will admit to having business people, people who are working, come into their constituency offices and say, "I have some concerns about some of the things you're doing."

There are people coming into my constituency office talking about the problems they had working with the government. They were talking about the concerns they had, the fear that the job they have today might not be there tomorrow, that the government was really cutting down on some of their options and that maybe it was not the greatest place any more to open up a business. They were really concerned about the direction the government was taking.

We have an opportunity here to put in legislative form some of the intentions stated by the ministry.

Hon Mr Hampton: Steve, you should be over here.

Mr Offer: I heard the Attorney General make some comment about where I am standing in this Legislature and where he perceives I should be standing. A lot of the concerns voiced, not only by myself and my caucus, I am sure he has heard in his constituency office. I would be absolutely surprised if the Attorney General stood in this House, as he will have the opportunity to do when I finish my remarks, and said no one ever came into his constituency office in Rainy River in the depths of this recession to say he had some concerns. We will wait and hear if that is the case. If that is the case, his constituency office stands separate from all others.

That is not a partisan comment on my part. This is the worst recession since the 1930s: 300,000 jobs have been lost and jobs have disappeared; more than 50% of all the jobs lost in this province in the past year have disappeared.

All our constituencies felt the ravages of this recession, though some of the early returns coming in are that we seem to have bottomed out. There are still a lot of people saying: "The recession may be over for some people, but it isn't over for me. I'm still without a job. My company hasn't opened up. My company hasn't recalled. My company has closed up. My company has moved out."

We have to be very cognizant of those particular realities of the day, and I say that not in a partisan fashion. I think every one of our constituencies suffered greatly in this recession. People were badly hurt by this recession. Their way of life was changed dramatically. People who held a job all their lives were out of work for the first time.

There was no need for some of the skills they had acquired over many years. There was nothing to be found. Those are some of the challenges for us.

With this amendment we are talking about putting into legislation the intentions of the ministry. Is it the intention of this legislation? Will the workings of this legislation be such that all remedies against an employer under the Employment Standards Act will be exhausted before directors of a particular company are potentially found liable, or will it be something else?

If it is going to be something else they should say so. They should not say, "This is our intent but the legislation won't reflect it." If they are going to say it and mean it, then they should do it by this amendment.

1710

The First Deputy Chair: Are the members ready for the question? Shall the motion carry?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the nays have it.

Vote deferred.

The First Deputy Chair: We shall move on to the next motion, which is also brought forward by Mr Offer.

Mr Offer: I was very concerned over that last amendment failing, because I think it just sends out the absolutely wrong signal. But I know I will have to—

The First Deputy Chair: Please move on with the business and on to the next motion.

Mr Offer moves that section 40s of the act, as set out in section 6 of the bill, as reprinted, be amended by adding the following subsection:

"(10) Despite subsection (1), no director is liable under this part if the director exercised reasonable diligence in carrying out his or her duties as a director."

Mr Offer: I have a few comments on this particular amendment because in many ways we have an opportunity of charting some new ground here. One of the submissions made by the Canadian Bar Association in the hearings spoke to this issue. They put forward in one area of their brief that the time is now right that directors, not only in this legislation but I think they even went so far as to say under the Ontario Business Corporations Act, should be able to absolve themselves of personal liability if they have taken certain action in a certain way and under certain circumstances.

If I might, I would like to allude to their particular brief, because they indicated that this, though new in this legislation, is not a new idea:

"The liability of directors under the Income Tax Act is limited in two ways. First, Revenue Canada imposes statutory trusts and 'superpriority' provisions to ensure that there is the greatest likelihood that there will be assets available to meet its demand. Second, it is a defence to a claim by Revenue Canada that the director acted reasonably in the circumstances."

I will repeat that. "Second, it is a defence to a claim by Revenue Canada that the director acted reasonably in the circumstances. Actions brought by Revenue Canada have been dismissed when it is proved that the director took reasonable steps to ensure that Revenue Canada was paid." That is "reasonable steps to ensure."

It is pointed out that: "The government, in Bill 84...establishing liability on directors...under the Tobacco Tax Act, provided in subsection 20a(3) that it was a defence to a claim by the Minister of Revenue that the director had acted with reasonable care in the circumstances." I am going to repeat that because even the current government, under the Tobacco Tax Act now before the Legislature, provides a provision that it is a defence to a claim by the provincial Minister of Revenue that a "director had acted with reasonable care in the circumstances." The point made by the Canadian Bar Association is that it sees no reason that a similar defence could not be available under Bill 70 to those exposed to the risk of liability under it.

Think of what that means. It means that in terms of the business community, when a company is experiencing difficulty and there is now a personal liability under Bill 70, the directors of that company recognize that the efforts they make in trying to save the company through a whole variety of ways—I think some of us know some of those ways, and certainly some of the people who are watching the legislative channel, through their businesses, know of ways they take in, for want of a better word, trying to save their company. They are trying to do everything it takes to save their company, and there are a whole variety of ways in which they can do that. They can try to sell part of the company; they can enter into a whole variety of other types of arrangements, all very valid, all designed to save the company and which will have, as a direct result, the saving of jobs. This bill does not put any importance on that as far as a director is concerned. This bill says that no matter what the action of the director was, no matter what the director did to try to save his or her company, no matter what the director did to try to ensure that the jobs would be there, if the director fails, that director is personally liable to the full extent and the strongest arm of the employment standards branch under the Ministry of Labour.

We now know, because the previous amendment failed, that those directors are going to be liable and the branch does not even have to go after the employer. Those who are in this Legislature today, as Hansard will record, and certainly those people who are watching this on the parliamentary station will recognize that after the points I made in terms of the intent of the legislation—being that action should be taken against an employer, that it was possible to put that intent in legislative form—no one but the parliamentary assistant and no one on the government side had any comment on that. That remains in Hansard in terms of its silence.

The message is clear. The legislation is such that if a company goes bankrupt, the employment standards branch and those officers do not have to, and will not go against the employer. They will look to who the director is, who is easiest to attach, and who has the deepest pockets. That is what this legislation has now become because of the fact that the previous amendment was not accepted.

1720

We have that aspect. We also have once more the aspect of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business's recent survey, which talked about the very fundamental lack and loss of confidence that business clearly has in this government. During this afternoon, and even in previous days, we have tried to build a balance into the legislation, through amendments, that will not detract from the rights of the workers, that will not take away their rights that are contained under this bill and under the Employment Standards Act, but will provide a balance to the business community so that the cost of this legislation will not be borne, I feel, in an unfair way by the small business community. We could do that without any cost to the taxpayers of this province. That opportunity apparently has also been lost through the government's stated intent to vote against that amendment.

Now we come to this amendment. What do we have in this amendment? What we are doing is saying that a director of a company that goes bankrupt—I know the bill is not limited to bankruptcies, but I will use that—is not a bad person, is not a bad director. For a variety of reasons, many of which are really outside the control of the people, the company has run into bad times which have resulted in its going bankrupt. This amendment says to those people, who worked hard to create the business, to maybe even have that business expanded, probably put in 30 hours a day when that business was having difficulties, that the cost in terms of worry and stress, which cannot be—

Interjections.

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. I am having difficulty following the speaker due to the number of private conversations taking place in the House. I would appreciate the contribution of all members to this debate. The member may continue.

Mr Offer: It cannot be quantified. The effort that person is going to make in terms of trying to save the business, trying to save the jobs, trying to use all the things he has learned in all the ways he can, is not going to be recognized. This bill will not recognize the efforts of those directors.

Directors do not want their businesses to go bankrupt. They want their businesses to succeed and to succeed again. When those businesses start to have some difficulties, they will take action. They will do what is necessary to keep their businesses in existence. I believe this amendment is important in terms of sending out a message that this bill recognizes that when a business goes bankrupt it is not because of some wish of a director, that when a company goes bankrupt a director puts in and has put in a great deal of time and effort to make the business a success and is also putting in maybe even greater time and effort to try to save that business.

I could see, through the acceptance of this amendment, a whole case load of decision-making being developed that really would come to grips with what is necessary for a director to do in order not to be found personally liable under the enforcement mechanism of this bill. I think that would be a very strong and positive result of the bill.

This amendment would not erode or detract from any of the rights of the people who lose jobs. They would be able to receive dollars from the fund just as well as before.

Because we are dealing with this bill, their liability under the Ontario Business Corporations Act would not be affected. What would be affected would be the enforcement mechanism: the long, strong arm of the employment standards branch officers reaching out to the director who is closest to them, reaching over the employer because they do not have to go after the employer, picking out that director because they do not have to go against all of the directors. They get to pick and choose and do whatever is necessary to recoup those dollars, even if it means a judgement against a director, even if it means future garnishment proceedings against directors who are trying to look for jobs. That is what this bill will potentially become.

This amendment, again, does not cost the taxpayers any dollars. It does not affect liability. It does not affect the employees, those people who lost the jobs. It does not affect the principle of the legislation. That remains intact. What it does is say to the survey by the CFIB: "The concerns expressed in your report by your member corporations"—once more, remember we are talking about thousands of corporations representing hundreds of thousands of jobs—"we have listened to that. In fact, we're prepared to do something about that. We're prepared to send out a message to the business community that you can create jobs, expand your businesses, do what is necessary to create wealth and remain competitive in this province. If things go bad for a whole variety of reasons, most of which are out of the control of those running the company, then your efforts to try to save the company, to try to save those jobs, will be reflected in this legislation."

We are saying, give the directors an opportunity. This is an issue of fairness. If one creates a piece of legislation which says, "We are going to sue you if your company goes bankrupt," at least give an opportunity to those to whom you have said that to have a defence, to have an argument to be made, that this argument and defence are something the government is ready to listen to through legislation.

Where should legislation be introduced and passed which creates a penalty, a personal liability on someone without that same person being able to argue: "But I did everything I could do. I took these actions. I tried to save this company. I tried to save these jobs"? This bill does not do it. The Income Tax Act of Canada does it. This government's Tobacco Tax Act does it. Their own legislation which is before this House provides that opportunity for someone to say, "I've taken reasonable action."

Why cannot this bill do that? Why is it so difficult for the government to say it is absolutely ready to make this bill a better bill, a more balanced bill, a bill which will not only meet the concerns of those who lost their jobs but will also provide an opportunity for those to argue that they have taken the action; that the government is ready, willing to listen and act in terms of substantive change to this legislation, and that the directors of companies will not be found liable if they have taken reasonable action.

I sometimes get a certain sense that the parliamentary assistant is telling her members, "Don't speak on this bill." I have been watching very closely. Would we on this side not find it incredibly surprising that with a bill of this importance, a bill that affects everybody in this province, in all ridings, the parliamentary assistant is saying to members of the government, "Don't speak; let's get this bill through"?

1730

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. I am going to ask for the members' co-operation. Would the honourable members please co-operate by reducing the level of private conversation? I am having difficulty following the member's comments. I think we all have a responsibility in this House to listen.

Mr Offer: As I was saying, I have this suspicion that—

Hon Mr Hampton: You are repeating yourself.

Mr Offer: I want to make a point. The Attorney General says I am repetitive. By repeating the Attorney General's remarks, maybe that makes the case. I have a concern that on a bill of such importance, which affects all our ridings, which affects everything about the future growth of our ridings generally, members of the government side want to say something but the parliamentary assistant is saying, "Listen, let's be quiet now, let's just be quiet."

Interjection.

Mr Offer: The member for Mississauga West says "Muzzle them," which might be exactly the case. They say: "Listen, let's not speak our minds on this bill. We have absolutely no comment to make on a bill which is changed by regulation as opposed to legislation. We have no comment to make on our rights, obligations and responsibility as MPPs to debate these things. We have no comment on giving small business in this province a break in this legislation. We have absolutely no comment to make on whether directors should have a right to state they've made some reasonable effort to try to save the company."

Members of the government side are saying "No comment" to that. I hope their statements about business will be reflected, if they have no comment to make, in their approval of this amendment.

Ms S. Murdock: I want to assure the member for Mississauga North that the reason I did not respond to the last amendment the official opposition put forward was because I had responded to it in the amendment before, and I did not want to waste everybody's time listening to me repeat myself. However, I will repeat it for the benefit of the member for Mississauga North.

Exhausting avenues against the employer and then going after the directors, in our view, means there would be some instances where it would be obvious that the employer is nowhere around to go after but where we would have to proceed through all kinds of court procedures in order to close off and exhaust all of those avenues before proceeding against the directors. As has happened all too frequently in this province lately, some companies have left the province entirely. There is no one to go after except the directors. The liability, as I said, is not any different from that presently under the OBCA.

As well, in this amendment to section 6 on the "due diligence" argument, there is no due diligence in OBCA. It is exactly the same as the Ontario Business Corporations Act. Corporate law in this province does not excuse directors from liability for having done their work with reasonable diligence. We are not in favour of this amendment.

We are trying to get this bill passed; that is right. There is no question we are trying to get it through. The arguments have been stated very clearly. Repetition is not going to solve anything here in terms of getting this bill through.

Mr Offer: I find the comments of the parliamentary assistant quite surprising when she speaks to the issue of repetition. The parliamentary assistant should be aware that we are in committee of the whole. We have every right to bring forward these amendments. After a great deal of thought, we very much believe these amendments are balanced and not only meet the needs of those people who are the victims of the recession but indeed send out a more positive and progressive message to the business community.

I believe this type of debate is very important. I believe it is this type of debate we were elected to do. This is not repetition. The parliamentary assistant should not think it is.

Interjection.

Mr Offer: The Minister of Health made some comment. I was not able to catch it, but I hope when she takes her seat she will be able to clarify what she said.

We are in committee of the whole right now and one of the things we want to do is talk about some of the things we think are important, some of the things we think can make this a better bill. We have some concerns about the bill. We want to make certain the bill meets the principle and meets as well some of the concerns that have been raised through the public hearings.

May I remind the parliamentary assistant that the public hearings on this bill were greatly restricted and that the members of the government side voted against travelling. They voted against listening to people, not just the business community but indeed the people outside of the Toronto area. That is something we have to continue to keep in mind. It must be borne in mind that some of the areas of concern we are talking about are those we heard—and the presentations were well made—from the greater Toronto area. There were an awful lot of people who wanted to provide some comments on the bill, probably both for and against. That would have been quite helpful. It is unfortunate the members of the government saw it as unnecessary to listen to those concerns or points of approval. They found it necessary to vote against our committee travelling. It is something this bill will have to carry with it, no matter how it ends up.

The First Deputy Chair: Are the members ready for the question?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the nays have it.

Vote deferred.

1740

The First Deputy Chair: We will proceed to the next motion. Before we deal with this motion, can we have support for sections 7 through 15. Will this carry? Okay, this section will also be stacked.

Ms S. Murdock: Mr Chair, is clause 65(1)(rb) stacked now? Is that what I heard you say? Which amendment is stacked?

The First Deputy Chair: The amendment we just dealt with has been stacked. I asked for support for sections 7 through 15. Shall this carry or shall it be stacked?

Vote deferred.

Section/article 16:

The First Deputy Chair: We will move on then to the motion introduced by the member for Mississauga North.

Mr Offer moves that clause 65(1)(rb) of the act, as set out in section 16 of the bill, as reprinted, be struck out.

Mr Offer: I have some comments on this. I think those of us who were on the committee and those of us who have been watching this debate recognize that if there was one common concern, it is found in this amendment. In passing, I will note that the member for Waterloo North has also moved the same amendment. It is, I believe, word for word the same amendment. The reason for that is that if there was a single common concern, it was this.

Let's be clear: This amendment states that any changes must be made by legislation as opposed to regulation. That is talking about changes to, "(rb) prescribing other payments that are wages for purposes of" subsection 40b(2). What this means is that the changes to the wages can be made by regulation and not legislation.

This really strikes at the heart and soul not only of this legislation but what it is we do here. We have really spoken about this on other amendments earlier on. We are talking about what it is we do. Are we ready to say to those who have concerns about the legislation that if there is to be any change, it will take place in this chamber?

The Minister of Labour himself recognized and was not afraid to bring in the dollar figure in terms of legislation. He was not afraid that those particular areas of the legislation should be debated. He wanted the bill, even if it was shortened, to go out to committee hearings. Why can we not carry that on? That is what this amendment does.

There are those who will say the bill should be changed; there are those who will be opposed to any change. Whatever their positions will be, do we not believe in this chamber that it is our duty, that it is why we were elected, to take their concerns, to take their opinions through debate, to take any potential change out to committee, to use the committee in the way in which it was designed to be used, to take a matter of change out to the general public, to listen to their concerns as to what the impact of any change might be, what the impact might be in terms of business, the cost of doing business, job creation, the creation of wealth, strengthening the economy of this province, embracing an aspect of competitiveness? Are they not some of the things that we think we were elected to do, to seek out people's opinions on change?

If the members vote against this amendment, they are saying that change is done by regulation. When it is done by regulation, it is done without input. They have no knowledge what the impact of change will be. They do not know what it is going to mean in their constituencies. They just do not know what it is going to mean in the cities, in the municipalities they now represent, in the areas in which they live. They do not know what it means in terms of cutting down options for future job growth.

By moving this to legislation, what they are doing is saying: "I realize I don't know that, but by moving it to legislation I want to find that out. I want to know what it means. I want to know what it means to the province before I vote yes or no on any change, what it means to my constituency, what it means to the future of our economic strength." Those are some of the things we were elected to do. We should not be afraid of doing that. We should be asking for more. We should be asking for more things to be debated here.

Through regulation, they will read of those changes. They will read press clippings about those changes, their own ministry reports and media reports as to changes announced. They will have no input as to those changes. They will have no say as to whether those changes benefit their community or benefit their constituency. They will have no answer to constituents who come into their offices and say, "I'd like to give you my opinion as to whether this change is necessary or not." They will have no answer because the change will have already occurred and they will be defending the change already made. But even more so, in this political climate they will be defending why it was made without their constituents, whoever wanted to, having an opportunity to have some input into the process, being more a part of the process.

We are going to have to answer that question. We are going to have to answer the question why, by not accepting this amendment, they are saying they are not ready to listen, are not ready to use this chamber, are not ready to use their constituency office, their Queen's Park office or committee rooms in the way they were designed.

We are talking about changes to the very essence of this legislation. We are not talking about technical changes—its to ands, and ors to buts, and may to shalls, all of which are very important—but this talks to the real heart of the legislation.

What do the members say to themselves when they do not support this amendment in terms of their being able to defend this, if they cannot even defend this type of amendment which is the heart and soul of the legislation? People may be for this bill, they may be against this bill. They may have major concerns, they may have minor concerns. But whatever they be, major or minor, for or against, members will have to recognize their obligation and responsibility to defend in this chamber and to vote accordingly.

1750

When they do things by regulation, they do not have to do that. The members really do not have to defend, they do not have to have an opinion, and they have no obligation to talk and raise some of the concerns of their constituents. I am not talking just of the business community, because this bill is not just limited to the business community. There will be those who will say that maybe the bill does not go far enough, just as there are those who will say the bill goes too far. The fact is, future change to the essence of this bill will be done at the cabinet table.

It will move from the minister's boardroom table to the cabinet table, to the media room, to press releases, to the government members' constituency offices, and the members will read them four or five days after they have happened. They might be content to do that, but we are talking about the ability of the constituents to have input, the ability of our province to continue to compete, the message we send out to our business community.

We have an opportunity here, as we move to some of the final sections. I know we have stood down the first four sections. We have here almost the final opportunity to grab hold of some of the concerns raised by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business in its research report. They are concerns not only on their part, but which we hear each and every day in our Queen's Park or constituency offices, every time we pick up the telephone with our constituents, concerns about how they are going to be able to live their lives and concerns about whether their kids are going to have the options they had as kids. There are fundamental concerns that those options are not going to be there.

One of the ways we can do that is by making certain, wherever possible, that changes to the heart and soul of legislation are debated in this Legislature, that in fact there is the opportunity to discuss those changes through committees in each community in this province, that we can invite people in.

If members vote against this amendment, they close their constituency doors, close their Queen's Park doors, lock the door to this chamber and shut down the committee rooms. They say no to anybody who has a concern and, yes, that the survey report of the CFIB is right. The members say yes to the concerns of business, "Yes, you're right to leave this province." They say yes to those people who are losing confidence in this province and say no to greater options for people.

In my opinion, there should be no hesitation by members of the government side to say they are ready to have the opportunity to listen to people. Whether they meet with their concerns or not, that is the government's right, responsibility or obligation. That is what this will do. This amendment at least provides the opportunity for future debate. By voting against this amendment, they vote against future debate of this bill. They turn the key on this bill, lock it up, shut it up and say, "I don't care about your concerns."

I do not think the people of this province want that. I think they recognize that they do not agree all the time with what government does, that there is room for disagreement, but what they want is the opportunity to be part of the process. This amendment makes that happen. It makes our rules of procedure kick in. It allows them to have a part in debate. It allows them to share with all of us their concerns about any future change to the bill.

I hope members of the government would not be afraid, would not be reticent to listen to people's concerns and would be ready to back that up in substance as opposed to speeches. By voting in favour of this amendment, this is their opportunity.

Mrs Witmer: As has been indicated, the Conservative caucus supports and had the same motion, the same amendment. Of course, the intent of this amendment is to remove the ability for the government to make changes by regulation, because we feel it is imperative that all future changes to Bill 70 legislation should be made by amendments to the act after a full and complete debate in which the public is allowed to participate.

We believe that if any changes are made to increase the program ceiling of the wage protection fund beyond the $5,000 cap as proposed, or if additional components are going to be added to the compensation package, then this government needs to make sure it consults with all of the taxpayers in the province.

I feel that as members of provincial Parliament we have a responsibility to discuss all financial issues with our constituents. I believe we need to remain accountable to our taxpayers and our constituents, and in order for that to happen we need to make sure that a full public debate does take place. We also need to allow for public scrutiny into any program spending increases that are made in this House. Although this government might agree that an increase to the ceiling should be made or that additional components should be added, we need to give the public the opportunity to share information with us as to why that should or should not happen.

This government has talked about consultation, it has talked about co-operation, and certainly if it allows the changes to be made by amendment, there will be an opportunity for full and complete consultation. I would remind the government as well that every employer group that appeared before us this summer indicated that it believed very strongly that any changes that are going to be made should be made only after a complete and full public debate. They are very opposed and very concerned about the ability to make changes by regulation. I guess some of that fear was created by the move before Christmas which allowed the government to create French school boards by regulation.

The First Deputy Chair: Order. Will the member take her seat.

On motion by Mrs Coppen, the committee of the whole reported progress.

À la suite d'une motion présentée par M^{me} Coppen, l'étude du projet de loi en comité plénier de la Chambre est ajournée.

The Speaker: Pursuant to standing order 33, the question that this House do now adjourn is deemed to have been made.

1800

SABRINA PANETTA

The Speaker: The member for Brampton North has given notice of dissatisfaction with the answer to a question given yesterday by the Minister of Community and Social Services. The member for Brampton North has up to five minutes to debate the matter, and the minister may reply for up to five minutes.

Mr McClelland: I sincerely say that I regret we are here this evening on this matter. It was my hope that we could come to, I do not want to use the word "accommodation," but I was hoping the minister would find some possible way to accommodate not the request that I put forward but indeed the one the family of this dying child and the child herself have indicated. In the method she is able to communicate with her family and with her physician, it is her wish.

Over the course of the debate and exchange in question period both last Tuesday and yesterday, a number of issues have been brought forward. I have put forward as well as I am able the plea on behalf of the little girl and the family that an order in council be granted by the Minister of Community and Social Services that would provide the financial means necessary for this little girl to receive nursing attention at home, so that she could die where she and her family would like her to be.

I might add that as of literally within the past hour, the physician has indicated he feels there is infection with respect to this little girl's lungs, that her lungs may collapse and she may not live very much longer.

That raises an issue that has been brought forward in rebuttal by the honourable minister. She has said she is concerned about the wellbeing of the child and this is the principal reason that she is not able to grant the order in council.

It is simply stated by myself that we recognize the child's wellbeing is in jeopardy. In fact she is dying. It seems to me the wellbeing of this girl is not in question. The question is what is best for her under the circumstances that are before her and her family.

The doctor has said: "She belongs at home, not at York Finch Hospital, where she has been for the past five months, and not in an institution. She has been receiving fine care at York Finch, the nurses are terrific, but she is a terminally ill child and could die any day."

He also went on to say, and I quoted this in Hansard earlier, that he believes—and after caring for her over the course of seven years, he is perhaps as able as anybody else; he is a specialist and has cared for her—he has made, in his view, a professional judgement that not only the quality of her life but indeed perhaps the longevity of her life, the length of it, may be extended if she were afforded the opportunity to die at home. It is his belief that a substantial contribution to her wellbeing has been the love and affection and the atmosphere of nurture that she has received in and around her family.

I want to draw the minister's attention to some things that I would ask her to comment on in her response, that on their face to me, quite frankly, are hard to reconcile. Following question period yesterday, the press spoke with both the minister and myself, and I will, I am sure, hear her response with respect to the fact that she said this is not a financial concern. She then went on to say, "It is not a financial concern, but there are 30 other children out there who are in similar circumstances." I ask the minister to reconcile that apparent contradiction on its face.

The issue in terms of her wellbeing, I think, has been addressed by the physician; not by myself, not by the minister, but by the physician. Ultimately he, together with the family I believe, is the one able to make that decision. I say this in light of the background of advocacy legislation, the position the government has taken throughout so many years of standing up for people's rights to make choices for themselves. I say that in response to a government whose Premier said, when he was sworn in on October 1 a year ago, "I have always fought for the little guy, and now that I am Premier, I am not going to stop doing that."

I would ask people in this province, those who might be watching, that if nothing else, they would consider appealing to the Premier of this province, calling his office and indicating their concern, because I do not know what else to do at this point.

The minister has also indicated her concern with respect to what might happen to this child. I would invite the minister, if she can find some way, to allow the child's parents together with the physician to assume that risk. They are prepared to do that. They want to do that.

The minister indicated in her response that she has not spoken with the parents. I am sure her staff have, because she indicated also in her response that many hours had been invested in this case. I would invite the minister, in fact I would implore her, to please talk to the people involved directly to find some resolution within her mind about the apparent roadblocks that stand in her way.

I ask the minister to consider those factors. It is not a great deal to ask. The wish of Mrs Panetta is: "My daughter is dying. I would like her to spend her last days at home." I am asking the minister again if she will do all within her power to accommodate that request—her request, not mine—of the child and the family.

Hon Ms Akande: I come reluctantly to this House to speak on this matter. It is a serious matter and it is not my feeling that this is an appropriate place for it to be discussed. We are discussing a child. We are discussing a child who is dying. We are discussing our services to that child.

Let me say, first of all, that this ministry, this government, has never said no to the family. It has been our intention, our direction, our work, our focus to find a way to support the family and the child in the home. I feel the demonstration of our support started long ago when we supported the family and the child with services right in the home.

I am not at liberty to speak specifically about anything we have in place for that family, because the legal department tells me we have not been given that permission. I feel, as probably they feel, that to do so would make their hurt public, and since I have not been given that permission, I cannot do that. Let me say that the primary concern of this ministry and this government has always been and continues to be that the child not be put at greater risk at home than in the hospital. Our focus has always been to support life, not to anticipate death.

Currently there is no program in the Ministry of Community and Social Services nor in the Ministry of Health that provides 24-hour registered nursing care. There is no such program. The Ministry of Community and Social Services does provide special services at home, and that is to support families so that their child can be at home, but it is not a registered nurse. They do provide a handicapped children's benefit, a certain sum during the month. They do provide respite care from community agencies to support families. But none of these programs are designed to provide parallel services to a health care facility; none of them.

In order to respond to the needs of any child, it is necessary for us to bring together a variety of resources, and we have done so and we continue to try to do so. All of these resources are used in a way that says to us we have supported the child in the family in a way that the child is not at greater risk because the child is in the home. The co-ordination of these programs is difficult and costly, but cost is not our primary concern. To have a registered nurse 24 hours a day in the home costs $660 a day; in the hospital it costs $382. To have a registered nurse for a week in the home costs $4,620 and it costs $2,674 in the hospital.

But I say again that finance is not our primary concern. I mention the cost only because our opposition has pointed out to us, and I recognize it, that there are limited resources to meet the needs of many children who are in similar circumstances. We strive and we struggle to meet those needs, to support all those families and to support all those children who have very similar needs. It is difficult.

If the child's condition is unstable, we may have to back it up with hospital care, which may mean and often means the child has to be transported back and forth to the hospital in periods of instability. This might put the child at greater risk.

I was touched by and I am concerned about the fact that the member mentions he held the child in his arms. I recall that I have held dying children in my arms. I know that it is no happy, pleasant sight; it is no wonderful feeling. Your heart goes out to them, your mind goes out to them and you try to figure out what you can do. But when the member held the child in his hands, did he ask if the child would be at greater risk if she were in the home? If he did, then he should remember that is what we are asking. I do.

The Speaker: The time has expired. There being no further matter to debate, I deem the motion to adjourn to be carried.

The House adjourned at 1811.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth
Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Hon/L'hon Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND) Minister of Community and Social Services/Ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND) Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND) Minister of Education, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre de l'Éducation, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/ Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND) Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Oriele L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND) Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND) Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND) Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement
Grandmaître, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

- Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
- Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)
- Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général
- Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
- Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)
- Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement
- Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur
- Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications
- Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)
- Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)
- Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires
- Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie
- Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises
- Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND)
PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu
- Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)
- Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)
- Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
- Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)
- Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND)
Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie
- Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités
- Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND)
Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail
- MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative
- Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiles, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales
- Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales
- Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
- Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines
- Martin, Tony (Sault Ste. Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation
- Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement
- McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)
- McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)
- McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
- McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)
- Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général
- Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
- Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice
- Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)
- Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail
- North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs
- O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
- Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)
- O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)
- O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition
- Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement
- Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)

Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General, Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général, ministre des Services correctionnels

Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)

Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des comptes publics

Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND) Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones

Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre, ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales

Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)

Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)

Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux

Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)

Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)

Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement

Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)

Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)

Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)

Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)

Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)

Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques

Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West /-Ouest ND)

Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)

Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)

Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie

Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu

Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND) Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation; Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources

Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé

White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND)

Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister of Government Services/Ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND) PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications

Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)

Winninger, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des Services correctionnels

Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)

Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles

Ziemba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND) Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow
Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli, Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills, Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger
Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland
Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan, Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson
Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/

Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland
Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison, Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward, Jim Wiseman
Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown
Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti, Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott, David Turnbull
Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean
Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters, Jim Wiseman
Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon
Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford, Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen, Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil, Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve
Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant
Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessenger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer
Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole
Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway, W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson, Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson, Drummond White
Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/

Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Vacant
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant
Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher, Leo Jordan, Ellen MacKinnon, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Drummond White, Jim Wilson
Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters
Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary, George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp, Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood
Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano
Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck, Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod, Stephen Owens, Paul Wessenger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer
Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/

Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson
Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves, Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski, Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger
Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner
Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan
Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini, Kimble Sutherland
Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Tuesday 8 October 1991

Members' statements

Government facilities	2777
Mr Callahan
Emergency telephone services	2777
Mr Cousens
Household appliance standards	2777
Mr Kormos
Forest firefighting	2777
Mr Miclash
Land registration	2778
Mr Jordan
Agri-Food Week	2778
Mrs Mathysen
Sexual abuse of children	2778
Mrs McLeod
Northern economy	2778
Mr Carr
Belleville farmers' market	2779
Mr Johnson
Ministerial statements	2779
Mr Sorbara

Oral questions

Budget	2780
Mr Conway
Mr Laughren
Land registration	2782
Mr Arnott
Ms Churley
Education funding	2783
Mrs Cunningham
Mr Allen
NDP caucus office	2784
Mr Mahoney
Mrs Coppen
Automobile insurance	2785
Mr Tilson
Mr Charlton
Algoma Central Railway	2785
Mr Martin
Miss Martel
Small business	2786
Mr Offer
Mr Mackenzie
Assisted housing	2786
Mr Turnbull
Ms Gigantes

Assistance to farmers	2787
Mr Sutherland
Mr Buchanan
Drug offences	2787
Mr Ruprecht
Mr Pilkey
Farm payments	2788
Mr Villeneuve
Mr Buchanan
Notice of dissatisfaction	2788
The Speaker

Motions

Private members' public business	2788
The Speaker
Agreed to	2788

Petitions

Oath of allegiance	2788
Mrs Caplan
Mr J. Wilson
Nursing homes	2788
Mrs Sullivan
Tobacco taxes	2788
Mr Stockwell
Mr Runciman

Committee of the whole House

Employment Standards Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 70	2789
Mr Offer	2789
Mrs Witmer	2792
Ms S. Murdock	2793
Progress reported	2806

Adjournment debate

Sabrina Panetta	2806
Mr McClelland	2807
Ms Akande	2807

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities
Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le mardi 8 octobre 1991

Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur les normes d'emploi, (Programme de protection des salaires des employés), projet de loi 70	2789
Étude ajournée	2806

Listes des députés

Les députés et leurs responsabilités Comités de l'Assemblée législative
--

66 1991

66 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Wednesday 9 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le mercredi 9 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Wednesday 9 October 1991

The House met at 1330.
Prayers.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

TORONTO WATERFRONT

Mrs Caplan: On Friday, Toronto city council is expected to make an important decision regarding the future land use of the Maple Leaf Quay south of the SkyDome. The city is negotiating an agreement with the federal government and Harbourfront that will address a number of concerns.

Harbourfront currently uses the area as a nautical centre, with boat rentals and low-cost sailing lessons, as well as for many other recreational and educational programs. Harbourfront wants to have the right to offer to all its people people-oriented programs on the adjacent sites. The city is looking at the option of designating Maple Leaf Quay as a park. That would allow Harbourfront to continue its programs on a permanent basis to the people of the greater Toronto area and to the people of Ontario.

This is really about maintaining the recreational programming and the greening of Harbourfront. This is an initiative which the minister responsible for the greater Toronto area is on record as praising. Although she has no direct involvement in these negotiations, if the minister is so keen on green space and if she believes, as I do, that the waterfront belongs to the people of Ontario, she must lift the provincial zoning order on Maple Leaf Quay as soon as an agreement is reached. She must declare a provincial interest in all the waterfront properties.

We need to see decisive provincial action, and I expect to see that action next week.

NIAGARA ESCARPMENT

Mr B. Murdoch: As most members know, a five-year review of the Niagara Escarpment plan is presently being conducted by the Niagara Escarpment Commission. A report will be written and submitted to the Minister of the Environment along with a report from her hearing officers.

The minister must weigh both reports and make a final decision regarding the development policies in the area. In my view, this entire process is a farce, because the minister responsible for planning on the Niagara Escarpment is in direct conflict of interest. The minister owns property on the escarpment in Nottawasaga township.

How can the minister be impartial when her privacy and her property value could easily be affected by her decision? Although the minister has said she has no position on the review presently being conducted, I find it odd that she met with the NEC members at a critical point in the review process and congratulated them on their work. This certainly does not give the appearance of having no opinion. It seems quite clear that by having dinner with these people when she did, the minister was signalling to the NEC that she was in full agreement with its views.

This minister should not be in a position to pass judgement on this matter. She should either declare a conflict of interest and allow a truly unbiased person to review both reports or move the Niagara Escarpment back under the Planning Act, where I believe it belongs.

BALLS FALLS THANKSGIVING EVENTS

Mr Hansen: I rise today to inform the House of a four-day event in my riding that begins this Friday, October 11, and runs until Monday, October 14. The event is the annual Thanksgiving craft show and sale at Balls Falls Historical Park and Conservation Area in Jordan.

The event is hosted by the Niagara Peninsula Conservation Authority and will feature 115 talented exhibitors who will display and sell fine handcrafted items. Besides the exhibits, visitors can enjoy strolling through one of the most beautiful parks in the Niagara Peninsula and take in the autumn colours. At this time of year, Balls Falls is at its finest and attracts nature lovers from far and near.

This is the 16th year for the festival, which started as a two-day event and has grown into a four-day event because of its popularity. Some of the exhibits this year will include musical entertainment, heritage displays and demonstrations, natural resource management displays, children's craft tents, apple cider, Thanksgiving hymn-singing in a historical church and more. It is an event the whole family can enjoy.

This year the Ministry of Natural Resources is participating and will feature a display with the theme "Education in Resource Management," one of the main goals of the Niagara Peninsula Conservation Authority.

I am inviting all members of the House to join me this weekend at Balls Falls and to encourage their families, friends and constituents to come and enjoy this festival weekend of crafts, history and nature. There is plenty of parking, food and fun for all.

MINING INDUSTRY

Mr Miclash: I rise today to inform this House of recent budgetary changes to the Ministry of Mines. Two million dollars from the Ontario mineral incentive program will be sent back to Treasury this year for non-use. In addition, $1 million set aside for the refurbishment of abandoned mines, an announcement we all remember the former minister proudly made in this House, will also be sent back.

These changes are doubly offensive. First of all, the Minister of Mines neglected to inform this House of the changes, nor was a news release issued. This minister has violated the right of members to review government policy development and changes.

More important, though, is the slap in the face these changes deliver to the mining industry. Kathleen O'Hara, spokesperson for the ministry, said the money was not being used so they were asked to return it. Is this the best the minister can do? Does she not realize it is her responsibility to come up with ways to use the money? With a little foresight she could have redirected this money to ensure that it was used to help the beleaguered prospectors of this province in other ways. Instead she threw up her hands in defeat. "Use it or lose it." Is this as creative as she can be?

This is one of her first acts as Minister of Mines. She must be ashamed that she could do little more than watch as this money was reeled in from this program. She has violated the spirit of OMIP. It is an incentive program. The money is there to attract investors. If the money is not there, the incentive does not work.

1340

NEGOTIATIONS WITH ONTARIO PHARMACISTS' ASSOCIATION

Mr J. Wilson: My remarks are directed to a government that says one thing and does something totally opposite. Last week the Minister of Health wrote to the Ontario Pharmacists' Association to inform its members that the government was breaking off negotiations and imposing a retroactive freeze on professional fees paid to pharmacists. In doing so, this government has made a mockery of the negotiation process it so adamantly defended while in opposition and, more recently, in this Legislature. The OPA informed me it was willing to negotiate down from the mediated figure, but the government is more interested in dictatorship than dialogue and refused to bargain with the OPA.

The Premier stated in the Ontario Medical Review of September 1990:

"We also urged the government to create a system of fair and binding arbitration that was acceptable to doctors and other health professionals. There is no fairness in a system that allows the government to dictate unilaterally your level of pay."

I also have a quote from last week from the Chairman of Management Board, who said in this Legislature:

"I think that concomitant with that goes our commitment to the collective bargaining process. We are not going to shut down the collective bargaining process because we are in tough economic times."

With the Minister of Health's decision to impose a settlement on pharmacists, this government has shown that its notion of collective bargaining is a lot like its election promises: empty, expedient and catering only to big unions at the expense of other Ontarians.

GREATER NIAGARA GENERAL HOSPITAL

Ms Harrington: I wish to tell members what is happening in Niagara Falls. This past Saturday, Niagara Falls Taxi Co offered free cab rides from 10 am to 3 pm. There was a free car wash all day, and even I got to scrub bumpers. The local merchants donated hot dogs and hamburgers for a free barbecue. In return, all donations were accepted for a computerized axial tomography scanner.

Before approval has even been given by the ministry, before any fund-raising campaign has even begun, over $100,000 has been raised. A consultant's study has just been released: "The issue of a CAT scan is priority and the community demand is absolute."

Our community hospital has a very sound reputation for innovation, careful planning and execution. It leads all comparable Ontario hospitals with the most emergency outpatient visits, more than 70,000 this year. It has developed and marketed a Workers' Compensation Board software program with sales commitments of over $100,000 yearly. The quick response team, a provincial pilot project, has been a success, saving many patient admissions and bed days, the only program of its kind in Ontario.

Our hospital has one of the highest day surgery rates in all Ontario. It has been among the first to implement the Roy nursing model of patient needs assessment and has been asked to participate in filming a US health series about nursing excellence. I salute Greater Niagara General Hospital staff and the people of Niagara Falls who have raised funds.

ACQUIRED IMMUNE DEFICIENCY SYNDROME

Mr Curling: Last April the government released a statement of principles on HIV infection and AIDS in the workplace. In the spirit of the guidelines announced by the Minister of Health, I am asking the Solicitor General today to commit to an immediate review of the HIV policy which has been adopted by his ministry's Centre for Forensic Sciences.

Under this policy, where it is suspected that an individual may belong to a high-risk category for HIV infection, the centre will place evidence in quarantine for 30 days before it is examined. In at least one highly publicized case, police officials were quoted as expressing concerns that their investigation into a murder case, where one of the victims was suspected of being a homosexual, might have been slowed down because of this policy.

Obviously the health of workers at the centre cannot be taken lightly. It is important that employees be provided with appropriate protection from infection. But given that officials at the agency have acknowledged that the 30-day guideline is an arbitrary one and not based on any specific research or assessment of risk, certainly an examination of the current policy would seem to be in order.

GRAND VALLEY LIONS CLUB

Mr Tilson: Today I take great pleasure in offering congratulations to the Grand Valley Lions Club on its 40th anniversary, which it will be celebrating on October 19.

The Lions Club of Grand Valley has played and continues to play a very important role inside and outside of the Grand Valley community. The current 35 members of this group work very hard in support of local and regional charitable organizations. In Grand Valley alone, the Lions Club contributed to the construction of the new arena. They maintain and care for the local ballpark and tennis courts. They support the local minor hockey, baseball and soccer leagues and they also support an annual youth exchange program. Many Grand Valley residents have benefited from Grand Valley Lions Club fund-raising activities. Wheelchairs have been donated to those within the community who have not been able to afford the expense.

The Grand Valley Lions Club is also very active outside of the Grand Valley community. They fund-raise regularly for groups such as Canine Vision, a program established to train seeing-eye dogs; Concern, an emergency relief organization; Lake Joseph, a support camp for kidney dialysis patients, and Participation Lodge, a retreat for those with special needs.

I applaud the efforts of the members of the Grand Valley Lions Club and their families on this 40th anniversary. Their hard work and generosity have added to the quality of life in their own community and other communities throughout Ontario. I extend best wishes for their celebration on October 19 and look forward to 40 more years of commendable service in Grand Valley.

MEMBER'S COMMENTS

Mr Fletcher: I believe the women of Ontario should receive an apology for the remarks made by a member of this Legislature yesterday. I am referring to the remarks made by the Conservative member for Wellington. The member's feeble attempt to criticize the government by comparing it to the virtue of Elizabeth Taylor is an embarrassment and an insult to women.

The member's comment followed an exchange between the opposition member for Renfrew North and the Treasurer, during which the member for Renfrew North used the phrase "Liz Taylor romance" when describing the Premier's relationship to small business. The Conservative member for Wellington then commented, "I would compare this government's virtue to that of Elizabeth Taylor any time."

Relating a woman's virtue to her choice in relationships is a dangerous misconception which only perpetuates prejudice, injustice and even violence towards women. The member for Wellington's poorly chosen analogy, aimed at the provincial government, has succeeded only in denigrating the women of this province, including those who are members of this Legislature. The disrespectful attitude unwittingly displayed by the member perhaps comes as little surprise, considering the failure of his federal colleagues to protect women by quickly reinstating a rape law for women.

Mr Arnott: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: The member for Guelph knows full well that I meant no offence to anyone with that statement. In fact, the member for Renfrew North raised the concept, the Treasurer continued the analogy and I simply continued the analogy. I meant no offence to anyone. Second, I would respond to the member for Guelph by making the suggestion that he is simply trying to divert attention away from the fact that he is the parliamentary assistant to the minister who is closing the registry offices, and that, simply, is the reason he wants to do this: to divert attention away from the real issue of my questions yesterday.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. We are certainly all awake.

1350

SABRINA PANETTA

The Speaker: Before continuing with routine proceedings, on Monday last the honourable member for Brampton North, Mr McClelland, and the honourable member for Mississauga West, Mr Mahoney, raised points of order arising out of question period. I undertook at the time to review Hansard and report back to the House.

In regard to the point raised by the honourable member for Brampton North, I have examined Hansard and I must find that what took place on Monday was an expression of a difference of opinion between the honourable member and the honourable Minister of Community and Social Services. As to the use of the word "misrepresents," which was complained about by the honourable member, I did not hear it during the exchange and Hansard reports it in a most indefinite way. Therefore, as has been ruled many times before in this chamber, while there was obviously disagreement as to the facts involved, unparliamentary language was not used.

USE OF QUESTION PERIOD

The Speaker: As for the point raised by the honourable member for Mississauga West that the question period is not one that should be used by members in order to make statements in the House, I am in full agreement. Statements by ministers should be made to the House in that period of our routine proceedings that is dedicated for that activity.

However, that is not to say that the Speaker is in a position to make judgements on the contents of answers in order to determine whether or not they constitute announcements of public policy. Therefore, I will repeat that as much as possible, ministers should refrain from using question period to make statements that should be made during the procedure called "statements by the ministry," especially in response to questions asked by members sitting on the government benches.

In closing, I would like to thank both honourable members for having raised this and express the wish that members will continue to use question period for what it was meant for—that is, to elicit information—and that the ministers in response will, as briefly as possible, come forward with the requested information.

CORRECTION

Mr Mahoney: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: I would like to ask for a correction of the record in a question I asked yesterday to the minister responsible for the caucus services for the New Democratic Party with regard to the frivolous waste of taxpayers' money in the decorating of their caucus room. The response from the minister in Hansard said that this issue went before the Board of Internal Economy, and she also suggested that I was a member of the Board of Internal Economy.

For the record, I would like to say that I never have been a member of that board and I am not a member of that board and I did not deal with that particular issue. I further understand that the specific issue to which I referred, which was the waste of the taxpayers' dollars in decorating that room, was not specifically put before the board. The caucus budget was before the board, but I want it clear on the record that I am not a member of that Board of Internal Economy and did not deal with this. I would appreciate it if the minister would correct her statement.

The Speaker: The member for Mississauga West will know that members rise to correct their record, not someone else's.

It is time for statements by ministers.

Mrs Caplan: Again no statements.

Interjections.

Mr Mahoney: It is not a correct statement. Would she correct the record?

Interjections.

The Speaker: When the members have come to order, we can continue with our routine proceedings.

Mr Mahoney: I was not a member of the board. Correct it.

Hon Ms Martel: They didn't spend $100,000. Correct it.

The Speaker: The chief government whip.

Hon Mrs Copen: I have only been at Queen's Park for one year and I have always been so thrilled about being in a committee room with the member for Mississauga West. It was my mistake. I was always so impressed—we sat together in House leaders' meetings—that I forgot. It was the same room. I stand corrected, I say to the member for Mississauga West, but I still enjoyed his company at every meeting we were at.

The Speaker: Terrific. Now that we are happy with being in the room with each other, perhaps we can have question period.

Mrs Caplan: Aren't we going to have ministers' statements today?

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I will wait until we have resumed a bit of calm and then we can begin question period.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENTS

Mr Elston: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: We have been dealing in this House for the last two weeks with an issue that all of us know has been very important, about how this government handles difficult issues, and this has been a difficult issue. We know the Minister of Community and Social Services has made a decision with respect to the family in Brampton. She has communicated that. She has made a statement to those people and she refuses to tell us here in this House after we have talked about this as an issue for several days.

Hon Mr Rae: Ask a question.

Mr Elston: They say, "Ask a question." I will tell you, Mr Speaker, the minister has to have the courage to come in here and tell us what they are doing. They cannot always be asking us to ask questions. We are asking for a little bit of assistance with doing the public business. We are not here to be beggars, to ask for bits and shreds of information that they allow themselves to drop during questions. They must come clean with this House. They must come clean with all the opposition members if they want our co-operation in doing the public business. When are they going to do the right thing and become public administrators instead of public menaces?

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Elston: Mr Speaker, I refuse to be played with in the way these people are playing with the democratic process. "Ask us a question," indeed. Where do you have the nerve to demand everybody to beg information from you?

Interjections.

Mr Elston: Every day this week there have been releases, and every day this week they have not been—

The Speaker: Would the honourable Leader of the Opposition come to order, please. Before we continue, the member will—

Mr Elston: If this is the way we do public business, then it is not business done at all.

Interjections.

The Speaker: I would appreciate the members' attention. Order. I ask the members to come to order.

Interjections.

The Speaker: If members will not come to order, we cannot conduct business. I am asking the members to come to order.

Mr Sorbara: They have changed the standing orders.

The Speaker: I am asking the member for York Centre to come to order.

Mr Elston: We have a right to know and we don't pretend to be beggars.

The Speaker: I am asking the Leader of the Opposition to come to order.

Mr Elston: Mr Speaker, I really do wish to apologize for my behaviour, but every day this week there has been an announcement outside this House that could have been done here in the House so that we could reply to it. We have been told by the Premier of the province, when I raised this issue, that I should ask a question, "Please, sir, more information." That is not what opposition is about. We have to be informed and we can reasonably be expected to address problems in a better way if we are informed, but we refuse to be begging here for little shreds and pieces of information that are necessary for us to carry on our business.

The Minister of Community and Social Services has made a decision on the Panetta case. All we are asking is that she have the courage and the generosity of spirit to come here and tell us. What they want us to do is use up one of our leader's questions when the decision has already been made. It is the worst type of manipulation.

Mr Speaker, I apologize to you for my behaviour, but you must ask those people to start doing business in the public spirit.

Interjections.

The Speaker: I will address this matter when I have order in the House. The member will know that the standing orders prescribe a period of time for the government ministers to make statements on public policy. There is nothing in the standing orders which allows me, as your Speaker, to compel ministers to make statements. I certainly appreciate the parliamentary practice that statements of public business should rightfully and properly be made in the House. There is nothing I can do to compel that to happen.

1400

Mr Elston: I will not beg for democracy. I will fight for it. I will not beg you guys for democracy. We have a right to it.

The Speaker: Before continuing on this, the government House leader indicated he wished to address this point of order raised by the honourable Leader of the Opposition.

Hon Mr Cooke: Very briefly, I think that it is an appropriate process—

Mr Scott: It is not a point of order and I wonder if he would mind using the time to—

Hon Mr Cooke: Can I respond? I think the point that has been raised by the Leader of the Opposition is unfair in that the question—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Cooke: A couple of minutes ago the members opposite were fighting for democracy. Now they will not even let us talk.

The matter that was raised by the leader of the official opposition—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Would the government House leader take his seat for a moment. This is a very serious matter, and I believe that it will best be dealt with in a serious way, which means that I need to hear what is said, and I would ask the members' co-operation in listening as well.

Hon Mr Cooke: On the matter that was originally raised by a member in question period there has been, to my knowledge, no public statement made. If the member wants to raise the matter again in question period, I would see it as the most appropriate way to handle the issue.

I find it very curious that today, nearly at the end of the third week the Legislature has been in session, the Leader of the Opposition wants to talk about this place working and democracy when the opposition members have not let us pass one piece of legislation and we have been back here for three weeks.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I will entertain a comment from the member for St George-St David and then the member for Parry Sound.

Mr Scott: Mr Speaker, I have another point of order and I would like to deal with it quickly and as coolly and dispassionately as I can, because I think there is an important issue inherent here.

In the last couple of days the minister responsible for native affairs and Minister of Natural Resources has issued to parties and participants across the province an interim agreement between the government and the Algonquins of Golden Lake which calls for significant changes in the rights of native people—many of which are highly desirable—as of October 15, which I think is less than a week away.

This is an extremely important matter. I have had the portfolio the honourable minister has and I respect the importance of this issue. But no statement about this was made to the House, notwithstanding that a policy, many components of which I heartily applaud, was not announced in the House, so that no member could make any comment about it.

The problem with that is not simply that we are deprived of our voice to deal with these matters of important public policy; the problem with it is that opposition members are placed in an invidious position that my friends the new ministers simply would not have permitted a year and a half ago, namely, that we hear about a major initiative in native affairs because representatives of the aboriginal community phone us and say, "What do you think of it?" Hunters and fishermen phone us and say, "What do you think of it?" and we say, "Well, it hasn't been announced yet." They say, "Oh well, the minister has told us."

Surely that illustrates the importance of this point. I do not say that everything has to be announced in the House. There is not time. But certainly important questions of public policy that have been debated here or important questions in which new directions are taken by the government of the province should be announced, not simply so that there will be the advantage of an announcement, but so that the public may hear about them over television—that was one of the points of televising these processes—and so that the other parties can either applaud them, as I have done from time to time, or criticize them, as I am entitled to do on the part of my constituents.

I do not think it is simply a trivial matter. I agree with statements that were made regularly over the last five years in the House, on occasions when this occurred, by the present Premier, by the present Treasurer, by the Minister of Natural Resources, by the House leader, all of whom made the point I am emphasizing. It apparently has now escaped their minds, and I ask if we cannot have a return to that practice.

I have a similar point to make about the Attorney General, but as he is absent I will defer it.

The Speaker: To the member for St George-St David, my comments made earlier to the leader of the official opposition are in the same category of response to your point of order.

Hon Mr Wildman: I understand the sincerity and concern of the member in his comments in his point of order, but I should clarify one thing in response. What was issued yesterday was a draft for discussion and study and consultation. It was not a final document. The fact is, as the member knows, members of the Legislature were briefed on this yesterday afternoon, including the member himself. He did not—

Mr Sorbara: What about us?

Hon Mr Wildman: All members are welcome to be briefed, and the fact—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Wildman: The member for Simcoe East and the member who just spoke were both briefed yesterday, as were other members. They did not hear about this from someone outside. They heard it from the Ministry of Natural Resources staff. The fact is, provincial organizations were briefed yesterday afternoon and the members of the ad hoc committee in the Huntsville area were briefed last night. The groups east of Algonquin Park will be briefed tonight.

When we have finalized the document after the consultation, then we intend to make a statement in the House. I am happy to answer any questions that might be raised today about this process.

Mr Eves: On the same point of order, Mr Speaker, I think the government should really take stock of its practice over the last few weeks and months. In this House just recently—or not in this House just recently is a better way of putting it—there have been statements made by the Minister of the Environment this morning, by the Attorney General about courthouses, by the Minister of Community and Social Services about the welfare of a young girl, by the Minister of Natural Resources about Algonquin Park and the arrangement with the natives and their rights, by the Minister of Health about AIDS and by the Minister of Health about nursing homes, to name a few within the last few days.

There is a long-established democratic practice in this province whose roots go back long before the NDP in this province. It is called democracy and they are not practising it.

The Speaker: Just a minute. Will members take their seats, please.

Mrs Caplan: On a point of order, Mr Speaker—

The Speaker: In a moment, if it is something new. What we are slipping into here is a debate rather than raising a specific point of order. I would prefer that we get on with the business.

The Speaker, who also has homework to do, checked indeed that this very matter that you raise today was one that was raised last spring in Westminster, to which the Speaker there, Speaker Wetherill, gave much the same response as I have given today. There is nothing in the standing orders which compels ministers to make statements, nor is there anything in the standing orders which directs the Speaker to compel ministers to make statements. If members wish to change the standing orders, of course, there is a procedure for doing that.

If there is a different point of order to be raised by the honourable members from Parkdale, Oriole and York Centre, I will recognize them, and first is the member for Parkdale.

1410

Mr Ruprecht: Mr Speaker, I really appreciate your remarks and I think most of us would realize that you are almost powerless to do something about this issue. But I remind you that in the last three weeks I stood in this House asking you a similar point of order, and finally we had no one to ask but the government whip about what happened to the moneys that were allocated to Expo 98, simply because the minister would not make a statement in the House but chose instead to make a statement to the press. Consequently, that obviously is not in the tradition of this House, and we really adamantly object to this kind of behaviour.

Mrs Caplan: I rise on a point of order, Mr Speaker: Over the course of the last few weeks you have had the opportunity to see at first hand some of the frustrations that members of the official opposition and members of the opposition party have had during question period and during debate, and you have commented on that. As one whom you have named on occasion, I thought this is the opportunity I would like on this point of order to explain to you the frustration we feel when democracy is not being well served.

Having experienced from this very government being shut out of a public meeting and told I could not attend a public meeting in my own riding, having had that experience, I am very frustrated when I find ministers like the Minister of the Environment this very morning make a statement outside of this House on waste reduction issues. She released draft regulations. We have yet to hear a statement in this House. We have had nothing from her today on the area of the issues of the waterfront, which is of real importance to the people in my riding of Oriole.

I feel, as a member, that my privileges to represent my constituents are being abrogated and that I am not able to fully represent them in this House because these ministers and this government shut us out of meetings, they do not give us the information we need and they will not even make their statements in the House.

Mr Sorbara: On a different but related point of order, Mr Speaker: It arises from the matter I directed to your attention yesterday. I just want to make the point in a slightly different context and ask you, rather than simply rule on it today, to take the matter under advisement and reflect on it and not just refer to the precedents in Westminster, but indeed be able to find perhaps a source within our own standing orders that might offer you direction.

I just want to point out that standing order 1(b) reads as follows:

"In all contingencies not provided for in the standing orders the question shall be decided by the Speaker or Chair, and in making the ruling the Speaker or Chair shall base the decision on the usages and precedents of the Legislature and parliamentary tradition."

I want to point out to you, sir, that there is nothing in the standing orders that requires ministers to attend during question period and answer questions, but I am sure that if repeatedly, as a course of conduct day after day, ministers all just remained absent from the Legislature, were not here to answer questions, some question would arise as to whether the ministers by their conduct were not amending the standing orders.

I want to suggest that a course of conduct has now developed. Day after day, important government announcements have been made on courthouses, on assistance for AIDS, on a new draft treaty with aboriginal people, and there have been a number of others. The course of conduct the government has exhibited is to make those announcements outside of the House.

I concede to you that the standing orders say that ministers "may" make statements in the House, but I refer you to the traditions that have been established not in Westminster but in this very Parliament. In fact, that tradition was reconfirmed when a few years ago we changed the standing orders to give opposition members—and we as government members supported those changes—the opportunity, right here in our Parliament, to comment on the announcements the government was making. We have done that and we have organized our staff and our caucus and the way in which we approach public policy to be prepared to respond in this House.

The course of conduct has now suggested to me and others that the government by its conduct is amending the standing orders. You will know, Mr Speaker, that we have a mechanism for amending the standing orders. We have an opportunity to debate changes in the standing orders of this significance in the Legislature, and those debates are not easy.

I ask you once again, Mr Speaker, rather than just ruling, to examine clearly whether the traditions of this place are now violated to the extent—

The Speaker: Would the member take his seat. As always, as your Speaker, I am more than pleased to review matters that are brought before me. Indeed, I will do some homework. If there are any members of the assembly who wish to provide written advice to my office, I would be most pleased to receive any written advice on this matter. I am a little reluctant to recognize more members. We should be getting on with question period. If it new information or a new point of order, fine.

Hon Mr Cooke: In addition to any work you might be doing, Mr Speaker, might I also suggest that an approach we might take is that tomorrow, when we have the House leaders' meeting, the three of us should talk about this. Obviously the opposition parties are not happy with the process.

Mrs Caplan: You know better than this, Cooke. You would never have put up with this kind of crap. Don't give us that garbage.

The Speaker: The member for Oriole, come to order.

Hon Mr Cooke: I would be more than willing to try to work this matter out with the opposition House leaders so that we can all be happy.

Mr Scott: I have a new point, but it is a similar point, Mr Speaker. I will state it very briefly. I am trying to do this dispassionately so that the backbenchers opposite who want to shout us down will understand where we are.

The other day the Minister of Health made a very important announcement about financial support for people who are sick with AIDS or who are HIV-positive. I represent the constituency in Canada that has probably the largest population of people suffering from AIDS or who have HIV-positive diagnoses. I was and am prepared to applaud the announcement the minister has made. I have dealt with the minister on the subject and with her predecessor and the Attorney General on AIDS-related issues. If this announcement had been made in the House, I think I would have said it was a good announcement. Opposition members often say it does not go far enough, but I would have said it was a great start.

The problem here is that the only way I heard about this—there was no briefing, nothing—was because my constituents came to me and told me what the minister had said she was going to do. She had not said it publicly. The message in this is that the member for St George-St David does not count. Members opposite may think this does not matter, but the corollary message is, "If you want to have input into government decision-making, if you want to really know what is going on, opposition constituencies, you had better elect NDP members." This, in my respectful submission—

The Speaker: Would the member take his seat, please. I have taken this matter under advisement.

Mr Harnick: Point of order.

The Speaker: Is this a new point of order, the member for Willowdale?

Mr Harnick: Yes, Mr Speaker. Perhaps we could get out of this conundrum if we asked the Premier to tell his ministers to start making these statements in the Legislature. Maybe he will listen to us. Why do we not just ask? Rather than take it under advisement, why do you not just ask the Premier if he is going to continue with this policy, Mr Speaker? If he is, we can continue to argue. Maybe he will avoid the dilemma and say he will instruct his ministers to start dealing with us in the Legislature as they should be.

The Speaker: I ask the House to come to order. We have spent a considerable amount of time on this important matter. I have listened carefully to each and every presentation. I have made an undertaking to review the matter and indeed have invited members to make any contributions.

Mr Stockwell: Point of order.

The Speaker: Do you have a new point of order?

Mr Stockwell: Yes, it is new, Mr Speaker. Maybe this is time-consuming and frustrating, but it is that way because we have been put in this position and it is very important that we bring forward our concerns.

Let alone the announcement this morning on waste separation, last night in my city, Etobicoke, there was apparently a development deal cut by this government on the motel strip, the waterfront. The last group I would have expected to see a development deal cut by is this government. They have in fact cut a development deal on the motel strip and done two very important things. First, they have agreed to densities and approvals that have not been, in my opinion, properly canvassed before this House. Second, they have withdrawn any need for any environmental assessment hearings on these properties. It seems to me that an announcement is properly due before this House by the minister who is effecting these changes, so that the people in my city have an opportunity of hearing exactly what the deal is from the minister in this House, not just from the Toronto Star.

Mr Sorbara: Can we just have a straw vote to see how many people think the government should make announcements in the House? Come on.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Should I conduct a vote on how many people would like to have question period? Would members like to have question period?

Interjections.

The Speaker: If members are not prepared to come to order for question period, then we will have to take a recess. Are members prepared to come to order?

Interjections.

The Speaker: This House stands recessed for 10 minutes.

The House recessed at 1422.

1432

The Speaker: It is time for oral questions.

Mr Elston: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: The Premier has been here. He has heard this. He should make a statement that they are not trying to manipulate us out of our rights as members.

The Speaker: Would the member take his seat. There is no point of order.

Mr Elston: He has heard us.

The Speaker: It is time for oral questions. The Leader of the Opposition.

Interjections.

The Speaker: I ask the House to come to order. It is time for oral questions. The member for Brampton North.

Mr Scott: We want to hear from the Premier.

The Speaker: Will the member for St George-St David come to order so that his colleague the member for Brampton North may ask his question.

ORAL QUESTIONS

SABRINA PANETTA

Mr McClelland: I find it interesting in light of the comments of my leader earlier that in fact it seems this is a government from which we have to beg for information. I make no apology for begging on behalf of a child. I do not apologize for that, and I guess that is what it took. I have heard recently, and I hope the minister will confirm this, that after some time on the phone with the mother of the child, the mother finally had to ask, "Well, tell me, minister, is it a yes or a no?" I do not know whether it is the minister's arrogance or lack of compassion, or what it is, that forces people to crawl and beg. In this case, I do not mind doing that.

I was very interested to read in this morning's press comments attributed to the Premier regarding his proposed social charter. Yesterday, in what was described as an impassioned speech, the Premier said that without his social charter, "We will become a meaner and less civilized country and the signs of that are all around us."

I want the minister to explain to me—to the people of this province primarily—the apparent contradiction in terms of the Premier's statement about his social charter and how she has played games and bargained with a child's life. Would the minister please explain that contradiction to me now?

Mr Scott: Why don't you make fun of it first?

The Speaker: Will the member for St George-St David come to order, please.

Hon Ms Akande: This is a child we are talking about, a dying child, and this is the family of a child we are talking about. I spoke to that family today at about 1:30 and I said to them, "You know, I don't want to and I don't feel comfortable bringing this child and your name again and again into the House and having to respond to this," because I am determined not to use a child and a family's suffering for some political advantage.

Mr Scott: Let the child go home.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Elston: We were told to ask the question. We asked the question. Why don't you answer it?

The Speaker: Order. I ask all the members to come to order. This is a very sensitive and delicate issue.

Mr Elston: Why doesn't she answer the question? Don't try to bail her out.

The Speaker: I am asking members to come to order.

Mr Elston: The question was asked. Answer it.

Mr Drainville: How could she?

The Speaker: I remind members that the Speaker has a responsibility to be able to hear both the question and the response. I cannot do so when there is a lot of noise. If members will come to order, the minister could try to conclude her remarks for us.

Hon Ms Akande: The opposition says that the information should come to this House first because that is democracy. I chose first to speak to the mother of the child because that is courtesy.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Members, come to order, please. Would the minister conclude her remarks.

Hon Ms Akande: We had a very meaningful and good meeting with the doctor, the parents and those concerned and involved around being secure that we could send the child home without putting her at greater risk. I informed the mother after 1:30—

Mr Elston: Why didn't you have the courage to tell the people about it?

The Speaker: Order. Could the minister conclude her remarks, please.

Hon Ms Akande: I informed the mother at 1:30 that we would continue to work—

Mrs Caplan: What qualifications do you have to make a medical decision?

The Speaker: The member for Oriole, come to order.

Hon Ms Akande: —to put the supports in place very quickly to bring the child to their home.

Mr McClelland: I say simply that it is beyond anything I have ever had in my four short years of experience here for a minister to stand and say she did not want to make it political, when after trying every avenue possible, the parents, who are absolutely frustrated with her refusal to talk to the physician, to deal directly with it, with heart-break had to go public and ask me to do that. The minister should not for one minute stand in her place and say we made it political or the family did. She forced this to become a political issue. It should never, ever have been here.

1440

The Speaker: Does the member have a supplementary?

Mr McClelland: The minister said at one time it was not a matter of risk and all the while she knew that. She said it was not a matter of cost and all the while she was talking about cost. What I want to know is, will she try to explain to the family why it is that we had to go through all this to get to a point to get the child home? Why did she put them in a position where it required the political will of many people across this province who phoned and put her feet to the fire? That is what made it happen. I want to know what her government is going to do in terms of setting up some policy or protocol so that she can deal with circumstances and not force this to happen again.

Hon Ms Akande: It is a matter of great concern that it has taken us months to work with this family. We have and are currently providing supports to this family out of our concern for them.

When the member raised the question a few days ago, I brought him to a meeting and shared with him our concerns and he said to us, "Well, you know, that's politics." Another member was there and my staff was there, "That's politics." No. I have a responsibility to address the needs of children and families in this province. That is not politics, that is concern. What took so long? We have the order-in-council policy. The order in council allows us, after looking at every avenue, to make very difficult decisions about providing exceptional supports for children. We have no program, in either the Ministry of Health or the Ministry of Community and Social Services, to provide health services that parallel health facilities.

Mr McClelland: The minister can look over here to me with all the disdain she can muster, and she is doing that very well, but what I said very clearly was that it was a political issue inasmuch as it was my job to advocate and her job to make the decision. That is the responsibility she is charged with. That is her responsibility politically, sitting in the minister's chair, to make decisions to help people. The fact of the matter is that despite all her rhetoric and all her grandstanding, and that of her Premier, her government is putting precedent ahead of people, and that is her concern. She has no policy to deal with people in need in similar circumstances, and this case is only one piece of evidence in terms of her lack of compassion and concern.

The Speaker: Your supplementary?

Mr McClelland: All the rhetoric and sending one of her colleague's daughters to the meeting to tell them what a fine person she was is all well and good. The reality is that she has the power and the authority to deal with this sort of circumstance in the future.

The Speaker: Would the member place his supplementary?

Mr McClelland: I want to know how she is going to square it with the Premier's rhetoric and her rhetoric and do the right thing. I thank her and I thank most of all the people of Ontario who have helped in this case, that finally, after all this time, not just in the last few days but after beginning to work on this matter for months, she has come to the right decision.

Hon Ms Akande: It is interesting to me and it is a fact that when we arrived at that position there was no policy. Children have not "begun" to die. Families have not "begun" to feel this pain. This is an old problem. As I look in the records, I see it. We are beginning to recognize that there must be something that we put in place to deal with this more quickly.

The other thing I want to mention is that the member raises the fact that he brought it to this House only to bring us to a decision. The decision is made. Let's give the family some privacy. Let them have the solace of their privacy.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. The member for Halton Centre. Would the member for Brampton North take his seat.

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

Mr Elston: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: During the question that was being asked by my colleague, this first question, the adviser to the Premier, Chuck Rachlis, was heckling from under your area back there telling the member to get back to the sewer. It was clearly heard. I demand that the Premier request that the fellow leave the room and stop heckling and withdraw himself from intervening and trying to enforce his will on our members. We will not stand for those types of shenanigans.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Would members come to order, please. If the Leader of the Opposition will come to order, I will respond to his point of privilege.

I did not hear the remark to which he refers.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Would the members come to order. The member for Oriole.

Interjections.

The Speaker: I ask members to come to order. The standing orders are quite clear that there are not supposed to be interventions, but when interventions are made, they are by members of the House. They are not by any strangers. If indeed there are strangers on the floor of the House who have made comments, they should not do so. If comments are made, then those individuals are asked to leave.

Mr McClelland: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: Indeed those comments were not heard by yourself, and they were said. May I simply say, even if you cannot confirm whether they were stated or not, I do not take particular exception to the fact that they were stated to me if that is what it takes to get something done here. I might add that I would prefer that the minister save her impassioned speeches for the cabinet table, where she ought to be doing her job and not forcing this kind of thing to happen.

ROYAL VISIT

Mr H. O'Neil: Can the Premier, who is also the Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs, tell the members of the Legislature why his government has rejected historical protocol and refuses to officially welcome the Prince and Princess of Wales at Queen's Park, Ontario's seat of government? Can the Premier tell us his reasons for changing the tradition in this province?

Hon Mr Rae: I am glad the member has asked the question because it gives me an opportunity to say some things to the House with respect to a newspaper report this morning. There were things contained in that article that are completely false and complete fabrication.

The article states in its headline, for example, that there will be no official welcome for Charles. That is totally and completely false.

Mr Scott: Prince Charles to you.

1450

Hon Mr Rae: For Prince Charles. I am quoting from the headline. I recognize that there are some days I cannot win. I say to the former Attorney General, who should know, that I try to choose my words carefully. I was quoting from the headline.

I say to the honourable member, whose concerns in this regard I thoroughly respect, that not only will there be an official welcome by me as well as by the Lieutenant Governor when the royal couple arrive, there will also be a Lieutenant Governor's reception here at Queen's Park the evening they arrive. There will also be the next day, which I think is an important expression and one that was desired by the royal couple as much as by anyone else, the opportunity to allow them to see other parts of the province where they will be welcomed as well.

The royal couple are paying an outstanding tribute to the people of Canada and the people of this province by spending as much time here as they are. The visit is one in which they will be meeting with people from all walks of life, they will be meeting with people from all parts of the province, and it is truly going to be a marvellous occasion for everyone.

The Speaker: Would the Premier conclude his remarks.

Hon Mr Rae: It is a visit of which all Ontarians can be proud and I can assure the member that we are pulling out all the stops in terms of hospitality in welcoming Prince Charles and Princess Diana to our province.

Mr H. O'Neil: I guess I would have to ask, how do we get to the state that we have this feeling within this province, that we have headlines such as those that appeared in today's papers and such stories on the TV?

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order, order.

Interjections.

Mr Scott: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I just have a suggestion. If they make a lot of noise, why do you not call order, say "the member for St George-St David," and then they will shut up.

The Speaker: I appreciate your help. Now if the member for Quinte could continue with his supplementary.

Mr H. O'Neil: I have two supplementary questions. I guess we would not have these stories appearing in the newspaper and on TV if it had not been for the previous attitude of the Premier and some of this cabinet. I might also say to the Premier that we have made several calls to the ministry office and to protocol: again, secrecy. I had to call the Tories in Ottawa to get the schedule today. That is where I got it.

The Speaker: Is there a question?

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Is there a question?

Mr H. O'Neil: I thank the Tories for that information.

I say to the Premier that as far as I understand, it has always been proper protocol to invite royalty to come into this chamber and receive the official welcome here. I would have thought the Premier, given his government's experience over the banning of the oath to the Queen and his failure to attend Victoria Day celebrations, would have realized that a significant number of Ontarians will be concerned over his government's further snub by not inviting the royal couple into this chamber.

Given the fact that his government is seen by many Ontarians as anti-monarchist, will the Premier, as Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs, intervene to ensure that the historic protocol is revived and that the Prince and Princess of Wales receive their official welcome here at Queen's Park in this chamber?

Hon Mr Rae: With respect to the itinerary, this has been a matter—talk about protocol—about which we are not allowed to say anything. I have not been allowed to say anything to anybody until it has been released by Buckingham Palace and until it has been released in Ottawa. If the member wants to talk about protocol, the protocol is that we are not allowed to say anything. If the member for Quinte is expressing concern about the secrecy, I can only tell him our hands have been tied with respect to releasing the details of the itinerary until such time as it was released by Buckingham Palace and until such time as it has been released by the government of Canada, which is also obviously very intimately involved in the visit.

The itinerary that has been developed is one that has been developed not only in consultation with the royal couple but at their request. It was their desire. For example, Her Royal Highness is going to be visiting Casey House at her request. Her Royal Highness is going to be visiting with members of the Ontario Coalition of Visible Minority Women at her request. Her Royal Highness is going to be visiting the youth clinic of the Addiction Research Foundation at her request.

His Royal Highness is going to be visiting with a number of groups. He is going to be inaugurating the pollution abatement program at Inco at his request. They are going to be visiting Cambrian College at his request.

This is a visit which allows the royal couple of see Canada and to see Ontario as it really is, in all its diversity, in all its majesty, and to meet the people. That has been done at their request. It is going to be a terrific royal visit, and I know the honourable member will feel the same way as he gets the chance to participate in it, as thousands of Ontarians are going to be allowed to do. We think it is a great idea.

Mr H. O'Neil: After I have had a chance to look at the agenda that their royal highnesses will have, I am very pleased also, but I guess I worry about the Premier's attitude and that of some of his ministers—not all of his members.

I wonder how many requests the Premier put in. Did he ask the protocol people not to break royal tradition, that they be invited in here? We will also go as far as to say we will help to untie the Premier's hands on this thing. Why does the Premier not invite them here, into the chamber, and why does he not reinstate the oath?

Hon Mr Rae: I must confess that in my more reflective moments I thought, the way it was evolving—again, in terms of the requests that were being expressed coming out of the palace—that this would be a visit that all members of the House could see as an opportunity for them to visit with people who ordinarily would never get a chance to see the royal couple.

Protocol runs these visits, so the honourable member should not suggest for a moment that anything would be done outside protocol. Everything that is done is done with respect to protocol and tradition. But I want to say to the honourable member that I am very proud we are having a welcome of an official kind for the royal couple in the good city of Sudbury. I am very proud of that as Premier. I think we should all be proud of that, because I think Sudbury deserves to welcome the royal couple as much as Toronto does and as much as any other part of Ontario does. I think that is something they feel very strongly about as well.

I am very proud of the itinerary the royal couple have asked for and participated in. I think it is going to be a tremendous success, and I know the honourable member will agree with me when he sees how it is all going to unfold.

The Speaker: New question, the leader of the third party.

Mr Harris: I appreciate the welcome back. Mr Romanow says hello. He says, "Please stay home."

I also come back with some advice for the Premier. A simple statement today during ministers' statements could have cleared up everything with the royal visit, but the Premier does not want to announce things to us in the House.

1500

GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Mr Harris: My question is to the Treasurer. Last week when he announced a 5% trim of ministry operating budgets, the Treasurer failed to provide any sort of guidelines, except to say it would not come from the paycheques of the civil servants. Those costs went up 15% last year, but the Treasurer set out that guideline.

The next day, staff of the Ministry of Government Services real estate branch walked down the street from their Bay Street offices, bypassing all the meeting rooms in the Macdonald Block and the hundreds of others that one would think the Ministry of Government Services would know about here in Toronto, to the Royal York Hotel. They held a meeting in the Ontario Room and sent the bill for $895 to the taxpayers.

How does the Treasurer expect the public, how does he expect the other 100,000 civil servants, how does he expect the rest of the ministers to treat his announcement seriously when the day after he makes the announcement, the Minister of Government Services—obviously there is no communication with his department or the deputy minister—is still acting as though no announcement took place? It is business as usual, "Let's head on down to the Royal York."

Hon Mr Laughren: I welcome back the member for Nipissing. First of all, I did not know that what the member has described has occurred, but I can tell him that every minister of this government and every ministry of this government takes seriously what we did last week. We have asked them to save and told them that, with their compliance, $100 million will be saved in the operating budgets of the various ministries.

I recognize the fact that the previous government was not able to do that in five years in office. We have decided we are going to do it. It will save $100 million this fiscal year and $300 million over the next 18 months. We are serious about it and every minister in this government is serious about that.

Mr Harris: Surely the Treasurer would agree with me that these civil servants—it would have been a shorter walk too, by the way—could have easily held their meeting over at the Macdonald Block. They could have ordered soup and sandwiches if it is our duty as taxpayers to pay for their lunch while they meet. But they ordered the cancelloni lunch at the Royal York at a cost of $17 per person for some 175 people meeting down at the Royal York.

We have hundreds of government boardrooms, many of them recently redecorated, as we have heard, for some deputy ministers, even with fine china for 50. They sit empty while civil servants are off running up these hotel bills. The day after the Treasurer made the announcement, obviously the Ministry of Government Services had not got the message. Can the Treasurer give me any assurance that this is not going to happen again in the future?

Hon Mr Laughren: I have learned just in the last year even that making these iron-clad guarantees and assurances can get one into trouble, but I would say to the leader of the third party that every ministry takes seriously the need to constrain our expenditures this year.

Mr Harris: Oh yes?

Hon Mr Laughren: The member opposite does not think they do. I think they do believe that. We are obviously going to have to monitor the expenditures of the various ministries, just as any government does. I can tell the member that every minister in this government takes the constraint seriously, because we are determined that we are going to manage our expenses better than any other government ever has.

Mr Harris: The Treasurer does not like to go on the hook. That was a pretty good statement. It is not an isolated incident. I have raised example after example of this before. Before we adjourned last June, I raised the example of the Ministry of Community and Social Services living it up at the SkyDome. At the time I thought it was only one ball game; it turns out it was two, the way they had it.

Since I came back I have been going through the blue book. This book was released while I was away. These are the expenditures in public accounts. I identified just this morning $2.7 million as a partial list of this type of function that went on at the Royal York; not regular travel, not a civil servant staying in a hotel room while visiting other parts of the province, but special functions, meetings, many of them at luxury five-star hotels. That is a partial list. That is only those who bill us $42,000 a year or more and over and above the other expenditures.

Other than changing the bookkeeping procedures, which governments are very good at, can the Treasurer give me any kind of assurance that when I pick up this book next year, I will not find again, virtually on every page, millions of dollars of money wasted on facilities and food that are available either free or at a fraction of the cost?

Hon Mr Laughren: First of all, I look forward to hearing from the leader of the third party where the free lunch is that he refers to. We do not think there is any free lunch in this province. I can tell the member opposite that he does not do his cause well when he engages in exaggeration, that there are millions of dollars on every page dealing with free lunches. That is simply not the case.

I would simply assure the leader of the third party that it is our intention to manage our expenditures much better than the previous government did and much, much better than the federal government in Ottawa does.

Mr Harris: I guess that is why we have a $10-billion deficit and the lowest credit rating in the history of the province.

COURT SYSTEM

Mr Harris: My second question is to the Attorney General. Nearly one month ago, he announced—not in this House, I might add—two pilot projects designed to speed up the Ontario court system. Under one of these projects, offenders charged with breaking and entering in North York will have the option of not going to court and merely apologizing to the victim. Instead of trying to run the court system more efficiently, the minister's approach to saving money seems to be to deny that a criminal is a criminal. This is going to be his approach to keep them out of the court system.

Does the Attorney General not realize that the signal he is sending out to criminals and potential criminals is "No big deal"? Vandalism, break and enter, shoplifting, it is no big deal. In effect, it is removing, in these pilot projects, what tiny, teensy little bit of deterrent is left in the criminal system in this province.

Hon Mr Hampton: I think it is only proper that I try to correct the impression that has been left by the leader of the Conservative Party.

As we all know and I think everyone in the law enforcement field knows, there are a number of offences that come before the courts where many people in the field—and I am talking about corrections officials, I am talking about people who work outside of government in the corrections field, I am talking about people from the retail community for example—have said it would be far better to use alternative measures. If the accused person is prepared or if he is willing, it is far better to take him to a face-to-face meeting with the individual who has been aggrieved and to provide for restitution, to provide for an apology and so on.

What I can say to the House is that we are looking at some pilot projects on diversion and alternative measures. I can say, though, to the member that while we have a project about to start up in Peel region, his comments about a proposed project in North York are quite a way off the mark.

1510

Mr Harris: The Attorney General will appreciate that when he makes his announcement outside the House, I have to rely on the reports I get. If he is saying the Globe and Mail of September 13 quoted him incorrectly, he should say so.

We have seen an astonishing rise in crime over the past year: in 1990, 111,500 offences of breaking and entering. This past week, more Metro area businesses have been the victims of swarming attacks. Yet the Attorney General is treating breaking and entering like chewing gum in school. "You broke into my house, you invaded my privacy, you vandalized my property, but gee, you are really sorry." That is not good enough.

There is another way to decrease the cost of the court system, which seems to be the Attorney General's objective, and to reduce crime at the same time. Increasing deterrents instead of decreasing them would do this. Does he understand that his proposal is going to increase the incidence of these very criminal activities that we are trying to avoid getting into the court system or even happening anywhere in this province?

Hon Mr Hampton: I also happen to have a copy of the newspaper coverage of the non-announcement I made when I was talking to a group of judges. The newspaper coverage speaks only about our diversion project in Peel region, and it talks about the diversion of people who have been accused of shoplifting out of the court system. When the honourable leader of the Conservative Party refers to a defined plan to divert break and enter, I am sorry, he is off base.

The project we are working at most specifically is a project in Peel region to deal with shoplifters. Let me say that is a project which has the support of the retail community.

Mr Harris: And the criminal community, I can tell the minister.

The article says, "Mr Hampton said the North York project would likely involve such relatively minor crimes"—his definition—"as shoplifting, breaking and entering and vandalism." That is the article. That is the Globe and Mail. That is what was there. If he agrees with it, so do I.

This project in Peel and in North York places public safety in jeopardy. It removes almost any deterrent now from breaking and entering, from shoplifting, from vandalism. I know the Treasurer told the Attorney General to make cuts in his budget—and he is just talking to him again right now—I understand that, But is it worth putting the public safety at risk? Is it worth it to make these cuts in the budget?

Given that there is another way to save the money by increasing the deterrents so that these crimes do not take place in the first place, will the Attorney General now stand up in this House, apologize for not telling us about it first, and also apologize and say: "I'm sorry, I made a mistake. Maybe there is a better way to save money other than by jeopardizing our people in the streets, not just the shop owners, but indeed to reduce the incidence of crime in our city streets in this province"?

Hon Mr Hampton: Perhaps it would be best to answer the leader of the Conservative Party's scare tactics by addressing them head on.

The project we are working on most intensely is, as I have said, the project in Peel. It is a diversion of shoplifting. This is a letter from the Retail Council of Canada and I would ask the member to let me quote from it. It says:

"The Retail Council of Canada is delighted and grateful to have had the opportunity to contribute. We have developed a consensus with officials on the type of shoplifting case most suitable for diversion through alternative measures. We anticipate similar involvement in the design of the alternate program. At the conclusion of this work, we would be happy to commend the program to our members, to work with the government in the public launch and to co-operate in the evaluation of the private project.

"The diversion project represents an opportunity to make another aspect of the administration of justice more effective in serving both the victim and the offender. We look forward to helping you with the expeditious implementation of the project."

What we are talking about is a system of justice which will bring the offender and the victim closer together, which will provide for restitution, which will provide a more meaningful way of solving some of these social disputes. It is very clear that the Conservative Party is only interested in jail, jail, jail and spending more and more tax money.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I ask members to come to order. When members have come to order, we can continue. The clock, of course, continues.

ETOBICOKE WATERFRONT DEVELOPMENT

Mrs Caplan: I rise today to ask a question of the Minister of the Environment, responsible for the greater Toronto area. We read this morning in a local newspaper that the province has ruled out any future environmental assessment on the Etobicoke motel strip waterfront development.

I have here a letter that the now Minister of the Environment wrote in 1988. The bottom line of that letter said, "A hearing under the Environmental Assessment Act is the only forum in which they"—her constituents—"can be assured that environmental issues will be given full consideration."

I want the minister to stand in her place today and confirm that the newspaper article was wrong, that it was incorrect, and confirm in this House that she will follow through on her commitment to her constituents and to the people, not only of the greater Toronto area but of the province, that she will continue to demand a full environmental assessment for the Etobicoke waterfront development.

Hon Mrs Grier: Mr Speaker, I am referring the question to the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. If members refuse to come to order, then I will simply wait until the time allotted on the clock for question period has expired.

Interjection.

The Speaker: Just wait. I have heard that before. I read Hansard.

Interjections.

The Speaker: All members will recall that while interventions are out of order, they are even more out of order when made from someone else's chair.

Interjections.

The Speaker: I shall ponder that in a more reflective moment. If members would like a response, then the Minister of Municipal Affairs has the floor.

1520

Hon Mr Cooke: The member will be very much aware of the history of this piece of land. She will remember that the previous government declared a provincial interest under the Planning Act in this province, the result of which is that this matter comes under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

The results of the discussions that have taken place between my ministry, this government, the agencies of this government and the city of Etobicoke have resulted in a consensus around the development of that piece of land that will serve this community and this province well and that will serve the environment for this community well. This government looks at this partnership with the city of Etobicoke and the people involved as something that is very important, that will create jobs and that will create an asset for all the people of this community.

Interjections.

The Speaker: The member for Halton Centre should not make remarks when she is not sitting in her rightful place.

Mrs Caplan: First of all, I am very upset with the Minister of the Environment, in whose constituency this is. Because of her record, the people of this province have come to expect the environmental assessments she called for in opposition to happen, now that she is the Minister of the Environment.

As the minister responsible for the greater Toronto area, as well as the Minister of the Environment, and in whose constituency the waterfront development in Etobicoke is taking place, she invited people to join her and Mr Crombie to take a hike. Some 200 people were out there walking with her on a lovely Saturday afternoon. She now refuses to answer a question. She refuses to ensure that there will be the environmental assessment she called for when she had that opportunity.

The Speaker: Your supplementary?

Mrs Caplan: The Minister of Municipal Affairs has cut a backroom deal. He has closed the door. There have been no public consultations. When is the minister going to say to the people of this province why he sold out his principles, why he sold out his commitment to public consultation and why the Minister of the Environment sold out her constituents as well as the environment on this issue?

Interjections.

Mrs Caplan: You are not going to get away with this; no credibility.

The Speaker: Order. The member for Oriole.

Interjections.

The Speaker: I must advise the member for Halton Centre in very strong terms that she should not persist in making comments from a seat that does not belong to her. The member for Oriole asked a question and I take it she would like to hear the response. A modicum of restraint would be appreciated. Your enthusiasm is appreciated.

Hon Mr Cooke: It is very difficult to accept the statement from the member for Oriole that this Minister of the Environment and this government sold out the people of Etobicoke. This area of this community has been under discussion for years and years. We decided in our ministry and our government to get on with the good plan for the people in that community.

The member for Oriole knows very well that the plan that was before the previous government is quite different from the plan that is now going to the Ontario Municipal Board. The old plan was not acceptable to people in the community, but they were going to exempt it under the Environmental Assessment Act. This government decided to look at the concerns of people in the community, to work out a plan that respects the environment and get on with it.

Mrs Caplan: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: The minister has just said that they plan to exempt this from the Environmental Assessment Act.

The Speaker: New question, the member for Waterloo North.

WAGE PROTECTION

Mrs Witmer: I have a question for the Minister of Labour. Yesterday, as the minister probably knows, the House of Commons consumer and corporate affairs committee released a report. That report recommends that the federal government not proceed with its proposal to set up a wage claim fund financed by a payroll tax. Instead, that committee is suggesting that a better idea would be to protect employee wages by making them a superpriority over the claims of all other creditors. Priority for workers would cover up to $3,000 in unpaid wages or sales commissions per employee.

As the minister knows, this has long been the preferred option for the Canadian Federation of Independent Business. The concept of superpriority would eliminate the need for a wage protection fund which, as we know, if created is going to be a burden for the already hard-pressed public purse or the small business owner who may be faced with a future payroll tax.

Would the minister please comment on this recommendation of the federal consumer and corporate affairs committee, and would he comment specifically on the issue of making these unpaid wages, which we all agree the workers deserve, a superpriority claim?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I had not heard the details of the federal decision. Among other things, I would like to know whether they are going to proceed with this now. We had some serious question as to whether they would have proceeded with the previous recommendation. I would like to know also whether they have put a $3,000 limit on it and whether severance and termination are covered. If those areas are not covered, then obviously I am not that interested in it. But I will get the information as soon as I can on the proposal the feds have made.

Mrs Witmer: Last week, the Treasurer reported $85 million in savings because Bill 70 had not yet received royal assent. I know he was very relieved to find those savings, but he did admit to us that the $175-million pricetag is simply going to be deferred to next year. If the federal government proceeds with making these unpaid wages a superpriority claim under the Bankruptcy Act, then there would be substantial savings for the bankrupt Ontario Treasury.

I hope to introduce today an amendment to section 17 of Bill 70 that would allow the provincial government to dissolve the employee wage protection program when the federal changes come into effect, and ensure that workers who have been affected by the recession would be compensated for their unpaid wages until such time as the federal program is in place.

Given the fact that wage protection is a federal responsibility and that the Ontario government is looking at program expenditure restraints for 1992-93, would the Minister of Labour indicate whether he is prepared to support my amendment?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: As the member will know, the word we have had in the past is that the federal government was interested in co-ordinating its activities with us if it proceeded with the legislation it had announced previously, which, if the member is correct, it is now not proceeding with.

As to whether or not we would accept the member's amendment, I think the answer at this point in time would be no. We do not know what they are going to end up with there and we do not know whether or not it covers severance and termination. There is also a limit on it that is less than we are willing to pay workers for money that they have actually earned.

1530

WASTE MANAGEMENT

Mr Mills: I am going to ask a question in a kinder, gentler manner to the Minister of the Environment. I share the concerns of my constituents and the Durham region's waste management committee that the costs for a temporary transfer station at Brock West for Durham's garbage have escalated from $10 million to $50 million. Taxpayers in Durham East cannot afford to shoulder this additional burden. Can the minister tell me what action she is taking in response to this unexpectedly high estimate?

Hon Mrs Grier: I am glad to get an opportunity to comment on this issue, because I certainly share the member's concern at the escalation in costs for this facility.

Mrs Caplan: Breaking promises to her own constituents, that's what she's doing. There is no environmental assessment.

The Speaker: Order, the member for Oriole.

Hon Mrs Grier: The landfill site at Brock West, as members will know, is due to close in 1992, so if the waste from Durham is to be taken to Keele Valley, a transfer station is required. It could well be a temporary transfer station. The original estimates that the region of Durham obtained were that it would cost $10 million. It then jumped, as the member has said, to $50 million.

When I look at the breakdown of costs, I find that we are looking at almost $7 million that the region has put in for contingencies and $5 million in fees for design and studies, which I guess are administrative costs the region would get. Their estimates seem to ignore the fact that if it is built at Brock West, there are already roads, weigh scales, administrative buildings, electrical service and sanitary sewers.

The action we have taken has been to meet with the representatives of the region of Durham to go over these costs and to see what we can do to make sure they are pared down to a Chevy rather than a Cadillac, even though it is General Motors country.

Mr Mills: The minister's answer prompts me to ask two questions. Will she reconsider the need for a transfer station, and would her ministry and the region be looking at cheaper options for that facility?

Hon Mrs Grier: We in this party are certainly always prepared to look at cheaper options. As members will recall, the need for this transfer station was identified to the region of York in a minister's report that I issued under section 29 of the Environmental Protection Act. This called for the provision of a transfer station, but it also asked the region to do some technical studies so it could get approved under part V of the Environmental Protection Act.

They were also asked to put in place a community involvement liaison program so that the people of Durham could have an opportunity to comment on what the best solution to the problem was for the people of Durham. It is very possible, and in fact I have requested, that Durham also investigate the contingencies to managing its waste in the interim until a long-term site can be found.

This is entirely an issue that we are going to face throughout the GTA.

The Speaker: Could the minister conclude her remarks, please.

Hon Mrs Grier: If in fact we can find the long-term sites for which the Interim Waste Authority is searching—and I am glad to tell the House the search is proceeding very well—the faster we can find those interim sites—

The Speaker: Would the minister take her seat, please.

HUNTING IN ALGONQUIN PARK

Mr Ramsay: I have a question for the Minister of Natural Resources. I have several concerns on his draft agreement that he released yesterday in regard to establishing a new set of rules for hunting in eastern Ontario.

First, he has allowed the hunting of moose now in provincial parks, not just Algonquin but other protected areas in eastern Ontario that come under the Algonquins of Golden Lake land claim. When you look at this agreement, which prescribes the hunting of 100 moose and 175 deer, it is open-ended in that other people of the community can apply to the band for authorization for increased harvesting in that area. If the minister looks at his agreement, he will see that is true.

I am also troubled about the wording in the agreement that really allows the hunting of other species. This is a grave concern as other species would include anything that is in the park, specifically wolves, which are already an endangered species in the park. As the minister probably knows, two thirds of the radio-tagged wolves in that area were killed last year because they strayed outside of the park and found themselves being hunted. Now in his agreement he is allowing hunting within that park of those wolves.

I would like to ask the minister if he would agree that this is open-ended, it allows for increased hunting of moose and deer and also includes the hunting of other species in Algonquin Park.

Hon Mr Wildman: I am glad the member has raised these questions. As he knows, the draft document that was released yesterday for consultation was released so that in the short time between now and Thanksgiving we can have the kinds of questions he is raising dealt with. But I do reject emphatically his suggestion that this is open-ended and that it is particularly new for hunting in eastern Ontario.

I do not think I should have to remind the former Minister of Natural Resources that in 1989 his government entered into an agreement with the Algonquins for the hunting of deer in eastern Ontario which had exactly the same limit on the hunt as this agreement does, which is 175. He will know that in that agreement in 1990 the Algonquins only took 60 deer. So for him to suggest that somehow this is new and a change with regard to deer is completely unfounded.

The member has also pointed out that there is a limit of 100 moose to be taken in a restricted area of the park. He did not point out, but perhaps should have, that there are restrictions on the use of motorized vehicles to gain access to that part of the park, on all-terrain vehicles and snow machines.

The member has raised a serious question with regard to the hunting of other species. That is an issue that has been raised in consultation with the various groups we have been meeting over the last day and a half, and we have made a commitment to those groups that we will take this issue back to the Algonquins and try to resolve that prior to the finalization of the agreement.

The Speaker: No doubt you will be disappointed to learn that this is the end of question period.

SABRINA PANETTA

Mr Mahoney: Mr Speaker, I have a point of order that I would like to refer to you for your report back to the House if you would consider it. It comes out of the acrimony that we saw in the House this afternoon, in particular to the member for Brampton North's question to the Minister of Community and Social Services.

I have waited until now to raise it because I wanted to have an opportunity to research the standing orders to give you something to actually refer to rather than many of the points of order that simply float in the air.

I refer to page 8 of the standing orders, sections 23(h) and (i), where (h) says that a member should not make allegations against another member and (i) that a member should not impute false or unavowed motives to another member.

It is my respectful submission to you, sir, that in her answer, the minister impugned the motives of the member for Brampton North in the sense that she either directly or indirectly, depending on how you interpret the words in Hansard, accused the member of raising the issue of this unfortunate situation with regard to the young lady, who is now I understand being allowed to go home as her last wish. The minister suggested that the member was doing it for reasons that I would suggest would be considered less than honourable in the public. I know that is not the case, and I am sure you would know and all members, including the minister, would not wish to leave that kind of suggestion on the floor.

I would respectfully ask that you review the transcripts of Hansard today and report back to this House, and if you do indeed find that the minister has created some cloud or has impugned in some way the integrity or the motives of the member for Brampton North, that you would ask the minister to withdraw and to apologize to the member.

The Speaker: To the honourable member for Mississauga West, I appreciate the point of order which he has drawn to my attention. Indeed I shall review Hansard and take into account the standing order which he referred to, as well as a number of other background materials. Thank you.

1540

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

Mr Elston: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: Earlier in the day I raised a point of privilege which spoke about interjections coming from under the gallery seat. Mr Chuck Rachlis had intervened by shouting certain things, or at least speaking certain things towards one of my colleagues, one of the caucus members here. I would ask, Mr Speaker, on the point of order, that you look into the possibility of having him excluded from this House, because he is here by special permission and his duties do not allow him to be making statements that impugn the motives or suggest that a member do certain things that are not in the public interest.

It seems to me, Mr Speaker, that if you were unable to hear, we do know that members of the Premier's staff who were there sitting under the gallery would have known full well what Mr Rachlis said. Upon my raising the issue, Mr Rachlis removed himself at least for the day from the House. But I would ask, if you are unable to investigate, that we require the Premier to come in here and indicate what his investigation of the behaviour of his staff has resulted in, and if it is confirmed that Mr Rachlis indeed was heckling members of my party or in fact any party from under there, and attempting to dissuade us from doing our obligatory, democratic job, that he be removed fully, at all times, from this chamber. This chamber, Mr Speaker, is under your control on behalf of all of the members. There is no room for some member of the Premier's staff, whether he thinks he is privileged or not, to be shouting at our members.

I think, Mr Speaker, if you could investigate, first, whether or not you can determine that these events occurred, that would be of assistance. If you are unable to do so, you should require the Premier to come before this House and explain what his investigation has told him. I know by name at least two or three of the people who were sitting beside Mr Rachlis, and I am prepared to give those names to you so that you can seek out whether in fact he made the interventions. My view is that he did, and it seems to me, Mr Speaker, that you therefore have the authority to rule that he not be allowed to return to this place and do anything close to trying to influence the course of debate and the manner in which we do our job as opposition members.

The Speaker: To the honourable Leader of the Opposition, first, you should know that at the moment you raised this matter with me, in consultation with the Sergeant at Arms, we attended to it immediately. Further, I would be most pleased to take a look at the circumstances, at Hansard if it can be of any assistance, and speak to others. I will, as much as is within my power and scope to do so, deal with this matter.

The standing orders are in fact quite clear with respect to non-members who are by invitation present within the chambers, so I will deal with this matter and am quite pleased to do so.

PETITIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr J. Wilson: I am privileged to present a petition to the House today that reads as follows:

"Whereas the Queen of Canada has long been a symbol of national unity for Canadians from all walks of life and from all ethnic backgrounds;

"Whereas the people of Canada are currently facing a constitutional crisis which could potentially result in the breakup of the federation and are in need of unifying symbols;

"We, the undersigned, respectfully petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to restore the oath to the Queen for Ontario's police officers."

That is signed by a number of good residents in my riding of Simcoe West, from the village of Tottenham and the township of Tecumseh, and I too have affixed my name to this petition.

REPORTS BY COMMITTEES

STANDING COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

Mr Runciman from the standing committee on government agencies presented the committee's 14th report.

The Speaker: Pursuant to standing order 104(g)(11) the report is deemed to be adopted by the House.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

House in committee of the whole.

La Chambre en comité plénier.

EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS AMENDMENT ACT (EMPLOYEE WAGE PROTECTION PROGRAM), 1991

LOI DE 1991

MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LES NORMES D'EMPLOI (PROGRAMME DE PROTECTION DES SALAIRES DES EMPLOYÉS)

Resuming consideration of Bill 70, An Act to amend the Employment Standards Act to provide for an Employee Wage Protection Program and to make certain other amendments.

Suite du débat ajourné sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 70, Loi portant modification de la Loi sur les normes d'emploi par création d'un Programme de protection des salaires des employés et par adoption de certaines autres modifications.

Section/article 16:

The First Deputy Chair: Further consideration of a motion by Mr Offer that clause 65(1)(rb) of the act, as set out in section 16 of the bill, as reprinted, be struck out. Continuing debate, further comments?

Mr Offer: I have some further comments on this particular amendment. I think all members of the Legislature should be well aware that what this amendment does is say that if there is to be any change in this legislation in terms of the monetary amount, it should be made by legislation, coming through the legislative process, as opposed to regulation.

As we went through some of the debate yesterday, it surprised me to see two things happening.

The first is that no member of the government side saw fit to talk about the need for rejecting this amendment. No member of the government stood in his or her place to say why this amendment could not be accepted. All we heard from the other side of the House was a deafening silence. "Let them speak, let this amendment run its course and then we will vote it down."

The second area which concerns me is why the government is so afraid of having any further change to this bill coming back to this Legislature. We all recognize that one of the most important aspects of the bill is the monetary amount. We can talk about all the technicalities of the bill. We can talk about some of the interpretations of the bill. We can talk about some of its applications and implications. But the fact of the matter is that when people look at this bill, they say, "What is the entitlement to, and of, an employee?" They see the $5,000 and that is what we talk about. That is what the government talks about in its press releases. They talk about a fund which is designed to provide dollars to employees, the victims of recession, for their wages, vacation pay, termination and severance, for which they will receive, after proven, a sum, a figure of up to $5,000.

This amendment says that if there is to be any change to that $5,000 it must come before this Legislature, be debated in this Legislature and, in terms of our rules of procedure, go to committee hearings. As a result, the members of that committee may, as they have every right to do, order public hearings on such changes so that those members, duly elected and appointed to a standing committee of this Legislature, will go out and travel to different areas of the province to listen to those people who want to share their opinion on any change.

1550

Let's remember that the way the legislation is worded is that the only change that could be made to the $5,000 is upwards. The legislation does not read that any change to the $5,000 is through regulation. It reads, "Any change increasing the $5,000 is through regulation."

The question we have to ask ourselves is, what type of message are we sending out? We on this side know of the government's right to prepare and introduce legislation. They know of our right to oppose it, agree with it or maybe do something like say that parts of the bill are fine but other parts cause us concern. We have that right. The members opposite also have that right, but when they do it by regulation, what they are doing is taking away that right.

I see the time now is 3:50. It was but two hours ago that a great many points of order were brought forward which spoke about our rights as members in this Legislature. We spoke about ministerial statements being made outside this Legislature. That is an important area. What does it do to us? We have been elected not only to represent the interests of our constituents but also, indeed, to comment on bills of a public nature. When decisions and statements are made outside the Legislature, it takes that right away from us. It takes away that ability of ours to talk about and respond to initiatives of the government.

Backbench members of the government might not think that is terribly important, but let me tell them something: It is important because it whittles away a little bit at what we were elected to do, it chips away a little bit at what some of our responsibilities are, it erodes a little bit some of the things we said we wanted to do when we were knocking on doors asking for people's support.

Interjection.

Mr Offer: The government member for Oxford: I think it is important that we recognize, and certainly I know, that there are many hundreds of thousands of people who watch the parliamentary channel. They receive a great deal of information about some of the goings-on in the Legislature, and it is interesting that as we are talking about a bill which really is keyed and zeroed in on the victims of the recession, which talks about the principle of helping those who maybe for the first time in their lives are without a job, the member for Oxford has seen fit to interject.

It would be interesting to see if that same member—and I will be very frank, I did not catch the interjection; I just recognized there was one—will stand in his place when he has the opportunity to speak to this Legislature and his constituents as to whether he feels that changes to this bill should be made by regulation as opposed to legislation. It will be interesting to see if that member will send out a message to his constituents that doing it by regulation is all right with him, so those business groups and associations, the chambers of commerce, boards of trade, the people who have lost jobs, the people who are looking for some type of input into any change in legislation will be able to come to his constituency office.

I am looking forward to hearing the concerns of the member, because he has seen fit that it was certainly all right to make certain interjections. When the floor is his, when he can say something which is part of Hansard and can be used by him in his own constituency, when he can send out a message to his constituents that it is important for him, as the member for Oxford, to vote in favour of this amendment because it permits him and gives him the opportunity to make certain his constituents will be heard prior to any change being made, that, I think, is a very important message.

But if that member does not stand in his place and say that, then another message goes out to his constituents, and that message is that it just is not that important; if there is to be any change, if there is to be any amendment or alteration to the $5,000 limit, he does not really have to listen or worry about the impact it has on his riding.

I know there is not a member in this Legislature—there is probably not a member in any provincial Legislature or throughout the House of Commons—whose constituency has not been severely hit by the recession. I do not believe there is an elected politician in this country, at whatever level, who has not heard, day in and day out, very tough, heart-rending stories about people who had jobs for many years, who worked, who provided, and for the first time in their lives are out of a job, and not only out of a job but without any real opportunity to acquire a new job because we all know that the recession has hit particularly hard in this province.

We know in this province that the number of bankruptcies is up dramatically and there does not seem to be any levelling off. If people say the recession is over, I do not think they can convince those who are still suffering bankruptcies, those who are out of work as of yesterday, those families which for the first time are in real need. For many people this recession is not over. The facts and figures may say something, but in real terms there is something much different. What we are saying is that if this bill has as its principle an attempt to try to help those, then maybe the members of the government should not be concerned about having any change to this bill come to this legislative process.

What is the problem with debate? I have spoken on this matter at some length. I think we all recognize that, but I feel very strongly about this. I do not like it when matters of real importance to a piece of legislation are able to be amended by regulation. I recognize that in every piece of legislation there is the need for some aspect to be done and changed through regulation. I understand that. I know that. But when we are talking about changing the $5,000 limit, we are talking about something which is much more fundamental than an ongoing technical requirement to be able to change legislation on a periodic basis.

We are talking about a change which will have a direct impact on the cost of doing business. We are talking about changes which, when done by regulation, we will not know and be able to appreciate the impact of. We are talking about what we do here. We have the right to debate these things. We have the right to vote for or against. By doing these things by regulation, they are taking away our right to debate. They are taking away our right to stand up and vote in favour or against. They are taking away our right to show to our constituents what our position is on a matter fundamental to a piece of legislation.

1600

When members of the government feel those types of rights are not important or are insignificant, when members of the government feel it is really of no concern that a person be able to debate and stand up and vote and be counted, then we have a major problem in terms of what we do here and in terms of how we are able to tell our constituents we are able and ready to listen to their concerns. When it is done by regulation, they will be suspicious of our real ability to do that. They will be right—let members make no mistake about it—they will be right when they come into our constituency offices and say, “I don't think what I am saying to you will have any real impact on this change to the legislation.” They will be right, because that decision and that discussion will take place only around the cabinet table.

There are many more people in this province than the 20 or so who sit around the cabinet table. There are an awful lot more people who want to share, either in this Legislature or through committee, what any change means in their constituency in terms of jobs, maintaining those jobs and maybe expanding those jobs. We are taking away that right through this legislation. The amendment brings that back. The amendment says:

"We know that if there is going to be a change, there will be an impact. First, we on the government side are ready to defend it. Second, and probably of more importance, we are ready to respond, to listen, to be aware, to be sensitive to the impact of that change. We on the government side feel comfortable in being able to defend that change to constituents, in the Legislature and in committee."

When one takes away that right, then the message being sent out, no matter what their speeches within their ridings and elsewhere say, is that it takes away the right to be heard. It takes away the right for members opposite to listen to the impact of change. That is a very important aspect of what we do here. I hope the members on the government side will recognize that one of the things they have been elected to do is to listen to what the impact of change may be. One of their responsibilities is to make certain that where it is possible, it will be necessary to open up in terms of any impact of change.

We have here, as I said earlier, an opportunity to quell some of the concerns that have been raised by many people over this legislation. I do not think the government members should think for a moment that the general public thinks everything in this bill is perfect. They do not believe that for a moment.

Mr Fletcher: They love us.

Mr Offer: The member for Guelph, when I was talking about some of the difficulties in the bill, some of the concerns with the bill, said, again through interjection, "The people love us." That is what he said. I think he said that twice. The member of the government party said, "The people love us." Now, that exactly makes the point. I was ready to just move on to another area. The parliamentary assistant chuckles.

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. I ask the member to return to the focus of the motion that he himself has presented to the House. I would appreciate that.

Mr Offer: It was as if you were reading my mind, Mr Chair, because that is exactly what I am going to do. This amendment has two lines. That is all this amendment is. This amendment has two lines in it, but it means that any change to the bill must go through the legislative process. It means that those people who have concerns with some aspects of this bill now, and potentially in the future, will know and feel secure that if there is to be any change, it will go through the legislative process.

The member for Guelph said, "The people love us." That is exactly the concern raised by the people of this province. That is exactly what they are concerned about. Let me make it clear: Not everything in this bill is right. Not everything and every word and every intention in this bill is proper. There are improvements that can and should be made to this bill. For a member of the government side to think that because in his opinion everybody loves them, this bill is now perfect is exactly the concern that has been heard throughout the province. There are improvements that can be made.

Interjection.

Mr Offer: I see there was another interjection made by a member. The parliamentary assistant quickly turned her head to make certain the member making the interjection would no longer make the interjection. Those government members feel it is so important to interject when a point is being made, but when their turn comes to stand in their place to be counted and recorded in Hansard in this Legislature, and their committee members, they are Velcroed to their seat. There are belts on the seats so that those members just cannot rise. The only time those members can rise is when the little nod comes from the parliamentary assistant.

I almost said the "Minister of Labour," but I did say the "parliamentary assistant." The parliamentary assistant has done the real work for her government in this bill. The Minister of Labour, as I believe attendance records will show, has not been there as long as the parliamentary assistant.

1610

Mr Mammoliti: What is wrong with the parliamentary assistant doing some work? Is there something wrong with that?

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. The member for Yorkview will be silent. The member for Yorkview is doing this House no service by this kind of interjection. The kinds of interjections that are taking place are infringing on the debate that is taking place and doing the House no service. Can we have the member continue with his remarks. I ask the member to focus on the issue and not to stray and have these interjections.

Mr Offer: Thank you very much, Mr Chair, but I did think it was timely and appropriate to truly compliment the member for Sudbury on the work she has done in her role as a parliamentary assistant. I appreciated working with the parliamentary assistant and with the Ministry of Labour officials. They were helpful on any questions we had.

I still have many concerns with the piece of legislation. I recognize that the parliamentary assistant is telling her members not to make comments. I do not believe she is saying this, but the members are making interjections while I am trying to make my points of concern. I am quite convinced that the parliamentary assistant is using the full range of her powers to muzzle members making comments on this piece of legislation which is going to affect their constituents. It will affect those constituents who are the victims of the recession and it will affect those constituents who are not the victims of the recession. It will affect all the constituents.

Hon Mr North: Your recession.

Mr Offer: I think it is important to note that when I spoke about the recession, the Minister of Tourism and Recreation interjected. I was talking about the concern we had about the recession. I laid no ownership on the recession. I was talking about the concerns that we, the opposition party, had over the 300,000 jobs that have been lost in this province. Over 50% of those jobs have disappeared. For many people it is the first time in their lives that they are out of work. We have concerns about some aspects of this bill, and I was doing that without any degree of partisanship or ownership. In fact, if memory serves me correctly, the Treasurer himself, in his budget statement to this Legislature, said this recession was the worst since the 1930s. I think members might be able to find that in the budgetary notes.

The Minister of Tourism and Recreation saw fit to interject by saying it was my recession. That does nobody who is out of a job any good. The minister's bantering about who owns or does not own a recession is not productive. It does not help anybody who is out of a job in his riding, as it does not help anyone in my riding. I see the Chair is looking at me. I would like to get back to the amendment. Oh, there is a point of order.

Mr Hope: On a point of order, Mr Chair: I am not trying to show you the way of your job, but I think it is important that the member is not even making reference to the bill as he carries on about the recession and refers to people who are suffering under the recession. As he becomes repetitive in his speeches, I think it is important to note that during this time frame there are people waiting for this bill who are suffering. I make reference that he refer back to the bill, instead of talking about other members.

The First Deputy Chair: I point out to the member for Chatham-Kent that the last comment the member for Mississauga North made was to recognize the fact that the Chair was giving unspoken signals to return to the focus of the issue. Indeed, that was the intent of the member. Let's see where we go from here.

Mr Offer: I hope the member for Chatham-Kent, having been able to stand on a point of order, will also find it proper to stand on this amendment—I now have mentioned that word—and let us know and his constituents know what he thinks about changes being made to a bill without its going through the legislative process.

The challenge is made to him. The question will be whether he is ready, able and willing to respond to that challenge. We will listen and wait to see if he has an opinion on whether he thinks he should have the opportunity to speak to changes to a particular piece of legislation.

We will also hope that the Minister of Tourism and Recreation finds that it is in the interests of himself and his constituents to again let us know what his position is on whether he should be able to speak to any changes to any particular aspect of the legislation.

But as I was speaking about this amendment, what we are talking about are our roles, rights and responsibilities as members of the Legislature. What we are talking about is much more than this particular piece of legislation. It is absolutely applicable in an amendment to the legislation, but it moves much further. It moves to the fundamental basis upon which we were elected.

It moves further than any one act can ever imagine. It speaks to all of the thousands of doors which we knocked on. We knocked on doors and said, "We hope that you'll be able to support us and we will represent your interests."

Interjection.

Mr Offer: Now we have another interjection by the member for Guelph, who sees fit only to interject, secure in the knowledge that those interjections will not be recorded in Hansard but insecure in terms of whether he should in fact send a message to his constituents. Is he ready—

The First Deputy Chair: Order. I have to congratulate the member for being able to overcome points of interjection and stick to the issue and the focus of the debate. I would encourage the member to remain focused and to hopefully ignore some interjections that are taking place.

Mr Offer: Thank you very much, Mr Chair. I try to do that. I have only commented on a few of the interjections. I just do not have that ability when I am in the middle of speaking to an amendment which is so important in the particular piece of legislation—when members of the government are moved to interject, it somewhat knocks me off my pace. But I will try to ignore the interjections by the members of the government, just as we try to ignore them.

The other aspect that we are talking about in this amendment is accountability. At the end of the day, people are going to be able to check up on the way in which we voted, on what we said when we said it, how we said it and what it meant to us, what was important to us. That is one aspect of accountability. It is not just financial. It is not a balance sheet. It is not dollars on one side, assets on one side, debts on the other.

It is really a listing of what they have done here in their places while they have had the privilege and honour of representing particular constituencies. All their constituents will have that opportunity to check up—and I do not say that in any critical sense—but to observe what it is they have done, what it is they have spoken about, what issues moved them, how they voted and why they voted.

When they move things from legislation to regulation, they take away the debate. They take away the vote. They take away the accountability. They take away the right that their constituents have to see what it is they did here while they gave them the privilege of being here.

1620

The First Deputy Chair: Order. Maybe once in a while the member could make some reference to the amendment that we are addressing. That would be very helpful.

Mr Offer: This is what the amendment is all about. I know some of the government backbench members say, "Well, is it?" The fact of the matter is that when things are done by regulation, they are done around a cabinet table. You only hear about them through a media report. You do not hear about them anywhere else. When things are done by legislation, it comes here. We are able to do this right now, and that is accountability. That is exactly what this amendment is all about. Yes, it applies to this particular piece of legislation, but fundamentally it applies to a much broader degree. It applies to what it is that we do as members.

I would hope that members of the government side who made interjections will now have the opportunity to stand in their place and to say for Hansard and for their constituents that they support this amendment. Because to support this amendment is to support consultation. It is to support debate. It is to support people being part of a process.

Not to support it is to shut the door on debate. It is to shut the door on consultation. It is to shut the door on people wanting to be part of the process. They have found it quite easy to make interjections while I am making this point. Now will be their opportunity to make their point, recorded in Hansard for them, for their constituents and for the whole area of accountability. Let us be very watchful as to whether in fact they do stand and speak on this amendment. If they do not, they send out the message that it just does not matter; that accountability, that debate, that consultation is insignificant in their opinion.

That is what I say to them. The Minister of Tourism and Recreation is looking at me now, and as I sit down after making this speech, then it will be his opportunity to stand up and make his views known, as it will the member for Guelph and the member for Chatham-Kent. Now is their opportunity to put in Hansard the interjections that they were so freely able to make while in silence and in anonymity.

Mr Hope: The invitation was there and I kindly accept it. I will try to stay with the amendment as long as the interjections stay low.

We talk about this piece of legislation that we are dealing with, and the amendments and the prolonged speeches we have just listened to, running out of words, having used members who are making interjections, and we made sure Hansard was getting it in there. But I think it is very important for the people who are listening to this debate and those individuals who are out there waiting to receive this cheque, there is a very important number they must be calling in order to make sure that they can get this cheque. The number is 416-826-7200.

Mr Callahan: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: Looking at the clock, I presume that the member who is presently standing has entered into the debate. You had called for questions and comments. I had risen on that point and not been recognized. If in fact that is the case, I submit that I should have had an opportunity to make comment.

The First Deputy Chair: I would have to point out to the member that we are in committee of the whole House and we are asking for comments. The member for Chatham-Kent may resume the floor.

Mr Hope: Just to reiterate the very important number that goes along with this amendment, 416-826-7200, which is the critic's phone number, so that these people will be able to receive their cheques come this fall. As we have listened to the presentation put before us, it is amazing that the opposition has referred to this amendment. I refer to a number of pieces of legislation dealing with Bill 162, which was introduced by the Liberal government, which affected workers and did not give them the right to debate regulations. There is also another bill, Bill 208, which dealt with the health and safety of individuals.

The very important objection to the amendment that is being put forward is, we were talking about financial difficulties that people are being faced with today because of the recession caused by whoever. I think it is important that the amendment we are dealing with says that we have to come back into this House and debate that issue again every time. We are witnessing the prolonging of debate using a member's objections as part of his speech. Do we want to get back into that or do we want to try to assist those people who need help during this recession?

Due to no fault of their own, I must add, the people we are referring to in this piece of legislation, these people who have been waiting for a long time—this amendment just prolongs that as we see the tactics that are being performed here in the amendment that says it must go back into the House to be debated again.

These are the kind of tactics we are using, and at the same time with two tongues we are talking about protecting those individuals, those workers in our community, with it. But it is amazing. When the official opposition used to be in government, it had a different view and perspective of workers and protection for their other counterparts. Today they talk about protection with a way of twisting the protection to make it look like the worker is the victim of all this.

The invitation was there for us to speak against this amendment and I am doing that. I feel it is very important that we address the needs of those individuals who have been affected through no fault of their own by this recession, made in Canada, and I think it is very important that we move on with the debate to make sure we do not keep using the objections that people are putting forward to make part of a speech. There are a lot of words. It is important that we get back.

But talking about the ability for freedom of speech, I believe through this government and some of the comments made around the amendment, that we as individual members of our communities will not have a say. I think it is very important to understand that through this government we do have accessibility. Accessibility is through those ministers who are responsible for making sure that changes can happen to help those who need help. It is very important when we are talking about a specific piece of legislation—dealing with this one—that the power reside in the hands of the minister of listening to the concerns of those individuals on a day-to-day process.

If we were to wait and introduce changes in this House—we introduced this bill last session and we are still at this bill while families are still waiting for their earned income to come from this bill that guarantees it. Do we want to get back into the process of waiting and waiting and seeing opposition tactics, or do we want to try to address those people, those families, those children who are part of those families, being affected by political opposition—

Hon Miss Martel: Opportunism.

1630

Mr Hope: Yes, opportunism as my colleague has said. It is just pure opportunism. That is all it is. What we have to do is make sure that when we are talking about the ability to service the people in our communities, the ability to service the people of Ontario—

Mr Offer: On a point of order, Mr Chair: The last comment made by the member for Chatham-Kent, I believe, imputed motive on my part, and one of the aspects that member spoke about was opportunism. I hope the member takes some time to think about what he has just said because this was a bill which was first made public, not as a bill but as a principle, last year, about 12 months ago. This bill was not introduced by the member's government in the month of October, November or December. It was not introduced until the following session. There was no opportunity because of the rules of this parliamentary process.

Mr Hope: What is the point of order?

Mr Offer: This is right on the topic because he has imputed motive. He has stated that our discussion is something based on opportunism. That is not the case. In fact, his government did not see fit to introduce this bill until last spring. The first opportunity we as legislators had to discuss this bill in committee with the people of the province was this summer. This is the first opportunity since this bill is in committee of the whole. We are taking, my goodness, a whole two days to discuss a bill which is such incredible importance to the people of this province.

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. The member will take his seat. I think we have heard the point of order. It is a fact that a member cannot impute false or unavowed motives to another member. While I did not hear the member for Chatham-Kent do so, I will give the member the opportunity, if it is his considered opinion on reflection that such was the case, to withdraw such remark.

Mr Hope: I must reiterate the number is 416-826-7200, which is a very important number in order to make sure that we get these cheques to the individuals who require and are owed this money. As I reflect on understanding—and they talk about consultation—there are a number of people in my riding who are anticipating and waiting for redress.

I remember during the presentations, as we reflected, an individual from my riding who made a presentation to the committee and I believe—I stand to be corrected—his comment was that $5,000 was not enough money because people were owed more money.

I think it is very important. This is where we have to reflect on the needs of the people in our communities. Consultation does not always take place in the committees. It takes place in our constituency offices. I have heard reference to closing the doors of the constituency offices. The doors of our constituency offices are not closed to the people.

As we introduced the wage protection program in the throne speech, I have been talking to a number of my friends and neighbours who have been affected by it. It is very important to note when we talk about this amendment the opposition critic has put forward that it is talking about prolonging pain and suffering that is occurring for a lot of people in our community, making it hazardous to those individuals, as we hear the cry about the increasing welfare costs for those people in a lot of our municipalities.

By introducing this amendment we reintroduce these amendments back into the House and we are into prolonged debates of non-substance. I think it is very important when we talk about the amendments that I as a member and any member of this Legislature may go to the honourable minister, who, I must add, is very open to a lot of dialogue around people both from business and labour, and anybody who is out there in the community has access to dialogue with such a fine minister.

I think it is very important if I need to prolong dialogue, if I need to bring dialogue to the minister to emphasize to him that the amount that is there or some piece of the legislation that is there may hurt the individual, the worker or the company, for instance. There are a lot of companies I have dialogue with, and there may be some areas we may need to amend as we discover areas of confrontation or areas that are not servicing the people of our community properly.

I feel very comfortable walking up to the minister, talking to the minister and hearing a number of other concerns, having the ability to do that. We are not back in here prolonging it, saying, "Oh, you made a whole bunch of errors and this piece of legislation is garbage," and we are back into the whole rhetoric.

I think it is important that we restore the ability, especially in this piece of legislation. Do not get me wrong. If there were some other pieces of legislation, I would probably stand and say—I know our government would not do it—where there needs to be more open dialogue around it. I know the minister would bring that out and make sure that it had to be a part of it. We are talking about day-to-day victims in our communities. The people being affected by this are men and women who may never have lost their jobs before, who may have worked in the workplace for 20 or 25 years or more. They may owe a lot more money to them.

When the bank says you owe $10,000, I am sure it will call the note and say, "You have to pay." This is what these workers are asking for, money that is owed to them. It is not a gift.

There was some heckling. I have to read this. There has been a special announcement here, because I hear the heckling from the other side that says I have been told to sit down and be quiet. I must say that the minister himself never stops us from talking. He feels it is very important to have open dialogue, but what he wanted me to add to this dialogue was a new number. It is area code 416-325-7151.

It is very important that people put the message across to the opposition member that it is very important to make sure that the understanding of this piece of legislation—which we have been locked up with for so long, I must add, but I want to keep referring to the amendment because there have been a whole lot of ideas sent out to the general public who are watching, probably drawing more attention than opposition members are.

I think it is very important, when we are talking about financial strains that are happening to the people of our communities, to give the minister the ability to make changes where he feels they are appropriate and where the colleagues and the members opposite will have that opportunity to put into that piece of legislation.

I think it is very important that there were other pieces of legislation the former government had introduced that affected workers and we never had the right—when we talk about health and safety, workers' compensation, they never gave us the right—to talk about the rights of those individuals.

I thank you for your indulgence, Mr Chairman, as I tried to keep on topic, and I know that I will support the minister in defeating the amendment that is being put forward by the opposition member.

The First Deputy Chair: The member for Mississauga West.

Mr Mahoney: Thank you very much, Mr Chairman.

Mr Hope: Mississauga: I'm going home.

Mr Mahoney: This is a Mississauga day. No, the honourable member can stay. I suffered through his nonsense, so he can stay.

I just want to point out one thing to the previous speaker before I launch into my very well researched and well-thought-out comments on the amendments by the good member for Mississauga North, and really the entire legislation.

I guess it is only because he was not here, Mr Chairman, you were here and the minister responsible for native affairs was certainly here. For the member to say there was no opportunity to talk on Bills 162 and 208—

Mr Hope: Ask who made the presentations.

Mr Mahoney: The member should ask the minister, the member for Sudbury East. I can remember her in the back row up here, screaming—I wondered if she was going apoplectic and was going to hurt her vocal cords—at the Minister of Labour over Bill 162 for weeks.

I remember attending meetings in my own riding in the basement of St Francis of Assisi church with this orchestrated, whipped-up group of people set up by the honourable minister, the then Labour critic for the NDP, who filled the church basement with all these people to attack my colleague the member for—wherever he is from—York Centre. He is out there doing other things. To suggest and to reiterate again that there was not an opportunity to speak—what were we being subjected to?

1640

I would like to go back in time and get the Hansard records that would show how much time the member for Sudbury East wasted in this place. Oh, her comments. If you want to hear repetitive discussion—I understand she learned her skills on her daddy's knee. I understand that.

Ms S. Murdock: Cheap, cheap.

Mr Mahoney: That is not cheap. I learned mine on my daddy's knee. It is a good thing that our daddies taught us something.

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. The member for Chatham-Kent will be seated.

I want to bring the committee to order. Certainly what is happening in this House at this time does the proceedings of this committee no justice at all. It would help a great deal if the member who had the floor were to focus his comments on the issue. It would also help if members of the government benches allowed the member to get his points across.

Mr Mahoney: Mr Chairman, I wonder if you could help me. I have a number of points I want to raise with regard to the amendments.

Interjection.

Mr Mahoney: I would like to get on with it, but you can appreciate that when the member for Chatham-Kent stands up and says there was no opportunity to speak—

Mr Hope: There was not.

Mr Mahoney: Mr Chairman, you were here. Maybe you could correct the record for me. Do you recall the debates on Bill 162 and Bill 208? He is trying to perpetrate a fraud upon the public in the province of Ontario.

Ms S. Murdock: You are imputing motives now.

Mr Mahoney: No. I think he is. He is trying to suggest something, Mr Chairman, and I would like you to correct the record.

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. I would appreciate the member reflecting on his remarks. I do not think you can impute false and unavowed motives to another member. I would ask you to reflect and withdraw those remarks.

Mr Mahoney: I will withdraw those remarks, but I ask again for some guidance from you, Mr Chairman, because if we are going to allow members, who then leave, to stand up in this Legislature and impute motives to my colleague and suggest that our government, when we were in government, did not allow an opportunity for dialogue on bills, when I know in fact we did because I sat through the dialogue, I sat through the debate hour upon hour, you can understand my concern when these kinds of statements are made.

Mrs Sullivan: We travelled throughout the province, and the Minister of Labour was there.

Mr Mahoney: And the Minister of Labour was very vitriolic in exercising his democratic rights and priorities in this Legislature.

Hon Miss Martel: That's how much he cared. In six weeks of travel, he never showed up once.

Mr Mahoney: The minister, let it be known for Hansard, said there were six weeks of travel on Bill 162. The member for Mississauga North has informed me that the government actually voted against travelling on this particular bill in a recorded vote.

I suggest that I could indeed rest my case. The nonsense being put across by speakers opposite suggesting that we refused to listen, that we refused to allow dialogue, is totally contrary to the facts. The facts here would indicate that this government on this bill, Bill 70, refused to travel around the province.

Ms S. Murdock: We and the Conservatives decided not to travel.

Mr Mahoney: The Tories decided they did not want to travel either?

Ms S. Murdock: That is right.

Mr Mahoney: What an unlikely pair of bedmates that would make; the Conservatives in bed with the Minister of Labour. Totally amazing.

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. Interesting as this backdrop may be, I would certainly appreciate it if the member could again focus on the amendment before us and speak to the substance of that amendment.

Mr Mahoney: Mr Chairman, I would like to do that. I think it is important. I would just leave that part of my remarks by saying that it is absolute nonsense for any member over there to stand up and say that we were not prepared to allow dialogue, after six weeks of hearings, followed by substantive filibustering in this place by the now Minister of Northern Development and Mines on Bill 162.

Let me also mention Bill 208, if I might, as it does relate to Bill 70 in the same sense of process, because ultimately that is what we are talking about here. The member has put some amendments forward on Bill 70. Members will recall the first one, which I believe was rejected. It was that directors of small business, 50 employees or less, are exempt from this legislation. What do we get? We get negative reaction. It is all set down. They have their seals all lined up. The decisions have been made. They are going to ignore that amendment.

I think the minister's comment was that he does not care about the size of the business. It is obvious we could extrapolate from that and suggest he does not care, nor does his government care, about the effects of any piece of legislation, notably Bill 70, on small business. I do not know what other conclusion to draw from that. That has been rejected.

Then there was another amendment that said—

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please.

Mr Mahoney: I am coming to the amendment.

The First Deputy Chair: I would remind the member for Mississauga West that the comments he is making are not relevant to this particular amendment. I think if you could look at the amendment and speak to this amendment, we would all be better served.

Mr Mahoney: The third amendment put by my colleague is the amendment we are dealing with. I was on the second amendment just to show members the pattern that the minister and the government have established. I was simply trying to build an argument and a case that would suggest that this minister, this parliamentary assistant, this group of trained seals, are not prepared to listen to any of the amendments put forward. They have already made that decision before we put them forward.

To satisfy your needs, Mr Chairman, I will go through the amendments in reverse order and deal with the amendment here, which is that any change to compensation levels should be dictated by legislation and not by regulation. It seems to me if that is dealt with in the same sense as the amendment I referred to on small business and the second amendment about company directors, they should be personally liable for lost wages only if they failed to exercise reasonable diligence in their position. They have ignored the first amendment, they have ignored the second amendment. They can understand perhaps why we go on at some length over these issues—because we understand they have already made their decision.

Ms S. Murdock: In committee.

Mr Mahoney: What is this Legislature for then? Perhaps we should not even bring bills. Maybe the new way of doing business under the Premier's socialist government would be to eliminate debate in the Legislature and simply allow the decisions to be made in committee.

Mr Chairman, would you think that is appropriate? I ask you for your learned opinion, in trying to address my questions through you.

Mr Mammoliti: Mr Chairman, on a point of order: Those last comments about the procedure in the House have nothing to do with the amendments we are speaking about. Please rule on it. I would appreciate it.

The First Deputy Chair: I thank the member for his advice and I shall continue to rule on precisely that, as I deem fit. The member may continue.

Mr Mahoney: I believe that actually makes my point, because what I believe we are talking about here is due process, democracy and the legislative process when we bring amendments into the Legislature. The member from Bowmanville thinks it is not appropriate for me to speak—

The First Deputy Chair: Order. The member for Yorkview.

Mr Mahoney: Oh, his riding is wrong. He lives in Bowmanville but he is the member for Yorkview. I am sorry. I stand corrected.

The point of the matter is that it is not only our right, it is clearly our responsibility to address all the amendments on the floor of this Legislature, yet we have members opposite standing up imputing motives of members in the opposition, imputing motives of the former government on good legislation, rising on points of order suggesting that I do not have a right to speak in this manner.

1650

The First Deputy Chair: Order. The member for Mississauga West will be seated.

Mr Mammoliti: On a point of order, Mr Chair: Let's straighten this out once and for all, because I am sick and tired of this Bowmanville stuff. I moved back into my area recently. I am sick and tired of people saying I live in Bowmanville. I do not live in Bowmanville.

The First Deputy Chair: Order. I have listened. I inform the member that this is not a point of order. I will ask the member to continue his comments.

Mr Mahoney: I am sure the member's constituents are delighted to know that he finally lives in their riding. I congratulate him for that.

Mr Stockwell: So are the people of Bowmanville.

Mr Mahoney: Particularly the people of Bowmanville. They are delighted. The value of the neighbourhood just went up.

The interesting thing about this bill and the level of comprehension of members opposite about it is that one member tried to suggest that without this bill we were going to be driving up welfare costs. What the member does not understand is that all the policies of this government, in relation to the labour community, in relation to small business particularly and in relationship to the taxpayer, are adding to the burden.

They are not causing it all, I have to admit. Mr Mulroney, a colleague of my friends over here, clearly has created the recession in many ways. But the government has created a sense of fear in the business community with bills like this and with other pieces of legislation, like the secret document revealing the NDP plans to give unions more power.

They leak these things out. They walk in and leave a bill on a desk, and then they walk away and pretend not to know they left it, so somebody can pick it up. It is called flying a trial balloon. They do this all the time. They create a great cacophony in the community of people who get upset.

An hon member: Sanctimony?

Mr Mahoney: Cacophony. Did they like that one? I do not know where that came from.

They create an uproar in the community just as they are doing with Bill 70, to come back to the legislation we are dealing with here.

An hon member: I don't know if there is such a word.

Mr Mahoney: There is such a word, absolutely. If the members opposite knew what it meant, we would be all right.

The point is that they create terrible upset in the community. What really bothers us here is that they do not understand it.

Mr Hope: You're sitting on that side of the floor and we're sitting on this side of the floor.

Mr Mahoney: It does bother me that I am sitting over here because of the damage the government is doing to this province. It has three and a half more years to do it. That scares the hell out of me and it scares everybody in the business community. The member is right. Finally he has made some sense.

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. We were doing so well there for a few moments. I ask the member for Mississauga West to continue his remarks. I ask for the co-operation of all the members of the House so that we can continue this debate in a manner that serves the people of Ontario.

Mr Mahoney: Mr Chairman, you have put very succinctly what our job is here. That is what I suggest when we deal with amendments like this, which members opposite do not understand because they have been given their marching orders. Let's deal with the—

Mr Hope: We know about the Peterson government. Talk about marching orders.

Mr Mahoney: The Peterson government is no longer; it is now the Rae government. We now live in the socialist republic of Ontario and we understand that, so it is our job to question them. What really upsets us is that they do not like that. They should appreciate that we are striving to make amendments that would make this legislation better because in essence while they hand out phone numbers for people to call to get their cheques, first, they know that is not appropriate, and second, by refusing to accept even one amendment that we are putting forward in a very proper, democratic, legislative way, they make it extremely difficult for us to support a principle we believe in. We have said that from the start.

Our critic for the Labour ministry has said from the start—last August the member for Mississauga North said: "The Liberal caucus supports the principle of providing compensation to employees when the companies they work for close down. These amendments"—the ones we have before the government, which are being disregarded in a cavalier fashion—"will ensure that employees are treated fairly and that the legislation receives a broader level of public support." They understand that we think legislation in this regard is critical, particularly so in light of the recession and the damage those people are doing to the economy. We think it is critical because we see, as they have seen, 300,000 people out of work, 50,000 bankruptcies—

Mr Abel: That's right. It's all our fault.

Mr Mahoney: No, it is not. I have said it is not all their fault. I want to give some credit where credit is due. As a matter of fact, I say to the Minister of Labour that I have been quite impressed with the change in demeanour he has shown since he went from this side of the House to that side. I have actually seen him crack a smile a couple of times, so obviously he enjoys and relishes the role of being Minister of Labour. I would not lay all the problems of the province at their feet.

If they refuse to accept amendments that will balance legislation, I say to the member for Durham East that if they would accept some amendments that would allow the Liberal caucus to come on board and support what is a very important principle, then they could have the legislation passed in a timely fashion. Then they could say to the people of Ontario that democracy truly worked. But that is not what they do. They go into committee, the member submits his amendment, which he has done in this case dealing with a change in compensation levels, and they refuse to discuss it. I do not understand why.

It makes me wonder if there is possibly a hidden agenda. By nature I do not trust a socialist government. I am sure members understand that and would not expect me to be any other way. But the public out there, is everybody who works at Algoma Steel, as long as they are going to be allowed to continue working, a socialist? Is everybody who works at Stelco in Hamilton a socialist? Is everybody who works at Dofasco a socialist? Is everybody who works in the mines in Sudbury, at Inco, a socialist?

I suggest they are not. Electorally all they have to do is to look at the history books to prove my case, that for years the city of Sault Ste Marie, my home town, sent Tories to Queen's Park. I do not understand why. It is strange. Why would they do that?

The reason they do that is because they have problems the same as everybody. They have kids in school and mortgages to pay and car payments to make. They understand that the socialist mentality will not put food on their table or create a better life for their children and for their children's children.

Interjection.

Mr Mahoney: I say to the member for Sault Ste Marie that they understand that this kind of myopic thinking is rooted in the past, that this kind of legislation is destructive and that this inability and this refusal—

Hon Miss Martel: Remember when Peterson said that in Sudbury. Where did he end up with that kind of nonsense about children starving? That's a crock. You know better than that.

Mr Mahoney: I say to the member for Sudbury East, who is creating quite a ruckus, that not everyone in her community is a socialist and she had better recognize it, notwithstanding the fact that she is herself an extremely hard-working member.

1700

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. The member will take his seat.

Mr Mahoney: That was on the amendment, Mr Chairman.

The First Deputy Chair: The member will take his seat. The member does very well when he speaks to the topic. The House gets on with the business that we are meant to be doing when you speak to the topic. When you incense the House with your remarks, the business is lost. I would only encourage the member to remain focused and I encourage all the members of the House to simply listen to the member's comments. The member has the floor.

Mr Mahoney: Mr Chairman, I appreciate your attempts to get the opposition members to get a grip on themselves. I think your comments are very appropriate.

The change that the honourable member for Mississauga North is putting forward, I would suggest, in relation to compensation levels, is something I will address quite specifically.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: It's not compensation levels.

Mr Mahoney: I am sorry. I did not hear the interjection by the minister. Would it be helpful if I heard it? Probably not.

The concern that I think the public would want us to raise and the concern has been expressed to me in phone calls and letters I have received is that they do not trust the government. That may not be, in all fairness, just this government. I do not think people generally trust government out there. That is why they can trust us, because we are no longer with the government. But clearly the people out there—

Interjection.

Mr Mahoney: Well, it is a short-time aberration. We will be back.

Why would the minister not agree to put a formula right in the legislation? I could speak for caucus and suggest that we would accept a predetermined formula that would find some way to address inflationary trends in the future, that perhaps would raise the limit on the per-claim basis. That sounds fair to me.

I do not think it should be stuck at the 1991 figure 10 years from now, Mr Chairman. Do you? I do not think that would be appropriate. But what they are doing is saying they will simply change the level of compensation in the back room.

We have seen today in this very Legislature a perfect example of why people should be concerned about that, when we had such an uproar and such acrimony between the opposition parties and the government because of the refusal of the government to tell the public what it is doing in the form of ministers' statements.

If we take my example, which says that this government is not prepared to announce its agenda in public, how can we trust it not to simply double or triple the level of compensation through regulations that are simply done by some bureaucrat somewhere? Boom, it pops out of nowhere, and all of a sudden the government has to find a way to pay for it.

That is the real concern that brings about this amendment, because we suspect that the way they will pay for it is simply by additional taxation, be it in the form of some kind of tax on the business community or in the form of some kind of tax that would increase the general level of taxation to put it into general revenue, the black hole, or in the form—who knows? They might increase the sales tax. They might do anything to generate the extra dollars to satisfy the demands of people like Bob White, Leo Gerard and Shirley Carr.

If I thought for a minute that this minister or this government truly was dealing with this legislation in an attempt to resolve the difficulties of the people—they in fact could prove to me that they were doing that if they were prepared to entertain, with just the slightest bit of seriousness instead of all the nonsense that we hear, some of our amendments.

Why would they reject them all? I do not understand that. Why would they reject them all? The public does not understand that. The amendments are very reasonable. They do not destroy the integrity of the bill. The member for Mississauga North has said that the Liberal caucus supports the principle of providing compensation to employees when their companies close. We do not want to see people going without duly earned wages. The government does not have some sanctimonious right to be the only party in the province or the country that represents the interests and the concerns of the working man and woman. The facts would prove that the working man and woman support Liberals, support Tories sometimes, do not support anybody sometimes.

The First Deputy Chair: Order. I am sure the working man and woman would also like to know what the member has to say about this amendment, and I would ask you to focus your comments on the amendment.

Mr Mahoney: Mr Chairman, I appreciate the fact that you have some difficulty in keeping members in order, but I really think it does focus on the amendment. I am sorry that I take a little bit of a roundabout to get there the odd time, but my point is that the working man and woman out there, whom these people think are all going to vote for the socialists, are frightened.

Not just the small business community, who are terrified, not just the municipal people, who are extremely concerned, but the average man or woman working on the shop floor is concerned when any government tries to leave itself in a position where it can amend legislation without bringing it back into the legislative process. That is the issue, and I do not know how I can speak any more directly than that, because that clearly is what our amendment would attempt to change.

Our amendment would say that the minister would not do this. He would not change the levels of compensation on a weekly, a monthly or perhaps even a yearly basis. He might want to do it yearly. If he wants to do it yearly, let's put in a formula.

There are all kinds of ways of doing that, whether he uses the consumer price index or the industrial wage. I do not know. I am not the minister. Maybe there are ways in which we could tie a formula into this legislation that would satisfy the minister's concerns and that would give us some comfort that we are not simply giving him a blank cheque.

The minister should imagine himself at the point where in reality he was on this side of the House and we were there. If we were attempting to do it, I strongly suspect that the Minister of Labour would be on his feet giving a speech very similar to mine, although perhaps without the reference to the support of the business community because, as I have already noted, they do not care about the business community. Without any doubt in my mind, he would be standing here saying, "We can't trust the Liberal government to have a blank cheque." I can hear him saying it.

I find it difficult to understand why, with such a balanced, fair, clearly understandable amendment, the government will not accept it. I suggest to the members that one of the reasons is that governments tend to entrench themselves. The bureaucrats in the Ministry of Labour—there was reference earlier to Bill 208, and it happened there—tend to entrench themselves and say: "This is the way we are going to do it. In Bill 208 we're going to give the unilateral authority for the health and safety worker rep to shut down the entire company if he or she decides there is an unsafe or unhealthy condition occurring in the plant." Unilateral—that was the gist of the legislation. The bureaucrats, just as they have done in Bill 70 and just as they are doing in their refusal to accept the amendments of the member for Mississauga North, said: "Just entrench yourself and dig your heels in. Don't listen to the opposition, because they are just going to go on and on without any justification."

1710

What is so fundamentally wrong with that is that it takes away the democratic rights of the people I represent—it truly does. It takes away the democratic rights of the people from all my colleagues in this House and it even takes away the democratic rights of the backbench of the NDP, because they have been told, "The can you're going to carry is this. Here it is, put it over your shoulder, get out there and fight the good fight and don't let anybody bother you, even if they start talking about giving us a blank cheque," which is exactly what this does. They should explain to their constituents back home why they should have confidence in this minister or this government, when we see them refusing to put their business forward in ministers' statement time.

To the member for Durham East, how does he explain it? Why should the public have confidence in this government to change the level of compensation in pretty well otherwise worthwhile legislation, with the exception of the other amendments we have put forward? Why should they have that confidence? Why should they trust the government—because it got 37% of the vote? That is what it got, 37% of the people of Ontario, which I would suggest, if the government analyses its position politically, is only about 12%, I say to the member for Yorkview.

Mr Mammoliti: Stop crying.

Mr Mahoney: I am not crying at all.

About 12%, maybe 14%, of its normal support level voted for it in a form of frustration and protest against the government of the day, the government in Ottawa, the Meech Lake issue, Brian Mulroney, Robert Bourassa, etc. They voted in the form of a protest. So when legislation comes in, as this does, that clearly says the government should have a blank cheque, why would it even expect that we should lie down and roll over? Why would it even think it is fair that we should do that? We happen to represent, between us, 63% of the province.

Mr White: You don't.

Mr Mahoney: I am sorry; in popular vote terms, we absolutely do. Excuse me, Mr Chairman, the old vocal cords are getting tested today. If we are representing 63% of the average working men and women, should we not have something to say about this legislation? Since the process says that even though the government got only 37% of the popular vote, it does indeed have the majority of the seats in the House, maybe we should allow—Mr Chairman, you have a member on his feet in some mode of anxiety.

Mr Martin: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: I find it really difficult to sit here and listen to the discussion go on and on. It has been pointed out to me that these discussions have been going on for months now on this piece of legislation. There are approximately 18,000 people out there in the province who are waiting for this legislation so that they might get paid for work they have already done. The folks who elected me in Sault Ste Marie, the thousands of people who voted for me in Sault Ste Marie, see that—

The First Deputy Chair: Order, please. The member will take his seat. I have listened. This is not a point of order. I am going to allow the debate to continue. The member for Mississauga North.

Mr Mahoney: West.

The First Deputy Chair: The member for Mississauga West.

Mr Mammoliti: The further west the better.

Mr Mahoney: Thank you. Mississauga West, although I am very proud of Mississauga, north, south and east as well, I can assure members.

Once again, the member rises on a point that simply proves my case. My case is that we do not understand why the minister refuses to accept an extremely reasonable, balanced amendment from an extremely reasonable, balanced member whose job it is, as the critic, to put forward amendments.

Mr Chairman, you have been in the cabinet. When you deal with legislation, do you suspect that when the legislation goes to cabinet the minister's critic is simply going to sit there like a bump on a log, that the critic for the Liberals, the official opposition, is not going to put forward amendments? Does that seem reasonable? It certainly does not to me, particularly when we recognize, as I said, that between the two opposition parties we indeed have a legitimate claim to say that we represent 63% of the population in the province.

What we have such difficulty with and the reason we debate the amendment is partly the legislative process, but I think a lot of people felt—we have a new Chairman; welcome sir, nice to see you here today—when they accidentally voted for the NDP, that they were voting for change. I encourage the government in fact to effect some change. But what has it done? It has ignored the amendments by this party. I do not know whether the Conservatives have been successful. I do not believe they have had any of their amendments accepted.

This government has said to the people of Ontario: "We're in the government and we're going to do this any damned way we please. To hell with the opposition and to hell with 63% of the population. We don't really care what they think."

As the member for St George-St David pointed out earlier, it is sending a message out to the public that says—and this is part of their socialist strategy—"If you really want changes, you had better not elect anybody other than an NDP." That is so undemocratic and so unfair, especially when you take a look at how reasonable the amendments are, Mr Chairman. Considering you are joining us for the first time this afternoon, let me just briefly share with you a very major concern with regard to how compensation levels get changed in this legislation.

This government wishes to change it by regulation instead of by legislation. I will not go over all that again, but the real fear, as I said earlier, of the men and women and of the future generations in this province is that in essence this is giving this socialist government a blank cheque and an opportunity to do whatever it wants. I happen to think that is wrong. I have suggested that they look at a formula.

I am perhaps speaking a little bit out of turn, but I would be prepared to talk to my colleague the critic so that maybe we would look at establishing a formula with the minister, if the minister were to agree to putting some kind of formula in the legislation. If the minister would stand up and undertake here to sit down and draft a formula and tie it to some form of public index, we could even withdraw this particular amendment—with the minister's undertaking that he would be prepared to work up an amendment to the legislation that would put some sense of security in the minds and hearts of people in the province.

I do not know how much more reasonable, as an opposition party, we could be. We could simply stand here and shout and say that this bill is totally wrongheaded and that the thinking is bad. We could go on and on, but the reality is—our critic has said it publicly and I am prepared to say it, as someone who really does not like the basic, fundamental foundation that the minister refuses to accept the amendments—that we are concerned as a party about addressing the problems that occur, particularly in facing the devastating economic times we live in.

I would be prepared to endorse the principle of wage protection for people who have earned wages in corporations that go out of business. God knows that is happening on a regular basis. But as I said before, the bureaucracy has got hold of the minister, the minister has got hold of the cabinet, the cabinet has got hold of the entire caucus and we wind up with an entire group of 75 men and women saying: "Yes, sir. No, sir. Three bags full, sir."

I thought those people were supposed to be different, yet all they can do is hurl insults at the David Peterson government, as the now-departed minister responsible for native affairs and the member for Chatham-Kent did at some length. All they can do is hurl insults, instead of recognizing what they ask us to recognize, that it is over a year since the government members took the mantle of power. We understand that. Reluctantly and unhappily, we are resigned to the fact that we are stuck with this government for probably another three to three and a half years.

1720

An hon member: Four.

Mr Mahoney: Well, four. I do not expect the Premier will call an early election. He probably did learn a history lesson, although you never know. If he decides, through some miracle of miracles, that this government is high in the polls, believe me, he is not above being somewhat political.

An hon member: Is that what happened to you?

Mr Mahoney: It was probably part of it, no question of that. The reality is that we are stuck with this government for another three and a half years.

Mr Klopp: You set the message.

Mr Mahoney: Look, if you would like to go back and rerun that election, I would be delighted to do that.

The Second Deputy Chair: Order, please. The honourable member should be addressing the Chair. He is being somewhat provocative. Please let's get back to the amendments.

Mr Mahoney: I am sorry, Mr Chairman. It is very much unlike me to do that. Every once in a while I just lose it.

Anyway, in wrapping up—

[Applause]

Mr Mahoney: This might take a while, I say to the Minister of Energy. In wrapping up, I really take some exception to members on the back bench. Instead of talking to this very worthwhile amendment, they stand up and stroke the minister, as the member for Chatham-Kent did, about what a wonderful minister he is and how he is listening. Well, he is not listening to us. I guess he thinks he is listening to them. As I pointed out to the member for Chatham-Kent, stroking this minister is not going to get the member into cabinet, as the honourable member knows full well, having been here for a while. I see he has left. Maybe he is out stroking the Premier. That is the guy who runs everything around here. That may, depending on how many scandals the honourable member has, get him into cabinet.

Mr Hope: Look to your right.

Mr Mahoney: What am I seeing to my right? The honourable member is a long way to my left. That just proves my point as well. The government members do not know their right from their left, they are so confused.

If the members opposite, instead of standing up and simply stroking the minister, would really take a serious look at our amendments—I have put forward a very positive suggestion of establishing a formula—I would be delighted. I promise the members opposite that I will be quiet if the minister gives me a signal—one of those non-verbal signals we were talking about earlier—that he is prepared to look at such an amendment. I can see he is not prepared. I am disappointed, although not surprised.

Other members stand up, and instead of talking to this very worthwhile, moderate amendment start talking about welfare costs, start using words like “non-substance,” start referring to Bills 162 and 208, suggesting that our government did not allow an opportunity for the democratic process to take place. That is absolute and utter nonsense. Then we get the surprise of surprises. We get a minister of the crown actually sending a note over with the phone number of the Labour critic’s office—talk about silliness—instead of addressing this very worthwhile issue.

I will be extremely interested to hear how the members, when they go back to their ridings, can justify a request for a blank cheque, how they can justify that they should give over to the authority of the bureaucrats—are they not the ones who always said government was too big? Are they not the ones who said they were going to change the way we do things in government? Are they not the ones who said the bureaucracy was out of control? I heard it all from the guy who ran against me for the NDP. I heard it all. Then what do I see? I see the government members come in, and just like little puppy dogs, get in line. Bureaucrats draft legislation and tell the government members:

“This is the way it should be. Don’t worry about the heat from the opposition. Do not even listen to them. It does not matter how reasonable, it does not matter how well-thought-out, it does not matter how fair their amendments are. They are simply their amendments and they are not to be your amendments. Like good little soldiers, off you go into the trenches, into the wars at Queen’s Park and do what you’re told.”

Then the cabinet, as I said before, instructs the caucus. We hear lots of stuff, as my colleague has pointed out, in the form of shots across the House. I would like to hear the member for Durham East speak on this. I have had a tremendous amount of respect for the member for Durham

East, ever since he unpacked the moving van and told his wife he was elected and said: “This was an accident. I have to stay home.” In all seriousness, I do have a lot of respect for the member.

Mr Morrow: Durham Centre.

Mr Mahoney: The member for Durham Centre is not a bad guy. He is not in the same league as the member for Durham East, but then he has not had the experience. I would like to hear his thoughts. Perhaps some of the other cabinet ministers who have joined us in the House would like to stand up and tell us how they feel about it.

No, they do not want to. They have been told not to. They have been told that under no circumstances should they stand up to the minister, for whom I have tremendous respect. There is the member for Elgin, which is the home of Marietta Roberts. How I miss her. What a wonderful member she was. Why does not the Minister of Tourism and Recreation stand up and tell us if he thinks this legislation is good? Does he think these amendments are unreasonable? He does not. I agree. He does not think they are unreasonable.

I recognize it is not his portfolio, but why will the Minister of Agriculture and Food not stand and share with us his views on these amendments? Does he think it would be fair for him to walk into this House and ask for a blank cheque? That is what this amendment does. This amendment to Bill 70, which I know the Chairman wants me to address, does exactly that. It issues a blank cheque with no recourse for the public and no opportunity for the public representatives in this Legislature, other than the ones who represent the ridings of all the trained seals on the other side of the House, to have a say on the amendment.

The members look puzzled. They do not understand. Let me explain it to them. I will explain it very simply. The amendment says that any change to compensation levels should be dictated by the legislation and not by regulation. What that really means is that we want it in the document.

The government will make us surprisingly happy campers if it simply amends the document to include a formula to allow for the public to have some insurance. I am sorry to use that word. I did not mean to get the members excited. I do not mean to be provocative. Perhaps “comfort level” is better. The government has already demonstrated in the budget with a $9.7-billion deficit how reckless and outrageous it can be, with no caring for the public purse. They waste money on wallpaper and carpet and drapes instead of dealing with issues that matter to people. How can they expect us or the public at large to give them a blank cheque?

I note the puzzled looks. Maybe I have struck a chord or two over there. Maybe some of them are saying, “This guy might have a point.”

Mr Mammoliti: You’re disgusting, Steve.

Mr Mahoney: I ask the minister if he will consider a formula. That is all I am asking for.

Mr Callahan: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: I heard the member for Yorkview use the word “disgusting” with reference to an honourable member of this Legislature. That is clearly contrary to the standing orders. I ask that you review the record, or perhaps the member has enough confidence to stand up and agree that he said that.

The Second Deputy Chair: The honourable member for Mississauga West, through the Chair, may proceed with the debate on this amendment.

1730

Mr Mahoney: I did not hear those remarks. As I said, I have been called worse by better. I am not too concerned if the best response the member can come up with is terminology like that. Being the type of person I am, I forgive him and hope he sleeps well this evening.

I really would like the minister to give some serious consideration to making it possible for me at least, if not other members of my caucus, to support this legislation. That is truly my wish. I would like, on the day that we vote on third reading, to be able to have it in the record that the member for Mississauga West clearly supports the principle of providing compensation to workers who lose their wages due to no fault of their own, due to the closing of their business through whatever problem. I think it is reasonable and fair and makes sense.

By refusing to accept the amendments that have been put forward, the minister makes it impossible for me to do that. It should be on the record that if he does not accept the amendments I will find it impossible to support the legislation, even though I support the principle.

I think the key argument that should be put out to anybody who finds himself or herself in that conundrum is that if you have principles, you cannot put them aside just to support the basic premise of the legislation when the actual details of the legislation destroy the principles that you stand for.

There is nothing that says we cannot support people in need in this particular case, in the case of failing businesses, of lost wages, and yet at the same time we must not ignore our responsibility to the taxpayer. There is no justification, because the people that lose the wages that we are seemingly trying to protect are taxpayers also. As a result, while they want help, they do not want us to run amok with their tax dollars. They do not want us to totally throw out any sense of fiscal responsibility when it comes to the many other problems that we face in this province.

They recognize that although it is extremely important for them to receive compensation in the form of lost wages through some form of government wage protection plan, unless this government finds a cash cow to fund this program, it is in one sense going to pay into the fund in one way while it simply turns around and takes out in another.

There is a principle there that says, "We are prepared to pay into these kinds of things as taxpayers, but no blank cheques." No wide-open authority that allows any government, particularly one that I do not trust or that my colleagues do not trust or that 63% of the people in this province do not trust, particularly a socialist government that is bent on dogma and ideology, that is rooted in the past instead of looking towards the future, instead of looking for ways to create new business, to create new jobs, to create an economy that is vibrant, that can generate the economic revenue that will allow the social programs that we all believe in so strongly to be afforded, particularly for a government that refuses to come into the Legislature—and I cannot even remember the last time a minister stood up in this House and made a statement outlining something of concern. I cannot remember the last time they did. Has it happened in this particular—maybe it has, but I cannot remember it and my memory is not bad.

Mr Hope: Maybe the member was not here.

Mr Mahoney: Maybe I was not.

The public, through members of the opposition representing 63%, would like to say to these gentlemen and ladies: "We do not trust you. We think"—

Mr Mammoliti: The public did not trust you.

Mr Mahoney: The public does not trust government. There is no question about that. But what this government is doing is exacerbating that feeling, making it worse, making it impossible.

I say to the Minister of Labour, he has a golden opportunity to show the public he can be trusted by simply accepting what should be some relatively innocuous amendments to him, but which would be extremely important amendments to the public process, to the confidence of the public, to the public we represent, and which would suggest to us that indeed they have listened.

But it is quite clear to me that they are not prepared to do that. I have asked the minister. I have given him opportunity upon opportunity in these five or 10 minutes that I have been speaking to give me some kind of a non-verbal signal that he would accept an amendment different than the one we have before us, that would allow for a fixed formula to be put in. Maybe the minister would be so kind as to rise in his place and explain to me and to this House and to the public of Ontario why he needs a blank cheque, why he refuses to put a formula in the legislation that clearly requires any change to the compensation levels to go through that formula, why he refuses to create a sense of confidence, perhaps for the first time—how long have those guys been in government? Too long, 14 months, whatever it is—since they got into government that we actually made some sense out of some of the legislation.

The minister would be delighted, I am sure, to find that on the day this particular bill ascends to the mighty altar of third reading that standing beside him would be the Liberal caucus. As difficult as that would be for me, if the minister would agree to these amendments, I would be prepared to support such legislation. I fear he will not.

Mr Chairman, I thank you for your attention and your patience and the time to say something that I consider to be of extreme magnitude, extreme importance to the people I represent and to the 63% of the population of this province who did not vote for this government.

Mr Mammoliti: I am sorry. I am compelled to stand here and respond to some of the comments that the member for Mississauga West has made.

First of all, I respect him very much. I sit on committee with him and I have certainly learned a lot from him in the past. Certainly his attire, his dress, is something I have learned. He has made comment on my tie today—this from the Herb Tarlek of this Legislature. I will take his note and I may change my tie tomorrow. I do not know. But what this has to do with the amendment I do not know. Why he chooses to stand up in this Legislature and criticize somebody's tie—

Mr Mahoney: On a point of order, Mr Chair: Perhaps you could help me. I know that I was accused of not speaking to the bill but I really did not speak in relationship to personalities.

The Second Deputy Chair: That is not really a point of order.

Mr Mahoney: Will you direct the member to speak to the bill?

The Second Deputy Chair: Yes. I want to remind the member who is addressing the bill that the member—

Mr Mammoliti: I will endeavour to stick to the topic. There are 18,000 workers out there are waiting for this bill to go through. I am not going to take a lot of time because they are waiting, and they are still waiting. Even though the people who sit across from us are saying that they agree in principle, I think there is an ulterior motive, frankly, and these amendments are certainly taking up a lot of time. By saying to the public, to the people out there, that they are concerned and that they care about wage protection—I do not know; I would tell the people out there to look exactly at what they are doing here: amendment after amendment after amendment.

Some 18,000 workers are waiting for this bill to be passed, and it is just not being passed. I understood we had an agreement today to at least vote on this. It is not happening. Why? Because of amendment after amendment. I cannot understand that.

1740

I would like to note as well that I have great respect for Bob White and great respect for all the union leaders out there. For them to keep bringing this up in this debate is something I cannot understand. Herb Tarlek brought it up a number of times, and I certainly cannot understand why. Perhaps he does not like the way Bob White dresses. I do not know. Maybe it is his tie that he does not like.

With respect to 63%, they represent 63%? My foot. Where he got the figure, I do not know. A lot of people did not vote last election. Did they not vote because they like the Liberals or they like the Conservatives? That argument, frankly, does not wash with me. To sit here and say that he is concerned about the 63% does not wash with me. They were not concerned about anybody when they were the government. They were concerned only about themselves. This ulterior motive to stall has me upset. I do not like the fact that amendment after amendment is up.

Mrs Sullivan: On a point of order, Mr Chair: The member is once again imputing motives, by indicating not only by the contents surrounding the words, but by the words themselves, that the members on this side of the House have an ulterior motive. That is imputing motives and ought to be withdrawn.

Mr Mammoliti: I would like to apologize to all the people out in Ontario and say to them that we are going to do our best to get this bill through. Some 18,000 people are waiting for this bill to go through, and on this side of the House we will do whatever we can to try to expedite things.

Mr Callahan: I am perhaps going to confine my comments to a narrow issue. I think it goes without saying that members of the Liberal Party, as have, I am sure, the Conservatives and also the government, have a real concern that workers who find themselves without a job because of a whole myriad of circumstances, particularly during this time of high recession—I prefer to call it depression—have to be protected. I think any member of this Legislature who did not have an empathy and a caring concern for the workers of this province would be a person who does not deserve to sit in this Legislature.

My concern, and the narrow issue I want to address, is the question of how you go about it. That issue really revolves around the whole issue of how our Legislature functions. Each one of us is elected by our own particular electors in our ridings. We are charged with the responsibility of seeing that their views are put forward in this Legislature, that their views are protected in this Legislature, that whether we are in a majority or minority government, their views will be heard.

I suggest that is the reason why it is so important, and that is the reason my colleagues who have spoken on this matter have addressed that issue. When you do things by regulation, the words “can be changed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council” conjure up in the minds of the public the fact that our very able Lieutenant Governor, whom I am sure they have great acclaim for—he has been an excellent man who has served this province well—is actually protecting their interest.

I have to tell the people of this province—I have said it before and I will say it again—that by doing it by regulation, by Lieutenant Governor's order in council, they have to understand that is really the cabinet, the government of the day.

Very often, and probably down through history—it does not necessarily start with this government or start with the Conservative government or even our government—it means a few people who make these decisions down in the back office or the side office or the second-floor office, some of whom may be elected and others unelected, are actually calling the shots for the health, economically, environmentally, fiscally—you name it—of this province, when each and every person in this Legislature was elected by the people in his riding to determine what should happen in here. That is democracy.

By this clause of allowing regulation to determine what the amount will be, I have to ask two questions. The first one that I would ask of the Minister of Labour or his parliamentary assistant is, if in fact it gives the power to increase the $5,000 figure, does it also give power to a future government, be it NDP or any other, to decrease it? That is what the regulation, as I understand it, says. If in fact it gives the power to decrease it, the government has not created a comfort for anybody in this province, because it will fluctuate as the Treasurer's budget fluctuates.

Just to go to a very interesting piece of material which I think every member of the Legislature should read, it was created by a committee that was chaired by David Fleet, who was the member for High Park-Swansea, I believe, when he chaired the standing committee on regulations and private bills. I give the former member for High Park-Swansea, David Fleet, great congratulations for the intellectualism and integrity to enter into this entire issue, because it is one that should be discussed openly. It is one that should be looked into by this government.

It is the fact that regulations never see the light of day. Regulations can be passed that members will never see, that will never be on the floor of this Legislature, that will never have an opportunity to be seen and debated. In fact, it is passed by the four, five or six—depending on what numbers there are—people who are the shakers of this province, and more often than not those shakers are the Premier, the Treasurer, the people who are on the policy and priorities board of cabinet and the major civil servants, who in their best efforts—the civil service has served this province well—attempt to put before their masters, the people who are elected to this House, the best possible legislation they can. But from time to time, there are ministers and governments that try to direct them to follow a particular bent, and when you put things in by way of regulation, you deny people democracy.

It flies in the face of the fact that the present government is the New Democratic Party. I suppose that people thinking about the New Democratic Party would say, “Democracy. Their name has ‘Democratic’ in it. Everything for democracy,” and here what they are trying to do is actually go around the corner of democracy. They are trying to do an end run on the people. They are trying to say to the people, “Hey, we’re going to do this, but we’re going to do it by regulation, by order in council.” The average person out on the street who has put his trust in each and every one of the people who is elected in this House really believes that this is how it is going to be done.

I am going to tell them again that it is not democracy, that in fact it is an effort by the executive of this government to use its powers in such a way that it can change it by various means. They can have a poll and discover that the economy is in such a state that they have to retrench, or they can say they will increase it and, as some of my colleagues have pointed out, they can in fact increase it to the detriment of the rest of the taxpayers of this province, because they have to foot the bill.

I see some of the government members over there actually listening, so I have to assume they were not told this in caucus. I can just picture it. Here is this giant caucus, 63 strong. They are meeting on Wednesday morning. They are in there and suddenly the minister stands up and says, “I’m going to introduce in the House this afternoon a bill that is going to do this.”

The government members raise their hands and they might get recognized maybe once every three or four days and get to speak. It does not really matter what they say. They have no input whatsoever. I really urge them—and I think I speak with authority because I guess I have been somewhat of a disturber, but I really feel passionately about the Legislature. I really feel passionately about the democracy of this place.

1750

Each and every one of the government members have to go back to their ridings and justify what has been done without very much of their input at all, with simply a vote that is called, and they are numbers. They stand there and clap like seals to vote for it, more often than not, not even knowing.

I would like to take a poll in this House as to how many of the government members have read through this bill from cover to end, understand the bill fully and the impact it will have on the people of this province. I am sure they understand it is to help the workers. We all understand that. That is a principle I started with. I said no member of this Legislature could possibly fault that.

There are people out there who have to put bread on their table. There are people out there who have to pay their rent. There are people who are being disadvantaged because of jobs leaving this province. They are being disadvantaged because of unscrupulous people who fold their companies and leave these people without the ability to look after their family. No question about that.

The government should please do one of two things: Either not do it by regulation, because that is the back door—that takes the empowerment out of their hands as legislators, as members representing their ridings totally—or put a cap on it, as I suggested. Then at least if they want to come back and change it up or down, they have to come back to the floor of this Legislature where we as elected representatives can debate this issue. They should not try to hide it under a shell or play a shell game with it. That serves nobody’s interests.

If they go and vote for it as it is, that it can be done by regulation, if they are led to the slaughter as helpless lambs because they feel by not doing so they are being disloyal to their government, then I suggest they are going to have real difficulty. They are going to wake up one morning and they might just decide: “Maybe I should read this bill. Maybe I should look at the Hansard and determine what I’ve really done.” They are going to say, “Oh my gosh, I didn’t represent the people in my riding.”

They are then going to have to go out on the election trail at some point and explain to these people, “It didn’t work, Mr So-and-so or Miss So-and-so.” “Why didn’t it work?” “It didn’t work because they did it in the back room, they did it through regulation. It never got on the floor of the Legislature.” The electorate is going to say to them, quite rightly, and they have said it in many elections in this province when they have just turfed governments out and turfed members out because these members did not listen, “They did not care enough to look at the issue and determine it themselves.”

The government members are not just one liquid blob over there. They represent 63 ridings, or whatever numbers, with individual people in every riding. They represent people from all walks of life, people who have sent them down here with a sacred trust, put their trust in them by voting for them and asked them to exercise the grey matter they each have, to exercise the experiences each of them have.

By simply folding into a liquid blob when the time comes for the vote and voting the way they have been told by the people who perhaps are in the forefront of this whole thing, they are putting a trust in them. What it means is that the electorate who voted for them are now putting their trust in them and they are giving their sacred trust to this group of four, five, six, seven people, half of whom are probably not even elected. To me, and I think to many members, the government does not want to take the trust that was given to it on September 6 and simply put it over here on the counter and tell those four, five or six people, "Use it as you wish." That is not a fair representation of the electorate.

I think if they could spend one term here, they could spend two terms, they could spend three, four, five. Whether or not people believe it, the people who have served in this Legislature have served it well. They have worked hard, they have given up their families to be here, they spend great concern in their constituency offices with their people to help the individuals in their ridings.

If they can go away from this place feeling, "I did something I can be proud of, rather than something I will look at afterwards and regret," the time they spend in this Legislature, be it short or long, is worth while. If they cannot go away feeling that way, then all they have done is occupy a seat. They have wasted their own time and their families' time. They have given that to the public, but it has been nothing more than a sham.

I do not think that is the history of this Legislature. One would hope there are individuals among the government ranks who are going to say: "Hey, I don't care what you might be able to do for me or against me. Here's the way I feel. Here's what I believe. I want anything as important as this issue to be debated in the Legislature because that is where democracy reigns."

If they allow the government to do it through the back door or the back corridors or the corridors of power in this province, they have failed their constituents, they have failed themselves, and I suggest that when they leave this place, they cannot honestly say they served the trust that was put in them by the people who elected them.

Having said all that, I want them to take a look at the bill and understand that orders in council and regulations are called the silent laws of this province. They are made by the stroke of a pen in the cabinet or the Premier's office or with a group of people in the policy and priorities board of cabinet. They are never scrutinized by anyone.

The standing committee on regulations and private bills has a limited mandate. It is entitled to see whether or not that regulation meets the terms of reference of that committee. The terms of reference of that committee do not allow it to interfere with policy. So if the government members do not open their mouths now and raise one small cry for democracy, they will look back on it on a later occasion and say, "I failed my electorate."

I urge the government members, because I know they are all good men and women and want to serve their public, to look at it and think about it and think about the fact that this chamber was not just erected so we could all stand up here and talk.

An hon member: Blab.

Mr Callahan: One member says "Blab." He is right, but that is what democracy is all about. I would rather have the opportunity to blab and to put forward the points of the people who elected me than to simply applaud what has been made by a select group of people. If that is democracy, then maybe it is time we should look into the question of what they did in history with the Magna Carta by telling the King that the King's powers were not ultimate, that they had the right to certain basic freedoms.

On motion by Mr Mackenzie, the committee of the whole reported progress.

À la suite d'une motion présentée par M. Mackenzie, l'étude du projet de loi en comité plénier de la Chambre est ajournée.

The House adjourned at 1800.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Hon/L'hon Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND) Minister of Community and Social Services/
Ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND) Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND) Minister of Education, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre de l'Éducation, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/
Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/ Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND) Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Oriole L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND) Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/
Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/
Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/
Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND) Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/
Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/
Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND) Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement

Grandmaître, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

- Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
- Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)
- Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général
- Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
- Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)
- Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement
- Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur
- Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications
- Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)
- Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)
- Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires
- Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie
- Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises
- Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND)
PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu
- Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)
- Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)
- Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
- Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)
- Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND)
Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie
- Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités
- Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND)
Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail
- MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative
- Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiles, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales
- Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales
- Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
- Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines
- Martin, Tony (Sault Ste. Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation
- Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement
- McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)
- McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)
- McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
- McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)
- Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général
- Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
- Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice
- Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)
- Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail
- North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs
- O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
- Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)
- O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)
- O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition
- Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement
- Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)

Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General, Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général, ministre des Services correctionnels

Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)

Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des comptes publics

Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND) Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones

Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre, ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales

Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)

Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)

Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux

Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)

Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)

Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement

Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)

Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)

Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)

Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)

Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)

Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques

Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West /-Ouest ND)

Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)

Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)

Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie

Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu

Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND) Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation; Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources

Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé

White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND)

Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister of Government Services/Ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND) PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications

Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)

Winninger, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des Services correctionnels

Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)

Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles

Ziemba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND) Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli, Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills, Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan, Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/

Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland

Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison, Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti, Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott, David Turnbull

Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon

Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford, Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen, Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil, Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway, W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson, Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson, Drummond White

Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/

Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Vacant

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher, Leo Jordan, Ellen MacKinnon, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Drummond White, Jim Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters

Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary, George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp, Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano

Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck, Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod, Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/

Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson

Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves, Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski, Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner

Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan

Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini, Kimble Sutherland

Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Wednesday 9 October 1991

Members' statements

Toronto waterfront	2809
Mrs Caplan
Niagara Escarpment	2809
Mr B. Murdoch
Balls Falls Thanksgiving events	2809
Mr Hansen
Mining industry	2809
Mr Miclash
Negotiations with Ontario Pharmacists' Association	2810
Mr J. Wilson
Greater Niagara General Hospital	2810
Ms Harrington
Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome	2810
Mr Curling
Grand Valley Lions Club	2810
Mr Tilson
Member's comments	2811
Mr Fletcher
Mr Arnott
Sabrina Panetta	2811
The Speaker
Use of question period	2811
The Speaker
Correction	2811
Mr Mahoney
Ministerial statements	2812
Mr Elston
Mr Scott
Mr Wildman
Mr Eves
Mrs Caplan
Mr Sorbara
Mr Stockwell
Parliamentary procedure	2817
Mr Elston

Oral questions

Sabrina Panetta	2816
Mr McClelland
Ms Akande
Royal visit	2818
Mr H. O'Neil
Mr Rae

Government spending	2819
Mr Harris
Mr Laughren
Court system	2820
Mr Harris
Mr Hampton
Etobicoke waterfront development	2821
Mrs Caplan
Mr Cooke
Wage protection	2822
Mrs Witmer
Mr Mackenzie
Waste management	2823
Mr Mills
Mrs Grier
Hunting in Algonquin Park	2823
Mr Ramsay
Mr Wildman

Sabrina Panetta	2824
Mr Mahoney
Parliamentary procedure	2824
Mr Elston

Petitions

Oath of allegiance	2825
Mr J. Wilson

Reports by committees

Standing committee on government agencies	2825
Mr Runciman
Deemed adopted	2825

Committee of the whole House

Employment Standards Amendment Act, 1991,
Bill 70	2825
Mr Offer	2825
Mr Hope	2829
Mr Mahoney	2831
Mr Mammoliti	2839
Mr Callahan	2839
Progress reported	2841

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities
Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le mercredi 9 octobre 1991

Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Listes des députés

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur les normes d'emploi, (Programme de protection des salaires des employés), projet de loi 70	2825
Étude ajournée	2841

Les députés et leurs responsabilités Comités de l'Assemblée législative
--

67 1991

67 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Thursday 10 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le jeudi 10 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

EXTERNAL SURVEY OF HANSARD USERS

We are conducting a review of the Hansard reporting service. We want to ensure that the review results in improved service to the users of Hansard. To accomplish that, we need your cooperation in identifying the kind of service you need. Please return the completed survey to us by fax or mail before October 25, 1991. We will use the results of the survey to ensure the recommendations focus on meeting your needs. Thank you for your cooperation.

HANSARD REVIEW
ROOM 2503 WHITNEY BLOCK
LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
QUEENS PARK TORONTO ONTARIO
M7A 1A2

FAX NUMBER 416-325-7236

1. WHAT KIND OF HANSARD USER ARE YOU?

Member of Provincial Parliament		Association, Trade Union, Institute, etc.
Member's Personal Staff		Crown Corporation
Party Caucus Staff		Business
Office of the Assembly		Professional (e.g. law firm)
Government Ministry		Library
Other (please specify)

Indicate the appropriate response for the Hansard version that you use. If you use more than one Hansard type, enter appropriate multiple responses.	House	Committee
2. HOW OFTEN DO YOU USE THE VARIOUS HANSARDS?
Daily
Weekly
Monthly Annually
Other (please specify)
3. HOW DO YOU RECEIVE HANSARD?
Subscription service
Government book store
Other (please specify)

Indicate the appropriate response for the Hansard version that you use. If you use more than one Hansard type, enter appropriate multiple responses.		House	Committee
4. HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO RECEIVE HANSARD?
Daily:	Subscription (by mail)
	Government book store
	Computer medium (e.g. diskette)
	Data base service
Annual:	Computer medium (e.g. CD-ROM)
	Bound printed volume
	Other (please specify)
5. WHEN DO YOU RECEIVE HANSARD?
	Within a day
	Within two days
	Within one week
	Over one week
6. WHEN WOULD YOU LIKE TO RECEIVE HANSARD?
	Within one day
	Within two days
	Within one week
	Over one week
7. HOW OFTEN DO YOU OBTAIN HANSARDS OF PREVIOUS YEARS?
	Never
	Every day
	Once a week
	Once a month
	Once a year
8. WHERE DO YOU OBTAIN THESE PAST HANSARDS?
	Your personal or office copy
	Government book store
	Library
	Other (please specify)

Indicate the appropriate response for the Hansard version that you use. If you use more than one Hansard type, enter appropriate multiple responses.		House	Committee
9	HOW WOULD YOU LIKE OBTAIN INFORMATION FROM PREVIOUS HANSARDS?
	Current system
	Government book store
	Library
	Data base service
	Annually published bound volume
	Computer medium (e.g. CD-ROM)
	Other (please specify)
10	RANK HANSARD IN TERMS OF (1 GOOD ...5 POOR):
	Delivery
	Ease of reading (e.g. size of type)
	Subject headings
	Contents page
	Indexing
	Format (e.g. computer, paper)
	Other (please specify)

11. If you currently subscribe to Hansard, would you be willing to pay for Hansard in a more convenient format (e.g. CD-ROM, commercial data base, bound volumes)?

12. How could Hansard improve its service to you? Please be specific.

12. Are there any issues not covered above which you would like to comment on?

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Thursday 10 October 1991

The House met at 1001.
Prayers.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

PRIVATE MEMBERS' PUBLIC BUSINESS

COUNTY OF SIMCOE ACT, 1991

LOI DE 1991 SUR LE COMTÉ DE SIMCOE

Mr J. Wilson moved second reading of Bill 132, An Act respecting the Amalgamation of Municipalities in the County of Simcoe.

M. J. Wilson propose la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 132, Loi concernant la fusion des municipalités du comté de Simcoe.

Mr J. Wilson: The thrust of my private member's bill is quite simple. It deals with the fundamental principle of a democratic society, that is, the right of the majority to determine their fate. Amalgamating municipalities against their will only serves to distance the public from the institutions that govern them and further fuels the widely held conviction that government is not listening to them.

This morning I want to explain to the members of the Legislature why I feel so strongly that the proposal to restructure Simcoe county is and has been seriously flawed from the outset and that the wishes of the majority of the ratepayers in the county have been ignored. Today we have the opportunity to correct the mistakes of the past, to restore faith in our democratic system and institutions and to truly respond in a meaningful and tangible way to the wishes of the people.

While the previous Liberal government allowed itself to be imprisoned by the bureaucracy in the Ministry of Municipal Affairs, we as legislators now have the right to demonstrate that we take our responsibilities seriously and that we are here to stick up for and fight on behalf of our constituents.

Between 1987 and 1990, the Liberal government authored three major restructuring reports which set out to strengthen county government in Ontario. However, at no point was a consensus achieved from the people whereby the people of Ontario agreed to move forward with this restructuring policy.

The last of these three reports was entitled Toward an Ideal County: Principles and Programs for a Strong County Government System in Ontario. This document laid out the terms of reference and the process for the county restructuring studies which are under way.

Here we come to one of the fatal flaws in this extremely flawed restructuring process. The previous Liberal government was clearly aware of the public's dislike of both regional government and its strengthened county government that jeopardized local autonomy. The Liberals got around this by downplaying the notion of regional government and stacking the study committees to produce a desired, predetermined result.

Why did Simcoe county embark upon a restructuring process in 1989 that would eventually culminate in its final report of July 15, 1991? Initially, Simcoe county councillors had good reason to believe that to do nothing would invite the provincial Liberal government to swoop down and remake the county in the image it desired. Faced with this prospect, and considering the findings of these Liberal reports, Simcoe county had no choice but to at least attempt to have input into what it foresaw occurring.

The previous government paid dearly at the polls in the last election for its arrogance. However, the trap had been set. Simcoe county was a year into its study and the new NDP government, driven by that very same bureaucracy, was encouraging local studies to continue until completion. Simcoe county, which began its restructuring study so that change would not be imposed, now became imprisoned by its own initiative. Every time it wavered, it was encouraged to continue by an NDP government that was eager to see this "locally driven" study completed.

Eric Beecroft is a political scientist at the University of Windsor. In his review of restructuring in Oxford county, he postulates that local support and initiative are crucial ingredients to the eventual acceptance of restructuring by the people. I do not doubt for a second the quality of Mr Beecroft's assertion that local support is key if restructuring is to prove successful. The difficulty I have is applying the notion of "locally driven" to the Simcoe county example.

I have received a flood of telephone calls and letters from constituents who are anything but supportive of this restructuring process in Simcoe county. My constituent Mr John Porter writes: "It is hard for me to envision any significant benefit which the residents of Nottawasaga township will receive from this restructuring. On the other hand, it is very easy to conclude that tax increases for Nottawasaga residents are highly probable."

Mr William Hall writes: "I oppose the proposals to restructure Simcoe county. I have concerns because of my experience living in Cambridge as a victim of regional government that (1) taxes will rise inappropriately for services provided, (2) there will be a loss of identity, and (3) representation will suffer."

Mr MacFarlane of Glen Huron says: "Nottawasaga should remain a rural community with a rural identity and a rural government. Amalgamations such as that proposed are highly suspect. They are driven by interests other than those of the rural community."

The latter part of Mr MacFarlane's comments, that restructuring studies are driven by interests other than those of the rural community, sheds significant light on another fatal flaw of the restructuring process. The study process has the potential to be controlled by the interests of a few.

There is good reason to believe a lobby developed within Simcoe county council to support the amalgamations and boundary changes. The towns of Midland, Collingwood and Stayner wanted these changes in order to grab more land and assessment and a larger tax base in order to pay their sizeable debts. The four townships bordering Barrie supported restructuring in order to hold off the city's expansion until the agreed-upon date of 2012. The south Simcoe municipalities supported the changes because they had already been subject to forced amalgamation by the previous Liberal government, effective the beginning of 1991.

Further reinforcing my point is the makeup of the Simcoe county study committee. Five of the nine representatives came from the newly amalgamated towns, so I ask, how could these representatives be truly objective in determining whether the remainder of Simcoe county should undergo a similar amalgamation? Two other committee members were from towns looking for additional land and assessment, while another was from a township bordering Barrie. Eight of nine committee members were representing interests that may be described as not in the best interests of the county as a whole. On top of this, the cities of Barrie and Orillia were asked to leave the study committee, even though they represent an integral part of Simcoe county. This alone compromises the value of the final report drafted by the Simcoe county study committee.

1010

I want to quote from Marc Lalonde, a Liberal, who in 1965 said, "The dispute between levels of government in Canada is essentially connected with the power politics of the various groups of people involved and has very little to do with the welfare of the individual citizens of the country."

These words have added significance in the post-Meech Lake era that we are now in. There are striking similarities between Simcoe county's restructuring study process and the Meech Lake constitutional accord. Both made decisions behind closed doors. Both arrived at decisions tailored to certain interests and forsook the general welfare of the nation, and both forgot about the people. Whereas the drafters of Meech ignored public input, the authors of the Simcoe county restructuring report consulted the public but omitted their concerns, I believe, when drafting the final report. At every public meeting, residents of Simcoe county overwhelmingly expressed their disapproval for the whole restructuring idea. Regrettably, this disapproval was overlooked when county councillors voted on the final report.

I also must question the role of the NDP government since coming to office. The Minister of Municipal Affairs has played a shrewd game of poker with these studies. He has encouraged their completion, yet he has not responded directly to any of the studies.

I would certainly expect support for my bill from my NDP friend the member for Simcoe Centre, who in a memorable debate during last year's election campaign said: "When I am elected member for Simcoe Centre, I would see the proposed restructuring of Simcoe county scrapped. We don't need to become a northern Mississauga." This assertion was also supported by the Premier, who said during the election that the province should tread carefully with restructuring.

I yield the floor to other members. A little later my colleague the member for Simcoe East will further explain some of our concerns regarding the restructuring process and the study process in Simcoe county.

Mr Drainville: I am glad to have this opportunity to speak briefly to the views set forward by the honourable member for Simcoe West.

I come from a riding, Victoria-Haliburton, where such a study has been ongoing, a study of Victoria county. We encountered a number of problems as well in terms of that study, and there have been questions as to the viability of restructuring. When it came down to the vote in the county council, they voted basically to do away with many of the recommendations that were put in the report. I want to put that in the background as I give my remarks.

There is no question that this whole issue of restructuring is an important one. In fact, quite apart from the comment from the honourable member indicating that the minister has been playing a game of poker—it is not a game of poker at all; it is that in all the realms of possibilities in terms of policies that we have to address ourselves to, this is a very contentious, a very controversial and a very difficult one. It is not so facile as just to say we are going to respond this way or we are going to respond that way as soon as we take power. Rather we have been looking at and trying to see the process that has gone on before, with some questions about that process, and acknowledging that we have to make some changes and move in some different direction, which we would like to do.

I want to say to the honourable member that there is a very clear feeling among those of us who are in government that we need to develop a comprehensive approach to reform while at the same time recognizing the integrity and the diversity and the differences in each of the counties. That has to be stated as we look at our policies and how they will develop in the next while. The minister will shortly be addressing this issue in a very public way. I want to say, though, we have to deal with the views that have been put forward in this House and we have to deal specifically with Bill 132.

Regarding the situation in Simcoe, it has to be stated for the public record that this whole process set up by the Liberal government before was to attempt to see a renewal of the county structure of government in Ontario. There is no question there are flaws. There are flaws in everything we do in government and there were flaws in that piece of legislation as well. But there is no question in terms of the plan put forward that there were some very real things that government was trying to address that had to be addressed by the county government and the local municipalities. There is no question at all either that in terms of Simcoe county, as we see in the final vote of the Simcoe county council, which was 42 to 26, there was a very substantial vote in favour of the report being put forward to the county.

The other thing is that the study was to be completed and was completed by June 1991 and it received comments from every part of the public until the end of October. I realize there are charges in Simcoe county that there was not enough consultation. We always face that in this particular job. People always say after a decision has been made that there has not been enough consultation, particularly if they differ with the perspective put forward or the change being moved.

In terms of our response at this point, we need to say that these are the important background points to understand about the Simcoe county restructuring; all studies that have been done across the province in whatever county have been locally initiated, that is, people who are involved in the day-to-day operation of those municipalities were involved in those studies. They had an opportunity to be part of that committee and to discuss these things and to put their views forth within the county.

Also, we have to say that all municipalities repeatedly had opportunities to make sure the committee had its particular perspectives taken into account. In terms of any final recommendations that were oriented towards boundary changes, they were proposed directly by the individual municipalities involved.

The last and most important thing is to understand that to accept the bill as put forward by the honourable member today would in a sense take the government prerogative to deal with this issue across the province and put it into some jeopardy by saying, "Oh, no, not Simcoe county." In fact the minister has the obligation to respond to this and ensure that the good of the whole of the province is also taken into account. That is what his role is as Minister of Municipal Affairs.

In conclusion, I would like to say to the honourable member that I agree there are some questions about the way things were done. Certainly I have questions about the way they were done in Victoria county. To indicate that somehow this bill is going to correct that for Simcoe county I do not believe, nor do I believe it would be helpful in terms of the work of the Minister of Municipal Affairs in trying to establish a policy for the province. So I have to say that I cannot accept this bill as put forward and I will be voting against it.

Mr Mahoney: I intend to speak in support of the bill and wonder what the honourable member has against a northern Mississauga. I was somewhat dismayed to hear that reaction, but I will get over it and I will continue to support the honourable member because I think he put forward an issue that is very fundamental.

I am somewhat disappointed to hear the honourable member for Victoria-Haliburton say he cannot support the bill, because the fundamental aspect of this bill, particularly in private members' public business, is that I firmly believe the best government is the government that is closest to the people. They are the people who can understand what is best for their particular community.

What the honourable gentleman opposite has said is that if we were to support this bill—I believe this is close to the exact quote—it would take away the government's prerogative to make a decision with regard to Simcoe county. Since when should any government have the prerogative, the ability to force something on the citizens of a local community that they do not want? I just find that repugnant and believe there must be a process put in place that allows for the people in the county of Simcoe to make a decision through their elected representatives as to what is particularly best for the structure of their community.

1020

I would like to touch for a moment on the task force set up by the former Minister of Municipal Affairs, John Eakins. I was asked to serve on that task force because, as some members would know, I spent the better part of 10 years at the municipal and regional level as a councillor in Mississauga and a councillor in the region of Peel and I have some background and understanding of the difficulties and concerns facing local government. I enjoyed very much the opportunity to travel around the province to the various communities.

I should also tell members that I spent three years on the board of directors of AMO, the Association of Municipalities of Ontario and, as a result, had an opportunity to talk to a lot of folks not only from counties like the Simcoe community but from all across the province about what affects them and what concerns they have. It is unfortunate that the member would see that task force as a negative deed by the former government, because my experience was quite the opposite. I came to the conclusion that the people in the counties did not want regional government or restructuring or anything of that nature forced on them without their having a clear-cut opportunity to discuss it, debate it and take it to the people.

The message was driven home loud and clear to me in all the counties I visited across the province as part of that task force. Contrary to what the honourable gentleman has said about the performance of the former government, I think if we did one thing really well, we listened to the people at the county level. We went out on a task force and we talked to them. We had meetings with them, spent time in their communities, toured their communities, had lunch with the reeves and the councillors, met with the local business community, talked to various interest groups in those different communities and tried to get a focus, a handle, an understanding on what it is they wanted.

If there was one thing that came across loud and clear in those deliberations, it was: "Let us control our own destiny. We realize that we are creatures of the province. We realize that we need legislation to do whatever it is we want to do, but we'd like as much of that legislation as possible to be permissive legislation. Give us the authority with which to make our own decisions and run our own lives."

Frankly, that is what I see Bill 132 doing. It simply says to the government: "Look, Simcoe county is particularly concerned if you're going to come in and take the map and a crayon and start drawing lines. You're going to create little feuds, neighbour against neighbour, family against family, an upheaval in the community that is totally unnecessary."

They say they do not want to become a Mississauga north or a north Mississauga. I remember well in 1974 when we amalgamated the communities of Port Credit, Streetsville, Cooksville and all of these wonderful communities within the city of Mississauga. We formed a city and we formed the region of Peel at the same time, and I remember well that there was a fair amount of acrimony over doing it.

But I also remember, with all due respect to the government of the day, that it allowed for a public process to take place in the community, for debate and dissension to take place in the community and for the local representatives to be involved. The current mayor, Hazel McCallion, was very actively involved at that time as the reeve of Streetsville and, as members can appreciate, would have been somewhat outspoken against the formation of regional government. But in a constructive way, at least the opportunity was there for the community to set its course and set its destiny.

Notwithstanding the fact that there were a lot of people opposed to regional government, I will admit that at least the opportunity was there for debate. They did not go quite as far, however, as this member would have this government go in respect of local autonomy and local decisions. What this bill says is that restructuring should not be allowed "unless the council of the affected municipality, by resolution, consents to the amalgamation."

Were that kind of philosophy to have been in place, were this member to have been a member of this Legislature at that time and be in support of a similar bill for Peel, today we would not have the region of Peel, in my humble opinion. However, the important thing is that the dialogue at least took place. The concern the counties have expressed is that bigger is not necessarily better. Frankly, as a resident of 22 years in the city of Mississauga and a member of that council, I can tell the members that is true.

The one thing we have striven to do in our community that would support the concept put forward by the honourable member is to preserve our neighbourhoods and our communities. In my own city, even though it is part of a massive region of 500,000-plus people, even though we have what would appear to be certain duplications, we have some excellent services such as the Peel Regional Police Force, one of the finest in Canada. We have an ability to deliver social services on a regional basis with one of the finest departments.

We have a non-profit housing company that is the model of non-profit housing. I know the Conservatives do not like non-profit housing but, as the past president of that company, I happen to be very much in support of it. It is one of the finest housing corporations in all of Canada. Indeed, it is used and held up as the model for establishing non-profit housing programs and projects throughout this country. We have some very fine, first-class services.

At the same time, there are people who would say there is duplication. As we are part of that as a city, I think what makes it work for us is that we have the ability to maintain our grass roots. We feel we have a sense in our community of actually having something to say. Frankly, if this government is not prepared to support what really is a very innocuous, albeit a very good resolution—I say it is innocuous because it simply says "Don't do this unless the people agree"—if the New Democratic Party does not agree with that principle, I for one would be quite astounded.

I do not mean to be partisan on this issue. For years I have heard candidates from that party talk in terms of supporting the grass roots, of listening to the people, of providing a forum, an opportunity for people to have their say. If this government were now to throw this resolution out and defeat it, I could only interpret that, and I would respectfully submit the people of Ontario could only interpret that, as meaning those principles have been thrown out with it, those principles that the rank and file of the New Democratic Party have held close to their heart for years; at least we have been led to believe it is close to the heart of that particular institution.

I think it is a very critical vote for the members of that party. Considering that this is private members' public business, there would presumably not be a whip on. The members presumably would have the ability to stand up and vote in whatever way their conscience suggests is right and fair. If I am wrong on that I would be quite concerned, because over the years we in our party have had debates, as I am sure the third party has, about how exactly Thursday morning's private members' hour should function.

It is called private members' hour for a reason. It allows the member for Durham East to make a decision based on what he understands he would want in his community. It allows the member for Oxford to make a decision based on what the folks in Oxford really feel, not based on what the Minister of Municipal Affairs tells them to do, not based on what the Premier tells them to do and not based on some platform that has been cooked up in the caucus room of the New Democratic Party.

1030

Notwithstanding that the honourable member for Victoria-Haliburton has spoken against this, I sincerely hope a number of them on that side of the House, the member for Sault Ste Marie and others, understand the importance of local representation and the significance of giving people the opportunity to make a choice at their local level. I hope a number of them recognize, as I said in my opening remarks, that the best government is the government closest to the people. The best way to ensure that government functions is not to hamstring it, not to dictate from some great 12th floor in the Whitney Block that this is how it will do things, not to send policy from Bay Street and Bloor Street to wonderful communities like Simcoe county, but to allow the local representatives an opportunity to express the will of the people.

There was a suggestion that the council voted in some way that was unacceptable. I very strongly believe it is the responsibility of the duly elected municipal politicians to listen to the concerns of their communities, to weigh the pros and cons, to look at the benefit and deficit sides of the issue and then to make a decision based on what they feel is in the best interests of their communities. If that council decides to vote in a certain way on a certain issue, who are we to tell it how it should do it? That is exactly the kind of Big Brother image we have to get away from. When I was on council we used to refer to the senior level of government in Ottawa or at Queen's Park. We should seriously consider looking at a reversal of that if we truly believe that the democratic process is important and that it is important to give people their say. The senior level of government should be considered that government which is closest to the people.

The restructuring of this county may indeed turn out to be the right thing to do. Frankly, being from the Mississauga community, I am not prepared to make a judgement on that. As the critic for Municipal Affairs, however, and as someone who I like to think has a background in municipal affairs, I am not prepared to come down with some great judgement from Queen's Park and tell these folks what to do. When the honourable member speaks, he should recognize that it may be in the best interest of Simcoe county to form some type of restructuring.

As I said before, notwithstanding the negatives, there are services provided on a regional basis in Peel. We provide the water and sewer treatment services. We cut a deal with the province to take that over. The negative side of that is that our water and sewer bill used to be in the taxes. They took it out of the taxes. The taxes went down for about 30 seconds. Then they put it on the water bill. The water bill went up and the taxes went back up. That is something that everybody at every level of government, if responsible for that, has to answer for.

It is not black and white, I suggest, and that is why Bill 132 is such a fair, balanced, well-thought-out and simple bill that says, in very simple, direct language: "Leave the power with the people. Don't force it on them unless the council of the affected municipality consents by resolution to the amalgamation." I will be supporting the honourable member in his efforts.

Mr McLean: I am pleased to rise today in support of Bill 132. This bill will bring a good discussion on county government, something we have not had in this Legislature since the previous administration brought in some changes, when the government of the day established a consulting committee in, I think, February 1988 to seek input into county government.

I believe reform was a move to decrease the number of municipalities, which the ministry officials wanted very much to do. This committee developed about 41 recommendations aimed at strengthening the system of county government. The aim of it really was to do away with small municipalities. Also, whether you were a mayor or reeve would depend on the population. I want to give a little background with regard to how this restructuring has taken place in the province.

In January 1990 the government announced that eight municipalities in south Simcoe would be amalgamated into three larger ones. That resulted in the amalgamation of Cookstown and Innisfil into one municipality, Bradford and West Gwillimbury forming a second and Alliston, Beeton, Tottenham and Tecumseth joining to create a third.

I indicated my reservations with regard to restructuring in Simcoe county when this proposal was first announced. I have been opposed to regional government—we have seen what has happened over the past many years—and I felt this was another form of regional government. I believe the entire process involved in the restructuring of county governments in Ontario was flawed from the very beginning. The task force that gave us the Tatham report consisted of eight members of the provincial Legislature. All were from one party. My colleague George McCague, who was the member for Simcoe West at that time, raised the issue in this Legislature. He felt it should have been an all-party committee.

The same minister who imposed restructuring on south Simcoe prior to the study process was looking at the rest of the county. But at the time the process took place in south Simcoe, the ministry felt there were some pressing problems. They did not feel it could wait for the rest of the county to be looked at, so the minister of the day proceeded and went ahead. Bill 177 made the amalgamation take place in south Simcoe.

County council asked to undertake the study, with assistance from ministry staff, for the rest of the county. The committee structure was a farce, even though its membership was duly elected at county council. Public hearings were mainly held with the municipal people, yet there was some public consultation with other than the municipal people. My colleague mentioned before the structure of the committee. The study committee considering the restructuring of north Simcoe consisted of only a very few elected members from the area to be amalgamated. There were approximately three from the area. The rest were from south Simcoe, which had already been restructured.

They will say they were duly elected at county council to sit on that committee, but to me that was still a problem because of the fact that the members from the north were not the majority, or even 50%. There was an enormous amount of wheeling and dealing at county council. The new boundary lines were drawn up about two weeks to a month after the committee was set up and most of the work was done by the ministry staff. How could they have maps so soon after a committee was put in place? I remember back to the early 1970s when they had the old Toronto-centred region report. It was circulated and I believe the ministry staff continued on with that report. That is where they got their boundary lines drawn.

In county council, we have seen one reeve dealing with another reeve with regard to the boundaries. Should Washago be in Rama or Mara or should it be in Orillia township? One reeve was making a deal with another reeve, with no public consultation with the people living in that area as to whether they felt it was a good thing for them to be living in a certain community or another, as to which municipality they wanted to live in.

There was a great concern with regard to the voting that took place in county council, all this taking place when the county council first voted down having an official plan done in the county. How can you have restructuring taking place in a county when you do not have any planning process in place, simply no planning? The views of the two largest municipalities, the city of Orillia and the city of Barrie, have to be given serious consideration when you are dealing with a county. Do members know what happened when the process was halfway through? The county council kicked the members from Barrie and Orillia off the restructuring committee. How can you have a total restructuring of a county when you have five members kicked off the restructuring committee?

That should have been halted right there. That was where the work should have stopped. However, they were permitted to continue with these deliberations over the objections of numerous individuals and municipal governments.

1040

Simcoe county approved the restructuring report on July 23, 1991, paving the way for a major revamping of boundaries, presentations and the delivery of services. There is an interesting point I want to make here. What happened was that the county turned over the county study to the province without Barrie and Orillia having had any input into it. In essence, the county said: "Here you are, Minister. You now complete the restructuring of Simcoe county."

Barrie has a plan. They want further amalgamation. They want more land. Orillia wants more land. They had a plan whereby they had some drawings done that they felt would fit in environmentally and land-wise in that municipality. But there were no negotiations with the townships of Oro, Vespra and Innisfil, which abut the city of Barrie. Do the councils of those municipalities feel they got a good deal by adjusting their boundaries with abutting townships without dealing with the city?

I am here to tell members that the province is now going to determine what the boundaries of those two cities are going to be, and those municipalities surrounding them are not going to have the input they thought they were going to have. I can draw lines now where I think the restructuring is going to end up around Barrie. You can go out about a lot east of Shanty Bay. You can go north to 15 or 16 Side Road. You can go across to Highway 400 and north to the Dalston cutoff. Go west again and you will take in the county buildings and the new Taj Mahal of the education centre in the county of Simcoe. These reeves and councils are not going to have any input into that.

What say do the people have who live in that area surrounding the city, what input into what is going to take place? I hope the member for Simcoe Centre will stick to his guns on the statement he made during the election.

Mr Mills: That was then, this is now.

Mr McLean: "That was then, this is now," the member for Durham East says. It is going to be interesting to hear his quotes today on that. The member for York South said: "Restructure with care. All concerns have got to be taken into consideration. Don't force it on them." The member for Simcoe Centre: "No restructuring in Simcoe county. We don't want another Mississauga."

We get all kinds of letters indicating the problem they are having with amalgamation. Bill 132 is not going to solve all the problems, but it brings us here today to have a good discussion on what is happening. The warden of the county said, "If we don't do it, the province will." Where were these words coming from? Were they coming out of the minister's office? This is why they said they had to do it. The county has had its vote and it has had its negotiations within the county. It sawed off parcels of land here and there, with no public input. The parliamentary assistant today says he is not supporting this bill. It will take away the prerogative to place restrictions on the county of Simcoe. Does the government not want to hear from the grass roots? Does it not want them to have their say?

It is wrong when we have municipalities and members of a county drawing lines without any planning and when no consultation has taken place. Can the large urban areas stand to have a large amalgamation take place when 50% of their tax bill now goes to education? Are they going to build new fire and police stations and a new maintenance building on less than 50% of what they have left? The people in the urban areas have to have a concern about this restructuring, as well as the rural people. If they think that because they are amalgamating their taxes are going to be less, I am here to tell members they are not going to be less. They will be more, because they are going to have to supply all of those services.

The best thing to do is to put the question on a ballot. Why did they not wait until the new councils were elected? Of the seven municipalities in south Simcoe that are being amalgamated, the representation of those people who had the vote on the proposal is going to be cut almost in half. In essence what we are saying is that people who are being amalgamated have less say than the people who are already amalgamated.

Does Midland, with its expanded boundaries, feel it is going to gain, get control of more land? The hospital would be amalgamated into Midland, and the shopping malls. But what is going to happen to poor Tiny township when it loses all its assessment? Tiny's major assessment is its lakeshore property, Oro's major assessment is Shanty Bay and the lakeshore, and Vespra's major assessment is Midhurst. What is going to happen when Barrie brings in its plan of what it feels should happen? The public will not have any say. It will be the city dealing with the county and the province, and do members know what happens when civil servants want their way? It is pretty hard to change it.

In essence this bill brings in today a major discussion with regard to county restructuring. I think the process that has gone on is not the province's fault. The process was followed, other than the fact that the county asked to be restructured; really what it asked for was to have a study done to determine whether there should be boundary changes. But within a month after the committee is struck, here we have a map showing us where the boundaries should be. I am telling you, Mr Speaker, somebody was thinking a long way ahead of how he was going to manipulate restructuring in Simcoe county, and I do not like it.

I think there is a need for some minor restructuring to take place. They should have a consultant do a planning study of the county to determine whether some areas are feasible to be within those boundary negotiations. Who is to say where the lines should be drawn, without any input, without any impact study taking place? The first thing the county turned down was doing a study. That should have been the first thing that was done before the boundary lines were drawn.

There have been hundreds and thousands of letters and calls from constituents in my riding and in Nottawasaga township, Devils Glen. Restructuring is key to Coldwater voting. We have a quote from the reeve of Coldwater, who voted in favour of restructuring. He says negotiating the best deal for the village under county restructuring is another one of his aims. What happens to our boards for the village under county restructuring? What happens to our municipal office? What happens to our other boards we have within the village? These are all questions that are being asked by the individual who voted for county restructuring to take place.

What should happen is that a five-year moratorium should be put on county restructuring in the county of Simcoe. Call it to a halt. Let the people put it on the ballot or let the people be heard. The people are not being heard in this whole process. This government here is saying it is the government of the people. For goodness' sake, they should have their minister withhold any further developments in the county of Simcoe restructuring until we have time to look at it and make sure it is right and proper. Let the people decide what should happen.

1050

Mr Wessenger: It is a pleasure to have an opportunity to debate on matters in which I have had some interest for many years, having at one time been a former alderman in the city of Barrie, having been involved with the Simcoe-Georgian Bay task force and having a background of interest in the planning area.

I think what we should look at first is really the overall, basic principle behind the concept of restructuring our municipalities in Ontario: that in much of this province we have not had ideal development. We have had a great deal of urban sprawl, which has proved very expensive for the province. We have had environmental problems arising as a result of development on unserviced land. We have had severance policies which have been very uneven in certain parts of Simcoe county and in certain parts of the province, which have created bad development. We have environmental problems in the county of Simcoe. Lake Simcoe is at risk environmentally at the moment because of phosphate runoff. There is a problem with respect to the amount of growth that presently can occur around Lake Simcoe because we do not have the technology to deal with that growth.

We have water problems in south Simcoe, a lack of water in the Beeton-Tottenham area and in the Bradford area. We have the problem of assessment planning, whereby commercial and industrial growth is not occurring in the best place but is occurring because it suits the economic interests of each municipality.

Second, we have attempts to have some rationality with respect to the relationship between provincial and municipal governments with the Hopcroft report, with the idea of trying to have clear responsibilities for both municipalities and the provincial government, and we have the aspect of having a rational system of financial responsibility between the provinces and the municipalities, with the clear indication that the level of jurisdiction that provides the service really ought to pay the cost. So we have all this in the background.

We have an antiquated system of municipalities in this province. A lot of them are too small to be viable; many in Simcoe county are too small to be viable. How do we deal with this problem? We have to have some way of dealing with it, we have to have some new structure.

There are alternatives. One alternative is to let the province do the planning for those areas that do not have viable municipalities, but that, I think, takes away from strengthening local government. I do not prefer the option of having the province take over the increased responsibilities where you do not have the municipalities able to take on that role.

The other role that has been tried is the regional development role, where you have the transfer of a great number of services to the regional level. The difficulty with that is that it has included a great deal of tax increases and a great deal of bureaucracy and a great deal of criticism that people feel isolated.

The interesting thing about the Simcoe county study—I am not talking about the boundary aspects, because the government has not made any decision on the specific boundaries or whether it will be implemented, etc—which I see, which I support in principle, is the idea of creating strong lower-tier municipalities. That is the model I prefer.

First of all, it keeps taxes lower and it makes government closer to people, and that is the proposal put forward in the Simcoe county study. I am very supportive of that, and I must say, certainly talking about my riding, I have not had the calls about the restructuring. I must admit there is a problem with respect to the city of Barrie being left out, but that is being dealt with. The ministry is consulting with all the municipalities and the city of Barrie and the city of Orillia with respect to how it is going to proceed in this area.

When you look at all the alternatives, the alternative that I think is the best in principle is developing strong, viable, lower-tier municipalities in any restructuring that occurs in this province. Therefore I would ask you to reject this bill, because let me just say, having lived in Barrie when we went through an attempted amalgamation, attempted boundary changes, we will never get every municipality on side. It is completely unreal ever to expect that to happen. A provincial government has to have the power to make the ultimate decisions.

Second, this legislation makes no sense because it applies to one area only. It does not apply generally throughout the province. Therefore I would ask you to defeat this bill.

Mr Mills: It is a pleasure to rise in the House this morning. It is always a pleasure to talk to private members' bills, and it is a pleasure to see you in the chair this morning, Mr Speaker. I have not publicly given you my good wisdom of welcome, but I do so here this morning.

I can speak to Bill 132 that has been introduced by the honourable member for Simcoe West because I lived in Simcoe and, like my colleague for Simcoe Centre, I also served on the city of Barrie council during some very trying times when we annexed parts of Innisfil township, Vesper and Oro. I can tell members that it was a very traumatic time. We could get no consensus of opinion about what we should do about anything. Then we had extensive meetings with the public.

I agree with the member for Mississauga West that the best form of government is the one closest to the people. I remember back in my time being violently opposed when they increased the term of office of municipal council people from two years to three years to make them less accountable to the public.

I have some serious concerns about this bill in so far as I can speak as a resident of the region of Durham, which went through the same sort of traumatic upheaval a few years ago, I believe at the behest of the then Conservative government. But it has done some good things in the region of Durham. It has made for better policing—I know you share my concerns about community policing, Mr Speaker. If the restructuring goes ahead, it will allow for the concept of greater community policing in so far as now each little village, community and municipality, in some cases, is policed on an ad hoc basis by the Ontario Provincial Police. It addresses the need for overall planning. Too often we see strip planning and planning that is not in the best interests of all the folks who live there.

If services are to remain viable I believe you have to have some form of amalgamation. To make municipalities remain viable you have to get together and amalgamate. It creates a strong local government.

I do not think it will be smooth. I think there will be all kinds of obstacles along this rocky road to amalgamation. I was surprised to hear the member for Simcoe West say there was not agreement on this. I have a note that says there was strong local support for this study, and also that the Simcoe county study, which was locally initiated, was accepted by county council by a vote of 42 to 26. It would seem to me there is some strong local support for this amalgamation, contrary to what the member suggests.

Government is considering a wide range of options for the direction of county government reform. I know the ministry is developing a comprehensive approach to reform while at the same time recognizing the diversity and differences that exist among the councils. I know that local comments and concerns are also being addressed. I am afraid I cannot support this bill because it takes away the role of the government.

Mr J. Wilson: I would ask the member for Durham East, if there is strong local support for restructuring, then why are 14 municipalities putting the question on their ballots on November 12? I do not think there is strong local support. There is a great deal of confusion out there.

I have endeavoured to highlight some of the flaws with the restructuring process specifically as it has been applied in the county of Simcoe. I have done so as a means of impressing upon my friends here in the Legislature the need to support my bill. Because the restructuring process can be hijacked and is often flawed, municipalities must be given the right of choice. They must have the right to decide whether their residents want amalgamation or the status quo. That right to date has been stolen from the residents of Simcoe county.

The continued existence of our political system is contingent upon our ability to be responsive to the public. The public has grown resentful of politicians who refuse to represent them and who repeatedly pass legislation that is not in their best interests. My private member's bill is a piece of legislation that helps both the public and its elected representatives, because it entrenches power where it rightfully belongs, in the hands of the people.

I have often heard the Premier and the NDP speak about democracy and the underlying principle that the people must be trusted to make their own decisions about what is best for them. In the election campaign, I and my colleagues had clearly learned the lessons of the past. We know that the people did not send us here so that we would turn around and tell them what is good for them. No, that nonsense must stop. We are the servants of the people. Our job is to stand up and to speak out on their behalf. They send us here to represent their views, and we must always put our best effort forward to ensure that their hopes, dreams and aspirations come true.

I ask all members of the government and members of the official opposition to join with me and my colleagues in supporting my private member's bill. We should learn from the mistakes of the past, trust in the collective wisdom of the people and give hope to democracy.

1100

FARM INCOME

Mr Mancini moved resolution 36:

That, in the opinion of this House, given the crisis facing Ontario's agricultural economy in dealing with high input costs and low prices, which have fallen by 35% this crop year for grains and oilseeds and which have remained at depressed levels for other crops and the livestock sectors, and taking into account the fact that long-term federal-provincial price and income support programs are not scheduled to take effect until next year; given the extensive crop damage in southwestern Ontario this summer due to drought, particularly in Essex and Kent counties; given the importance of ensuring the survival of Ontario's family farms, and given the continuing policy of the NDP socialist government to ignore the problems facing the economy of rural Ontario, the government of Ontario provide immediate emergency agriculture funding in order to maintain the viability of the rural economy and family farms.

Mr Mancini: This is the continuation of the agricultural debate that has received high priority in the Legislature for this fall sitting. Why has it received high priority? Because some members in this Legislature have used all opportunities at their disposal to ensure that agriculture was in fact debated in committee.

I refer to the standing committee on resources development, a motion that had been put forward by the Liberal leader, the member for Bruce, an opposition day motion that had been put forward by the leader of the Conservative Party, and now my only opportunity for a private member's resolution for quite a period of time, given by myself freely in the interests of agriculture in Ontario.

Why have we done this? We have done this because the government has been reluctant to intervene in an appropriate way to save Ontario's rural economy, the family farm being the basis of the rural economy.

I want to quote for the record a letter sent by the Ontario Corn Producers' Association, a newsletter dated October 1991. It says, "State of Emergency." On page 3 of the letter from the corn producers, they are talking about the ministers of the day:

"We have received no commitments to date, but at least we have captured the attention of the federal ministers with our crisis campaign. We wish that we could say the same for the Ontario government. As of early September, Mr Buchanan, the Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Food, had not met with major Ontario farm groups on the income crisis, and to our knowledge he has not yet visited Kent and Essex counties where the effect of low prices has been compounded by severe 1991 summer drought.

"The minister has given no indication that his government intends to do anything about the income crisis other than offer sympathy and pocket the $4 million in gross revenue insurance plan payments, in GRIP premium rebates, which was given to it by the federal government via its announcement on April 18, 1991.

"Murray Elston, leader of the Ontario Liberal Party and official Leader of the Opposition in the Legislature, has called for an emergency meeting of the resources development committee of the Legislature. As of date of this writing, the Ontario PC House leader has supported this request and the NDP House leader has not."

Since that newsletter was sent by the corn producers, a number of things have happened. We have in fact had the standing committee on resources development hearings that I spoke of earlier. We have indeed got some attention from the Ontario government. The minister indeed did make one very quick visit to Essex county—I am not exactly sure how many farms were toured; I am not sure how many acres of destroyed crops he was able to see, but he did make one short visit—and we did have an announcement by the government. What did that announcement do? Put in plain and simple terms, the announcement, as far as the government is concerned, basically gets the Ontario NDP government off the hook, and now it wants to wash its hands of the problems facing Ontario's rural economy and the family farms in Ontario.

I say to the NDP socialist members we are not going to allow them to do that. We are not going to allow them to wash their hands of the difficulties facing Ontario's rural communities because they announced one $35-million program. In their Agenda for People during the last election, they promised $100 million and it did not have anything to do with the crisis that we are facing today, and of the $100 million they only forwarded to the farmers $50 million.

We were in committee only a few short weeks ago, and socialist mathematics is something to behold. We were told by the minister that the $50 million the government had allocated to the farmers, to the rural economy of Ontario, in fact equalled $100 million. That is what we were told, and we were expected to believe that. We do not believe it and neither do the farmers. Rural Ontario is waiting to be treated in the same manner as the government treats unionized industrial and government workers and doctors in this province. That is what we are waiting for.

The Treasurer of this province has consistently said that it is the members of the opposition who pit one group in society against another group. I say to him that the opposite is true. It is the NDP socialist government that is doing that. They are the ones who very clearly said early in their term, "We have lots of money for doctors." They said it and they made a deal with Ontario doctors and they put up the money. They delivered for the doctors.

They said that early in their term and they took action in a number of areas where industrial jobs were threatened. They were willing to pour out hundreds of millions of dollars at the request of the union bosses here in Ontario. They were willing to buy into de Havilland to protect industrialized jobs. They were willing to raise the wages of nurses. When it came to farmers, never have I seen such a measly effort: $35 million for 60,000 farm families who feed Ontario, who export billions of dollars in farm-gate value, who support the rural economy.

If we divide 60,000 families into $35 million, we get a whopping $580 per farm family. If we had the time to do some interesting mathematics, I would say that some of the highly paid civil servants we have in our government, whose wages were increased anywhere from 11% to 14% by this government, must have got a $580 increase bi-weekly, and they are not in a financial crisis in the way the farmers find themselves today.

1110

We brought to the minister's attention the problems of the drought. Let me read to the members some of the headlines that we have to deal with every day. I know they are comfortable over there. I know they are very comfortable. "Another three and half years before the election, you know, so we can maybe get by without really helping the farmers this year. If some of them go bankrupt, at least we have helped the other people we were concerned about."

October 8: "Drought Sours Prospects for Owner of Sugar Bush: The Sugar Maple Trees Are All Dying."

"Region's Farms Ravaged by Drought of 1991," Windsor Star, August 20. It shows a farmer from the Chatham area plowing under his crop instead of harvesting the crop.

"Farmers Fight for Their Lives," August 7, Windsor Star.

"Belle River Farmers Gathered Together to Talk About Their Plights: Generation of Farmers Will Be Lost, Say Officials of Agricultural Group," Amherstburg Echo, August 8.

"Drought Has Been Rotten to County Tomato Fields." Leamington, the tomato capital of North America, maybe the world, has been devastated.

"Essex County Declared a Disaster Area." The county of Essex, at its county council meeting, declared our county a disaster area.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Farnan): Order. The member's time has expired. We will return to the member later in the debate.

Mr J. Wilson: I am pleased to join in the debate today on the motion regarding agriculture put forward by the member for Essex South. I am pleased to support the motion on behalf of my colleagues in the Ontario PC Party. I would say to the member, though, I think the motion is a little late in the sense that my leader put a motion forward that was, frankly, voted against by the NDP.

An hon member: When was it?

Mr J. Wilson: It was a motion some two weeks calling upon the government to give real financial assistance to farmers. The NDP voted against that motion.

I again commend the member for Essex South for his motion today because it also fits in with what we were discussing in the last hour, my private member's bill which fights for the rights of rural Ontarians. All indications I have from the government members in their speeches are that once again at noon today they are going to vote against rights of rural Ontarians.

Whether we are talking about forced restructurings or amalgamations or support to farmers, it is essential that this government start to act for all Ontarians, not just for the big unions. In my remarks last week around the farm crisis in Ontario, and in response to the motion of my leader, the member for Nipissing, asking for further assistance for farmers, I mentioned some of the same points that the member for Essex South has mentioned this morning. They are able to come up with $250 million through Ontario Hydro to bail out Elliot Lake and Kapuskasing, some 6,000 jobs. They are able to come up with $150 million for the Canadian Auto Workers, for Bob White and de Havilland, for which there were supposed to be, I believe, some 4,600 jobs. Since then de Havilland has announced the layoff of some 1,300 or 1,600 workers, so there are even fewer jobs they are trying to maintain and protect there, and de Havilland is a sink-hole for the taxpayers' money.

The federal government had the good sense to finally get out of the business of building planes. Every time one comes off the production line, it loses money. The more bloody planes they build, the more money they lose. Throwing more taxpayers' dollars at that company is not the way to go.

We are firmly on the record as opposing that, only because we say to the government: "You've got a $9.7-billion, a $10-billion or a $12-billion deficit this year, unheard of in the history of the province. You're going to double the province's debt over the next four years. Pity those of us who will succeed you in government, because we will have a very difficult time redressing and correcting the economic disaster you guys are creating for this province."

I go back to priorities. This government has no priorities. If it does, its priorities do not reflect the needs and rights of the people of rural Ontario. I am proud to represent a riding that has a pleasant urban-rural mix, the riding of Simcoe West. My largest municipality is the town of Collingwood, with some 12,500 people. I have some other towns and villages, but I have a great deal of rural area.

I have a great number of farmers who are among those 60,000 farm families in Ontario that are suffering. If the government would get its priorities straight, be honest and come clean with the people of Ontario, it would tell us and show us by putting more money forward in the area of agriculture.

For every $1,000 in support we give to farmers, statistics and studies indicate the return farmers put into their local communities is sevenfold. There is some $7,000 worth of economic activity generated in their local communities and the farm community for every $1,000 of support; not losing money as every time a plane comes off the assembly line at de Havilland. These people, the good people in farm families, produce food that we enjoy eating. They produce economic activity that is positive.

The government says so often, and it is only talk to date, that rural Ontario and a farm strategy will be part of its industrial and economic strategy. First, it does not have an industrial strategy. Second, its economic strategy to date is a disaster, and at every opportunity in this House and outside of this Legislature we try to steer it on the right path.

The government pays lipservice to rural Ontario, but emotion has to come forward. The member for Essex South spoke so eloquently about the need of farmers in his area, particularly with the drought situation in his area, but it is just as true in my area and in all other areas of Ontario. There are 60,000 farm families that are looking to this government for assistance.

The day after my leader brought a motion into this House asking for assistance, the government managed to come up with $35.5 million. It pales in comparison to the money it has been able to give to big unions. The $35.5 million is not enough. With prices having bottomed out in the grains and oilseeds sector, and with this government's failure to sign on to the net income stabilization account for this crop year—it is not signing on to NISA until next year—we know there is a gap there. The federal government is turning away from short-term programs and going with NISA and the gross revenue insurance plan for the long term. This government is going long term starting next year; $35.5 million this year. We know the need in the grains and oilseeds sector is some $124 million. It is far short of what the real need is out there.

Farmers are getting antsy about this. They are respectable people who normally would not take up a picket sign. They were not brought up in the ideology of the government members' party where they used to picket for ever. They are respectable people who have better things to do than picket those people, better things to do than to meet in Lucknow, which they did a couple of weeks ago and which members of my caucus attended. Over 1,000 farmers there were trying very desperately to get the government's attention.

I think the member for Essex South pointed out that the Minister of Agriculture and Food has done some touring but has failed to grasp the need out there. He has failed to convince his caucus colleagues and his cabinet colleagues around the cabinet table of the degree of need out there. Clearly the government's priorities are somewhere else.

I have a theory that the government is planning on never really addressing the needs of all Ontarians, because probably its pollsters and Gerry Caplan and the backroom boys in the Premier's office tell it that it only needs 38% of the vote to win the next election. It can ignore the vast majority of Ontarians as long as it keeps the unions happy, as long as it keeps what we call the 1991 NDP coalition happy. If it keeps that 38% happy by doing the pappy socialist crap it is doing, it will probably win the next election.

We are going to do our best, as members of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party, to show the people of Ontario the government's true agenda. We know for a fact that the true agenda does not include rural Ontario, that the true agenda does nothing to address the needs of the 60,000 farm families in Ontario.

1120

I am pleased to support this motion. In addition to the motion and the very strong resolution brought forward by my leader the member for Nipissing two weeks ago, it is sad that another motion dealing with agriculture has to come to this House. Those people sit there and heckle and laugh and seem to have no concern for rural Ontario. We are not going to take it any more and farmers are not going to take it any more. They are getting organized, because the government seems to like organized people. The government will hear loud and clear, and should be hearing now loud and clear.

We met last night. My good colleague the member for S-D-G & East Grenville—sand, dust and gravel and East Grenville—spoke at a public meeting in my riding last night in the village of Creemore. A great number of people showed up to hear our comments and hear about this government's response to the farm crisis in Ontario. There were a lot of concerned people at that meeting. They recognize that the government has not lived up to its responsibilities to rural Ontario, that it has not exercised rights it is willing to give to other sectors, particularly big unions. It is willing to give them rights, but it is not willing to help farm families.

It is a sad day in this Legislature that we and our colleagues in the Liberal Party once again have to remind this government of the serious need that is out there in the agricultural community.

Mr Hayes: I might say to the two previous governments, welcome aboard. I am very pleased they are finally seeing the plight of farmers in this province.

Mr Villeneuve: Why did you vote against our motion the other day then?

Mr Hayes: I compliment the member for Essex South on the resolution. I think it is a very good resolution. However, I would say it is about 10 years late.

Mr Villeneuve: Where have you been the last 10 years? What was the price of commodities then? Come on, Pat, be honest.

Mr Hayes: It says "given the continuing policy of the NDP government to ignore the problems facing the economy of rural Ontario." Let me say that this government is committed to Ontario agriculture and the food industry. We listen to the farmers and we act.

Mr Villeneuve: Careful. You are going to break your arm patting yourself on the back.

Interjections.

Mr Hayes: The Minister of Agriculture and Food, along with myself and other parliamentary assistants, the member for Huron and the member for Chatham-Kent, and many of my other colleagues on this side met with farmers, farm groups and rural organizations last fall to discuss farm finances. Farmers told me when I went around the province that their interest costs were too high. We responded at that time with the $50-million farm interest assistance program. That was welcomed by all sides of this House.

Mr Villeneuve: It sure was. What was in the Agenda for People?

Mr Hayes: Unlike other governments, we did that. We did not wait until the budget to do it, because we saw the immediate need and we did it right away.

Interjections.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Farnan): Order. I would ask for the co-operation of all members. Unfortunately, since the member for S-D-G & East Grenville arrived, the tone in the House has disintegrated. I would ask the members' co-operation in allowing the member to speak.

Mr Hayes: With the drought situation and the problem of low prices that farmers have been faced with, especially in the ridings in Essex and Kent counties and other parts of this province, some of those people have been hit with a double whammy. We responded very quickly with a $35-million emergency assistance package for Ontario farmers, which I might add was very well received by individual farmers and the different farm associations.

I am particularly pleased that Kent and Essex counties will be receiving a fair share of the available assistance. Crop insurance will also be making significant payments, approximately $40 million, to the eligible producers in those counties and also across the province—or just $40 million for that area alone. The ministry estimates that approximately $5.7 million will go to farmers in need in just those two counties alone. In addition, I am pleased to say that I have been assured by the minister that staff will soon begin consultations on the $3.5 million set aside for farmers suffering from low prices and of course the drought. Essex and Kent counties will receive a substantial share of that on top of the others.

I would add that the minister responded to my request to tour the area and meet individual farmers. He met with us and the Essex drought committee, and I also have to compliment those individuals. The response to date is an indication of this government's sensitivity to all agricultural areas in Ontario.

There have been comments about the Minister of Agriculture and Food not going and looking specifically at some of these areas. Let me tell members that just in that part of the county alone, he has been there three times already. I do not know of any Minister of Agriculture and Food who has done that within a year.

What other provincial government has done this? Governments that are brothers and sisters of these people here have ignored farmers in Saskatchewan, Alberta, Manitoba and places like that.

This government's work has only begun. What is clear to this government is that the rural economy is a key component of the Ontario economy. Farmers, local stores, local industry and the infrastructure which services the rural economy have all been under a certain level of strain in recent years. Unlike previous governments, this government is committed to renewing rural Ontario and we will all benefit from this.

The Minister of Agriculture and Food and I are currently examining options for long-term farm finance and I look forward to the consultations which will be occurring with the farm community in the near future. Together, this government and farmers will develop a credit program which is much needed and well overdue in Ontario. There are many pressures facing the agriculture and food industry in Ontario which are a result of federal policies. The federal monetary policy of high interest rates has seriously increased the cost structure of our farmers. The lack of federal adjustment money promised during the free trade debate has also caused additional pressure on Ontario farmers.

At the same time, our food processing sector in Ontario is undergoing rationalization and restructuring. This process has been worsened by the free trade agreement. Some of these activities impact on farmers to reduce markets, on labour through lost jobs and on these companies, as they are unable to compete with US firms. This government will also be working with producers on labour and environmental issues and together we will develop long-term approaches for the industry.

Let me close my comments by saying that these are just some of the initiatives the Minister of Agriculture and Food is developing in partnership with all participants in the food system and I hope the minister has all our support as these initiatives are developed.

Just before closing, very quickly, here is an article from the Chatham Daily News. Scott McGeachy from the Kent County Federation of Agriculture "said he was 'pleased' with the financial assistance announced...by...minister Elmer Buchanan." He also stated that "Essex-Kent MPP Pat Hayes was to be congratulated for the important role he played in making" this possible. Here is a farmer in Raleigh township, "It's not going to save everybody, but I'm happy with it." "Any help is a positive sign, he said. 'All we need now is the federal government to contribute their fair share.'" Here is another article from the Ridgetown Dominion, "A warm thank you to the province for this support." We have lots of articles like that.

This government is committed to rural Ontario. This government is committed to preserving the family farm in Ontario. This government will continue to correct a lot of the mistakes and the lack of political will of the previous governments. We will address this and we will be working with farmers, because we know that the family farm is the backbone of this country. We ask members to join us and get a little political will themselves to help us to address this serious problem.

1130

Mr Ramsay: It is a pleasure to be standing in my place as the member for Timiskaming and as a former Minister of Agriculture and Food to speak for the second time in two weeks on this issue. The members of the House are to be congratulated that they have brought forward these motions so that agriculture is finally getting the importance in the Ontario Legislature that it deserves.

When we look at the various issues that are discussed in the Ontario Legislature and what seem to be priorities of Ontario governments, agricultural policy does not necessarily take the place it should. I am very pleased that it is.

In fact, yesterday afternoon in our standing committee on resources development we were concluding our discussions leading to an interim report we will be bringing forward to this House in the next few weeks that will start to lay out a few ideas that all parties working together are starting to consider. I would hope that the Ministry of Agriculture and Food will start to work on some of these ideas.

We are standing here in our places today speaking to agriculture. I certainly salute the member for Essex South in bringing this motion forward today, because there is a crisis in agriculture. There is no point in standing in our places as politicians trying to smooth over the situation that is out there. There definitely is a crisis, and it is happening not just in Ontario but to our fellow rural people across this country. We hope today the federal government will be coming forth with some assistance.

The people out there who are watching and maybe are not familiar with what is going on in rural Ontario must be asking: "Why is it that farmers are always asking for assistance? Why is it that governments in this country respond to that plea for assistance?" I must make the point that we do not, like other commodities, have fair trading rules in this world. In fact, as has been on TV lately, we see that European farmers receive about $10 a bushel for their grain while the going price in Ontario is about $2 a bushel. You cannot even grow a bushel of wheat for $4 or $5, so you need $6 or $7 just to start to break even and make a profit. We have to get that level playing field across the world when it comes to agricultural production so that the prices are returning to the farmer what it costs to produce—and then some, because it is important for our farmers in this country and especially in Ontario to be profitable.

There is also a crisis in this province right now because in southwestern Ontario, especially in Kent and Essex counties, we have had incredible climatic conditions this year, those being drought. In the last few years it has sometimes been too much water, but this year it was drought. So we have not only low prices that have been quoted earlier today as being 35% below the low prices of previous years, but also we have very low and poor yields, and therefore the farmer is suffering a double whammy.

It is important that government assist the farmers in the short term, but it is also important that governments start to address the concerns of agriculture in the long term. As I said, we were having those discussions in the standing committee on resources development, all of us from both sides of the House, the last few days. We have been listening to the concerns of the different commodity boards and the farm associations, bringing forward as they have been some very constructive ideas of what we can be doing.

In the last few years in this country we have started to bring in much more appropriate income stabilization programs such as GRIP and NISA. It is imperative that this government get involved in NISA and enrich its involvement in NISA. In a contributory plan such as this, where the farmer, the provincial government and the federal government pay into it, if the province increases its share, it means the federal government will have to also increase its contribution and therefore the farmers will receive more government assistance through this program. It is a very good program and it deserves the support of the Ontario government. I would certainly plead with the Ontario government to get involved, as it had not, unfortunately, earlier this year, and to enrich that involvement so that the farmers of Ontario and the rest of the country can benefit by this program.

What can we do in the long term? It is a difficult subject, because we have an open marketplace. It is very difficult to say to people that somehow people have to pay more for food. When we look at the component price of a product we purchase in a grocery store, a loaf of bread, for example, a farmer does not receive very much for that product. In fact, some people will say for a $1 or $1.30 loaf of bread there is about four or five cents of wheat in that loaf.

The problem with the food production system today is that the consumer is demanding a much more value added product, therefore the farm-gate value in a product is very, very low. Much of the food now goes from the farm into the factories where much value is added because people want convenience foods and microwave-ready, etc. So food is growing in expense, but the farmer's share of that is very low.

What we need to do, and what government can do, and what specifically the Ontario government can do—and I am glad the member across the way is here who instigated a task force on long-term financing. I would encourage that member to take that report up with the ministry. I think it is very important that the government of Ontario, for the first time, starts to enter the long-term financing of agricultural producers in this province. I think it is very necessary. There are obviously some problems of how we go about that. I, for one, certainly would not want to see some sort of beginning-farmer program. This is not the time to entice our young people to get into farming. We are having great trouble in keeping the farmers who are already on the land, already producing food for the people of Ontario, and keeping them profitable.

There must be a way we could introduce a farm financing program that farmers can access for a portion of their long-term financing needs at a reasonable interest rate. That would be the only cost to the government, because what we are talking about is financing. We are talking about access to loans. The cost would be that, yes, I would ask the government to subsidize that interest rate so that we would have a low, steady interest rate the farmer can count on, so that he or she will be able to fight those vagaries of the marketplace and the ever increasing high input costs but know he or she has a steady payment, as far as principle and interest on that long-term financing is concerned.

I would go as far as to suggest to the members across the way in the government that possibly they look, as a source of capital for that financing program, at the Province of Ontario Savings Office. Why do we not, working together in this House, basically make the Province of Ontario Savings Office maybe the farmers' bank in Ontario? In most towns in Ontario, we have a Province of Ontario Savings Office. Many people deposit their money, and I know it has tremendous assets there. That might be the pool of capital we could work with. Instead of the other investments the Province of Ontario Savings Office, or POSO, as we call it, is involved in, maybe that could be the pool of capital the Ministry of Agriculture and Food could tap into so that we in Ontario would finally have a pool of capital that is totally dedicated to the farmers, the food producers of Ontario.

I think this would go a long way to help alleviate those long-term problems and give a sense of certainty, as much as we can in Ontario, to the producers of food in Ontario that their government cares and, through the government, the people of Ontario care about agriculture and understand that agricultural production is absolutely essential for a sovereign jurisdiction, for a sovereign nation.

That is what it really boils down to. Why are we involved in this? Why is the food industry more important to us than any other industry? It is too bad, but television sets have not been made in this country in the last 10 years. I bemoan that fact and I feel badly about that. But that has gone to more competitive jurisdictions. Sad as it is, we do not rally around trying to get television sets produced in this country. But all of us, from all sides of this House, do rally around when our ability to produce food is threatened, because to be a sovereign nation I believe we must fight to maintain the ability to feed ourselves. That has to be paramount. If we said we were just going to rely on the mid-western United States, for instance, for our dairy products or our wheat products, we would be putting ourselves in very great political jeopardy.

1140

And what about the environment? I do not think it is wise for the world to put its eggs literally in one basket, especially the food basket of the United States. What if there was a tremendous drought in Ukraine or in the mid-western United States and we were solely reliant upon those particular places for our nourishment? Then we would be putting ourselves and the world in great jeopardy. It is important that all jurisdictions of the world produce as much food as they can.

What is interesting, when you look at the environmental sustainability of Ontario agriculture, is the way we have organized ourselves in this jurisdiction so that we do not force the environment to produce our food, because we have regulated our systems in many commodities to produce what we need to consume. Therefore, there is another advantage to our marketing board system in that it is environmentally sustainable, unlike the Americans who push production and then have to store a lot of that production because in many years they overproduce. We produce what we need and therefore we do not push our agricultural resources. We have very sustainable agriculture, and I would say to the parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Agriculture and Food that he should endeavour to support the supply-management system in this province. I think it is very important, besides being a marketing system.

Mr Villeneuve: They are undermining it. You know that.

Mr Ramsay: I am afraid they might be undermining it. My friend from the Tories is reminding me. I just want to encourage them in a very positive way that they must support this system. It is very important. It is more than just guaranteeing a price for farmers. It is also, I think, one of the cornerstones to agricultural environmental sustainability, and I would hope that the member is doing that.

I would also want to caution the government members to look at the accumulated impact of other areas that they want to work on in society, because they are going to have a profound effect on agriculture.

While I am on the environment, I would like to caution the minister, as we all want to see the absolutely cleanest environment we can possibly manage here in Ontario, that he and the parliamentary assistant must be very careful that they work with the farm community as we bring in better environmental controls. We must make sure we use the carrot rather than the stick and work with our farm producers and our food processors in cleaning up our environment, but make sure we phase it in and work in consultation with our agricultural community. Yes, there are things we do on the farm that are not correct, and we have to start to work with the Ministry of the Environment and other people who are pointing these things out to us in the farm community. I want to work with the farm community in bettering our practices, and I think we can do that better. But this is a warning to the parliamentary assistant to the Minister of the Environment not to come with a big, heavy stick into the agricultural community, but to work with the processors and the producers to make sure, yes, that we have sustainable agriculture, but that we bring that in by working in consultation with the farmers so that we do not disrupt that activity which is precious to the economy of Ontario.

Lastly, I also want to comment on many of the labour laws that are being anticipated by this government, the changes to the Employment Standards Act and other acts that are coming forward. I believe the ministers over there must also be careful that we do not unduly subject the agricultural industry to major changes overnight. We do want to bring our economy into the modern day and make sure that we have very sound occupational health and safety legislation, good legislation that is fair. We want to make sure we do not bring that in with a big stick to people. We want to work with the people, especially with the fragility of the agricultural community right now and the agricultural sector. It is very, very important that we work with this community.

I would like to close by saying I welcome the opportunity to be speaking again within two weeks on the very important subject of agriculture, what it means to our province, what it means to the economy of this province. One in five jobs in Ontario is dependent upon the agrifood industry. I am not sure if people are aware of how important the agricultural industry is as one of the generators of the tremendous economy of Ontario.

It is needed to be a sovereign nation, so that we have the ability to feed ourselves, but also it is a very prime component of the economy of this province and therefore deserves to be supported by all the members of this House. I am sure all of us agree today that the government of this province should continue to increase its support to Ontario agriculture.

Mr Villeneuve: I too want to compliment and thank my colleague the member for Essex South. Our party and I will be supporting him 110%. First I want to tell my colleague, and he knows of it, that I was in Leamington several weeks ago. I have a copy of the report on agriculture as prepared by the drought committee for Essex county. It outlines very clearly that indeed some $20 million is needed just to replace what was lost in the drought of 1991, not compensating for the very low prices.

That message is very clear. One visit to the Leamington area was certainly worth 1,000-plus words. They have some very drastic conditions. Crop insurance will not be of great assistance, because they have had three out of four very devastating years. As most members know, the crop insurance is based on previous averages. When and if you claim more than once every five years, you have major problems.

This government claims to be listening. This government claims to be trying to do everything for everyone. I just came from a committee room downstairs where 14 registry offices were closed in rural Ontario by this government, and the parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Agriculture just got up and said how great the things they were doing for rural Ontario were. One of the great things is that they closed three registry offices with one stroke of the pen. It was supported by the committee this morning. I want to put that on the record.

Some additional $515 million were given to the civil service of Ontario this year. That is quite rich. The $35.5 million agriculture got one week ago pales in comparison to the additional $515 million the civil service of Ontario got.

De Havilland got $151 million to save 4,900 jobs. I understand that is now 1,300 less; they are down to 3,600. Still, that is $151 million in comparison to an additional $35.5 million that has been committed by this government for 60,000 farm families.

I was recently talking to a beef producer who tells me he has not made a profit in the last five years. He has broken even. What is even worse is that on his assets and liabilities sheet he has lost $100,000 of equity. Members should name me any other business that has worked for nothing for five years and has $100,000 less equity for the effort put in at the end of five years. They will not find any.

I have here the budget for 1991-92 for Quebec, which is not nearly as rich as Ontario—the estimates for le ministère de l'Agriculture, des Pêcheries et de l'Alimentation. Would members believe $711 million for the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food in Quebec, almost $100 million more than the support this government provides in Ontario?

I come from a riding right along the Ontario-Quebec border. It is very difficult for me to explain to the grain growers in Bainsville and in Glengarry county when they cannot get $100 a ton for their corn, yet their neighbours right across the line in Quebec are getting $180. That $80 is support from the province of Quebec.

1150

Supply management is most important to the province of Ontario. I think many people are not aware of the fact that the Minister of Agriculture and Food has allowed the Farm Products Appeal Tribunal to be the price setter, or the cost-of-production setter, for supply management, and has rolled back to our chicken broiler producers 12 cents a kilo on their cost of production. That, in very short English language, is the destruction of supply management.

I brought it to the standing committee on resources development and questioned John Core, who is the chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board. Under a supply management system that works, three items have to be in place: cost of production, the value of the product and import restrictions. Those are the only three things that have to be there in order for supply management to work. If one of those items is missing from that formula, you have disaster. You have the worst of two worlds, because you are producing under quota and have no control over the price.

Those are some of the problems facing agriculture in general. In Essex county, with the drought conditions that have occurred, we have a situation that is almost intolerable. In Farm and Country here we have insolvent agricultural producers 19%, severe problems 13%, so 32% of the 60,000 families in Ontario are either insolvent or in severe financial difficulty. That comes from the most recent edition of Farm and Country.

Mr Hayes: When did this start?

Mr Villeneuve: Certainly the price of commodities was never lower than it is now.

An editorial in the Corn Producer entitled "Minimal Consultation" says:

"We cannot recall a minister of agriculture, provincial or federal, who was less inclined to meet and consult with major farm organizations than the present Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Food. The NDP rural caucus has refused repeated requests by different commodity groups to meet and discuss their problems."

Those are not my words. Congratulations to the member for Essex South. We are supporting him.

Mr Hope: For a second I thought there was a typographical error in the resolution. Where it has "ignore," I thought it would say "help" rural Ontario, especially in Chatham and Essex-Kent, as we talk about the assistance that is needed for the people of rural Ontario, especially in my riding, which was hit by the drought which added extra problems to those family farms.

In this House, to understand the day-to-day agendas, the opposition members wake up in the morning and flip a coin to find out whether they are Doctor Save or Doctor Spend. Today they woke up as Doctor Spend.

When we tried to understand what was going on around the agricultural community during the campaign, I made it quite clear I was not an agricultural expert. That was one of the best things they wanted to hear from a local member, that he is not an agricultural expert, because they want to be listened to instead of being told how to operate their small businesses and their small farms. That is why in this election the people of southwestern rural Ontario made it quite clear by electing New Democratic members in most of the ridings of Essex-Kent, Windsor, Lambton, Sarnia, Elgin, Middlesex, and it goes on into London.

A number of the problems are at issue in this resolution. The resolution is redundant now because this government has come across and helped people.

Mr B. Murdoch: You never got elected. You got in by default. Don't ever think you got in by reason. You never had a seat, Randy.

The Speaker: Order. I know this is a matter about which the member for Grey feels strongly, but I ask him to temper his language and allow the member for Chatham-Kent to continue his speech.

Mr Hope: It is nice that they try to override it, but it is the fact that today we have a number of members on this side.

During the drought and during this time frame I was educated by the farmers of rural Ontario who were affected by it, making sure that they educated me. This government has come through with a short-term program, and we look forward to the long-term program we are wishing to put forward. A number of the farming communities have talked to me about when all this started. In 1981 and 1982, when the recession hit, a lot of family farms were affected.

Now I am hearing opposition members yelling and screaming, "What are you doing?" They should let me tell them what the Liberals and Conservatives did in the past. They put programs together to help out the bankers and the bank institutions instead of helping those farmers.

In my riding a lot of farmers have been affected by mismanagement of government issues and policies, not making sure they could assist the farmers in my community, and they ask me what I am doing for them. We are making sure that when we put $50 million into effect, the $50 million goes to the farmers. When we put this program into place we made sure the program went to the farmers to help them in the drought and help them in other areas across the province. That is what is called helping rural Ontario.

We say we have to help the family farm. I am going to use as an example a constituent of mine who is a major farm leader in my community. He said to me: "I think we should commend you on your hard work this summer on behalf of the Kent county farmers. This aid package, I believe, is a direct result of rural MPPs like yourself working on behalf of the farmers. Maybe us farmers should have voted NDP a long time ago." He said this to make sure that we help the farmers.

We understand the first part of this resolution that deals with the people in rural Ontario being affected by the commodity prices being lower, but it is going to take through GATT. I am sure the member opposite listened to Canada AM this morning. More than just the provincial government has to get on board. It is time the federal government made sure it had fair trade policies for the people of rural Ontario, so they can live and work their small businesses viably and effectively.

Mr Sutherland: I am pleased to participate in the debate this morning. I am sure the member for Essex South was up late last night getting his remarks ready for today. I congratulate him for bringing the issue of agriculture to the forefront. I do not necessarily agree with his resolution.

Let me just say that we all recognize that the issues of agriculture are very severe. They are extremely challenging and they certainly have not just developed over the past year, although the accumulation of many years of low commodity prices and high interest rates has created a great number of problems.

I and the farmers in my riding are very pleased with the response this government has provided. Before the most recent announcement the farmers in my riding had received over $2 million in interest relief, which was well needed. They got it during the latter part of the summer and the early part of the fall. It was very important for them to get it. They are anticipating that they will get more than another $1 million out of the most recent announcement, so well over $3 million, and it could be very close to $4 million, is going into my riding to support farmers.

The opposition can say that we are not concerned about agriculture or about the impact of this past summer and the significant decline in commodity prices, but that simply is not the truth.

We heard the member for S-D-G & East Grenville talk about registry offices and about this government not supporting rural communities. I want to remind him that one of the key areas for rural communities across this province has been rural post offices in many small villages. We will not comment on how many of those post offices have actually been closed, undermining rural communities.

I am proud of this government and what it has done for farmers so far. We do need to do more, but I will not be supporting the resolution.

Mr Mancini: I would like to use the remaining two moments to put a few more facts on the record so that all listening can understand exactly the situation.

Since assuming office, the NDP's only short-term plan for agriculture has been a $50-million advance to the Ontario family farm interest rate reduction program, which was instituted by the previous Liberal government. It enhanced by $50 million an already existing program implemented by the previous government. That was in its budget.

The government promised $100 million in the election; $50 million does not equal $100 million, and that has nothing to do with the crisis in commodity prices or with the problems caused by the drought. I want the government members to understand that. I want the general public and the farm community that is watching to know that the members of this socialist government were spendthrifts when it came to their friends. They had $515 million for the civil service in one year, they are ready to spend $150 million for de Havilland in one year and they are ready to open up the vault for the doctors, the nurses and everyone else, but when it comes to farmers there are only crumbs left on the table.

The parliamentary assistant to the minister can congratulate himself all he wants. As a matter of fact, he needs a third hand to pat himself on the back. But his self-congratulation is not going to address the crisis facing 60,000 farm families. We condemn the government for its lack of action.

The Speaker: The time provided for private members' public business has expired.

Interjections.

The Speaker: When the House has come to order, we will be able to deal with the ballot items. We will deal first with ballot item 35 standing in the name of Mr Wilson (Simcoe West).

1205

COUNTY OF SIMCOE ACT, 1991

LOI DE 1991 SUR LE COMTÉ DE SIMCOE

The House divided on Mr J. Wilson's motion for second reading of Bill 132, which was negatived on the following vote:

La motion de M. J. Wilson pour la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 132, mise aux voix, est rejetée :

Ayes/Pour-19

Arnott, Cunningham, Curling, Harnick, Harris, Jackson, Mahoney, Mancini, Miclash, Murdoch, B., O'Neill, Y., Phillips, G., Ramsay, Runciman, Sorbara, Tilson, Turnbull, Villeneuve, Wilson, J.

Nays/Contre-31

Abel, Caplan, Carter, Cooper, Coppen, Dadamo, Drainville, Duignan, Farnan, Fletcher, Frankford, Hansen, Harrington, Hayes, Hope, Klopp, Lessard, Malkowski, Mammoliti, Martin, Mills, Murdock, S., Sterling, Sutherland, Ward, B., Ward, M., Wessinger, Wilson, G., Winninger, Wiseman, Wood.

1212

FARM INCOME

The House divided on Mr Mancini's motion, which was negatived on the following vote:

Ayes-23

Arnott, Caplan, Cunningham, Curling, Harnick, Harris, Jackson, Jordan, Mahoney, Mancini, Miclash, Murdoch, B., O'Neill, Y., Phillips, G., Poole, Ramsay, Runciman, Sorbara, Sterling, Tilson, Turnbull, Villeneuve, Wilson, J.

Nays-29

Abel, Carter, Cooper, Coppen, Dadamo, Drainville, Duignan, Farnan, Fletcher, Frankford, Hansen, Harrington, Hayes, Hope, Klopp, Lessard, Malkowski, Mammoliti, Martin, Mills, Murdock, S., Sutherland, Ward, B., Ward, M., Wessinger, Wilson, G., Winninger, Wiseman, Wood.

The House recessed at 1214

AFTERNOON SITTING

The House resumed at 1330.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Mr Sola: When is procrastination a virtue and when it is a vice? In looking at the Treasurer's recent statement on spending adjustments, it would seem that to put off for tomorrow what can be done today is a vice unless it is done by the government. Then, miraculously, procrastination becomes a virtue. This is confirmed by the statement of the Chairman of Management Board of Cabinet when he describes this as "restraint" and "management of resources." "Loss of control and government mismanagement" is a more appropriate definition.

Let's examine both statements. Let's put this restraint into perspective. Let's look at this management or, more precisely, government mismanagement. In their outline for spending adjustments, the word "delay" appears 10 times. When accompanied with words such as "unexpected" and "unforeseen," how can the NDP claim to be managing government spending? How can the NDP describe unexpected delays and unforeseen delays as restraint? As Shakespeare would say, "Much ado about nothing."

For instance, of $460 million in one-time savings, $434 million is beyond the government's control. Only $26 million may be under partial government control, of which 50% or $13 million was a conscious decision by the NDP. This decision to renege on $13 million in payments to colleges and universities shows precisely where education stands in the NDP's sense of priorities.

BIOMEDICAL WASTE DISPOSAL

Mr Villeneuve: There was a very troubling report in the Hamilton Spectator recently regarding the discovery of an illegal medical waste dump near Brantford. The dump was located on the weekend by a private citizen who found it on the Six Nations Reserve. This dump covers two to three acres and is up to five feet in depth, containing hazardous medical waste such as syringes, needles, an empty intravenous bag and at least one blank prescription pad from a hospital.

Officials of the provincial Ministry of the Environment have visited the site but have not yet told anybody what they found. This dump site is near McKenzie Creek, and if any hazardous materials are seeping into the ground water, there could be very serious consequences for natives on the reserve, as well as for anyone else living in the area. I understand the Ministry of the Environment has little power to act because the property is on an Indian reserve but that does not remove the government's responsibility to work with the natives at Six Nations.

I raise this issue for two reasons. First, and most important, there is potentially a serious health threat in the area. Second, there is no one else to raise the issue. There is no one here representing the citizens of Brant-Haldimand because the government and the Premier will not call a by-election to replace our former colleague Bob Nixon. Once again I am urging the government to call that by-election to give the people of Brant-Haldimand a voice in this Legislature once again.

JOHN SIMPSON

Mr Owens: It gives me great pleasure to rise today to pay tribute to a constituent of mine, Mr John Simpson. We are all concerned about the rise of crime in our various constituencies. Not only is John concerned about the rise in crime; he is also concerned about crime prevention in Scarborough. He has devoted many long hours and recruited many volunteers and worked hard to make the community a safer place. For eight years now, John has been involved with the Neighbourhood Watch program and is currently chairperson of number 63 Mason District Neighbourhood Watch.

John wants to ensure a safer community and is dedicated to assisting the police. He does many things for his community: preparing a newsletter, distributing crime reports and lobbying all levels of government for funding for Neighbourhood Watch programs.

I would like to take this opportunity to urge the city of Scarborough to do as its sister city North York has done, which is to fund a full-time Neighbourhood Watch volunteer co-ordinator.

Through the hard work that my constituent John Simpson has done, he has been instrumental in establishing the Crime Prevention Resource Centre in the city. This not only serves the residents of Scarborough Centre, but all the residents of Scarborough.

We have the utmost respect for John Simpson and the fine work of the Neighbourhood Watch program. Because of the efforts of John Simpson and of the many volunteers like John, Scarborough is a safer and better place to live.

MISSISSAUGA BOARD OF TRADE

Mr Mahoney: It is with great pleasure that I rise today to welcome, joining us in the west gallery, a delegation from the Mississauga Board of Trade. Since 1976, the board of trade has become an institution with great influence and respect in our city, and indeed across the province and around the country.

A sign of the economic times would be that the membership of our board has dropped from a high of 3,200 down to 2,000, something I would like the government and the Treasurer to take note of when they are attempting to look at the record high deficits that they are bringing forward. Notwithstanding that, this board still ranks as the second largest in the province and the sixth in the entire country, operating with a staff of 23 people and completely funded by its own members.

The Mississauga Board of Trade has grown in prominence municipally, provincially and federally by establishing a policy review committee giving depth to business-related issues. The board has emerged as an important advocacy group for business.

Much of the success of our board of trade can be attributed to its executive director, Lois Gibson, who on September 30 of this year retired after 11 years of service with the board. She has an outstanding record of service. She was the first woman to be appointed as the president of the Chamber of Commerce Executives of Canada and the first woman to receive Manager of the Year and many other awards. I congratulate Lois Gibson on her retirement and wish her well, and I thank the members of the board for coming today.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN ALGONQUIN PARK

Mr Arnott: The Minister of Natural Resources and minister responsible for native affairs has again made a mockery of the public consultation process.

Last March, the minister stated he would be consulting with all interested parties on the interim hunting and fishing agreement with the Algonquins of Golden Lake. In this week's announcement regarding the release of a draft document, the minister notes that he would have liked more time for public discussion but that the formal negotiations were far more complex than he had originally anticipated.

The minister is aware of the importance of this agreement as it relates to the management of this province's valuable natural resources. Interest groups are not pleased with his arbitrary 48-hour consultation process on what appears to be a done deal. As the Federation of Ontario Naturalists has stated, any real change is unlikely as the document is to be signed by the band and the government on or before October 15.

We ask the minister that all interested parties be allowed to fully participate in these important discussions on the future of Algonquin Park. We agree that an equitable settlement can be worked out for the Algonquins of Golden Lake, but it cannot come at the expense of this province's long-standing resource management principles. Two days of public consultation for this issue are simply insufficient.

ROYAL VISIT

Ms S. Murdock: I rise today in total disbelief at the reprehensible reporting evidenced in Toronto's local tabloid. Balanced reporting? Yet when yesterday's article came out, I said, "Fine; consider the source." What can you expect but irreverence and totally disgusting reporting?

But it has to be surprising to this reporter, if you can call her that, that the royal couple actually asked to come to my city. Yesterday I discounted much of this doggerel because I figured, well, it was done in ignorance. Today's article shows that, first, this person could never have come to my city; otherwise she would know better. Second, my city is 100,000 people. It is hospitality plus. It is beautiful. I will admit that 25 years ago we could not have said that, but working together, Inco and everyone else have made it a wonderful place to live. She does not know what she is talking about.

Frankly, she is so tunnel-visioned that after today's article, the only thing that is obvious is that in her view only Toronto is good enough. The tabloid earns its reputation with this kind of reporting. I say: "Come to Sudbury. Meet our people. Share our hospitality." The royal couple will, but I can bet you, Ms Mandel, that you never will.

1340

GOVERNMENT STRATEGIES

Mr Phillips: I want to say a few words today as to why I think the atmosphere of civility in the House has recently come under pressure.

It was only a little more than a year ago that the Premier, at the swearing-in ceremonies at Convocation Hall, announced that it was his government's task "to guard against institutional arrogance and the abuse of power." Yet, frankly, almost daily we see the government engaged in activities which seem to challenge the Premier's statement and to further aggravate the tone of debate in this House.

Examples of this would include the recent budget hearings where we in the opposition assumed that a fair representation of groups would come forward to provide public feedback on the budget. Unfortunately the Premier's office took it upon itself to very aggressively load the agenda with groups supporting the budget, ignoring the need to achieve a cross-section of opinion. Furthermore, the NDP members on the committee issued a press release headlined, "Committee Finds Widespread Support for Provincial Budget." This press release was issued before the committee had any opportunity to discuss the hearings.

The government has further contributed to the negative atmosphere by having the Premier here perhaps two days a week and by having virtually no ministerial statements. Who suffers as a result? Surely the opposition, but also, importantly, the NDP caucus and the public when the role of the Legislature is abrogated.

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS DAY

Mrs Marland: Today, October 10, is Breast Cancer Awareness Day. The purpose is to make people aware that early detection of breast cancer saves lives.

Breast cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths in women in Ontario. As women age, their chances of getting breast cancer increase. However, early detection of breast cancer has reduced the number of deaths in women aged 50 to 69 by as much as 40%.

Women aged 50 or older should contact their physicians or the Ontario breast screening program to arrange for breast screening, which includes an X-ray called a mammogram and a physical examination. A mammogram can detect breast cancer at its earliest stages, even before a lump can be felt.

In addition, women of all ages should do a breast self-examination every month. Regular self-examination enables women to detect breast changes in between checkups by their doctors or other breast screening centres. A doctor will demonstrate how to do a breast self-examination. As well, a brochure explaining the procedure is available from any office of the Canadian Cancer Society.

The Ontario breast screening program runs free breast screening centres in several cities across Ontario. For more information, please call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-263-6750.

I encourage all women to discuss breast cancer detection with their physicians. Early detection could save your life.

I just came from attending the luncheon, with 1,600 people present, to celebrate Breast Cancer Awareness Day.

BUSINESS IN BRANTFORD

Mr B. Ward: In this House, we all know the tough times that Brantford has experienced in the past from an economic standpoint. I would like to bring to the members' attention some good news on the economic front.

Since September, a number of business people have made the decision to invest in Brantford. Examples are the construction of warehouse space for the rationalization of Lumsden Brothers Co; the decision of Go Vacations, a recreational vehicle manufacturer, to relocate all of its operation to Brantford; Ben-A-Clamp, a maker of automotive and industrial clamps, picking Brantford over the American states of New York, Oklahoma, Tennessee and even Mexico, and the plans of BASF Canada to invest $6 million for new equipment in its Brantford paint plant. As well, Intercity made the decision to close a plant in Red Budd, Illinois, and maintain its Keeprite operations, and just last Friday I toured a plant that was purchased by local investors from an American company.

These decisions mean jobs for the people of Brantford. They mean that these business people have confidence in Brantford and Ontario. I am confident that this House will continue to hear of improvements on the economic front as our province continues on the road to economic renewal.

Hon Mr Cooke: I have met with the opposition House leaders and I believe we have unanimous consent for a statement to be made by the Minister of Housing, followed by statements from the Minister of Community and Social Services and the Premier.

The Speaker: Do we have unanimous agreement?

Agreed to.

RENT REGULATION

Hon Ms Gigantes: I wish to inform the House about the investigation by Ontario's rent registrar of the rents in a building owned by the Minister of Community and Social Services.

As members will recall, on September 24 allegations were raised that illegal rents were being charged for the two units in this building located at 964 Avenue Road in Toronto. The rent registrar, David Braund, investigated these allegations under section 11 of the Residential Rent Regulation Act. He has concluded that there is no basis for proceedings under section 122 of the Residential Rent Regulation Act. I am not tabling the report in the House for two reasons.

First, the report the rent registrar has produced is a law enforcement record containing personal information that is protected under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

Second, since September 24 a tenant has filed an application with rent review regarding one of the units in this building. The matter will be dealt with by a rent review administrator who will hear evidence from both the landlord and the tenant and then issue a decision. The decision can be appealed by either party to the Rent Review Hearings Board. If the opinion of the rent registrar were to be released at this time, it might be viewed as prejudicing the right of either the landlord or the tenant to fair hearings before the rent review administrator and the Rent Review Hearings Board.

Hon Ms Akande: As members know, there has been concern raised about rent levels at my property at 964 Avenue Road, Toronto. I am satisfied that the rents charged in the two apartment units are honest and proper. However, a tenant there has now initiated proceedings to have his rent reviewed. The rent review process is the appropriate forum in which to have this matter decided. This process will take some months to resolve. Therefore, I have decided to tender my resignation as Minister of Community and Social Services in order that the Legislature can focus on the many important issues facing the people it serves.

Hon Mr Rae: After discussing this matter with the Minister of Community and Social Services yesterday evening, I have decided, with enormous regret, to accept her resignation. I want everyone in this House to understand that I do this in order to allow the minister to be able to present a fair case before the rent review tribunal and because I have enormous respect for the minister and her sense that it would be better for everyone, including herself, if this was the way we proceeded. I say this without any prejudice with regard to the case that is now before the tribunal because of the action taken by one tenant.

When this matter has been dealt with fairly and squarely by the administrator, the member for St Andrew-St Patrick, as far as I am concerned, will be back in the cabinet.

If I might be permitted to say just a couple of things about the minister, her tenure as minister over the last year has been marked by progress of which we in the government are understandably proud. I hope members will allow me to point out just a couple of areas in which she has worked enormously hard on behalf of all the people of the province.

Shelter allowances were increased by 10% on January 1991. The $51 million in the capital works projects designed to get welfare recipients into the workforce created 62,000 individual weeks of work in communities with high unemployment rates. Through the Back on Track program of some $215 million, the minister's insistence at cabinet—and I can assure members that no one has been a more effective advocate on behalf of the people of this province than the minister. Social assistance reform has included a $78-million program to get welfare recipients back to work. She has taken responsibility as a minister for working together with the Minister of Health and the Minister of Citizenship to deal with the long-term care reform and make sure that stays on track. She has launched a review of the province's child care system and she has shared responsibility with others for the creation of 5,000 more subsidies for child care.

These are never easy moments of decision for a minister or a Premier. The minister has shown in the decision she has taken today, as in so many others to my knowledge and in my experience, enormous grace, enormous courage and a great sense of fairness to herself and to everyone. I hope it will be understood in that light by the members of the House.

1350

STATEMENTS BY THE MINISTRY

EXPO '98

Hon Mr North: I am very pleased to advise the House today that Mr Tom Wells, former agent general for Ontario in London, has agreed to lead the federal-provincial municipal team supporting the Toronto bid for Expo '98. Many members of the House are former colleagues of Mr Wells, who served in the Legislature as the member for Scarborough North for many years and was a cabinet minister in both the Robarts and Davis administrations.

Mr Wells will chair the Expo '98 Bid Corp, which will be incorporated soon. The bid corporation will have an advisory board which will include representatives from all four levels of government, business, labour, the local community and native groups. This group will ensure that, should our bid be successful, Expo '98 will be a unique and very exciting world's fair.

The bid for Expo '98 represents a tremendous opportunity to spur the economic renewal of this province. It will not only create jobs; it will inspire investment and growth across Ontario.

Mr Wells's first task will be to meet with a visiting delegation from the International Bureau of Exhibitions next week and begin the lobbying process we believe will lead to our successful bid.

I know all honourable members will join me in welcoming Mr Wells to this very important assignment and assure him of our full support.

RESPONSES

EXPO '98

Mr H. O'Neil: We are very pleased to see an appointment such as this. Mr Wells had a very distinguished career while he was in this Legislature, and when he was transferred to the job in London, England, as the agent general, he again distinguished himself and did a great job promoting the province of Ontario. The position to which he has been appointed is a very important one, because the Toronto bid for Expo '98 could mean a great deal to this province, not only in the tourism sector but in the business sector as well, creating, as the minister mentioned, a lot of jobs and promoting the province right around the world.

I hope we are successful with it. With a person like Mr Wells leading it, I hope we are. In the meantime, having a person of his stature doing the job also means that over the next number of years we will be able to promote the province of Ontario right around the world as the great place it is.

We talk about the importance of tourism to our economy in Ontario. I would be remiss if I did not mention, as the minister is aware, that many of the people in the tourism industry are having a lot of problems at the present time. Our tourism numbers, not only from the United States and the other provinces and the rest of Canada but from around the world, are down. People are having a lot of problems. We are going to have a lot of failures over the next few months and the next year.

I commend the minister for cutting some of the expenses in certain areas within the ministry. I think he has reduced the operating budgets by approximately 6.4%. There were areas where we could reduce the costs we have. I commend him on this, but I would also say to him, the Premier and the members of the cabinet that there are other areas in which he should be lobbying the Premier and the cabinet to give some type of special assistance over the next few months and the next year while we are waiting for specifics. We have not really seen them. There have been no other announcements within the House.

I feel the minister should be doing a better lobbying job, because when the tourism industry in the province is a healthy one, a lot of extra tax revenue is generated. That helps many of the other social issues and problems we have. We are hoping that within the next few months the Minister of Tourism and Recreation goes after the Premier and the other cabinet ministers to get some more support for tourism in Ontario, but I commend the minister for the appointment of Mr Wells to head up this very important area.

Mr Phillips: I remember well the Premier's opening remarks to us when the House came back after being off for three months. I think he said: "There is much to accomplish. We face the most serious challenge since the Great Depression. Unemployment is too high. Over the next few weeks, ministers will be announcing plans."

This is the very first announcement we have had all week. There have been no other ministerial announcements. He had all summer to lay out his plans. He has had three weeks now since the House came back. According to the Premier, we are facing the most serious challenge since the Great Depression, yet this is the only announcement we have had all week.

There is no question that the economy is struggling very badly. I welcome Mr Wells. He is a first-class individual who will do a first-class job. But the members of the opposition were expecting much more. We were expecting announcements this week that tackled some of the major issues facing the economy. We acknowledge there is much work to be done. We took the Premier at his word and his announcement, the very first words he gave when the House came back. I hope we will not see many more days go by before the ministers do stand up and announce specific programs to get at some of the issues that are tearing this province apart.

I am frankly very disappointed in what has come forward this week from the government. I fully expect that next week, and early next week, we will be seeing some significant announcements to begin to tackle some of the major economic issues in this province.

Mr Harris: I want to say a few things and I want to leave some time for the member for Wellington, who wants to comment on this as well. Obviously I do not fault the minister or the government for the appointment of Mr Wells. He is an excellent negotiator and a top-notch politician. In fact, were he here as government House leader, this would be a kinder, gentler, smoother-running and better place than it is today.

I think those of us from all sides of the House who were here in those days would recognize that while we may not all have liked the agenda, or the legislation, or the prosperity that the province enjoyed, surely we would have agreed that there was a House leader who knew how to deal fairly with all sides of the House and who knew how to advance an agenda with the co-operation of all parties and make sure all viewpoints were heard, both from the public and from the opposition. I know he will bring those skills to this challenge of landing us Expo '98 here in Canada, in Ontario and of course in Toronto.

1400

I also want to say a couple of things I think could be very helpful to the minister and his party. Their very strong ally and friend and cousin virtually singlehandedly, along with other NDP supporters, absolutely scuttled the bid for the Olympics in this country, in this province and in the city of Toronto. The Bread Not Circuses Coalition and the candidate for mayor misrepresented exactly what that project was all about. They say they are going to involve four levels of government. They say this will create jobs and it will inspire investment and growth across Ontario. If they believe that Expo '98 will do that, let's hope that one of the representatives is not Mr Layton on behalf of the city of Toronto. Let's hope.

I believe the government members could do something by talking to their municipal colleagues, talking to those supporters of the New Democratic Party. Mr Layton obviously will be looking for something to do in a very short period of time. If they can bring him on board—and perhaps Mr Wells can, because he was good at bringing people together—and we can present a united front, then we will not scupper this bid, we will not scupper Mr Wells as Mr Henderson was scuppered, and indeed we will get Expo '98. As they say, we will get the jobs, we will get the prosperity, we will get the economic renewal. Let's hope we can do it right this time.

Mr Arnott: I am pleased to stand in my place as our party's Tourism and Recreation critic to respond to this statement also. I must say that Tom Wells is certainly a first-class person. I do not know him personally, but I know very well of his reputation and I am sure he will do an excellent job.

In the weeks that I have been Tourism and Recreation critic for our party I have been inundated with calls and responses from tourist operators. There are very serious problems in our tourist industry. The answers are just not coming from the government at all. I cannot say enough about that. All the wrong signals are going out to our tourist operators and the government has to get down to work on that. We need a more substantive announcement from the government and from the minister that he will do more to assist our tourist operators instead of making these sorts of nothing announcements.

The Speaker: There is more response time remaining. Any other responses from the third party?

MINISTERIAL STATEMENTS

Mr Cousens: On a point of personal privilege, Mr Speaker: My rights as a member of this House and as the critic for the Ministry of the Environment have been reduced. In fact, I have to bring to your attention the impact that it has on the work we have to do in this Legislature.

I thought maybe today there would be a statement by the Minister of the Environment. It was not today. She did not make one yesterday, and yet outside this House she made a major statement carried by four of the Toronto newspapers: the Globe and Mail, "Businesses, Institutions Drafted Into Recycling"; the Toronto Sun, "Grier Unveils Plan to Force Cuts in Trash"; the Financial Post, "Business Attacks NDP Waste Plan"; the Toronto Star, "Institutions, Businesses Told to Begin Recycling Trash."

The minister has come forward with regulations and decisions that affect her ministry that she did not make in this Legislature. I can only say that the New Democratic Party is aware of the adversarial nature of this House where, if you bring up something in the House, we at least then have a chance to counter it and discuss it and debate it. If it is not raised in this House, we in opposition have little, if any, opportunity to raise it.

This minister has taken away my right as a member of the Legislature to respond in any way I want. It could have been supportive in some way, but in this case I am saying the minister has done me wrong.

The Speaker: Would the member for Markham take his seat, please. The member may recall that a quite similar matter was raised yesterday as a point of order and I responded at that time that I would take it under advisement, and indeed that is what I have done. It will take a bit of time to do some research on it, but there will be a ruling with respect to the matter which has been raised.

Mr Cousens: Mr Speaker, on the same point: What happens when I even call her office to get a copy of the speech or the press release and I still do not have it? I have to read the Toronto Star and the other papers to get it. I have to get that information. I am being let down by this minister.

The Speaker: The member for Markham will take his seat, please.

Mr Cousens: Where are my rights? I don't have any, Mr Speaker. She is not giving me the answers I need. It is wrong. There is no information from this minister.

The Speaker: The member for Markham will come to order, please.

Mrs Fawcett: On a point of personal privilege, Mr Speaker: I also feel that my rights as a member of the opposition have been undermined and hampered. I understand that at a House leaders' meeting this morning it was decided by the government House leader that from now on ministers would be making statements in this House so that we would have a chance to put forth our points of view. At the same time, a press release was being issued by the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations about the closure of land registry offices.

This is a very important matter to many areas in rural Ontario and I feel that this government continues to peck away at rural Ontario and destroys any kind of chance—

The Speaker: Would the member take her seat. Again, I realize this is the same matter and the only response I can provide to you is that the Speaker is taking the matter seriously. I have it under advisement and I will report back to the House at my earliest convenience.

LAND REGISTRATION

Mr Tilson: Mr Speaker, I rise on a question of privilege, of which I gave you notice earlier today. I wish to deal with the matter that constitutes not only a breach of privilege but a contempt of Parliament and an utter disrespect for this Legislature.

In my point of privilege I will illustrate to you the fact that this House and all its members have been treated with contempt and disrespect. I will show you that in the parliamentary tradition of this Legislature, this occurrence constitutes a breach of parliamentary privilege. I will then be asking you to rule on whether my point constitutes a prima facie case of privilege.

The Legislative Assembly Act, subsection 45(1), states:

"The Assembly has all the rights and privileges of a court of record for the purposes of summarily inquiring into and punishing, as breaches of privilege or as contempts...matters and things following:

"1. Assault, insult or libel upon a member of this Assembly during a session of the Legislature or during the 20 days preceding or the 20 days following a session."

Mr Speaker, I will read to you remarks made by a government lawyer representing a ministry of this government in a court of law in arguing against an injunction to stop the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations from closing 14 land registry offices. The solicitor for the ministry said it would serve no purpose for the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations to await any input from the standing committee on general government, which is looking into the closure of land registry offices under standing order 123, and she gave three reasons: (1) The general government committee is of no significance; (2) the general government committee is really just a way of creating political heat; (3) the general government committee is composed of six members of the NDP and five from the other two parties and all of the NDP members could be absolutely counted on to stick to the government's position of closure of the land registry offices.

This is indeed an insult, not only to myself as a member but to the Legislature as a whole. These remarks alone are bad enough, but when they are coupled with the remarks of the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations made in answer to my response some time ago, they are utter contempt of this Legislature.

1410

I would like to quote to the House again the remarks made by the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations on Thursday, September 26, 1991. Referring specifically to page 2569, I will quote myself asking the latter part of my question and her answer:

"My question is whether the minister feels this course of action is fair and democratic, and will she agree to stop any further closures until the committee has reported back to the House on its findings?"

The honourable minister's replied: "The answer to the first question is that, yes, I think this is a fair and equitable decision to make, and yes, I will continue to try to keep on schedule in terms of the integration of the land registry offices."

I submit that the two statements, made by the solicitor for the Attorney General's department and the minister, should be read together.

Section 24 of the 1982 Constitution Act ensures that the administration of justice is not brought into disrepute. Those are my rights in a court of law. My question is, what rights do I have in this House and what rights do I have in sitting as a member of the standing committee on general government?

The only recourse we have in the parliamentary form is through our standing orders and the tradition of parliamentary privilege. I will quote from the chapter on contempt from Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice, 21st edition, chapter 9, page 121:

"Indignities offered to the House by words spoken or writings published reflecting on its character or proceedings have been constantly punished...upon the principle that such acts tend to obstruct the Houses in performance of their function by diminishing the respect due to them."

The words of the solicitor for the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations have indeed obstructed all members of this House in the performance of their functions by diminishing the respect due to this House, and more specifically its standing committees, by prejudging the results of a committee of the Legislature and calling into question the validity of the powers and integrity of the members of this House.

The government's solicitor has cut to the very core of parliamentary privilege. If these comments were allowed to stand unchallenged by this House, every standing committee of this Legislature would be very reluctant ever to call any member of the public to appear before it.

Under standing order 123 we called some very busy and important people to appear before the standing committee on general government to speak to the closures of registry offices across this province. Am I to say to them now that the time and effort they took to appear before our committee was wasted? Should they ever come again? How can our credibility as members be maintained if our standing committees and standing orders are deemed to be a farce and of no significance? The ability of all members to do their jobs will be drastically diminished.

The Speaker of the House of Commons on November 2, 1987, ruled:

"It is very important...to indicate that something can be inflammatory, can be disagreeable, can even be offensive, but it may not be a question of privilege unless the comment actually impinges upon the ability of the members of Parliament to do their job properly."

The comments by the solicitor representing the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations has very definitely impinged upon the ability of myself and of members of this House to do their job properly.

There are many precedents of contempt being found when the honour and integrity of the House and of certain members have been called into question. The following is from Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms: "Traditionally, articles in the press reflecting badly on the character of the House have been treated as contempts." In my opinion, this is much more serious than an article in the press. These inflammatory statements have been made by a government employee in a court of law.

This is not a partisan issue. It is an issue which affects all of us. I am concerned about the comments made about the NDP members of the standing committee on general government. By saying that all the NDP members could be absolutely counted on to stick to the government's position of closure of the land registry offices, the minister's solicitor calls into question the very right of the individual members of this Legislature to represent their constituents and the people of this province.

Mr Speaker, I put before you and submit to you that this is a significant question of privilege covering the issue of contempt. If you find a prima facie case, I am prepared to move the appropriate motion.

The Speaker: I must first commend the member for Dufferin-Peel on having done some research, in particular checking with Beauchesne and Erskine May, and indeed quoting the Speaker of the House of Commons. I would be pleased to take a look at the events he has described. I believe this matter is currently being dealt with by a committee of the Legislature, in which case, of course, it would not be appropriate, nor would the Speaker be able, to deal with it. However, should a report come from that committee dealing with the difficulties you have described, of course the Speaker can deal with it at that time. None the less, I shall take a look at what you have raised and consider it seriously.

Mr Mancini: Mr Speaker, I rise with some reluctance on the same point of order. As you may know, sir, I have been serving as Chairman of the standing committee on general government since the last Parliament. We have tried to do our work in the committee in as proper a way as we could and as best we could. When standing order 123 was referred to our committee, I believe I was asked to sign some letters and support the efforts of our clerk to get certain witnesses to appear before the committee.

I want to tell the Legislature that some of these witnesses took time off from work. They were not reimbursed for their time off from work. Some of these witnesses came several hundred kilometres at their own expense. There is no way for them in any way to get reimbursement for that expense. Most of them came out of their deep support for an institution which happens to be in their own community.

I want to come at this point of order from a different angle. Right now the Premier, as are other Premiers across the country, is joining the Prime Minister in trying to forge a new and stronger country and in trying to get citizens in Ontario and across the country to once again have a deep belief and also respect for our institutions.

This is very important. Whether they respect us as individuals or as members of a particular party does not concern me at this time, but I am very concerned, and I support the Premier's efforts 100%, that we need to do whatever we can to get our citizens to believe in and have respect for our institutions. Most important is our Legislature as an institution, and the process used in this institution should be respected. Therefore, all the committees of the Legislature, and the process that is used in these committees, which report to the Legislature, must be above reproach.

I was challenged today by several members of the committee as to what kind of committee I was running when we were in the middle of a process in which the public was invited to partake, and before the process was completed, action contrary to some of the witnesses' advice was being taken by the government. I could not answer the members. Furthermore, the matter that has been brought forward by my colleague who has just spoken, with regard to the comments made to a court by an employee of the government, concerns me deeply.

As Chairman of the standing committee on general government, I cannot sit there and run a charade. To the best of my ability, I have to convince the public that their input into the committees which report to the Legislature is real and serious business.

I have asked the clerk of the committee to obtain the court transcripts so we can peruse and see for ourselves exactly what was said by the employee of the government and whether or not the allegations we just heard are true.

Mr Speaker, if the allegations are true, we cannot deal with it ourselves in the standing committee on general government. This is a matter that concerns you and all the members of the Legislature. We are looking to you and to everyone else who sits in this House to be able to support the Premier in his efforts to ensure that our institutions are respected, because they need to be, and they cannot be if what was alleged today is true.

The Speaker: I appreciate the concerns the member for Essex South has brought to my attention. The Speaker, of course, has a natural interest in the functioning of this place of ours, including its committees. I will endeavour to take a look at what has occurred and review the circumstances, and I shall report back later.

1420

CROATIAN CEREMONY

Mr Callahan: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: Last night in front of this Legislature some 600 to 1,000 mothers were at a vigil ceremony to dispute and protest the senseless killing in Croatia. My friend the member for Mississauga East and myself attended that function. Although a microphone had been requested in advance, due to an accident, and I recognize accidents can happen, the microphone was not there. It required the member for Mississauga East and myself and the participants to either use a bull-horn, which is probably great for politicians, or shout.

I recognize it was an accident and we have had an explanation to that effect, but the privileges of my friend the member for Mississauga East and myself were in fact breached. The organizers were looked upon by the people who were there as perhaps having done a bad job of organizing. The organization of that event was spectacular and the organizers should bear none of the responsibility, but I would hope that would not happen in the future.

The Speaker: I appreciate the administrative matter the member has brought to my attention. I will report back to him as quickly as possible.

ORAL QUESTIONS

ETOBICOKE WATERFRONT DEVELOPMENT

Mr McClelland: My question is for the Minister of the Environment. Can the minister tell us in this House why it is she refuses to answer questions about her past and present policies with respect to the environmental assessment process? I wonder if it is perhaps the result of legal advice or maybe political advice and whether or not she has handed over her responsibilities pursuant to the Environmental Assessment Act to her colleague the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Hon Mrs Grier: I cannot recall a single occasion when I have refused to answer questions about the environmental assessment process. If the member is referring to a question that was raised yesterday by his colleague the member for Oriole, that was about a very specific situation that is currently before the Ontario Municipal Board, and I quite properly referred that question to the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Mr McClelland: The minister says specifically with respect to the municipal board, but she should bear in mind her letter of August 24, 1988, to her predecessor, wherein she requested strenuously that this matter come under the Environmental Assessment Act and wherein she stated that if there was ever an opportunity to put the philosophy into practice, this was it; this was the time.

While in opposition the member, now the minister, waged a one-person war on the Etobicoke motel strip. She fought against what she declared at that time would be another Harbourfront planning fiasco, as she likened it to. She demanded there be an environmental assessment. She was quoted in the papers as saying it was absolutely necessary, that it was essential an environmental assessment hearing be held.

What has transpired? What has happened in the meantime since the days when she was an advocate for the people of Etobicoke in 1988? That was then, this is now? Things have changed? Constituents want to know, I certainly want to know and I think people in this House want to know. Now, as minister, is she willing to back down under pressure? Is there some sort of pressure that led her to cancel the EA? What is going on? People want to know. That was then: environmental assessment, no option, a must-be. Now things have changed. What has happened?

Hon Mrs Grier: The member says I have been fighting about the Etobicoke motel strip for five years. I regret to have to reveal my age. I ran in 1972 in a municipal campaign saying that I was opposed to another Harbourfront, or whatever Harbourfront was then envisaged as being, on the Etobicoke motel strip. I am delighted that because of the work that has been done by my colleague in Municipal Affairs and his officials, the proposal that is now going before the Ontario Municipal Board is one that will provide my constituents and the people of Metropolitan Toronto with a clean, green, accessible waterfront, which it would not have done in 1972, in 1982 or in 1990.

Mr McClelland: With reference to the minister's age, might I say she hides it extremely well and I would never have guessed for a moment that she had been serving that long.

Having said that, when she was the member for Etobicoke-Lakeshore, she would not have agreed to what I suggest she has agreed to now. This is a 10- to 15-storey concrete curtain, the terminology used by environmentalists and people in the community. They see it as a concrete curtain right along the Lakeshore and the Etobicoke waterfront.

I very much doubt that in 1988 she would have agreed to a 10- to 15-storey concrete curtain along the Lakeshore but now, as Minister of the Environment, she is under tremendous pressure and she has been forced into negotiating a backroom deal just like her use of emergency powers to exempt landfill site expansion under the Environmental Assessment Act with no public consultation. The minister is again cutting deals behind people's backs. How does she explain that? She has shut constituents out of any sort of public consultation in this. It is a major redevelopment project. People are wondering how can this be—the champion of the environment, not only in Lakeshore but across the province—what has happened to the then champion of the Environmental Assessment Act?

Hon Mrs Grier: What has happened is that because of the work this government has done, because of the decisions this cabinet has made, the proposal for the Etobicoke waterfront is quite different from any previous proposal. It does not contain the amount of lakefilling that was anticipated and that was exempted by previous governments from any environmental assessment, and it provides a clean, green, accessible waterfront which is what was recommended by Mr Crombie, which is what has been achieved by this government and which will benefit all the people of Metropolitan Toronto.

The Speaker: New question, the Leader of the Opposition.

Mr Elston: I have a question that will be now directed to Minister of Transportation, who is now just finishing sprucing himself up.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. The member from Etobicoke has finished, I believe, and the Leader of the Opposition is now able to place his question.

UTDC INC

Mr Elston: I am going to direct my question to the Minister of Transportation. Eventually we will get around to talking a little bit about UTDC, but day by day we are able to extract just a little bit more about this government's economic plan. Today we found out in the newspapers, the Globe and Mail in particular, what the group project for economic growth thinks about the plan where 150 small and large businesses indicate they believe the New Democrats are ignoring business realities. I would like to explore the NDP version of economic reality with the Minister of Transportation.

Yesterday, the minister's government announced its intention to provide UTDC Inc with a line of credit and guarantee the wages of the employees, about 700 in number, at UTDC plants. It was also our understanding that the government purchased a 90-day option to buy for the remaining 85% of the shares it does not already own.

The final and most important piece of the puzzle is that Fenco Engineers, a direct subsidiary of Lavalin, has just laid off 196 workers here in the province, in Toronto. These 196 employees, some with more than 30 years' service, were laid off without notice or severance and with no idea about what is happening to their pensions.

I want the minister to tell us today what he is prepared to provide to UTDC in detail, so that we and the public know what is being spent on that corporation, what terms of credit he has granted to Lavalin and exactly what commitment his government has made to guarantee the wages of all of the people who have been disadvantaged by the Lavalin financial problems.

Hon Mr Pouliot: I appreciate the interim leader's question and sincere interest in the 522 jobs in Thunder Bay; add to it 177 jobs in Kingston. Negotiations are going well. There are two main suitors, or contestants, and we are down to brass tacks, what we hope will be the final stages of negotiation, namely, AEG Westinghouse and Bombardier, two major international firms.

Mr Villeneuve: Are they both unionized?

Hon Mr Pouliot: Yes, indeed, and we can confirm this as negotiations are ongoing. The government of Ontario has picked up an option, simply this, that we have the first refusal or for the next 90 days we have an option to pick up the 85% share of UTDC. The member will be aware that at present the government of Ontario owns the remaining 15% of shares. With the option comes the responsibility of ensuring that the women and men in both Kingston and Thunder Bay will no longer live in anxiety. We will pick up their wages and current liabilities until an agreement can be reached, and we hope it will be done shortly.

1430

Mr Elston: We did not quite get to the substance of the question, which was, what is the minister doing in terms of telling us about the details of the arrangements for the 570, which is important; the 177, which is important; and also the 196 who have been laid off through Fenco, which is also part of the Lavalin empire and has had some problems?

We had thought, as the minister was involved in arranging the agreement with UTDC in relation to the Lavalin organization, that he would have taken some steps to ensure the security of the 196 people who were laid off at Fenco, who have not had any indication about how their pension is to be secured, about how they are to be provided with severance, and other things.

The minister should have made the arrangements that protected workers in Ontario. While he spouts about protecting the people who are working in Ontario, he has failed to tell us what he specifically has done to provide support for those people who have lost their jobs. Under the arrangements of the deal that was cut—probably not by the Minister of Transportation, because of his surprise expressed not that long ago about the deal, but probably by the Premier—what arrangements have been made to protect all the workers who have been laid off due to the Lavalin problems?

Hon Mr Pouliot: I am pleased to try to help the Leader of the Opposition. There is a certain irony attached to the dilemma that is faced by UTDC. With the highest of respect, it was this administration—

Interjection.

The Speaker: If I could have the attention of the member for Oriole, I certainly appreciate your enthusiasm in dealing with the public business, but a modicum of restraint when others are attempting to ask and answer questions would certainly be very much appreciated.

Hon Mr Pouliot: Strike 2, Elinor, if I may proceed.

We are picking up the option on 522 jobs, and the shares will be protected until a final agreement is reached; 177 jobs, the same scenario. Under the member's administration—when we took office a little more than a year ago, we found out that $360 million of taxpayers' money was completely wasted and could have gone a long way to guaranteeing the jobs. It was immediately the week after that we found out about another $300 million at SkyDome.

What irony, when the member talks about protection, that his government wasted $700 million of taxpayers' money. This administration, for a sum of less than $10 million vis-à-vis $700 million, is doing more to protect 700 jobs in the marketplace. That is the reality of the day. Not only does he have the facts wrong, he has a bad accountant feeding him those facts.

Mr Elston: My facts come pretty close to that. I told the minister I was happy to hear there were 700 jobs being protected in his deal. All I asked was to find out what the details were and what this government was doing to protect the 196 who were laid off under the Lavalin difficulties from Lavalin-Fenco. I did not hear any reply.

Hon Mr Rae: Are you suggesting we take responsibility for every Lavalin company?

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Elston: The Premier asked if I had a question. I said earlier I had one on UTDC, and he pointed to the Minister of Transportation, because he wanted to get out of here. I have gone to the Minister of Transportation, and now that bird is chirping over there and trying to interrupt me. He cannot have it both ways.

Let me repeat my question, Mr Speaker. My question is to this government, which has indicated that it is intervening on behalf of all the workers. It has cut a deal with the Lavalin successor to deal with UTDC. It has agreed to spend a lot of money to purchase—at least it has an option to purchase—to guarantee the wages. It has, it seems to me, an obligation to use its position of economic negotiation at the moment to see that workers who have been disentitled to their workplace and to their benefits are also supported.

I merely ask, what arrangements are being made with the Lavalin successor, which cut loose 196 people in Toronto, to make sure they are not disadvantaged, to make sure their pensions are delivered and to make sure those workers have support? I congratulate the government on intervening to make sure there is protection for the 700, but what is it doing for the 196 when it is in the midst of negotiating with that company and giving money to the organization with whom it is a partner?

Hon Mr Pouliot: The questions are really not related. The main question and the first supplementary dealt with the dilemma, with the story of UTDC. The member could have talked to us about the 40 bilevel cars presently being built that are going to Los Angeles, or the 216 cars that will shortly be delivered to the Toronto Transit Commission right here in Toronto. The future looks good and we are positive about the sale of UTDC.

Regarding the Lavalin connection vis-à-vis the 196 workers, we have a bill in this House. In the short term, both opposition parties can help us make sure we are in a position to at least put money into people's pockets once a company is technically or otherwise insolvent. We are doing our job in terms of UTDC. It is and will continue to be a success story because of government interference at a price the taxpayers can well afford—value for money, indeed.

Mr Harris: I really do not want to get into a debate about whether it was our government or this government or that government that spent more money on UTDC. I am happy to get up in a very vulnerable position to say, why do we not all take a look at ourselves and ask, "What are we doing throwing government taxpayer dollars into things we know nothing about?"

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

Mr Harris: My question is to the Premier. I want to quote from the government's speech from the throne; not even a year old yet, but I think the Premier might agree with me, out of date in this respect: "My government's integrity will be measured by the way this government is run and our relations with the people we serve. Our task is to guard against institutional arrogance and the abuse of power wherever they exist." I like those words. We all like them.

I have been an elected member of this assembly now for slightly in excess of 10 years. Yesterday, I was truly embarrassed to be part of the proceedings in the House. Will the Premier tell this House if he is satisfied with his government's regard for the words that were in His Honour's speech when the Premier first took office and with regard for the democratic principles that govern the running of this House?

Hon Mr Rae: I found yesterday an example of one of those days when there is a tremendous gap between what goes on in this House and what is on the minds of most of the people of the province with respect to their daily lives. I think that is something we should all be aware of.

I want to say to the member in as fraternal a way I can that I understand the House leaders had a meeting this morning in which there were efforts made to reach some understanding with respect to the balances that will be struck about statements made inside and outside the House and other issues of that kind. I know there is going to be a discussion among House leaders with respect to the rules. I know there are members of our own caucus who have some issues they want to raise in that regard and I am sure there are issues that are being raised on other sides of the House in that regard. I just say to the leader of the third party that I hope we can make some progress in this area.

Genuinely, I am not trying to be argumentative. I am sure all of us could look into our own conduct and ask at what point the rhetoric really matches the situation which is being faced by the province.

1440

Mr Harris: I agree. The Premier will know, with me, that many school classes that used to have watching the legislative debate as part of the curriculum have now said, "No, this is not what we should be showing children in our school, how our government is run." More and more schools are tuning out instead of tuning in to government.

I want to deal specifically with what I believe are some of the difficulties with the rhetoric and what is happening. I want to talk about the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations—it has been raised in a point of order here today—and her staff. They have shown a total disregard and contempt for the House. The public asked her to stop closing land registry offices until a committee of the Legislature could report its findings; I do not want to get into the closing issue particularly at this time. Instead, she proceeded to shut down the offices one by one, without ever hearing the report of the standing committee on general government.

The Premier and I, in opposition, spent some time discussing how we felt the rights of the public and the committees had to be strengthened in our parliamentary process. In light of what has happened in this case and the comments that were made, I would ask the Premier, how can we as legislators, how can committee chairmen, as we heard the chairman of the committee today, ever again ask for the public to come forward and express their views when it is so obvious in this particular case that the government does not care one whit what the people have to say or what the members of that committee have to say on this particular decision?

Hon Mr Rae: If the member thinks the minister has not been listening, all I can say is that my experience with the minister on this issue—and she, in a sense, came in after the decision had been taken and was trying to manage and to cope with it as a minister—is that she has tried to respond to it in terms of managing the decision. This is one of these areas that I am again—

Mr Turnbull: If you call that responding, you don't understand what you're talking about.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Rae: I say to the member who is heckling, let's get a consistent message here in terms of what they are trying to do. If his leader is trying to say, "Let's be more civilized," I say to the member for York Mills, I am happy to do that and I am trying to—

Mr Turnbull: Okay, Premier, but start listening to committees. What's the point of having committees—

The Speaker: Would the member for York Mills please come to order.

Hon Mr Rae: The member for York Mills prefaced his heckling by calling me Premier. I take that as a sign of civility in the House and I appreciate it. And I want to thank the member for Mississauga West for feeding me all my best lines. I appreciate that, and I wish him well in his upcoming campaign. He has a lot of support on this side. He probably has more support on this side than he realizes.

Let me say to the leader of the third party, in responding seriously to his point, that one of the issues we are going to have to determine with respect to rules and how the government operates is that under the parliamentary system that has been in place, majority governments, or governments, are expected and requested to act, to make decisions, to stand by those decisions, to defend them and to implement them. We face it in a budget, with the Treasurer announcing what the tax changes are going to be and simply proceeding with those and with all the requirements of budget secrecy and so on.

I say to the leader, without avoiding his question, first of all, the minister in this case has tried to be responsive to public opinion, knowing there is no easy solution. Second, I think if he looks at the record of this government in responding, we have responded with amending legislation in terms of the wage protection fund. We have responded in terms of the budget, where the Treasurer sat down after there were complaints about the gas tax and worked out a compromise. The member was very much involved in asking and insisting that be done.

The Speaker: Could the Premier conclude his remarks, please.

Hon Mr Rae: I think one of the things that is going to have to be determined under the rules is precisely this balance between the government's right to govern and the way in which party discipline operates and the way in which decisions are made and cabinet government functions, and the growing desire in the House and elsewhere for there to be a greater degree of openness.

This is faced by this assembly. It is faced by the House of Commons. It is faced everywhere. I have not heard any easy solutions to the questions, but we are certainly happy to consider them.

Mr Harris: I am going to give the Premier the specifics of the case. The minister, if she had made up her mind and made the decision—the bureaucracy tried it on six ministers before her and they all rebuffed it, but this minister said, "We're going to go ahead." Had she said, "We're going ahead, no point in hearings, no more debate," that might have been an honest, upfront way of doing it without violating the rights and privileges of members and of the public. But she went ahead with the hearings. She went along with that. The committee went ahead with them. They had them.

Here is what the solicitor for the ministry argued in court on this: (1) The general government committee is of no significance; (b) the general government committee is really just a way of creating political heat; (c) the general government committee is composed of six members of the NDP and five from the other two parties, and all of the NDP members could be absolutely counted on to stick to the government's position of closure of the land registry offices.

Now how did the solicitor for the ministry know that unless her minister came back to her and said: "Here's what's going to happen. Never mind the committee. Never mind they are having public hearings. Never mind that people are taking time off work to have their views heard"? That is what happened.

The Premier brought up in his response the rule changes, but opposition members have very few avenues by which to bring matters of importance before the government, avenues which are supposed to be guaranteed under the standing orders of the House.

I ask the Premier, how his government can expect the opposition to proceed in good faith with his proposals to change the rules to diminish our rights even further when he refuses to respect the few rules that we have to hear from the public and to have committee input? That is the question.

Hon Mr Rae: First of all, I do not know who the lawyer is or what he said, but if the lawyer said, for example, that the six New Democratic Party members of the committee can be absolutely counted upon to support every government initiative, the lawyer knows a lot more about my caucus than I do with respect to what takes place. All I can say is the lawyer has not been present at all the caucus meetings I have been present at.

But let me respond seriously to the last point the member is making. Yes, in the context of the discussions which took place in the House last spring, we did have some concerns about the management of the House and our ability as a government to get our agenda considered and dealt with by the House in what we felt was a fair way.

I do not see this rules discussion that we are trying to get off the ground as being a one-way street in which the government says, "This is what's going to happen, like it or lump it." That is not my view of what either can happen or should happen.

We are having very intensive discussions within our own group—I expect the member is as well—about more imaginative and creative ways of involving members of the House in solving problems. The public expects two things, it seems to me. The public expects a government to have the capacity to act and to have its legislative agenda dealt with. The public also expects there to be a degree of fairness with respect to the conduct of House business between and among the three parties. I am very much aware of that.

The Speaker: Would the Premier conclude his response, please.

Hon Mr Rae: I am very much aware of the changes that are being discussed in other jurisdictions. We are prepared as a government, and I am prepared as Premier to contemplate some significant changes in the way in which this House does its business in order to facilitate both those things. I look forward to that dialogue and I hope—

The Speaker: Would the Premier please conclude his response.

Hon Mr Rae: Even in my more partisan moments, I hope we can succeed because I think we would all be better off frankly and the—

The Speaker: Will the Premier take his seat, please.

1450

PUBLIC SAFETY

Mr Runciman: I have a question for the Minister of Health, who I understand is not too healthy today. I extend my condolences. That is about as generous as I get.

I am sure the minister recalls a very brutal axe murder on the grounds of the Brockville Psychiatric Hospital this summer. A patient of the hospital, the forensic ward for the criminally insane, along with a former forensic patient, has been charged with that murder.

Public safety concerns in the Brockville area, as I am sure she is aware, have been raised as a result of this murder, and I want to pass on to her a petition signed by over 5,000 residents expressing their concerns about the situation.

The minister has had three months now to consider this. I am wondering if she could advise the House what actions she is taking to either eliminate this sort of thing happening or at the very least minimize the possibility of it recurring.

Hon Ms Lankin: I thank the member for his unusual generosity in his comments. I have been told that the Minister of Health is not supposed to get sick, but it does happen, so here we are.

With respect to the Brockville Psychiatric Hospital, I appreciate that the member's question was general, as he does know that there is an investigation still ongoing, so with respect to the specifics of the case, I am unaware of the state of the investigation and would be unable to comment on that.

In general, I did send a rather detailed letter to the member outlining steps of review that had taken place in the ministry under the former government with respect to cases of Lieutenant Governor's warrants at psychiatric hospitals. I have taken steps to ensure within the ministry that those particular recommendations from that review have been carried out at Brockville Psychiatric Hospital and other hospitals.

It is a discussion, I guess, of topical importance and we will continue with it because, in the Supreme Court decision with respect to Swain, we understand that the government will in fact be responsible to move much more quickly to house many more of these kinds of clients.

Perhaps, with a supplemental question, I could be more specific with respect to particular initiatives on which the member would like information.

Mr Runciman: I certainly hope the minister could be more specific because that essentially is a non-answer. Again apparently she is being buffaloeed by the bureaucrats.

One of the forensic patients, the individual charged, was Peter Woodcock, who had community privileges. He is one of Toronto's most notorious child-killers who has legally changed his name to Krueger after the cult horror film villain Freddie Krueger. His approved community escort was also charged and responsible for a murder in Ottawa a number of years ago, an ex-psychiatric patient. What the minister has done through her policy is to allow one killer to escort another killer into the community.

I am wondering, after three months, how she can justify the continuance of that kind of a policy. Why does she need three months to come to the conclusion that is indeed inappropriate and jeopardizes public safety?

Hon Ms Lankin: Again I am going to be very careful not to comment on the specifics of the case, and I apologize to the member, but there is an investigation still ongoing. In general, with respect to the issue of the treatment of Lieutenant Governor's warrant individuals in psychiatric hospitals, back in about 1989 there was a study that was contracted by the previous government under Peat Marwick as the consultants that involved—

Mr Runciman: I asked you a specific question about having a killer escort another killer. Why don't you deal with that?

Hon Ms Lankin: Mr Speaker, perhaps the member could be brought to order.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Ms Lankin: The former minister under the previous government made an announcement with respect to 45 management recommendations to—

Mr Runciman: Read your book. Turn the page. You are under the control of the bureaucrats like most of those guys over there. You don't know what is going on obviously. God!

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Ms Lankin: The member has obviously lost his generosity. I can tell it has happened very quickly. The previous government, under Peat Marwick as the consultants who—

Mr Runciman: Yes, you bet. You are letting killers wander the streets and that is okay. You don't even respond.

The Speaker: Order. The member for Leeds-Grenville, you posed a question and the minister is attempting to provide a response for you.

Mr Runciman: Give me an answer. I will listen to it. Not a bunch of bunk. Baloney.

Hon Ms Lankin: I have to remark, Mr Speaker, I just came back from a wonderful luncheon that was with respect to breast cancer screening. There was a room full of 1,000 women who were dealing with real-life issues and real-life traumas, and I note the remarkable difference coming back to this place in terms of some of the ways in which people treat issues. I think the issue that happened in Brockville is a very serious issue. I think the member raises very serious questions and I am trying to answer them. I would appreciate it if he would listen.

With respect to the recommendations made on review of forensic services in psychiatric hospitals, the first step I took after this incident in Brockville was to ensure that those recommendations had in fact been enacted within Brockville Psychiatric Hospital. I have been informed that they have been.

With respect to the specific issue that the member raises of an individual who was a former LGW patient and who was an approved companion for someone, the ministry's policies and the review which is undertaken are quite scrupulous. I have asked for that to be looked at, whether in fact that is an appropriate policy. That is part of the review that is going on with respect to the specifics of this case.

While the member may be very theatrical in his response to my answers, we are in fact trying to deal with a very serious problem that the community is very concerned about.

Mr Runciman: That is a typical, arrogant and condescending response from this minister that typifies responses from many members of that government. She is being critical of me and draws into this discussion a luncheon she had today.

I am talking about thousands of people across this province who have forensic facilities in their communities who are very legitimately concerned. We had a murder in my community. A year or two ago we had a stabbing because of her loose regulations in the Ministry of Health with respect to these people.

The minister is standing up here today and saying a killer can escort a killer. She has had three months and she has not even dealt with that. What she is doing is defending a system designed to protect the interests of the criminally insane at the expense of public safety. She is shoving people like Krueger, who is a dangerous sexual psychopath, out of maximum security facilities and into our communities, and she put him in an area where one of his victims' family lives. That is what she has done. She is consistently, in a very cavalier and callous way, gambling with public safety and ignoring victims and their families.

My final question is, will the minister commit herself to cleaning up this system so that public safety and victims' rights are its top priorities?

Hon Ms Lankin: I am going to say that I take great offence to this member saying to me across the floor that I am arrogant in my responses. People in this House know I take my job very seriously. I do not display arrogance.

I am very concerned about the people in the community of Brockville who have experienced this horrific event in their community, as well as people in other communities. We have a system that is in place. I am not personally responsible for the loose guidelines this member refers to, but quite frankly—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Difficult and contentious issues are not made any easier by language which inflames the situation, on both sides of the House.

Interjections.

The Speaker: The minister is not required to provide a further response.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN ALGONQUIN PARK

Mr Ramsay: My question to the Minister of the Environment follows along the same line of questioning of my colleague the member for Brampton North. We have to start to question the responsibility this Minister of the Environment takes for her job and specifically for the Environmental Assessment Act especially, unlike the Etobicoke situation where the proponents are private developers, in the case where it is a government initiative, there is publicly perceived harm to the environment and there are taxpayers' dollars involved. A few minutes ago, I gave advance notice to the minister of my question, and just in case she did not realize it, the Ad Hoc Committee to Save Algonquin Park has sent her a letter today requesting an environmental assessment on the government's draft agreement between itself and the Golden Lake Band, which is now going to allow hunting right across eastern Ontario, including provincial parks such as Algonquin and others.

I draw the attention of the minister to the final section of that letter. It asks her to make a determination for an environmental assessment before—this is very important—that agreement is signed. Just to remind the minister, unfortunately her colleague the Minister of Natural Resources wants this agreement signed next Tuesday, after giving us only 48 hours' notice of this agreement.

I am asking the minister today, will she meet immediately with these groups requesting this EA to see whether they can start to work this situation out?

1500

Hon Mrs Grier: I thank the member for having sent a copy of the letter over to me, which I gather was sent today by the Ad Hoc Committee to Save Algonquin Park. As my colleague the Minister of Natural Resources told the member yesterday, the document that had been released was there for consultation. I appreciate this contribution to the consultation and will discuss it with the Minister of Natural Resources.

Mr Ramsay: That answer is just not good enough. The minister talks about consultation. She is saying five days is going to be all the consultation. I have some quotations from this group. I am giving this to a minister who has always been the champion of the public with regard to public input and involvement on the Environmental Assessment Act. I am asking the minister to be that champion again.

These are the quotes: "...promised public consultation; it did not occur. The public has been given only two days to comment before this agreement is signed. The document was released on October 8. Real change is unlikely in this document since it is going to be signed on the 15th. Sure we had some meetings with the various ministers, but I wouldn't call that consultation. Asking another group consultation? It was zip. We didn't have any."

I am asking the minister whether we could start a consultation process. She has the authority to initiate an environmental assessment on this very profound impact on eastern Ontario. I am imploring the minister to exercise her authority today. Will she do it?

Hon Mrs Grier: Let me respond to the member by pointing out to him that I am still the champion of the environment but, unlike previous ministers of the Environment, I am not alone in my cabinet in championing the environment. I am one of a collectivity of champions of the environment within our cabinet.

Let me also remind the member that when he was the Minister of Natural Resources, his government entered into an agreement for the hunting of deer in eastern Ontario, which had exactly the same limit on the hunt as this agreement. I do not know whether there was an environmental assessment of that particular agreement. As I said in my response to his first question, I will consult with my colleague the Minister of Natural Resources about the letter, which I have just received today.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

Mr Harris: My question is to the Deputy Premier, the Treasurer, the member from northern Ontario. Forintek Canada Corp, a forestry research institute, is in the final stages of making a decision about where to relocate its eastern laboratory. The Treasurer should know that both Quebec and northern Ontario are the two on the short list being considered for the 80 jobs. These are high-tech research and development jobs. They are supported by the federal government, by virtually every other provincial government and by virtually everybody in the forestry industry. It is not supported by the province of Ontario.

At a time when Ontario is in desperate need for research and development jobs, when our forest industry is under assault, when some of our processes and technology are aging and when our competitiveness is causing layoffs all across northern Ontario, as I think the Treasurer would know, can he tell us why he, the Minister of Natural Resources, the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology and the Premier—in contrast to the Premier of Quebec and the various ministers who have been lobbying, talking to this company and laying out the red carpet—seem not to know very much about this facility and are not willing, at a senior level, a ministerial level, to meet with this company and secure these 80 jobs for northern Ontario?

Hon Mr Laughren: In view of the fact that this is an important question, I wonder whether I could refer it to a very senior member of our cabinet, the Minister of Northern Development.

Hon Miss Martel: I asked that the question be referred to me because I met with representatives from Forintek several months ago. I was very interested in their proposals and encouraged them very much to arrange meetings with the Minister of Natural Resources and the former Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology to talk about this particular issue.

I know the member is having communications with this company, so he knows very well that we are presently in negotiations with it to determine sharing costs among the three ministries—the Ministry of Mines and Northern Development, the Ministry of Natural Resources and the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology—to attract Forintek to Ontario.

Mr Harris: It is very significant that the Treasurer and a senior minister and the Deputy Premier knew nothing about this because it has not got to that level yet.

Hon Mr Laughren: Who said that?

Mr Harris: The honourable member's face told me that. She should stand up and tell me all she knows about it.

It is very significant that the Premier of Quebec and the senior ministers in Quebec know we are talking to this company. I am going back now to July 29, and nothing has changed since then other than a little memorandum going forward from the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology saying:

"We should go through the regular channels. Ontario has not been willing to participate in the partnership that funds the annual operation of Forintek. We have had Extensive discussion with Ontario's Ministry of Natural Resources and Ministry of Industry Trade and Technology. Regrettably, we must conclude that little value is placed on Forintek's presence in Ontario."

This is the company that wants to bring 80 high-technology jobs to northern Ontario in the forestry industry. The world is passing the honourable member by, and it is because members opposite are all too busy meeting with Bob White and dreaming up new regulations for the province, while other provinces are in there stealing our industries, our jobs and our investments. Will these government members commit today (a) to supporting Forintek and (b) to participating in the sharing so they can make the decision tomorrow?

Hon Miss Martel: If there are problems in the forestry industry in northern Ontario, it is because of the federal government, the friends of that group of people there, who with the 15% softwood lumber tax they only took off, and with the high value of the Canadian dollar and high interest rates, are killing the forestry sector in northern Ontario. The member's federal friends are directly responsible for it.

With respect to the negotiations that are going on, maybe the member's former Premier did not trust cabinet ministers to make deals with companies in Ontario. I am telling this member that our Premier has the confidence in me, in the Minister of Natural Resources and in the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology to put this deal together, and we intend to do just that.

WAGE PROTECTION

Mr Morrow: My question is to the Minister of Labour. I have an awful lot of people in my riding asking about the status of Bill 70, the wage protection program. I also understand that there are an awful lot of people who are looking for money for the wages that are lost. We also understand it was supposed to pass third reading in the House this week. Could the minister possibly tell us the status of that, and how many people are going to benefit from Bill 70?

Mr B. Murdoch: Ask the people right beside you.

Mr Turnbull: If you weren't asleep, you would know what was happening.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. The member for Grey and the member for York Mills are preventing the Speaker from hearing the response. The Minister of Labour.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I think it is a valid question that a lot of people are waiting for the answers to. We have had better than 18,000 claims. We have completed assessments on 6,000 of those claims. We can have 2,000 cheques out the first week after the proclamation and we can start the others shortly thereafter. The only problem we have is completing the legislation, which nobody seems to really disagree with, and start the cheques moving out to the people who are owed the money.

1510

UTDC INC

Mrs McLeod: My question is for the Minister of Transportation. The minister was most anxious to answer a question from our leader about UTDC, so we will now give him an opportunity to respond to that specific question. We are very appreciative of the fact that the government has found a way of providing some interim funding to UTDC to keep its plants in Thunder Bay and Kingston operating while the government makes a decision about the sale of the company, although it is frustrating to learn about the details of these negotiations only through the newspapers.

We are well aware that there are at least two private sector bidders for the company. We are also very well aware that the management and the employees of this company have been waiting anxiously for many weeks now to learn of the government's decision. The government has said that uncertainty over the ownership is hurting its ability to secure contracts as well as heightening the anxiety for the workers. I ask the minister, what is holding up the decision and can he give us an assurance that these negotiations will be successfully concluded very shortly?

Hon Mr Pouliot: I appreciate not only the commitment, but the knowledge and ongoing following of the dossier by the member for Fort William. It is fair to say that in the political arena perhaps no one is more aware of the dilemma or the impasse at UTDC than the member is. She should be, and it is not uncommon. It is not being parochial. It is people who are paying our collective wages, and she comes from that region. There again my compliment, mes hommages.

We have received one initial offer from the AEG Westinghouse group, and another initial offer from Bombardier. We go back about a month. We have asked that they come back, because the offers were relatively close. There was little to differentiate between one and the next on many components and not enough to bring those components to a catalyst to enable us to make a decision.

We have said to AEG Westinghouse and Bombardier, "You can do better." In the meantime Lavalin, which owns 85% of the shares, is saying: "We can't pay the bills. We can't make ends meet." More important, the workers are saying: "What are you going to do in terms of anxiety?

Am I going to get paid next Friday for the work I have done?" In the interim, in the short term, we have provided a few million dollars, not that much money, to make sure people get their paycheques until an agreement can be signed. We are hoping the agreement will be signed within a matter of short weeks.

Mrs McLeod: I am looking for an assurance from the minister that this agreement will be successfully completed in a very short time. In the last few years these UTDC plants have overcome a legacy of problems, which arose when the company was under public ownership, incidentally. This plant now produces world-class products, offers top-quality service and the plants have a proven record of success in international bids. Surely the minister and his government can understand that this is exactly the kind of company we need to keep and should be able to keep in Ontario.

What is worrying me—the minister would perhaps acknowledge it—is that the antibusiness record of this government has created a real crisis of confidence for private sector investors in the province. I would like from the minister some understanding this afternoon of the assurances the government is able to provide in this case to two prospective private sector buyers of this company, that they can invest safely in these companies and in Ontario. What assurance is he providing to those companies to bring these negotiations to a successful conclusion?

Hon Mr Pouliot: Let's talk about business acumen. I welcome the question. I give the member the assurance that the tone of the negotiations is businesslike. Negotiations are straight to the point and we are just about to reach a conclusion in a matter of short weeks. There is no antagonism here, because this is what is being said in the real world of business, that 40 bilevel commuter cars for the city of Los Angeles are presently being built—that is worth $70 million in real money—and 216 T-1 subway cars for right here, the greater Toronto area. That is real money in the real world and real money in the pockets of workers. And 40 advanced light rail transit cars for Vancouver. If that is not good business, I do not know what is.

Our focus is to guarantee the jobs. They way you guarantee jobs is by going to the marketplace and encouraging companies to establish a partnership with the government of Ontario, which presently owns 15%. All our options are open. We are doing what needs to be done. Exercise a little more patience. You are just about to win this one.

LAND REGISTRATION

Mr Tilson: I have a question for the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations. I am sure the minister recalls the story last week reported on the television program The Fifth Estate on the implementation of the Polaris land registry system in the province of Ontario.

That program outlined some very serious concerns regarding this system, including the circumstances surrounding the original bid for the project and its potential to compromise the privacy of all Ontarians. That was the general gist of the television program. The Fifth Estate managed to find out some of the provisions in the minister's partnership agreement with Real Data Ontario, and these were reported on the television program. According to The Fifth Estate, under this agreement both sides have agreed to keep the details of the partnership agreement secret for ever, a most remarkable clause.

Would the minister tell this House today why she wants the details of the partnership agreement to remain secret for ever?

Hon Ms Churley: I did see the program and was aware of its existence for some time. As the member knows, this project has been around for some time and had been approved by the previous government. The magnitude of the—

Mr Sorbara: Nearly approved.

Hon Ms Churley: Actually, the member across the floor is quite right. It had almost been approved by the previous government and then, of course, the election was called.

What I should say is that this government, because of the magnitude of this particular project and the implications to taxpayers, took nothing for granted. It did extensive external and internal reviews of the project, and at the end of those reviews came to the conclusion that it is a very good deal with the private sector. The government fully supports it and believes it is going to be a good deal for the taxpayers of Ontario.

Mr Tilson: I find it amazing that the government would take it upon itself to make an agreement of this magnitude, literally giving away all our secrets to a group of people we do not even know, and that it is going to keep that secret for ever. That agreement is "secret for ever." I submit that the minister has not answered the question at all. I hope she intends to file that agreement with this House.

All we have to refer to is what was revealed in that program, because she will not tell us what the contract was. Under this secret partnership agreement, as reported in The Fifth Estate, the government guarantees Teranet a minimum revenue flow. That was one of the provisions of that agreement.

I feel it is important that Ontario taxpayers know where their tax dollars are going. This, of course, has been stated by the Treasurer. I would like to know what this guarantee works out to in dollar figures.

Hon Ms Churley: Some of the information that was on the program was not correct; there were inaccuracies in that program.

I have to say this is going to be worked out over a great number of years and is going to save the taxpayers money and make money for the taxpayers of Ontario.

The member refers to a "secret" deal; there is no secret deal here. As the member is very aware, when any company begins a new project, certain documentation is always kept private. That is for the simple reason that certain information, if made public, will hurt the company's ability to compete in the marketplace.

I will be happy to provide the member with further details later, because I can see Mr Speaker would like me to sit down now.

1520

SCHOOL TRANSFER

Mr Hansen: My question is to the Minister of Education. Recently in my riding, the two school boards, the Lincoln County Board of Education and the Lincoln County Roman Catholic Separate School Board, signed an agreement to hand over Grantham High School to the separate school board.

Under the original conditional agreement, the public school board was to receive funding to complete much-needed remodelling at two of its schools, one being South Lincoln High School in Smithville. However, with the recommendations of the Planning and Implementation Commission, the funding for the two public schools was dropped from the final agreement.

Since that time, a number of public school supporters in my riding have expressed concern that the agreement signed by the two boards does not include an allocation to renovate South Lincoln High School. Can the minister clarify the reasons this allocation was not made?

Hon Mrs Boyd: The member is quite right that there was some sort of preliminary agreement signed between the two boards under the Planning and Implementation Commission process earlier on. That agreement was never forwarded to me with a recommendation from PIC. The parties went back to the bargaining table. They were aware of the general financial parameters that the government had set on this kind of situation. They reached another agreement. I do not know the process by which they came to that agreement and I have not officially received the agreement to sign as yet, so it is difficult for me to tell the member what their process was.

I can tell him that certainly boards must understand that the province does not have an unlimited supply of money and that settlements of Bill 30 issues cannot be used as ways to get money for other projects that schools want to do.

VISITORS

The Speaker: I would like to inform members that we have been joined this afternoon. Seated in the Speaker's gallery are Dr Carlos Da Costa Neves, the Home Secretary for the government of the autonomous region of the Azores, Portugal, and Dr Jose Manuel Viegas, the consul general of Portugal. Welcome.

PETITIONS

TOBACCO TAXES

Mr B. Murdoch: I have a petition from the Western Fair to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas the present high levels of taxes on tobacco products are excessive and contrary to the interests of Ontario's two million smokers; and

"Whereas high tobacco taxes are contributing to retail theft and to our province's cross-border shopping crisis; and

"Whereas these punitive taxes and resulting lost sales are contributing to inflation as well as costing jobs in Ontario; and

"Whereas high cigarette taxes are regressive and unfair to low- and modest-income citizens;

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That Ontario tobacco taxes should not be increased in 1991 and, further, that these taxes should be repealed and a new lower and fairer tax be introduced."

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr J. Wilson: I am pleased to rise to present a petition to the Legislature of Ontario, which reads as follows:

"Whereas the Queen of Canada has long been a symbol of national unity for Canadians from all walks of life and from all ethnic backgrounds;

"Whereas the people of Canada are currently facing a constitutional crisis which could potentially result in the breakup of the federation and are in need of unifying symbols;

"We, the undersigned, respectfully petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to restore the oath to the Queen for Ontario's police officers."

That is signed by a number of good people from my riding, Simcoe West, from the township of Tecumseh and the village of Tottenham, and I too have affixed my name to this petition.

Mr Mahoney: I have a petition, Mr Speaker:

"Whereas Her Majesty the Queen, at her coronation in 1953, took a personal oath to the people of Canada, and Canadians have always reciprocated with oaths of allegiance and service to the person of the sovereign;

"Whereas it is our right and duty to take oaths of allegiance and service in such form;

"Whereas Ontario Regulation 144/91 made under the Police Services Act, 1990 denies Ontarians this right;

"We, the undersigned residents of Ontario, loyal to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to resolve that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor in Council be requested to revoke Ontario regulation 144/91 and restore the traditional oath of service to Her Majesty for police personnel in Ontario."

I present this petition and have affixed my signature thereto.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS AMENDMENT ACT (EMPLOYEE WAGE PROTECTION PROGRAM), 1991

LOI DE 1991

MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LES NORMES D'EMPLOI (PROGRAMME DE PROTECTION DES SALAIRES DES EMPLOYÉS)

Resuming consideration of Bill 70, An Act to amend the Employment Standards Act to provide for an employee wage protection program and to make certain other amendments.

Suite du débat ajourné sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 70, Loi portant modification de la Loi sur les normes d'emploi par création d'un

Programme de protection des salaires des employés et par adoption de certaines autres modifications.

House in committee of the whole.

La Chambre en comité plénier.

Section/article 16:

The Second Deputy Chair: Yesterday we were debating an amendment moved by Mr Offer to Bill 70, section 16 of the bill as reprinted, that clause 65(1)(rb) of the act, as set out in section 16 of the bill as reprinted, be struck out. I believe when debate was adjourned, the honourable member for Brampton South had the floor.

Mr Callahan: When last we were dealing with a particular clause by the government, I raised, and I perhaps reiterate to get back to the area I was at, the question that regulations are the silent laws of this province. They require absolutely no scrutiny from members of this Legislature. The net result of that is that a government, simply by a cabinet order, can increase the amount of protection under this bill.

I must correct the record. Yesterday I indicated that it could perhaps also decrease the amount, but the bill is quite specific that it cannot do that. The only thing that is open to it is to increase it, so in fact what we are looking at is a blank cheque.

I want to paint this against the background that quite obviously people in this Legislature representing their specific constituencies share a common concern about the protection of workers, in the event that a business closes or in the event that a business leaves the country, to ensure that there is a continuum of support for these people. But on the other side of the coin, you have to create an atmosphere that is going to make it possible for those businesses that wish to continue to be able to survive. We want to create an atmosphere of certainty about investment. We want to create an atmosphere that is going to make the labour market or the business people provide the jobs so that in fact there will be jobs.

If you create uncertainty by creating a scenario that allows, one, a blank cheque routine, and two, and probably more significantly, this to be done without the democratic protections of its being canvassed and viewed by the elected representatives of this House, then I suggest that what you in fact do is create an air of uncertainty that is totally unnecessary in this time, in this place, in Ontario.

1530

It is interesting to note that in the last month or so all sorts of forecasters have been indicating that the recession is winding down. When I heard those circumstances, I had to think about it. I thought to myself, "That's not happening." There are lots of indicators that each and every one of us see as we walk around our constituencies to demonstrate that the recession is not winding down. In fact, in the Globe and Mail or the Toronto Star, I guess two or three days ago, there was a front-page story that the recession had got deeper.

We are dealing with a very fragile economic situation here. It is all well and good for all of us to have great concern, and I think it is appropriate for there to be some form of protection for workers who may lose their jobs for various reasons, but at the same time it is inappropriate that in a recession which appears to be not abating but getting worse, we have such uncertainty that the people who have the capital and who are prepared to create the jobs, who are prepared to invest in this province, are concerned about doing that.

We may say to ourselves: "Why should the fact that there is a wage protection program create uncertainty? Why would people not be prepared to generate jobs by investment of capital? That is not a great uncertainty." I suggest to members that one thing every member of this House has to understand is that every small quirk or loophole that a businessman cannot put into his business plan to determine exactly what the cost of doing business is and what it is going to cost to operate at a profitable rate so that he does not go under and does not have to lay off his employees, every small item has to be there in a definitive way so that he can plan effectively for the creation of those jobs that all of us so greatly want to be available in Ontario.

When we look at the loss of jobs over the last year, it has been dramatic and tragic. We have all seen the results of those lost jobs. We can blame them on whatever we like. We can blame them on free trade, we can blame them on a whole host of things, but the fact is that those jobs are leaving this province. The net result is that we cannot afford to create any degree of uncertainty in that fragile relationship to develop those jobs. I suggest that is exactly what is happening here, and it bears repeating, because in fact what the government is doing is giving a blank cheque.

A similar type of thing was debated on Bill 118. I am not going to get into that, but it is significant that this legislation creates an uncertainty as well. The people who are going to take a chance, even in a recession, to start up a new business and create those jobs to replace the ones that have been lost by employers going under, employers leaving the province and so on, are sitting down and trying to write out their business plans. They are trying to figure out just what it is going to cost them to create this job, at the risk of their own capital, and also what liabilities they have.

We have this blank cheque. That is a real problem. We have a blank cheque that bears no scrutiny by the people who have a right to speak on it, if the government of the day, be it this government or any other government, decides it wants to up the ante from $5,000 to something greater.

I have alluded to Bill 118, which allows hydro rates to be increased. Some people say: "So what? We've got the cheapest hydro in town." The fact is that the relatively good price we have for hydro under the present Power Corporation Act, before it is amended, encourages business people to set up shop in this province and create those jobs.

I urge this government to really look at it from the standpoint that jobs do not just spring up out of the ground. We do not go sprinkle some seeds and jobs arise. Jobs are created by people who are prepared to risk their capital, and if we do not give them the groundwork so that they can significantly understand that the rules are thus and the rules cannot be changed without a particular type of attention being brought in a public forum such as the Legislature, then what we have done is create an air of uncertainty.

As much as I applaud the actions of the government in an attempt to protect the workers of this province, I really ask it to look at that. I think we fall into a real state of—I am trying to think of the proper word—misleading ourselves by talking about this order in council. I am sure the people out there in the public domain, those who perhaps do not follow the proceedings of the Legislature, see a Lieutenant Governor's order in council as being our good and gracious Lieutenant Governor ensuring that fairness will be dealt with throughout.

I think that is an appropriate approach to take, because our good Lieutenant Governor has served this province well. He is a man of great integrity. He is respected by the citizens of this province. However, people have to understand the Lieutenant Governor's role. I am sure if he had the ability to be able to oversee that, he would, but that is not the legislative technique of this province.

It is important that the people in the government members' ridings who are watching this bring this to their attention and that the members make them aware of the fact that this is a decision made behind closed doors with no input whatsoever and nobody to be the watchdog on it. I do not want to impute motives that would be inappropriate to the government. I am speaking of not just this government but any government of the day. That is what laws are for. They are to be certain. You are supposed to know not just for today, not just for this government, but down the road.

If we going to have a piece of legislation that makes sense, there has to be certainty to it. Let's say that down the line—again, I am not imputing motives to any particular government—it becomes important because of some exterior force; let's say an Angus Reid poll. I should not really give them an advertisement. Any of the pollsters could say, "It would be a good thing, government, to increase the protection for workers," not because the economy says it is needed, because that would be an appropriate increase to cover the fair and just needs of the workers, but for political purposes. I know that would not happen, but it might.

If that avenue is there, it creates uncertainty too. It makes me feel uncomfortable. It should make the people who would be the shakers and movers of the day uncomfortable that they would have the responsibility to take a piece of legislation that was meant to help people and use it as a political tool. We want to avoid that. We want to make certain that cannot happen. The best protection to ensure that does not happen—and I think this is a common statement throughout history—is that democracy flourishes best in the light. The darkness that you shed on democracy makes democracy work less effectively.

If there is one thing that my colleague David Fleet, the former member for High Park-Swansea did, in having guts and intelligence when he was chairing the standing committee on regulations and private bills, it was to prepare a very excellent report, which I urge each and every member to read, about the very thing I am talking about, regulation. He tried to enlarge the powers of the regulations and private bills committee to have more input and more control over the decisions made by order in council.

1540

If that were in place, if in fact a committee of this Legislature, albeit perhaps with just 10 members, had the opportunity to look at and examine the motives of why a particular matter was being changed by regulation, I would feel a little more secure and I think the business community would feel a little more secure. They would know that the people who are responsible to them and hold the sacred trust to look after their interests had had an opportunity to examine the regulation.

We have not got there. I hope that one day this Legislature will become enlightened enough to change a number of things, and that is one of them. I hope they would change and become enlightened enough to refer bills out to committee after first reading rather than after second reading, when the policy of the bill has been established. Going to public hearings then is a waste of taxpayers' dollars. Not one word of what people say is listened to. I would like to see those things changed.

To get back to the question of the amendment—I am sure the Chair will bring me back to it—talking about it as a regulation, the impact of that on the business community is such that it should not be by regulation. I know that would cause some difficulty for the government of the day, because it would have to bring it back into the Legislature if a change were required. I suggest the ceiling that has been placed there now is one that should be adequate for the time being. It is not something that necessarily has to be changed immediately. Why should it not be brought back into the Legislature to be aired in the full view of the elected representatives? That would give a degree of certainty to the community that creates the jobs.

If one looks at the amendment and does not really examine it or listen to the other members who are speaking on it, one might very easily think, "It's fairly innocuous, it's not difficult, it's not going to create a problem." I think the members have to examine the full gamut of it. They cannot simply say, "Trust me." If the members said to the electors today, "Trust me," the electors might very well laugh at them. We have created our own reputation, which probably runs second to that of the oldest profession in the world. We have created it ourselves because we have done such things as sending bills out after second reading, when the policy is in place, and doing things by order in council.

I bet the members that if I sent a page back there to bring me the 95 volumes or whatever it is of the Revised Statutes of Ontario and all of the red books, the amendments, we could go through them and spend time counting the number of acts in this province which have opportunities for decisions to be made by regulation. There are basket clauses, as they call them. Some of the basket clauses are so wide you could do literally anything under the act. We should do that. We should direct our attention towards making regulations more accountable, requiring that they come before responsible elected members of the Legislature.

If we did that, the minister would not have any difficulty with this clause, because that regulation would have to bear the scrutiny of elected representatives. This is not necessarily a criticism directed at the government. It is reality that more often than not those regulations are made after five or six people have got together in a room and thought: "This is a good idea, but we don't want to lock it up in the House. We want to have the flexibility to be able to roll whenever we want."

If I could be sure those people in that room were all elected people, that would give me great comfort. But I am willing to bet that if I were a fly on the wall in those meetings, four of them might be elected and the other four would probably be what are called spin doctors, or unelected representatives. That, to me, is dangerous, because what is happening is that the unelected people are not accountable to anybody. They are not accountable to the people of Ontario who elected us. Therefore, there is nothing that can be done if they carry out their program in an inappropriate way and it results in either the amount being increased and businesses leaving the province, or having to get out of business because they cannot effectively make a profit. Who do you go to? How do you get to those four unelected people or whatever the number is? You cannot.

Obviously the whole purpose of democracy and our way of life that has kept us free is that accountability is the final step. That is how the people of this province have their strongest way of keeping all of us in line and making certain that when we enact laws they are for the betterment of the people who gave us that sacred trust. It is because they have their final arrow and that arrow comes at the ballot box. How do they get at these four, five or six people who have had some input into why this regulation should change and why the ante should be jacked up from $5,000 to $7,000 or $10,000?

We all know and we all share a common concern in this province. My good friend the Treasurer day after day—I have great empathy for him—puts up his shield and fends off the arrows, trying to defend his budget deficit of some $9.7 billion, saying, "We're going to fix that by telling all the ministries they must pare down their expenses." If that young fellow there, the Treasurer of Ontario, can work that hard to try to keep our spending in line and to ensure that we can carry on with all those marvellous programs that were formed by our government and are being done by the present government, if we are going to have the money in the pot to do that and if the Treasurer is going to work so hard to try to pare down the costs of ministries, then I think it behooves us to ensure that this amendment be framed in such a way that it can be scrutinized and controlled, or at least not be a blank cheque.

I say this because I was watching—I am nutty enough that I go home and watch this thing a second time. That is really sick. My kids look at me like something is wrong. In any event, as I was listening, and I think it was yesterday, somebody was asking the Treasurer, who is a man of great integrity—I enjoy him; he is a very good person—about a dinner that took place at the Royal York Hotel for, I think it was, $800 or $900 at $17 a plate for 256 or something for the Ministry of Government Services. We have all these marvellous rooms that we occupy around here and that are not constantly in use. I would venture to say you could walk through the corridors of Queen's Park and all our adjoining buildings and you would probably find all sorts of space where the cobwebs have settled because no one has been there.

I bring that up simply because the Treasurer is trying so hard, and I believe him, to pare that money away from ministries. Yet while he is doing that—his comment when the question was asked of him was, “I didn’t know about that”—I watched the new Minister of Government Services up there, and I congratulate him on his new post, and he did not flinch. If the Treasurer, who is a man of significant substance and is close to the Premier cannot control the expenditures of the ministries that he would like to, what assurance do we have if this amendment goes through and if changes could be made by regulation? What protection do we have? What do I and everyone else here do, not as just opposition members but as government members? Those members who are in the shadow of power, and perhaps outside the shadow of power; some of them may even be outside the shadow of the shadow of power, because I know what that is all about.

1550

But if members are outside the shadow of power, they are going to have to explain at some point to their business electorate how the ceiling went from $5,000 to $7,000. They are going to say: “Did that happen in the House? Did you vote for it? Did you know about it?” I think I am helping out the newer members in the House by letting them know how they do it. The members opposite are going to be able to say to them: “It wasn’t my fault because I have no control over that. This is done by order in council, big stuff.” Then they will say to members opposite: “Well, Mike, what’s an order in council? Who does that?” The members are going to choke over it and they are going to say, “I think it’s done by eight or nine responsible people in the back office.” Then they are going to say: “That’s fine, Mike. What are their names and what are their ridings?” The members are going to say, “I don’t know.”

What I am trying to do is help the members out when they have to explain why it went up from $5,000 to $6,000 or $7,000 or whatever, and again, I hasten to add, without justification. Quite obviously we want to protect our workers where they are left out to dry because of bankruptcy or unconscionable closing down of a business, but more often than not those cannot survive because of the economic climate, because of changes that take place.

I strongly urge members to look into their souls so they can look into the mirror when that question is asked and say, “We listened and we voted down an amendment that would have allowed that increase to take place without it coming to the floor of the Legislature.” In the alternative, when they are asked, “Why did it go from $5,000 to $6,000 or $7,000?” they will be able to send a copy of their Hansards where they and their fellow legislators debated the issue. Right there in Hansard it will say that the reason the price went up was because it was there to meet the very legitimate concerns of those people who had lost their jobs, who we care for, and that we debated it, that it did not happen in the back room on the second floor, down in that corner office or wherever else this stuff takes place. I do not know because I was never privy to that stuff. But members will be able to hold their heads up high and they will be able to go back to Kitchener and be greeted in a fashion befitting a politician who honestly did his job, each and every one of them.

I urge them to consider that and I thank them for their attention.

Mr Cordiano: I rise to participate in this gleefully, but I want to say to my colleague who spoke earlier, with reference to watching our proceedings a second time on television, that I would think better of it. In fact, being here once is enough during the day, without having to revisit this on television later in the evening.

There are of course worthy debates and worthy discussions that take place here. I want to focus my attention on what we are dealing with and say with respect to a ceiling of $5,000 that is done by regulation that it is quite troublesome and worrisome on our side of the House. Our concern, as my colleague pointed out earlier, is that the amount could be raised at any time, given whatever whimsical desire there is on the part of the government to raise that ceiling without real justification in this House. I think it speaks volumes about the kind of initiatives that should be taken with respect to legislative authority mandating such changes. They should be done in this House. Quite frankly something that is law should not be changed by regulation in such an easy fashion. This piece of legislation which is called for is very important. It is very fundamental to the way this recession works itself out. In fact, if we come out of this recession it will be largely because we are able to do it by our own means. I think this legislation has a direct impact on that.

What we do in this place has a direct impact on how we conduct ourselves in an economic fashion in this province. We have a big impact on how the economy functions. This government will have a big impact on the way the economy functions. I think it is important to keep that in mind. It is important when we are bringing about changes of the kind we see here today, changes that have a fundamental impact on the way people think about how to shape their economic futures.

It has the kind of impact which says to someone in the future that we are not going to be certain about what changes will be coming down the pipe. I think that is the sort of thing people are concerned about in our jurisdiction these days. The uncertainty is not just with respect to the economic factors that go into a decision to locate investment capital in this province, it is about the kind of changes which will occur by regulation, the kind of changes which will tie up small businesses, which we see at the present time in this province having difficulty coping with the red tape that engulfs them.

We hear pleas from the business community, particularly the small business community: “We’re having a difficult time, a very difficult time. We’ve never seen the kind of difficulties we’re experiencing now.”

In that climate of uncertainty and in that climate of anxiety, to bring legislation which does not try to rectify its uncertainties or clear up its intentions is very difficult. This bill is not unworthy in what it attempts to do; it is noteworthy, it is full of merit in many regards, but I think the uncertainties have to be cleared up. That area needs further clarification. It needs to be dealt with in this Legislature. To leave it to be determined by regulation—that level of $5,000 can be changed at any time in the future—I think is a fundamental mistake.

The fact that this bill spills over into other areas can be problematic as well. What I mean is that workers can claim to have been docked pay for other reasons and may be entitled under this legislation to pay that has been docked for other reasons, as I said earlier, and to claim those wages under this act. I think there is a great deal of uncertainty with respect to that as well. I have concerns about that aspect of this legislation and I want this government to clarify its position a little further with respect to workers being able to claim pay that has been deducted for whatever reason—but who still have their jobs, mind you. They still continue to be employed by that employer but will be able to claim wages lost for other reasons. That is a whole other issue this legislation must clear up.

The uncertainty with which we deal with this bill continues to plague the economy. People have anxiety because of the uncertainties, because the climate is not clear, the direction is not clear. We are seeing a shrinking economic pie, yet there is a greater desire on the part of this government to steer us in a direction that says, "Let's deal with that shrinking economic pie more closely."

1600

All of our energies have to be directed towards increasing that economic pie, making it larger. These matters which attempt to clarify the labour situation—wage protection, other items that are being brought forward by this government—do not deal with the basic economic fact that we have a shrinking economic pie at the present time, that we are in a serious recession, not just a temporary situation. Some people think this is a serious situation which may last well into the next five years.

We do not want to be pessimistic, of course. We feel things can improve by the willingness of governments and of people in the province to work together to improve our situation. We can do that. However, we have to be of the school of thought that says we have to attract investment to this province, we have to attract wealth creation and people who are interested in making things happen, and those people do not come easily. They are difficult.

It is difficult to encourage people even within our own jurisdiction, let alone foreign investment, which we depend on, but to encourage people in our own jurisdiction to risk capital is something we need to do, and it simply cannot happen if we are going to bring about legislation and policies which do the opposite. The climate at present being what it is, I think it is not well suited to bringing in legislation which questions that, which adds an even further strain in terms of the investment picture.

While we look forward to initiatives to improve the situation with respect to employees having lost wages—again, I say there is a principle at stake here which is supportable on our part—the concern we have with the lack of clarity on this question that will be dealt with by regulation is one that I think will continue to cause problems for us unless we hear further definitive statements and clarifications from the government. This is not just with respect to the whole theme of this bill, which I think in itself causes uncertainties for the investment picture, but with the lack of clarity with respect to specific aspects of this bill which cause problems for us in supporting this legislation fully.

I ask the minister, who is sitting in the House, to please take a look at those areas of concern that we bring forward in our debate and try to clarify those for us. Let's deal squarely and head-on with the issues which will result in dramatic changes to legislation. We should deal with those in the Legislature. I think that is the direct way to deal with legislation which calls for fundamental change, which mandates the kind of change we will see in terms of the limits that are being set in this legislation; $5,000 could quickly turn into $10,000 and we would not have a significant debate in this House about that. I ask the minister to please look at that.

Mr Harnick: The intent of this amendment is to prevent the definition of "wages" being changed by way of regulation. I think that is a very important amendment and I am glad the minister is here. The amendment is significant in that the definition of "wages" is the determining factor of virtually every payment that has to be made out of the wage protection fund and certainly it is the substance of the bill. In terms of definitions, that is the most substantive part of the bill, so if the government wants to have any stability in dealing with this wage protection fund, it cannot permit the cabinet to go behind closed doors and on its own, without consultation, which is what it can do, go ahead and change the definition of "wages." They can do it by regulation.

The important aspect of this amendment is that it would force the government, if it did not want to consult—we know that there has been some difficulty with its definition of what consulting is. If they did not want to consult, at least they would be forced to bring a substantive change to the legislation back to the Legislature. If it is back before the Legislature, a bill has to be prepared and there is the opportunity for committee hearings so that the public can be heard, if the government chose not to consult in perhaps some more ameliorative way.

The idea of being able to change this legislation by regulation is a dangerous thing, particularly because we are not dealing with minor regulation; we are dealing with the pith and substance of the bill itself.

The other thing is that if they want to send the right message to the public, if they want to send the right message out to the small businessmen who employ the majority of the workforce, then they do not provide that they can change the bill behind closed doors. They provide that they are going to do everything in an open, democratic and obvious way, because by doing that, they do not evoke suspicion. They show that their intentions are the very best at all times and that it is in fact government without walls. We heard that from another government. This government has not made that statement. In effect, with legislation like this, it is a government with walls, because it does everything behind the closed door of the cabinet where nobody can see, where nobody can know.

This is not the only bill we have seen brought before the Legislature where significant and substantive elements can be changed by regulation. I do not see that the deletion of this particular clause, 65(1)(rb), would hurt the intent of this bill. The deletion of this section would show that this government is sending out a message to the community at large that it wants the input of the community, that it is not going to go behind closed doors, that it is not going to make changes in a hasty way, in a way in which the public does not have an opportunity to be consulted. I urge the minister to consider this amendment because it sends out the right signal without detracting from the bill in any way at all.

Mr Sola: I would like to carry on in the same vein, because the previous member just covered the topic I wanted to cover, that is, the message that is being sent out. For instance, who in his right mind could be opposed to worker protection? I think that is the reason members on all sides of the House in every party are here: to do the best they can for their constituents, which includes every level of society, from worker to small business to big business and professionals.

But at the same time they ask, "Who would be opposed to worker protection?" they have to ask the question, "Who wants to promote legislation that will produce more unemployed workers who will have to seek this protection?"

When they see the headlines in the papers from the business community, I think that is what they have to be afraid of with Bill 70, the fact that the business community sees it as an attack upon business, an attack upon the investment community and that through this attack the likelihood of investment in this province is minimized.

1610

I would like to take just one headline today, from the Toronto Sun, by Lee Lester. It says, "Coalition Fires Salvo at NDP." It is a 160-strong coalition of companies, most of them major companies but also smaller companies, and it has some very hard-hitting facts to put down. First, for instance, they say new labour laws "will put bureaucrats in charge of the workplace...and raise the cost of doing business in Ontario." Second, they say, "Business investment will be driven away to other provinces and border states."

This amendment which the member for Mississauga North has proposed, that any change to compensation levels should be dictated by legislation, may give business a little more confidence that its concerns will be heard. If there is an antagonistic element between the government and business, they know that at least the opposition parties then will be able to present some views that the business community wants to propose, whereas if it is through regulation, it can be done silently and they will be hit with perhaps retroactive measures that will hurt the business environment.

I am afraid that when I hear the opposition to the amendments proposed by our party, especially the previous amendment, which was turned down, where company directors should be given some leeway with regard to reasonable diligence before they become liable to these fines, I wonder. I would like to pose this question to the minister:

In these proposed government bail-outs, for example, the de Havilland case and some of these other companies, it would seem to me that if the government is proposing to put money into the private sector to save companies, by that very act it is saying that these directors are not completely responsible for the shape the companies are in; that it can be the downturn in the economy, it can be the world economy, it can be the recession, it can be political factors that are out of the control of the company directors. If the government is willing to put money into these companies, you would think it would be willing to give these company directors some sort of protection if they are considered to be conscientious people doing a job in the best interests both of the employees and of the employers.

My problem is that on most of the legislation the NDP has proposed so far, it seems to me it has taken a blinkered approach. It knows what it wants to accomplish and it stares straight ahead. It puts the blinkers on so that it does not see the dangers that are lurking at the side of the road. I think this legislation simply tries to remove the blinkers or cut a little hole in the blinkers so they get the idea that they had better not veer off the road too much because they will fall into a disaster.

From the reaction of the business community, I think this labour legislation, Bill 70, is seen by the business community to be trying to destroy the foundations upon which the economy of Ontario was built, that is, the private sector and the small-business community. It reminds me of an article I read in Saturday's Globe and Mail, I think, about the civil war in Yugoslavia, where the Yugoslav army claimed it had to destroy the port city of Dubrovnik because it had to protect it from the people who had built it, who had maintained it and who had protected it for 1,000 years. In this instance, to get back to the bill, Bill 70 seems to be trying to protect the economy of Ontario, the workers of Ontario, from the very people who have made the economy so strong in Ontario.

We realize that there are bad apples in every barrel. We realize that there are directors who are directly responsible for the sad shape of their companies and who are trying to renege on their responsibilities to their workers and their commitments. On the other hand, I think the vast majority of companies in Ontario do not have these types of directors and do not have a lack of concern for their workers.

I think by accepting at least some of the amendments that the opposition parties are proposing, a message could be sent that the government is willing to listen, that the government wants to remove the antagonistic approach to the business sector and that the business sector can regain confidence in the government and put some investment moneys into the economy in order to improve the situation, to turn our economy around and get our province back on its feet.

Mr Tilson: My comments will be very brief. They are mainly to support the member for Willowdale in his comments and our party's support of this amendment. I think the fear we have in our party is the fear of government by bureaucrats. The amendment, of course, is to stop the intent of the bill, which in section 16 indicates that whatever has been set out in section 40b defining what wages are, whatever has been overlooked either now or in the future, can be simply prescribed by regulation at a later date.

Our concern with that, of course, is that this is the type of matter that should be dealt with in this House. To assign a matter as important as this to the bureaucrats, we cannot support. There is a fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown of a later date expanding on the definition section of what wages are, the fear of the unknown which will perhaps be more detrimental to business, business already being afraid of this legislation, and this will create even more fear.

The government seems to be committed by this type of section to policies that will certainly dissuade investment in this province and entrepreneurs outside the province investing in this province. When they look at this province to look at the potential of investing in this province, they are concerned with the increased power that has been given to wages, and they ask a question in article after article, in newspaper after newspaper: "Is this type of legislation, which includes this type of amendment, the last straw in breaking the back of Ontario's entrepreneurs? Why would an entrepreneur or an investor invest in the province of Ontario?"

We cannot support a position being taken by the government on this bill to delegate the responsibility which we feel should be in this House as opposed to with the bureaucrats.

1620

Mr Harnick: I have just a couple of other thoughts on this particular amendment. We have had a raucous couple of days in this Legislature, and part of the reason is because the opposition has become frustrated at not being able to respond to announcements that the government is making outside of this Legislature.

The standing orders say that ministers may make statements in the Legislature, and it has become the traditional approach since these standing orders were amended to read that way that statements were made in the Legislature.

We have become increasingly frustrated over the past few days—and I see members of the government looking quizzically at me. I am getting to the point. They should give me a moment.

The Second Deputy Chair: I appreciate the point will be on the amendment to Bill 70.

Mr Harnick: Absolutely, Mr Chairman.

We have become increasingly frustrated about the fact that announcements are made outside of the Legislature day after day and we do not have a chance to respond and make a statement on the record about whether we like what the government is doing or whether we have some constructive criticism about what the government is doing.

Now we see in this act an attempt to amend a significant aspect of the wage protection fund and wage protection program by not bringing the amendment into this Legislature. We see a deliberate attempt to continue to make changes in the cabinet room by way of regulation, amendment to regulation and order in council, rather than bringing the amendments back into this Legislature.

Hon Mr Cooke: Because this place operates so efficiently.

Mr Harnick: Pardon?

Hon Mr Cooke: Just mumbling.

Mr Harnick: Can the member tell me what he said? The government House leader is making comments, but he is mumbling so I cannot respond to them, and it is probably just as well.

This amendment does nothing more than ask that the government please do its public business in this Legislature. They should not do it behind closed doors. The Premier today was quite eloquent in answering questions pertaining to the amendment of our procedures in this Legislature. He recognizes, having been in opposition himself for many years, and likely getting ready to come back to opposition after the next election, that there would be certain aspects of the rules that may be beneficial to change so that we as an opposition can be effective.

This particular section permits the government to carry on with public business not in this forum. That has become the style of this government. The style of this government is to hide, to avoid criticism—

[Applause]

Mr Harnick: My colleague the member for Markham is just coming back into the chamber. It was not a great cheer for my speech. It is interesting that he came in at this particular moment, because he left here this afternoon distressed and he left this chamber after making a pretty vocal speech. He was very justifiably distressed and frustrated, because he cannot respond to the minister to whom he has the responsibility to respond because she will not make her statements in this Legislature.

What is essentially happening with this amendment is we are asking the government to please perform the public aspect of business on the floor of this Legislature. They should let us comment upon it, let us make suggestions and let us have the opportunity to be constructive. They should not hide. They should not run away from us. They should bring the business to the floor of this Legislature, and that is what this amendment is intended to force the government to do.

I will repeat what I said before. It does not change the effect of the act. It shows there is an element of good faith in what the minister is trying to do. It shows the minister will bring this legislation back to this Legislature when he wants to change it; he will not do it behind closed doors. It shows the minister is being absolutely candid when he says he wants to consult with business.

As long as the government has a clause that reads the way clause 65(1)(rb) reads, it cannot possibly have the confidence of the small businessman. They cannot have the confidence of the public. They cannot have even the confidence of the employee, because they may do something detrimental to the employee and no one will know, no one will understand and no one will have the opportunity for open debate.

If the minister really wanted to prove he is being candid with business, that he is being candid with labour, that he is being candid in this Legislature and that he really wants to consult, he would permit this amendment to be carried because it would by necessity ensure that his business in further amending this act and the definition of wages would take place on the floor of this Legislature.

Members can see that my frustration here is merely because the style of this government is to remove as much as it possibly can from this chamber. It is to remove our opportunity as an opposition to constructively criticize what this government is doing. The fact that they make all their announcements outside of this Legislature—and they have made a definite decision to do that—the fact that they have taken that course and the fact that piece after piece of legislation indicates that amendments can be made by regulation and order in council but not on the floor of this chamber are indicative of the style of this Premier and of this government.

They tell the people on the one hand, "We're open, we're accessible, we're listening to you, we want to consult and we want to have all of the interest groups at the table when legislation is drafted," and then they go ahead and operate in completely the opposite way. They operate by way of statements outside this Legislature. They operate by amendments, regulations and orders in council, I think this minister, who has the respect of his colleagues in this Legislature, can send out the right message by accepting this amendment, particularly because it does not change the effect of this act in any significant way at all.

Those are my remarks. I hope the minister will consider them and I hope this amendment is carried.

The Second Deputy Chair: I thank the honourable member for Willowdale for his participation. Further debate? The honourable member for Carleton.

Mr Sterling: Mr Chairman, I did not think you saw me there for a moment, or you were being very coy. At any rate, I just want to point out for the record that our member for Waterloo North and our critic for Labour also has tabled an amendment which is almost identical to the amendment we are discussing today, and that was done independently and without consultation with the other opposition party. That shows how serious the concern of my party is with regard to the wide range of power that this minister wants to scoop for the government to make new laws without consultation with this legislative chamber in the future.

Mr Chairman, when I look at you sitting in that chair, I think about the regulation power the previous Liberal government made with regard to Bill 8, in setting what was a francophone region within this province. They took that regulation power and put it in Bill 8, where behind closed doors the government can change the qualification as to what area is or is not a francophone area. People would come to my constituency office and say: "Where is this in Bill 8? I can't find the fact that if 10% of the residents of a region are francophone, or 5,000 francophones over all, then the area is deemed a francophone area for provincial purposes." I would try to explain to them that it is not in Bill 8, that a government has made this by regulation behind closed doors. Quite frankly, my constituents could not understand how we in the Legislature passed a bill which allowed the government to make law behind closed doors.

That is exactly the argument we are having today on quite a different issue. What we are asking today is that the minister not scoop this power into his bag so that he can go behind closed doors, sit in cabinet, which is meeting in secret, as we all know, walk down to the Lieutenant Governor's office and have him sign a regulation that would increase compensation levels for one part of our society perhaps without consultation with the other part, the people who have to pay. That is what this debate is all about.

I want to indicate in particular that on this issue both opposition parties independently came to the same conclusion. Therefore, we will be showing our support for this amendment when the vote is called.

1630

Hon Mr Mackenzie: My comments will be extremely brief. I think there are three or four points I want to refer to. A couple of them, unfortunately, carry over from yesterday.

I think it was the member for Mississauga West who indicated that I had sent a note to the member for Mississauga North with his phone number listed on it. I want to make it clear that I sent no such note at all. It certainly was not any of my doing.

Also, the general theme was that I, the present minister, should be more willing to make amendments to this legislation. I want to tell the member that there were a substantial number of amendments made to this legislation. Maybe in terms of the way this House works, if we had let some of those amendments come in the course of the hearings from the opposition, it might have served more of a political purpose, as strange as that may sound. I do not know, but I think we responded to every major amendment and reached general agreement that the bill was now worthy of passage and certainly worthy of support by most of the members in the House. I think that is worth mentioning, that the call for, "Why won't you deal with or allow any amendments?" has been more than adequately dealt with in my own honest opinion.

There are an awful lot of people who in the course of the debate on this section, have raised the issue of how we are giving ourselves authority or permission to raise the $5,000 ceiling. This amendment does nothing of the kind whatsoever. That is not the intent of it. At the moment, it deals only with the construction industry and the ability to be able to outline what is salary or salary benefits and the way their package is put together.

Mr Harnick: Definition of "wages."

Hon Mr Mackenzie: Definition of "wages" will have absolutely nothing to do with raising the level at all. The number of times we would have to be in this House in terms of different construction agreements by not doing it in regulations, I think, would make the bill extremely unworkable, and that is why we have gone this route. The Employment Standards Act contains about three pages already of issues that can be dealt with by regulation. This is just a faster and more efficient way of dealing with it. That is why we made that decision and that is the decision we have on this issue.

Mr Offer: I do not want anyone to get the impression from the minister's statement that the government accepted one amendment from either of the opposition parties. I listened carefully to what the minister was stating, and the way the minister was stating it could lead one to come to the conclusion that there were some amendments put forward by the opposition parties that were accepted. In fact, the record will show that there was not one single amendment put forward by the opposition parties that was accepted.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: On a point of order, Mr Chair: I just want to make it clear I did not imply that whatsoever. I did say that maybe a better approach would have been to have let some of the amendments, which were all ones that were suggested by the other parties, come from them, instead of moving them ourselves, but we did move the amendments.

Mr Harnick: I listened with interest to what the minister said and I think the fact that amendments were already made is not an answer, or just the fact that there have been amendments does not justify not making more amendments if the situation calls for more amendments. The fact that the minister may have amended something three months ago does not make it a justification for not making further amendments now.

It just shows me the minister is not looking at the substance of the amendments being presented. He is merely saying: "We made all the amendments we wanted to make. We did it and therefore we don't have to make any more amendments." I do not find that a compelling answer, when there is a situation where an amendment is called for, where it is obvious that it is needed and is justified, and he says, "We're not going to make any more amendments because we've made all the amendments we need to make or we want to make."

The other thing I found a little bit curious—it indicates to me the way amendments can be made by way of regulation and order in council—is that the minister states it will be more efficient to be able to make these changes by way of order in council, but does that make it right? What "more efficient" means is that it is easier. He makes his little changes, he walks down the hall, the Lieutenant Governor signs the order in council and it is done. That is very efficient, very simple, but does that meet the needs of the people of Ontario? Does that give the people of Ontario the opportunity to discuss the changes and the opportunity to suggest better changes? Does it give the people any input whatsoever? The answer is no. The fact that it may be more efficient does not make it right. There has to be a better reason.

The Second Deputy Chair: Is it the pleasure of the House that the amendment to Bill 70 moved by Mr Offer carry?

All those in favour please say "aye."

All those opposed please say "nay."

This vote will be stacked with the other stacked votes and amendments to this motion.

Vote deferred.

Le vote est différé.

Mr Sterling: On a point of clarity, Mr Chairman: Who won that vote? Was it the ayes or the nays?

The Second Deputy Chair: The vote is stacked.

Mr Sterling: I was just wondering who won the preliminary vote.

The Second Deputy Chair: We have no preliminaries here.

Do we have further amendments to section 16 of Bill 70? I believe the Progressive Conservative Party has an identical amendment to the one that has just been stacked.

Mr Harnick: That is correct.

The Second Deputy Chair: You are not moving it?

Mr Harnick: No. We will withdraw that amendment and rely on the other one.

1640

The Second Deputy Chair: The Progressive Conservative Party has an amendment to section 17.

Mr Harnick moves that the bill as reprinted be amended by adding the following section:

"(17a) This act is repealed on the earlier of,

"(a) the 28th day of February, 1993; or

"(b) a day to be named by proclamation of the Lieutenant Governor."

Mr Harnick: I have spoken to legislative counsel. There was a typographical error. We have withdrawn our motion to amend section 16 of the bill, which would be identical to the previous amendment of the Liberals which affects clause 65(1)(rb). The next page of our amendments says "section 16a of the bill as reprinted." I have checked with legislative counsel. That should be "section 17a of the bill." In fact, that would go in at the very bottom of section 17, which is found on page 15 of the printed bill. Have I clarified where we are, Mr Chairman?

The Second Deputy Chair: Yes. This effectively is creating a new section to section 17?

Mr Harnick: Yes. I have spoken with legislative counsel and that was the intention when it was drafted.

Section/article 17:

The Second Deputy Chair: First, do we have further amendments to section 17 prior to the movement of a new section to 17? Shall section 17 stand as previously presented by the government prior to an addition?

An hon member: Agreed.

The Second Deputy Chair: Do we have further amendments to section 17? Shall section 17 carry?

Mr Sterling: Could we stand down the first part of section 17 for a few moments? I just wanted to check something out.

The Second Deputy Chair: Is it the pleasure of the House that we stand down the first part of section 17 until we discuss section 17a?

An hon member: Agreed.

Mr Harnick: This amendment is a sunset provision which would allow a full review of the program after the first 18 months. This would ensure that workers who have been affected by the recession would be compensated for unpaid wages and vacation pay. Part (b) would allow the provincial government to dissolve the program when the federal employee wage claim program, Bill C-22, came into effect. This amendment will allow the province to protect workers today while not taking over a federal responsibility in the long term.

Mr Cousens: Part of the problem is we do not trust this government one bit. The experience I have had today is real proof of why we cannot trust the New Democratic socialist government in Ontario. If we give too much to this government to do what it wants to do—it got elected last September 6. Undoubtedly, they won 38% of the vote of the province and then had enough seats that they could fill the government side of the House and, therefore, run the province for four or five years. We will let them do what they want under the supervision of this House. If you think we can expect them to come back and report or review or have any kind of discussion on their legislation, the sense I have is that it just does not happen.

Part of the issue in this House for the past week has been the way in which ministers of the crown have gone out and made announcements elsewhere but have not had the decency—I call it decency, and if you do not think that is parliamentary I will find stronger words—the decency to come into the House and allow all of us to understand what is going on. The whole system here is one where they will go and do it outside the House, and the Legislature is not involved. That is why we want to have a review of this and other things that are being done by this government, so that on an ongoing basis we have a chance to review it, to criticize it.

If the government does something good and right, I am prepared to stand up and applaud it. I think all of us are. But if they are going to do something wrong, then face the music. Do not just expect that it is easy to run a government. It is not. We on this side of the House have the responsibility to be able to find that balance, and we are losing the balance in this Legislature right now.

I do not think there is any doubt that there is deep-seated anger. I have it. I do not like to have the kind of anger in my heart that I have toward the government and the way it is acting. It is the sense that this government has a cavalier attitude to the responsibilities we have in this House.

The responsibility we have is to criticize; it is to hold things up for public dialogue and discussion. Once it has gone through that dialogue and discussion, if there is some amendment or change that comes through, we are then able to go away with a better sense of having worked together to make it better. But that is not happening. That is not at all what is happening in this place. Instead, the opposite is now taking place, and what we are seeing now is that this government is unwilling even to try to work with other people who are elected here in this House.

I know, in speaking with my colleagues in the Ontario PC caucus, we have never felt more frustrated by the lack of simple dialogue. The Minister of the Environment yesterday made a speech on recycling which established new guidelines for regulations but did not come into the House and make a statement yesterday, did not make a statement in the House today. In fact, my office phoned her office this morning asking for a copy of the press release of the remarks she made yesterday. I did not get them in my office until four o'clock today. I am the critic for Environment and I could not even get it.

Do they think we are going to sit around and accept that kind of pushing to one side when we have a responsibility to comment on these things? We just will not do it. They come along with legislation and say they want to have the absolute right to do everything they want because a bunch of patsies are sitting over here. I will tell you, there is not a patsy on this side of the House.

I think what they would have encountered up until recently is a willingness to try to work things through, but they are pushing us against the wall. Democracy is crumbling in the province because the New Democratic government does not regard it correctly. They should not think they can take us for granted. There happens to be 62% of the people of Ontario who did not vote for them, and that 62% has a voice and should be heard, but they are trying to take that voice away from us by everything they are doing.

If the member thinks it is funny, then just—

Interjection.

1650

Mr Cousens: Come on. He is not even in his own seat and he comes along and makes all those comments. That is exactly the kind of abuse they are giving the people of Ontario.

Mr White: You can be heard quite well.

Mr Cousens: I am a guy who is angry at the fact that my rights as a member of this Legislature have been abused by the New Democrats, who were self-righteous, indignant people during the years they sat in opposition. If anybody had treated the present House leader or the present Minister of the Environment or any one of them in the way we have been treated the last several weeks, they would have been up screaming. Well, I am screaming right now. I am screaming with a sense of anger that it is not right; it is wrong. It is a disease that has crept into the New Democrats within 13 months of their winning office.

Why do they not come along and understand there are ways in which we can work together in this House, ways in which we can work through amendments and changes to the law? When we came out it was really terrible. It was terrible the way the honourable Minister of Labour, who had more sanctity when he was in opposition than any of us could begin to hope for and learn, used to stand up with his indignation.

I will just tell them this much: We happen to have a lady, the member for Waterloo North, who was given the senior responsibility of being our Labour critic. She is a very careful, conscientious, concerned Canadian who wants to find the balance on issues and is not one who comes out and starts fighting until she really has the information.

What happened was that the minister came out with Bill 70. The member for Waterloo North came in and asked questions in the House a number of times to try to get the minister to rethink his position. She was stonewalled by the Minister of Labour, who did not even give her the respect of an answer; 90% of the time she just got shoved aside and she got the palaver that he did not like when he would ask questions in the past when he was in opposition. When he would ask a question and get a dumb answer, like the ones he has been giving, he would be get into a rant and a rave.

Anyway, I give tremendous credit to our Labour critic for the way in which she has been able to persist and carry on. She is without a doubt one of the most able, hardworking, conscientious people we can ask for in our caucus. The strength she gives to labour issues out of that dispassionate concern is something magnificent.

What she really displays and what I see happening with the member for Willowdale and the other members of our caucus who are here today is that we are not going to give up our right as a responsible opposition to a New Democratic majority that has lost sight of its responsibilities. We are not going to give up for the other 62% who did not vote for the New Democrats. We are going to continue to fight for them in a responsible, meaningful way.

I look forward to finding something they have done that I can applaud. I will applaud their initiatives in transportation around the greater Toronto area. In fact, when Bill Wrye, the former Minister of Transportation, made those announcements in the first place, I stood up and applauded him. I would stand up again today and say, "At least we are beginning to get something done for the transportation infrastructure."

But when we come along and look at some of the other announcements coming out, I cannot stand up. I will not stand up and applaud. I will not stand up and give them the chance to think they have got my support. My job in responsible opposition is to help find the balance that meets the majority of all the people in Ontario. It is not going to happen, especially when we have got the kind of intransigence of the New Democratic Party in pushing through everything without giving that kind of balanced concern and opinion.

I have to thank the member for Willowdale for putting forward this motion. It just comes out of the fact that, as we come into this new stage of new legislation, we should have a chance to review it. Let's not just let it be implemented. Part of the problem is that there are powers that will go into the hands of the minister. The minister will have these powers and can then make changes by regulation that are not even on the table today. Those changes will happen. What does that mean? What is the impact on the Treasury of the province? That is not a question the New Democrats ask too often. They do not ask what the real cost is to the Treasury of the province.

The question that has to be asked is, are the people who need help being helped the way they should be? We on this side of the House are anxious to see that we find ways of assisting those who have financial problems and trouble when a company goes bankrupt. I do not think we have ever said we are not in support of finding meaningful ways of assisting those people who need help.

When we come back to review this within 18 months, we will then be in a position not only to review the regulations that have been changed by the minister, but to review the impact this new law has had on the people who needed help. Then the government can come back and say: "Look, here is our sense of what's going on. This is what the federal government is now doing and this is what we are able to do." Maybe there needs to be more training. Maybe there need to be other things. Maybe what this government needs to do is have a comprehensive review and understanding of what it is doing for those people who are unemployed.

As a member of the Legislature, the most difficult problem I have to deal with—aside from the divorce cases and the support and custody payments, which are really tough things in society that we have never dealt with properly yet, and aside from a few other ones I will not get into—has to do with the unemployed, the people who have lost their jobs, especially those who are talented and capable and want to work and are healthy. What are they then able to do, especially when the economy has declined to such an extent that there really is nothing they can do?

There they are, a young couple who wrote to me. I was going through the letter last night, examining it. Both husband and wife have lost their jobs. They are unable to maintain the payments for their taxes. They are not now able to make the payments on their mortgage. Their house is going up for sale; it is going to be a power of sale. They asked me, "Is there anything else that can be done?" I have to say, "What can I do?" I look forward to meeting with them. I am going to talk to them.

The Second Deputy Chair: I would like to remind the honourable member for Markham that we are addressing an amendment to Bill 70.

Mr Cousens: But this really ties into it, Mr Chairman. I do not want to go off on too many tangents. My concern is that here are two people who have issues and problems. This bill itself will not correct or resolve the kind of problems I am talking about. What we need is a more comprehensive review of the whole issue. The amendment we are talking about says, "Let's have a chance to look at it again on February 28, 1993." The kind of situation we are in right now does require that kind of review when you see the personal stories of anguish and suffering and the misery of this young couple who will lose their house. They have two adopted children. Both parents are unemployed.

Where is their pride? Where is their sense of self-respect? I just hope they never lose that, I hope they do not lose the hope that there is something out there for them and I hope we as a government do not ever get to the irresponsible stage that we cannot really try to find solutions to help out people who need our help. That is the kind of balance that should come out of the deliberation that would be made of this bill 18 months from now.

I do not think any bill should ever be brought in that is retroactive. Yet the benefit of retroactivity is that there are many people hurting, so if it helps them—the principle of retroactivity is something that is anathema. If there is any way in which we can deal with those people who are affected, then maybe we should have a special bill that says, "Here are the ones for whom we are really trying to do something," instead of slipping it in the back door.

When we are dealing with people in Ontario, let's be open, honest and fair. The problem with this government is that I do not think it is open. I think the level of honesty that people have is such that the public at large distrusts politicians and feels that when they are in power they say a lot of words. Yet when it comes time to do something meaningful and constructive to help make a better world, the politicians have all the words before they are elected and then after they are in office it just does not happen the same way.

That has to do with the integrity of the individual or the government or the party. Quite candidly, that very integrity is called into question by virtue of the number of things that have been said by the New Democrats before they took power and now that they are in office. The public is sitting out there saying, "What can we expect?" All politicians get a bad name because of the way the New Democrats have been acting. That really is true.

Mr Mills: You've got to be kidding.

Mr Cousens: I am not kidding.

Interjection.

Mr Cousens: Oh, come on. The New Democrats are giving politicians a bad name.

1700

The Second Deputy Chair: The member for Markham is straying quite a long way away from the amendments to Bill 70.

Mr Cousens: I realize that, but when they start interrupting me the way they do, I think it is only right to rebut.

I believe this bill has problems. We will see the problems better after we have had a chance to see the bill in force for a while. Let's have the chance of coming back in this House. Maybe this group of elected members, the New Democrats, will still be in power 18 months from now, unless they miss a quorum call or they miss a vote some day. When that happens we will be here in force and vote them down on a confidence level. I tell members, I will be here that day.

In the meantime, we are not going to have a chance. The people of Ontario are stuck with the Minister of Labour and the New Democrats, who can do what they want, but we are not going to give them the chance to do everything they want without at least a strong statement indicating where we stand on issues. A strong, honest statement is something that is needed on all the issues in this House, where they can be aired, where they can be considered, and where we in the fairness of this House are able to deal with them.

I have to say, in closing, that the lack of trust we have in the New Democrats to share anything with the opposition is at the extreme worst level I have ever seen it in 10 years in this House.

Interjection.

Mr Cousens: The member disagrees. Well, I have never seen anything before like the Minister of the Environment going out and making a speech and then missing two occasions, yesterday and today, to make a statement in the House. She had a chance to send a copy of her speech or her remarks or her press statement to my office and did not even have the courtesy to do that. Maybe it was not herself; maybe it is her handlers. But it is indicative of a government that has lost the sense of fair play within this arena of the Ontario Legislature.

What we have to do is to fight for our rights when we are in opposition. We do not have any given to us by the New Democrats. We have to fight for what we believe in. In doing so, we are fighting for the people of Ontario to have a fair hearing, an honest hearing and an open and complete understanding of the issues that are before us. We are not even able to have that on other issues. We say we want that opportunity on this, Bill 70.

Mr Harnick: It is interesting. I saw the last amendment we dealt with as an opportunity for the government to consult with the people rather than take its amendments and do them through the back door by way of order in council and avoid the Legislature. So I could say, at the conclusion of the debate on that amendment, that this government does not want to consult; it does not want to do its public business on the floor of the Legislature.

Now we have a new amendment before us. The hallmark, as I see this amendment, is the word "accountability," so that after 18 months of seeing a program operate, it can come back to the Legislature and people can see and the government will stand here and account for whether that program worked, whether people received the payments they were supposed to receive, whether the payments were adequate and whether the program is working. I do not see anything wrong with the government publicly accounting for its programs, especially on the floor of this Legislature.

I have a great deal of difficulty justifying in my constituency what goes on in this place. My constituents are people who live in an urban area. They see costs escalating. They see that their jobs are not as secure now as they were before September 6, 1990. They are concerned about their security in their neighbourhood. They are concerned about government programs that do not punish criminals. They are concerned about a lack of deterrents. They are concerned about a government that pays out all kinds of money—some of it, I will admit, very justifiably and for very good reasons.

But my constituents say to me, "Boy, we see $250 million about to go to de Havilland and we see $200 million going to Elliot Lake and we see all this money going to Kapuskasing. Is there no accountability? Why can these payments be made, and why does nobody want to account a year down the road?"

That is what is important about this amendment. This amendment is all about accountability. It is about reassessing where this program has gone in the first 18 months of its operation. The fact that the government does not want to account makes my constituents very nervous, because my constituents pay taxes, and every time they turn around they see the taxes—

Mr Perruzza: Don't be so sure.

Mr Harnick: The member for Downsview says he is not so sure that my constituents pay taxes. I would just like to point out to my constituents that there is a member of the Legislature who represents another section of North York and who claims that my constituents do not pay taxes.

I can tell him that my constituents do pay taxes and they work very hard for the money they earn in order to pay those taxes. My constituents are concerned about paying increased taxes for the waste of this government, the member for Downsview's government.

When he stands in the Legislature and shouts across to me that he doubts my constituents pay taxes, I can tell him that when my constituents hear that coming from a New Democrat, and given that I have the opportunity to tell them what he said, he can count on the fact that a New Democrat will not be winning my riding next time. They do pay taxes. If the NDP attitude towards my constituents is that they do not, they have another think coming, because they are going to go out in the next election and they are going to campaign to try to beat him too. The member is not going to be here, because he said they do not pay taxes.

Let me tell him that my constituents are hardworking people and they do pay taxes. They do worry about the waste of his government and the moneys that are going out and the fact that he refuses, by his minister here today, to be accountable to my constituents.

His constituents may not care and he may not care and his friend sitting beside him with the big smile on his face may not care, but the people in Willowdale and the people on this side of the Legislature care about the taxes and about the waste, because they work hard for their money.

Mr White: On a point of order, Mr Chairman: The member has digressed rather markedly from the issue of the amendment put forth and has hurled particular invective—

The Second Deputy Chair: Thank you for reminding the Chair. I was about to bring the member back to the subject at hand. I know there were interjections coming from across the floor. That is also out of order. Please, let's get back to the business of the House, the amendments to Bill 70, and let's continue with the debate.

1710

Mr Harnick: It is of interest that I am trying to debate this issue in a rational way, and we have not had a single person on that side of the Legislature, save for the minister, get up and add anything to this debate today. It is because most of them have not read the act and they are just going to do what they are told. They have not read this material. They do not understand this material. They have not listened to the witnesses who came to the committee room. All they want to do is get this done and get out of here.

If they really want just to get it done and get out of here, you would think they would have the smarts to keep their mouths shut, but they keep interjecting. As long as they are going to interject, I am going to go ahead and respond to those interjections, because that is the only way you can have a debate with these people.

They sit on their behinds and they shout across the floor of the Legislature, but when the Chairman asks, "Is there anybody who wants to debate this further?" they all sit there. They all sit there with their hands in their pockets, because the only way they know how to debate is to shout across the floor. The only way they know how to vote in this chamber is by being told, "You stand up when the minister stands up."

My constituents do not think that is good enough, and they want accountability. That is what this amendment is directed at. My constituents see money being spent on this wage protection program and perhaps $50 million that will ultimately be tied up in this act. They also see that the Ministry of Labour is going to increase its bureaucracy by adding 131 people to administer this program.

We all know what happened when the Liberals went ahead and started to expand the landlord and tenant registry, and we see the amount of money being spent annually on that program. This program is going the same way, and my constituents want accountability. They want to know how many people are being hired, what they are doing, how much we are paying them, why we are paying them that money and whether we are getting value for our money. Eighteen months from now, are we going to be able to find out whether this program is working? We are paying taxes that are funding those salaries and that program and we would like to know whether it is working.

We have an amendment on the floor that says, "Account after 18 months." My constituents are a little upset. Every time they go to the gas station there is another tax on gasoline and they have to pay more. Every time they get an electricity bill it is higher than the month before. They keep finding out there are increases in these basic utilities they are paying for, and that there is going to be a $9.7-billion deficit in this province, and they ask: "Who's going to pay that? Am I going to be responsible for paying that money?"

The Treasurer says he is not going to raise taxes, yet revenue levels are flat. My constituents call me and say: "What's going on? Are we going to have to pay more taxes? We can't pay more taxes. We don't have any more money to pay any more taxes." They want accountability. They are worried. My constituents are not like the constituents of the people on the other side of the floor. My constituents are worried because their jobs are not as secure as they were before September 6, and because there is a $9.7-billion deficit they are worried whether their taxes are going to have to pay that deficit back.

They are worried about watching big payments come out of this government that claims it is broke, yet it is about to invest in de Havilland and has saved a couple of towns. Those are perhaps very worthy things; I do not deny that. In many respects maybe the government paid too much, but the intent was there and the intent was proper.

All my constituents want is accountability. They want this government to be able to account to them so that when they go to work every day and make a living, when they work hard and their money goes to pay for these programs, they want to know whether these programs are working, whether they are wasteful, whether they are costing more than they should, whether they are effective, whether they are getting to the people who really need the help or whether they are universal programs and the money is going to people who do not need the help.

These are all the things my constituents in a big urban riding are concerned about. They are concerned about whether their cost of living is increasing beyond their means and, as I said earlier, about a $9.7-billion deficit.

When I stand here and implore the government to pass an amendment that will cause it to account to this Legislature, I resent very much that there are people here who allege that my constituents do not pay taxes and who really do not care about the concept of accountability. In this amendment and the amendment before it, what we have been stressing is the idea of being open, of consulting and being accountable. If there is any hallmark of a government today, it is the idea of being open, consulting with the public and developing programs for which it is accountable in this Legislature, not making statements everywhere but in this Legislature.

I urge the government again, and the minister, to do the proper thing and accept an amendment by which it would be accountable and by which the public would have its confidence. If it does not, the public will only recognize the bumbling it sees going on in this government day after day. Together with that bumbling, people are going to see a government with no heart, with no ability and with no accountability.

If the government cannot do the job technically correctly, at least it can show it is trying to do it ethically and morally correctly with accountability, with consultation and by not being a government with walls. The House leader is nodding his head as if I am committing heresy here, but these are people who, prior to September 6, told everybody how compassionate, open and approachable they were and how competent they would be. They told everybody about the simple answers they had to all the big problems.

In the last year we have seen that they do not have the answers to complicated problems and no longer profess to be accountable. They no longer come to this Legislature to do their business; they hide in corridors of other buildings and make announcements. They operate from locked offices.

I look at these amendments and I say they are reasonable. Any government that wants to do the right thing for the people it represents—and I remind the government it no longer represents just the 38% who voted for it; it represents all the people in Ontario and has to be accountable to all of them—when it votes against an amendment that asks it to be accountable, then it is kicking the people in this province in the behind because it does not want to level with them.

I urge the government to accept this amendment, to be accountable, even though it has rejected the previous amendment that asks it to do its business in a public chamber rather than in private, and to consult with people. The government has rejected that, but on this score government members still have an opportunity to come out looking like a relatively decent bunch of people who want to be at least accountable, even though they do not want to consult in advance.

This amendment is reasonable. I urge them to look at themselves again and recognize that the people in Ontario want accountability. They want them to come back here in 18 months and tell them whether the money they have just spent to pay for this program has been money well spent.

Mr Perruzza: Thank you for the opportunity to make a couple of comments on the bill that is on the floor and to respond very briefly to some of the comments that were made by my friend the member for Willowdale. He took a comment which I made, "Don't be so sure," and expanded on that. He inferred from it that fundamentally I believe people in his constituency do not pay taxes. That is the furthest thing from the truth. Everybody pays for the GST of the Conservatives.

I remind the member for Willowdale that some time ago in his constituency the municipality forgave developers to the tune of about $25 million and gave back that money which could have been applied to the municipal budget and offset taxes considerably. Those developers did not pay a tax.

Another developer recently was forgiven $3 million in interest payments to the city, again taxes from his constituency which could have been used. If he were the champion of the good people of Willowdale who pay their taxes, he would come into this House and raise those issues and make those people pay their fair share of taxes, which they do not pay. There are a lot of good people in Willowdale who pay their fair share. There are a lot of people who are being given breaks in the city of North York. He often breaks some lobster with the mayor of that city, and that is why he does not come into this chamber and champion those causes.

1720

Mr Harnick: I would just like to point out to the member for Downsview—

Mr Sterling: Get a claw.

Mr Harnick: Yes, he should get a claw on life because I would like him to go and ask the mayor and debate with the mayor over the issue of who pays and who does not pay taxes. I want the public who are watching to understand this, that taxes are not set by the opposition; they are set by the government and taxes in North York are set by the government in North York. The member for Downsview knows that.

The Second Deputy Chair: The honourable member for Willowdale should really come back to the subject matter.

Mr Harnick: If the member for Downsview had any gumption about this issue he would talk about whether the government will be accountable to the people of Willowdale. He will talk about this amendment, which he did not do. We have yet to see one person on the government side stand and talk about these amendments and talk about this bill.

The member for Downsview still thinks he is a member of city council in North York, where he rode off in a blaze of glory, breaching all kinds of edicts that were part and parcel of his job in the city of North York. I do not want to get into that, but I suspect that if he wanted to deal with this issue, he could talk about whether his government wants to be accountable, not who does and does not pay their taxes in Willowdale. Certainly my constituents will remember—

Mrs Caplan: On a point of order, Mr Chair: I have been listening very carefully to the debate over the last few minutes and I just noticed that a group of Scouts have arrived and are in the members' gallery watching the proceedings. I know the members of this House would want them to get a very good impression of the debate and the level of debate in this House, so I would draw your attention to the fact—this a legitimate point of order—that the members have not been speaking to the amendment before us. I would ask you to point that out to them.

The Second Deputy Chair: I want to thank the honourable member for Oriole. It is an excellent point of information that we have a band of young people with us this afternoon. I know it is Thursday afternoon and members are anxious to get back to their ridings. They are on edge to some degree and it is somehow difficult to stay on the subject matter, but I ask that you please stay on the subject matter. It is of utter importance, and they are amendments to Bill 70.

Mr Harnick: I regret the fact that the member for Downsview tried to get into this debate. This debate to him is about whether people in Willowdale do or do not pay their taxes. Bill 70 is not about whether people in Willowdale pay their taxes. I regret that he did not want to stand and debate this issue of whether Bill 70 is a good bill, whether the government should be accountable 18 months from now. I regret the fact that neither he nor a single other member of his party would stand and debate this bill and this amendment today. But I have made my remarks; I have probably gone on for too long, so those are my remarks.

Mr Perruzza: On a point of order, Mr Chair: If the member will check the record he will find that I have participated in the debate on this bill. I participated in this very House. If he would check the record, he would find out.

The Second Deputy Chair: Thank you. That is not a point of order; it is a point of view.

Mrs Marland: I rise to support this amendment because I have such difficulty with the legislation. I think that if this is such a good piece of legislation for the people of this province, this government would not have any difficulty with our amendment. Our amendment simply says that in February 1993 the act would be repealed. If the process has been working and the people who need to be protected are protected, then there would be no further need for this type of legislation.

It is so incredible that these people in this socialist government who cry out all the time for the protection of workers and the protection of jobs forget that there will not be any workers, that there will not be any jobs if we do not protect the businesses, the commerce and the industry which provide that opportunity for them. The people they criticize are the very people who give employment opportunities in this province.

If we are going to go ahead with this kind of legislation, where this government is so nervous of our amendment for February 1993, it must be because it already realizes it could not afford to have it repealed in February 1993 because it is quite possible that in that year it will be into an election and will be out of office. I see very clearly the significance of their opposition to the amendment our caucus is presenting today. It is no wonder that everybody who knows what is going on with this legislation in this province is as concerned about it as they are.

Mr Offer: I want to make some very brief comments on this amendment. I think, if my notes are correct, this is probably the final amendment.

Interjection.

Mr Offer: I am sorry; there is one more amendment. I listened very closely to the comments by the member for Willowdale and I think the member's comments in terms of accountability and making certain that any changes to the legislation in the future are brought before this House in debate, and all those things that follow, are all very important. We have spoken about this at some length in the past. I am very concerned that the government has not seen fit to change some of the aspects of this legislation to make any further change by legislative process as opposed to regulation.

We are not talking about slight changes. We are not talking about technical changes. We are talking about changes to the heart and soul of the legislation that in fact address the principle of the legislation. I believe that when we are talking about those aspects of any piece of legislation, any change should be through the legislative process. I think all members of the Legislature recognize that there is the need for regulation, for a government to be able to change certain aspects of any piece of legislation by regulation without having to go through the legislative process, but not when we are talking about the heart and soul of a piece of legislation. That is what we are doing today.

We are really closing the door to future consultation, listening to people, listening about what the impact of change will be. It is one of those things that is causing me some incredible concern about a piece of legislation the principle of which I wholeheartedly agree with.

As I listened closely to the member's comments on accountability I can only say that I wholeheartedly agreed. I am quite upset over some of the interjections by members on the government side, because I think they were totally uncalled for. They were well away from the aspect of the bill and the amendment. The member himself was really zeroing in on something that we in the committee had really been focusing on for these last number of days.

The concern I have with the amendment is that it talks not to the accountability aspect of the legislation, but it really talks about the repeal of the legislation. I think we have to recognize that we are dealing with a bill that I do not think we want phrased as a recession bill, a bill which was potentially born in the recession and will end when economic times hopefully improve. I think we recognize that even in good times there are bankruptcies, there are insolvencies, there is inability to pay, there are people and workers who many times are caught from really getting the benefits that are owed to them either in terms of wages and vacation pay or under the Employment Standards Act in terms of termination and severance. That is some of the concern I have with the amendment.

1730

I have absolutely no concern with the argument put forward by the honourable member because I think it was bang on. The problem I have is that it makes the bill one that is framed within the recession, to live and die within it. I think in some way it excludes the fact that there are people who are hurt and who are out dollars even in good times, and they are hurt just as badly. They may be able to access a job a little more quickly than in bad times; none the less they are out dollars and out benefits which in fact they are entitled to.

We have spoken earlier about the whole issue of severance and wage and whether it should be included in the bill. We have had some good debate on that. We have spoken about wages and vacation pay. I think even during our committee meetings, the business groups that came before us recognized an obligation and a responsibility to meet those benefits where possible. They recognize their obligation under the Ontario Business Corporations Act and they recognize the fact that those particular benefits are owed to those workers.

That is one of the concerns I have with the amendment. The amendment really does not deal with accountability. I think if the government had seen fit, it would have moved some of the changes to legislation. That would have allowed us, as members of this Legislature, to do what in fact we were elected to do, to be in many ways the watchdog, the eyes and ears of our community, to deal with impacts of any changes to legislation.

The government, by not agreeing to those amendments, has really closed the door to this Legislature in terms of this bill. It is going to cause a lot of members of this Legislature, and I believe probably on their own side, some concern over why they would not do that, why they did not have the faith, trust and hope in the bill to allow it to go before a committee, to allow it to be debated in terms of any change to its principle, to its reason for being.

We have had those discussions and we have had that argument in the past, and I stand here still with some very grave concerns about why the government would not do that. I think it sends out a very grave message to business communities. I think it sends out a bad message to the public in general that the government is not ready to listen. We are talking about one particular piece of legislation, but the message is one that transcends all pieces of legislation and all initiatives in the future. It is something I think the government is going to have to listen to and live with.

Certainly in terms of this amendment I have a concern that it makes this bill a recession bill and it really ignores the fact that people, men and women in our communities, hardworking individuals all, are sometimes out some benefits that are earned, some wages, some vacation pay, some termination, some severance. I think if it is possible for us to achieve those types of benefits in a well-balanced bill, in a bill which can provide that type of protection while at the same time sending out a positive message to business that this is a province where you can create jobs, where you can expand, where you can really have an option for more jobs and a real opportunity for success, then we should do that.

I am concerned that the government has not seen fit to address some of those amendments which both the Liberal caucus and the Progressive Conservative caucus has brought forward in committee and in this Legislature, and we are going to have consider that as we go through our second reading and third reading debates.

Mrs Caplan: I will be very brief in my comments. I would like to begin by saying I think this is a very significant and important piece of legislation. When it was tabled in this Legislature, I think the principles that were enshrined in this package not only were supportable but were principles that many of us in this House not only agree with but believe in. Legislation begins with principles, and that is why during second reading debate and discussion the vote is ultimately a vote in principle.

The bill was very seriously flawed. At that time it had provisions obligating directors of both private and non-profit corporations that seriously flawed this bill, and I think in proposing amendments to this the minister went quite some way towards addressing those concerns. However, what we have seen over the course of both the committee hearings and debate in this Legislature is that there are still some provisions in the bill which are considered serious flaws.

I want to compliment our critic, the member for Mississauga North. He has expressed many of the concerns I have about this bill, the principles of which I support. I believe there are men and women, working people in this province who, having earned their wages and their benefits, are then denied those when a company goes under in these very difficult economic times. That has happened in the past and it will happen in the future, as the member for Mississauga North so well pointed out.

But there are two major flaws to this bill and real concerns that I have. I will just put them on the record and ask the government to reconsider its approach to some of the amendments that had been proposed by both the Liberal caucus and the Conservative caucus.

I urge them to consider that in the context that my constituents, when we have discussed this matter, have said, "Why don't you offer some changes and some ideas and suggestions to help?" We know the government is inexperienced, we know there are just a few pieces of legislation that have been brought before us, so I have said to them that ideas and suggestions and alternatives are offered through the amendment process, that amendments were suggested at committee and those amendments were rejected. I said there would be another opportunity during committee of the whole House for those amendments to be placed and debated in the Legislature, and that during that time I would stand up and speak to the principle of the bill but encourage the government to accept those amendments which would allow for a balanced bill.

I have two significant concerns. First is the funding of the wage protection fund and the kind of insecurity and instability that would signal to the business community, already hard-pressed at this time of not knowing how that fund is going to be financed, whether it will be a new tax on business or a reallocation.

How the Treasurer intends to fund this provision is sending out the kinds of signals to people in the business community which in fact are forcing them to delay making some decisions, which are encouraging them not to come to Ontario to invest because they do not know what the taxation climate is going to be like. They have no security. They have no confidence in this new government. If there were a commitment from this government that said how this fund was going to be funded, how this wage protection fund was going to be financed, then the business community would know that it could count on not having additional taxes placed on it to pay for this.

The second point is the limit. As members have heard the member for Mississauga North so eloquently put it, the concern is that by being able to change the limit by regulation, what the government is saying to business is: "You cannot have confidence in what is going to happen. We can arbitrarily, by regulation, change the fundamental principles of this bill and change the limit without having to be accountable to the Legislature, without having that debate."

Those two provisions tilt the balance in this bill in such a way that it creates the kinds of flaws that make it very difficult to explain to the business community that it need not have fear.

As I said, we will soon be reaching the point where we will be in third reading discussion. I hope the government will take into consideration the amendments that are placed by the opposition parties at this point in time and will support some of them so that we have a bill that is balanced and that will also send the right signals to committee.

I want to state that I support wholeheartedly the principles of this bill. I hope it will be sufficiently amended to achieve the kind of balance that it will be able to be explained to my constituents in the riding of Oriole, who, as I do, share the concern about the economic future of this province as well as ensuring that men and women who have earned their salaries, their wages and their benefits are not denied those because of the economic difficulties their employers have experienced.

1740

Hon Mr Mackenzie: We had an agreement that this legislation, other than the vote, would be through tonight. In the interest of that, I am not going to respond at this point in time.

The Second Deputy Chair: All those in favour of Mr Harnick's amendment to section 17 will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the nays have it.

Vote deferred.

The Second Deputy Chair: We revert back to sections 1 to 4. We will have some sections that do not have amendments.

Mr Sterling: Perhaps we could deal with the first part of section 17 at this time.

The Second Deputy Chair: We will revert back to the first part of section 17.

Mr Sterling moves that subsection 17(4) of the bill, as reprinted, be amended by striking out "$5,000" in the third line and substituting "$4,000."

Mr Sterling: I want to be as quick and brief as I can in terms of my explanation on this.

Mr Hope: Short.

Mr Sterling: Short. I never use that word. When I first saw this amendment, which was suggested by our Labour critic, I thought: "That doesn't make sense. If we're going to protect the wages of people, we should protect them properly, in accordance with the best we can do." The $5,000 did not seem to be that unreasonable when looking at $4,000. But on researching the matter further, I find that under section 17, the definitions of what would be paid to a worker could include four different things. They could include wages, vacation pay, severance pay and termination pay. Termination pay differs from severance pay in that a termination payment is paid when notice is not given to the employee. It is in lieu of notice, whereas severance pay is paid when somebody is given proper notice.

It is our position in this caucus that the limits on these amounts should be in accordance with other statutes and provisions in other acts. It is my understanding that the liability of a director for wages and vacation pay is at a $4,000 level at this present time. Therefore, we think that one should marry with the other so that there should not be two different sets of figures in terms of liability.

I am informed that if the wage protection fund eventually comes out of the pocketbooks of our businesses, what will happen is we will in effect be taxing our small businesses to reimburse the unemployment insurance fund. The minister has refused to answer the question directly that the unemployment insurance fund has said it will claw back part of the payment that is made by the wage protection program to the worker because some of the benefits that will be paid to the worker under this section will be deemed income by the UIC.

Therefore, it seems more reasonable to us to have a reasonable upper limit, so that the bleeding in terms of the amount that will have to be refunded to the UIC, payment which UIC will pay the worker and then the worker will be asked to pay back, would be stopped at a level of $4,000. What we are saying to the Labour minister is that this amendment would not affect the amount of money the worker would get as a result of termination or severance, but it would save the wage protection fund from having to be as high as it might have to be, because the money would be coming from UIC instead of the wage protection fund.

It is a fairly complicated argument and it is a fairly complicated concept, but the fact of the matter is that UIC has told us that it deems, I believe, severance and termination pay as income and therefore will be demanding it back from workers after they have received it from the wage protection fund. In effect, what the minister is doing is asking the taxpayers of Ontario to help out Ottawa with regard to the UIC fund. I would like the minister to comment on that with regard to how he plans to protect the workers from UIC demanding this money back from them.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I have maybe a partial reply. First off, I want to point out that what we are talking about is money that has already been earned, that is owed to the workers. I want to point out also that the average at the moment is $4,200, which means that slightly half are getting less and half are getting more. What we were trying to do was to maximize as much as we could what is owed to the workers.

In terms of the UIC arrangements, we have been having and are having ongoing discussions with them on this issue. I cannot tell the member as yet what we are going to be able to resolve in terms of a payback, and I do not have an answer for him on that. We felt that $5,000 was a serious effort without getting beyond our financial means, which may always be an argument, to deal with a majority of the workers who have actually earned the money and are owed it.

Mr Sterling: No one argues that the money is owed to the worker. I do not think anyone is arguing on this side that the worker should not receive that money. Our concern is, where is that money coming from? The wage protection fund, as I understand it, has nothing to do with the company that can afford to pay that money; it will be paid by that viable company to the worker to pay. It is from the wage protection fund, which is funded by the taxpayers or the employers, which is our concern. If the minister is going to pay a worker $5,000, and $2,500 is going to be clawed back to the UIC fund, then in effect what the minister has done is he has transferred $2,500 to our federal government. I find it ironic that he is taking this kind of step when we hear so much complaining about transfer payments.

Then the minister admits that severance and termination pay are deemed income and that they will be stripped from the workers, from their UIC benefits, under the present law and the present arrangement. Is that correct?

1750

The Second Deputy Chair: Further debate on section 17?

Mr Sterling: I asked the minister a question. Surely a minister of the crown should know the answer to the question about whether UIC is going to ask the workers for this money back. I will continue to ask him the question until I receive an answer.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: We are in the process of negotiating that very matter. I cannot give an answer beyond that at this time.

Mr Sterling: If the minister is negotiating the matter, then his opinion must be that UIC can do this, it can demand that money back. Is that correct?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: Reducing the ceiling will not do anything about the amount that would have to be paid back.

Mr Sterling: It would very much do that, because there would be less to strip back from the worker. I see a nod from his adviser that I am correct, and I am not talking about the member for Sudbury. I will not tell members which adviser nodded.

Mr Chairman, I have asked the minister: Am I correct in saying that severance pay and termination pay are deemed income in terms of our Unemployment Insurance Act and therefore would be stripped from the worker at the present time under our present laws?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: Yes, they are determined as wages, but if you receive the payment, it will delay the time at which you will receive the unemployment insurance by several weeks or months.

Mr Sterling: In other words, the method of stripping back from the worker the money that will be paid in the wage protection fund will be from the UIC fund. In other words, we are talking about a transfer of provincial tax revenues to the federal government under the present law.

If we had the $4,000 limit, as I mentioned, we would have put a lower ceiling on the amount of bleeding that is done from the provincial Treasury. I say to the minister, we get many demands on this side about how we can cut the deficit down. This is a way the government can cut its future deficit down, if it supports this amendment.

The Second Deputy Chair: Is it the pleasure of the House that Mr Sterling's amendment to section 17 carry?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinions the nays have it.

Vote deferred.

Sections 18 and 19 agreed to.

Les articles 18 et 19 sont adoptés.

Sections 1 to 4/articles 1 à 4:

The Second Deputy Chair: We now move back to sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, which were stood down. Do we have opening statements on section 1?

Mr Harnick: I understand why we are dealing with these four sections at the end of the proceeding in committee of the whole. These are the somewhat hidden sections, even though they come right up front, because they deal with an aspect of this bill that appears to use the Employment Standards Act and the concept of a wage protection program, but the sections in effect are much more encompassing amendments to the Employment Standards Act.

The first thing we are introduced to in dealing with this act is the amendment in subsection 1(2) which states as follows:

"Section 2 of the act, as amended by the Statutes of Ontario, 1983, chapter 55, section 1, is further amended by adding the following subsection."

That subsection to be added is known as subsection (4) and it states:

"Part I of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act does not apply to the exercise of any power conferred on the program administrator under part XII-A or to the exercise of any power by the director under section 50."

I am quite concerned that this section provides that there is not going to be a hearing if there is a dispute that relates to sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the act as presented in Bill 70. We will obviously have considerably more time in our next session to deal with these amendments, but that is initially my first concern. That is the red flag that alerts us to what sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 really contain.

The Second Deputy Chair: I want to thank the honourable member for Willowdale for his participation on section 1 of Bill 70. Further debate on section 1 of Bill 70?

Mr Offer: Briefly on this and the other sections, I think we have to recognize that one of the things that was always implied was that this particular bill was a bill that was as a result of the recession. It was going to help the people who are the victims of the recession to recover wages, vacation pay, termination and severance.

These particular sections, 1 to 4, of the bill clearly indicate that the principle is much wider than that. The principle of this bill will not only help those workers but indeed is broader in that any workers for whom there was an order under the Employment Standards Act which their employer has not paid will be able to access the fund, even though they still have a job, even though they are still working and have always worked.

I think we have to be very cognizant of the fact that the principle of this bill is much wider than what had initially been indicated as far as we are concerned, and is one which I think is the subject matter of some future debate.

The Second Deputy Chair: Shall sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the bill carry?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the nays have it.

Votes deferred.

Les votes sont différés.

On motion by Mr Cooke, the committee of the whole reported progress.

À la suite d'une motion présentée par M. Cooke, l'étude du projet de loi en comité plénier de la Chambre est adjournée.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Hon Mr Cooke: Pursuant to standing order 53, I would like to indicate the business of the House for next week.

On Tuesday, October 15, we will deal with third reading of Bill 70, the Employment Standards Amendment Act, following the votes in committee of the whole that have been stacked by agreement.

On Wednesday, October 16, we will continue the adjourned second reading debate on Bill 118, the Power Corporation Amendment Act.

On Thursday, October 17, in the morning we will deal with private members' business: ballot item 37 standing in the name of the member for Scarborough East and ballot item 38 standing in the name of the member for Mississauga East. In the afternoon, we will continue second reading of Bill 118.

The House adjourned at 1801.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND)

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND)
Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Education, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre de l'Éducation, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/
Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/ Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND)
Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Oriole L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND)
Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND)
PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/
Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/
Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/
Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND)
Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/
Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/
Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement

Grandmaitre, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)

Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général

Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques

Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)

Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement

Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications

Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)

Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)

Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires

Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie

Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses

Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises

Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu

Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)

Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)

Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources

Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)

Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND) Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale

Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie

Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités

Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND) Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail

MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative

Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition

Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale

Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales

Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses

Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines

Martin, Tony (Sault Ste. Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation

Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement

McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)

McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)

McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux

McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)

Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition

Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général

Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice

Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)

Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail

North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs

O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)

O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)

O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition

Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement

Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle

- Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie
- Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)
- Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General, Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général, ministre des Services correctionnels
- Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)
- Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des comptes publics
- Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND) Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones
- Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre, ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
- Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)
- Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)
- Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
- Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)
- Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)
- Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement
- Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)
- Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)
- Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)
- Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)
- Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)
- Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
- Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West /-Ouest ND)
- Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)
- Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)
- Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
- Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie
- Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux
- Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu
- Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND) Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire
- Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation; Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
- Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé
- White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND)
- Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones
- Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister of Government Services/Ministre des Services gouvernementaux
- Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND) PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications
- Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)
- Winner, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones
- Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des Services correctionnels
- Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)
- Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles
- Ziemba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND) Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli, Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills, Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan, Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/
Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland

Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison, Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti, Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott, David Turnbull

Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon

Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford, Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen, Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil, Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway, W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson, Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson, Drummond White

Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/
Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Vacant

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher, Leo Jordan, Ellen MacKinnon, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Drummond White, Jim Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters

Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary, George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp, Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano

Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck, Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod, Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/
Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Dennis Drainville

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson

Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves, Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski, Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner

Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan

Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini, Kimble Sutherland

Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Thursday 10 October 1991

Private members' public business

County of Simcoe Act, 1991, Bill 132	2843
Mr J. Wilson	2843
Mr Drainville	2844
Mr Mahoney	2845
Mr McLean	2847
Mr Wessenger	2849
Mr Mills	2849
Mr J. Wilson	2850
Negatived	2858
Farm income, resolution 36	2850
Mr Mancini	2850
Mr J. Wilson	2852
Mr Hayes	2853
Mr Ramsay	2854
Mr Villeneuve	2856
Mr Hope	2857
Mr Sutherland	2858
Mr Mancini	2858
Negatived	2858

Members' statements

Government spending	2859
Mr Sola
Biomedical waste disposal	2859
Mr Villeneuve
John Simpson	2859
Mr Owens
Mississauga Board of Trade	2859
Mr Mahoney
Hunting and fishing in Algonquin Park	2860
Mr Arnott
Royal visit	2860
Ms S. Murdock
Government strategies	2860
Mr Phillips
Breast Cancer Awareness Day	2860
Mrs Marland
Business in Brantford	2861
Mr B. Ward
Rent regulation	2861
Ms Gigantes
Ms Akande
Mr Rae

Statements by the ministry

Expo '98	2862
Mr North

Responses

Expo '98	2862
Mr H. O'Neil
Mr Phillips
Mr Harris
Mr Arnott
Ministerial statements	2863
Mr Cousens
Land registration	2864
Mr Tilson
Mr Mancini
Croatian ceremony	2865
Mr Callahan

Oral questions

Etobicoke Waterfront Development	2866
Mr McClelland
Mrs Grier
UTDC Inc	2866
Mr Elston
Mr Pouliot
Parliamentary procedure	2868
Mr Harris
Mr Rae
Public safety	2870
Mr Runciman
Ms Lankin
Hunting and fishing in Algonquin Park	2871
Mr Ramsay
Mrs Grier
Northern Ontario	2872
Mr Harris
Miss Martel
Wage protection	2872
Mr Morrow
Mr Mackenzie
UTDC Inc	2873
Mrs McLeod
Mr Pouliot
Land registration	2873
Mr Tilson
Ms Churley
School transfer	2874
Mr Hansen
Mrs Boyd

Visitors	2874
The Speaker

Petitions

Tobacco taxes	2874
Ms S. Murdock
Oath of allegiance	2875
Mr J. Wilson
Mr Mahoney

Committee of the whole House

Employment Standards Amendment Act (Employee Wage Protection Program), 1991, Bill 70	2875
Mr Callahan	2875
Mr Cordiano	2878
Mr Harnick	2879
Mr Sola	2880
Mr Tilson	2880

Employment Standards Amendment Act (Employee Wage Protection Program), 1991 (continued)

Mr Sterling	2882
Mr Mackenzie	2882
Mr Offer	2883
Mr Cousens	2884
Mr Perruzza	2888
Mrs Marland	2889
Mrs Caplan	2890
Progress reported	2893

Business of the House	2893
Mr Cooke

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities
Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le jeudi 10 octobre 1991

Affaires d'intérêt public émanant de simples députés

Loi de 1991 sur le comté de Simcoe, projet de loi 132	2843
Rejetée	2858

Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur les normes d'emploi, (Programme de protection des salaires des employés), projet de loi 70	2875
Étude ajournée	2893

Listes des députés

Les députés et leurs responsabilités
Comités de l'Assemblée législative

CA2 ON

81

-D23

Ontario

68 1991

68 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Tuesday 15 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le mardi 15 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Tuesday 15 October 1991

The House met at 1330.

Prayers.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

EDUCATION POLICY

Mr Bradley: What a difference a year makes. To hear the member for London Centre, now former Minister of Education and in years gone by a staunch advocate of 60% provincial funding for education and a harsh critic of previous governments on the issue of educational finance, now lecture local people with the statement, "Boards must understand that the province does not have an unlimited supply of money," is indeed revealing and must send shivers through the provincial executives of the affiliates of the Ontario Teachers' Federation that so enthusiastically supported the New Democratic Party.

What a lesson the member for London Centre has taught to coterminous boards of education, which after many months of difficult negotiations reached an agreement on the transfer of schools only to have the minister delay and dither and then overturn an amicably reached accord. As Lincoln trustee Dalt Clark stated, "Frankly, the public school taxpayers in Lincoln county have been shafted by the Ministry of Education."

The lesson is clear. Those who reach an agreement without public rancour, insults, violence or recriminations are rewarded with the short end of the stick. Those who demonstrate, shout, threaten and throw their local problems in the lap of the province get their way. The people of Lincoln county will not soon forget the cruel lesson from this government that good-faith negotiators will be kicked in the teeth.

LIQUOR STORES

Mr Tilson: I rise to protest the cavalier way in which the Premier breaks his promises. I am referring to the case of Mrs Wilma McNeil of Sarnia. She has spent two years fighting to have the LCBO outlets closed on November 11, Remembrance Day. On October 4, the Premier sent Mrs MacNeil a letter that said in part: "Our government has the utmost respect for those brave men and women who represented our country in times of war. You'll be pleased to know that the Liquor Control Board of Ontario outlets will be closed Monday, November 11."

Those are fine words in that letter signed by the Premier. Unfortunately Mrs McNeil has learned that with this government talk is cheap. She has since received a telephone call from the Premier's office explaining that he really did not mean what he said, that liquor stores will be open on Remembrance Day and that the letter from the Premier was not really a letter from the Premier. It was signed by an autopen.

The Premier must realize that when his word cannot be trusted, it adds to the distrust people feel towards all politicians. I urge the Premier to honour the letter sent to Mrs McNeil that bears his name and make good on his promise.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY SESQUICENTENNIAL

Mr G. Wilson: On October 16, 1841—150 years ago—Queen's University was established by royal charter issued by Queen Victoria. Classes began five months later when Queen's College at Kingston, as it was called, opened in a small, rented, wood-frame house at the edge of the city. There were two professors and 13 students.

Throughout 1991-92, that tiny college celebrates its sesquicentennial. Known as Queen's University since 1912, the school is one of the oldest and most distinguished universities in Canada, with a long-established tradition of service. There are now two large campuses with more than 17,000 students in five faculties, 10 schools and one affiliated college, taught by a faculty of more than 1,100 and supported by a staff of nearly 3,000.

Growth was not always easy. In the 1880s there was much talk within university and provincial circles that Queen's should move from Kingston and merge with the University of Toronto. Queen's overcame adversity to become a major influence on eastern Ontario and beyond.

Locally it has contributed millions of dollars to the economy as well as to providing public access to its many activities, enriching the intellectual, spiritual and recreational life of the community. With more than 70,000 graduates living in all provinces and territories of Canada and over 100 countries around the world, Queen's has truly earned its reputation as a university of the first rank.

In celebrating its sesquicentennial, the university is hosting an array of conferences, lectures and symposia on a range of contemporary issues. By focusing on questions of public concern, Queen's is not only paying tribute to its past but continuing its mission of public service.

I know all members of the Legislature will join with me in congratulating Queen's on its magnificent achievement and in wishing it well over its next 150 years.

THUNDER BAY SHOPPING PLAN

Mrs McLeod: I rise in the House today to congratulate the citizens of Thunder Bay for their ingenious and proactive response to the issue of cross-border shopping. This Christmas, Thunder Bay's credit unions will be offering shoppers interest-free loans of up to $5,000. The Thunder Bay Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with Thunder Bay credit unions, have devised this plan to persuade residents to do their shopping in Thunder Bay rather than crossing the border to purchase goods in the United States.

The plan has garnered the support of more than 50 local businesses in Thunder Bay. This Christmas, residents will be able to shop in the city stores using "Shopping Spree" cheques that have been issued by Thunder Bay's credit unions. In this innovative move, residents will be given six months to pay back their loans interest-free.

I would like to commend the Thunder Bay Chamber of Commerce, the credit unions, the local retailers and the citizens of Thunder Bay for their initiative. It represents a community solution to a problem that is national. While the problem of cross-border shopping cannot be eradicated by municipalities alone, I am proud of the initiative the people of Thunder Bay have exhibited at the municipal level.

HEALTH INSURANCE

Mr Jackson: I bring to the attention of all members of the House yet another case in which Ontario seniors are being treated unfairly by the New Democratic Party government. I would like to quote directly from a letter in my possession from Medicare International Insurance.

It says, "The new OHIP rules have caused rates for out-of-country medical insurance to skyrocket and this class of insurance is now a very lucrative source of income for travel, general and life insurance broker agents." It goes on to say: "The best is yet to come. You will receive a 30% commission cheque every time your client activates their card after the initial trip, even though your brokerage agency may not continue to be associated with this client."

This letter raises a number of significant questions. Why did it take the NDP government six months to approve rate reductions requested by auto insurance companies, but only two months to fast-track increases for out-of-country medical coverage for Ontario residents? According to the letter, they made it very lucrative. Can the NDP Minister of Financial Institutions explain what exactly he has done to bring this situation about and why? Can he also explain the hardships this NDP action has inflicted on senior citizens, many of whom travel to warmer climates for health reasons? This flies in the face of what the NDP Minister of Health said about the subsidizing of seniors by her government.

It is unacceptable that the NDP, which made affordable auto insurance an election issue, is now completely ignoring the legitimate pleas of Ontario seniors for fair and sensitive treatment with respect to out-of-country health insurance.

1340

DONNA LAILEY

Ms Haeck: I rise today to tell the House of a unique person from my riding of St Catharines-Brock who has made a valuable contribution to the Ontario wine industry, 1991 Grape Queen Donna Lailey.

Donna Lailey has been a full-time grape grower in Niagara-on-the-Lake for almost 20 years. This year her 20-acre vineyard along the Niagara Parkway was judged to be the most outstanding in Ontario. Besides having this honour bestowed on her, Queen Donna also is the first woman to receive this prestigious crown in the 35-year history of the competition.

With the help of her husband David, who is a school-teacher, Donna grows mainly Vitis vinifera grapes and sells to Cartier Wines of Niagara Falls. Table wine varieties at the Lailey Vineyards include Chardonnay, Riesling, Pinot Noir and Cabernet. Besides her commercial activities, she also developed an innovative marketing program to supply an estimated 600 amateur winemakers around Ontario. In fact, last year's winning Chardonnay at the Amateur Winemakers of Ontario competition was made from Lailey grapes.

The crowning of the Grape Queen is just one of the many events at the annual Niagara Grape and Wine Festival, which has recently been held for the 40th time. Over the next year Mrs Lailey will be busy representing and promoting the Ontario wine producers. Already this year she has participated in the Great Ontario Grape Stomp for Easter Seals held at Nathan Phillips Square and today she will be a special guest at the Speaker's wine-tasting reception here at Queen's Park. The member for Lincoln and I encourage all members to attend a very interesting function this evening.

DEVELOPMENT CHARGES

Mr Beer: On November 23, 1989, Bill 20, legislation which provided boards of education with the opportunity to put in place lot levies to raise money for the construction of new school buildings, received royal assent. Today, almost two years later, the implementation of that legislation has not yet taken place.

Those boards of education which are experiencing significant growth have been waiting for 22 months for the government to act. Boards in Durham, Peel, Halton, Simcoe, Dufferin and my own region of York have had their rate of grants for capital purposes reduced drastically during this period—in York region from 55% to 27%—but remain frustrated by their inability even to hold public meetings on the issue, let alone pass the necessary bylaws. While the months have passed, this NDP government has avoided taking action. The growth boards of education in this province remain angry and frustrated.

I hold in my hand a letter to the former Minister of Education from Mr Harry Bowes, chair of the York Region Board of Education and the chair of the Growth Boards Coalition, which speaks of their frustration. Mr Bowes is normally a calm and reasoned man who avoids extremes. When in the letter he uses words such as, "In 17 years of trusteeship, I have never been involved in such a frustrating and depressing experience," one knows the problem is a serious one.

To the new Minister of Education I say, put a stop to this disgraceful situation. He has several problems to address in his new portfolio, but none more serious than this. More delay and more procrastination is not the answer. He should act responsibly and deal with the issue now.

NORTHERN HEALTH TRAVEL GRANTS

Mr Eves: As members are aware, I have been a very active participant in the fight to secure the eligibility of all residents of Nipissing and Parry Sound districts to participate in the northern health travel grant program.

As of July 1, 1991, the Minister of Health finally recognized the northern status of the riding and changed the regulations to allow residents of Parry Sound riding to qualify for this program. However, further regulation now dictates that the general practitioner who refers the resident for specialized medical treatment must be a northern Ontario physician in order for the patient to qualify for the program. As a result, some residents in the district of Parry Sound are denied access to the program.

For example, a constituent living in Sprucedale or the southern part of the riding who naturally goes to a doctor in Huntsville, which is closer, is now not given access to the northern health travel grant program. I view this as being inconsistent, to say the least, with the commitment the minister gave to the House.

There also appears to be a great deal of confusion within the Ministry of Health about this very stipulation. Information released by the media liaison officer of communication and information—in itself a mouthful—in the ministry indicated to a newspaper in Parry Sound riding that the program was based solely on the home address of the applicant. This is not true. Upon contacting the northern health travel grant program people in the ministry, they indicate that in fact if it is not a northern physician referring the patient, the patient is not covered.

I would like to clear up this misinformation and confusion. Perhaps the minister could address this issue once and for all.

PUBLIC SAFETY

Ms Carter: I am making this announcement on behalf of the parents and family of Nina de Villiers. Her uncle, Johan de Villiers is my constituent.

This tragically bereaved family is circulating a petition to the House of Commons in Ottawa, which reads in part:

"We, the undersigned residents of Canada, in support of the parents of Nina de Villiers, draw the attention of the House to the following:

"That the murder of Nina de Villiers on the 9th of August, 1991, has exposed serious deficiencies in the criminal justice system. There are many vulnerable persons who have little protection under the current system. Women, children and disabled persons are at particular risk.

"That statutes governing the criminal justice system in Canada must be revised to reflect societal attitudes.

"Therefore, your petitioners request that Parliament recognize that crimes of violence against a person are serious and abhorrent to society and amend the Criminal Code of Canada, the Bail Reform Act of 1972 and the Parole Act accordingly."

Copies of this petition can be obtained free of charge from all members of the House of Commons in Ottawa, so please contact your local MP. Mr Johan de Villiers will assist members of the public in obtaining additional copies for circulation. His telephone number is 705-745-5600.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENTS

The Speaker: On Wednesday, October 9, the Leader of the Opposition (Mr Elston) raised a point of order with respect to statements by ministers of the crown made outside the legislative chamber. The members for St George-St David (Mr Scott), Parry Sound (Mr Eves), Parkdale (Mr Ruprecht), Oriole (Mrs Caplan), York Centre (Mr Sorbara), Willowdale (Mr Harnick) and Etobicoke West (Mr Stockwell) joined the Leader of the Opposition in expressing concern over ministerial announcements made outside the legislative chamber.

Statements by ministers of the crown have been given a recognized place in the routine proceedings. Standing order 31(a) specifically provides that "A minister of the crown may make a short factual statement relating to government policy, ministry action or other similar matters of which the House should be informed."

The standing orders do not require or compel ministers of the crown to first make statements of public policy or new directions to be taken by the government to the House. Standing order 31(a) is permissive; a minister of the crown "may" make such a statement in the House.

Statements of government policy or ministry action made outside the legislative chamber by ministers of the crown do not constitute legitimate points of order. This has been confirmed on many occasions by me and my predecessors as Speaker in Ontario and by Speakers in other legislatures in Canada and the Commonwealth. The definitive statement on this matter was made by Speaker Lamoureux of the House of Commons of Canada on October 30, 1969. In his ruling Speaker Lamoureux stated:

"The question has often been raised whether parliamentary privilege imposes on ministers an obligation to deliver communications to the public through the House of Commons or to make these announcements or statements in the House rather than outside the chamber. The question has been asked whether honourable members are entitled, as part of the parliamentary privilege, to receive such information ahead of the general public. I can find no precedent to justify this suggestion. There may be, in such circumstances, a question of propriety or a question of courtesy. There may be a grievance. But in my view there cannot be a question of privilege."

Although I have no power to force ministers of the crown to come before the House and make a statement on government policy or ministry action, I am of the opinion that the members who spoke on this matter have a valid grievance of which the government should take serious note.

I concur with the statement of Speaker Weatherill of the House of Commons at Westminster on July 16, 1991. The Speaker stated:

"Time was when ministers always made statements to the House before they made them outside. I hope that we can get back to that practice. This chamber is the forum of the nation. This is where statements should always first be made, not to those outside."

1350

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

The Speaker: On Wednesday last, the Leader of the Opposition (Mr Elston) rose on a question of privilege soon after the oral question period began. He informed the House that a member of the Premier's staff seated in the government section of the under press gallery behind the Speaker's dais had just directed a remark to the member for Brampton North (Mr McClelland) as he was placing a question to the former Minister of Community and Social Services (Ms Akande).

Members will know that such matters are covered by our standing orders. Standing order 13(a) empowers the Speaker to maintain order and decorum in the chamber. Standing order 17 reads as follows:

"Any stranger admitted to any part of the House or gallery who misconducts himself or herself, or does not withdraw when strangers are directed to withdraw, while the House or a committee of the whole House is meeting, may be expelled from the precincts of the House by the Sergeant at Arms, or anyone acting under the direction of the Sergeant at Arms."

And standing order 18 reads as follows:

"All strangers may be excluded from the House or any committee thereof on a motion properly moved and adopted by the House or the committee, as the case may be."

It is clear then that members' staff, the press and members of the public are permitted to be in the galleries when the House is meeting, but only as long as they do not misbehave or disrupt the business of the House.

The 21st edition of Erskine May's Parliamentary Practice states the following at page 115:

"Any disorderly, contumacious or disrespectful conduct in the presence of either House or committee will constitute a contempt, which may be committed by strangers, parties or witnesses.... Strangers have been punished for contempt for disorderly conduct for having interrupted or disturbed the proceedings of either House or a committee...."

The 2nd edition of Australia's House of Representatives Practice states the following at page 161:

"To perform its functions the House must be protected from physical disruption, disturbance and obstruction and there is no doubt that the House has the power to protect itself from such actions."

I have to say, at the time in question, I did not hear anything untoward from the under galleries, but I undertook to investigate the matter. I have had an opportunity to review Wednesday's Hansard, but it contained no record of a remark by a stranger. I am satisfied that the Sergeant at Arms dealt with the matter in the appropriate way. Members can rest assured that I will continue to be vigilant to ensure that order and decorum are maintained in the House. Misbehaviour by occupants of the galleries will not be tolerated.

In closing, I want to thank the Leader of the Opposition for raising what I took to be a very serious matter. This incident also affords me an opportunity to encourage members to do their part in the maintenance of order and decorum in the chamber. Members will recall that there were many interjections in the chamber at the outset of last Wednesday's oral question period, as has been the case in other recent question periods before and since. In such circumstances, it can be difficult to hear what is being said by members who properly have the floor, let alone ascertain whether inappropriate remarks are being made from the galleries. It would therefore be most helpful if members would speak one at a time and after having been recognized by the Chair. This would help the Speaker to maintain order and decorum in this chamber.

LAND REGISTRATION

The Speaker: On Thursday, October 10, the member for Dufferin-Peel (Mr Tilson) raised a question of privilege with respect to remarks made in a court of law by a lawyer representing the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations. The member for Dufferin-Peel was of the opinion that the remarks constituted a question of privilege or contempt in that they were insulting and obstructed members in the performance of their functions by diminishing the respect due to the House and its committees, by prejudicing the results of a committee of the Legislature and by calling into question the validity of the powers and integrity of the members of the House.

The member for Essex South and Chair of the standing committee on general government (Mr Mancini) also spoke to this question of privilege. He indicated this was a matter which was before the standing committee and that the clerk of the committee had been asked to obtain the court transcripts so the committee could see for itself what was said and whether the remarks attributed to the ministry lawyer were true. This is clearly a matter which is before the standing committee on general government and ought to be settled in the committee, not in the House.

After considering the court transcripts, the committee may make a report to the House on matters which affect its proceedings. There being no report from the committee, the matter may not be raised as a question of privilege in the House.

Hon Mr Rae: I think there is unanimous consent that I make a very brief statement without the benefit of paper.

The Speaker: Is there unanimous consent?

Agreed to.

CABINET MEMBERS

Hon Mr Rae: I simply want to advise the House officially that subsequent to the resignation of the member for St Andrew-St Patrick, the new Minister of Community and Social Services is the member for London Centre, that the new Minister of Education is the member for Dovercourt and that responsibility in an administrative sense for long-term care has been given to the Minister of Health.

Mr Elston: This arrangement came about in the House so I was not exactly sure how the response was to be handled, but I might just first of all take this time to congratulate the new ministers on their new positions.

I must say I have somewhat of a difficulty in learning that the Chairman of Management Board, a place I served at for some length of time, is going to have an easy time implementing the program that his mentor, the storyteller from Nickel Belt, has foisted on all the ministries. The minister at Management Board, although I know he is not involved in all of the day-to-day fiscal planning around the cutbacks, or whatever those are being described as inside government these days, will have to deal with the issue of personnel and other matters.

He will find himself engaged fully, I suspect, in trying to discover what in the Ministry of Education is going to allow him to meet his constraints, plus being able to do what I am sure he was advocating at one time as chairman of a school board in a large municipality whose name is well known to us all. A big issue for that minister is 60% funding, and I suspect that in his new incarnation he will want to discover how at Management Board he can assist that ministry to deliver the goods this time, since his colleague the last minister was unable to convince the Treasurer of the day that this in fact should be carried out.

I do wish him well. I wish the Minister of Community and Social Services well, except there is one particular difficulty I note full well for her, which is that there has been a new dissection of responsibilities inside the Ministry of Community and Social Services as it shares the duties and obligations of providing long-term care for the people of Ontario.

That has been removed now from Community and Social Services to the Minister of Health. It is an interesting movement back and forth of these obligations. It is not so many months ago that I recall receiving letters from medical officers of health complaining about the fact that they had been taken off the delivery of a lot of community services and their budgets moved over to Community and Social Services administrators.

These new ministers will find challenges that are daunting. I wish them well. I do want to set out for a short period of time some concerns that will confront these people. I noticed that the Minister of Community and Social Services has again obligated her government to end the existence of food banks. We will have some questions to ask about that particular specific plan. I am sure we will find a very good answer in a very few minutes from now.

1400

Mr Eves: On behalf of our party, I rise to wish the new ministers well in their new duties. I have some idea of what the Minister of Community and Social Services goes through every day and I wish the member for London Centre nothing but the best in her future endeavours.

If there is anybody who can deliver on the 60% operational funding commitment, the member for Dovercourt, being Chairman of Management Board of Cabinet, can. I am sure he will be able to persuade Pink Floyd and others down here that this indeed should be done, and I assume it will be done during this fiscal year.

I note the government has chosen this opportunity to again shuffle, as the leader of the official opposition has indicated, the on-again, off-again Health-Community and Social Services ongoing saga as to who has the responsibility for long-term care. This is yet another opportunity, I guess, to shuffle it to a new ministry again. Hopefully this time something will be done with it.

STATEMENTS BY THE MINISTRY

MIDWIFERY

Hon Mr Cooke: I am tabling in the House today documents which were distributed this morning at an announcement by the Minister of Health and the Minister of Colleges and Universities with respect to the establishment of a program of education for midwives in Ontario. With the establishment of this program, Ontario will become the first province to offer a bachelor's degree program in midwifery.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN ALGONQUIN PARK

Hon Mr Wildman: I would like to inform members that the Ontario government and the Algonquins of Golden Lake have signed an interim agreement on hunting. This agreement flows from the commitments the government has made in the course of the land claim negotiations with the Algonquins of Golden Lake which began on June 15.

In announcing this new agreement, I want to indicate that we have met our commitments to consult with the public before signing this arrangement. The agreement demonstrates that the consultation has been meaningful and that the Algonquins of Golden Lake are being reasonable.

The province discussed the ideas of this interim agreement with interested parties during the course of negotiations. Then we went back to these parties with a draft of this agreement to discuss it further and to receive their comments and input before the government signed the document.

Indeed, there have been several additional items placed in the agreement as a direct result of the consultation. For example, every effort will be made to ensure that hunting does not occur in nature reserves, wilderness zones or historic zones. The agreement also specifically recognizes the need to protect rare, threatened and endangered species as well as wolves and loons.

Other matters raised by interested parties will be dealt with on an administrative basis during the course of the agreement. The interim agreement identifies those areas, within the territory the Algonquins claim as their traditional territory, where they will hunt moose and deer for food. The claim territory includes a large portion of Algonquin Park. The agreement ensures that hunting will be within biologically sustainable limits.

As we have indicated from the outset of the discussions with the Algonquins, the interim agreement clearly recognizes the commitment of both Ontario and the Algonquins to conservation of wildlife, the preservation of the values of Algonquin Park and the protection of public safety.

The agreement has been designed to ensure that there will be no infringement of the public's ability to enjoy hiking, camping and canoeing in Algonquin Park.

The agreement also ensures that public safety and private property rights are protected outside the park.

The interim agreement expires at the end of August 1992, but I believe it will provide a framework for other agreements while the land claim negotiations continue.

I would like for a moment to highlight some of the key terms of the interim agreement.

1. Within Algonquin Park, the Algonquins will hunt moose and deer from today, October 15, 1991, to January 15, 1992.

2. Hunting inside the park is restricted to an area north and east of the Shirley Lake Road in order to ensure that as much as possible, hunting is not in an area frequented by park visitors.

3. Within the park, the Algonquins will not use all-terrain vehicles and snowmobiles for hunting, and there are important restrictions on the use of cars, trucks and motor boats.

4. Outside the park, but within the land claim area, the Algonquins will hunt moose and deer from September 1, 1991, to January 15, 1992.

The hunt limits set out in the agreement are well within the level that is biologically sustainable for the area populations of moose and deer. The harvest levels represent a relatively small percentage of the total number of moose and deer hunted annually in this area.

There are other measures in the agreement to ensure enforcement and to ensure that the terms of the agreement are observed. Funds will be provided to enable the Algonquins to hire a person to be responsible for ensuring that the agreement is observed. Ontario's conservation officers will also be responsible for the enforcement of the agreement. Conservation measures will be enforced by a tribunal established by the Algonquins. Issues of public safety and private property may be enforced by the Ontario government. Both sides are committed to guaranteeing the protection of public safety and that laws are observed with regard to private property.

A joint co-ordinating committee will be established with the Ministry of Natural Resources to gather information necessary for the proper management of hunting, including game inventories, and harvesting and biological reports. In addition, discussions are continuing on developing an interim arrangement on fisheries management.

I am pleased to be able to announce that we are making significant progress in resolving outstanding issues with the Algonquins of Golden Lake. They first asked to have their rights recognized in the late 18th century. In 1983, they lodged a claim with the federal and Ontario governments that covers approximately 14,000 square miles of land within the watershed of the Ottawa River. The negotiations on the land claim will be complex and it is essential that the federal government be fully involved. So far, Canada has named an observer to the negotiations.

I believe that with patience and understanding, we will find a way to settle the historic grievances and to create a harmonious climate for everyone.

RESPONSES

HUNTING AND FISHING IN ALGONQUIN PARK

Mr Ramsay: All members of this House understand and I think have an appreciation of the sensitivity of this issue, and understand the tremendous challenge this minister has had in bringing forward this agreement.

But I must say that for the minister to stand in his place today and pat himself and his government on the back for the consultation process that has been involved in this, when it was merely a week ago less a day that the minister brought forward an interim agreement proposal that really allowed four working days for the people of this province to consider this agreement, that is really not a consultation process at all.

Let alone the fact that the Minister of the Environment on Thursday of last week received a request by the Ad Hoc Committee to Save Algonquin Park for an environmental assessment, on which we have had no response to date. I take it the minister has rejected that, as the agreement is now signed. We would still like to hear a statement from the Minister of the Environment.

The agreement is couched with qualifications and phrases of conditionality: "may try" to do this; "with every attempt" to do this. It is a grave concern that public safety and public security are not going to be protected. The agreement speaks of restricted zones. We have wilderness zones and nature reserves in Algonquin Park. There is "an attempt" to do this but I think it should be mandatory that this hunting does not happen in the wilderness areas. I ask the minister, what of the newly proposed wilderness areas of Algonquin Park? These have not been brought into being yet.

The agreement, again, only recognizes the need to protect threatened species and endangered species and rare species.

Hon Mr Wildman: They won't be hunting those.

Mr Ramsay: The minister says they will not be hunting those. We need that certainty. We want to make sure they will not. I would also ask the minister to make sure that non-game species are not included.

On the quota of 100 moose, biologists have said that in Algonquin Park itself most areas could not sustain a moose hunt. I ask the minister to consider a quota whereby the 100 moose that are to be harvested may be from within the park and outside the park so that we could have some certainty that the moose population within the park will not be endangered.

1410

MIDWIFERY

Mr Phillips: In response to the statement by the government House leader, on the good news side of it, clearly we are supportive of these two statements. They follow very much the proposals the previous government had made. We welcome the bachelor program for midwives, particularly the Michener Institute. We think that is the right place for the program to be. Certainly we support the breadth of choice midwives will present to the women of Ontario.

There are two things we want to register with the government. The first is that I hope you can appreciate the anger we feel on this side of the House when ministers have the time to make a public statement elsewhere but cannot find the time to be in the House to make the statement themselves. The government House leader simply tables the two statements and we do not have an opportunity to hear either of the ministers make those statements in the House, nor do we have an opportunity to question either of the ministers in the House today. I hope the government House leader and the Premier in particular would recognize that this is another example of the thing that concerns us.

The other thing—this would be directed to the Premier—is that this program was a program that my House leader, the member for Bruce, announced in 1986 and was followed up by our last Minister of Health, the member for Oriole. As the government looks for co-operation from this side, I have scoured this material now and there is not one mention made of any of the work of my colleague the member for Oriole.

I suggest to the government there are many people thanked in this document. The grace and the good common decency to acknowledge the work of the previous minister would go a long way towards establishing a kinder, gentler place here in the Legislature.

Mr Daigeler: I find it unbelievable that last week in this House we had a very strong presentation by our leader that it was unacceptable that ministers make statements to the press before they make statements to the House in here, and today, on the first opportunity the government has to correct the situation, what does it do? The government House leader, on behalf of other ministers, makes a statement. I certainly hope that will not be the new practice, and if that is his idea of democracy and of participating in this House, he certainly is on the wrong road.

Mr J. Wilson: I too am pleased to respond to the announcement tabled by the government House leader today concerning the province's intention to offer a bachelor's degree program in midwifery. We congratulate the government on that. We have no qualms about that. But like the previous Liberal speakers, I emphasize that our party takes very strong issue with the fact that once again this government has made a very important announcement outside this Legislature.

It seems in light of your ruling, Mr Speaker, and in light of the raucous debate we had last week in this House, that the government must take seriously its responsibility to report to this Legislature and to have respect for the parliamentary process.

I would add to the previous points by saying that as the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party Health critic, I sit on the committee that is studying the Midwifery Act right now. I am extremely angered that the ministers are not here today and that the government House leader would simply table an announcement that was made at 10:30 this morning and not give us an appropriate opportunity to respond, as should be the case with respect for our parliamentary traditions. We want assurances from the government that this will not happen again.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN ALGONQUIN PARK

Mr McLean: I want to comment on the minister's announcement with regard to the draft agreement. The minister seems quite proud of his consultation record. However, the public has a different opinion of his consultation record and he has had very little public support, from what I have observed.

We have serious concerns about the draft hunting agreement with the Algonquins of Golden Lake which was made public last week. We are concerned that the government appears to be turning its back on its own commitment to public consultation. This document was released on October 8 and the public was asked to comment within 48 hours. Not only was the comment time extremely short, it is also unlikely to have any effect on the process since the document was to have been signed today. It is already signed.

In spite of his comment that he did not anticipate major concerns because we have dealt with major concerns, conservation groups have found serious deficiencies in the document. In the short time frame the minister has allowed, how is it possible to deal with these questions?

"1. It is misleading to suggest that 100 moose will be taken throughout the whole land claim area. Since the east side of Algonquin has the highest concentration of moose in the area, and it is free of other hunting pressures on moose, it is realistic to assume that the moose will be taken in the park.

"2. Conservation is supposed to be the top priority of the agreement, but conservation is defined nowhere in the document, nor are we given any indication of how the numbers were determined" to ensure that conservation was being looked after.

"3. The provision in number 2 appears to promote open season on all species....

"4. Sections 6 and 17 imply that changes to laws and agreements regarding hunting may be made without public consultation.

"5. The use of 'may' in number 5 with respect to the co-ordinating committee does not inspire confidence in the committee's powers to review data and supervise proper implementation or enforcement.

"6. Although 'Algonquin law' is referred to as a basis for part of the agreement, it is never defined. How then is it possible to judge whether the provisions outlined in number 12 are adequate to ensure 'that conservation takes priority'?

"7. The hunting agreement conflicts with the minister's acceptance of the parks council's recommendations on increasing the nature reserves (largely on the east side of the park) and studying the feasibility of a large wilderness zone on the east side of the park. Both these undertakings are in direct conflict with hunting.

"8. There is evidence which indicates that any added pressure on the moose population within the park will place a strain on dependent species such as wolves.

"9. Use of cars and trucks 'off-road' is unofficially permitted by allowing their use for retrieving game.

"The Federation of Ontario Naturalists has publicly stated its support for a just settlement of the Algonquins' land claim outside the park. But they have also stated that the band should have a stake in the park's future by being enlisted to take an active role as stewards within the park.

"The hunting agreement is a violation of the minister's commitment and responsibility to the park. Algonquin's centennial is almost upon us. Let that year mark both a just and publicly negotiated settlement of the band's land claim."

There are no checks and balances in this agreement. The funds will be provided to enable the Algonquins to hire a person to be responsible for ensuring that the agreement is observed. It is a sellout of Algonquin Park.

INVESTIGATION INTO RELEASE OF DOCUMENTS

Mr Elston: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: I would like to indicate to the House that at 11:30 this morning I was visited by two officers from the Ontario Provincial Police, who are investigating the manner in which I received the spin document accompanying the release that the Treasurer had with respect to his cutbacks.

I feel this is an attempt to prevent me from doing fully the work I must do if I am to raise questions about the issues of the day. The two gentlemen who appeared took full pains to suggest it had been the Deputy Treasurer who was sending out the investigative unit from the anti-rackets group. This is the second member who has stood in this House with a document which came from inside the government, who has been visited by the OPP at the behest of a deputy minister, at least ostensibly so.

I suggest there is an attempt to prevent the release of documents, and perhaps that is how these people want to do it; that is, get the police after all of us who stand in the House to raise issues about important public business when we receive documents.

I was interested to have the document I received, a spin document, described as a government document. It is interesting to note that this spin document, a series of questions and answers that were then made widely available to people, was a government document scheduled, I am told not by the two officers but by others, to become the exclusive property of members of the government caucus as they were going out to spin the message that the perfect, tiny storyteller from Nickel Belt was trying to give us.

While I have no question about people wanting to deal with their own internal security, I find it unrealistic that the OPP is asked to investigate with respect to the members of the opposition coming into possession of documents that somebody believes would be of interest to the public.

These are interesting times. We have the release of Ministry of Labour material written in a manner which would be highly inflammatory to any reasonably unbiased mind, we have the information about the signature of the Minister of the Environment on a document which showed a new direction for her policies and now we have the spin document. In each case there are important public issues.

Why these people are using the police to come and talk to us to do the investigation is beyond me, but I feel there is a real attempt to prevent us from doing the public business. Mr Speaker, I think you should look into this and approach the chief government representative, the Premier, and ask him to explain to you, as Speaker and representative of all of us here, why the provincial police is dispatched to our offices at every release of a document to investigate that.

Even more than that, I suggest this is the type of abuse against minorities which is unacceptable in a democratic government. It is particularly important when put against the announcement of the Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet, who released a paper on whistle-blowing. When he talks about wanting to have whistle-blowing covered under the guidelines and then we are faced with OPP investigation after OPP investigation, I believe there is something out of whack.

1420

Hon Mr Cooke: Mr Speaker, I am sure you will want to look into this matter, but I point out to you and to the Leader of the Opposition that I think it is quite unfair for him to characterize this visit by the OPP to his office as some instruction from the minister or the politicians.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Cooke: The Ontario Provincial Police is obviously entitled to carry out an investigation. We do not instruct them how to carry out that investigation.

The Speaker: In response to the Leader of the Opposition, I appreciate the serious matter he has brought to my attention. Indeed, I will take the opportunity to look closely at this and will report back later.

ORAL QUESTIONS

FOOD BANKS

Mr Elston: I was doing a little reading not that long ago, which I do now and again. I like to go back to old Hansards, and particularly Hansards that deal with recitals by the then leader of the official opposition, the member for York South.

It was not that long ago that he was in this House asking us about food banks. This being a week when there is an extension on for the food banks in the province so that they can get enough food to cover the need that is now felt out in the community, I thought the Premier would want to tell us exactly what he is doing about food banks. I wonder whether he could tell us what specific plan his government has to relieve the need for food banks, bearing in mind that the new Minister of Community and Social Services has declared, as the government's first minister declared, that there was an end coming to food banks. I ask the Premier to tell us what his specific plan is for the elimination of food banks.

Hon Mr Rae: First, let me stress what we have already done and what we are doing. As of now, I believe it is fair to say we certainly have the highest social assistance rates anywhere in the country. We have done this in the face of a $1.5-billion cutback from the federal government.

The former minister announced a $215-million program to implement the Back on Track recommendations, of which $50 million will be allocated to back-to-work initiatives, which include full recognition of child care costs in calculating net earnings, continued general welfare assistance eligibility for persons working full time but still in financial need, an increase in the percentage of earnings that recipients of general welfare and family benefits can retain, and a total of $111.5 million to initiatives to provide assistance to those in greatest need.

Mr Elston: How are you eliminating food banks?

Hon Mr Rae: The member is shouting across to me, "How are you going to eliminate food banks?" I believe we are doing as much as can be done in the circumstances by providing for the most sustained support for people in the greatest need in our province. There is always more that can be done with respect to providing assistance. We are now spending $2 billion more than we were spending two years ago with respect to welfare assistance and there is always more to be done, but it is going to take the participation of all levels of government, including the federal government led by the Conservative Party of Canada, for us to be able to address this issue in the way we have to be able to address it.

Mrs McLeod: We appreciate and anticipated the recitation, although there are some things we do not know, such as what has actually happened with some of those programs. We understand, for example, that at least some $10 million of the $30-million back-to-work-initiative program is in Management Board and that those funds may not be released. The facts we do know are that there were almost one million people in this province on social assistance in September of this year, that food bank usage has grown by 44% and that the government's own statistics show there is a 42% increase in the number of people who receive social assistance who are using their food money to pay their rent bills.

I remind the Premier that last October after the election he renewed the government's commitment to tackle the food bank problem. I remind him too that in opposition his party had a one-year time frame to end the need for food banks. I ask the Premier to explain why, during a recession, when the need is the greatest, when the Premier himself has said the province would not fight the recession on the backs of the poor and the sick, his government sacrificed the election promise to end the need for food banks.

Hon Mr Rae: I have just done a head count and have asked the Minister of Municipal Affairs, the Chairman of Management Board and the Deputy Premier whether the $10-million figure which the former minister has come up with is correct. It is my understanding that it is not correct. In fact, the funding which has been allocated in this budget for Back on Track is intended to proceed and is proceeding on track.

I do not expect a member of the Liberal Party to take note of this, but which government increased the minimum wage to the point where we now have the highest minimum wage anywhere in North America? It is the New Democratic Party government of Ontario. Which government has announced a $32.5-million program for laid-off workers at a time when other governments have been cutting back and cutting us back? It is the New Democratic Party government of Ontario. Which government has announced a $700-million anti-recession fund which is the largest capital works program of any government in Canada at this point, just as we are faced with billions of dollars in cutbacks from the federal government? It is the New Democratic Party government of Ontario. Not only have we done this, but we have increased social assistance rates higher than inflation, a 10% increase with respect to shelter allowances.

None of us in this House takes any joy in seeing what has happened to the economy this past year, but I ask the honourable member to tell us how much more money we should spend in comparison with the money we have already been spending in dealing with the needs of people in need in this province.

Mrs McLeod: The Premier's rhetoric is not putting food into anybody's stomach. It is his government's responsibility to set the priorities for the dollars it has to spend. I simply make the point that the Premier at an earlier time said that hunger was an Ontario problem that his government would tackle.

We also acknowledge that the same Premier very recently presented a proposal to enshrine a social charter in the Constitution. I ask the Premier how he can reconcile the goal of that proposed social charter to reduce child and family poverty with his government's inability to act on its pledge to end the need for food banks, even though he has said this is a problem his government would tackle.

1430

Mrs Caplan: Rhetoric; it is all rhetoric.

Hon Mr Rae: The member for Oriole shouts "Rhetoric." Is $175 million in a wage protection fund which is going to be passed by the House today rhetoric? I do not believe it is rhetoric; I believe it is action.

Interjections.

Hon Mr Rae: The member for St Catharines says, "What about food banks?" I say to the honourable member for St Catharines that the money we are putting in people's pockets today is going to make a difference, we believe, over time. It is not going to happen overnight. The hard reality is that in fighting this recession as hard as we have, yes, of course we have run up a deficit. Yes, we have; we confess to that. We have had a $1.5-billion cut in Canada assistance plan payments alone from the federal government as we encounter this change. The fact of the matter is this government is putting more money into people's pockets than any government in the history of the province in terms of dealing with this recession.

RETAIL STORE HOURS

Mr Sorbara: I have a question for the Solicitor General. I remind the Solicitor General that we have just concluded the Thanksgiving weekend. For many there was precious little to be thankful about, and I think about the thousands of people who had to resort to the Premier's food banks in order to put a Thanksgiving meal on the table.

I want to remind the Solicitor General of the thousands and thousands of shopkeepers and retailers in this province for whom the Thanksgiving to Christmas shopping period is absolutely critical. He should know, now that he has been in his portfolio for a while, that most retailers expect to do a full third of their business during this very busy shopping season.

I want to tell him as well that retailing in Ontario has dropped by some 8.9%. The Solicitor General has an opportunity, not to solve all the problems of the retailers but to realize that his Sunday shopping bill is deadlocked in the standing committee on administration of justice. I want to ask if he will now realize that he could make a significant difference to one sector of this provincial economy by introducing in that committee some amendments that would give more freedom to some retailers so they could simply stay above water and keep their businesses going during this very hectic period.

Hon Mr Pilkey: The government has of course presented itself at the clause-by-clause hearings. I have been present on each and every occasion where we wished to proceed with the amendments so that we might get the bill into the House to meet the various concerns. I continue to be available to do that. I invite the opposition to help us move along in this process because we are very concerned, with the passage of this bill, to ensure a common pause day and also add protection for retail workers in this province. As do all members of the committee and the government, I stand ready to proceed as soon as possible with this bill.

Mr Sorbara: We have absolutely no quarrel with the Solicitor General's provisions to protect retail workers in this province. We are all ad idem on that. They are not even his amendments; they are the amendments of the Minister of Labour and the Employment Standards Act, and that is not a problem.

The problem is that we went through a month of public hearings. We found that virtually no group or individual had anything good to say about the government bill. Some 75% of the people who spoke to the committee said they would favour a more flexible approach to who can and cannot buy and sell on Sunday.

After all that, the government introduces not one but two amendments that have nothing to do with the central issue. One amendment is entirely out of order and cannot come before the committee, and the other amendment is so patently unfair that it probably represents a violation of the Charter of Rights.

I just want to suggest, by way of supplementary, that the Solicitor General has an opportunity tomorrow in cabinet to take to his cabinet colleagues proposals to provide some bit of flexibility to this totally inflexible bill. Will the minister undertake, here in this House now, to bring forward some proposal or other to his cabinet colleagues so we can get out of this terrible logjam we are experiencing in the committee on this foolish bill?

Hon Mr Pilkey: This government introduced Bill 115 for first and second reading some time ago. The committee has gone across the province and has had input from a great number of citizens. We have presented ourselves at the clause-by-clause hearings on numerous occasions, all of which I have personally attended. We are anxious to proceed with this bill, and as soon as the opposition are prepared to join us in the speedy movement of it, we will accomplish it.

Quite frankly I have specific answers to the specific questions raised by the member opposite, and at the proper place and forum, which is in clause-by-clause, I am again willing to present myself in order to proceed as quickly as possible. I agree that every day that passes with respect to this bill and its non-passage creates some cause for concern in the minds of some. As soon as the opposition is prepared to proceed, I stand ready to do so as well.

Mr Sorbara: I could not give a whit about the minister's personal attendance at the committee when there is nothing to discuss.

Quebec has a common pause day in its Sunday shopping legislation, but even in that province there is an exception for the Christmas period. There is a provision in the Quebec law that gives storekeepers the right, if they so choose, to stay open from Thanksgiving until Christmas. It helps the retailing sector enormously and it helps the individual consumer enormously, because that is such a busy period of time.

I recall the Premier of this province saying that fighting the recession was going to be his number one priority. He could add to the fight a little bit, and the Solicitor General could add to the fight a little bit, by simply bringing forward an amendment which would allow those storekeepers who so wish to stay open during the Christmas period. If he were to do that, the logjam in the committee could end. We would not need his attendance and we could get through the bill in very short order.

I ask him once again: Will he undertake, here in this House today, to bring that amendment to his cabinet colleagues and fight like the devil for the retailers in this province who are looking for a little bit of help when they fight in a very difficult market?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I am very pleased to see the member opposite so eager to discuss Bill 115. As I suggested to him just a moment ago, we are equally eager to deal with that item. We are prepared to answer specific questions in the committee, and we look forward to meeting him there to do just that.

APPOINTMENTS REVIEW

Mr Runciman: My question is to the Premier. The United States Senate confirmation hearing concerning the nomination of Judge Clarence Thomas to the United States Supreme Court is, I am sure we agree, a most important event. While the process in the United States Senate may have been poorly managed, to say the least, the idea of fully reviewing appointments is right. I do not do this often, but I want to compliment the Premier for having introduced an improved process of review for appointments to agencies, boards and commissions in Ontario. However, it must also be recognized that our process still needs improvement.

Some of these appointments are paid for by all the people of Ontario. Surely all the people's representatives should have the right to say yes or no. Is the Premier now prepared to complete the job and make all appointments to agencies, boards and commissions subject to confirmation by the Legislature?

Hon Mr Rae: There are some practical considerations in regard to that in terms of the sheer numbers.

Mr Bradley: I hear a no.

Hon Mr Rae: The member for St Catharines again is shouting out. He is saying, "I hear no." He is not hearing "no." He should listen carefully to what I am saying.

I would say to the member for Leeds-Grenville that I look forward to some discussions with his leader and with the Leader of the Opposition or among the House leaders with respect to how this process can be improved. I would say to the honourable member that there are some practical considerations and that we are prepared to look at it in a positive way. I would say to him that we are considering this, on our side, in the context of overall reform of the rules of the House. That is the way in which we would like to address this question, and we look upon it in that regard.

I appreciate the suggestions made by the member for Leeds-Grenville and I do not dismiss them lightly at all; in fact, I am not dismissing them at all.

1440

Mr Runciman: For the clarification of the Premier, I said "subject to review"; I did not necessarily say "review." In the United States there are something like 50,000 appointments subject to review by the US Senate, and obviously it does not review every one of those.

The standing committee on government agencies has proven, for all intents and purposes, to be nothing more than a rubber stamp for all appointments and reviews. We do not have the resources to investigate the background of appointees—

Interjection.

The Speaker: Order, the member for St George-St David.

Mr Runciman: We cannot call witnesses to appear before us, so in essence the committee has no real power. A good example of this is that each of the opposition parties had only 20 minutes to question Marc Eliesen, the government's appointment to chair Ontario Hydro. I do not think anyone, even the Premier, believes that anyone could determine in 20 minutes whether Mr Eliesen was competent to manage a $7-billion enterprise, $7 billion of public money spent each year. Is the Premier prepared to give this committee the expanded mandate it needs to properly do the job and fully review all appointments it considers?

Hon Mr Rae: I would just say to the member that the time they had to interview Mr Eliesen was 40 minutes more than we ever had in opposition, or indeed any opposition party had with respect to any Tory appointment for 42 years. Maybe that is worth pointing out.

I would say to the honourable member that I look forward to a discussion on these questions. I do not think it is unreasonable to say, in terms of the general reforms we would like to be able to make with respect to the House and the conduct of public business, that I see this as the context in which we are going to be having these discussions.

I take the member's views seriously. I would say to him that the effort we have made has been to allow people to be interviewed and questioned, and for there to be a fair consideration of the candidates who are put forward, recognizing that all processes in this regard are imperfect. We are of course always open to improvements or suggestions for improvements.

Mr Runciman: I guess from our point of view we would rather have no time at all than 20 minutes, which sends out a message to the public that these people are being appropriately reviewed, which is not the case. It simply is not the case. A year ago the Premier promised major changes to the appointments process. They are actually minor changes and they may end up becoming no changes. This was an important election promise the Premier made, one that Ontario residents clearly want him to keep.

Can the Premier tell us why he is running for cover on this issue—effectively that is what he is doing—and why he apparently is not prepared to take the principled stand Ontarians deserve and make it his government's principled stand?

Hon Mr Rae: If answering questions in question period and establishing a precedent for the House the way we did last year is running for cover, then the member and I have very different definitions of what running for cover is. We are very pleased with the suggestions. If the member is saying he would prefer to have no time, I gather the time allowed for Mr Eliesen's discussion was decided by the opposition itself. So I would say to the honourable member that we are quite opposed to his saying we are looking for cover. Not only are we not looking for cover, but we are delighted to have various appointments considered by the committee and that will continue to be the case.

I believe we have lived up to the commitment we made in the last election campaign. I believe we have lived up to the commitment we made in the last speech from the throne. As I say, it may not be up to the pristine standards of the member for Leeds-Grenville, but I do not recall him making speeches on this subject when he was Minister of Government Services in the Davis administration.

CONSTITUTIONAL REFORM

Mr Eves: I have a question of the Premier as well. The Premier is obviously aware of today's Toronto Star-CTV poll with respect to the federal constitutional proposals. I believe he shared his impressions of the poll results with the media this morning. I wonder if he would be so kind as to share those impressions with the members of the assembly.

Hon Mr Rae: When I come into the House or into the Legislature, sometimes I get interviewed by the media. I was asked this morning for my impressions of the poll, which I saw on television last night and had an opportunity to read in one of the Toronto newspapers, the Toronto Star, this morning.

My impressions are that there is considerable ground still for consensus in the country. I believe no one should be surprised about the fact that, first of all, there are a considerable number of people who are undecided, who have not yet expressed an opinion. I think it fair to say that a great many people across the country are preoccupied with other matters, and that is quite understandable given the state of the economy and the state of the country generally.

I am encouraged by the fact that there is still room for movement, I believe, and still room for dialogue and discussion across the country. That is the basis upon which I take what I have heard so far. That is the basis upon which I responded this morning.

Mr Eves: One question the media addressed to the Premier this morning had to do with the entrenchment of property rights in the Constitution. Apparently the Premier was not quite as forthcoming or willing to expound upon the results of the Star-CTV poll with respect to that issue. I wonder if he might share not only with the members of the media but with the people of Ontario and the members of this assembly what his thoughts are on that matter.

Mr Scott: How much dialogue are you going to tolerate on that, Bob?

Hon Mr Rae: The member for St George-St David is shouting out to me and asking how much dialogue we will have on that. I think we will have a great deal of dialogue on that. I look—

Mr Scott: I know how you feel already. You are not going to change your mind.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Rae: I look forward to hearing from the honourable member for St George-St David on this question.

Mr Scott: I know where I stand. Where do you stand on it?

Hon Mr Rae: I appreciate the comments he is making.

The Speaker: It was the member for Parry Sound who asked a question, but we will have a rotation of opportunities. Perhaps the Premier could respond to the member for Parry Sound.

Hon Mr Rae: I would say to the honourable member that with respect to the question of property rights, I look forward to hearing the views of people across the country, from a variety of groups with respect to its impact.

Last week I spoke with Premier Ghiz, who expressed his very strong concerns to me about the impact that the clause would have on Prince Edward Island. There has been a very strong traditional opposition to that. I have heard from Peter Lougheed, who expressed a similar concern to me last week when I met with him on Thursday.

There are a number of issues that need to be looked at in that regard, but of course the protection of people's civil liberties, the respect for people's rights of ownership are a very important part of the Canadian tradition. How exactly we deal with it in a constitutional sense still needs to be determined.

Mr Eves: The Premier has enunciated on several occasions that he is certainly in favour of entrenching a social charter in the Constitution of the country. The Star-CTV poll points out that 80%, I believe, of Ontarians would be in favour of such entrenchment and 12% would be opposed. The same poll says that 65% of Ontarians are in favour of entrenching property rights and the same percentage, 12%, are opposed.

I believe it is the Premier's responsibility as the first minister of this province to take both of those suggestions and proposals, along with others the overwhelming majority of Ontarians believe in, to the constitutional bargaining table and the negotiating process. He indicates that he has talked to other premiers about the entrenchment of property rights. We know he has talked to other premiers about the entrenchment of the social charter. Does he not agree that it is his responsibility to take all those matters, including the entrenchment of property rights, the social charter and other things that it was indicated Ontarians are in favour of, to the negotiating process?

1450

Hon Mr Rae: I think I have a responsibility to participate and to listen carefully to what people are saying. As I said to the honourable member with respect to the poll generally, obviously it is a factor one takes into account and an important one.

The point I made last week and tried to make in two speeches I have given over the last two weeks is that the creation of a strong and effective social and economic union for Canada is a very important objective of this government. The symmetry I see is between the creation of an economic union and the recognition of the social obligations we have to one another as well. That is a very important symmetry.

I would invite the honourable member to discuss with other members of his provincial party, with colleagues across the country, premiers and others the particular items he has raised, because I think he may be surprised by the variety of opinions he hears on that subject.

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Conway: My question is also to the Premier. I think the Premier can appreciate in these very difficult recessionary times that the farmers and loggers of my part of eastern Ontario are facing some very difficult economic times, some of the worst times in living memory.

Those same farmers and loggers were told a few months ago by the new chairman of Ontario Hydro that their hydro rates would be increasing by not less than 44% over the next three years. Those farmers and loggers have also been reading in the press that the newly appointed chairman of Ontario Hydro has asked for a salary of $400,000 a year and a pension apparently of some 75% after six years.

Having regard to all the problems the Premier faces—and I am sympathetic to the problems of food banks and trying to moderate particularly the wage demands in the public and the private sectors in this province—I ask the Premier, and the Premier only, because Marc Eliesen is his friend and his appointment, to confirm that Marc Eliesen has asked for and is receiving a salary in the range of $400,000, which would represent something like a 300% increase from what he was earning just months ago as Deputy Minister of Energy.

Hon Mr Rae: The Minister of Energy is itching to answer this question.

Hon Mr Ferguson: I am glad the member raised this question, because I think it is time we clear the air. The member will know that the Liberal appointee who was the chair of Hydro did not earn $400,000 a year; that individual did not earn $450,000 a year; in fact that individual did not earn $500,000 a year. They kept from the public that their appointee earned $540,000 a year.

I can tell by the look on the Speaker's face that he must be asking himself, with two weeks' vacation and assuming a 4% vacation rate, how did this individual survive two weeks on over $20,000 for vacation pay? I have asked that myself. That is the answer to the question.

Mr Conway: I want to say that what we just saw from the Premier was what I would call guilt-edged, silver-stock-ing hypocrisy because he has the nerve to ask members of the Legislature and public servants to tighten their belts while at the same time he has appointed his alter ego, his good friend Marc Eliesen, at a salary of some $400,000. They have turned one job that Bob Franklin held at roughly $400,000 into three jobs that will be a total of some three quarters of a million dollars.

How can the Premier expect to have any credibility when those loggers and farmers I represent say to me, "How can this government and you as a member of the Legislature ask me to conserve and pay more than 45% more over three years for something as vital as my electrical bill, which is absolutely essential to my farm and my lumber business"—to name but two resource economies that are in dire straits—

The Speaker: Would the member conclude his question, please.

Mr Conway: —"when at the same time I read in the paper that Marc Eliesen, the Premier's good friend, goes from a salary of $125,000 approximately to $400,000, plus pension benefits that are absolutely unbelievable?"

Does the Premier, as the leader of this government, not feel that it is one thing to make the speech in Honey Harbour asking us to pull in our belts, but it is another thing and it is perfectly obscene to—

The Speaker: The question has been placed. Would the member take his seat, please.

Hon Mr Ferguson: What the member should know is that today, October 15, Mr Eliesen is not earning $400,000; he is earning his deputy minister's salary. All the Hydro jurisdictions across North America, the boards of directors of each utility, decide the salary of the chief executive officer.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. If a question is asked, we must assume that the person asking would like to hear a response. Has the minister concluded his remarks?

Hon Mr Ferguson: Recognizing that it is a large amount of money and that it is not only that salary but the salary of many other individuals at Hydro that ought to be examined, I will be asking the Ontario Energy Board to do a review of all the salaries of the executives at Ontario Hydro.

POLITICAL ACTIVITY BY POLICE OFFICERS

Mr Runciman: My question is for the Solicitor General. On October 3, the Solicitor General announced a new regulation that he assured us would guarantee political rights of municipal police officers and ensure fairness.

In response to that contention, I would like to raise the issue of Bill Hallett, a first-class constable in Brockville, who resides in the neighbouring rural township of Elizabethtown and for the past three years has served on the municipal council for the township. He has filed his papers to run for deputy reeve but, under the minister's new regulation, if elected, he has to give up a $46,000-a-year job for a $6,000-a-year job—not very realistic.

Can the minister advise us how his new regulation in Constable Hallett's case ensures fairness and guarantees Constable Hallett's political rights?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I cannot speak on individual cases, but I remind all members of the House that the regulation brought in under the Police Services Amendment Act, 1991, was brought in by the government with the support of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police, the Police Association of Ontario and the Police Services Board of Ontario. These political activity rights, which were approved, gave police in this province a wide variety of political rights and activities in which they might participate.

This particular amendment we brought in allows officers to be involved in political office under certain limitations. The fact that there is some particular difficulty in a given circumstance—I am not totally aware of those details except to say that I believe the legislation allows people to run, does not prohibit them, if they can meet the criteria established and approved by all stakeholders.

Mr Runciman: This minister's answers are not very satisfying to most people across the province, neither to the question he had earlier nor to this one.

This is not an isolated case. My colleague the member for Wellington today drew to my attention the case of Andy Knetsch who is a councillor in the village of Drayton. He is a member of the Waterloo region police, serves his community well and receives very little remuneration for his efforts, effectively donating his services.

1500

The policy the minister is defending here today is essentially one drafted for the big bucks environment of Metro Toronto and is yet another example of this government's virtual ignorance of small-town and rural Ontario. This regulation effectively excludes small-town and rural police officers from getting politically involved in their communities. In essence, they have taken away a fundamental right and freedom that constables Hallett and Knetsch exercised as councillors for the past three years.

In the spirit of fairness that the minister talked about in his October 3 statement, will he commit himself today to immediate cancellation of the elements of the regulation that clearly discriminate against policemen and police-women in rural Ontario?

Hon Mr Pilkey: As I indicated, these rights were totally supported by all the representative organizations. They really provided the widest range of political rights ever given in this province. Quite frankly, we did have one caveat with respect to these regulations that were passed, and that was that the police service must remain impartial and neutral. We believe, short of the collection of funds, which was one restriction, that these bills allowed everyone to run on the conditions that were outlined under the act. They prevented no one.

VISITOR

The Speaker: This might be an appropriate moment for the members of the House to welcome to our midst, seated in the members' east gallery, the Honourable Luigi Sandirocco, a member of the Italian Parliament.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE

Mr Mills: My question is for the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology. There have been a number of articles in the newspaper recently on the GATT trade talks and their possible effects on Canadian agriculture. Will producers of milk, eggs and poultry in my riding of Durham East and across the province be able to continue to operate a viable supply management system following the conclusion of the multilateral trade negotiations?

Hon Mr Philip: Ontario fully supports the balanced position Canada has put forward in the agricultural negotiations, which includes the strengthening and clarification of article XI, dealing with the rules governing the operation of supply management systems. This aim is especially important if supply management is to remain an effective part of our agricultural farming.

Mr Mills: Will provincial agriculture support programs in Ontario have to be reduced as a result of the multilateral trade negotiations?

Hon Mr Philip: We do not expect that the provincial agricultural support programs will have to be cut. Any commitments made by the federal government resulting from an agricultural agreement will apply only to the federal programs and expenditures, and my colleague the Minister of Agriculture of Food has asked that consultations be initiated on how Canada's reduction commitments can be translated into cuts to specific programs. We are concerned that the federal government not use these trade talks as an excuse to cut its program spending, and we are certainly expressing that concern to the federal government.

USE OF COURIER SERVICES

Mr Scott: The Premier is always complaining that he cannot find any money for food banks. I want to make a suggestion to his government.

On October 10, I received a copy of a letter from the Minister of Citizenship to a group in my constituency, announcing a grant. The letter was nothing more than a copy of the original announcement. It was not to me, it was not personal and it was not urgent. Indeed, it arrived some 10 days after its date. The interesting thing about the letter is that thousands of these go out every year, and apparently the minister has made a decision not to use the government mail or Canada Post, at 39 cents a letter, but instead to use a private direct courier, who came to my office in this building, which costs between $5 and $7 a pop, if honourable members want to know.

It seems to me that a government that is mewing all the time about its expenses and that does not have any money for food banks would not want to extend this wasteful practice. I want to ask the Minister of Government Services if he has given a directive to any ministers on the use of cabinet couriers, and in particular whether he condones the practice of the Minister of Citizenship in delivering this form letter by courier to me.

Hon F. Wilson: I will take appropriate action on this matter.

Mr Scott: As the question has not been answered, I simply draw to the minister's attention—he must be aware of this; he has been a minister, unlike some of his colleagues, for several months now—that the extent to which courier service is being used by this government is absolutely unbelievable.

The Ministry of Correctional Services increased by almost $500,000 the expenditure on couriers this year over last year. I am ashamed to say the Ministry of the Attorney General is up 44% and the Ministry of the Environment, no doubt sending missives by courier that projects will be exempted from assessment, is up 51%. Members will be interested to hear that this is not peanuts. One courier firm alone, Purolator, billed the government last year for almost $4 million.

Can the minister come clean, admit he is in charge of this use of courier services, which is the responsibility of Government Services, and tell this House first of all what he estimates the government will spend this year on private courier services and how he is going to explain the really extraordinary increases, between 25% and 40%, that have occurred over the last 12 months?

Hon F. Wilson: This use of private couriers and courier services stretches back to a former regime and is under review at this time. I will get back to the member with the appropriate answer.

NIAGARA ESCARPMENT

Mr B. Murdoch: I have a question to the Minister of the Environment. She was quoted in last week's Kitchener-Waterloo Record as saying that if she was aware that the Niagara Escarpment Commission members, with whom she met in June, were formulating their recommendations on the five-year plan, she was not conscious of it. Yet she stated that she asked for a social evening to avoid discussion of the plan. She is sending out mixed signals. Which way does she want to have it? Is she in charge or is she not?

Hon Mrs Grier: I am in charge.

In response to that, I think what the member is trying to elicit is the position I have taken on the review of the Niagara Escarpment plan. That is a five-year review provided for in the legislation, and it is not appropriate, nor have I taken any position or any part in the discussions of that review. When the review is completed, it will be submitted to hearing officers. Those hearing officers are currently having hearings and then the report will be submitted to me.

Mr B. Murdoch: The minister claims to be impartial in this issue. She claims in the media that she is only one in 1,000, but she is the minister; she is the one who will make the decision. To avoid any conflict of interest, other ministers have removed themselves from the issue. As I see it, she has three options with this plan: (1) she could sell her property on the Niagara Escarpment, (2) she could move the Niagara Escarpment plan to the Minister of Municipal Affairs where it should be, (3) she can resign as the Minister of the Environment. Which will it be?

Hon Mrs Grier: The question was relating to the review of the Niagara Escarpment plan, and the member is incorrect. The decision at the end of that process will not be made by me; it will be made by cabinet.

1510

BORDER COMMUNITIES ASSISTANCE FUND

Ms Harrington: My question is to the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology. We all know cross-border shopping is a significant drain on the economy of Ontario, and in fact of Niagara Falls. Agreements were reached last July to try to alleviate this problem—

Interjections.

The Speaker: I would like to avoid members having to courier their questions. I would like to be able to hear the questions.

Ms Harrington: Thank you, Mr Speaker. Agreements were reached last July to try and alleviate this problem, in conjunction with the municipalities and with local business groups, such as the chambers of commerce. The Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology announced in September a procedure for communities to access some provincial funds, and for Niagara Falls, $50,000 was earmarked. This past weekend I had people in my riding come to me with different proposals to access these funds. Can the minister please tell this House what the funding is for and to whom people should be going with their proposals?

Hon Mr Philip: The border community assistance fund has been established to finance local community initiatives, such as service excellence programs, community awareness campaigns and campaigns targeted at specific consumers and local retail marketing groups. I can tell the member that communities must form a committee consisting of representatives from local government, business, labour council and consumer groups, and after that, then locally planned proposals will be formed and funding will be forthcoming.

Ms Harrington: Who will actually be making the decisions on this funding?

Hon Mr Philip: Once the community's committee has been formed, it will be making the proposals. These proposals will be proposed by the local community, and those decisions will be made at that time.

PAY EQUITY

Ms Poole: My question is for the Minister of Labour. On December 18, 1990, the minister announced in this very House that he planned to extend the benefits of Ontario's pay equity legislation to a further 420,000 women, such as child care workers, who were in predominantly female establishments. The minister said he was going to introduce this legislation in the spring session and was going to add two new methods for making job comparisons: the proportional value method and also the proxy method.

The minister did not introduce the legislation as promised. Instead, it was a stall job and all we saw in February was another discussion paper.

In the past, the NDP was very clear about its commitment to building reforms to assist women such as underpaid child care workers, but this minister continues to stall. We are now in mid-October, with no legislation in sight. Why does this minister not just admit that with the loss of the member for Scarborough West, the member for St Andrew-St Patrick and the demotion of the member for Sudbury East, the NDP's much-vaunted women's caucus has collapsed? Why does he not just admit that without them there to prod him, this minister is not going to produce what he promised on pay equity?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I want to assure the member that the women's caucus in this party of ours has not collapsed and that we will have legislation there.

Ms Poole: Somehow the minister's answer gives me absolutely no reassurance. He says we are going to have pay equity. When are we going to have the extension of pay equity that he promised? Is it this year? Is it next year? Three, four, five years? Is it going to be during their term at all?

The irony is that the Treasurer released a statement just a few weeks ago in which he said very proudly that they were going to save $50 million as a result of delay in passing legislation on proportional value pay equity. I want the minister to confirm for us in this House today: Is the government still committed to passing legislation relating to proportional value and to the proxy method, and if so, can he tell us what is his new deadline for passing this legislation?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: We are committed to passing the legislation for pay equity when we have the right approach to it, and that is what we are looking at right now.

TECHNOLOGICAL TRAINING

Mrs Cunningham: My question is for the new Minister of Education. I congratulate the minister and advise him that I am looking forward to working with him as I did the previous minister, my colleague the member for London Centre.

Two weeks ago I met with Mr Kevin McKittrick, the chairperson of the London Industrial Training Board, many members of that board and Mr John Jarrel, vice-president of General Motors. They were concerned, as we all are, that our education system is not producing the number of technically trained workers that Ontario industry requires now and will require in the future.

The minister is aware that 27% to 30% of our young people drop out of secondary school. They tell us they do not feel the curriculum is relevant. As the new Minister of Education, working with his colleague the Minister of Skills Development, who is also the the Minister of Colleges and Universities, will he quickly develop a long-term strategy to train our young people in both technical education and apprenticeship school programs in secondary schools in Ontario?

Hon Mr Silipo: I thank the member opposite for her good wishes and also look forward to working with her. I followed with some interest, as she can well imagine, the questions she put to my predecessor over the last number of months on various issues related to education. Members will appreciate the fact that I obviously have not had an opportunity to get very much into any of the issues that will concern me as Minister of Education, but let me say equally strongly that the issues the member has raised—dropouts and the relevancy of the curriculum to our young people—are things that I know a little bit about and that concern me a great deal.

I certainly hope to be a minister who becomes very active in those areas and in the other areas the member mentioned, particularly with respect to skills training. There is a great deal we need to do, and can indeed do, to make sure our school system does prepare our young people for the myriad challenges they will face in the world. There is a great deal that is already under way, a lot of good things that are happening, but there is certainly a lot of room for us to improve. I look forward to being, I hope, a positively aggressive minister in that area.

Mrs Cunningham: Positive aggressiveness is what is really needed in this province, especially when it comes to training young people. Over the last decade we have seen little movement on the part of co-operative education programs. They have increased by 33%, but that is not enough. The number of students is irrelevant. We have been taking a look at SWAP; that is, the school-workplace apprenticeship program. As I take a look at the numbers, even in the board the minister represented, he will know we have something like 42 students involved in the Toronto public and separate school boards, with one registered apprentice. We are making no headway. It has been going on for 10 years.

I would like this minister to stand today and say that, at least for him, it will not sit on the back burner for the next decade but will be up there as a priority for education of young people, along with training programs, apprenticeship programs and our competitiveness in the global marketplace for Ontario now, for this government now.

Mr Eves: Tony will have this solved by next week.

Hon Mr Silipo: I do not think I will have this resolved by next week, as one of the members opposite indicated, but I will try. Let me make this as clear as I can: I remember in one of my previous incarnations, as a trustee on the Toronto Board of Education, advocating very strongly for the action a previous minister from the Conservative Party was not taking in this area of co-operative education. I do not need to be convinced of the merits of the argument that was made.

Mrs Cunningham: What about the Liberals?

Hon Mr Silipo: Yes, I did not see as much action under the Liberal government. The member is quite right.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Silipo: This is an issue that concerns us all. It is an issue that my predecessor, the member for London Centre, was also quite interested in. It is something I am very interested in and I will do my utmost to ensure that it becomes and continues to be a priority for this government.

1520

CONSERVATION

Mr Johnson: My question is for the Minister of Natural Resources. I am aware that there has been an ongoing review of the conservation authorities program over the last year. One of the issues scheduled to be discussed was provincial appointments. I recall that last year a number of these appointments were extended for one year while the liaison committee reviewed the process for making appointments. What will be the process for this year?

Hon Mr Wildman: Two weeks ago I met with the liaison committee to finalize the consensus we had reached on how appointments to conservation authorities should be made. The member will be pleased to know we have agreed to proceed with the appointments for next year. In September, advertisements were placed in newspapers across the province inviting residents of the watershed for a particular conservation authority to apply and indicate their interest in being a provincial appointee to the conservation authority. We have had an excellent response from interested individuals and I will be happy to report further when we are able to make the appointments, before January.

Mr Johnson: I assure the minister there are many interested parties in my constituency who would like to sit on conservation authorities. I will encourage them to get involved.

My supplementary follows up on another item the liaison committee has been looking at, the all-important issue of funding. Throughout the 1980s, the ministry, municipalities and authorities have struggled through numerous reviews and yet the issue of funding is still outstanding. The constituents in my riding of Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings would like to know whether there has been any progress on this front.

Hon Mr Wildman: The member is quite correct in pointing out that over the last few years there have been a number of reviews and studies done on the conservation authorities program and the funding and the mandate for the conservation authorities. There was the Bugar report and then the Ballinger report. They led to a lot of concern and problems. Conservation authorities did not really agree with some of the proposals made.

The liaison committee has been working very diligently with the Association of Conservation Authorities of Ontario and the Association of Municipalities of Ontario, along with the ministry. We have not quite finalized the arrangements with regard to funding, but we are very close. We have made very good progress. At the meeting two weeks ago we agreed to meet again on October 23 to consult and review the ideas and options put forward. I look forward to a swift completion of the agreement and to finalizing the agreement so that we will know exactly what the funding will be in order to ensure that the conservation authorities will be able to meet their mandate. I will be happy to report to the House when we make progress.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Mr McClelland: I think it appropriate that my question go to the Minister of the Environment. I think the Minister of Natural Resources has learned from the former Minister of the Environment about running down the clock.

The Minister of the Environment will know about recent press reports that indicate there has been illegal dumping on the Six Nations reserve near Brantford. In my view and in the view of many, that one incident is merely an indication of what is happening right across the province. An official in the ministry's Toronto west district said: "There's a tremendous amount of illegal dumping going on and there's going to be a lot more. The amount keeps growing."

The minister has known about this problem for several months. She knows there is a potential health risk, particularly when biomedical waste is involved. What is the minister doing to end that problem and deal with that problem?

Also, the minister will be aware there is a tremendous amount of dumping outside the province. She knows it has been going on for some time. Up to 500,000 tons of waste are being dumped stateside. It is disturbing to realize that the minister has allowed a method of diversion to contribute to her reduction. The gap between the minister's rhetoric and what is taking place really astounds me, particularly given the strong position she took last April, demanding that the regions within the GTA dispose of their waste within their own boundaries.

What is the minister doing with respect to existing landfill sites that are not being used appropriately? Illegal dumping is taking place. There are illegal dumps. In addition to that, the minister knows a tremendous volume of waste is being dumped in the United States. How is the minister going to address that?

Hon Mrs Grier: I think the question is, what am I doing about illegal dumping? I assure the member I am very concerned about that. I agree with him that there has been a growth in illegal dumping. It has occurred because of changes in tipping fees that have taken place, without any commensurate increase in the ability of people to find sources that can reuse the material being dumped in landfill sites.

What we have done, and what I am very proud we have been able to do, is begin to put in place an integrated waste management system in this province, a system that relies on reduction and reuse and that puts in place the infrastructure where we can begin to reuse those materials that have hitherto been considered as waste, as garbage to be landfilled.

With respect to specific incidents—the member refers to an unfortunate one recently on the Six Nations reserve—my investigations and enforcement branch is attempting to find whatever evidence there is as to the source of that material. We will investigate and take whatever action we can to make sure those particular incidents do not recur.

NEWSPAPER REPORT

Mr White: Mr Speaker, I rise on a point of personal privilege. There has been a report recently in a Toronto tabloid alleging that I have called for air-conditioning in this building. That is not at all true. The building of course falls under your jurisdiction.

The report further goes on to indicate that an air-conditioner fell out of a press office on the fourth floor on to my car. I and many members of the government have suffered gratuitous attacks from the press. This is not one of them. My car, although 12 years old and much abused, was not abused by an air-conditioner. The reporter involved states that a maintenance worker lost his grip. The reporter involved obviously lost his grip, because he is reporting something which has no basis whatsoever in fact. My car, though abused, was not abused by that air-conditioner.

The Speaker: I am not sure who is losing his grip. Thank you. I appreciate the point of privilege raised.

PETITIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr J. Wilson: It is a privilege to present a petition to the Legislature of Ontario that reads as follows:

"Whereas the Queen of Canada has long been a symbol of national unity for Canadians from all walks of life and from all ethnic backgrounds;

"Whereas the people of Canada are currently facing a constitutional crisis which could potentially result in the breakup of the federation and are in need of unifying symbols,

"We, the undersigned, respectfully petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to restore the oath to the Queen for Ontario's police officers."

This petition is signed by a number of good residents of Loretto, Tottenham and the township of Adjala and my grandmother, Mrs Mary Wilson. I will continue to bring this petition to the Legislature until this government changes its mind on this issue.

Mr Beer: I have a petition from the Niagara South Young Liberals Club. It reads as follows:

"To the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas Her Majesty the Queen, at her coronation in 1953, took a personal oath to the people of Canada, and Canadians have always reciprocated with oaths of allegiance and service to the person of the sovereign;

"Whereas it is our right and duty to take oaths of allegiance in service in such form;

"Whereas Ontario Regulation 144/91 made under the Police Services Act, 1990, denies Ontarians this right,

"We, the undersigned residents of Ontario, loyal to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to resolve that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor in Council be requested to revoke Ontario Regulation 144/91 and restore the traditional oath of service to Her Majesty for police personnel in Ontario."

This is signed by some 100 members of the Niagara South Young Liberals Club. I affix my signature thereto.

TOBACCO TAXES

Mr Carr: I have a petition to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas the present high levels of taxes on tobacco products are excessive and contrary to the interests of Ontario's two million smokers; and

"Whereas high tobacco taxes are contributing to retail theft and to our province's cross-border shopping crisis; and

"Whereas these punitive taxes and resulting lost sales are contributing to inflation as well as costing jobs in Ontario; and

"Whereas high cigarette taxes are regressive and unfair to low- and modest-income citizens,

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That Ontario's tobacco taxes should not be increased in 1991, and further, that these taxes should be repealed and a new lower and fairer tax be introduced."

1530

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mrs McLeod: I have a petition signed by a number of residents of Ontario:

"To the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas Her Majesty the Queen, at her coronation in 1953, took a personal oath to the people of Canada, and Canadians have always reciprocated with oaths of allegiance and service to the person of the sovereign; and

"Whereas it is our right and duty to take oaths of allegiance and service in such form; and

"Whereas Ontario regulation 144/91, made under the Police Services Act, 1990, denies Ontarians this right,

"We, the undersigned residents of Ontario, loyal to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to resolve that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor in Council be requested to revoke Ontario regulation 144/91 and restore the traditional oath of service to Her Majesty for police personnel in Ontario."

TOBACCO TAXES

Mrs Cunningham: I have a petition that is signed by 1,247 people from across Ontario which reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"Whereas the present high levels of taxes on tobacco products are excessive and contrary to the interests of Ontario's two million smokers; and

"Whereas high tobacco taxes are contributing to retail theft and to our province's cross-border shopping crisis; and

"Whereas these punitive taxes and resulting lost sales are contributing to inflation as well as costing jobs in Ontario; and

"Whereas high cigarette taxes are regressive and unfair to low and modest-income citizens,

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That Ontario's tobacco taxes should not be increased in 1991, and further, that these taxes should be repealed and a new lower and fairer tax be introduced."

I have signed my name to this petition.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

CITY OF TORONTO ACT, 1991

Mr Marchese moved first reading of Bill Pr80, An Act respecting the City of Toronto.

Motion agreed to.

CITY OF TORONTO ACT, 1991

Mr Marchese moved first reading of Bill Pr86, An Act respecting the City of Toronto.

Motion agreed to.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

House in committee of the whole.

La Chambre en comité plénier.

EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS AMENDMENT ACT
(EMPLOYEE WAGE PROTECTION PROGRAM), 1991

LOI DE 1991

MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LES NORMES D'EMPLOI
(PROGRAMME DE PROTECTION
DES SALAIRES DES EMPLOYÉS)

Resuming consideration of Bill 70, An Act to amend the Employment Standards Act to provide for an Employee Wage Protection Program and to make certain other amendments.

Suite du débat ajourné sur le projet de loi 70, Loi portant modification de la Loi sur les normes d'emploi par création d'un Programme de protection des salaires des employés et par adoption de certaines autres modifications.

The Chair: Pursuant to the order of the committee of the whole House on Thursday, October 10, I call in the members for the deferred divisions on Bill 70. I remind members that this is a 10-minute bell.

1545

The committee divided on sections 1 to 4, inclusive, which were agreed to on the following vote:

Les articles 1 à 4, inclusivement, mis aux voix, sont adoptés :

Ayes/pour 85; nays/contre 16.

Sections 1 to 4, inclusive, agreed to.

The committee divided on Mrs Witmer's first amendment to section 5, which was negatived on the same vote reversed.

The committee divided on Mr Offer's first amendment to section 5, which was negatived on the following vote:

Ayes 35; nays 66.

The committee divided on Mrs Witmer's second amendment to section 5, which was negatived on the following vote:

Ayes 16; nays 85.

The committee divided on Mr Offer's second amendment to section 5, which was negatived on the following vote:

Ayes 35; nays 66.

The committee divided on Mrs Witmer's third amendment to section 5, which was negatived on the following vote:

Ayes 16; nays 85.

The committee divided on whether section 5 should stand as part of the bill, which was agreed to on the following vote:

La motion pour l'adoption de l'article 5, mise aux voix, est adoptée.

Ayes/pour 85; nays/contre 16.

Section 5 agreed to.

L'article 5 est adopté.

The committee divided on Mr Offer's first amendment to section 6, which was negated on the following vote:

Ayes 35; nays 66.

The committee divided on Mr Offer's second amendment to section 6, which was negated on the same vote.

The committee divided on Mr Offer's third amendment to section 6, which was negated on the same vote.

The House divided on whether section 6 should stand as part of the bill, which was agreed to on the following vote:

Ayes 85; nays 16.

Section 6 agreed to.

L'article 6 est adopté.

Sections 7 to 15, inclusive, agreed to.

Les articles 7 à 15, inclusivement, sont adoptés.

The House divided on Mr Offer's amendment to section 16, which was negated on the following vote:

Ayes 35; nays 66.

The House divided on whether section 16 should stand as part of the bill, which was agreed to on the following vote:

La motion pour l'adoption de l'article 16 est adoptée.

Ayes/pour 85; nays/contre 16.

Section 16 agreed to.

L'article 16 est adopté.

The House divided on Mr Sterling's amendment to section 17, which was negated on the following vote:

Ayes 16; nays 85.

The House divided on whether section 17 should stand as part of the bill, which was agreed to on the same vote reversed.

La motion pour l'adoption de l'article 17 est adoptée.

Section 17 agreed to.

L'article 17 est adopté.

The committee divided on Mr Arnott's amendment to add section 17a, which was negated on the following vote:

La motion pour l'adoption de l'article 17a est rejetée.

Ayes/pour 16; nays/contre 85.

The committee divided on whether the bill should be reported to the House, which was agreed to on the same vote reversed.

Bill ordered to be reported.

Le projet de loi devra fait l'objet d'un rapport.

On motion by Mr Cooke, the committee of the whole House reported one bill without amendment.

À la suite d'une motion présentée par M. Cooke, le comité plénier de la Chambre fait rapport d'un projet de loi sans amendement.

EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS AMENDMENT ACT
(EMPLOYEE WAGE PROTECTION PROGRAM), 1991

LOI DE 1991

MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LES NORMES D'EMPLOI
PROGRAMME DE PROTECTION
DES SALAIRES DES EMPLOYÉS)

Mr Mackenzie moved third reading of Bill 70, An Act to amend the Employment Standards Act to provide for an Employee Wage Protection Program and to make certain other amendments.

M. Mackenzie propose la troisième lecture du projet de loi 70, Loi portant modification de la Loi sur les normes d'emploi par création d'un Programme de protection des salaires des employés et par adoption de certaines autres modifications.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: The detailed analysis of Bill 70 by this House sitting as the committee of the whole is now completed. When it is passed, Bill 70 will establish the employee wage protection program. I can tell members I am proud to have been the Minister of Labour who has introduced and shepherded Bill 70 through the House and through the standing committee on resources development, where the parliamentary assistant played the major role.

The employee wage protection program, which has received great praise from all corners, is designed to protect workers by helping them recover unpaid wages. Current bankruptcy laws in Canada consign workers to the level of unsecured creditors, which means they are usually among the last in line to collect when their employer is bankrupt or insolvent. Bill 70 has been designed to address this unfairness. Once it is in operation, the employee wage protection program will provide a statutory mechanism to allow workers to collect money they have worked for in good faith and are unable to recover through other means.

There are many workers in Ontario who have become victims of their employers' failure to pay, mostly due to the effects of the current recession. Last October the Premier announced the government's intention to establish the employee wage protection program. Since then the employment standards branch of my ministry has received more than 17,000 claims for compensation for wages owing. These 17,000 people are relying on us to help them recover the money that is rightfully theirs. They must rely on us because they have no other alternative.

1600

A few weeks ago the standing committee on resources development reported back to the House on its hearings into Bill 70. The report included amendments that the government had put forward to address some concerns voiced by business and the not-for-profit sector about the liability provisions for directors and officers.

We have amendments to enhance the guarantees of a more efficient appeals process. While we want to be sure that the program pays out money only in cases where there are valid entitlements, we do not wish to tie up employers, directors or employees in lengthy and protracted appeals procedures.

I would like to assure the members of this House that we are actively working with our federal counterparts to harmonize our program with the federal proposal once its long-awaited Bankruptcy Act amendments are passed. Workers who need this assistance will be able to access it easily without undue complications.

We can now proceed with third reading and proclamation, and once the employee wage protection program is operational, workers will have the security of knowing that the money they earn will not be lost due to circumstances beyond their control. I want to thank the members very much for the assistance to individuals.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Farnan): Are there any comments or questions on the minister's remarks?

Mr Sterling: I only have two minutes but I want to participate in the third reading debate. I want to ask the minister if he would confirm the calculations I have now made of the amount he will be transferring to the federal government as a result of this legislation.

I understand from what his officials have said and what he has said in the House that the average claim—I wish he would pay attention, because I am asking him a question—is $4,200, that the number of claims is 18,000 to date, that the number of claims due to bankruptcy and receivership is 66%, as noted by one of his officials in committee, that the percentage of claims that are termination and severance pay is about 90%, as estimated by him. That adds up to $75,600,000.

When we calculate 90% of the $75 million, it equals $68 million; 66% of the $68 million equals $45 million; the UI system pays 60% of an employee's wage and when this is factored in the net amount the provincial government will be transferring to the federal government as a result of Bill 70 will be $27 million because of the clawback provisions of our UI system.

Would the minister confirm that this figure of the amount of money his government will be transferring to the federal government as a result of Bill 70 is about accurate under the present laws of our country and our province?

Mr Bradley: I wanted to have the opportunity to indicate to the minister, hearing his statement on third reading, that this bill has gone through quite a ride over the past several months.

When the legislation was first introduced, it provoked among the population of Ontario, particularly those who were involved in businesses of any kind, a good deal of opposition. I think a consensus of the people of Ontario would be that it was a valid concern that was being expressed by many people who were going to be placed in a very vulnerable position, that in fact the original bill would have had the effect of driving business out of Ontario and discouraging new people from putting new investment into our province.

The minister will face the charge by some who are on the other side of this issue that he is backsliding. He will be said to be in full retreat. He will be accused of having capitulated to the major business and commercial and corporate interests of Ontario by many who have been his strongest supporters.

But the recognition, obviously, of the government is that we must have a favourable climate for business in Ontario. So the retreat in which the government has been involved in this bill is one, in my view, that can be justified. As I say, the minister will have a difficult time because he has a long tradition in the trade union movement. Perhaps even some of his caucus will have been concerned about this particular retreat on the part of the government, this backsliding, as some might say.

I think it is a situation that has resulted in a better bill coming before the House, a bill that has a much broader base of support in this province than the one originally brought forward. That of course is the way the Legislature and the legislative process should work.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: There is no clawback as such, but if the federal legislation, as we now understand it, makes them secured creditors, then they would have no claim on our money at all and there would be no payback to the federal government. If it is UIC that we are concerned about, there could be a delay before the money is paid out if they have collected severance pay and termination pay.

Mr Offer: I am pleased to rise and participate in this third-reading debate. I know there is some agreement as to when a vote is to take place, but I believe that as we are here today, there are some things that must be said.

The first thing that must be said is that this is a bill that started off, as its principle, with the protection of people who are the victims of the recession. As a result of the severe economic downturn, of the number of bankruptcies, insolvencies and the number of places that closed their doors, people who had worked all their lives, who had never, ever been out of a job, had never missed a paycheque, now found themselves without work and without any real opportunity. This bill had as its genesis the stated desire to meet those needs.

This bill was announced to be forthcoming last October. This bill was not forthcoming in October or November or December or January or February or March. The government did not bring this bill forward until the last session. Though we had second-reading debate in the last session, we were only able to deal with the bill through the public hearing process and through clause-by-clause deliberation in this session and in the last recess.

This is in many ways the very earliest opportunity we had to deal with some of our concerns, some of our attempts to make this a better bill, a more balanced bill, a bill that not only met needs of those people who were the victims of the recession, but the needs and the concerns of many people who came before our committee process.

It is, at the outset, somewhat disappointing for me to have seen the government, in its participation in the process, not accept an amendment by either of the opposition parties, amendments that I believe were well-thought-out, that were balanced—I speak from our caucus's point of view—and that did not erode the rights and privileges of those who were the victims of the recession.

To put the bill in some context, we have to recognize that the bill was first announced, in terms of its intention, at the very same time the government announced it was going to allow Varity to leave this province, that it was going to allow Varity to move down the highway to Buffalo and allow a lower employment level.

Those who are aware of the transaction between the government of the province and Varity recognize that there were guaranteed employment levels in the understanding. In fact, the government not only allowed Varity to leave the province, but allowed those particular employment levels, in the depths of the recession, to be reduced. It was at that point in time that the government announced it would be bringing forward a bill to deal with those people who were the victims of the recession.

1610

We waited for this piece of legislation while the recession raged in Ontario, while bankruptcies were at an all-time high. As we stand here today, almost 300,000 jobs have been lost in this province. The jobs lost are not of a cyclical nature where people who are laid off are going to be recalled. Over half of those jobs that have been lost have disappeared, and those people who maybe in their lives were never without work now have a more difficult time finding work.

We have all recognized the need to make the province more competitive, to send out a positive message to business, to send out a message to our small business person that this is a place where he can open up, where he can create wealth, where he can expand and create jobs. There were opportunities as we went through the deliberations in this bill to deal with those types of concerns, to deal with the concerns of those people who came before the committee to talk about how we could send out a more positive message to the business community.

We have to recognize that when the bill was first introduced major concerns were voiced, concerns that the bill in its first incarnation carried the liability for both directors and officers of corporations, and that personal liability to those individuals was not limited to wages and vacation pay but also to severance and termination, and thirdly that there was in fact a non-exclusion; in other words, non-profit corporations and charitable corporations were included. There was great and grave concern about what this meant to those people, to those officers, to those directors, to those non-profit, charitable organizations, volunteer associations across the province, all of which are vibrant and running within our own constituencies.

We brought forward those concerns in the second-reading debate. We indicated, because of the concerns, because of the widespread nature of the concerns, because of what the impact of this bill meant, that we could not support this on second reading, that we needed those changes, at the very least, to be made. While we were in committee, the government moved amendments which met some of those concerns. However, there are still concerns that were untouched, concerns which we heard during the committee deliberations. Before I move to those concerns, I want to touch for a moment on the committee hearings.

We were dealing with an important piece of legislation and we were dealing with a piece of legislation at a very important and vulnerable point in time. We in our caucus felt that it was absolutely necessary that there be extensive hearings on this particular piece of legislation. What more important legislation can there be than a bill which has as its genesis the recession and dealing with it during the recession? We felt that it was necessary to hear from as many people as possible both as to the pros and cons of the legislation and indeed what it meant to them, the impact it had upon them. We felt that it was not enough to meet within the committee rooms in this Legislature but that it was absolutely imperative that we hear from people in other areas of this province, in the Windsors, the Ottawas, northern Ontario, the peninsula. We had to meet and listen to what this bill meant to them and what its impact would be on them.

I am sure the minister and the parliamentary assistant have heard me say this before, but it was very disappointing to our caucus when that vote came before the committee. The members of the NDP and, I dare say, the members of the Conservative caucus voted against travelling, against our moving out from this Legislature to areas of the province which had been so badly hit by the recession, devastated in many regions, all of which wanted to have some input and some part of this process to share with us what it meant to them. That is something this bill is going to have to carry with it.

This bill is going to have to carry with it the fact that it did not have the extensive consultation our caucus wanted. It did not have the opportunity to go out to other areas of the province. The shameful, sad part of it is that the opportunity was there. If only the members of the government party, the NDP, had voted in favour of travelling, then we would have done so. We would have been able to visit other areas of the province and talk about some of the aspects of the bill that other people felt were important. That is one of the roles and responsibilities we have as legislators. In fact, the problem with this bill will always be that it was stopped, curtailed.

I spoke about some of the initial concerns that were heard when the bill was introduced last spring. By no stretch of the imagination were those the only concerns people had. There were concerns raised over the fact that the monetary amount of this legislation could be changed by regulation as opposed to legislation. I think it is important for us, as we talk about this bill in third reading, to revisit once more some of those concerns because, as was made known not only during the committee but certainly during the committee of the whole discussion, we were talking not only about this bill but about about what our roles and responsibilities are as legislators. In many ways we were talking about the heart and soul of the legislation.

We are talking about the dollar amount for which an employee might be able to access a fund. We felt very strongly, as did the third party, that if there is to be any change to that amount—and in the words of the legislation, the change can only be upwards; it can never be down, it can never be reduced. The words of the legislation clearly indicate that any increase to the amount of $5,000 may be done by regulation, and we feel it is our right, our duty and our responsibility to discuss that through the legislative process.

If it is done through regulation, we as members of the Legislature will not have that opportunity. We will not be able to talk to all members of this Legislature about the impact of any change, what it means to us in our riding, what it means to our business communities, our chambers of commerce, our boards of trade and people who have come into our constituency offices or Queen's Park offices and spoken to us about any particular impact of change.

When things are done by regulation, when the heart and soul of a piece of legislation is changed by regulation, we are really sending out a very negative message. We are really sending out a message that no matter what the government says about consultation and its new climate of co-operation, those are very much empty words. They are words on a piece of paper. The government had a real opportunity to put some substance behind those statements.

Probably every member on the government side has made some statement about the need for small business and job creation in his or her constituency and what it means to this province. Probably every member of the government has spoken about a new climate of co-operation, co-ordination and consultation at one time or another. They are always going to have to remember one thing: When they had the opportunity to stand up and talk about some substance being behind those statements they have already made, they did not do so. It was just an hour ago that they voted against that. That is something they are going to have to carry with them, not only as it affects this bill but as it affects all their statements and speeches about how important it is to consult, because when they had that opportunity they voted against it. They voted against debate on any change to this bill in this Legislature.

Members opposite voted against committees travelling to different parts of the province to listen to the impact of any change and against some of the things for which we were elected.

1620

I am always going to remember that when the members opposite had an opportunity to stand in their places, as they did today, to make that part of the law, they said no to that, no to debate, no to the committee room hearings and no to travelling across the province. I tell the members opposite right now that I shall be reminding them about this as we proceed, because words on a piece of paper at a time such as we are going through now are very empty indeed. The people of this province and business communities of this province are certainly looking for an awful lot more. We were left with that, and the members opposite voting against that amendment really sent out a very bad message about what this government intends to do in terms of fostering a new climate of co-operation.

There were other concerns. Another concern we discussed was that there was an opportunity, again through amendment, to give a small break, as it were, to the small business community. Because of the amendments, we know that the bill really is in two parts. First is eligibility, who is eligible and when they are eligible, and second is the liability of directors. In fact, because of the amendments that were made, no new rights were created. All this bill created was, first, the fund and, second, an enforcement mechanism against directors.

Certainly we are cognizant of that. We recognized that, but we also recognized that through our committee hearings, no matter how shortened they were, there was an opportunity to reach out and give small businesses an opportunity to be exempt from the enforcement mechanism. We spoke long and hard about that particular amendment because of the fact that we recognized it was not going to erode or take away from the rights of those employees who were the victims of the recession.

We spoke at length about being in favour of the principle of the legislation. These are earned benefits. Under the Employment Standards Act wages, vacation pay, termination and severance are earned benefits which, I remind the government side, previous governments have enhanced. We spoke in favour of enhancing those particular benefits. In fact, we passed into legislation those enhanced benefits. On principle, we were very much in favour of protecting that which has been earned. But we also recognize that because of the way the bill reads, there was nothing new created, save as an enforcement mechanism.

We felt there was an opportunity where we could save the small business community from that enforcement mechanism, save it the cost of acquiring insurance and save it the excess costs, through premiums, of carrying on business. It would in no way erode, and we have in no way eroded, the rights of those people who fell within the legislation.

It is one of those curious things. As we went through our deliberations, I wondered why the government would not see the balance in the amendment. I speak not because it was an amendment put forward by our party; that is not the point. The point is that it was an amendment which did not erode the rights of the worker. It also would not have cost the taxpayers any dollars. We received information during our deliberations from ministry officials, from the parliamentary assistant and from the minister as to the real likelihood of collecting from the directors of small business, that it was very minimal indeed. Why not save them the cost of having to acquire insurance and having to pay a premium on that insurance each year?

I was always curious to hear some of the reasons for voting against it. I know there will be the opportunity for members of the government side to respond, but I never heard a single reason. The only thing ever said was, "That's the way the bill is, so that's the way the bill is and that's the way the bill's going to be." The fact of the matter is that there was a tremendous opportunity to make it a more balanced, even bill which met the needs of those people who were the victims of the recession, and an opportunity at a very crucial period in our time to send out a very positive message to the business community that here is a government that listens, that this is a place where you can create jobs and wealth and that there is an opportunity for consultation and a new climate of co-operation. That, unfortunately, was not forthcoming.

We were left in many ways on the horns of a dilemma. After those amendments we had a bill, the principle of which we very much agreed with. We recognized the many thousands of people who have been the victims of the recession. I know in earlier comments it was said that there were something in the area of 18,000 or 19,000 people who might be immediately eligible for this fund. I see the minister is here. He will recall that he sent to me a letter saying it is the government's estimation that in the first 18 months of this bill, 55,000 people would be eligible.

We are not talking about a small group of people; we are talking about a large group of people, a lot of people who were never without a job, as I indicated earlier. We know what the recession meant to them and their families and we know there are benefits under this bill that are going to be secured to them. We have had that as a principle which we certainly agreed with. Surely we agreed with it after the amendments.

On the other hand, we had concerns about the real opportunity the government had to send out a message that it was listening to the business community and the fact that it had seen those amendments, that it had listened during the committee process, as shortened and narrow as it was in terms of our inability to travel, and that it was ready to respond. Unfortunately the government did not see fit to do so.

This bill certainly has addressed some of the major concerns we had at its outset. It certainly has addressed some of the reasons for which we voted against it on second reading. Those reasons have been addressed by amendment. But members should make no mistake about it—there are still concerns with the bill. There are concerns dealing with the question of changes by regulation as opposed to legislation, in terms of sending out a positive message to our business community. Those concerns were not really addressed by the government.

At the end of the day a decision is required. We have put forward those particular amendments, we have argued those amendments and we think about the many thousands of people who, through no fault of their own, are out thousands of dollars. This bill will be able to address some of those concerns. Many thousands of workers will be able to take the benefit of this particular fund.

There are issues which still remain unresolved. We are going to be keeping a vigilant eye on the minister. We are going to be watching in terms of what the harmonization is between this bill and the federal bill when it has been passed.

1630

The minister will recognize that there are many people who spoke, first, about the need for harmonization, and second, about what that meant to them. We will be watching very carefully to make certain the Minister of Labour has heeded some of those concerns. We are going to be watching very closely to make certain this bill does not result in an employers' tax. I think the minister is well aware, and the parliamentary assistant too is well aware, as well as all members on the government side, that a concern was raised in almost every presentation that this bill should not, in the end result, have an employers' tax added to it.

I know the minister heard that message very clearly. In fact, if there was a single message that was uniform throughout our hearings, it was that. We posed that question many times and did not receive any response. I want the minister to recognize that this is a very large concern of the business community, and much wider than the business community, of the general public at large. They recognize it is the business community that creates the jobs and that if an employers' tax is imposed upon them as a result of this legislation, it is one that may impact upon the creation of jobs. The minister will have the opportunity in wrapup to address that particular issue, but it is one we are going to keep a very close eye on.

A third area we are going to be watching very closely is in the event the legislation is changed. We have said and we feel very strongly that this is a piece of legislation that, if changed, must be done through the legislative process. We recognize the minister has every right to change whatever piece of legislation he wants in whatever way he wants, but we also have an obligation and a responsibility as elected members—I speak not as an opposition member; I speak as an elected member. I have an obligation, and everyone here has that obligation, to bring to this floor the impact of changes to legislation: what it means to our communities, what it means to the small business person, what it means to the creation of jobs. This bill really does in many ways stop me from making those types of representations. We have in many ways shut the constituency office doors on those concerns.

The minister looked up as I said that. I hope the minister recognizes that when matters are changed by regulation, members of this Legislature usually read about it in the media. We have not been able to share with the government what the impact of any change will be, what the impact of insurance premium changes means to the cost of doing business and to the creation of jobs in our ridings. There is not a person among us who has not had in his or her constituency a story, and many stories, about what this recession has meant to them, has meant to their riding, and has meant to the many families they have been asked to represent. Changes by regulation really do stop us from hearing that impact prior to the changes being made.

We are going to be watching very closely to make certain, as best we can, that when changes are made—and we hope not—without learning the impact of those changes, those matters are brought to the minister's and to the government's attention.

There are many people who are watching not only this debate, but who are watching the government very closely. Many people are very well aware of some of the speeches that have been made by members of the government, by backbenchers, by ministers, about this whole new era of consultation. If this bill is any example of this new era of consultation, then that is something which is greatly lacking. It is something which many business communities and many groups of individuals feel they have been shut out of.

We are going to be watching very closely. We are quite cognizant of the fact that many thousands of people are going to benefit by the bill. We have a balance here. We recognize that this bill does have some problems within it and that it has certain concerns that have not yet been met. We recognize that many of the major concerns that cause problems throughout this province in the business community and the volunteer associations have been addressed, but that there are a number of areas which still have not been addressed, areas such as regulation or legislation, and certainly the issue of the cost of doing business in this province.

These are areas we are still going to be watching. We are going to hope that the government will at some point in time put some substance behind some of the speeches it makes about consultation. We expect the government will live up to its promise that no changes will be made without consultation and without our being able to fully debate the impact of any changes. That is the very least we can do at a very difficult point in time.

There are people feeling very shut out from what we do here, people feeling very distanced from the process we undertake each and every day. Regulation does not reduce the distance; regulation increases the distance. Regulation moves people farther away from what it is that we do. Regulation makes people very much apart from the process and we want them to be a part of the process.

Though we have these concerns, we recognize that there are many thousands of people who are going to be able to receive the funds, the benefits they have earned. We believe, in principle, that this is the right direction. We believe those people should have that opportunity. Though the bill does contain certain frailties and does still have certain concerns that have not been addressed, we recognize that when one looks to those, and on balance looks to the many thousands of people who would benefit, we will vote in favour of this legislation.

Mrs Y. O'Neill: From the beginning, my concerns about Bill 70 were that there were unnecessary fears, fears that never had to take place, put through communities. If this bill had been well-thought-out, this never would have happened. Although I really do believe in supporting the workers whose wages have been earned and that they are now certainly equal in line with those people who are in the unfortunate circumstance of a business failing, my concern now is that we are now being asked to have faith in government intervention by regulation and government intervention by way of funding, funding for which, at the moment, we do not know the source. These are still my cautions as I support the right of workers to collect wages already earned.

The fears engendered by Bill 70 could easily have been prevented if this legislation had been well-thought-out in the beginning. To include non-profit and charitable organizations in this kind of legislation was reckless. The word "thoughtless" is not strong enough; it was reckless. Volunteers throughout this province who came to those of us whom they could approach so we could bring their concerns to the floor of this Legislature did not need to suffer needlessly.

I hope there have been some lessons learned in the presentation of Bill 70. I too am concerned that our amendment on small business did not receive government approval. I have had no explanation that satisfies me on that. I really do think the member for Mississauga North's amendment regarding small business and how this is possibly going to affect small business could have been much better vetted as we went across the province, if that had been permitted. Ottawa would have been a very good venue for hearings. That did not happen. I am sorry.

The Acting Speaker: Further comments and questions? The member for Mississauga North has two minutes if he wishes to add a further comment.

1640

Mr Offer: I think many of the concerns have been canvassed. We recognize that this bill is not a perfect piece of legislation. We also recognize that many people who are the victims of the recession have earned benefits under the Employment Standards Act, areas of which, when we were in government, we enhanced and stand very proud of so doing. We would be able to recover those. That is, in essence and in principle, why I will be supporting this legislation.

Mr Harnick: At the outset I wish to say I support the intent of this bill, which is to provide assistance to those whose jobs have been lost due to bankruptcy or insolvency and who have earned income they are going to be unable to collect. But I have been concerned from the outset, because this bill goes beyond that concept and certain aspects have created a nervousness in our communities which tends to make the bill unpalatable.

The flawed process of the presentation of this bill and the liability of charitable organizations, which the member for Ottawa-Rideau just mentioned, sent out a horrible message in our communities. It said to me that the preparation for this bill and the presentation of this bill were bad. It told me there was no real consultation prior to the presentation of this bill and that has created a bad atmosphere.

The minister has said many times in response to questions that the problem with labour law is that the history of labour law in this province has been marked by the adversarial nature between business and labour. To a certain degree, although not in the most recent of times, I would agree with the minister in that characterization. I agree there has been that adversarial nature.

The way this bill has been presented, the contents of this bill and the atmosphere within which the bill has been brought to this Legislature have only heightened the adversarial nature which the minister has stated so categorically he wanted to deny. That causes me some real concern. This bill from the outset pitted labour against business.

When you add to that the compounding factor of the general atmosphere with respect to intended Ontario Labour Relations Board amendments which were leaked, listed in graphic detail, signed by the minister, and which found their way into this Legislature and to members on all sides of this Legislature and to the public, there was cause for real concern. When you compound that with the original contents of this bill, the only conclusion you can come to is that there was absolutely no consultation taking place between business, labour and the government. That got this piece of legislation on the rails but on the wrong track.

I have some other concerns, and my friend the member for Mississauga North mentioned this earlier: Every time an amendment was proposed that would help small business without in any way affecting the intent of the act, the amendment was defeated. There was absolutely no intention to try to help that entity in our community which creates the wealth and provides the jobs.

What we saw was an absolute denial of any of those amendments either by way of passing them or even by way of real consideration. That causes me some considerable concern about this legislation. The ability to produce a piece of legislation that can help all parties is something I think all ministers should strive for when they present legislation in this Legislature. This bill did not accomplish that.

The aspect of the changes by regulation we spoke about in some detail in committee of the whole House. I merely wish to reiterate that the idea of changing legislation in significant, material ways without bringing that legislation to this Legislature is reprehensible. It negates the job we are all supposed to do together. I have some regret that amendments directed at stopping legislation by way of regulation were not accepted in committee of the whole.

The other aspect of this bill that causes me some concern is the underlying aspect, which the government does not wish to discuss, of how ultimately this bill will be funded. My colleague the member for Waterloo North, our critic of the Labour portfolio, has asked both the Treasurer and the Minister of Labour about the prospect of a future payroll tax to fund the legislation. Neither the Treasurer nor the Minister of Labour has given any assurance that he will not institute a payroll tax to fund the wage protection program.

I point out to the minister that people are concerned about that. I point to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which indicated: "No employer tax or payroll tax be established to fund the program in the future. To do so would be detrimental to the economy of Ontario by making it even less competitive, resulting in fewer jobs for Ontario workers. Almost all jurisdictions with which we compete offer a far more competitive tax environment."

Mother Parker's Foods Ltd stated, "You must realize that another payroll tax would send a great deal more small businesses straight into bankruptcy and put even more individuals out of work."

From the More Jobs Coalition: "The More Jobs Coalition is firmly opposed to any initiative which would add an additional payroll tax on the already heavy burdens employers must bear."

The Ontario Chamber of Commerce has stated: "No employer taxes should be introduced to cover the cost of payments made in accordance with the bill. These are social benefits that should be drawn from the consolidated revenue fund."

The Grocery Products Manufacturers of Canada has stated: "We cannot support financing the program by means of a flat payroll or corporations tax. Clearly any additional cost of doing business will negatively affect the industry's ability to compete in the North American marketplace."

Steve Yeoman of Bates and McKeown stated, "In the aftermath of the GST and the employer health tax and the Ontario budget deficit, small business in the province of Ontario cannot afford another tax."

The Information Technology Association of Canada stated: "A payroll tax will drop with a thud on the scales when weighing in against the investment case for Ontario. You should recognize that it is not only the cost of doing business in a given environment that investors will measure."

Finally, from the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, "The regressive character of payroll taxes makes them much more burdensome to the small business community than to large corporations."

1650

I point out that the minister can allay the fears of a great many organizations, corporations, individuals and groups by categorically stating that the wage protection fund will not be financed and paid for by a tax on jobs. I think he would be well advised, if I can say with respect, to send out that kind of message, and then a bill such as this bill would be received a little more positively.

Finally, I just want to point out that in sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 there are elements of those sections that have nothing to do with the wage protection fund. These are sections that entitle the ministry to make orders to reinstate a person in employment, or to hire an employee who had been let go, with or without compensation, "or to compensate the employee in lieu of reinstatement or hiring for loss of earnings or other employment benefits," if there has been a contravention.

"Where an employer dismisses an employee who refuses any work that is a contravention of subsection 2(2) of the Retail Business Holidays Act, an employment standards officer may order the employer to reinstate in employment the employee concerned, with or without compensation, or to compensate the employee in lieu of reinstatement for loss of earnings or other employment benefits.

"If a trade union has entered into a settlement agreement under subsection (15) and the employer does not pay the severance pay agreed to or the trade union demonstrates that the agreement was made as the result of fraud or coercion, an employment standards officer may make an order under section 47 as to what action, if any, the employer shall take and may make an order to compensate the employee for the severance pay that is owed."

These in and of themselves may be sections that are reasonable sections, but the first thing we see is that the Statutory Powers Procedure Act is eliminated from consideration of these sections.

What kind of message does that send out in terms of fairness to the employers of this province, those who create the wealth? The fact that these find their way into an act that primarily deals with wage protection, a wage protection fund and eligibility for that fund, I find somewhat curious. I think these sections send out a message that makes it very difficult for business, particularly small business, to accept this bill in a non-adversarial way.

I had the opportunity to comment on this bill earlier in committee of the whole and I appreciate the opportunity to speak on this bill on behalf of my constituents and to express some of their concerns. I do state that in principle the bill is a proper bill, if it were confined to providing the assistance to those whose jobs were eliminated by reason of bankruptcy and insolvency and for money they had already earned. But the bill goes beyond that, it causes concern and it may not be effective as we watch it in years down the road.

Mr Mammoliti: I too stand in representing the constituents of Yorkview, and I know the concerns my constituents have. They are totally in favour of this bill. They have phoned consistently and talked about wage protection and about how quickly we can get this bill passed. They have talked about the stalling in the House. They have talked about the stalling in committee. They have talked about the deliberate stalling in committee and in this Legislature that has taken place from the members across the way.

We need wage protection. I say "we" because this is where I come from, labour. I do not forget my roots. I represented a number of employees in a particular ministry prior to the election. I know a lot of union leaders who represent workers in the construction industry, workers in factories, workers in small businesses, the Becker's, the Mac's milk stores. I know individuals who work in those areas. They are concerned that nobody is really paying attention to them, that nobody is really bothering with them, and that nobody has paid attention to them, that nobody has bothered with them in the past.

Through this bill, I believe we are paying attention to those individuals, the average person. We are trying to make life a little more comfortable for them in that they need security. When the average person looks for a job, that person wants to know that he is going to be there for a while, and that if he is not, there is compensation for him if something should happen.

I cannot condone what the federal government is doing in this country. The federal government is making it more attractive for business to leave. I do not understand the logic behind that; I never have. I can remember all kinds of rallies we held prior to the election of 1990, of course not supporting the views of the federal government. Those rallies told them that this would happen, that people would leave, that they would leave the country, that they would go to the United States, that they would go into Buffalo, that they would go to New York, that they would go into all those cities that were giving them all kinds of attractive proposals, for instance, about land. They can pick up land cheap. They do not have to pay tax for land, that sort of thing. Labour, of course, is cheaper there as well. They are making it attractive. People are leaving. Of course you talk about the GST, another area the federal government really did not put any thought to.

Individuals have left, are gone and I am not sure how to get them back. I would love to be able to come up with a plan to get these people back. I am not too sure how we would do that, but it is certainly something I would like to sit down, even with my colleagues across the way, and talk about, a plan to get them back into Ontario. We may have to get rid of the federal government first, because it certainly is an enemy, as far as I am concerned.

When we talk about communication, I agree; there has to be communication between government and opposition. There is no question about it. The committee work is important. We have to go around. We have to consult and all of that.

However, I would like to take the view of the person at 5 o'clock tonight, eating his dinner and watching me speak and watching us speak in this Legislature, turning it to the channel and listening to us debate on this thing. This person, perhaps one who may be out of work and waiting for this cheque, is saying to himself or herself: "What's taking so long? It's not so much the consultation I'm worried about at this point. I'm worried about eating. I'm worried about putting food on my table. I'm worried about putting food on my table so that my children can eat. I'm worried about my home. I'm worried about my mortgage. I'm worried about my rent."

When I hear arguments in this particular case, when we talk about wage protection, I have to say that I do not agree we should hit every particular city in the province and should conduct a massive communication strategy. We want this through. I believe the communication has been satisfactory up until now. I believe all the committee members have done their work and have done a very good job. It is unfortunate a lot of amendments were not passed, but I am glad this is going to come to an end, I hope, today. I am glad this is going to be passed today because there are a lot of people—yes, in my riding of Yorkview—waiting for this bill to be passed, waiting for that cheque. In terms of the number of people, about 18,000 workers are sitting there right now, probably a hell of a lot of them anyway, tuned in and watching today, knowing this is the last day and asking themselves, again while they are eating their dinner, "What is taking so long?"

1700

I do not have too much to say; I never do. I try to keep it as short as possible and to the point. This whole thing with free trade and the GST and all of that really gets to me. On the one hand, we sit here and talk about cross-border shopping and about what we should do as the provincial government and, on the other hand, our hands are tied. When we talk about transfer payments and all of that stuff, it is really irritating and very frustrating for a backbencher such as myself, somebody who is trying to learn, trying to figure out a way of doing things in a manner and a way the constituents can appreciate, to know there is another level of government that is hurting us drastically. I have to plug in the fact that people are out of work because their company, their factory or their store moved elsewhere. The government has made that possible by making it more attractive to go somewhere else.

I have been working quite extensively on the whole drug treatment area. One asks, "How does it relate?" It relates. The previous governments really did nothing about cross-border shopping that way. How many millions of dollars have been spent across the border looking for treatment? It is $51 million, to be exact. We have not really improved our treatment here. How many of those people go across to the United States to look for help and how many of them actually spend money while they are down there? How many of them actually spend perhaps another $51 million on their clothes and on their food? That money could have been spent here in Ontario. How many jobs could have been provided already if the previous government had perhaps taken a look at this and restructured it the way it should have done?

All that relates to what I have been saying. As far as I am concerned, it has a lot to do with people going to the United States, that whole attraction. Whether it is jobs or businesses moving to the United States or whether it is drugs, it all has to be looked at. How can we better spend our money in Ontario? This is what this government wants to do. We do not want to waste time. We want to do it as quickly as we can and as efficiently as we can.

As a backbencher, I really get upset knowing that the opposition stalls. Frankly, I think they are doing it on purpose; the same thing with the third party. If they are really sincere, if they really care about their constituents, they will know this is a good bill. This is a bill we need. This is protection workers need. If they have been canvassing door to door, they know the average person wants it and needs it.

I am counting on them, after the bill is passed, to go around and talk with their constituents and let them know of the bill and the effect this bill is going to have on communities in general. I would like them to tell people the positives and not the negatives, to go to a front door and instead of saying, "We should have visited all the cities in Ontario and there should have been a wide consultation on this and we should have talked until we were blue in the face on it," say: "It was so important to get this passed. We did what we could in committee and we did what we could in the Legislature. Let's take this forward and hope things will work out."

I also ask the members of the third party again—I have done this consistently—to please go to their federal counterparts, their federal friends, and say, "Do something."

Mr Runciman: Don't bother me. Go to them.

Mr Mammoliti: The member for Leeds-Grenville says, "Don't bother me." This is the sort of frustration we as the government are coming up against when I say to them, when I plead: "Go speak to your friends in Ottawa. Tell them we need them. We have to work together with them, not against them. Tell them this whole area of free trade and the GST is crippling us to a point where we cannot survive any more, to a point where we are out of work and we just cannot cope." I plead that they please do something. Nobody is listening. This is how frustrating it is for a backbencher such as myself.

Mr B. Murdoch: You haven't said a thing since you have been here.

Mr Mammoliti: Again we get interjections for me to say something. I have been saying something. I have been saying something for the working person, that person who is sitting in front of the TV eating dinner and asking: "When is this going to end? When is this bill going to go through? When am I going to get my cheque?" These are the questions the average person, the average voter is asking, not: "How much time can we waste? How long does it have to be? How much time we do have to sit and talk about it and debate about it in the Legislature?" Even as I speak they are probably asking, "How long does Mammoliti have to speak?"

On that note I say to the members of the third party opposite to please take in everything I have said today. They should take it in because it is important. They should go to the doors of those average people, knock and ask them how they feel about wage protection, how they feel about the future of their children, how they feel about that mortgage payment being at least a little secure if their company were to shut down at this point. I ask the members of the third party for the last time to do something, to go to their leader and tell him he is ruining our country and put up a fight. I dare them to put up that fight. I do not think any of them have.

Mr Speaker, I will close on that note and I will say thank you very much for the time. I thank the minister for this excellent bill. On behalf of my constituents, I thank him. We need it. I am looking forward to other bills being introduced for labour.

Mr Tilson: I have a question to the member for Yorkview. He is quite right that, as I understand it, the federal government did introduce a bill to amend the Bankruptcy Act in June this year which included provisions to create a wage claim payment program. Under that federal program employees caught in bankruptcy, receivership or liquidation can receive up to $2,000 for unpaid wages and vacation pay and up to $1,000 for unpaid salesperson expenses.

The federal program, as I understand it, is being funded through a payroll tax. Back in the fall, the Premier indicated that the government would be setting up this wage protection fund to guarantee unpaid wages of employees who lose their jobs when their companies go bankrupt or are shut down. He indicated that the seed money for that fund would come from the $5 million that the government received as a settlement for Varsity Corp moving to Buffalo.

My question to the member is, once the seed money is gone and the 18 months suggested in the bill have expired, how does the government propose to fund the particular fund that this bill is setting up?

1710

Mrs Y. O'Neill: I would just like to respond to the member for Yorkview by stating that this bill would not have taken so long to progress through the Legislature if this government had been more forthcoming on how it is going to finance the bill. As members of this Legislature, we are being asked to support something we believe in, but we are being asked to do that with a giant leap of faith by a government that has changed its mind, has flip-flopped and has certainly been less than secure in its financial and fiscal planning. These are things that make us very cautious and certainly are meant for much discussion, and without the amendments, we could not have supported this bill.

Mr Mammoliti: I will say it again. As a backbencher, I look at cabinet, I look at the whole structure of government, and I would probably take the same approach to answering that question as the average person, eating dinner at 5:15 at home and tuning in, would take, and that is: "Let us lead. Let us determine where the funding is going to come from. Let us determine where we are going to spend the money. We are the government. We were elected to do that, to govern." Frankly, again as a backbencher, I am sick and tired and fed up with the opposition wasting valuable time in telling us how to manage.

As a labour leader, I have heard consistently from business: "Let us manage. Let us do what we think we can do best. Don't interfere." I have heard it continually from the opposition as well in the past: "Let them manage. Don't interfere with business. What the hell are you doing interfering with business?"

Why are the members opposite interfering with us? Let us manage. Let us deal with our affairs. Let us find the funding. The members opposite are not letting us do that. I ask the third party again, for the third time today, to go to their federal people, to go to their friends in the federal area in Ottawa and say to them: "Stop free trade. Use that clause. Stop the GST. You are crippling us. You are not letting us do our thing in Ottawa. Do what's right for Canada. Do what's right for Ontario." That is what I ask.

Mr Conway: That was quite a performance. I am afraid it is one we are getting all too accustomed to in this House.

I just want to make some comments around Bill 70, because as has been indicated by previous speakers, this has been a matter of some interest to this Legislature and the public beyond. I find it incredible that people talk about—when it comes to some of the comments of my friend opposite, I suppose if I wanted, imputation of motive comes to mind rather quickly.

This bill was introduced for first reading in mid-April. We are now in mid-October. A bill of this kind, with these consequences for the economy, being dealt with in six months is, given the history of this legislative chamber, expeditious.

I want to repeat for the community out there watching this on television after dinner, as my friends who have spoken before me have rightly observed, you will remember the circumstances around the introduction of the bill. There was a tremendous concern about the scope of Bill 70. To his credit, the minister moved some time ago to amend the more offensive sections of this bill, but Bill 70 dropped on the heads of the province with quite a notable effect. That we have taken but six months to discuss it in the light of its highly controversial character upon introduction says something about the expeditious way in which the assembly and the committee has gone about their work.

It should not surprise anyone that a bill with this kind of principle and this kind of potential pricetag would attract the interest of people. I was not around when the committee was deciding where it was going and not going, but I have to tell members that if I had been there, I think it would have been a more difficult battle to restrain this committee from going into those parts of the province where clearly it did not go. That apparently was a long list.

For me as a Liberal, the essential core of this bill is that there will be a legislative protection for earned work and related credits. So if I, as a working person, am duly in receipt of wages and vacation pay that I have earned, I will have some legislated protection for and claim to that earned credit. I think a Liberal has to support that kind of legislation, that kind of principle, but I do not do so without reservation. There are aspects of this bill that I truly do not like. That principle, it seems to me, properly belongs in the federal Parliament with the Bankruptcy Act.

Mr Huget: You know the feds will never do anything about that.

Mr Conway: My friend the member for Sarnia says the feds may not do anything. I do not know what the federal government is going to do. I am simply telling members that I accept the principle. I think it should be supported by all reasonable people and certainly any person who considers himself or herself to be liberally minded.

I do not expect the entire community to embrace this. I have had a number of business people come to me as recently as the weekend and continue to express deep-seated concern about the bill. In some cases they are talking about the bill before the government amendments proceeded. They are also apoplectic about what they read in terms of the next item of business on this government's legislative agenda.

I am telling members what they already know, that Bill 70 has caused great concern because it was poorly drafted in the first instance; enormously controversial, because of the exposure to our charitable organizations, our non-profit corporations, among others; but it also fits into a broader piece, and that broader piece has attracted the interest of a great number of people in the community.

I would say as well that the bill has some elements I do not like at all. I just do not understand this government in its enthusiasm for an expansive use of the regulatory power. I think back to their railing about the McKeough days of regulatory powers, yet this government, in two of its first major legislative initiatives, Bill 70 and Bill 118, seeks to give itself either an executive or a regulatory power that is in relative terms sweeping if not breathtaking. The executive power that this Rae government sought to give itself with Bill 118 was as dramatic as anything I have seen in a long time.

My friends opposite say what their intentions are with respect to Bill 70. I want to tell my learned friend, the hockey-playing Attorney General from Rainy River, that he would do well to look at what section 16 of this bill entitles the minister, as an executive personality, to do by regulation. If he wonders why there are people out there concerned about what the government is up to, it is exactly because this bill, by regulation, gives the executive council—more important, the government, the cabinet minister in charge—the right to expand upward the entitlement, to expand outward the criteria—

1720

Hon Mr Hampton: Is that a little bit like auto insurance?

Mr Conway: I cannot believe my friend the member for Rainy River wants me to engage in a parenthetical debate about auto insurance. I can still hear the swallow-tailed coat he was wearing on swearing-in day snap as he makes a 180-degree turn on that subject.

I simply want to say that people are right to be concerned about the regulatory power that is contained in section 16 of this act, and I do not say that lightly.

Hon Mr Hampton: Remember 162?

Mr Conway: I remember 162. It is too bad the pale shadow of Fred Young has just left us, because what I remember about Bill 162 is the stampede that almost broke down the doors in here. I remember well how utterly inadvertent that all was, how completely spontaneous. The member asks me about Bill 162? He bloody well has his nerve, quite frankly. When I think about the kinds of tactics—

Hon Mr Hampton: I think I touched one.

Mr Conway: He has bloody well touched something, because we are now 13 months into his mandate and no one has come to storm the doors here, however spontaneously, however inadvertently.

Hon Mr Pouliot: And it was spontaneous.

Mr Conway: Yes, of course, absolutely.

Hon Mr Pouliot: Are you imputing motive? Are you saying we sponsored this? What are you trying to say? Say it, Sean.

The Acting Speaker: Order, please. The debate is on Bill 70. The member for Renfrew North.

Mr Conway: I am not surprised at all that the then Leader of the Opposition calmed them down.

I simply want to say that I support this bill because for me it has a very fundamental principle, and that is, ordinary working men and women who have earned credits in the workplace ought to be able, in most circumstances if not all circumstances, to get those credits. That for me is the basic principle of Bill 70. That is why I support it.

I share absolutely the concern that others have articulated around a payroll tax. I want to say, on behalf of my constituents, and I must say my business constituents more particularly, that they will recoil if there is going to be a payroll tax announced at some later point to fund this. It would be a deception of a very serious kind to be engaged in this debate and not to be told that in fact the second piece of this policy is a payroll tax to be announced at some later date.

I have to tell my friend opposite the Minister of Labour, with whom I have rarely agreed, that I must say I respect him for what he is, which is a very stout and reliable defender of the labour interest. I say that quite respectfully. If as a companion piece to Bill 70 there is a payroll tax contemplated, then he has to know that he is going to re-ignite this debate.

Hon Mr Pouliot: Like a health tax?

Mr Conway: My friend opposite says, "Like a health tax." That was a payroll tax and perhaps we should debate that at another time. I am quite prepared to admit that the payroll tax has landed on the backs of the business community now in a way that is not helping. I will be perfectly frank in saying that.

As all of us come to this place on a daily basis with interesting schemes to spend money on highly meritorious projects, we owe it to ourselves and to our community to be very serious and responsible, particularly in these times, as to how we are going to pay for this. I am sent here by my constituents, who tell me that, yes, they think the principle should be supported but they do not want it paid for with a payroll tax, particularly in these kinds of recessionary circumstances.

I want to say, as I look at the clock, that the Bill 70 piece fits into other pieces. It relates to the fiscal policy this government is pursuing. It relates to other issues on the labour agenda. When I talk to people about Bill 70, I have to first get them down from the ceiling about the original Bill 70 and then I have to try to calm them down about the Bob Rae-Bob Mackenzie-Bob White labour relations amendments.

If my friend the member for Yorkview thinks that there was a little debate over six months with Bill 70, I am going to tell him that he had better get ready for a long march on those amendments whenever they come forward.

One of the other reasons why I can support Bill 70 is that I can honestly say that in the main it will support and assist Ed Broadbent's ordinary Canadians, the working men and women of my riding and all the other communities around the province. When I see some of the other things on their labour agenda, it is quite clear that this has a much more narrow focus in terms of its understanding of the public good. But I am sure they understand, because they are all bright people over there, as far as I can judge in a charitable frame of mind, at least.

Mr Mammoliti: Come on, Sean.

Mr Conway: The member for Yorkview has just returned, and I get kind of annoyed when I hear the speech—

Hon Mr Hampton: Have you had a bad weekend?

Mr Conway: No, I have not had a bad weekend at all. But I am just telling the members that as a government, they are doing a variety of things that affect the business climate in the province.

I think we all know that this fund is not going to be heavily drawn upon if we have some kind of recovery. If the recession continues, then the pressure on the Treasurer to pay for this—let's not kid ourselves. The Minister of Labour, I know, has talked about this. If we have, for the sake of argument, 10,000 claims and if they average $3,500 a claim, then we are looking at what, $35 million? Is that the right arithmetic? If we have, however, 50,000 claims at $4,000 or $5,000 a claim, let none of us kid ourselves as to what we have and what kind of pressure that puts on the Treasurer in particular.

One of the reasons I am prepared to support the government's restraint initiative is that I want to see something done for these men and women in my constituency, in the main in the private sector, who do not have these good public sector pensions.

Interjection.

Mr Conway: I am being quite frank. My farmers and my sawmill people, to use two sectors, are really in trouble. I am quite prepared to support this legislation because I think it is going to help some of those people, but that lineup is going to be very long if we do not smarten up and start to realize that the recession can only end if public policy starts to understand something about how we go about creating some wealth.

Mr Stockwell: Yes.

Mr Conway: Our friends in the Progressive Conservative Party have a particular point of view, and that is their entitlement.

But I want to say to my friends from Durham West and Yorkview that I hope we have all got beyond the point of getting up here and doing what the member for—and I apologize if I was a little rude to the member for Yorkview, but I am sick and tired, and I think most of the taxpayers are sick and tired, and I would have thought most members of this Legislature who have been here for more than two years are sick and tired, of getting up and saying: "Well, it's all somebody else's fault. It is city hall's fault. It's Ottawa's fault."

Mr Mammoliti: It is.

1730

Mr Conway: If the member wants to engage in the federal debate, he should run for the Parliament of Canada.

I watched Mike Harcourt the other night deal with some of the tough questions that were put to him in the leader's debate, right around this subject, interestingly. The skating and the obfuscation were breathtaking, but if I do not like the fact that he would not answer any of the tough questions, then I can leave Ontario, presumably, go to British Columbia and engage him in the British Columbia debate and in the British Columbia political process.

Mr Mammoliti: That's a silly argument.

Mr Conway: It is not a silly argument. What is not silly but insulting is for my friend opposite to get up and say it is all a matter of the GST and the federal fiscal policy. I am an elected member in Ontario to tell the members opposite that the fiscal policy, the tax policy, the labour policy, the energy policy of the duly elected Bob Rae government in Ontario will have a great deal to do with how long the line is standing in front of this wage protection fund. That is my point.

In conclusion, there are real and legitimate concerns around the bill. I congratulate the government for backing off the really controversial components which have been mentioned earlier. I want to repeat that I expect this fund will be concerned with what the bill focuses upon in principle, the earned credits of working men and women that are in jeopardy or at risk as a result of bankruptcy or what have you. This government ought not to fund this with a payroll tax. It should be ashamed of the expansive regulatory power and it should be very reluctant to use that, particularly to change the basic policy which this Legislature will today affirm.

The government, in light of what it has heard over the course of the last six months, will surely think deeply and carefully about what it wants to do with the other legislation affecting the relationship of labour and capital in this province, where we all want this terrible recession to end and where we want to get as close to full employment as is possible in a modern industrial and commercial society of the kind in which we live.

Mr Bisson: I always have the greatest respect for the member for Renfrew North when he gets up in the House, normally to bring up very good points which I think are beneficial not only for myself as a member but for all people participating in the debate, either here in the House or watching it on television at home.

But I take some offence—and I have to say this—when the member says my colleague on this side of the House is trying to lay blame at the federal feet and that we should not look elsewhere to try to lay blame. I have sat in this Legislature for a year and have watched exactly that on the part of the opposition parties, so I ask that the member looks in a mirror when he makes comments like that.

I agree with him that what is needed in this Legislature, as in any Legislature in this country or in the federal House of Commons, is the civility of members from all sides to sit down on key issues and go through an issue to try to make legislation better. The member for Mississauga North mentioned that this legislation was made better because amendments were put forward based on the consultation process that happened with the people of Ontario and, may I say, from members of the opposition as well. It is exactly true. That is part of the process. Yes, when we sit down as members and go through the whole process, we tend to make better legislation in the end.

But let's not accuse one person of laying blame and pointing fingers. I think we should look in the mirror. The reality is that there is a federal government in place that has quite regressive policies. We cannot escape that as a provincial government or as members of a provincial Legislature, and to say the federal government is exonerated from any blame for the recession we have today is wrong; part of the problem does lie with the federal government. But it is up to us as members to work together at trying to find solutions for the people of Ontario. Sitting here as we do in question period, with some interesting points made that are quite colourful at times, I do not think we add to the civility of this House or the attempt to resolve some of the problems for the people of this province.

Mr Tilson: I have listened to the amendments put forward by the member for Mississauga North and the very reasoned arguments he put forward. I think our party has supported him on all those amendments and I believe the government has rejected all those amendments.

I find it strange that I hear the official opposition, the Liberal Party, indicating, at least so it would appear, that it is going to support this bill. My question to the member for Renfrew North is the same question I asked the member for Yorkview: When he realizes what this is going to cost, when he starts realizing that the Ministry of Labour estimated in April that the average cost per claim would be roughly $3,200 and that in July it crept up to $4,200—I have no idea what it is now but I am certain that with the recession as described to us by the Treasurer it has increased even further.

I listened to the fear in the community, the fear that has been expressed by many of us in this House as to how this is going to be paid for, where the money is going to come from. I ask the same question of the member for Renfrew North, who has indicated he is going to be supporting this bill. Once we get past the seed money, once we get past the first 18 months, once we realize that many of the regulations are going to be—we in this House will not even see what is going to happen as to the definition of “wages,” so my question of the member for Renfrew North is the same question: How in the world is this going to be paid for?

Mr White: I want to respond briefly to the member for Renfrew North. He, as always, spoke brilliantly. I think at the outset he did indulge to some degree in some desultory philippics because he was goaded from our side and unfortunately did not direct himself properly through you, Mr Speaker.

I was thinking, though, of a couple of things he mentioned, the issue of responsibility and the issue of obfuscation. The member for Renfrew North has given us ample opportunity to learn from him marvellous skills in obfuscation, something perhaps someone on the west coast is learning now, but certainly not the members here present.

The energy devoted here to obfuscation and negativity about economic renewal, I think, is very unfortunate, especially given the concentration we have had in the last while on a real renewal which includes all of our country, not simply business, not simply the well-to-do, not simply the investors.

Also, he spoke of how this bill assists Mr Broadbent's ordinary Canadians. Mr Broadbent's ordinary Canadians live in all our ridings, in the riding of the member opposite riding as well as in my own. I am surprised that somehow these people are excluded from his universe. However, I am glad to hear that despite that exclusion, he is supporting the bill. Were he in opposition to it, Lord knows what fury he might mount.

Mr Elston: I rise to congratulate the member for Renfrew North on his comments. I have to say that I, like he, am concerned that this bill is, for those people who have lost their jobs, just a little hope and a very short term sort of fix for their situation.

I saw the member for Yorkview here not long ago speaking about how this would help them deal with the possible loss of ability to pay mortgages or buy food, or all of those things. The thing that has struck me most about this, as it is a short-term intervention on behalf of any worker who has lost his job, is the fact that there is no long-term creative strategy coming forth, no energy coming from this government whatsoever to really address the real problem.

The real problem is that there is no incentive to create jobs and to maintain jobs in this province. Over the last five or six years there have been lots of people saying it costs too much to do business in this province and that it is onerous, that there is a whole series of problems associated with this, and that has resulted not just from one administration, but from administrations of all three parties.

1740

What we have to do is not just tell these people who have lost their jobs that this will save them—because it will not; it merely gets them by a rough spot—but that we are going to dedicate ourselves to making it less onerous to be employed and to be an employer, and make it more enjoyable and acceptable to be resident and employed and working productively in this province.

None of the people in this Legislature represent parties that have not participated in a problem that has gained new momentum, against doing business here. I have to say that is a sad comment. We have to get on with doing real work for people permanently.

Mr Conway: I am interested in some of what has been said by the member for Cochrane South, the member for Yorkview and the member for Durham Centre. I think it would be a good use of the growing budget in the Board of Internal Economy for somebody in the Speaker's office to organize a little seminar for some of our good, newly elected friends who clearly do not understand how the British parliamentary system works. It never ceases to amaze me that they just do not seem to have any idea. They seem to think they are running some kind of plebiscitarian democracy, where they once win an election and that gives them carte blanche to do whatever the hell they want anywhere, any time and on anything for the next five years. I am sorry; it does not work that way.

Hon Mr Hampton: Sean, that was the last government.

Mr Conway: The last government may have done that and it got what governments sometimes get.

I want to deal with my friend from Orangeville who said, “How are we going to pay for this?” We are going to have to look very seriously at how we pay for this. It is going to cost money. I am opposed to a payroll tax. I recognize that it is going to take money. It is going to take—

Hon Mr Pouliot: You sat right here and you voted for that same guy.

The Deputy Speaker: Order.

Mr Conway: Mr Speaker, I have the floor and my friend the member for Lake Nipigon should not engage in the debate.

In these recessionary times, a payroll tax is an unacceptable and undue burden on the part of the community that we expect to create the new wealth, the new employment and the new jobs across the province. I argue that we should find the money to a large extent from within.

I do not know whether anybody noticed, but last week the Treasurer stood up and said he would have to find $215 million of real money to support the teachers' pension fund, almost a quarter of a billion dollars. If we can do that for some of the most protected people in the community, we owe it to those men and women who are largely in the private sector with relatively little in comparison to some of these very powerful, well-established interests to find the money from within so they can have some equity and fairness and protection.

Mr Tilson: I would like to relate two major concerns our party finds in objection to this bill, which appears to be supported by the Liberal Party. Those objections are two-fold. There are items in this bill that are being delegated away from this House. Things will get passed that we will not even know are being passed.

Specifically, with respect to increasing the severance and termination pay threshold, that could be passed by regulation, the maximum amount of compensation could be increased by regulation and the whole definition of "wages" can be changed by regulation. Those topics should be dealt with by this House. I have asked specific questions in this House as to how this legislation is going to be paid for, and I tell the members who is going to have to pay for it: the taxpayers of this province.

We saw how the last government spent, I think, 32 or 33 tax increases in the period it was in power. This government, the NDP, went around the province in the last election and literally tore them apart for the increases they put on the people of this province. Businesses are moving away from this province because of the very things the government is about to do. How else are they going to fund it? I will tell them how they are going to fund it: It is going to be through the payroll taxes. There is no question that is what they have planned, and for that reason we are dead opposed to supporting this bill.

Mr Hope: I have just one quick comment dealing with the whole issue. We would not need this legislation if those who were owed money were paid the money and the corporations were liable to their employees. This bill would not be required. There is a federal policy out there making sure that people are leaving this country and workers are being victimized. It is very important that if the federal government changed its economic policies and got rid of its trade deal, we would not need a wage protection fund to protect those wages earned by individuals.

Mr Bradley: Mr Speaker, I have two minutes to go here, so I will simply offer this. It has been an interesting debate. In my office I had the opportunity to watch the member for Renfrew North making his presentation and talking about some of the concerns people out there would have about this bill and some of the interventions that have been made today.

Once again I must emphasize to members of the House that the member was quite correct when he said that the initial concerns about the bill are ones that remain in the minds of many people in this province. But the modifications that have been made have made it a much better bill than the original one that was presented to the House.

Those of us in the Liberal Party have not taken a dogmatic stand on this. We have looked at this legislation and we believe it is required. People who are in the circumstances of losing their jobs seem to be last in line to get at least some semblance of the money owing to them. It is not something they do not have coming to them. This is money owing to workers in this province. I think a lot of people forget that when they are making their interventions in this House. We believe there should be a mechanism for them to retain or to get back at least part of that money.

I think initially the bill gathered a lot of opposition because it had some provisions that were going to be difficult for individuals, that would discourage people from serving on boards of directors of companies and that might have influenced non-profit organizations. However, with the changes made to this legislation, this particular compromise, we have a bill most people who are fairminded and know what is in the bill would be prepared to accept. As I indicated earlier in the day, this is a good example of the parliamentary system working best.

Mr Stockwell: The very great concern I have is that the bill is dealt with as if the only person who suffers any hardship during a bankruptcy would be the individual who worked for the company. Yes, for all intents and purposes they do suffer a hardship, but there are many creditors out there who suffer hardship. Members should look at the creditor of a small business who is owed a lot of money. Should a large company go bankrupt, those people are left hanging out to dry. They do not receive their money. They stand in line and they clearly are not given any consideration in the lineup at the banks.

Interjections.

The Deputy Speaker: The member for Welland-Thorold, order, please.

Mr Stockwell: The bank is not the only one that should receive any payment, should a company go bankrupt. Those are small businesses. They are run by individuals. They suffer equally. In fact, they just go out of business due to bad debts. It happens all the time.

The next point I would like to make is that I will make a prediction in this House that two years from today this will become a payroll tax. Within the next two years this government will find out that it is going to have to foist this on the private industry.

Mr Kormos: You just don't care about the workers. You just don't give a tinker's dam.

Mr Stockwell: It is a shame that Curly and Larry did not get elected too, Peter.

They are going to find out that they are going to have to pay for this through the private sector and a payroll tax. That payroll tax will be another tax on businesses that will force businesses out of this province. If the suggestion is made that the timing is right on this tax, it is not. Businesses cannot afford these kinds of incurred costs. I will wager that in two years this government will make this a payroll tax, because the people cannot afford it.

Mr Bisson: When the honourable member speaks about securing liabilities on the part of other people who are owed money, the thing he is missing is that a lot of these people are secured through the Bankruptcy Act. The problem is that the workers are not. The workers have no other recourse in order to get their money back.

If the member is implying that somehow those people who are owed money, other than workers, are somehow more important because they need to be at the head of the line ahead of time, I beg to differ. It is not that small business persons who are owed money because of supplies or services given to a company are not important, but they have mechanisms by which to have some of their money secured. The workers have not.

1750

Mr Stockwell: You can't get blood from a stone.

Mr Bisson: The member says you cannot get blood from a stone. That is quite correct. But what we are interested in doing in this province is at least making sure that the rules that are set forward on how we do business in this province have a certain amount of equity, that workers can measure up equally to those to whom money is owed by other people, those who are owed money for services they may have provided.

The problem is that we need to put together—

Interjections.

Mr Bisson: It is quite difficult sometimes when everybody is heckling over here. The problem is that we need to put together bills such as this in order to put some equity within our system. We need to make sure that at the end of the day the rights of the workers are not any more important or any less important than those of other creditors. That is what this bill is speaking to.

The other point the member talks about is that he is worried this is a payroll tax. It is not a payroll tax. This money is being taken from general revenue. Neither the government nor the minister nor anybody else on this side of the House has ever advocated that this should be put into a payroll tax.

The member for Renfrew North stood up in this House a little while ago to say he was opposed to those types of taxes. What happened in regard to the employer health tax? If I remember correctly, if I go and look at Hansard, he voted for that tax, so he should not stand in this House and tell me he is opposed. We need to work together; we need to be able to put legislation like this together. I think this is a good example of how, by working together, we can put together good legislation for the people of this province.

The Deputy Speaker: Thank you. The member for Dufferin-Peel has two minutes to reply.

Mr Tilson: The concern we have in this province is the loss of jobs and the reason businesses and people are leaving this province. The reason is the lack of confidence in this government. All members have to do is read the newspapers and talk to their constituents. I can tell them that the people who have come into my office are afraid of losing their jobs. Businesses in my own riding are going out of business; companies are going out of business. They are leaving the province. I have one particular company in my riding, Canada Wire, which is moving to Winnipeg.

There is no question that the whole reason this government is doing it is to try and solve the problem of businesses going bankrupt and the effect on the employees who are losing their jobs. I appreciate that. However, the old question comes back: How are they going to pay for it? My final words are that we all know who is going to pay for it. The taxpayer in this province is going to pay for it. I say that with this recession we cannot afford it.

The Deputy Speaker: Are there any other members who wish to participate in the debate? If not, the minister.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I will be very brief. First, I want to say that I was pleased to hear the member for Renfrew North indicate that for some good, sound and I think maybe even old-fashioned Liberal principles he was supporting the bill, even though there were things about it he did not like. I want to point out to him that we did make a number of amendments relatively early on, as most members in this House know, to areas that concerned people about this particular piece of legislation.

The bill itself does deal with workers who have earned the money that is owed to them and who are not able to collect it. As to who is going to pay for it, let me make it clear that we decided in our discussions that the first 18 months would be general revenue. I am talking now about when we first looked at the bill. That is where it is, in general revenue. What are we going to do with it in the future? Obviously we want to leave some leeway for the Treasurer and find out what is going to happen.

I want to make one further brief comment on that. We came right out with general revenue on this, even though it is an area in which I have heard members opposite accusing us of wanting a payroll tax and all the rest of it. Some of us may even have had that idea. But when we saw the first piece of federal legislation, which I suspect will not see the light of day, it had a payroll tax in it. That is the Conservatives' federal cousins. It was not until the pressure was on there that they now seemed to have changed it. That is one of the reasons I am not sure they will even proceed with the rest of the bill.

Interjections.

The Deputy Speaker: Order, please.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: What will happen in 18 months? A decision will be made collectively at that time. It may very well stay the way it is; it may not.

The other point I want to make is that one of the things we are trying to do in this Legislature—and the members opposite do not have to accept it; I do not really expect that many of them will; I know how rough I could be on the other side of the House as well—is make some changes that allow us to deal with the kind of economic situation we have, the kinds of trade deals we have and the kind of unemployment we have in this country. Workers who have actually earned their money and who were promised that money under some federal legislation for a number of years, at least for the eight or nine I was raising it in this House, have not had an answer to that. We are trying to see that they get some of the money they have actually earned.

The other point was also referred to by the member for Renfrew North. Sure, we have taken a serious look at labour legislation in Ontario. There is a reason for that as well. We are going to need all the people in this province and this country working together. We are going to have to change what even these folks admit has been the pattern—and that is confrontation, not co-operation—between business and labour in this province. That is going to have to be changed.

One of the ways we will do that is by bringing about a little more fairness. I guess the question in everybody's mind is, what is fairness? The intent is not to set up labour, in terms of wages earned, in the driver's seat. The intent is to try and see if we can come up with a means of working co-operatively, not confrontationally, with labour and management in this province. That is absolutely essential if we are going to make basic changes in the way we do business in Ontario.

In conclusion, there are several thousand workers who are entitled to money they have earned, over 2,000 to whom we hope to have the cheques out in the first week. That is now a reality for these workers. For that I thank the House and the members for letting the legislation through.

1809

The House divided on Mr Mackenzie's motion for third reading of Bill 70, which was agreed to on the following vote:

La motion de M. Mackenzie pour la troisième lecture du projet de loi 70, mise aux voix, est adoptée :

Ayes/Pour-81

Abel, Beer, Bisson, Bradley, Brown, Caplan, Carter, Charlton, Christopherson, Churley, Conway, Cooke, Cooper, Coppen, Dadamo, Daigeler, Drainville, Duignan, Elston, Farnan, Fawcett, Ferguson, Fletcher, Frankford, Gigantes, Grandmaître, Haeck, Hampton, Hansen, Harrington, Haslam, Hayes, Henderson, Hope, Huget, Jamison, Johnson, Klopp, Kormos, Lankin, Laughren, Lessard, Mackenzie, MacKinnon, Malkowski, Mammoliti, Marchese, Martel, Martin, Mathysen, McGuinty, Miclash, Mills, Morrow, Murdock, S., O'Connor, Offer, O'Neill, Y., Owens, Perruzza, Philip, E., Phillips, G., Pilkey, Poirier, Poole, Pouliot, Rizzo, Silipo, Sutherland, Ward, B., Ward, M., Waters, Wessenger, White, Wildman, Wilson, F., Wilson, G., Winninger, Wiseman, Wood, Ziemba.

Nays/Contre-14

Arnott, Carr, Cousens, Cunningham, Eves, Harnick, McLean, Murdoch, B., Runciman, Sterling, Stockwell, Tilson, Turnbull, Wilson, J.

The House adjourned at 1813.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND)

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND)
Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Education, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre de l'Éducation, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/ Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/ Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND)
Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Oriole L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND)
Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND)
PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/ Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/ Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/ Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND)
Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/ Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/ Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement

Grandmaitre, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

- Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)
- Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général
- Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
- Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)
- Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement
- Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur
- Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications
- Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)
- Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)
- Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires
- Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie
- Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises
- Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu
- Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)
- Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)
- Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
- Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)
- Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND) Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie
- Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités
- Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND) Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail
- MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative
- Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales
- Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales
- Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
- Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines
- Martin, Tony (Sault Ste. Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation
- Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement
- McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)
- McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)
- McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
- McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)
- Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général
- Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
- Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice
- Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)
- Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail
- North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs
- O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
- Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)
- O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)
- O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition
- Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement
- Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)

Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General, Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général, ministre des Services correctionnels

Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)

Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des comptes publics

Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND) Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones

Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre, ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales

Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)

Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)

Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux

Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)

Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)

Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet, Minister of Education/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, ministre de l'Éducation

Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)

Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)

Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)

Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)

Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)

Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques

Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West/-Ouest ND)

Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)

Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)

Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie

Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu

Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND) Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation; Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources

Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé

White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND)

Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister of Government Services/Ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND) PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications

Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)

Winninger, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des Services correctionnels

Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)

Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles

Ziemba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND) Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow
Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli,
Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills,
Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger
Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland
Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan,
Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn
McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson
Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/
Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland
Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison,
Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris
Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward,
Jim Wiseman
Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown
Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis
Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti,
Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott,
David Turnbull
Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean
Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert
Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario
Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters,
Jim Wiseman
Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon
Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford,
Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen,
Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil,
Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve
Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant
Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel
Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George
Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger,
Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer
Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole
Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway,
W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson,
Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson,
Drummond White
Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/
Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Vacant
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant
Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher,
Leo Jordan, Ellen MacKinnon, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht,
John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Drummond White, Jim Wilson
Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters
Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary,
George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp,
Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood
Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano
Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck,
Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod,
Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer
Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/

Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson
Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves,
Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski,
Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger
Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner
Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan
Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini,
Kimble Sutherland
Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Tuesday 15 October 1991

Members' statements

Education policy	2895
Mr Bradley
Liquor stores	2895
Mr Tilson
Queen's University sesquicentennial	2895
Mr G. Wilson
Thunder Bay shopping plan	2895
Mrs McLeod
Health insurance	2896
Mr Callahan
Donna Lailey	2896
Ms Haeck
Development charges	2896
Mr Beer
Northern health travel grants	2896
Mr Eves
Public safety	2897
Ms Carter
Ministerial statements	2897
The Speaker
Parliamentary procedure	2897
The Speaker
Land registration	2898
The Speaker
Cabinet members	2898
Mr Rae
Mr Elston
Mr Eves

Statements by the ministry

Midwifery	2899
Mr Cooke
Hunting and fishing in Algonquin Park	2899
Mr Wildman

Responses

Hunting and fishing in Algonquin Park	2900
Mr Ramsay
Midwifery	2900
Mr Phillips
Mr Daigeler
Mr J. Wilson
Hunting and fishing in Algonquin Park	2901
Mr McLean

Investigation into release of documents	2902
Mr Elston

Oral questions

Food banks	2902
Mr Elston
Mr Rae
Mrs McLeod
Retail store hours	2903
Mr Sorbara
Mr Pilkey
Appointments review	2904
Mr Runciman
Mr Rae
Constitutional reform	2905
Mr Eves
Mr Rae
Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	2906
Mr Conway
Mr Ferguson
Political activity by police officers	2907
Mr Runciman
Mr Pilkey
International trade	2908
Mr Mills
Mr Philip
Use of courier services	2908
Mr Scott
Mr F. Wilson
Niagara Escarpment	2908
Mr B. Murdoch
Mrs Grier
Border communities assistance fund	2909
Ms Harrington
Mr Philip
Pay equity	2909
Ms Poole
Mr Mackenzie
Technological training	2909
Mrs Cunningham
Mr Silipo
Conservation	2910
Mr Johnson
Mr Wildman
Garbage disposal	2911
Mr McClelland
Mrs Grier
Visitor	2907
The Speaker
Newspaper report	2911
Mr White

Petitions

Oath of allegiance	2911
Mr J. Wilson
Mr Beer

Tobacco taxes	2912
Mr Carr
Oath of allegiance	2912
Mrs McLeod
Tobacco taxes	2912
Mrs Cunningham

First readings

City of Toronto Act, 1991, Bill Pr80	2912
Mr Marchese
Agreed to	2912
City of Toronto Act, 1991, Bill Pr86	2912
Mr Marchese
Agreed to	2912

Committee of the whole House

Employment Standards Amendment Act (Employee Wage Protection Program), 1991, Bill 70	2912
Bill reported	2913

Third readings

Employment Standards Amendment Act (Employee Wage Protection Program), 1991, Bill 70	2913
Mr Mackenzie	2913
Mr Sterling	2914
Mr Bradley	2914
Mr Offer	2914
Mrs Y. O'Neill	2918
Mr Harnick	2918
Mr Mammoliti	2920
Mr Tilson	2921
Mr Conway	2922
Mr Bisson	2924
Mr White	2925
Mr Elston	2925
Mr Hope	2926
Mr Stockwell	2926
Mr Mackenzie	2927
Agreed to	2928

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le mardi 15 octobre 1991

Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur les normes d'emploi, (Programme de protection des salaires des employés), projet de loi 70	2912
Le projet de loi fait l'objet d'un rapport	2913

Troisième lecture

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur les normes d'emploi, (Programme de protection des salaires des employés), projet de loi 70	2913
Adoptée	2928

Listes des députés

Les députés et leurs responsabilités Comités de l'Assemblée législative

69 1991

69 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Wednesday 16 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le mercredi 16 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Wednesday 16 October 1991

The House met at 1330.

Prayers.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

CLOSING OF TREE NURSERIES

Mr Miclash: It has come to my attention that the Ministry of Natural Resources is planning to shut down the bare root stock nurseries in Orono, Thessalon and Dryden. There have been several newspaper reports which clearly outline the local employment and economic implications of this action, which would further destabilize already precarious local economies.

I will speak to the situation in Dryden, though obviously the three situations are similar in all but climate.

It has been pointed out that the growing conditions in Dryden differ from the proposed amalgamation site in Thunder Bay. There is a greater chance of frost and wind damage in Thunder Bay since it has frequent periods of cold weather and a smaller amount of insulating snow. It seems only reasonable that trees adapted to the local climate would have a competitive biological advantage.

There is also an expectation that the added distance from nursery to planting site will increase the potential for damage to planting stock and security of supply.

While we all hope changes are made to reduce the impacts of harvesting on the environment, no one can ignore the great strides that have been made in making forest operations more environmentally benign. A large part of this can be attributed to the predictable supply of high-quality replanting stock produced by conscientious and concerned workers. While artificial regeneration is not the only answer, it would be foolish to eliminate an important tool in the battle to ensure a future forest.

CALEDON INFORMATION AND COMMUNITY SERVICES

Mr Tilson: I would like to extend sincere congratulations to the newly renamed Caledon Information and Community Services, formerly Caledon Information Centre, on its 20th anniversary to be celebrated this Friday, October 19.

In 1971, the Bolton Contact Centre was established to provide support to Bolton area residents. As the area has grown, the need for additional services has also grown, and today the Caledon Information and Community Services centre offers critically needed support in a variety of areas.

Caledon Information and Community Services is continually working on various projects aimed towards the establishment of essential community support services such as transit for the disabled in rural areas, a home support services directory and the Caledon assistance fund, which provides posters to be used at local grocery stores.

Caledon Information and Community Services' vision of a three-location multiservice centre located in Bolton, Caledon East and Alton has recently become a reality. This multiservice centre now offers Caledon area residents access to various human service agencies and direct-service government departments without going outside their own community.

I commend the effort and dedication of all those who have played a role in the success of Caledon Information and Community Services over the past 20 years. I truly believe this organization has been and continues to be an excellent investment in the future of the residents of Caledon.

CHEMICAL SPILL

Mrs Mathysen: On Sunday, August 10, at about 7:55 am, a CN freight train derailed at Longwood near the community of Melbourne in Middlesex. Freight cars were twisted and strewn about the site and a vaporous white plume of chlorosulfonic acid rose over the track and drifted southward towards the homes and farms in the immediate area.

The train crew quickly surveyed the situation and notified the CN control centre. In turn, CN notified the appropriate officials and agencies. Within minutes, officers from the Ontario Provincial Police were on the scene to divert traffic, set up roadblocks and evacuate area residents.

Others who responded to the crisis were the Glencoe and Melbourne fire departments, the CN response team, Du Pont, the owner of the spilled chemicals and representatives from four Ontario government ministries, as well as St John Ambulance, the London-Middlesex medical officer of health and the reeves of the two affected townships.

Every precaution was taken to ensure the safety of residents and that proper cleanup was undertaken. Houses were washed down, the air monitored, crops tested, livestock attended by a veterinarian, contaminated site soil removed and the site restored. The Ministry of the Environment continues to monitor area wells.

What I want to convey to the House is the prompt, effective and professional conduct of those who served my constituents so well. Among them were Paul Phillips and Robert Bailey of the OPP; Don Agar, Ministry of Agriculture and Food; Geoff Chandler, Ministry of Community and Social Services; Charlie Murray, Rod Baird and Dan Boehm, Ministry of the Environment; Dr Doug Pudden; Maureen Griffiths, Ministry of the Solicitor General; Joel Blackmore, reeve of Ekfrid, and John Groenenwegen, reeve of Caradoc. Thanks to all.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN ALGONQUIN PARK

Mr McClelland: Last Thursday, in response to a question from the member for Timiskaming, the Minister of the Environment responded in the following manner:

"I am still the champion of the environment but, unlike previous ministers of the Environment, I am not alone in my cabinet in championing the environment. I am one of a collectivity of champions of the environment within our cabinet."

She went on to indicate she would consult with the Minister of Natural Resources about the advisability of moving forward with the request for an environmental assessment, a request filed by the Ad Hoc Committee to Save Algonquin Park.

I can only assume that her good sense and past record on environmental assessment was sacrificed at the door of the Whitney Block as some sort of offering to the good Minister of Natural Resources.

If she and her cabinet colleagues are such champions of the environment, why did the ad hoc committee not receive any communication from her office? There have been no letters, telephone calls or faxes sent by the Ministry of the Environment as of noon today. The Minister of Natural Resources made his decision and, in the result, effectively made the decision for the Minister of the Environment as well.

The citizens making the request surely deserve at least a response from the Minister of the Environment, at least a phone call perhaps, to discuss the validity of their request.

I say to the Minister of the Environment, if this is a cabinet full of champions of the environment and consultation, she has a big selling job to do in the ridings of Muskoka-Georgian Bay, Victoria-Haliburton, Parry Sound, Hastings-Peterborough, Frontenac-Addington and Renfrew North, to name but a few of the ridings where the Minister of the Environment has to sell the idea that she is the champion once again.

AREAS OF NATURAL AND SCIENTIFIC INTEREST

Mr B. Murdoch: I would like to bring to the attention of the House the complete disregard shown to my constituents by the Ministry of Natural Resources office in Owen Sound. This local office has announced to my people that its staff will survey private property, looking for areas which they believe are of natural and scientific interest.

If a land owner objects to this intrusion, a local official has said the ministry will not trespass, but it threatens it will not give any assistance if the land owner wishes to have his or her property rezoned. As well, the local office has told people that if they wish to have the "areas of natural and scientific interest" designation removed, they must pay for their own geologist's expert opinion, and even if this is accepted by the ministry, a public meeting on the issue still has to be held.

This heavy-handedness cannot be allowed to continue. Since there is no mention of ANSI in the Planning Act, nor are they covered under any of the ministry's legislation, the perception exists that local officials are frightening and antagonizing my constituents on a whim.

1340

I have tried on numerous occasions to contact the minister's staff in Toronto by phone on this issue. I have written and faxed letters. Nothing, no response. My constituents are angry and frustrated. They are fearful that their land is no longer their own.

I would ask the minister to quickly explain the actions of his local staff or very soon, I am afraid, he will no longer be able to count on co-operation from the residents of Grey.

CO-OP WEEK

Mr Martin: I am pleased to rise today to recognize Co-op Week, October 13 to 20, and Co-op Day, today, October 16.

To mark these important events, the Canadian Co-operative Association is sponsoring a reception today for members of this House at 5 pm in room 247. Please join with me on this occasion to meet the current and future leadership of Ontario's co-operative sector.

More than two million Ontarians belong to co-operatives and credit unions. The assets of credit unions in this province total over $10 billion. Although credit unions are probably the best known of our co-operative institutions, the co-operative approach has been successfully applied to a wide range of services and enterprises: agriculture, manufacturing, day care, publishing, housing and food services.

In my own riding of Sault Ste Marie I think particularly of several fine examples of co-operative ventures: the Ascu Community Credit Union and the Northern Credit Union; Vesta Housing Co-op, the newest of several housing co-ops; several day care co-operatives, and the Offing Community Development Group, a resource to co-ops in Sault Ste Marie, to name just a few.

The theme this week, as credit unions and co-ops in Canada celebrate with colleagues around the world, is "Together we make the difference." Co-ops and credit unions do and will make an important difference here in Ontario. I am pleased to express this word of congratulations and encouragement to them.

LANDFILL SITE

Mr Offer: The residents' associations in my riding are angry. They are angry at the Minister of the Environment and angry at the Premier. As you are aware, Mr Speaker, the Minister of the Environment has expanded the capacity of the Britannia landfill site in my riding. That site was slated to be closed. Local agreements had been made, plans undertaken, costs incurred, but the Minister of the Environment stopped everything. She has ordered the expansion of the site without any hearing whatsoever. There is no place for the residents to voice their concerns, no forum to discuss the social, economic and environmental impact of the expansion of this site.

It was just over a year ago that the now Premier stated no expansion of a dump site would take place without a full environmental assessment hearing. Now that is exactly what is taking place. The residents in my area have asked to meet with the Minister of the Environment to tell her of the impact of her decision on their community. They will do so in the privacy of her office, at a time and place of her calling. They will do so because they feel this issue is of crucial importance to the future of our community. The response by the Minister of the Environment to this request for a meeting is no.

The Credit Valley Residents' Association and other neighbouring communities are going to be visibly expressing their outrage at this government by marching on the dump this Saturday. As they say in their notice: "Eight million dollars has already been spent by Peel council to select an alternative site, yet the debt-ridden NDP government wants to spend more tax dollars to do its own study. Stand up, be accounted for. Let's stop this government waste." I could not agree with them more.

HEALTH SERVICES

Mr McLean: My statement is for the Minister of Health. Her government is putting delivery of health care services at Orillia Soldiers' Memorial Hospital at risk. Officials at SMH are projecting a deficit of $1.3 million. To deal with this deficit, the hospital is implementing cutbacks which are expected to save $628,500 over the balance of this fiscal year. On an annualized basis, these cuts amount to more than $2.1 million for a full year. SMH is still faced with a deficit of $176,500 this year.

The cutbacks being implemented by the hospital include the loss of 45 full-time jobs, and 22 of the 34 beds on the Elizabeth II ward will be closed. It is my understanding that part of the problem, which I might add is highlighted in the NDP's Agenda for People, is caused by the fact that hundreds of seniors across this province are staying in acute care hospital beds because of a shortage of appropriate support that would allow them to live in their own homes and their own communities. The minister knows that nursing homes and homes for the aged provide care at less cost than if hospital beds are used. Where is her commitment to nurses and the care of seniors in this province?

The cutbacks in health care services are traumatic to this community. The government is providing fewer services to the people of Simcoe East at a time when it is demanding that they shell out more to pay for the government's $10-billion deficit.

The minister is putting health care services at risk in Ontario.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Mr Christopherson: As members know, municipal campaigns are taking place throughout the province in anticipation of election day on November 12. As this is the first municipal election held during this term of Parliament, I know all members wish our municipal counterparts the best in their pursuit of public office.

Having spent five years on city and regional councils, I am well aware of the growing importance local governments play in our communities. It is the level of government that is closest to the people and most affects the quality of life for our citizens.

This provincial government has committed itself to working closely with local governments to enhance their ability to deal with the increasing burden that is placed on them.

I am very proud of the vision brought forward by all our candidates in my community of Hamilton. They have envisioned a future for Hamilton as one of Canada's leading centres from both an economic and quality-of-life standpoint. Our success will depend not only on the strength of our economy but also on the leadership provided by our municipal government.

It behooves all of us at this level of government to commend those outstanding citizens who offer themselves and stand for municipal councils and boards of education. I ask my colleagues on both sides of the House to join me in thanking these individuals on behalf of all Ontarians.

ROYAL ASSENT

SANCTION ROYALE

The Speaker: I beg to inform the House that in the name of Her Majesty the Queen, His Honour the Lieutenant Governor has been pleased to assent to a certain bill in his office.

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees: The following is the title of the bill to which His Honour has assented:

An Act to amend the Employment Standards Act to provide for an Employee Wage Protection Program and to make certain other amendments.

Loi portant modification de la Loi sur les normes d'emploi par création d'un Programme de protection des salaires des employés et par adoption de certaines autres modifications.

STATEMENTS BY THE MINISTRY

ATIKOKAN ASSISTANCE

Hon Miss Martel: Earlier this year my colleague the Attorney General and member for Rainy River, Iain Angus the federal member for Thunder Bay-Atikokan and I visited the town of Atikokan, which is located northwest of Thunder Bay. We were there at a very difficult time.

We attended a public meeting in this small community of about 4,000. At that time, Atikokan was a community in crisis.

The two largest employers, Atikokan Forest Products Sapawe sawmill and Proboard Ltd, a waferboard factory, had closed their doors. Almost 80% of the town's workforce was not working. The people who met with us on that day told us how this crisis was affecting their lives. They wondered if the town would survive and they turned to this government for help.

Since that time, the community of Atikokan has received good news. Last spring, the Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corp and the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology through the Northern Ontario Development Corp, provided $1.5 million in loans to Atikokan Forest Products. The Sapawe sawmill resumed operations and put 160 people back to work.

Today I have more good news. I am pleased to inform the House that the heritage fund has secured a loan guarantee of $3.6 million for Proboard Ltd. This will give the company the working capital it needs to start up again, restoring 190 direct jobs in Atikokan and 143 indirect jobs throughout northwestern Ontario.

This loan guarantee will make it possible for the plant manager at Proboard Ltd to buy the company from its American owners. Unless the company is sold, Proboard will shut down permanently. The Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corp recognizes that this plant is a viable one and supports the purchase.

The heritage fund is securing stable jobs for northerners, whether these are new jobs created through advanced technology or increased business investment or jobs that are restored after initial layoffs. We are helping northerners maintain the dignity that comes with holding a job. Through these jobs, we are helping to sustain the economies of communities like Atikokan.

1350

My ministry will remain active in Atikokan. We have worked closely with the community to make the Sapawe and Proboard transactions possible. The Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corp is also now funding a study, to be conducted by independent consultants, that will act as a guide for future economic planning in the area.

The study will examine Atikokan's potential to become an integrated woods industry complex that will make the best use of the human and forest resources available within the existing industrial and municipal infrastructure. It will also identify specific opportunities for local development and diversification.

The study will be overseen by a steering committee with representatives from labour, the forestry industry and the municipality, as well as staff from the ministries of Natural Resources, Industry, Trade and Technology, my own ministry and the Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corp.

This is good news for the small town of Atikokan, but it is also good news for northern Ontario. Our efforts to create a viable, integrated local economy in one small northern town will provide a model for other towns facing similar problems and decisions for the future.

We are sensitive to the problems encountered by the woods industry across northern Ontario and we are working with all the affected communities to upgrade their operations and expand their markets.

The government is determined to work with all northerners to build a revitalized and more stable economy. Atikokan is no longer a community in crisis; it is an example of what can be accomplished through determination and the co-operation of labour, business, municipalities and the province.

I hope all members will join with me in celebrating the success of this community today.

RESPONSES

ATIKOKAN ASSISTANCE

Mr Brown: I am very pleased and our party is very pleased with the efforts of the northern Ontario heritage fund to help the people of Atikokan. We believe that the people of Atikokan, as in many small communities and even some large ones in the north, are in crisis and in peril, and anything that can be done to help them is something we think is agreeable. We congratulate the minister and the board for their help to the people of Atikokan.

Having said that, we have some concerns about the viability of the entire forestry industry in northern Ontario. We wonder, as most northerners wonder, about their jobs all across the north. We know that community after community is facing difficulties in the sawmilling industry and the pulp and paper industry. We know northerners have concerns for their economic wellbeing in the long-term.

We know the ministry has been plugging holes, kind of sticking fingers in dikes over the past year, but what we are looking for is a viable policy for the forestry industry in the long haul in northern Ontario. We have to know our mills are competitive and viable. We think that is important to northerners and we are surprised, if not shocked, to see the government not moving as an advocate for northern Ontario.

We are surprised that the Ministry of Northern Development and Mines has not led the charge against Bill 118. The Ministry of Northern Development and Mines seems to be for a 44% increase in the price of electricity. Do the members know what effect that will have on the viability of the sawmilling industry in northern Ontario if we increase its costs by 60% during the term of this government? That is what is happening. Do the members know what will happen in the pulp and paper industry, where they are huge consumers of electricity, if they face those same kinds of increases? That attacks the very viability of the northern economy.

Just the other day we had people in from the Ontario Mining Association who were telling us about the effect on Ontario's mines of the projected increases that are going to happen over the term of this government. Many of them may not be viable with a 50% increase in the price of electricity. That affects the northern economy.

Mr Speaker, you probably know, although not all members know, that northern Ontario consumes 13% of the electricity in this province, a disproportionate amount. That is not because northerners are wasteful people. It is because we have resource-based industries that use electricity in large quantities to remain viable.

We have a huge expanse of land. We have residents across 90% of this province who have no choice as to natural gas or any other less costly alternative, and they are going to be hurt by a government policy that is pro high energy prices. It is clearly a government policy, because it is not just with hydro rates; it is with gasoline, it is with a whole myriad of initiatives that this government has taken in order to do whatever its ideology has it do.

What we are looking for is having the north looked after in cabinet. We want policies that make our northern economy viable. We do not want the Minister of Northern Development and Mines standing in this House, making announcements as she did today because the economy is that bad. We want a vibrant, viable economy that will create jobs for northerners and sustain our children's future.

We have been surprised that this government, a party that had always claimed it was for the north, has done things like attack our infrastructure. There is not as much money being spent on northern roads as there was in the past, yet we are collecting more taxes. We look at communities like Sault Ste Marie where the Algoma Steel problem exists, and we are looking for a viable continuation of that enterprise. We look at the Sault and we find it cannot compete with Sault Ste Marie, Michigan, for gasoline prices at the very time this government is increasing taxes on gasoline by 3.5 cents.

We are happy about the announcement the minister made today. We wish she did not have to make this kind of announcement, because the north should be viable.

Mr Eves: To echo some of the comments made by my colleague the member for Algoma-Manitoulin, it is all very well and good for the Minister of Northern Development and Mines to stand in the House and make the announcement she made today, but this is the sort of announcement we have seen all too frequently in recent months. We have seen, just last week, a problem at Sturgeon Falls. We have seen problems at Elliot Lake. We have seen problems at Kapuskasing and many other northern communities.

It is fine to try to address the problem after it has occurred. We are doing nothing, it seems to me, to address the causes of the economic problems in northern Ontario, to use the northern heritage fund for its main purpose which was, as I understood it when it was created, to diversify the economy of northern Ontario, to protect it from being in the vulnerable position that many communities in the north are in, being basically one-industry towns.

We also have to start addressing the issue of competitiveness, which does not seem to be addressed by this government. My colleague the member for Algoma-Manitoulin makes some very good points with respect to power costs, for example. Now here is something the province can do. We are debating the very bill in the House, Bill 118, and we have been for some time. This is something the government can do something about.

I can recall when the minister was a relatively newly elected member in this chamber. My colleague the leader of my party and I spoke in favour of a resolution she introduced in the House. I believe it was the very first piece of business she introduced as the new member for Sudbury East. She was castigating the then Liberal government for its lack of action with respect to economic diversification in northern Ontario. She was calling for the establishment of a northern heritage fund. She was calling for a meaningful fund. I am not quoting her, but I am, I believe, paraphrasing and recalling what she said at the time.

She said that to throw $35 million a year at the problem was a joke, it was insignificant, that it was really just the same amount of money Mr Bernier, when he was the minister, had put into the northern development fund; that if you wanted a true northern heritage fund, you had to make a serious commitment and $35 million a year was nothing other than taking the same dollar figure that was used 10 years ago in this province with respect to economic aid in northern Ontario.

If the government really wants to do something about addressing the root causes of these problems of various communities in northern Ontario, it will do something serious with the northern heritage fund and start addressing the causes instead of the problem after the fact.

Mr McLean: I want to comment briefly on the statement made by the minister, but I want to comment on the part that deals with the study.

The northern Ontario heritage fund is now funding a study to take place for the future economic growth of the north. Different ministries are going to be involved in that study—the Ministry of Natural Resources is one—and so is the forestry industry.

I want to make sure the ministry is aware of some of the programs we believe are being put in place in this province. My understanding is that there could be 30 million fewer trees planted in the future; 30 million fewer trees is a lot of trees for the wood industry. I say to this government that when its people are dealing with this study, that is one of the most important aspects they should be looking at. Over the years the policy has been that we would plant three trees for every one tree harvested. This government is saying it is going to plant 30 million fewer trees. Where is this government's commitment to the forests in the north?

1400

ORAL QUESTIONS

INVESTIGATION INTO RELEASE OF DOCUMENTS

Mr Elston: Yesterday I stood in my place and raised a point of privilege concerning the events of the day and the investigation by the Ontario Provincial Police. The Premier, who could have stood on the same point of privilege at least to comment, chose not so to do.

However, when he left us here in the House to complete question period, he told the press in the briefing session that occurs traditionally after he leaves this place that he would be as upset as I was by the carrying out of government-directed OPP investigations against opposition members. Can the Premier tell us that he has ordered a cessation to this government-directed OPP investigation of our activities?

Hon Mr Rae: I am going to let the Deputy Premier and Treasurer answer this question.

Hon Mr Laughren: Perhaps the members will allow me to give a little background to this issue.

Mr Elston: A point of privilege, Mr Speaker: I asked the Premier to talk about investigations of opposition members. It is a point that I think he should have the courage to stand up and say he does not support. When he took the press outside this House yesterday he told them he was upset. I cannot tell you why he believes he can fob this off on the minister and not answer a very direct and short question.

The Speaker: I must inform the honourable Leader of the Opposition that there is nothing out of order. The standing orders allow ministers, including the Premier, to redirect questions.

Hon Mr Laughren: First, let me make it perfectly clear that what the OPP is doing has nothing to do with an investigation of opposition members. That is a completely unfair and unwarranted allegation on the part of the leader of the official opposition.

Members understand that in the Ministry of Treasury and Economics we deal with a lot of documents that are very sensitive. If they were released before they were supposed to be released, there would be all sorts of situations in which people could realize some monetary gain. If we waited until that occurred, we would surely be criticized by any opposition leader worth his or her salt.

This member certainly is worth his salt. We would be criticized for waiting until a sensitive document had been leaked or released before it was supposed to be. We are simply taking precautions now to make sure this does not happen.

Mr Elston: I say to the Deputy Premier, who is also the Treasurer and also responsible for this investigation, that he will know, and the former Chairman of Management Board of Cabinet, the one prior to the member for Dovercourt's appointment there, confirmed in June of this year that the police had been investigating my colleague the member for Halton Centre with respect to a release of information out of the Ministry of the Environment.

We also understand there is a decision pending in the Ministry of Labour to send the police after whatever they can find with respect to the release of that document around September 1. Will the Deputy Premier and Treasurer ask the Premier, the head of the government, who is directing the Ontario Provincial Police investigations into each of these incidents, to cease and desist and to declare publicly that he does not sponsor, support or direct the public service to support and sponsor his government-directed Ontario Provincial Police pursuits of freedom and democracy?

Hon Mr Laughren: The leader of the official opposition is using the most unfortunate language in his question. I do not think he needs to do that to make his point.

The document that was released 10 days ago was not a sensitive document. The point is that surely we do not want to wait until a very sensitive document is released when it is not supposed to be, because at that point the leader of the official opposition would be quite within his rights to rise to his feet and say: "When you knew the process was not airtight, why didn't you do something about it then? Why did you wait until a really sensitive document was released?"

It is not fair to imply that the OPP is investigating the opposition or any member of the Legislature. We have asked them to examine the process and see where we could tighten it up. It is not a case of our directing them to whom they should talk. They make that determination by themselves, not through us.

Mr Elston: The reason the Premier passed this off was that he was unwilling to take responsibility, even though he knows what is going on in his government. He refuses to stand up and say once and for all that he does not condone the pursuit of opposition MPPs and others by the police, directed by his government.

The Premier directed the current minister responsible for Management Board to quickly issue a report and a public document on whistle-blowing. I guess I have to direct this again to my favourite storyteller from Nickel Belt.

Mr Bradley: The Premier won't answer it.

Mr Elston: Does the Premier want to answer? He does not want to answer.

The current Chairman of Management Board indicated at the time he released his paper on whistle-blowing and the protection of public servants who felt that they should provide the public with an understanding of what was being considered inside government as not applying to protect a public servant who released a document like the Ministry of Labour document.

Will the Deputy Premier and my favourite storyteller from Nickel Belt tell us in the House that the fullest and broadest range of protections will be provided under his whistle-blowing paper and the pursuant legislation and that in fact the release of documents to opposition MPPs will be covered by his protections under whistle-blowing?

Hon Mr Laughren: I wish the member opposite would not confuse the rights of the civil service to blow a whistle, as we say, when there are allegations of serious wrongdoing with the release of a budget document or other sensitive documents from a ministry. There is no relationship whatsoever between those two. This has absolutely nothing to do with the right of the civil service to reveal wrongdoing—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Laughren: —and for the leader of the official opposition to imply that there is some kind of pursuit of the members of the Legislature is completely false. He does his own cause a lot of harm when he engages in that kind of hyperbole and exaggeration.

Mr Elston: Mr Speaker, these guys are trying to intimidate so many of the people in this province. They talk about open government and they are trying to shut us all down. That fellow over there, whose 20th anniversary has just passed, is one of the people for whom I have a great deal of affection and admiration, but not when he talks like that.

1410

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Elston: Mr Speaker, I will not ask the Premier; I will ask the member for Kitchener, who I understand has given about 10 minutes of his time to the press earlier today, to give us a little of his life now to talk a little more about the $400,000 salary he has indicated will be paid to the chairman of Ontario Hydro, even before there is a public review of the salary levels of executives. Will the minister indicate to us that there will be a public hearing on the review of the executive salaries in Hydro at the Ontario Energy Board?

Hon Mr Ferguson: Bill 118 very clearly sets out who will decide the remuneration for the chair of Ontario Hydro. It is very clear.

I have asked the Ontario Energy Board to do an examination not only of the chair's salary but of the other executive positions at Ontario Hydro. I suspect that will be undertaken very early in the spring.

Mr Elston: He did not answer my question whether it would be a public review. Does the minister not know that under the current Power Corporation Act it is the mandate of the cabinet to review and approve the salary of the chairman of Hydro? Will the minister advise us that cabinet has reviewed and approved the salary and provided some basis for approval for the board's decision, which was taken in an interim fashion in September at its board meeting, to pay Mr Eliesen the $400,000 about which the minister has spoken?

Hon Mr Ferguson: It is normal practice for boards of directors of corporations to set the salary for the chair.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Conway: Mr Speaker, would you not agree that premiers who are too chicken to answer questions about the overall mandate of government should not be allowed to heckle? The Premier can heckle only if he has enough guts to stand up and answer questions and defend what the government is doing.

The Speaker: To the member for Renfrew North, my reading of the rules says no members are to be interjecting during debates and questions, regardless of the level of participation by anyone, a rule that does not seem to apply too often.

Hon Mr Ferguson: It is common practice for the board of directors to set the salary for the chairperson of Hydro right across this country and indeed in most provinces. This certainly is not out of step. To my knowledge, at no point has there been any cabinet discussion of Mr Eliesen's salary.

Mr Elston: This minister does not know what he is doing. Let me explain to him that under subsection 3(6) of the act, which talks about remuneration, "The chairman and the other directors appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council shall be paid such remuneration and expenses by the corporation as may be determined from time to time by the Lieutenant Governor in Council," ie, the cabinet. It is not the practice on an ongoing basis for them to do that; it is the ministers' duty as a cabinet to do the work. It is the current provisions of this act which bind them to make sure they do the approvals.

Is it true this member is authorizing the payment of the difference between Mr Eliesen's current salary at a deputy minister's range and the new salary of some $400,000-plus or thereabouts, on a retroactive basis? When Bill 118 comes into effect, will he confirm that and also that they as cabinet people have approved this whole arrangement?

Hon Mr Ferguson: That is not the case at all. I think the operative words in the clause the honourable member just read are "from time to time." I suggest he read it again.

Mr Harris: My question is to the Premier. On May 14, long before the current Minister of Energy was in his place, a letter was written to the Premier from eight members of the board of directors of Ontario Hydro, including the labour representative on that board. The letter states, "In our judgement, Mr Eliesen does not have the experience and the proven managerial record to qualify as the chief executive officer."

Since the Premier overruled, by retroactive legislation, the experts' concerns, could he tell this House what he personally knows that the majority of the board of directors on May 14 did not know? Other than Mr Eliesen's NDP political affiliation, what qualifies him to be chief executive officer of Ontario Hydro?

Hon Mr Rae: Mr Eliesen was chairman of Manitoba Hydro. He was also a Deputy Minister of Energy in Ontario, appointed by the previous Liberal government. Those are the qualifications Mr Eliesen has brought to the office. I will say to the leader of the third party that I think he is quite right when he says there are others who have had a different opinion with respect to Mr Eliesen. The government took the view that we had the right to appoint a chairman of Ontario Hydro, and we have confidence in Mr Eliesen's capacity to act as the chief executive officer and the chairman of Ontario Hydro.

Mr Harris: I think the Premier and this government clearly have changed the rules of the game in order to put a political puppet in charge of Ontario Hydro. If it was political philosophy the Premier wished to inject into Ontario Hydro, he could have appointed him chairman. Nobody argues that this is not indeed his right—he could have appointed him chairman of the board—but many non-partisan experts clearly feel Mr Eliesen is not qualified to act as chief executive officer of Ontario Hydro.

Other than being given similar appointments by other NDP governments—I checked through Mr Eliesen's résumé—one of the longest jobs he ever held was as Ed Broadbent's researcher. That seemed to qualify him for other NDP governments to elevate him into this role as chief executive officer or chairman of a crown corporation, Hydro, in their provinces. Does the Premier really think it is in the best interests of Ontario and of Ontario Hydro to put what is obviously a political appointee in charge of this province's largest crown corporation?

Hon Mr Rae: I think Mr Eliesen's capacities, experience and abilities are a matter of record. He was the chairman of Manitoba Hydro. He was appointed as a deputy minister by the previous government, where he served with distinction, and I think those who served with him will speak of his personal abilities, managerial skill and commitment to public service. I say to the leader of the third party that I think his personal attacks on Mr Eliesen are unfair and unwarranted and that I think Mr Eliesen's abilities will justify the confidence the government has placed in him.

Mr Harris: They are not my personal attacks. They are the judgements of the majority of the board of Hydro as of May 14. I do not pretend to be able to judge whether he has that capability, so I rely on the experts. I understand his political connections, and there are things he can do.

Ontario used to be able to boast low cost and a dependable supply of electrical energy to attract investment, yet one of the first things this Premier's appointee does is to hike rates by nearly 12%. Maybe it is to pay for his Christmas bonus, rumoured to be $75,000. Perhaps the Premier could explain that one. Maybe it is to further cushion his already fat pension package. I hear that if the government can survive six years, it is worth about $300,000 a year; I do not know. But I do know it will further hurt Ontario's competitiveness.

1420

If the Premier wants to play political games, I suggest he play with something other than Ontario's energy and other than Ontario Hydro. If he wanted to give Eliesen a job, there are thousands of political appointments that he makes every year, and they are being filled faster by NDP appointments than I have ever seen in the history of Ontario. The Premier could have hired him to keep John Piper and Gerry McAuliffe company. He could even have made him chairman. But I ask the Premier, why CEO, a position that should be non-partisan, that should be non-political, and that for the sake of Hydro should have a longer lifespan than the life of his government?

Hon Mr Rae: First, let's try to demystify this a little bit. In terms of the letter, the experts whom the leader of the third party describes were in fact political appointees of previous governments, Liberals and Tories. Those are the experts to whom the leader of the third party refers. I have nothing against those people; they are entitled to express an opinion. I read their letter with care and made a different decision.

Second, I hope the leader of the third party would recognize that someone like Hugh Macaulay, who was chairman of Ontario Hydro for many years, was not exactly a figure unknown to the—

Mr Harris: He wasn't CEO.

Hon Mr Rae: Well, he was the chairman of Ontario Hydro, working for it.

Let me say to the leader of the third party that Mr Eliesen has had extensive experience in the energy field. Mr Eliesen has extensive experience in the hydro field. He is someone whose experience and good judgement are, in my opinion, going to be of value to the public of this province. The member's attacks on him are unwarranted and unfair.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Mr Harris: My second question is to the Premier as well. This morning I met with the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. We have over 60,000 farm families in this province, yet this government was barely able to scrape together $35 million. This was $35 million in aid at a time when every other province, every other country in Europe and the United States are massively subsidizing in excess of that. It is less than $600 per farm family, farm families that have investments of from $300,000 to several million dollars on the line.

I wonder if the Premier could tell me this: How is it that the most he could find—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. To the honourable leader of the third party, I regret having to interrupt. It is quite difficult to hear the question being posed because of one of the members on the opposition side. I ask that all members allow the honourable leader of the third party to place his question.

Mr Harris: How is it that all the Premier could find was less than $600 per farm family to help out in this crisis, yet he was able to dole out $417,000 per job for 650 mining jobs in Elliot Lake? Can he explain to me why miners in Elliot Lake mining uranium at four times the world price were worth $417,000 per job, but our farm families with all these investments in their farms, earning substantially less than half what a miner earns, if they are successful at all, qualify for $600 per farm family? Could the Premier justify this priority to me?

Hon Mr Rae: Let me say first of all to the leader of the third party that he is quite right. The Tory contracts on uranium, signed, sealed and delivered by the Tory party of Ontario and handed on to future generations, have proven very expensive. That is what those Tory contracts have done. Finding a way to move away from those contracts without devastating the town of Elliot Lake, when the member's colleagues from northern Ontario have been asking us to do that, to make sure we did not simply devastate Elliot Lake—the leader of the third party has always talked out of one side of his mouth. It is not fair to come in here—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Would the Premier take his seat, please.

There is certain amount of unleashed energy that is quite evident in the chamber. When members have come to order, we can continue, I hope in a little more calm way than we have in the last couple of minutes.

Mr Harris: The Premier, in pointing fingers instead of dealing with reality today, points out that a former government made a mistake in signing long-term contracts for uranium far in excess of the world price. I agree. It is a matter of record. I acknowledge the mistake. We made lots of mistakes and we will make lots more.

But the reality of the situation is that the government is not helping Elliot Lake by perpetuating that mistake at $417,000 a miner for another five years. Where are the Premier's priorities? The $250 million is double what 60,000 farm families, affecting some two million people in communities in this province, need to survive. Where are his priorities? The $600 per farm family is a slap in the face. That is saying to farm families: "Go away, disappear. We'll buy our food somewhere else."

Hon Mr Rae: I really think playing one group off against another, playing northern Ontario off against southern farmers, is the opposite of the way this province, in its best traditions, has seen itself and worked.

No one has worked harder than the Minister of Agriculture and Food to respond to the crisis we are facing. No one on this side of the House believes the $35 million we put forward as a package for this period of time is enough or is the answer. The member has to look at the context of all the other programs that are in place with respect to agriculture in the province. More than $350 million is being put forward by this government in this area. We are continuing to work very hard with the farm community, with the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and with other groups. We recognize the seriousness of the crisis in the farm community.

Let me also say to the leader of the third party that I really think he has to be consistent in terms of the message he is trying to deliver. The message I am hearing from his colleagues in the Conservative Party is cut, slash, cut. Then when it comes to a particular group he meets with, he is only too happy to stand up and say, "I want you to spend here; I want you to spend there." I ask him to show a little consistency in this regard.

Mr Harris: I am happy to show consistency. The Premier's NDP cronies say you cannot hold an opposition party to what it says in opposition. Is that not what they say now? That was the Premier in opposition. You can't hold him to that. He was in opposition; ie, you cannot trust opposition parties.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

1430

Hon Ms Gigantes: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I ask you to rule on whether the member is giving a lecture or asking a question.

Interjections.

The Speaker: All right, whoa. That is enough. I would ask the House to come to order. I realize these are contentious issues, but at the same time there must be a bit of restraint practised.

To the member who raised a question about the question being posed: Members who pose questions normally provide a preamble. The preamble may be interpreted by some to be lecturing as opposed to leading up to a question. Within a short period of time I ask all members to place their questions, to make them direct and succinct. Would the member conclude his question.

Mr Harris: I am happy to continue the lecturing preamble to my question.

Let me say this to the Premier. I said today to the farmers and I am saying this to him—

Interjection.

The Speaker: Order, the member for Sarnia.

Mr Harris: —and I said this as well to the people of Elliot Lake. That $125 million the farmers wanted, I am identifying where the money would come from. I am saying Elliot Lake would have been better off with $125 million in new projects, in investments in the future, instead of uranium at four times the world price, and $125 million would have benefited 60,000 farm families. That is where the Premier can find the money; that is what I am suggesting. I believe I am consistent, I believe I am being honest. I am saying, "Spend the money there, and here is where you can get it."

The Speaker: Would the member conclude his question, please.

Mr Harris: I have the integrity to stand up and say, "Here is where you can find the money. You misspent it in Elliot Lake." What does the Premier say to that?

Hon Mr Rae: This is what I say to that. The decision of this government to ask Ontario Hydro to phase out the operations rather than simply cut them off cold turkey in Elliot Lake was the best way to proceed in the circumstances. It provides the most hope for transition. It provides the most opportunities for an effective transition to the future, for alternative jobs and for diversification. The alternative would have been much harsher for Elliot Lake.

I would also say in answer to the question with respect to Ontario Hydro's decisions regarding the contracts and keeping them in place on a reduced level for a reduced period of time, changing that decision would have no impact on the overall size of what we could do this year with respect to agriculture.

We are going to continue as a government to address concerns of farmers, but I will say this very clearly to the leader of the third party: I will not pit farmer against miner; I will not pit farmer against auto worker; I will not pit farmer against the consumers in this province. That is not the way to proceed. That is not the way to build a better Ontario.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. It is difficult, I realize, but members are going to have to exercise some restraint. A little bit of calm would go a long way.

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Conway: I have a question for the Premier and it follows along questions asked earlier today and yesterday about the salary of the newly installed chairman and chief executive officer of Ontario Hydro.

Since the salary in question is, by my reckoning, the largest salary in the Ontario public or parapublic sector of my acquaintance, certainly the largest salary over which this cabinet has a say, can the Premier indicate to me the following: When his cabinet appointed Mr Eliesen as chairman and CEO four or five months ago, he will acknowledge it had to do so under the Power Corporation Act as amended in 1989. That act, as my leader made plain, makes it very clear that the responsibility for the setting of the remuneration of the chairman's salary rests with the cabinet. Will the Premier indicate, as the leader of that cabinet, what his cabinet agreed to in that connection?

Hon Mr Rae: As I said, it was not dealt with extensively by cabinet at all, but the salary now being paid to Mr Eliesen is his salary as a deputy minister.

Mr Conway: I accept that. Anyone who knows anything will understand what is at issue here. The Premier and Marc Eliesen were party to this deal. I suggest they wrote this deal. According to Hydro, the understanding clearly is that the salary of the chairman and CEO will be retroactive to his appointment date in the spring of 1991. Let there be no confusion on that account. My honourable friend the member for York South is a very bright and capable man. He would not want to insult the intelligence of this Legislature or the public beyond on that point.

Given what the Premier has said, and I think rightly so, about the need for all of us to pull in our belts, to appreciate the tragedy this recession is visiting upon the Ontario community, does he not believe that this salary, reported to be in excess of $400,000 for the chairman and CEO, Mr Eliesen, his friend, his appointment, to say nothing of Mr Holt's salary at some $325,000, should be reviewed by this government, particularly in light of the restraint message that has been given about by the Premier, and that a $400,000 salary, representing a tripling of Mr Eliesen's pay, particularly at a time when Hydro is going to increase the hydro rates by 45%, is inappropriate and contradictory to the Premier's and the government's restraint message?

Hon Mr Rae: Perhaps I will not lay it on the way he has laid it on me, but I will just say to the honourable member for Renfrew North that it is precisely because I felt a review was necessary—first of all, let me say to the member, if he thinks there were any discussions by me with the Hydro board or with Mr Eliesen with respect to his remuneration, he is completely wrong in that regard. He has made that allegation as a statement of fact in the House. I just want to say to him that it is completely false.

The decision of the Ontario Hydro board—and let us be fair again—to set not just the remuneration of the chief executive officer, with respect to the proposed amendments under section 118 with respect to the future—

Mr Conway: You appointed Eliesen under this act.

Hon Mr Rae: Let me just finish. I listened carefully. That is right, and under this act he is being paid a deputy minister's salary. With respect to the future, the Ontario Hydro board has made a recommendation. ■

Mr Elston: Bob Rae, come on.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Rae: I am being interrupted by the Leader of the Opposition. I wonder if he would let me reply.

Mr Elston: Listen, Bob, you are telling us a story that is unbelievable.

The Speaker: Order. We actually were doing quite well.

Mr Conway: You would call that lying. You would have called me a liar if I had said that in here 18 months ago. You look after Marc Eliesen. Do something for my farmers.

The Speaker: I ask the member for Renfrew North to come to order.

1440

Hon Mr Rae: If I could just respond both to the Leader of the Opposition and to the member for Renfrew North, it is precisely because the numbers became known to me that I discussed this with my cabinet colleagues and others and we said, "This is a concern." Then we looked at the other salaries being paid in Ontario Hydro to senior vice-presidents, to presidents, to senior executives, and that is precisely why we decided we wanted to have an independent review by the Ontario Energy Board to give us its opinion with respect to what comparative salaries there are.

That is exactly what we have asked for. I do not want to prejudge that review the cabinet has asked for. I do not want to prejudge what the conclusions of that review will be. I know this is going to fall on deaf ears, but I would ask the honourable member to be fair with regard to the whole situation and the entire level—

The Speaker: Would the Premier conclude his remarks, please.

Hon Mr Rae: I see the member smirking. We all know what that smirk means.

Mr Conway: It's my Bob Rae smirk.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Mancini: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: Some six months ago, giving a speech in the Legislature, I used the same term that the Premier has just used about words falling on deaf ears. The member for York East immediately rose, and I want to know why the member for York East was so anxious to rise in my case but sits in his seat when the Premier uses the same words.

Hon Mr Rae: If I may shorten this discussion, I apologize to the House and to the member for York East.

HAZARDOUS WASTE

Mr Cousens: I have a question for the Minister of the Environment, who is now better known as the Minister of Garbage. The Minister of the Environment has to be aware of some eight barrels of PCB-contaminated oil that have been left unsecured in a residential neighbourhood in Hamilton. According to the Hamilton Spectator, officials from the Ministry of the Environment have known since July 12 about the existence of these barrels. The ministry has left the barrels of PCBs there, placed them in stronger barrels maybe, but left them on the present site.

Will the Minister of the Environment please explain to this House how her ministry could so flagrantly ignore this hazard for over three months and why these barrels of PCBs have not been moved to a secure facility?

Hon Mrs Grier: Let me begin by saying that we have certainly not ignored these barrels for the last three months. We were contacted on June 27, 1991, by a person who asked for our assistance to dispose of the barrels. He was informed that they were his responsibility, that they were on his private property and that he must have the contents analysed, the barrels secured and the waste in them looked after. He indicated he was financially unable to do that and as a result my ministry staff instructed him to make sure they were securely stored. The stronger barrels the member referred to were provided. They are sitting on private property on a site that has been fenced, and we have been endeavouring to work with the region, the local municipality, to have them moved to a safe site approved for storage of PCBs.

Mr Cousens: The people in Hamilton are certainly not satisfied with the solution the minister has been working on since June 27, when she first heard of it. It even becomes worse when that length of time has elapsed.

None the less, there is a larger question here that has to do with PCBs. I have raised with the minister before the issue of the whole question of the storage of PCBs in the province. We still have PCBs in Whitby harbour. In fact, there are literally hundreds of storage facilities across this province with PCBs ready for disposal. What is the minister's long-term strategy for PCBs? How are we going to deal with PCBs in Ontario? We cannot just keep fencing them up. We cannot just keep leaving them where they are. We have to have a solution to this very important matter. Could the minister tell us what her long-term strategy is?

Hon Mrs Grier: I think it is a very fair question. It is a problem of a material that is hazardous when burned, as we have seen happen accidentally, which exists in storage sites all across this province and there are no easy solutions to dispose of it. As I am sure the member is aware, Environment Canada announced in the summer of 1988 a five-year phase-out program for PCB waste, including high-level liquids. I think it is fair to say that my ministry, although I was not the minister at the time, waited in anticipation of some solutions to the issue from Environment Canada. Those have not progressed to the level that will allow us to deal with the issue.

We are certainly preparing regulations and looking into what kind of a provincial action plan we can put in place, but in the meantime let me assure the member and the people in Hamilton who are concerned that there are many storage sites for PCBs which, when safely secured, are perfectly appropriate until we find a safe solution to the problem.

CAT SCANNER

Ms Haeck: My question is for the Minister of Health. She recently announced new eligibility criteria for hospitals seeking the Ministry of Health's approval to purchase and operate computerized axial tomography scanners.

Mr Bradley: This is a Jim Bradley question.

Ms Haeck: As she is aware, people in my riding, St Catharines-Brock—and obviously the member for St Catharines too—as well as those throughout the Niagara region, have expressed their desire to have at least one more CAT scanner operating in the region. Can the minister tell me, and obviously the many interested viewers, how hospitals go about applying to purchase CAT scanners?

Hon Ms Lankin: I know the member for St Catharines-Brock has expressed great interest in this, as have other members of the House from the Niagara region. It has been an ongoing topic of discussion I have had with members from that area.

On September 20 we announced a new policy with respect to hospital acquisition of CAT scanners. I just want to let everyone know that those guidelines were developed co-operatively with a working group. It involved the Ministry of Health, the Ontario Hospital Association, the Ontario radiologists' association and the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario. It was felt new guidelines were needed because we are dealing with a technology which, when the original guidelines were put in place, was thought to be new and revolutionary and one we should control the expansion of tightly. I think we view it now as a technology that should be used instead of older diagnostic methods.

Hospitals have been informed of the new guidelines. They are asked to submit proposals in keeping with those guidelines, and we will be also seeking advice from district health councils with respect to their recommendations as well.

Ms Haeck: As a result of a recent meeting of the Niagara District Health Council with myself and a couple of other members, the council advised us that it has received four proposals from local hospitals regarding CAT scanners. Can the minister possibly tell us, and obviously the many viewers watching, what will happen if the district health council recommends that more than one scanner should be purchased for the Niagara Peninsula?

Hon Ms Lankin: If the district health council, in its assessment of the region, feels that more than one is required, the ministry will look at that. There is a list of criteria that must be met and the district health council's recommendation will be very important, but there are other things we will be looking at.

They will consider needs assessment, showing justification. That will be part of what they look at. They will also look at the impact for both the hospital and the regional health care system. From the ministry's point of view, we will be looking at whether a business case has been made, whether relative cost-benefit analysis has been done and whether the hospital is in an operating deficit or not. Those sorts of criteria will be the responsibility of the minister to review.

I should also say that there were 10 outstanding requests from hospitals. In fact, a couple of those are from the Niagara region. Those will be dealt with first before we go on to new proposals that are coming in.

1450

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Elston: I have a question for the Premier. I wonder how the gentleman who has told us that he has asked for this independent review by the Ontario Energy Board can explain to us that as of noon today my advice is that the Ontario Energy Board has not been advised that it is to conduct such a review.

Hon Mr Rae: It was my understanding that this was to be done. We certainly reached this conclusion some time ago, and as far as that—

Mr Elston: When?

Hon Mr Rae: Some time ago.

Mr Elston: I wonder if the Premier will tell us when they decided to have this review conducted.

Hon Mr Rae: It is my recollection that it was a matter of a few weeks ago that this decision was made.

Mr Elston: And no transmission?

Hon Mr Rae: I can only tell the member that was when the decision was made.

TRUCKING INDUSTRY

Mr Turnbull: My question is to the Treasurer. Two weeks ago, the Ministry of Transportation released a study on the trucking industry in Ontario. It concluded that the Ontario truckers are at a competitive disadvantage to their US counterparts. According to the report, costs of repair, maintenance, fuel and overhead are lower in the United States. David Bradley, president of the Ontario Trucking Association, is quoted in the Windsor Star as saying, "This industry is still reeling from the first round of diesel fuel increases, and the thought of paying higher taxes in January is simply too much for many truckers."

I am sure the Treasurer will admit this report clearly shows that the Ontario trucking industry is in crisis. Will he not today please cancel the second level of the fuel tax increases?

Hon Mr Laughren: There is no question whatsoever that the trucking industry in this province is in some difficulty. I perused the report to which the member refers. To be fair, I think the report does indicate that a short-term fix is not the answer to the problems in the trucking industry, that while the problems are serious, they are basically structural in nature. It is simply a fact that there are too many trucks for the amount of goods to be hauled. In my view, a reduction or a cancellation of a fuel tax increase that is set for 1992 would not resolve their problem, so, no, it is not my intention to cancel that proposed tax increase.

Mr Turnbull: In a letter the Treasurer wrote to the Ontario Trucking Association, he stated that the tax was necessary for environmental reasons. I would put it to the Treasurer that having more American truckers deliver goods in Ontario is going to do nothing to help the Ontario environment.

Fuel is not a luxury for truckers; it is a cost of doing business. This tax is going to add an average of $2,000 out of the pockets per trucker per year. They are already experiencing financial difficulties. How will this tax help the environment when truckers have no money to buy more environmentally efficient equipment?

Hon Mr Laughren: To be fair, I indicated in my previous response that the problems in the trucking industry are more structural than they have to do with the price of gasoline. I might add that the price of gasoline is not irrelevant in the cost of doing business for the trucking industry. I appreciate that fact. I would also remind the member, though, that there is a prorated charge on American truckers who drive in Ontario for the price of gas they pay here.

Mr Turnbull: You're not policing it well enough.

Hon Mr Laughren: I am telling the member that is simply the case, and fair-minded observers of the trucking industry will confirm it when I say that the real problems in the trucking industry are, first, deregulation on both sides of the border. The member opposite should know as well as anyone that the federal deregulation is hurting the trucking industry, as did the provincial deregulation. Second, the recession has had a major impact on the trucking industry as well. There is absolutely no question about that. Finally, we believe we went some way when we put a moratorium on the issuance of any new licences. It is not as though we have simply been sitting on the sidelines watching the trucking industry go through its difficulties. As a matter of fact, we look forward to some kind of positive response from the federal government as well.

COMMUNITY INFORMATION CENTRES

Mrs MacKinnon: My question today is to the Minister of Culture and Communications. As the minister knows, the community information centres provide a highly personalized information and referral service to all their local communities. It is important to keep in mind that the role of the community information centre is especially crucial during tough economic times, which we find ourselves in now as a province.

As the minister is well aware, her ministry funds 58 out of 81 centres, and the CIC in my riding of Lambton county is included in that number. Unfortunately the overall funding for community information centres is quite low. Taking this into account, what is the minister's commitment to the CICs in Ontario?

Hon Mrs Haslam: I understand the member is concerned about community information centres and the funding. I would like to point out that many other MPPs here as well as cabinet people have met with their local CICs to discuss the funding. Her question was, what is our commitment to the CICs in Ontario? The Ministry of Culture and Communications is leading a team to conduct a review of public access to government human resources information. One of the things we are looking at is how CICs fit into the information network, as well as partnerships with other ministries.

I would like to point out that after three days in the ministry I visited a CIC in Parkdale and was quite impressed with the work they do. I am taking a very good interest in these.

Mrs MacKinnon: Is the minister implying that her ministry does not intend to continue to fund the CICs, and if this is the case, is the minister not aware of the importance of the community information centres to local communities in Ontario?

Hon Mrs Haslam: As I mentioned, I did visit a CIC in Parkdale. They do play a very important part in our communities. I was impressed with what they do and the new database some of them have. I was shown how they work in the community. I would like to point out that in 1991-92 they received a 5.5% increase in operating grants and I would like to assure the member that we are doing everything we can with respect to CICs and the issue of funding the CICs.

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Elston: I have a question for the Minister of Energy. We were just told by the Premier that weeks ago they had decided to talk to the OEB and have it conduct the investigation of the salaries we have been discussing here in the House. I wish to quote from the minister in his answer to the member for Renfrew North yesterday, October 15, "I will be asking the Ontario Energy Board to do a review of all the salaries of the executives at Ontario Hydro." Can the member who is now minister responsible for energy in this province tell us why he has not carried out the instructions of the cabinet and the first minister?

Hon Mr Ferguson: First of all, as the member knows, the board will not be meeting until this spring to look at the matter, so I did not feel—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Ferguson: As a result, I did not think time was of the essence in putting together the letter to send to the energy board. However, I want to advise the member that I have already viewed two drafts of the letter. I was not happy with the first draft or the second draft. When the final draft is prepared and signed, I will be more than happy to provide him with a copy. Might I also add that publicly I have been on record numerous times as saying that I will be asking the energy board to examine this matter.

Mr Elston: It is interesting that as of September 4 the Premier had received a fax from a group of people who were concerned about the $400,000 salary and had asked him to intervene and to send, I guess, a policy direction to the board of directors to deal with the issue of the salary. Here we have the Minister of Energy, however, confirming the fact that there will be a retroactive payment, a double payment, to Mr Eliesen pending the review by the energy board some time in the spring.

1500

Will the Minister of Energy tell us here today that there will be no retroactive payment to Mr Eliesen between the date of his original appointment and the date of the completion of the passage of Bill 118 in this House and that in fact Mr Eliesen will receive only his deputy minister's salary up to the end of the review conducted by the Ontario Energy Board?

Hon Mr Ferguson: Mr Eliesen will receive whatever he is entitled to receive. He will not receive two salaries. Members opposite are trying to infer that on the one hand he is going to receive a Hydro salary retroactive—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Has the minister completed his response?

Hon Mr Ferguson: On the one hand, members opposite are trying to infer that Mr Eliesen, who is currently drawing his deputy minister's salary, will receive that salary up until the passage of the bill. Once the bill is passed, they are inferring that he is going to get this retroactive package and, in essence, draw two salaries later on down the road. That is not the case at all.

This government is doing what the Liberal government never had the courage to do. We are asking the Ontario Energy Board to do a fair comparison, not only of Mr Eliesen's salary but of the salaries of the other senior vice-presidents and directors at Ontario Hydro. We are asking them to compare their salaries with those at the other major utilities across the country to make sure they are fair, to make sure they are in line and to make sure the public is being served.

EASTERN ONTARIO VEGETABLE GROWERS' CO-OPERATIVE

Mr Villeneuve: In view of the absence of the Premier and the Minister of Agriculture and Food, I will ask the Deputy Premier about problems being faced by the Eastern Ontario Vegetable Growers' Co-operative.

This is the only processor of vegetables in eastern Ontario. Last year, they did $26 million worth of business. They have met with the government, they have met with the Minister of Agriculture and Food and they have met with the Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Food. They are short $500,000. We are not talking about the kind of money that de Havilland or some of the northern communities got or the increase the civil service got; $500,000 is the difference between staying in business and shutting down the production of 12,000 acres of vegetables in eastern Ontario.

Will the Deputy Premier and his government look at this in a positive light and send them a clear message that this government is going to reach out and give them a hand?

Hon Mr Laughren: Rather than give the member opposite an inadequate answer, I would prefer to take it as notice, talk to the Minister of Agriculture and Food and get back to the member.

PETITIONS

TOBACCO TAXES

Mr Carr: I have a petition signed by 1,468 residents of Ontario. It reads as follows:

"To the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas the present high levels of taxes on tobacco products are excessive and contrary to the interest of Ontario's two million smokers; and

"Whereas high tobacco taxes are contributing to retail theft and to our province's cross-border shopping crisis; and

"Whereas these punitive taxes and resulting lost sales are contributing to inflation as well as costing jobs in Ontario; and

"Whereas high cigarette taxes are regressive and unfair to low- and modest-income citizens,

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That Ontario's tobacco taxes should not be increased in 1991 and further that these taxes should be repealed and a new lower and fairer tax be introduced."

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr J. Wilson: It is my privilege to rise and present a petition to the Legislature of Ontario on behalf of the good people of my riding of Simcoe West. The petition reads as follows:

"Whereas the Queen of Canada has long been a symbol of national unity for Canadians from all walks of life and from all ethnic backgrounds;

"Whereas the people of Canada are currently facing a constitutional crisis which could potentially result in the breakup of the federation and are in need of unifying symbols;

"We, the undersigned, respectfully petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to restore the oath to the Queen for Ontario's police officers."

That is signed by a number of people from Collingwood, Wasaga Beach, the township of Nottawasaga, Sunnidale and the village of Creemore. I too have affixed my name to this petition.

REPORTS BY COMMITTEES

STANDING COMMITTEE ON REGULATIONS AND PRIVATE BILLS

Mr White from the standing committee on regulations and private bills presented the following report and moved its adoption:

Your committee recommends that Bill Pr1, An Act respecting the City of Toronto, be not reported, it having been withdrawn by the applicant.

Motion agreed to.

STANDING COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

Mr Runciman from the standing committee on government agencies presented the committee's 15th report and moved its adoption.

The Speaker: Pursuant to standing order 104(g)(11), the report is deemed to be adopted by the House.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

ELEVATING DEVICES AMENDMENT ACT, 1991 LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LES ASCENSEURS ET APPAREILS DE LEVAGE

Mr Ruprecht moved first reading of Bill 139, An Act to amend the Elevating Devices Act.

M. Ruprecht propose la première lecture du projet de loi 139, Loi modifiant la Loi sur les ascenseurs et appareils de levage.

Motion agreed to.

La motion est adoptée.

Mr Ruprecht: This bill would require landlords of residential premises containing elevator devices to enter into an agreement for regular maintenance of the elevators. It would also require landlords of residential premises to keep elevators in service except during such times as the elevator has been taken out of service for maintenance, repair or replacement.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

POWER CORPORATION AMENDMENT ACT, 1991 LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LA SOCIÉTÉ DE L'ÉLECTRICITÉ

Resuming the adjourned debate on the motion for second reading of Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act.

Suite du débat ajourné sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 118, Loi modifiant la Loi sur la Société de l'électricité.

Mr J. Wilson: I am pleased to rise once again today to speak on Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act. Just to recap, as a starter, my remarks of October 3, I spent a great deal of time debating this bill with members of the government. As we get back to Bill 118, we recall that the bill makes the chairperson of Ontario Hydro the chief executive officer of the corporation. He is not only chairperson, but Marc Eliesen, the government's NDP appointment, also becomes the CEO of Ontario Hydro.

Bill 118 increases the membership on the board of directors of Ontario Hydro from 17 to 22, an attempt by the government—albeit a successful attempt, since it has a majority in this Legislature—to stack the board of directors of Ontario Hydro in favour of the NDP and its socialist policies. Bill 118 also allows the Minister of Energy to issue policy directives that would be binding on the corporation.

1510

I will stop there for a moment before I continue with what else the bill does. Subsequent to my debate and my colleagues' debate in this Legislature on Bill 118 on October 3 and 4, we read in the Globe and Mail on October 5 that the Municipal Electric Association was giving some praise to the government because the Minister of Energy had made an announcement pretending to appease the concerns that had been raised by the Municipal Electric Association and by public utilities commissions in my riding of Simcoe West, the town of Wasaga Beach, the town of Collingwood and the amalgamated town of Alliston, Beeton, Tecumseth and Tottenham. Those concerns though, I and my colleagues are here to tell the government, have not been alleviated by the Minister of Energy's announcement.

The Globe and Mail reported in a headline on October 5, "Utilities Win Bout Over Bill 118." Marv LeClair, the chairman of the Municipal Electric Association, is quoted as saying, "We are delighted that the government has realized that Bill 118 was unacceptable legislation that could not go forward without major changes."

The Minister of Energy apparently had written to Mr LeClair on the Wednesday of that week, the minister apparently welcoming "the input and constructive proposals." The minister's office issued a news release saying it would work on proposals for implementing fuel substitution based on further consultations.

Mr LeClair, at the end of the Globe and Mail article, said: "We argued that Bill 118...would allow any government to force Ontario Hydro to do anything the government said, and then make electricity consumers pay for it through a hidden tax grab."

I say to Mr LeClair, to members of the public and to members of my riding that this has not changed because the Minister of Energy put out some pappy socialist press release that in reality, when one examines it, did not really in any way address the concerns expressed by the people of my riding, hydro consumers in this province, both large and small, and the Municipal Electric Association. In fact, as my colleague the member for Lanark-Renfrew, our Energy critic, pointed out on October 3:

"The amendments to Bill 118, as presented yesterday, are a joke. From the beginning, this legislation has been flawed and unnecessary. This week the government bungled the delivery of new amendments by having a backbencher, instead of the minister, attempt to deliver the joke.

"I can see the minister being embarrassed to deliver it, because the amendments vaguely address only subsection 9a(1) by the addition of the following: 'On matters relating to the corporation's exercise of its powers and duties under this act.'

"Ontario has no guarantee in the future of a reliable source of power at cost." That was the crux of my argument that day also. "Policy directives still give the minister too much power. Fuel switching at Ontario Hydro customers' expense is ludicrous and not an acceptable business practice.

"The government will not save 700 megawatts of energy. It will transfer it into 2,389,100,000 BTUs of fossil fuels at the expense of the ratepayer," and create more pollution in the process. "The government will do this in a dictatorial fashion, without the approval of the elected municipal governments."

The message I would like to send out in my short remarks today, because I have spoken at length on this bill in the past, is that the Municipal Electric Association should not be fooled by the Minister of Energy's attempt to address its concerns. Those concerns are real.

If one takes a look at the amendments, sure, the government says it has now put some limits on its ability to give policy directives to Ontario Hydro for anything it wants Ontario Hydro to do, such as the assistance package it gave to Elliot Lake through Ontario Hydro, some $250 million in job-maintaining money to Elliot Lake and Kapuskasing. Sure, the government says it has put some limitations on that and the board of directors of Ontario Hydro will continue to have some say in how Hydro is run, but the fact is the NDP is stacking the board. They are increasing the membership from 17 to 22—NDP appointments.

They are giving a salary to Marc Eliesen, the new chairperson and chief executive officer of Ontario Hydro, of $400,000 a year. Yesterday I read—I am sorry, I could not find the source this morning; I think it is sitting on my desk in Collingwood—that he is also getting a year-end bonus of some $75,000. The government denies this. That is arguable. We will have to wait until the estimates come in next year to see exactly how much money Marc Eliesen makes over the year.

Ontario Hydro itself tells us in a memo of September 10: "Rod Taylor, director of Hydro's executive office, has advised me"—and this is to one of our policy researchers—"that Mr Eliesen did not request a salary of $400,000 as the media reported. Mr Taylor said that when the amendments to the Power Corporation Act are made in the upcoming session of the Legislature, Ontario Hydro will compensate their CEO at a level the board has deemed appropriate for that position."

That is consistent with what the minister has told us. It is not necessarily $400,000, but the board will decide what it will be. "And by the way, we've stacked the board, so if we want him to get $400,000, he will get $400,000."

Hon Mr Wildman: What did you guys pay Hugh Macaulay?

Mr J. Wilson: The Minister of Natural Resources may want to listen to this. He may learn something.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Farnan): Order. Will the member take his chair, please? The honourable minister, the member for Algoma, will facilitate the process of this House if he refrains from constant interjections. The member will continue.

Mr J. Wilson: Actually, I do not mind getting under the skin of the Minister of Natural Resources, the minister responsible for native affairs, because I do not like NDP socialists very much. I like him as a gentleman and as a member outside this House, but I do not like their policy. If some of the things I say get under their skin, tough. I know they are having a tough time as a government. They have kind of gone for a nosedive in the polls, but it does not mean they have to heckle opposition members who are trying to point out the errors of their ways.

What they should do is listen. They accuse other governments of never listening to the people. When it comes to Bill 118 and a number of other pieces of legislation, we are trying to find the essence of why they want to do this, why they want to socialize Ontario Hydro. They should come clean with the public. They should tell us what their true agenda is.

The Acting Speaker: Order. The member will take his chair, please. The Chair has already pointed out to the government member to refrain from interjection. I think the member will do well to speak to the issue before us for debate.

Mr J. Wilson: I think if you review my comments, Mr Speaker, you will find that I was addressing the issue at hand. You may take liberty with my remarks, but I will protest if you do.

Going back to relevance to the bill, going back to the comments about Mr Eliesen's salary, Mr Taylor at Ontario Hydro has confirmed that it will be in the $400,000 range. The minister tells us today that Bill 118 does not make the chairman's salary retroactive, that Marc Eliesen is continuing to get his $140,000- or $150,000-a-year deputy minister's salary. He tells us also today in answer to questions by both the member for Bruce and my leader, the member for Nipissing, that the government has asked the Ontario Energy Board to do an assessment and review of the salaries of the chairman and other high-ranking senior officials in Ontario Hydro.

Let's look at some of the salaries across the provinces. This is what the review will likely find. In some instances we were not able to find exact salaries and I beg the indulgence of the House there; for instance, Maritime Electric. If a member of the Legislature cannot get the answers, I do not see how the Ontario Energy Board has any greater right or any greater privileges than I do as a member.

Maritime Electric would not tell what it pays its chief executive officer, and admittedly Newfoundland Light and Power would not either. New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, though, did say. Carol Estie, the compensation manager for New Brunswick Power, confirmed that its CEO receives $124,000 a year, and that compensation level, to be fair, is currently under review. I do not think it is contemplating $400,000 though.

Saskatchewan Power Corp also says it is unable to report what its chief executive officer makes. This is great. This is just as bad as in Ontario. Manitoba Hydro says its chief executive officer makes $122,500 annually. At the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority apparently the CEO earns $175,000 annually; Hydro-Québec—now there is one that is comparable to Ontario in terms of size—a fairly large salary, $212,000.

1520

In the other provinces reported, nobody makes near what the NDP is planning on paying its appointee. I understand it was unconscionable for the Liberal government to pay its chairperson of Ontario Hydro the astounding salary, but my understanding there is that it had a couple of people at a lower salary. The government has combined the jobs, given it to one person, granted, paying him an astronomical salary. It is still going to have to justify this.

To talk specifically about some of the concerns of public utilities commissions, I just want to relay once again the concern of the public utilities commission in Sault Ste Marie. In a letter to my leader, the member for Nipissing, Mr Hugill, chairperson of the public utilities commission in Sault Ste Marie, first of all begins by stating in the letter—and this is the same for all PUCs whether in my riding or in any of the 312 PUCs in the province—“Our mandate is to provide a safe and reliable supply of electricity and water to our customers at the lowest feasible cost.”

Just to go on to the letter, the chairperson talks about how the PUC, being at the grass roots, is very much responsible and directly responsible to the electorate and to the ratepayers. It says:

“Our concerns lie in the fact that Bill 118 is a direct attack on the long-cherished principle of power at cost.” On October 3, I spoke a great deal about power at cost and that long-standing principle. “Ontario has, since 1906, followed the principle of power at cost and has reaped the advantages of a strong and competitive industrial base over these many years, with the key element in this being the supply of electricity by Ontario Hydro and public utilities commissions.

“However, Bill 118, if passed as written, would change the fundamental relationship between government and Ontario Hydro by allowing the government to issue policy directives that are binding on Ontario Hydro even if they have nothing to do with Hydro’s current business, that being the provision of safe, reliable electricity. Bill 118 would change Hydro’s mandate to include anything the government says it should, such as social assistance or regional development. The effect is that the local electricity consumer will pay for these directives through electricity rates.”

We are told that the expected rise in hydro rates for consumers—that is, household consumers and business consumers of hydro—the compounded effective rate could be anywhere from 35% to 45% over the next three years. Needless to say, that will drive another peg in the economic coffin of this province and continue to drive more businesses out of the province since we are not competitive now; we are the highest-taxed jurisdiction in North America.

If the government raises hydro rates because it has some sort of socialist philosophy and new mandate for Ontario Hydro, it is going to drive more businesses out of the province. Heed our warning. Please listen to us. We are echoing concerns, bringing concerns from our constituents, from public utilities commissions that know their business, that know the business of Hydro in providing safe, affordable, reliable electricity far better than any member of this government. The government should listen to them.

I want to read another paragraph from the public utilities commission of Sault Ste Marie because it is reflective of several hundred letters we have received in our caucus on this bill. It says:

“The net effect is that Bill 118 will force electricity rates up, resulting in economic hardship for Ontario residents and businesses, and discourage much-needed economic growth. We are already seeing the negative effects of misguided policy on the Ontario economy, and strong action to oppose the government is required.”

Just for the record and for the interest of all members, the member for Nipissing, leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party, responded by saying to Mr Hugill:

“As you are no doubt aware, our party is opposed to Bill 118. We object to the provisions which allow the government of the day to issue policy directives which are binding on Ontario Hydro. The open-ended nature of this bill essentially allows any government to force Ontario Hydro into actions which may well be based on nothing more than political considerations and not necessarily in the best interests of consumers.

“This NDP initiative puts the integrity of Ontario Hydro at risk and may result in the utility engaging in activities beyond its mandate of providing safe, reliable power at cost.”

The member for Nipissing goes on to say:

“In fact, as we have seen by recent appointments and policy directives such as the Elliot Lake assistance package, the current NDP government is already using Ontario Hydro as an instrument to further its own political, social and economic agenda. The cost of these and other so-called government initiatives will be unfairly borne by the hydro consumers over and above the actual cost of power.”

The government did not have the courage, when it was bailing out northern Ontario communities, to come back to the Legislature, to be honest with the people of Ontario and say, “We’re going to bail out Elliot Lake, Kapuskasing and Blind River, and it may require a greater deficit.” Our option would be that they had the courage to come back to this Legislature and say: “We’re going to take that money from other expenditure areas. We’ve now decided that northern Ontario is a priority, so we’re going to put in $250 million to save 600 jobs.”

That is well over $400,000 a job. It would be better to give these people an annuity, put the $400,000 in the bank for them and let them live off the interest. They could live the rest of their lives quite comfortably.

None the less, they did not have the courage to come back to the Legislature and be honest with people, as they campaigned about so often, so they direct Ontario Hydro. They do it, in my opinion, without legislative authority. I do not know where they get the authority to do this. They have done it. Now Bill 118 is here. They are asking for the legislative authority. We are being asked as legislators to give them retroactive legislative authority for something they have already done, which they have not consulted with the people on.

This all flies in the face of what the NDP candidates said in the last election and what the Premier has said for years. He has said for years that he did not like retroactive legislation, that governments must be honest and open and forthright with people, yet in every act the government has taken, it has taken the opposite approach. We are told by some of their strategists: "That was then, that was when we were in opposition, but this is now. We're in government."

It is totally unacceptable, but we are willing to work with them. We realize this government is here for the next three or four years. Our role in opposition is to try to bring some common sense back to the system, to show them the error of their ways, whether it be in Bill 118 or the myriad of other socialist legislation they have brought in and are bringing in. We will be here to do that. We will be here to join with the people of Ontario to try to bring some common sense back, and we hope the government will listen. We hope on Bill 118 they will listen, because they are going to do irreparable harm.

As I said in my remarks on October 3 and will say again in conclusion today, God help the next government in this province. They are going to have to clean up the NDP's economic disaster. They are going to have to straighten out Ontario Hydro and the brownouts that will probably occur at that time. We are told by the Ontario Energy Board, for instance, that the government's misguided $6-billion energy conservation program and directives will not save enough electricity to ensure that Ontario remains competitive and that we have some economic growth over the next years. In fact, their misguided policies will lead to brownouts in five or six or seven years' time.

They will not be the government then. They will be in opposition, screaming like they have always done, about brownouts in the province. We will probably be the government and we will have the inability, as is so often the case, to explain to the public, "Six years ago, we tried to explain this was what was going to happen." We have already had brownouts, as I mentioned in my remarks in the House on October 3, in the town of Collingwood and that area.

They have created unemployment through the bailout in Kapuskasing. They protect 600 jobs in the north, but the effect in my riding has been to put at least two contractors I know of and their staffs out of work over the winter season and through next year, because some $16 million was taken out of the Hydro region in my riding, had to be diverted to head office so head office could put it in the kitty to help the government bail out northern Ontario communities.

1530

Do two wrongs make a right? Does saving some mining jobs in the north give the government the right to put people in my riding out of work?

I would hope the answer is obvious to the government. I would hope the government would realize that the $16 million that was diverted from my riding was being used very sensibly on a long-term and ongoing project to upgrade the lines through our area so that we can address the brownout problem that is already occurring in parts of the province and parts of my riding.

The government's solution seems to be to drive out major industry and it is going to save a whole pile of megawatts. That is hardly an economic strategy. That is hardly an industrial strategy. They may be able to go back to their environmentalists in a few years and say: "We didn't build any more nuclear power plants. We lived up to that campaign promise." I do not know what they are going to say to the hundreds of thousands of people who are being put out of work though as a result of their misguided policies, as a result of hydro rates that are going to go through the roof in the next few years.

We know this from objective people. We know this from people who do not have a political axe to grind. We know this from a number of good servants in this province who are trying to lay the facts out before the government when it comes to Bill 118.

I will yield the floor soon because I understand the government House leaders have come to an agreement that there will be some more public debate on Bill 118 and we welcome that. There will be two weeks of public hearings outside of Metropolitan Toronto and in the communities of Ontario. There will be another week back here in Toronto and there will be a week of clause-by-clause review of Bill 118.

I hope on this piece of legislation that the government will listen and act on what it hears. I think they have not quite read Webster's Dictionary or they do not have a full understanding of the Oxford meaning of consultation. It requires not only meeting and listening but also taking what has been heard in a meeting and incorporating that as part of the decision-making process and acting upon what has been heard. That is the part of the formula and the part of the definition of the word that this government fails to understand, I believe.

I would ask during the hearings and further debate in this House on Bill 118 that the government listen and bring some common sense back. They should save themselves. They are not going to be the government in three or four years if they continue to act in the manner they are acting. They will not be the government. Even their socialist coalition will fail them. Believe me.

They must bring some common sense back to government. They cannot just use the words "common sense" because we use them. We mean it, and we have a long track record of using common sense in this province. They have to actually show the people of Ontario that they are governing with the best interests of all Ontarians in mind, that they are not captives of a few groups only but that they have the good interests of all Ontarians in mind.

Simply that is what I would ask the government to do, to listen and to govern for all the people of Ontario.

Mr Huget: I listened with interest to the comments of the member for Simcoe West. While I certainly do not agree with any of his projections and speculations, and that is quite clearly what they are, I would remind him, though, in terms of the specific issue of the Municipal Electric Association and its concerns, that the Ontario Minister of Energy on October 2 announced that the government would introduce changes to Bill 118 in order to address the concerns and some of the misunderstandings that have arisen since the bill was introduced in June.

The minister said the government is determined to make Hydro truly accountable to the government for the first time in Ontario history and at the same time equip the corporation with further powers to save electricity and ultimately bring cost savings to electricity consumers.

He also specifically noted that the changes he was proposing were designed to clarify misunderstandings and concerns raised since the bill was introduced in June and, in particular, he identified clearly the concerns of the Municipal Electric Association and a number of the municipal electric utilities. He was clearly seeking to be responsive to their concerns.

When he opened debate on Bill 118, the minister also said the government would be listening closely to what is said. He informed the House that the government would be responsive where appropriate. The government and he are responding to those concerns.

Sections of the bill will be clarified to ensure the government's intent that any policy directives that are issued relate to the corporation's exercise of its powers and duties under the act and do not lead to an extension of these powers and duties by means of government directives.

That is the intent of Bill 118. There are no hidden agendas. There are no hidden motives. I do not think it serves anyone well to hear members of the third party go on a tangent about non-existent policy.

Mr Ruprecht: The member for Simcoe West makes two compelling points that I know you will appreciate as Speaker. One is that the present NDP government will no longer be the government. We could of course go on about that discussion, which I will not.

But the second compelling point he makes asks the most important question of the debate: What is Hydro all about? What is the mandate of Hydro? Is the mandate of Hydro to continue in some kind of social experiment? Or is the mandate of Hydro to provide power at cost? If it is the latter, to provide power at cost, then what the member for Simcoe West indicates is very logical, namely, the inability of this government to rein in Hydro to the point where power at cost is the main mandate and the main point.

It is clear that if, indeed, Hydro decides to provide millions of dollars for social experiments in the north, in the south, in the east, to the point where they might even want to get into eradicating our food banks, then we would have to ask the question again that the member for Simcoe West raises.

Obviously, as we read the bill, as we read hopefully the new amendments, as we understand the whole question of the debate, Hydro is organized to provide power at cost. Consequently, social experiments must be paid out of another kind of budget. Hydro cannot be held at ransom to the point where these kinds of experiments are being paid from that budget; it should be another budget. The Treasurer has to figure out from what budget social experiments are being paid. While we would agree to some extent that some of these issues are correct, nevertheless the main focus must be on the mandate of Hydro.

Mr Johnson: I listen today with some concern because I think the members opposite have not understood maybe as well as I have, maybe as well as other members of the government have, exactly what the purpose of Bill 118 is. The idea that Ontario Hydro is going to be some kind of a social service agency is appalling and it is wrong. I did not read that in Bill 118, and I think for them to stand on the other side and tell the people of Ontario that this is a fact is wrong. I think that is wrong. It is incorrect.

I think the people of Ontario have expected that all along they have been paying for their hydro at cost and unfortunately, because of bad management many years ago in the province of Ontario and maybe bad management in Ontario Hydro, but I would say at least from the government side of management, we find ourselves today in a position where we have to increase the rates dramatically. That is unfortunate, but the people in Ontario understand that they must pay for their hydro at cost, and fortunately we are working to make sure these costs are kept to a minimum.

1540

Mr Conway: I want to pick up on something the member for Simcoe West said about the growing controversy concerning the chairman and chief executive officer. I know that members on the government side are anxious to point out that in a previous incarnation Bob Franklin was not just chairman but president and CEO, all of those jobs rolled into one. What we now have is a situation in Bill 118 where Mr Elieson, a very good friend of the Premier, an active New Democrat—and I do not hold that against him. I do not think the government should be embarrassed by—

Mr Hope: Then why do you keep bringing it up? You must have something against it.

Mr Conway: Why do I bring it up? Mr Speaker, if you will restrain your colleague.

The Acting Speaker: Order, please. I would ask the member to address the chair with his comments and not to speak directly across to members and have a conversation.

Mr Conway: I expect you to restrain our big-mouthed friend, the member for Chatham-Kent.

The Acting Speaker: Please take your seat. I ask the member for Renfrew North to direct your comments through the occupant of the chair and we will not have this situation in the House.

Mr Conway: And I ask you, Mr Speaker, as an impartial referee, to restrain the loquacious member for Chatham-Kent, whose interjections in this House are becoming increasingly interesting. There was one earlier this afternoon that, had I been in a less pleasant mood, I would have been up and I think I could have embarrassed him to some extent.

I want to make the point that what we have got in Bill 118 is a retroactive provision that concerns the powers and the remuneration of Mr Marc Eliesen. There is no question that Mr Eliesen wrote Bill 118. He was in a complete conflict of interest as he empowered himself. What we have got now is an individual who is going to be paid apparently some $400,000-plus, with obscene pension provisions, to be chairman and CEO at the same time as we have Al Holt earning some $325,000 plus bonus to be president. I am very concerned that we have got a political hack as the CEO of Ontario Hydro.

The Acting Speaker: The member's time has expired.

Mr Conway: The NDP has a right to appoint a political hack as chairman, but I cannot remember when we had a political hack as CEO.

The Acting Speaker: I would ask all members to try to keep within the two-minute time frame. The member for Simcoe West has two minutes to respond to questions and comments.

Mr J. Wilson: I appreciate the member for Parkdale's support of some of the comments I made. I appreciate the member for Renfrew North clearing up who is getting paid what at Hydro and when. I would say to the member for Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings, an NDP member, that either he is right or 312 public utilities commissions in this province are right. I would ask him to weigh that for himself. Either 312 public utilities commissions and the Municipal Electric Association are right in their contention about the effect—not what is actually written in the bill, the legal jargon in the bill, but the effect it will have on real men and women in this province and hydro consumers.

He should not debate with me, I would say. His debate is with the 312 public utilities commissioners and the public utilities commissions and the almost 10 million people who consume electricity in this province. Those are the people he is here to represent. Those are the people he is responsible to. For his own sake, I hope he responds in an open and fair manner and comes clean with the people of Ontario.

Mr Wiseman: I am pleased today to rise to continue the discussion on Bill 118. I would like to begin with a few general points. The bill says, "There shall be a board of directors of the corporation consisting of a chairperson, a vice-chairperson, a president, the Deputy Minister of Energy and not more than 18 other directors." That is in the bill. That is a fact. It is reality, or will be a reality. "The deputy minister shall not vote at any meeting of the board." The deputy minister has been assigned to this board to create a greater liaison between the government and Ontario Hydro in order to encourage greater accountability.

The next subsection is, "The chairperson is the chief executive officer of the corporation." It is my understanding that this was the way it used to be. This is merely a return to the way it used to be.

"The directors appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council, other than the chairperson, shall be paid such remuneration and expenses by the corporation"—and this is the section that has created great angst for the members across the floor, that the chairperson shall be paid and that this should be determined by the board of directors.

I would now like to move to subsection 9a(2). One of the issues that is important in this debate is the issue of the accountability of Ontario Hydro to the Ontario government, not just the NDP government but presumably governments in the future that way down the road will also have to deal with this. They say that this is going to be a one-way street, that there will only be one direction of directives, that there will only be one way that Ontario Hydro will receive directions about what it should do. This is not the case, because subsection 9a(2) states, "Before issuing a policy directive, the minister shall consult the board with respect to the content and effect of the directive on the corporation."

In a consultative process it would be hoped that the power of argument and the persuasiveness of argument would prevail and that the direction Ontario Hydro would then choose or the government would then choose for Ontario Hydro would be clearly discussed and agreed upon in these consultation processes. We know, and the honourable member for Renfrew North has implied on many occasions, that this is not going to be without political and ideological considerations. This may or may not be the case, but it has been my experience that when rational, intelligent people sit down and discuss issues from all sides, you get better policy. It is the hope and the intent of this section to create that kind of an atmosphere.

Subsection 9a(3) says, "The directors shall ensure that policy directives are implemented promptly and efficiently." So they should be.

Subsection 9a(5) says, "The board shall report to the minister whenever it exercises a power or performs a duty to which a policy directive relates," therefore establishing two-way communication between the board of directors of Ontario Hydro and the government of Ontario.

I would like to turn now to some of the other issues that have been raised with respect to this bill. I would like to ask a question. Where do you find social experiments in Bill 118? There is no area in here where it says social experiments are going to be the case. What we have seen with Elliot Lake and Kapuskasing is this government's commitment to the belief that contracts entered into in good faith should be met. The residents of Elliot Lake came to Queen's Park and made persuasive and compelling arguments that they moved to Elliot Lake in good faith, believing that there would be a 20-year supply of uranium from that community to Ontario Hydro. They uprooted their previous lives and moved to Elliot Lake in good faith because that was the bargain that was struck there.

I for one believe that a bargain entered into should be a bargain kept, unlike perhaps some of the other members who would dissolve those bargains for the expediency of price. What price can you put on the disrupted families, the destroyed lives, the broken promises and the torn-apart dreams of the people of Elliot Lake if you do not at least try to stick to the bargain that was made and entered into in good faith with them? I would be very disappointed in any government that would not do that.

1550

The cost of hydro in Ontario: This is a very important part of the debate, but it is only implied through the bill that costs are going to be increased. I would like to point out that the cost of building the Darlington nuclear generating station has put excessive burdens on the cost of generating electricity in Ontario. In fact, it has added somewhere in the neighbourhood of $13 billion to the cost, to the debt guaranteed by the taxpayers of Ontario.

I do not believe any private corporation could have incurred that kind of debt without the kind of guarantees the province of Ontario has put up for Ontario Hydro. Power at cost, cost when, cost paid when and who pays. The federal counterparts of the Progressive Conservative Party take great pains to say that the federal deficit is a deficit on our children. I find it strikingly odd that they would not carry the comparison over with Ontario Hydro.

Having said that, the cost of bringing hydro into the marketplace is still going to be 25% to 30% lower in this jurisdiction than it will be across the border, and it is clear from what I have learned about the Clean Air Act in the United States that this cost advantage to Ontario is going to grow and become much larger. If I could just digress for a moment to explain that, I think it would be useful to the House.

The Clean Air Act in the United States is going to be implemented through what are called tradeable permits. How is this going to work? The first thing that is going to happen is that the Clean Air Act in the United States and its implementation over the next four to five years is going to reduce the volume of SO₂ emissions by at least 10 to 12 million tons, to a cutoff level of 13.5 million tons. The SO₂ emissions that are remaining will be distributed: 8.5 million tons to the utilities commissions, and five million tons to other industries.

All the SO₂ emissions will have to come down to that ceiling level. That is going to be a very costly process, especially for the midwestern United States, which has to put in coal scrubbers and machinery to remove the SO₂. So their costs are going to have to go up, because predominantly they are becoming more and more reliant on coal generation, as there are very few, if any, nuclear power plants being built in the United States. What will then happen—this should cause some concern to those of us who are concerned about the environment—is that if a utility commission reduces its levels below the allowable levels on its permits, it can then trade the surplus to other utilities commissions around the United States or within its own organization to come down to the levels.

It is going to create huge amounts of costs within the United States, which will give Ontario a cost advantage because we have the capacity—non-nuclear capacity—available to us. Ontario Hydro, in its own report, made this fairly clear, that there is unused capacity in the system which can be expanded to supply energy.

The scare and fearmongering I have heard here about brownouts, about patients who are hooked up to lifesaving equipment losing that because Ontario Hydro has lost the capacity to generate, is nonsense in the extreme. They are more likely to suffer the consequences of electrical interruption with a storm or a tornado—since we are getting them here in Ontario now—or hurricanes, which we have also had, or high winds where trees knock down electrical wires. But even with that, I do not know of a hospital anywhere in Ontario that does not have a backup diesel or gasoline generator. So it is patently unfair to indicate that we are going to have people all over the province, such as at hospitals, losing their electrical energy in cases of emergency.

I would like to continue by pointing out that within Ontario Hydro and within Bill 118 there is a section for a conservation program. "The cost of an energy conservation program to a municipal corporation or commission may be treated by it in its discretion as a current operating expense or as a capital expenditure." Rather than see that as an added burden to the taxpayers of Ontario, I think we should see this as an opportunity to move forward with energy conservation in programs that will allow us to free up electricity that then can be used to expand the industrial base and to promote economic recovery in this province.

I would like to be able to rise today and say that Ontario Hydro is the leader in this area, but unfortunately under the previous administrations Ontario Hydro has lagged far behind private sector companies in the United States that are doing even more. I would like to point out that the Southern California Electrical Utility Co, or SCE, in the United States has hired its chief adversary, an environmental lawyer who was able to cause that utility some $6 million in embarrassment with a lawsuit that he brought forward because it was being negligent in its environmental responsibilities. They hired him, an environmentalist, as their chief executive officer and put him in charge of the fifth-largest privately owned utility in the United States. What would it be if we should have had some of them with Ontario Hydro for the last 10 years?

As I said earlier, it is somewhat disappointing to me to read that a private sector company is able to do so many things—and still make a profit—that Ontario Hydro has not yet even considered doing. It is being dragged into the 20th century kicking and screaming, and having what I would consider to be archaic thoughts being projected across the floor from certain members.

I should say that the chief executive officer's name is John Bryson and what he has said is, "Why build a 1,000-megawatt plant in the teeth of opposition from not-in-my-backyard activists when you can get the same return by conserving the equivalent amount of power?" Is this not what Ontario Hydro is doing under the New Democrats? Is this not what we want it to do; that is, to conserve energy?

How are they going to do this? They are going to do this by selling $13 to $18 energy-efficient lightbulbs for $5. I smiled when I read that, because that is exactly what we have taken a lot of heat for in Ontario, having Ontario Hydro do the same thing. It is okay in the private sector, but if a public sector company does it, then somehow or other it is wrong. I have a little difficulty with that.

1600

SCE also pays industry customers to buy efficient motors and pumps. Ontario Hydro has the same kind of program to encourage an industry in my riding to move towards the efficient rewiring of motors and gives it grants and support to do that. Ontario Hydro has given a grant, thousands of dollars, to a company in the riding of Simcoe West, Lemmerz-Magna Industries, to improve the energy efficiency of its ovens for aluminum smelting processes, and it is part of this program that can be expanded under Bill 118 that puts me under duress. In fact SCE, a private company, has invested $105 million in conservation that will grow to $2 billion on sales of $7.4 billion, considerably less than what is available to Ontario Hydro.

In some cases I think the private sector is further ahead and that we could learn from it and proceed. This energy that will be available will be a huge incentive to attract industry to southern Ontario and encourage economic renewal.

That is not all this company is doing. Southern California has one of the greatest pollution problems in the United States. They have temperature inversions where carbon monoxide levels become very high and where people who are asthmatic have to stay indoors and have special air filters on their windows so that they can have clean air. Southern California is perhaps being forced to move much further and much faster than other jurisdictions that do not suffer temperature inversions.

To that end, their requirements for energy are becoming more strict in terms of how clean that energy is going to be. In fact, SCE is considering starting a multibillion dollar program where it will supply service stations. Instead of buying gasoline in the service stations, one will be able to exchange one's batteries for batteries owned by SCE and have battery-operated and battery-driven cars. Mr Bryson of SCE is also looking into the expansion of electrical rail systems throughout southern California, which is something I think we could look at here.

There are examples around the world of what can be done, and that is why section 95a, the cost of conservation, is an important section. In the past the utility has shown a reluctance to do these things on its own, and it is important for us to make sure we move ahead.

I do not want to spend a lot of time this afternoon talking about this, but I would like to close by saying that we face an important environmental consideration, not just here but around the world. We are faced with a situation where coal generating stations in eastern Europe, for example, have completely devastated certain areas of eastern Europe, like Silesia, where the pollution levels are very high.

There are alternative methods to generating electricity other than burning fossil fuels. In my own riding, for example, I have one too many landfill sites. But the Brock West landfill site, which contains about 15 million tons of garbage from Metro and Durham, produces methane gas and, through a co-generation agreement between Ontario Hydro and Eastern Power Corp, is now burning the methane gas from that landfill site and producing electrical energy.

Mr Runciman: How much?

Mr Wiseman: That is a good question. I do not think it is big enough to—

The Acting Speaker: Order.

Mr Wiseman: Sorry, Mr Speaker. I will answer the question later.

The amount each of these generating stations can produce individually may not seem like a lot, but according to the Ontario Hydro study, the total amount that is possible in Ontario through what it calls the non-utility generation plan is somewhere in the neighbourhood of 2,107 megawatts of non-utility generation. This is a fair amount of electrical generation.

Mr White: How many nuclear stations?

Mr Wiseman: I think it is at least two Darlington stations. But I think Darlington has one reactor up about 30% and the rest are still having problems. That is one of the problems. I am glad the member raised that because it is an important point.

The opposition member for Lanark-Renfrew has indicated on more than one occasion that we are going to run out of electrical generation capacity over the next few years. I do not think he is right, but his solution is to build another nuclear power plant. We have been building Darlington for a number of years and it still is not up and running, not to mention the fact that Ontario Hydro at Pickering is running at about 63% capacity. I do not like to run down Ontario Hydro. In terms of electrical utilities it is an excellent one, but I think we have to be realistic about the comments we are making. I have a lot of residents who work at Pickering and at Darlington and they are constantly making me aware of the importance of that option.

However, having said that, it takes an awfully long time to build a nuclear power station that works. It is stretching the imagination a little to think that we could build a nuclear power station overnight, and that is the kind of image that is being left.

In closing, since this is second reading, this bill still has to go to committee with its changes. There are possibly other amendments available, but I think this bill takes us down a road we need to take. We need to look at energy as a component for economic renewal. We need to look at it as a component of forming the basis of the new industrial growth that has to happen in southern Ontario. It is through this bill that we are going to get a better interplay between Ontario Hydro and the Ontario government, so that when the goals are set and policy directives are arrived at there is consultation, discussion, a focus for long-term growth and a mutual understanding of how that growth can be achieved in partnership and co-operation.

I support this bill and thank members for the time.

Mr Conway: I have just a couple of very quick points. I was interested in what my friend said about Elliot Lake, and I want to take him back to the order in council signed by the Lieutenant Governor on behalf of the new government here in June. I said a couple of weeks ago, and I repeat, that any scrutiny of that order in council makes it plain that the Bob Rae government blackmailed Ontario Hydro into a $250-million regional development scheme for Elliot Lake. There is no question about that. A reading of the order makes that abundantly plain. I have no difficulty with an assistance package for Elliot Lake, but I have a great deal of difficulty with making the hydro ratepayer pay that bill.

The member makes a good case for certain aspects of government policy and I respect him for that. If he wonders why people are concerned about this government's policy and this bill, it is because of what we have already seen. We have seen chapter 1 at Elliot Lake and chapter 2 at Kapuskasing.

The second point my friend raises is the whole conservation ethic. No one in his or her right mind could oppose the conservation ethic. Of course we have to do more. In an age of plenty some decade or two ago I suppose we ought to have done more, but the supply at that time was much greater than the demand and we got into some pretty conspicuous consumption habits.

1610

What I object to about the conservation ethic, and more particularly about the conservation policy that is being advocated by some, is that for those of us like myself and others—I think of the Minister of Tourism and Recreation, for example—who essentially represent rural constituencies, the farmers have no option.

I was talking to a dairy farmer the other day. His hydro bill is $12,000 to $13,000 a year. The conservationists want to drive that rate up to $20,000 in two or three years' time. That is a 50% increase, and the farmer has no choice. There is nothing he can switch to.

The Acting Speaker: The member's time has expired. I would appreciate it if all members would adhere to the time allocation, especially members who are experienced in this chamber.

Mr Conway: Do you have a point you would like to bring to my attention, Mr Speaker?

The Acting Speaker: I believe I have made my point. My job is to keep good order.

Mr Conway: And balanced order; a good referee sees both sides.

The Acting Speaker: I am trying to do that, precisely, as fairly as I possibly can, and appreciate your co-operation in that regard.

Mr Mammoliti: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: My colleague the member for Renfrew North used the term "blackmail." He said the Bob Rae government blackmailed Ontario Hydro. Is it parliamentary to use that word in this place? I would like you to rule on that perhaps.

The Acting Speaker: I thank you for bringing this matter to my attention. I will review Hansard. I am not sure of the language that was used and the connection in which it was used. I assure you I will review the record.

Mr Hope: I would like to comment on my colleague's analysis of what is going on around Ontario Hydro and what we see in the United States and other parts of this world.

When I have talked to the agricultural community and also the business community, one of the major concerns has been consistency in energy policy. There really has been no direction in energy policy. A lot of them have been entrapped by changes of direction in governments all the time.

One of the important elements brought out in my colleague's speech today was the issue of dealing with management direction and making sure the leadership capability is there to meet the needs of the communities we serve. Indeed for the rural members it is very important that when we formulate policy for Ontario Hydro, we make sure the leadership is there to assist those rural areas, especially my own, and that the agricultural community, the farmer, the small business person who is changing or making sure his plans are energy efficient is not being led down the garden path and that the energy policy will not change two, three or four years down the road.

We should start to reflect on this bill to make sure the direction, the leadership ability, is there. As my colleague pointed out, a number of private enterprises are providing energy and making major strides. Meanwhile Ontario Hydro still has a long way to go.

Mr Ruprecht: I have listened to the comments of the member for Durham West very carefully and I can only come to the conclusion that he suffers from selective perception. On this side of the House we have a memory. If I did not know any better and thought only in skewed terms he might even have a point. But essentially the point is that we cannot shift to alternative sources of energy.

His suggestion that we should get into electricity for cars may be a good one, except that the prediction is that three years from now electric energy will cost over 50% more, if you add 44% and the GST and other taxes. Under those circumstances we simply cannot think about any alternative sources of energy. We would not be able to drive an electric car simply because for most of us it would be too expensive. To talk about electric cars and not to include a cost-benefit analysis in this kind of statement is ludicrous. I would think the member for Durham West in his brief remarks—he has two minutes left—might address himself to the fact that I predict the rates will be over 50% in three years, and cars may not be able to driven under those circumstances.

Mr White: I would like to commend my colleague the member for Durham West on his talk. As usual, he has demonstrated excellent research and knowledge of this whole issue. I think his survey of the issue is very comprehensive. I would like to pick up on a couple of points he made.

One that I have had brought home to me very acutely recently is that people are sick and tired of huge hydro rate increases, increases they were not prepared for because in the past the cost of hydro was disguised and hidden from them. The actual, real cost has to be dealt with. It has to be part of the economic renewal package.

The conservation issues my colleague mentioned are very significant as well. Those conservation issues, those environmental issues, and the economic renewal package have to go hand in hand. There are real costs, and there are also real costs in ensuring the most sound environmental, ecological generation of power possible.

Part of that, of course, is conservation. Part of that is a diversity in the activities Ontario Hydro offers. Ontario Hydro has been renowned for tremendous feats of engineering, but it has not been renowned for a huge diversity and variety of engineering, such as is starting to be the case with this government. We are starting to generate real diversity in terms of conservation techniques and energy savings. Those energy savings will have tremendous benefits in the long term. Those are the issues that my colleague brought up and that I would like to commend him for again.

Mr Wiseman: I would like to respond to the member for Parkdale. The reality of the automobile and the need to move to a more energy-efficient method of transportation is being defined in the United States within the Environmental Protection Agency and within the Clean Air Act.

In order for a fleet—and “fleet” means all the cars produced by a company such as General Motors—to reach the tradeable permit standards allowable in the United States, the company is going to have to reduce the number of emissions that are available. They can do that within the fleet by trading off emissions created by gasoline against the tradeable standards created by battery-driven automobiles to bring them down to acceptable emission levels. There is no choice in this. This is going to be law within the United States. The Big Three auto makers in the United States are well aware of this and are working towards creating fleets that contain cars driven by electrical energy alone.

I would hasten to add that if it is economical to put a car into the southern California market, where costs for electrical generation are anywhere from 30% to 40% more costly than they are here, we should be able to do the same thing with our cheaper energy. The greater the diversity, the cheaper the energy. I wish I had more time because there are more examples of where energy efficiency and energy ingenuity are creating a good basis for economic growth.

1620

Mr Brown: It is an important debate that is taking place here today and that will take place in this Legislature over a period of time, because this is in my view a very important bill before this House and one that needs to be considered very carefully.

I have had some interest in Hydro issues and energy issues in this province since my election in 1987. I sat on the select committee on energy in both its incarnations in the previous Parliament, once as the vice-chairman. Because of that I consider it a privilege to be able to offer at least some views on this bill.

I also think it is important that I have something to say because I happen to be our party's critic for northern development. In my view and the view of our caucus, those in the north will perhaps be the ones who suffer the most because of this piece of legislation.

Third, I am entering into this debate because I represent the riding of Algoma-Manitoulin, a riding that includes the city of Elliot Lake. I think it is important that we state our position and state clearly our party's view and my view, which has been consistent over time, about Hydro's proper use and Hydro's obligations to the community of Elliot Lake.

I would like to talk for a moment about the luxury, maybe, of being in opposition. The luxury of being in opposition is that you can present your views in any manner you wish and hopefully the public will believe you. That is what you strive for, to have the people believe you have a better view of the world than the government party or the other opposition party or whatever interest group might be out there with some particular view. That is what you do.

When you go to government, there is a report card. When you go to government, you can see the effects of your policies. They are not debated on some college campus, about whether this was correct or incorrect. The people have a report card. They can see clearly what the result of that particular policy is.

With Bill 118, with the amendments to the Power Corporation Act, we are going to be able to judge in 1994 or 1995, or whenever, whether the bill delivered the goods, whether the bill did what the government said it would do. It is not going to be some academic debate; it is going to be a matter of public record. I think the realities are not going to be as pleasant as the government would have us believe.

I have received, as have many members, letters from hydroelectric commissions. I have only three hydroelectric commissions in my riding. Two of them are very small and another is in Espanola. This letter happens to be from Espanola, which as an aside is the energy conservation capital of Ontario. This is a community that is a pilot project; it is power savers. The community has got together with Ontario Hydro to put together a program to buy energy conservation. This is a program that is rich. This is a program that will help my constituents in Espanola keep down the costs of electrical energy. But this is an experiment. Hydro is to find out after two years how much real conservation it can buy, and at what price, and price is important.

The hydroelectric commission in Espanola says:

“On behalf of the Espanola Hydroelectric Commission, I am writing to express our opposition to Bill 118. Bill 118 threatens to destroy Ontario's long-cherished principle of power at cost by making electricity rates a new source of tax revenue for the provincial government.

“Under Bill 118, the provincial government would be able to issue policy directives that bypass the democratic legislative process binding on Ontario Hydro and that could force Hydro to do things that are outside its current mandate: the provision of safe, reliable electricity. In addition, Bill 118 would force Ontario electricity consumers to pay for these policy directives through their rates. This is unacceptable.

“We also object to the sections in Bill 118 that permit Ontario Hydro to subsidize fuel substitution through electricity rates. This is unnecessary, as market forces alone are enough to encourage certain types of fuel switching.

“The Espanola Hydroelectric Commission supports the campaign of the Municipal Electric Association to change

Bill 118 in the areas of policy directives and fuel substitution. Bill 118 is flawed legislation that sets dangerous precedents and allows a new, hidden tax grab by the provincial government."

This is what is being said by a hydroelectric commission that is in the throes today of one of the most active energy conservation programs in the entire world—not just Ontario, the entire world. They are not happy. They understand the ramifications of this bill, the intent of this bill and the public policy this bill represents.

I have a little bit of memory about what has happened on power corporation issues in this place in the last three or four years. What I find pretty difficult to understand is that we had Bill 204, a bill put forward by the former Liberal government that divided the positions of chairman, chief executive officer and president in a way that was not done before. Under this piece of legislation, the chief executive officer was also to be the president and not the chairman.

What is interesting is that not only did we debate the bill in this place, but it went to committee hearings. There was a long and useful public hearings process on Bill 204. What is really interesting about all this is that as far as I can discover, having sat through most of it, the NDP did not have a particular problem with that bill. Quite frankly I cannot recall whether it voted against or for it on second and third reading. The reason I cannot recall is that there was no recorded division. If they were opposed, it was not a strong opposition. Out of that, they agreed to these things. They agreed to what the Liberals wanted done.

What really was done there? In Bill 204, we got a memorandum of understanding between Hydro and the Ministry of Energy to foster greater co-operation and co-ordination of the provincial electricity system. The terms of the MOU also directed Hydro's board of directors to ensure that Ontario's electricity was provided at the lowest possible cost over the long term.

There was a strengthening of Hydro's mandate for energy conservation programs. Ontario Hydro was given authorization to provide incentives and technical assistance to encourage more parallel generation. There was increased public awareness and involvement in the overall rate-setting process and a requirement that Hydro submit its long-term strategic plan and annual operating plans to the Ministry of Energy.

It had a requirement that Ontario Hydro submit regular system development plans to the Minister of Energy to detail Hydro's most up-to-date forecast of electricity demand, plans for conservation, energy-efficient measures, power purchases and generation proposals. It had the designation that the chairman of Ontario Hydro be a separate position from that of chief executive officer. The NDP had no problem with this, or at least only minor opposition.

1630

To point that out, I have the NDP's great and wonderful solution to Bill 204. This is kind of interesting, if you look at this. This is what those good old New Democrats wanted to see added to Bill 204. Actually, it was an agreement of the entire committee, a unanimous agreement, that we send this letter to the then minister. This is heavy-duty stuff that shows they had a real problem with the way Ontario Hydro operated. What they said was:

"The select committee on energy has completed its hearings and deliberations on Bill 204. During the course of those hearings there were a number of issues brought to the attention of the committee by deputants which do not bear directly on Bill 204 but which relate to the practical implementation of items dealt with in the bill or matters directly related to the consideration of Hydro's preferred plan.

"The committee believe that the question of avoided costs must be resolved quickly. The committee feels it is imperative that this item be a part of the public review of Hydro's preferred plan. The select committee on energy was made aware, through presentations to the committee on Bill 204, of concerns regarding the review of Hydro's long-term plans, the monitoring of Ontario Hydro's conservation and energy-efficiency programs and the strengthening of the role of the Ontario Energy Board. We hope that you and the Ministry of Energy will carefully consider these concerns when developing and implementing further policy and legislation. The committee feels these matters are of urgent concern."

Does that sound to anybody out there as if they had great problems with Bill 204, a bill passed in 1989, two years ago? No, I do not think they had great problems in 1989. As a matter of fact, as I remember, what they really wanted was the Ontario Energy Board to be able to set Hydro's rates. They wanted the Ontario Energy Board to set them, not this Parliament, not the government; they wanted the Ontario Energy Board to do that. I just leave members with that. Bill 118 then comes as a total shock because it reverses what was done in Bill 204. Why did that happen? Why this sudden change of policy? Was it enunciated in An Agenda for People? No, I did not see that being said in the great Agenda for People. It was not there.

Mr Conway: Where was it?

Mr Brown: I think, as my friend the member for Renfrew North is pointing out, it was in the mind of a Deputy Minister of Energy we know and love. What we end up having is this bill Mr Eliesen has written that confers most powers on Mr Eliesen; quite an astounding thing for a New Democratic government to be doing.

I suggest that the government does not have a mandate for this. I suggest the government did not tell the people it intended to do this. The government did not tell the people of Ontario it had a hidden agenda to increase the taxes through their hydro rates by 60%. My residential constituents will pay 60% more in the four years this government is in power, and if it decides to stay for the full five, I am afraid of how much it might cost.

If you are a farmer on Manitoulin Island, at Wikwemikong, Manitowaning, in Burpee township or Sheguiandah, you are in big trouble. We have some of the finest dairy herds in this province in that area, and farmers consume tremendous amounts of energy to produce the milk and the other good things the people of Ontario have taken for granted. They have no choice; there is nothing they can do. There is no way the people on the farms of Algoma-Manitoulin can switch to natural gas. The last time I looked there were no pipelines. You cannot get gas at Massey. You cannot get gas in the township of Salter. It cannot happen. There is no way for these people to take advantage of some of the wonderful conservation we expect rural northern Ontario to pay for so their city cousins can get cheaper energy by switching.

That is a remarkably shortsighted policy and I do not think my constituents, the constituents of most rural ridings, or any rural riding for that matter, will appreciate having their bills go up 60% so they can pay for someone in Toronto to switch to natural gas. I do not think they will like that idea, I do not think they will accept that idea and I do not think it is going to endear this government to the people of Ontario.

In the north we consume 13% of the electricity in this province, and that is mostly because we are resource-based. Our mines and our forest products industry use tremendous amounts of electricity in their processes and, yes, they are interested in energy conservation. I know of quite a number of mines that have active energy conservation programs. I know pulp and paper mills that are working very hard to reduce their reliance on electricity, yet still they will be major consumers of electricity.

We know our pulp and paper industry and our sawmill industry are experiencing the worst of times. They are expected to be competitive on a global basis in a situation where they are having difficulty selling their products, and when they do, it is at a price that is just too low. To add to the burden of these enterprises, the huge increases in electrical rates may be the doom of many of these industries, and therefore the cause of great dislocation in the cities, towns and villages of northern Ontario.

I do not think that is acceptable to any of us and I do not think my constituents want to put up with this. I look forward, as all members do, to a long hearing process as we go across northern Ontario to find out what the folks out there really think about the kind of rates this government thinks they should pay.

One of the contentions the government seems to make continually is that the social policy we are following by providing assistance to Elliot Lake and to Kapuskasing should be paid for by the ratepayers. I want to make it extraordinarily clear that this party and I have fought consistently for Elliot Lake. We have fought consistently for programs for Elliot Lake. We are looking for economic opportunities for Elliot Lake, for diversification for Elliot Lake. We are proud of the work that was done in Elliot Lake prior to the election of 1990 and are happy with what has happened afterwards, at least so far as it has gone to this point.

We are unhappy, however—and I have said this from the first, as my party has—with the idea that the ratepayers of Ontario Hydro will pay that, because my senior citizens in Elliot Lake are going to see great increases in their electrical bills. When we are trying to attract seniors to retirement living programs, they are going to pay more. They are already paying what they think is too much, and it is one of the things we are hearing over and over again in my constituency office and, I am sure, in meetings of seniors in Elliot Lake, wherever they might happen.

They do not feel it is fair that they are having this increased burden placed on them because of their economic difficulties. They do not believe that. They do not think Ontario Hydro should do it. Who do they think should pay? I will tell members who should pay—the consolidated revenue fund should pay what it takes to diversify Elliot Lake.

1640

I think that is because they know Elliot Lake has contributed a great deal to the province. Elliot Lake has contributed to the coffers of the province through mining taxes and all the other taxes, through the income taxes of the miners, through the sales taxes they have paid, through everything else, into the consolidated revenue fund, and they believe it is time they got some of those taxes back.

I agree with that, yet what we have is not the consolidated revenue fund providing the economic diversification fund for Elliot Lake. Who is providing that? It is the ratepayers of Ontario Hydro. Is it because, with a $9.7-billion deficit, they did not really think they could justify at cabinet taking it from the consolidated revenue fund? Is it because Ontario Hydro was there with a $6.5-billion revenue? It looked like it was somebody who was just ready to be plucked. I think that is exactly the reason.

Since its inception as a mining community in the 1950s, Elliot Lake has gone through some bad times and some good times. The last time it was in a bad situation, when the uranium market went soft, the federal government came to the rescue. The federal government, under the direction of the then Prime Minister and their local member, Lester Pearson, decided it should buy the uranium from Elliot Lake and stockpile it. They stockpiled it and held it. When the federal government disposed of it, it made a considerable profit—not a bad deal for the people of Canada and certainly a good deal for the people of Elliot Lake.

Hon Miss Martel: A good deal for Rio and Denison.

Mr Brown: The Minister of Northern Development and Mines seems to ignore the fact that Ontario Hydro and the government of Ontario have made decisions together for a number of years. When Ontario Hydro signed the contracts with the two mining companies, it did so with the consent of cabinet and after a review by this Legislature.

Interjections.

Mr Brown: The minister knows they were reviewed by a committee of this Legislature that the present Minister of Housing sat on.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Villeneuve): Order, please. The honourable member for Algoma-Manitoulin has the floor. Interjections are not in order. If you wish to participate, there will be time after the member has completed his remarks.

Mr Brown: The point of this is that on at least two occasions the Legislature of this province looked at the terms of the contracts. The New Democratic policy, if I recall, was that the contracts really should not be issued and what they should do was nationalize those mines.

They did not. It did not happen. The Conservative government at the time awarded those contracts, but what people seem to forget is that Ontario Hydro, although a major purchaser in Elliot Lake, did not buy the bulk of the uranium.

Unfortunately, we had in Elliot Lake the layoff of 2,400 people last year. Not one of them had anything to do with Ontario Hydro. Those layoffs came because of contracts that were offshore. Tokyo Electric, Duke Power and others cancelled their contracts with Elliot Lake, and when they cancelled those contracts, 2,400 men and women in Elliot Lake became unemployed.

This government, some time ago, then cancelled the Denison contract Ontario Hydro had, putting another 1,000 out of work next spring, and continued until 1996 the Rio contract in Elliot Lake, keeping some 600 people or so employed at the Stanleigh operation. These are difficult times for the people of Elliot Lake and the North Shore, and help should be and must be provided to a town that exists, or a city that existed, solely because uranium was found about 18 miles north of Highway 17.

For a town to diversify takes some money. It takes some continuation of the process, and we on this side are pleased that the government is involved in Elliot Lake and providing assistance to the people there, but we are not pleased that the government has said the responsibility belongs to Ontario Hydro. "Ontario Hydro, you pay $250 million, and we plan to pay, as the province of Ontario, about $15 million." It is a good deal for the government of Ontario, but a tremendously bad deal for the people who pay the electrical bill once a month.

That is the kind of problem we have in the north and as we are talking about diversifying Elliot Lake. Today we had Atikokan. We have had Kapuskasing. We are going to have problems in the Sault. We know all those things and we know the answer is diversification and more industry. Are we going to attract industry to a province that seems bent on and determined to increase the rates by 45% or more?

I think that makes the difficulties of Elliot Lake, of Kapuskasing, of Sault Ste Marie, of Atikokan, just that much more difficult. It certainly makes it more difficult for the smaller towns and villages of the north to compete and just for people to live their lives the way they did three years before. When you find that a cost that is associated with your daily life increases radically when, if you are a senior, your income has not increased, if you have just been laid off your job logging, if you are having a hard time making ends meet on the farm, if you are on a fixed income in one of the small towns, paying that Hydro rate will become more and more onerous.

I know government members are going to say, "Yes, but the conservation programs are going to help," and yes, they are, but who are they going to help? Many of the senior citizens, many of the people on unemployment insurance cannot afford to get into this game. No matter what the incentive is, they do not have the cash.

I have some experience with conservation first hand. I just had the fun, the pleasure—

Mr Conway: Fun?

Mr Brown: Fun might not be the right word—of putting a ground-source heat pump, at a tremendous cost, into my home. That was the option. If you are going to be efficient and conserve energy, for me, who lives where there is no natural gas, a ground-source heat pump is the thing to use.

Hydro provides me—and I thank Hydro very much—with a $1,000 grant to put that in. That is nice. They provide me with a $12,000 loan they brought the interest rate down on. I am very happy about that, but even so I will be 10 years at least getting my money back. Fortunately I can do that, but there are a lot of people out there who cannot afford to take that kind of burden on, and there are a lot of bankers who would say to them, "You can't have that $12,000 loan from Ontario Hydro because you can't pay it back to me." For those people, we have a huge problem.

1650

What the government is doing with this bill and the policy it indicates is putting the burden on the people in this province least able to pay. They are putting the poor, the seniors and the people on fixed incomes in a terrible, impossible position while they allow the yuppies, the people with money, the people with the ability to do some of these fancy-dancy things that I agree are important. They are the people who are going to do them. It seems backward to me to have the poor subsidize the rich. It is Robin Hood in reverse.

I am really worried what the economy of the north will do and what effect it will have on the people in my constituency. The people at Shesheganwaning, the people at Sucker Creek, the people at Whitefish Falls are going to have problems—in an economy in the north which is not very strong—paying the kinds of bills this government is bringing forward. I am glad I am not one of the 10 New Democrats in the north who have to go home and explain to the people how wonderful the government's energy policy is and how wonderful the government's programs are. They are not going to buy it, because they will not have any money.

What is Bill 118 really about? Bill 118 is about stacking the board of directors of Ontario Hydro so that the energy policy of this government will go forward regardless of whether it is in the interests of the consumer of electricity. It is instructive to note the last time anybody in this country stacked something to make people pay more money. As I recall, it was to get a tax through in the federal jurisdiction, the GST. A certain Prime Minister, who will remain nameless, appointed additional people to the Senate of Canada so that he could get his way. It seems to me that what we are doing here is exactly the same thing. We are appointing more members so that the Premier and the chairman of this corporation can do what they will without any regard to the concept of electricity at cost.

The reason for that, and I think it is one of the most interesting provisions in Bill 118, is that it absolves the directors of liability. Can members believe that? Why would they want to absolve the directors of the corporation of liability? Do they not want people who are responsible? Do they not want people to carry out their duties knowing that if they fail to do so, there will be recourse? I suggest that any corporation with a board of directors that is not liable for anything, which is virtually what this legislation says, should not have a board of directors. They are just a bunch of lambs. They are just powerless to do what the ratepayers of Ontario want them to do. They are powerless to change that because they must listen to Chairman Bob and Chairman Marc give them their directions.

I do not think any corporation with a board of directors that is not responsible to the ratepayers, or in this case to the shareholders of the corporation, the people of Ontario, really even needs to have a board of directors. Maybe we should go back to the days when Ontario Hydro was just a ministry of the government. If that is what the NDP wants to do, it could save us a lot of trouble if it would just make the Minister of Energy the chairman, and the deputy minister could run Ontario Hydro directly. Maybe that way we would get that long-sought-after accountability that seems to be what these people on the other side are after.

But it is not about accountability. If it were about accountability, it would be about accountability to the Legislature. It would even be accountability, as the member for Hamilton Mountain used to suggest back at the select committee on energy, to the Ontario Energy Board. That is where it would be. The accountability would be to someone other than the government.

The government has control of Ontario Hydro and has had for decades. There is no question who runs Ontario Hydro. The Premier of Ontario appoints the directors; he knows who is there. The chairman is appointed by the Premier; he knows who is there. There is no question the government had proper accountability or at least could suggest to Hydro that this is what it do. I do not think that has ever been a problem.

The people of Ontario deserve a board of directors that is responsible to them. If the government wants more accountability at Hydro, perhaps it should have a mechanism that brings that policy before the Legislative Assembly, in either a committee or this place, so we could have a vigorous debate about what Hydro is doing. The sun would shine on Ontario Hydro and we would really see into the policy Ontario Hydro wants to follow.

I was interested that my friend who was just speaking was talking about the environment. There are some huge questions around the environment that Ontario Hydro will have to face in the next 25 years. He was alluding to the SO₂ emissions in the United States and he was talking about the restrictions that will happen regarding the emissions into the air, which usually end up over Canada at some point.

What is interesting is that Ontario is buying more and more power outside our jurisdiction and is contributing to fossil fuel use in the United States. As someone concerned about the environment, I wonder if that is really good public policy on the part of Ontario Hydro. Is importing our pollution any better than creating it ourselves? It may be the government answer, but I am concerned about that, and more concerned that the future this government sees for electricity generation is more fossil fuel use. This bill, as a matter of fact, talks about allowing Ontario Hydro to pay to move to natural gas. Ontario Hydro can pay to subsidize the consumer to move to natural gas. That is an interesting concept, to move from electrical energy to burning fossil fuel. It is one we should, and must, think about.

I wonder too about the greenhouse gas emissions. I wonder whether this government has any idea or any policy, because I have not seen it, regarding the lowering of greenhouse gas emissions in the province. Some of the most advanced countries in the world are actively pursuing that goal—look at Germany or the Netherlands—and are actively attempting to lower their greenhouse gas emissions.

I would like this Minister of Energy to stand up and explain to me what this government's policy is towards greenhouse gases. I want to know if by the year 2005 we are going to see a net reduction in the amount of greenhouse gases emitted in this province, and not just in electricity but in the fuel switching that he is causing and in the importation of fossil fuel use through having electricity purchased in an adjacent American state. I think those are critical issues the people of Ontario want to know about.

1700

I have been a strong proponent of parallel generation and cogeneration. We talk about it, but when we talk about it we have to have a look at the amount of emissions we are getting there, because the atmosphere does not know the difference between SO₂ emissions and greenhouse gas emissions. It does not know whether it came from a private source or a public source. The atmosphere does not know that and the effect is the same.

I want to know whether this Minister of Energy has thought about that question and can assure the people of Ontario that the amount of acid gas and greenhouse gas emissions are actually going to be lower rather than greater. I would be surprised if he could answer that in the affirmative because I do not think he knows. I do not think there is a policy towards that.

The environmentalists in this world, the scientific community, are telling us that if greenhouse gas is not the number one environmental issue confronting our societies, it is the second. I am not sure what the first is. In my view it is the most important issue facing this planet, yet we have heard nothing about fossil fuel use. We seem to have a bill, rather, that encourages it. I am concerned about that. I am worried and I think everybody over there should be.

I hope the minister can come before us and say, "By 2005 we will see a 10% reduction in the amount of greenhouse gases that are allowed in this province." I would really want to see that. I think it is something the select committee on energy was looking at in the last Parliament. We were looking for the government of Ontario to provide a lead role. The former minister had started that process two ministers ago, and we have yet to hear in what direction Ontario Hydro and the Minister of Energy intend to go with what I believe to be an important issue.

There is a plan. I do not know whether the members over there have seen this book. This is the book Ontario Hydro put out. It is their 25-year plan for providing electrical energy to Ontario. It contains not just one plan; it contains quite a number of plans. It also tells us some interesting facts.

One of the facts, as I mentioned before, is that northerners use 13% of electricity. It also tells us that the north is a net importer of electricity, and everybody knows that when you are a net importer, the money is flowing out. I think northerners want the money to be flowing in. This plan has some great suggestions. As a matter of fact, I think there are 30 or so plans in here.

I want to tell members about the government's anti-nuclear moratorium, which is going to last for two years. I thought that was very interesting, seeing as the plan was before the environmental assessment and could not happen anyway, so it really was not a very meaningful sort of plan.

There is a way to do that over there. I just want to read from this case 26, which tells the government how this could be done. The advantages of this plan: "It has the lowest impact on electricity prices from 2000 to 2009"—that is good—"and the lowest net borrowings over the plan period." That is great too. It has a "more equal mix of fossil and nuclear energy, when the whole system is considered. Fossil energy will provide 34% of the electrical energy, and nuclear 39%. There are public concerns about nuclear safety and radioactive waste disposal. Case 26 features no new nuclear stations." Existing ones are still there but there are no new ones.

What are the disadvantages? There is "a higher 25-year plan cost." "The expected cost of case 26 is $857 million"—in 1989 dollars—more than the proposed case. "There is a 97% probability of case 26 being higher cost.... Costs to 2044 are $3,004 million higher than case 15." While it meets acid gas limits, it does not provide for margin under the upper forecast. "Under upper, median and lower load, case 26 exceeds illustrative CO₂ targets of 24 Tg." I do not know what that is; 1,000 tons per year. Average annual CO₂ emissions are very high. It does "not have the flexibility to respond to tighter acid gas regulations or CO₂ regulations." In other words, you cannot decrease acid gas emissions or greenhouse gas emissions. It has "the lowest Ontario goods and services content and the lowest Canadian content," and it has a "poor balance of trade relative to other cases."

That is the electrical future we are looking at if the government pursues the policy it is pursuing, some $3 billion over the period of the plan. The effect of that on consumers today would be quite interesting. I would like the government to fight an election on that particular idea.

We have heard the government claim over and over that the problem for these higher rates that it needs—I should remind the public that the electrical rates in this province last year increased about 8%. It depends on who you are a customer of, what part of Ontario you are in, whether you are a direct consumer or whether you buy from one of the utilities. This year they are forecasting, I think, 12% or 13%.

Mr Huget: It is 11.8%.

Mr Brown: I am told it is 11.8%. That is the minimum and that is the bulk rate. In some places, I understand, it is as much as 29% because of the particular utility. In others it will be more like 12% or 13%.

They say the problem is the nuclear reactors, and they are right. There is no problem. We all have concerns with how well our nuclear reactors are performing, but last year when rates went up 8%, the nuclear reactors were operating, according to my information, at 63% of capacity. The good news for the government is that during the first six months of this year they were operating at 70% of capacity. As anybody would know over there, a good number for a nuclear reactor system to be operating at is 75% or 80%. Our reactors have been operating at 12% better than the world average over time.

For them to suggest that we need a bigger raise this year than happened last year when our nuclear reactors were producing less seems rather odd. I think the public of Ontario and the members in this House will have to have some questions asked about that particular bit of mathematics, why the reliability of the service improves by 7% and yet the rates have to increase another 50% over what they had the year before. That to me is quite an astounding bit of mathematics.

I have rambled here for a bit and raised—at least I hope I have—a few concerns, but what I am trying to express is our total dissatisfaction with a bill that will allow Hydro to do some things that I do not think the people of Ontario want it to do. I would suggest to the government that the best thing to do with this bill is to withdraw it and start over from scratch. I am not even sure it really needs a new bill. Given the government's at least tacit consent to Bill 204, the previous amendment to the Power Corporation Act, I can see no real useful purpose for this bill unless it is just to make Ontario Hydro a lackey of government.

It has nothing to do with accountability. It has everything to do with whether the government can raid the treasury of Ontario Hydro, and I believe that is what this bill does. It is not in the interests of my farmers; it is not in the interests of my loggers; it is not in the interests of seniors in small towns; it is not in the interests of anyone in rural Ontario, and I would suggest to the government that it certainly is not in the interests of building a strong, viable, competitive Ontario economy that can compete in the world marketplace we are now in.

If anyone suggests that this is the case, I will be glad during public hearings throughout the north and throughout the rest of the province to discuss that. I hope the government can accede to those, because I think the people of Elliot Lake and the people of Espanola and the people of Manitoulin Island and the people in our first nations would like to speak to a bill that provides a 44% increase over time if this vehicle for public policy is allowed to stand.

1710

Mr McLean: I would like to comment on some of the remarks made by the member for Algoma-Manitoulin and just add briefly to some of them that he has already made. I too had letters and resolutions from municipalities that have been concerned with Bill 118. The city of Orillia Water, Light and Power Commission has sent me a letter and a resolution. The village of Allensville, the town of Penetanguishene and Coldwater village have sent me letters.

The major concern they have is with regard to the flaws in Bill 118. They indicate that this legislation is flawed. It is a blatant attempt by the Minister of Energy to exert more control over the operation of Ontario Hydro if it is passed. It would make the chairperson of Ontario Hydro the chief executive officer of the corporation and would increase the membership on the board of directors from 17 to 22.

The appointment of the Deputy Minister of Energy as a non-voting member of Ontario Hydro's board of directors would allow the Minister of Energy to issue policy directives approved by the Lieutenant Governor in Council that would be binding on the corporation. It would allow Ontario Hydro to promote switching from electricity to fuels which are more efficient. That is what the member really was making the major point about in his remarks.

It is a well-known fact that the relationship between Ontario Hydro and this government resembles the famous feud between the Hatfields and the McCoys. If Bill 118 is passed, it will mean the lights will be turned off at Ontario Hydro. It will mean that long-term planning will suffer and this province's power industry will continue to be downgraded.

The reservations about Bill 118 have been made well known in this Legislature. The letters I have received from the water, light and power commissions in my riding have been very explicit. I am glad it is going out for public debate and we will all be able to discuss it.

Mr Mammoliti: I am one for criticism. I actually enjoy getting criticized once in a while. I think it is important. I have ultimate respect for most of the members opposite, especially when they criticize. For the most part, they know what they are talking about when they are speaking.

However, I do have a concern in this particular case, because here we have a group of individuals and members of this Legislature, very well respected individuals in their constituencies I am sure, who stand up and criticize us in this particular case. I do not think they have the right to criticize us in this particular case.

They had the opportunity to address a lot of these issues. I am talking about both governments here. Both the Liberals and the Conservatives have had opportunities in the past to address the very important issues that we are addressing in this particular bill that they are criticizing, and they did not. When we talked about renovations, for instance, they let it go and they let it slide and they let it pass. Of course we have to take that on and it is going to cost the public some money, but we have enough guts to say that it is needed. If we hold it off any longer, if we take the example that other governments have shown us in the past, then it is going to cost them more in the long run.

At least we can say that we have taken it on. We have had the guts to take it on, guts that certainly have not been proven by previous governments in this particular case. I would say my colleagues: "Just leave it alone. You are making yourselves look bad."

Mr Conway: I want to congratulate my colleague the member for Algoma-Manitoulin for what I thought was a very thoughtful speech covering a number of the aspects of Bill 118 and particularly the energy policy which informs it.

I sincerely hope that people in the chamber and anyone watching listened carefully to what my honourable friend said about his own experience in rural Ontario of converting from one source of heat to another, in this case from one kind of electric heat to another. He was too modest to indicate what those capital costs were, but I know something of what the total bill was. Fortunately, he is a member of the Legislature, and as we all know, we are very well paid and job security is first rate.

But it is going to be a real issue. It is going to be a real issue for all of us who represent rural Ontario. I repeat for what has to be the 14th time, the fundamental inequity in this NDP energy policy as presented in Bill 118 is that Hydro ratepayers, irrespective of what their capacity to pay is, are going to be asked and expected to pay for regional development programs such as we have seen in Elliot Lake.

Hydro ratepayers, irrespective of their financial situation or their alternatives, are going to be asked to pay through their rates for fuel substitution, largely in urban Ontario. As my honourable friend the member for Algoma-Manitoulin has so poignantly indicated, a senior citizen living in rural Algoma is going to be stung with a regressive tax policy that any self-respecting New Democrat should be ashamed of. I cannot believe that if they know what is underlying this policy, they are prepared to endorse it.

Mr Cousens: The rhetoric that we have in this House from the opposite side which tries to rationalize the direction this government is taking is totally unacceptable, and it is a rare opportunity that I am taking to agree with the member for Algoma-Manitoulin. I happen to believe that his presentation and approach is honourable and consistent with the long-term traditions of what the utility is supposed to do.

I do not think the New Democrats have begun to understand the damage they are doing to this province and to this utility by the kind of changes they want to make in Bill 118. If there is anything the member could do when he is speaking about this, it would be to be a little bit more angry. He is too nice to them. They come along and they think he is almost being a nice guy.

I do not know how we can get them to wake up to it. The policies of this government are sick. They are wrong. They will not work. Now come on. Go along and beat them up next time. The member comes from up north; he comes down here and he is just too sweet and kind. He has got to let them know that we are not going to tolerate it. In this House we are going to scream, we are going to shout, we are going to yell, because they cannot come along and use Ontario Hydro as an instrument of their social policies. This is exactly what they are going to do, and it is wrong.

If they are going to do it, they should bring it into the Legislature, not sneak it in the back door through Ontario Hydro. They want to change the number of directors on that board so they can fill it with more of their friends. The friends they have got that they are putting in there do not have the background that makes for a good organization. Why do they not get some people who have some experience and some background so they can bring some leadership to it instead of Marc Eliesen and some of these people?

It is wrong what this government is doing. The province is suffering with financial problems, with the economy suffering, and what this government is going to do is bury us even further under the muck of a New Democratic government that does not understand that it is destroying something that has taken years to build up.

Mr Brown: I appreciate the member for Markham's comments and I will attend his class in theatre 101 at the earliest possible convenience. I think the essence of this bill, though, is quite easy to understand. It is a bill that provides the government of Ontario a tax grab, a grab that is unfair because it hits all levels of income the same, whether you are in Renfrew, Algoma-Manitoulin or Kenora, whether you have a job like Marc Eliesen's that will pay in excess of $400,000 a year or you are attempting to get along on the senior citizen's allowance. You are going to pay the same no matter what.

1720

The policy of this government is clear. It should be especially clear to northerners. It is a high energy price system. They are trying to drive the prices of fuel and electricity out of sight so they can get their beloved conservation, because when the economy goes down, so does the demand for hydro. We have had the best conservation in this province's history in the last year, and the reason is that our manufacturers, our mines, our pulp and paper industries and our sawmills are closing. That is why I am so upset. I have great difficulty in going to my constituents and saying, "But it's for the greater good; it's for the betterment of mankind." It is just bad public policy.

Mr Wiseman: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: The honourable member for Markham did a very dishonourable thing. He accused us of lying. That is unacceptable parliamentary language in this House. We heard it. I think he should withdraw that comment.

Mr Cousens: Mr Speaker, I had no idea he was listening. I withdraw it.

Mr Wiseman: Since the sojourn that I had with the honourable member in Washington, I listen to everything he says.

Mr Runciman: I am going to make a brief contribution to the debate. We are adhering to an agreement with the House leaders with respect to the timing of this debate.

One of the elements of this discussion that has been particularly fascinating for me—

Interjections.

Mr Runciman: Do you want to interrupt at this point, Mr Speaker?

The Deputy Speaker: Would the member for Yorkview take his seat, please. The member for Leeds-Grenville has the floor.

Mr Runciman: As I was saying, perhaps one of the most fascinating elements of this debate has been the participation of the member for Renfrew North, who has come out of a self-imposed hibernation for the last year to be very active. I think he was in something of a blue funk since the September election.

I find it interesting, to say the least, to hear the views of the member for Renfrew North, who was at one point, I believe, the deputy leader of the Liberal Party of Ontario. He talked very vehemently yesterday about a payroll tax. He has talked about Mr Ostry, the head of TVO and how we should have got rid of Mr Ostry. He has talked about taxation policy of the Liberal Party of Ontario in general, and he was in a position, I would have thought, to have won a few of these battles in cabinet. Apparently he did not win any of them, given the contributions he has made here in the last few weeks. It is passing strange, I suspect, that one would not resign after losing so many significant battles within cabinet. In any event he is here, he is participating actively, making a contribution. I am glad to hear it.

I share the points he raises with respect to rural consumers of electricity and the costs they have to assume as part of their operating costs, and the great difficulty in operating in rural Ontario now. What Ontario Hydro is doing at the direction of this government is going to exacerbate these problems, no question about that.

Mr McLean: They hired Eliesen.

Mr Runciman: My colleague points out that the Liberal government hired Mr Eliesen, and now Liberal members are being critical of his current appointment. I am not going to be critical of Mr Eliesen's appointment, because I think it is too early to reach a judgement with respect to his performance.

I want to say though that I served for a brief period of time as the Energy critic for my party and I also had the opportunity to serve on the select committee on energy, again for a brief period of time, and I was not reluctant to criticize Ontario Hydro. I think they have done a most effective job in many areas over a great many years, but I think there have been legitimate criticisms of them in the past with respect to the number of employees and with respect to wages. I think most of us can draw upon a number of summer student jobs in our areas in Ontario Hydro. They are far and away the highest-paid summer jobs for students. They are giving $16, $17, $18 an hour for summer students, and I think that is reflective of the way Ontario Hydro is operating.

I have friends who have worked for the heavy-water plants operated by Ontario Hydro who worked with me in the chemical industry many years ago talking about the waste and the complete disrespect, if you will, of efforts to cut down on costs and waste within the operations of Ontario Hydro. I think that is endemic throughout the system. We are talking about a public monopoly.

The member for Chatham-Kent made some references earlier to the monopoly situation and private sector efficiencies, and perhaps he was, in his own way, endorsing the idea of privatization. In many areas of Ontario Hydro operations we can endorse privatization of the generation side. I think the transmission side has to stay within the control of the crown, but on the generation side we can see a much greater expansion of the role of the private sector. That is essentially what I want to confine my brief comments to this afternoon.

I think we have a problem with respect to private sector generation and the problem essentially seems to lie within Ontario Hydro. I am hoping that this government, through the Minister of Energy, will play a more active role here. I think there is an effort—and this has been consistent; I saw it in my days on the select committee—of Ontario Hydro protecting its own turf. If you look at the role of the non-utility generation branch of Ontario Hydro, it is a very small branch and is undoubtedly overwhelmed with applications and expressions of interest for non-utility generating facilities. In my own riding—and I want to raise this issue today—there is a proposal for a cogeneration facility which would generate 240 megawatts. It is a pretty substantial generating facility which would utilize excess steam heat from a chemical process.

This proposal would benefit Ontario in a significant way. We are talking about approximately $200 million initially coming into Ontario, a $100 million capital contribution in my riding alone. We are talking about significant provincial income taxes over the life of this project in excess of $200 million and about millions of dollars in municipal property taxes, not to mention millions of dollars in goods and services and supplies annually purchased as a result of this and the number of jobs that are going to be created—permanent, secure, skilled positions.

We are talking about what is essentially an environmentally safe option and something that I believe this government, through its crown corporation, should be actively pursuing, but we are not getting the kinds of messages and signals back from Ontario Hydro that lead us to be optimistic. What we are hearing now is that Ontario Hydro is going to limit cogeneration projects to 50 megawatts. What in effect they are doing by coming in with that kind of rule change in the middle of the game is effectively ruling out, for the most part, private sector involvement in the establishment of cogeneration facilities, because there are not the economies of scale for any private sector investor to get involved in 50-megawatt cogenerating facilities. I think we have to do more to persuade Ontario Hydro, and perhaps we have to do it through the Minister of Energy and through this Legislature, to make increased efforts to co-operate and encourage private sector generating facilities in this province.

1730

Another area I would like to see Ontario Hydro take a look at is the sale of hydro to New York state. One thing that Ontario Hydro is saying to people who want to get into cogenerating operations is, "We don't want to buy your hydro, and we won't let you sell it to the United States."

We are producing natural gas in Canada which is going into the US, where it is utilized for the generation of electricity. They are creating jobs and drawing investment into the US using our natural gas, while Ontario Hydro is telling us in Ontario that we cannot utilize it for that purpose.

It makes no sense whatsoever and is something I would not think an NDP government would be supportive of.

I may have the municipality wrong, but I think a cogenerating facility has been constructed Oswego, New York. I think it is on stream now producing significant megawatts of power for consumers in New York state using Canadian natural gas. That is wrong and offensive. If Ontario Hydro is not prepared to get involved in correcting it on its own, I think this government has to do something to ensure that it does take place.

This goes back to the question of co-operation of Ontario Hydro with private sector producers, the sharing and use of transmission facilities. We have all sorts of efforts under way to discourage the use of Ontario Hydro transmission facilities and we can indicate in eastern Ontario, in any event, where those transmission corridors are being underutilized. Private sector producers can utilize those corridors to bring them up to their maximum usage, and they can sell that clean power to New York state. Those revenue dollars come back into this province and this country. We are also creating jobs in this province and in this country and using our natural resources, not selling them off to the Americans.

These are the sorts of things where I think this government can play a very activist role, in ensuring that we create jobs and utilize these opportunities by co-operating and supporting private sector endeavours in the hydro generation field.

Mr Hope: I think it is important that I stand up and correct myself, so that the member does not misunderstand what I said. It is important that we learn to work co-operatively with private enterprise, but I firmly believe Ontario Hydro ought to stay a crown corporation. I really put a lot of emphasis behind co-operation and understanding so that we do not fall into the same trap as the federal government has under its purchase of Petro-Canada, where it is now the leader in jumping up prices of gasoline instead of the one trying to control the prices.

That is why I think it is very important that we keep it as a crown corporation, but that at the same time we have proper dialogue with other parts of this world that have developed energy efficiency in their communities and areas. He talks about being an exporter of a lot of services. That can prove beneficial to us, but one of the unfortunate parts that falls under that is selling to the United States under the free trade agreement. That has led us into very difficult situations. We almost have to give it to the Americans because of the contents of the free trade agreement on our natural resources. That is one of the disadvantages and an area that is outside our jurisdiction.

My father-in-law works for Ontario Hydro. I understand they can play an active role if we lead into a positive, open-door policy, which in the future will generate jobs in the province. That will be beneficial to all the communities in making sure we achieve the ultimate goals of lowering the price of hydro and achieving a better standard for the people of Ontario.

Mr McLean: I want to comment briefly on the member for Leeds-Grenville's presentation with regard to Bill

118. He made some excellent points in a nice, short speech that was to the point. There are some things I would like to comment on in his address and I would like to add some of my own.

It is interesting to note that a lot of the letters we have received from all the power corporations and commissions in Ontario are much the same. The one I had with regard to Bill 118 says:

It "threatens to destroy Ontario's long-cherished principle of power at cost by making electricity rates a new source of tax revenue for the provincial government.

"Under Bill 118, the provincial government would be able to issue policy directives that bypass the democratic legislative process, are binding on Ontario Hydro, and that could force Hydro to do things that are outside its current mandate: the provision of safe, reliable electricity. In addition, Bill 118 would force Ontario electricity consumers to pay for these policy directives through their rates."

They are telling me that this is unacceptable, and that is what my colleague has been talking about here this afternoon. They also refer to a section of Bill 118 that permits Ontario Hydro to subsidize fuel substitution through electrical rates. "This is unnecessary, as market forces alone are enough to encourage certain types of fuel switching."

The most important thing we found out today was that this bill is going to committee. Some people say they would rather it were fed into a wood-burning stove than into committee, but in committee at least individuals and utilities will have an opportunity to make submissions that will clearly highlight how the NDP has attempted to usurp the democratic process and downgrade Ontario Hydro's power industry.

Mr Huget: The member opposite has raised the same point a couple of times in terms of what the overall mandate and directives will be to Ontario Hydro. He continues to allude to an imaginary process that suddenly Ontario Hydro's mandate will be expanded to some other role in society, and he continuously raises the social service aspect of Ontario Hydro.

The minister has quite clearly made the statement in this House on several occasions that the mandate of Ontario Hydro will not be expanded. Any changes in anything involving Bill 118 and Ontario Hydro and its mandate are clearly to define movement within its current objectives, and that will be clarified. That point was made to the MEA. The member is aware of that. The point was made to the member and he refuses to accept it. I do not know how many times someone has to stand on the government side of the House and make it clear that we are consulting with the Municipal Electric Association and with its concerns around the mandate of Ontario Hydro and the issuing of the directives. Quite clearly the minister has said a number of times, "There will not be an expansion of mandate."

I think it is fundamental that the opposition parties in this House take it upon themselves to act and speak responsibly in terms of changes proposed to Bill 118. I do not find that it is in the interests of the public or of this House that there are continuous allusions made to an imaginary process. We must deal with the facts and with constructive debate on Bill 118 and nothing more. We look forward to full debate on this issue. The changes to Bill 118 are necessary.

Mr Sola: In retort to the last comment, I want to refer to Hansard. They are saying the minister has made statements in the House refuting the allegations the honourable member made in his speech. For example, on October 1, in response to a question raised by my seatmate, the member for Ottawa South, the minister said, "The intention of the bill is to direct Hydro in order to fulfil the mandate of the government of the day," not the mandate of Hydro but the mandate of the government of the day.

Later on, in response to a second question from the member for Ottawa South, the Minister of Energy said, "The goal and objective of Hydro is to provide power at reasonable prices." Reasonable prices and power at cost are certainly not the same thing. He may have stated something else later or prior to these statements, but these statements are still on the record. Therefore, you cannot judge the intentions of the honourable member by referring to something that is in Hansard, that was in response to questions particularly relating to the mandate and the intent and the social program of this government.

As far as imaginary allegations are concerned, I would like to point out that Elliot Lake is not an imaginary place; neither is Kapuskasing. They did not use social policy, government policy, to bail out those two communities; they used Ontario Hydro. It is up to the government to bail out those areas, but it is not up to Hydro.

1740

Mr Runciman: That is a good point, because one of the members opposite mentioned hydro bills starting to reflect real costs. That belies the fact that of course we are utilizing Hydro dollars in those two northern communities. They are certainly not real hydro costs. That is an effort to bamboozle the public with respect to the Ontario government debt. There is no question about that.

I regret that the member for Chatham-Kent had to get up and say he does not believe in privatization. That is indeed regrettable, but coming from a socialist, that is not surprising. He talks about keeping costs down, but I do not think that is going to be the case.

We have an article from one of the Toronto papers this weekend, with Larry Solomon of Energy Probe quoted as saying that "it won't be long before Ontarians are paying more for their power than any other jurisdiction in North America." The article goes on to say that Charlie Macaluso, a spokesperson for the Municipal Electric Association, believes that "as long as Ontario Hydro remains a public monopoly, with a $30-billion debt, it will continue to bleed taxpayers with exorbitant rate hikes." He is quoted as saying, "I don't see how we're going to get away from double-digit rate hikes unless we can eliminate the debt and government interference."

Getting back to Larry Solomon of Energy Probe, he says that anti-monopoly legislation has worked well. "It has lowered the price of power and has actually created gluts of power.... Privatize Ontario Hydro and we'll start to see our prices come down again." I do not think there is any doubt that this is indeed the case.

I made reference to natural gas, and they throw back free trade. Ontario Hydro has it within its power to ensure that we are utilizing Canadian natural gas in the generation of power in this province and not sending it off to the south. They have the power to do that. They should not blame it on the free trade agreement.

Mr Duignan: It is with great pleasure and delight that I rise in my place today. It is my first occasion to speak on behalf of my riding of Halton North. I understand that when one does that, it is the tradition of this House that one talks a little about one's riding and the people in it.

This gives me great pleasure, because I represent many people in my riding who have never had NDP representation before and who are more than honoured and delighted to have that representation because they now have an effective voice in the corridors of power, a person who listens to the people.

With respect to my riding, it lies west of Toronto and north of Oakville and Burlington, and is comprised of all the Halton region north of Derry Road. Halton North is what I like to term the heartland of Ontario, and that is basically what my riding is made up of. It is composed of many small urban clusters such as Campbellville, Brookville, Limehouse, Glen Williams, Norval and Hornby. It also has a number of significant urban centres such as Georgetown, Acton and Milton.

I mentioned the municipality of Milton last because I want to pay tribute to the former member from Milton, Walt Elliot, who sat as a member of this House from 1987 to 1990. He worked hard on behalf of the residents of Halton North, particularly in the work he did regarding the Niagara Escarpment, which accounts for about 30% of my riding. I would like to pay particular tribute to the work he has done in that regard.

I would also like to pay tribute to many members and former candidates of my own party who have laboured long and hard in the riding of Halton North to elect a New Democratic member, which they succeeded in doing in the last election, in particular Stan Allen, Fern Wolfe, John and Bernice Nichols and Bill Johnson, who has been a regional councillor for the last number of years and who finally is retiring.

I will now address the question at hand, that of Bill 118. It gives me great pleasure to take this opportunity to speak to that particular bill.

I believe the amended Power Corporation Act will enable Ontario Hydro and the government to work together in a more effective manner to deal with the economic, environmental and social wellbeing of this province. I believe the amendments to the Power Corporation Act will make Ontario Hydro more open and more accountable to the taxpayers of Ontario, which the previous government, when it had the opportunity, failed to do.

Bill 118 will give the government power to provide Ontario Hydro with policy direction not only because the taxpayers of this province demand it but because there is a need for increased Hydro accountability and a greater response by Ontario Hydro to public concerns and needs. It is our goal not so much to increase control but to make Hydro more responsive to public priorities and government policies.

What we are doing is really nothing new. Previous governments often provided informal policy direction in closed sessions with Ontario Hydro senior management. These directions often had hidden costs unknown to the people of this province.

What we have done is to simplify the process and make Ontario Hydro more accountable to the taxpayers of this province. We want to get away from the old practices of the previous governments. I believe Bill 118 will clarify the government's responsibility for setting the province's policy direction and the expectation that Hydro will carry out that policy.

The act also requires the government to consult with the Hydro board on the content and effect of policy directives. In this respect, the board's important role and responsibilities in ensuring the needs of the taxpayers are met in the best possible way. This will allow Hydro to move in new directions and to give greater emphasis to energy efficiency.

Under Bill 118 we will also expand the board from 17 to 22 people, giving greater access and wider representation of public interests on this board.

Some will say that we are stacking the board of Ontario Hydro. That is not the case. What we are doing is widening the representation of public interest on the Hydro board. Our government will be making appointments that are not affiliated with our party or indeed any political party in this province. That is our philosophy and that is our policy.

On the question of the salary for the chairman of Ontario Hydro, it is worth noting that the proposed salary level is considerably less than that of the previous chairman and chief executive officer, who started somewhere in excess of $500,000.

The proposed salary is also 25% less than the average salary of the chief executive officers of corporations with annual revenues in excess of $400 million. That is based on a survey of 150 public and private corporations in Canada. Ontario Hydro, with annual sales in excess of $8 billion and assets of over $40 billion, is much larger than most of these corporations. Also, a review of executive compensation at Ontario Hydro will be conducted by the Ontario Energy Board as part of the reference letter for the next rate review hearings. The OEB provides oversight of such matters for all major utilities in Ontario.

On the question of fuel substitution, when the government announced its restriction on electric heating in new social housing, it did so because natural gas instead of electricity for residential space and water heating is a much more appropriate use of energy. It is more cost-effective and will result in lower energy bills for those consumers.

The ministry also estimated that by enabling Hydro to encourage the conversion of electric heat in the residential market, electricity demand will be reduced by perhaps 700 megawatts by the year 2000. In addition to lowering heating costs for customers and increased environmental protection, fuel substitution will defer the need for large central generating facilities, thereby ensuring enormous savings for Ontario Hydro.

1750

It is our government's intention, as stated by the former minister when she introduced the proposed amendments, that Hydro should be able to promote fuel substitution where it is most cost-effective and where the market will not make it happen otherwise. In some cases simple education and information may be all that is needed to encourage fuel switching. On occasion, some form of incentive may be required. Where this is necessary, Ontario Hydro programs will be designed in a way that ensures it will be cost-effective and benefit the consumers.

On the question raised by some members in this House on the recent hydro rate increase, it is worth reminding the taxpayers of this province that it was the past decisions and mistakes of the Liberal and Tory governments such as the Darlington nuclear plant that have come home to roost, and those bills must now be paid.

It is worth noting that Darlington alone accounts for over one quarter of the increase this year and customers will face additional increases when the rest of Darlington is brought into service. Moreover, they will be paying for the $13-billion cost of Darlington over the next 40 years, a mistake of previous governments.

Any less of an increase would result in a very high and unacceptable withdrawal of Hydro's reserve funds. As members are aware, some $600 million has been withdrawn from the reserve fund in previous years. This is a situation that this government intends to avoid in the future.

The responsibility for rate decisions rests with the Hydro board of directors. I am confident that the board has taken into account all information at its disposal, including the Ontario Energy Board's recommendations, the state of the economy and the impact of the increases on customers. The necessary rate increases underscore the importance of the government's new energy directions, increased energy efficiency and conservation.

Our government will continue to encourage Hydro to launch new cost-effective energy management initiatives which will help to contain increases in customers' bills.

In conclusion, I want to remind members and the Ontario taxpayers of Ontario Hydro's huge debt, some $34 billion. It is due largely to the decisions of previous governments that built Darlington and other nuclear stations.

This government has declared a nuclear moratorium and has stated its commitment to conservation, increased energy efficiency and parallel generation. I believe these new energy directions contained in Bill 118 will postpone the need for a new large-scale generating facility and will make Ontario more accountable to the taxpayers of this province, which the people of this province have demanded for so many years and which previous governments ignored.

Mr Ruprecht: I must tell the members that I enjoyed the introduction the member for Halton North made to Bill 118, especially when he says Halton North has never had an NDP member in the Legislature before. I simply want to say to him he should enjoy his time here.

Mr Mills: What is that supposed to mean?

Mr Ruprecht: It simply means he should read into that statement whatever he wants to.

One important point was raised by the member for Halton North when he talked about the hidden costs associated with producing hydroelectric power. That is an important aspect, to talk about the hidden costs. The question I would like to raise is, what are these hidden costs for the taxpayers of Ontario?

The member for Halton North will know what the hidden costs are for the seniors of Ontario, who at one time I remember, Mr Speaker, and you will too, listened to the propaganda from Hydro saying hydro rates would be the cheapest form of energy in terms of the efficiency of heating one's home. Hydro said, "Please, everybody rip out your oil pipes and switch back to electrically heated homes." Many of my neighbours did, and I am sure the member for Halton North knows that many of his residents did the same thing.

The consequence of this kind of a promise will be horrendous. When we talk about increases of 15.5% this year and 44%—and I would guess with the GST and the additional taxes even over 50%—in three years, I would guess that many of the seniors who did switch to electrically heated homes will have to sell their houses because they are unable to make payments.

Mr Bisson: It is with pleasure that I rise to comment on some of the issues and facts mentioned by my colleague the member for Halton North. I think part of the debate being lost here—and I think the member made a good point—is that many of the things we are seeing now in regard to the increases through Ontario Hydro are because of some of the decisions made in the past.

Nobody knew, back in the 1960s and further, that the investment in nuclear energy would come to the price it does in the 1990s. The reality is that there were some decisions made back then to invest heavily on the part of Ontario Hydro, to go more towards generating electricity through nuclear power. We are now finding out, some 20 and 30 years later, that the cost has been quite astronomical.

What is also interesting, when you go through all that has happened with the nuclear generation in Ontario, is that the nuclear generation of the Candu reactors is a very good, safe technology, probably one of the best and most advanced in the world, but they are not running as efficiently as they should. That is adding dramatically to the cost of electricity within the province for consumers of Ontario Hydro. In fact, the numbers are running somewhere in the neighbourhood of half this increase we are seeing today of 11%, because of the efficiency and the costs we are having to pay today.

I would also like to make a comment. One of the members from the Conservative Party said earlier that maybe we would be better off putting Ontario Hydro into the private sector. God knows, I am not at all interested in that. I have seen that happen in the airline sector, and all I know is that some two years after deregulation of the airline industry into private hands, we are now paying twice as much for airline tickets. We are getting half as much service and a lot more inconvenience in the airports of this country and unable to get the service that used to be provided by a crown corporation called Air Canada at the time it was owned by the taxpayers and was providing very good service. To that idea I say no. As a New Democratic member I stand firmly opposed to that idea.

Mr Brown: I enjoyed the comments of the member for Halton North. I have some comments. We seem to be in a debate about nuclear power, fossil fuel, whether we could have more hydroelectric and whether we should have cogeneration and how much electricity we need and all that good stuff. We are talking about all those things when, as members will know, there is an environmental assessment being conducted right now. It is on Hydro's 25-year plan.

I have some concerns about the way that process has begun, because what has happened in this province is that the government has unilaterally made some decisions about what projects are in, what projects are out, what we should consider and what we should not. They have decided, for example, to spend an additional $240 million on conservation. The Ontario Energy Board has said Hydro is not spending that efficiently. Hydro cannot spend that and get value for the dollars it is spending. We are spending money that is not giving us the result. Members should not take my word for it, but ask the Ontario Energy Board. That is what it said.

Rather than debate need—because the environmental assessment is looking at need—why do we not ask the government to keep the integrity of the plan in place, present it to the environmental panel without a lot of ideological, political views and let the environmental assessment panel make those decisions? But that is not what we are seeing, and we think Bill 118 is going to cause more problems than all the rest combined.

The government stands there and says that it was the problem of governments before it for over 60 or 70 years. I do not think the people of Ontario are going to buy that.

Mr Huget: I would like to congratulate the member for Halton North on his first opportunity to speak in the House. I listened with interest to his comments.

I would remind everyone that I think it is worth saying that no one likes to see rate increases on anything today, but the roughly 11.8% increase that has been suggested is due largely to the costs of Darlington and some of the decisions made in electrical generation policy in Ontario over the last decade or two.

I remind members as well that even with the proposed increase, Ontario Hydro's rates are still approximately 24% or 25% lower than in most jurisdictions in North America. The argument that rates will make us non-competitive compared to the United States, for example, simply does not hold water. In fact, if I were a business in Ontario looking for reasonably priced energy, I would stay in Ontario because it is less expensive in Ontario than it is in most of the United States.

There are other factors that are leading to rate increases and that will continue to lead to rate increases, not the least of which is Darlington. We will need to pay the $13.5-billion Darlington costs over the next 40 years. We have problems with the transmission system. Major work has to be done to keep its integrity. There are a number of factors that lead to rate increases. Especially if we look at the nuclear moratorium—the member from the opposition has raised that issue a couple of times this afternoon—I frankly do not see the economic logic of expanding facilities that currently run at less than 70% of capacity. That is not good business.

The Deputy Speaker: The member for Halton North, you have two minutes to reply.

Mr Duignan: I noted with interest that my colleague the member for Parkdale made a reference to the fact that I should enjoy my term here because it will be the only one.

Mr Ruprecht: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I appreciate the time you are giving me. I just want to make sure the member understood me correctly. I did not say he should enjoy his time here because this will be his last term. I simply indicated that he should enjoy his time here.

The Deputy Speaker: Thank you. That was not a point of order.

Mr Duignan: I am glad the member for Parkdale clarified that for me. I intend to be here for many terms because I intend to serve the people of my riding.

Very simply, the people of this province have demanded time and time again and over and over again that Ontario Hydro has to be more accountable to the taxpayers and government of this province. I firmly believe our government and the Ministry of Energy will do that. Our government is prepared to act to make sure that happens. I am looking forward to the amendments to the Power Corporation Act, which will simply return Hydro to the taxpayers of this province and to the people of this province.

The House adjourned at 1803.

ERRATUM

No.	Page	Column	Line	Should read:
68	[v]	1	12	Health insurance 2896 Mr Jackson

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND)

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND)
Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Community and Social Services, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/
Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND)
Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Oriole L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND)
Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND)
PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/
Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/
Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/
Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND)
Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/
Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/
Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement

Grandmaître, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)
Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général
Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)
Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement
Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur
Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications
Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)
Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)
Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires
Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie

Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises
Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu
Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)

Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)
Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)

Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND) Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie
Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités

Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND) Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail
MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Vice-Chair, standing committee on regulations and private bills/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, vice-présidente du Comité permanent des règlements et projets de loi privés
Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition

Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales
Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales
Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines
Martin, Tony (Sault Ste Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation
Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement
McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)
McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)
McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)
Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général
Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice
Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)
Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail

North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs

O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)
O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)
O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition
Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement

Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle
Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)
Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General,
 Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général,
 ministre des Services correctionnels
 Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)
 Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des
 comptes publics
Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND)
 Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre
 délégué aux Affaires francophones
Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier,
 Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre,
 ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
 Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)
 Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)
 Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité
 permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
 Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)
 Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)
Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet, Minister of Education/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, ministre de l'Éducation
 Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)
 Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)
 Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)
 Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)
 Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)
 Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
 Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West/-Ouest ND)
 Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)
 Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)
 Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité
 plénier de l'Assemblée législative
 Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/
 Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la
 Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie
 Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government
 Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux
Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister
 of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu
Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND)
 Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité
 extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire
 Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation;
 Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/
 Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président
 du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
 Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister
 of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé
 White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND) Chair,
 standing committee on regulations and private bills/
 Président du Comité permanent des règlements et projets
 de loi privés
Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires
 autochtones
Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister
 of Government Services/Ministre des Services
 gouvernementaux
 Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND)
 PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/
 Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications
 Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)
 Winner, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires
 autochtones
 Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des
 Services correctionnels
 Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)
 Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles
Ziemba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND)
 Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux
 Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes
 handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux
 Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli, Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills, Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan, Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/
Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland

Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison, Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti, Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott, David Turnbull

Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon

Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford, Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen, Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil, Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway, W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson, Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson, Drummond White

Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/
Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Drummond White

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher, Leo Jordan, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Jim Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters

Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary, George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp, Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano

Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck, Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod, Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/
Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson

Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves, Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski, Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner

Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan

Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini, Kimble Sutherland

Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Wednesday 16 October 1991

Members' statements

Closing of tree nurseries	2929
Mr Miclash
Caledon Information and Community Services	2929
Mr Tilson
Chemical spill	2929
Mrs Mathysen
Hunting and fishing in Algonquin Park	2929
Mr McClelland
Areas of natural and scientific interest	2930
Mr B. Murdoch
Co-op Week	2930
Mr Martin
Landfill site	2930
Mr Offer
Health services	2931
Mr McLean
Municipal elections	2931
Mr Christopherson

Royal assent

His Honour the Lieutenant Governor	2931
--	------

Statements by the ministry

Atikokan assistance	2931
Miss Martel

Responses

Atikokan assistance	2932
Mr Brown
Mr Eves
Mr McLean

Oral questions

Investigation into release of documents	2933
Mr Elston
Mr Laughren
Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	2934
Mr Elston
Mr Ferguson
Mr Harris
Mr Rae
Assistance to farmers	2936
Mr Harris
Mr Rae
Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	2937
Mr Conway
Mr Rae
Hazardous waste	2938
Mr Cousens
Mrs Grier

CAT scanner	2939
Ms Haeck
Ms Lankin
Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	2939
Mr Elston
Mr Rae
Trucking industry	2939
Mr Turnbull
Mr Laughren
Community information centres	2940
Mrs MacKinnon
Mrs Haslam
Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	2940
Mr Elston
Mr Ferguson
Eastern Ontario Vegetable Growers' Co-operative	2941
Mr Villeneuve
Mr Laughren

Petitions

Tobacco taxes	2941
Mr Carr
Oath of allegiance	2941
Mr J. Wilson

Reports by committees

Standing committee on regulations and private bills	2942
Mr White
Agreed to	2942
Standing committee on government agencies	2942
Mr Runciman
Deemed adopted	2942

First readings

Elevating Devices Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 118	2942
Mr Ruprecht
Agreed to	2942

Second readings

Power Corporation Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 118	2942
Mr J. Wilson	2942
Mr Huget	2946
Mr Ruprecht	2946
Mr Johnson	2946
Mr Conway	2946
Mr Wiseman	2947
Mr Hope	2950
Mr White	2950
Mr Brown	2951
Mr McLean	2956
Mr Mammoliti	2957
Mr Cousens	2957
Mr Runciman	2958

Power Corporation Amendment Act, 1991 (continued)	Erratum	2963
Mr Huget		2960
Mr Sola		2960
Mr Duignan	Lists of members	2961
Mr Bisson	Members and their responsibilities	2962
Adjourned	Committees of the Legislative Assembly	2963

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le mercredi 16 octobre 1991

Sanction royale	Deuxième lecture
Son Honneur le lieutenant-gouverneur	Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur la Société de l'électricité, projet de loi 118
Première lecture	2942
Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur les ascenseurs et appareils	Débat ajourné
de levage, projet de loi 139	2963
M. Ruprecht	Listes des députés
Adoptée	Les députés et leurs responsabilités
2942	Comités de l'Assemblée législative

70 1991

70 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Thursday 18 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le jeudi 18 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Thursday 17 October 1991

The House met at 1003.

Prayers.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

PRIVATE MEMBERS' PUBLIC BUSINESS

COMPENSATION FOR VACCINE-RELATED INJURY

Mr Frankford moved resolution 27:

That, in the opinion of this House, the government of Ontario should begin consultation with the public and with health professionals, pharmaceutical manufacturers and health-related organizations regarding the implementation of a compensation scheme for vaccine-related injury.

Mr Frankford: I am very pleased to be able to bring in this resolution, which relates to my personal background as a physician, but I would also like to note the extensive help I have had from legislative research which has given me a very good background on some points I would like to make. I would like to point out that it is a resolution, not a bill, so I trust it will stimulate debate. I hope it will be acceptable to members on all sides of this House.

I would like to start off by noting about vaccination that I think we should realize there are strong public health reasons for vaccination programs. Sometimes people tend to forget that we are dealing with childhood diseases, but these are not just childhood diseases I am talking about; they can relate to other vaccines that are given in adult life. We should remember that there is mortality from what are sometimes thought to be somewhat trivial diseases such as measles.

I would like to read an extract from a Canadian Paediatric Society paper in support of a compensation plan for vaccine-associated injuries. It states: "In the 1980s, Canada's childhood immunization programs have been so successful that the target illnesses are seen infrequently, some not at all. Lacking visible reminders of the dangers of these illnesses, parents today are less certain of the benefits of immunization than were parents one or two decades ago and are more concerned about the safety of vaccines being offered to their children. The vaccines used routinely in Canada are much safer than the diseases they prevent but they are not perfect. Given that vaccines must contain the key portions of bacteria or viruses necessary to induce protective immunity, perfectly safe vaccines may not be attainable."

It is, as I say, an important public policy aspect to have this widespread immunity, and in fact it is close to being a requirement. As the members may know, there are requirements for vaccination around school entry. They are not absolute requirements, but they have considerable force behind them. There are a number of vaccines—I mention measles, diphtheria, tetanus—which are close to being absolute requirements. I say "close to being" because parents do have the option of a philosophical exemption. They can have a written statement saying they object and this does need to be notarized.

Although it is close to being mandatory, it is not absolutely mandatory. It is recognized as one of the philosophical concerns of this Legislature that we did not want to force people to get into things, but I think public health physicians would stress to the members how important it is to maintain widespread immunity. We have recently seen in the United States that there has been some resurgence of measles because of inadequate immunity, and this is a real threat.

Having established that it is close to being public policy and having established that there are risks and inevitably some damage, some injuries associated with it, we get into what happens in the case of injury. I would like to stress it is not my purpose to go into detailed discussions of any particular vaccines. I am not trying to make a case for damage from one vaccine or another. I know there have been some rather tragic cases and some law suits.

Part of the reason for bringing this in is that the present situation does require demonstration of tort, and unfortunately in some of those cases which have gone to court no tort could be demonstrated. No negligence was found on the part of the physicians or the manufacturers, so the unfortunate thing in those cases was that no liability was demonstrated, and the injured parties presumably had to pay quite high legal costs and the physicians and the manufacturers had the stress of going to court.

This is why I am proposing that we bring in some alternative scheme. I have not used the term "no-fault" in my resolution, but I think essentially what we are asking for is a no-fault scheme

1010

I might at this point, just to make it more real, mention one case. In my professional career I have not really come across any, but I have this one personal connection. A relative of mine, a young man, joined the British army around 1939 and had not previously been vaccinated against smallpox. He had a profound reaction which has left him permanently disabled with very profound muscle weakness, although this has not affected his mental state and he has followed quite a successful career. But with this profound muscle weakness he has had to have lifetime attendants and he has had to have a modified car. Now in this case, because it was service-related, it was essentially a no-fault scheme. There is a pension and there has been assistance with activities of day-to-day living. This is an example of what can happen in some circumstances.

Essentially I am asking that some scheme be developed that would do something similar. I am not necessarily saying that we are talking about just a financial compensation scheme. This comes around to the question of comprehensive disability plans which I know have been discussed in this House and which I know have been looked at by the government. I was on the parliamentary assistants' committee that was discussing this topic.

What I am proposing certainly does not rule out developing a comprehensive disability plan, which I hope will come. Partly I bring this resolution forth because I think that in its small way it could help to plan what the approach of a comprehensive disability plan would be. It is a group of disabled people which, as I said, results essentially as a side-effect of public policy. There is a strong obligation for the government or for society to bring in some compensation, because the society in a sense has demanded that they get this vaccination.

In closing, I would like to point out that there are precedents in other jurisdictions. I note there is one in the United States and there is one in Quebec which did in fact result from a legal case around a measles vaccination. In that case the court did find that it was a side-effect of this measles vaccination without any negligence being demonstrated. My understanding is that because of this they felt there should be some sort of no-fault compensation, so they have implemented such a scheme already.

Mrs Caplan: I am pleased to rise in support of the resolution that has been presented today by the member for Scarborough East. I am calling from memory on some of the experiences and discussions around this and a much broader issue, the issue relating to the kinds of injuries that are avoidable that occur within the health system generally.

There has been quite a lot of debate and discussion generated which unfortunately we have not seen presented in this House for any discussion. I welcome the resolution because it gives us an opportunity to talk about what is existing today and what we can do in the future.

I think this issue goes far beyond the simple resolution that has been presented by the member for Scarborough East. He has referred strictly to compensation for vaccine injury. Those cases have been tested through the courts and they have pointed out that in this province, in fact in this country, unless you can prove negligence by the provider, the professional, the institution or the manufacturer, there is no compensation available for the individual, the patient, the consumer who has sustained injury.

I draw to the members' attention that this is the case whether it is vaccine injury, injury as a result of blood products or injury as a result of iatrogenesis. That is a term I became familiar with and I think it is an important term for all members of this House to be aware of. I have a dictionary and I will read the definition. "Iatrogenic: caused by process of medical examination or treatment." Simply put, iatrogenic disease is an illness or a disease which is caused by accessing medical treatment.

Much of iatrogenesis or iatrogenic disease is inadvertent. It is because many procedures carry with them a significant risk of harm. Right now in the standing committee on social development we are dealing with a package of legislation where the concept of licensing the risky and dangerous acts professionals such as doctors, nurses, physiotherapists, chiropractors and others do to people is then developed within the concept of risk of harm.

I refer to the beginning of this debate and would like to point out to members of this House that the now president of the University of Toronto, Dr Robert Prichard, headed a federal-provincial task force that dealt with many of these important issues. I would recommend to all members of this House to read his report, which is entitled Liability and Compensation in Health Care, and I express my disappointment at this time that there has been no action taken by the government in addressing the recommendations of this important report.

The report suggests that there is a problem. We are seeing an increasing number of malpractice and liability suits against doctors, institutions and manufacturers, whether they are pharmaceutical or whether it is in the area of vaccine or other areas. We have seen larger and larger awards. Particularly as inflation has been going in the western world in the last decade, we have seen large awards by the courts.

We have therefore seen an increased cost of liability insurance for providers and professionals and the hospitals, and we have also seen the response from the professionals, which is often defensive medicine. That has had enormous costs in the health system because the providers, wanting to make sure they are providing quality care and doing everything they can, often do many things that are considered unnecessary, wasteful or inappropriate. That is really the call for quality assurance programs, for the development of programs in total quality management, in continuous quality improvement programs, sometimes referred to as CQI.

1020

These are the things that are necessary to start addressing the level of inappropriate care generally within the health system. I use the term "inappropriate," because we are not talking about negligence and we are not talking about malpractice. We are talking about that which just may not be necessary. I notice the member for Scarborough East nodding his head. We understand that.

At the Conference on Quality Assurance hosted by the Ontario Ministry of Health in November 1989 in Metropolitan Toronto, we heard very clearly that the level of inappropriate care taking place in the health system generally was about 20%; that is, of everything we did in the health system, 20% was considered inappropriate.

That does not mean it was not good quality if you happened to have a caesarean section you did not need. That does not mean the tonsillectomy you had was not perfectly and competently performed, except that it may not have been necessary. That does not mean that the service given was not high-quality service, but it was inappropriate because it was unnecessary or did not meet the standard of appropriate care.

Those standards have been and are being defined by medical practitioners around the world for the first time as part of quality assurance, total quality management, continuous improvement programs around the world. The notion of systemic quality assurance in health care is relatively new. We are just beginning to see that take place, so this discussion of a compensation scheme is extremely important.

The reason it is important is because of the changes that are occurring. We know that within the existing system there is inadequate compensation for persons suffering from avoidable injuries in the health system, whether they are related to vaccine, drugs, devices, drugs like thalidomide or blood product selection, the kinds of avoidable injuries that come from iatrogenesis, as I mentioned before.

How do we as a society respond to that? I think the resolution the member has brought forward is the beginning of an important debate in this Legislature, but I do not think it should be defined just in the area of vaccine. I believe Dr Prichard's recommendation should be taken very seriously by legislators, not only in Ontario but right across this country.

He calls for the development—not institutionalizing it today—of a system which would still allow for litigation where there was malpractice. However, he is talking about the development of a no-fault compensation scheme for those people who are inadvertently injured. He points out in his report that the present system is costing about $200 million. That is a lot of money, but that $200 million is only compensating 10% of the actual claims.

Approximately 250 claims are being compensated in Canada today out of an estimated 2,500 deserving claims. Of those, the ones that are being compensated, where you are talking about proven negligence or malpractice against providers or hospitals, in areas such as vaccine there is no compensation at all. The courts have said that unless you can prove negligence or malpractice, there is no entitlement.

The recommendations that are made in this report are extremely significant, in light of the fact that people who we believe should be compensated are not being compensated. The report makes some 79 recommendations, but there are three very significant ones. First, they suggest maintaining tort action for malpractice and negligence against health care providers. Second, they recommend increased responsibility of health care institutions, hospitals and others, for the quality of care provided in them. That is what continuous improvement is about, that is what quality assurance is about and that is what total quality management is about, utilization management and others.

Third, they recommend developing a no-fault compensation system alternative for avoidable health care injuries which have caused personal injuries to individuals. If this recommendation was pursued by the present government, I think it would result in achieving the goals the member for Scarborough East has suggested to us today in the discussion on vaccine compensation. But I suggest to him that the discussion goes far beyond that. There are many people in Ontario today who are not being cared for and compensated except through a very involved court system, when the injury they sustained was inadvertent and the result of lack of standards, lack of the kind of ongoing quality assurance consistency that would lower the rate of those kinds of inadvertent illnesses.

As I speak in support of the resolution, I would also like to speak in support of the recommendations that came out of Dr Prichard's report. I also urge the member to note that within his own government the responses have been very inconsistent. For example, I am aware of the response to the Canadian Hemophilia Society. The federal government announced a compensation program for those with haemophilia who contracted the HIV virus. This was because of the federal government's responsibility for blood supply in this country. There have been some tragic consequences as a result. We are all aware of that.

When this was announced, I know that the provincial Health ministers right across this country indicated a desire to work with the federal government to make sure that proper support was given to those people right across this country. I was disappointed that the response from the federal minister at the time was not more positive in entering into a partnership relationship with all the provinces to develop a truly national program, as opposed to just a federal program.

However, I say today that Dr Prichard noted in his report that the cost of a system for no-fault compensation, such as this suggested by the member, would be far greater than $200 million a year if we included vaccine, blood products, devices and so forth. This report recommends taking the first steps to getting on and doing it. This report says Ontario should not act alone, because this is a national program.

We are also proud of our medicare and the fact that we share principles with every other province in this country. We know of the numbers of cases of individuals who have suffered from reactions to vaccine. Those statistics are clear.

I would say that right now I very much support the nature of mandatory vaccine, because it is in the public health interest. But the unavoidable individual cases of those who are inadvertently damaged in the interests of public health should be responded to in a compassionate and caring way, and the existing system that is in place today does not allow for that.

It is not just in the case of vaccine. I think very specifically of the drug DES. I think of the devices, intrauterine devices and others, which have been permitted to be used and which are now shown to have caused damage. I think of iatrogenic disease, where people are inadvertently harmed in the health system and face no opportunity for compensation because they cannot prove negligence.

I believe this is an important debate and discussion about making sure the people of this province have access to the kind of compensation they deserve. I also think it would be good for the providers. It would lower their tension and their resistance. One of the things Dr Prichard noted was that doctors particularly are under tremendous stress. That is one of the reasons for defensive medicine. Overall, there is tremendous opportunity in support of this discussion, and I am pleased the member has brought it to the Legislature.

Mr McLean: I appreciate this opportunity to say a few words about this resolution of the member for Scarborough East. I was going to say Simcoe East, but that is me. However, I am supporting the resolution so it could be one of mine.

I want to read the resolution into the record. "That, in the opinion of this House, the government of Ontario should begin consultation with the public and with health professionals, pharmaceutical manufacturers and health-related organizations regarding the implementation of a compensation scheme for vaccine-related injury."

1030

I support this resolution in principle because I believe there is a clear need for some form of compensation system for vaccine-related injuries. We all know that proper immunization of schoolchildren is the law in Ontario and is part of the Immunization of School Pupils Act, 1982.

The Ontario Ministry of Health administers a universal school immunization program to ensure that both children and the public are protected against six serious diseases: diphtheria, tetanus, polio, measles, mumps and rubella. Making sure that children are properly immunized has become a back-to-school ritual, much like shopping for new school clothing, packing nutritious lunches and telling kids how to behave at school.

Even when the best vaccine products are properly administered and used, they can pose minute risks to those who receive them. It should be noted that the medical community has historically had a great deal of difficulty identifying vaccine-related problems because neurological conditions are often vague and not well understood. Because of the uncertainty that surrounds neurological disorders, it is quite possible that children who are born with certain types of conditions may have their conditions attributed to vaccines when in fact they are not vaccine-related. I believe it would be irresponsible to establish a vaccine compensation fund that would be a funnel for inappropriate claims.

Having said that, it is time to recognize that the few who suffer inevitable serious vaccine-related injury deserve compensation from the many who remain free of disease as a consequence of the high vaccination levels. I believe a provincial compensation program is feasible. I also believe social conscience demands its enactment.

To me, the most attractive solution involves the establishment of a compensation system with an administrative rather than a judicial base. This would offer dependable, cost-effective, rapid and equitable compensation for unavoidable serious injuries resulting from mandated vaccines. It should reduce frivolous lawsuits, yet provide compensation for all true victims.

At the same time as we are considering implementing a compensation system for vaccine-related injury, the Minister of Health must look into the need for and mechanisms and scope of such a program. This must be undertaken before the government can have any meaningful consultation with the public, health professionals, pharmaceutical manufacturers and health-related organizations. It should be noted that the Ontario Medical Association recommended this several years ago.

In conclusion, I support this resolution in principle, but the boundaries must be defined before we can begin implementing a compensation scheme for vaccine-related injury.

Mr Winner: I am pleased to speak in support of the resolution of the member for Scarborough East calling for consultation on the implementation of a compensation scheme for vaccine-related injury.

Where public health policy so strongly dictates in favour of vaccination as a requirement for school entry, compensation should flow when injury occurs. Forcing the families of victims to sue for negligence adds insult to injury. Often the measure of success is based upon the financial resources of the afflicted party, the ability and resourcefulness of legal counsel, the availability and quality of the evidence, the credibility of the witnesses, and finally and perhaps most important, the predilections of the judge hearing the case.

The insurance companies that underwrite the risk for the manufacturers of these drugs and the physicians who prescribe them are the same insurance companies that hire the high-priced legal counsel to defend their clients in court. They are likely to have infinitely greater resources to ensure success in the judicial arena than do the victims' families.

A causal relationship between the use of pertussis vaccine and brain damage has never been definitively established. There are convincing proponents on either side of this vexed issue. The issue in fact was highlighted in the Rothwell case decided here in Ontario, in which a three-month-old child began to receive immunization doses of pertussis vaccine and after the third dose was found to have severe brain damage, rendering the child blind, almost deaf and severely retarded both mentally and physically, requiring constant care.

Notwithstanding that the trial judge found there was no causality between the injections of pertussis vaccine and the ensuing brain damage, Mr Justice Osler, who heard that case at the trial level, stated that had there been a slight difference in the evidence, had there been further scientific advances or a different trial judge, a very different result might have occurred.

Mr Justice Osler went on to suggest that in view of the compensation schemes that have already been enacted in the United Kingdom and the United States, Ontario provide an adequate but not lavish compensation scheme for cases where the victim of a vaccination has enjoyed prior good health, where the vaccine has been administered under public mandate and where catastrophic damage occurs within a limited period of time.

In fact, Mr Justice Osler went on to quote his brother judge, Mr Justice Krever, in another Ontario case involving the Hamilton Civic Hospitals. Mr Justice Krever said: "I confess to a feeling of discomfort over a state of affairs in an enlightened and compassionate society in which a patient who undergoes a necessary procedure and who cannot afford to bear the entire loss through no fault of his, and reposing full confidence in our system of medical care, suffers catastrophic disability, yet is not entitled to be compensated because of the absence of fault on the part of those involved in his care. While it may be that there is no remedy for this unfortunate and brave plaintiff and that this shortcoming should not be corrected judicially, there is, in my view, an urgent need for correction."

In a similar case in Quebec, the Lapierre case, which was appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada, Mr Justice Chouinard, writing for the majority, acknowledged that special legislation for vaccine victims in France, Britain, Japan, Germany and Denmark provides for compensation regardless of fault and is directed more to the needs of the vaccine victim than to delicate issues of evidence and liability and damages. In that case, Mr Justice Chouinard, speaking for the Supreme Court of Canada, suggested that the obligation to compensate victims independent of fault would be, to use his words, "a wonderful thing."

This case led to a plan in Quebec that compensates victims of permanent physical and mental damage arising from immunization. In Ontario this step would be a logical extension of numerous developments in social welfare that furnish compensation to injured people on a no-fault basis. It would replace or supplement areas of the tort system which imperfectly provide reparation. It would be akin to the workers' compensation system, which operates independently of fault, compensation for victims of crime and the no-fault provisions of auto insurance. There are many precedents for the kind of scheme that the member for Scarborough East is suggesting consultation begin on in earnest.

1040

In Canada, governments have responded to the needs of specially affected citizens whose health has suffered as a result of national or provincial health policies and programs. One example that may immediately come to mind is the federal government grants that were instituted to remove urea formaldehyde foam insulation when it was felt UFFI posed a health risk to those who lived in homes that had been insulated.

Ontario could in fact join Quebec and other jurisdictions that have been mentioned by focusing on the needs of injured victims rather than on narrow legal principles to ensure that the cost of necessary medical services—this would include long-term care and rehabilitation and all the other costs associated with disability—be reimbursed on a modest scale, not on a lavish scale. Thus it can be ensured that the families of these innocent vaccine victims will not have to bear a disproportionate share of the cost of meeting the necessities of life for children who contract brain disease following injection. It would ensure rather that compensation is paid either through a compensation fund established and mandated for pharmaceutical companies or at least spread across society by a government compensation scheme.

Mr Wessenger: I would like to commend the member for Scarborough East for bringing this resolution. I think it brings to the attention of the House the problems of people who suffer through the health care system, the problems we have with our tort system and the fact that the tort system does not work well in providing compensation for victims. I will be supporting the resolution because it calls for a discussion of the matter to see what types of schemes we should come up with. However, I do have some concerns about dealing with the matter on the specific, narrow basis of vaccine alone.

First, there are a very small number of cases in this regard, and I think we have to look at the financial costs of setting up an administrative system or a compensation fund, if that is the process we are going to do, that would add a great deal of administrative cost. We have to be aware that the implementation of this scheme would undoubtedly raise the cost of administering vaccine programs. I am not opposed to the resolution for that reason, but I think we should be aware that there is a cost factor.

Second, I think we have to be aware that this is just a small part of the injury suffered through the health system by many individuals. We have the situation of the victim who got AIDS through receiving blood transfusions. We have other drugs to which there are adverse reactions. So we really ought to be looking at a broader scheme with respect to the whole aspect of compensation rather than just the narrow scope of vaccination.

The other aspect that concerns me is setting up a scheme on the basis of the workers' compensation scheme. The fact is that we still have the problem of determining causation. My friend the member for London South indicated the problems in proving causation with respect to vaccines. I think that is basically a problem. Again, maybe we ought to be looking at a broader type of compensation scheme. I am certainly supportive of developing a broad compensation scheme for people who are victims in our society, a scheme that would rehabilitate them and provide the necessary health care.

In conclusion, I would like to commend the member for bringing this matter to the attention of the House. Hopefully out of the discussions we will take a further step towards providing a better compensation scheme for victims of our health care system.

Mr J. Wilson: I am pleased to rise in support of the member's resolution this morning. I think everyone agrees that some degree of compensation is needed for individuals injured through vaccination. Children maimed by vaccinations are in effect suffering in the line of public duty. Not only are they immunized for their own protection, but also to protect the entire population from disease and from the enormous medical and social costs of epidemics.

There have been discussions involving federal and provincial health officials regarding the feasibility of compensation. Some of the important issues have been resolved and some have not, and we have seen that in the debate at this point this morning.

The problem I have with the member's resolution, although I agree with it in principle, is that it talks of beginning "consultation with the public and with health professionals, pharmaceutical manufacturers and health-related organizations" to implement "a compensation scheme for vaccine-related injury." I think it is premature for us to begin consultations to implement a compensation policy when a consensus is yet to be reached on how to go about this, and so I question the wording of the resolution.

The Ontario Medical Association is recommending an investigation into a compensation scheme instead of the establishment of a scheme at this time. I want to quote from Dr Ted Boadway, the director of health policy at the Ontario Medical Association. He sent me a letter yesterday and in it he talks about a couple of things. He says:

"This is the problem that children who are born with other conditions may have their condition attributed to vaccinations, since vaccination is universal, by parents who desperately would like to find a cause." The member for Simcoe East previously spoke about causation. "You must understand that this search for cause is not motivated by avarice but rather by profound grief." He goes on to say, "These issues can be extremely difficult to decide, and would bedevil any compensation scheme."

Finally he says: "This is why we recommend the 'investigation' rather than the 'establishment' because we have doubts that the state of our knowledge in Ontario allows us to wisely decide the gates of entry to this program. Before you can recommend institution you must have some idea of the gates of entry, or the gates—or the lack of gates—will become a threat to the program itself."

I also want to briefly point out a couple of legal questions that I think have to be resolved before implementing any such compensation scheme. Quebec, for instance, has a vaccine injury plan that enables individuals to sue and be compensated, and the question arises, is the compensation money being used at times for unsuccessful lawsuits, and if so, is it being found to be extremely costly for taxpayers?

An additional concern I have is whether you pre-define what constitutes vaccine injury or leave it up to a panel or a series of panels to decide on an injury. Of course, the problem there is that implicit in any such system of adjudication is the notion that adjudicated evidence does not constitute medical evidence. So it is a question of whether we pre-define what we are talking about or allow courts or quasi-judicial panels to decide it.

How would a compensation plan pay out? Would it be like the federal government's plan where they are compensating a couple of thousand haemophiliacs, particularly children, affected by the HIV virus who were infected prior to 1985 when we were not screening the blood supply? They have been paid a lump sum. Does the member for Scarborough East, whose resolution we are debating, have in mind a lump sum payment or a regular payment program? Certainly the lump sum payment in the case of haemophiliacs is considered to be the more compassionate route.

Another concern that was mentioned is whether all the taxpayers pay for such a scheme. Will it fall on the shoulders of pharmaceutical manufacturers? I would argue that it should not, since pharmaceutical manufacturers, in developing the vaccines, are for the most part doing a great public service. Our programs are universal at this point and should not be solely responsible for those cases where injury occurs.

Finally I wonder whether the issue of liability, in the inestimable costs it could present, will serve to jeopardize the future of our immunization program, which could have devastating consequences for the general health of our population and for the quality of life of the people of Ontario.

1050

Ms Carter: I too would like to congratulate the member for Scarborough East and say that I am glad everybody agrees with this resolution. I think they should; it is very desirable. Vaccination, combined with increases in the standard of living and improvements in public hygiene, has probably done more to lengthen life and improve public health than any other advance in medicine.

My grandmother had seven children. Three of them died in infancy from infectious diseases, diphtheria and scarlet fever, I believe. Child mortality figures in particular have been enormously improved by vaccination. Diphtheria, smallpox and polio, which used to be household words, are now largely vanquished and the incidence of some of the less frequently fatal childhood illnesses has also been greatly reduced.

It has already been said that a person who has a vaccination is not just obeying the law or improving his own chances of survival; he is doing a public service. They are reducing the pool of people who can harbour a disease, thus reducing the likelihood that other people, whether vaccinated or not, will get it. Of course, the classic instance of this is the smallpox virus, which was eradicated after a worldwide campaign of vaccination. I can remember when a smallpox vaccination was mandatory for travellers. Now, as a result of universal vaccination, we are relieved of that nuisance.

There is a small number of people who have adverse reactions, some of them permanent, to given vaccines. As far as I know, and as has been said, it would not be possible to determine in advance who those people might be. Thus there is no specific blame to be attached when such adverse reactions occur. I would therefore agree that if vaccination is to be compulsory, and the more widespread and effective it is, then there has to be no-fault compensation for people who suffer damage as a result of receiving vaccination.

The damage is a fact regardless of whether the vaccine was administered properly or whether something was incorrectly done. I can see no point in wasting government money or any other funds on determining whether there was any fault, and I find the third party's pickiness on this issue to be a little counterproductive. Obviously there needs to be machinery in place to discuss negligence, but since damage can occur without negligence this should not be the criterion for compensation.

Quebec alone in Canada has legislation to compensate people. It is time intergovernmental discussions among other provinces in Canada and the federal government bore fruit. Disagreement over details should not stand in the way of the creation of a compensation fund, otherwise blameless individuals will continue to suffer more than they need for co-operating in the search for safer and healthier lives for all of us. I wholeheartedly support this resolution.

Mr Jackson: I am very pleased that occasionally we have new members of the Legislature who bring with them their new ideas and their sense of dedication, but unfortunately they do not bring their full sense of history on some of the important issues before us. In that sense, on the one hand I want to commend the member for Scarborough East for bringing forward this resolution, but I also want to remind the member and his government that a bill similar to this was presented by my colleague Mr Jack Pierce, the member for Rainy River, back in 1986.

From his private member's bill, debated on a morning not unlike this, there was a series of public hearings. First of all, we got the permission of the government of the day to allow it to go to the standing committee on social development, and then have public hearings. What ensued was an incredible education for the members of this House in 1987. Not only did we meet the Rothwell family and Patrick, the boy who has been discussed here, but we met families from Thunder Bay, where a child had been inoculated for the second time in a month because the medical community in Thunder Bay had misplaced the child's records and that child died. The child's brain actually boiled over during the middle of the night and when they checked with the doctor, the doctor said: "The child's just being colicky. Call me in the morning." The child did not live through the night.

Throughout the entire world there is sufficient evidence that there is cause and effect as it relates to vaccine damage, and in particular with the pertussis vaccine. So when the member for Peterborough talks about pickiness, I want members to know that there is a long history of concern on this issue for members on this side of the House, and in particular Mr Jack Pierce. I have spoken in this House for up to three and a half hours on the issue of vaccine-damaged children in this province and I represent Patrick Rothwell in this Legislature; he is my constituent.

I want to let the members of this House know a couple of facts. We had Bill 98 in 1987. That bill caused a certain protocol to be observed in this province. It said that physicians are obligated under law to inform families of the risks associated with this vaccine. We did not have that law in this province. Parents were going in with a child, with no one to advocate for him except the physician and the parent, who could not articulate his needs as a three-month-old or a six-month-old child. We were not routinely informing people and that is what happened to Patrick Rothwell. The family had no idea that if he had an adverse reaction, it might be related to the vaccine.

We now have that protocol in place, but when we had all agreed that we should inform the patient, the government of the day changed the legislation to say just simply to cause the patient to be aware. In other words, if the pamphlet is in the doctor's office in this province, that is sufficient to cover him legally—the information about risks with adverse reactions to vaccines. That is not good enough. It is not good enough in most of the jurisdictions in North America, but it seems to be good enough in Ontario.

We are supposed to be keeping a registry of all the adverse reactions with children in this province and yet we know that is not going on. Like the registry we have for women who died during childbirth, there are supposed to be records kept. They are sitting in some file cabinet in the Ministry of Health. Nobody is analysing them and examining them.

Let me tell members the most important aspect of this issue. There are provinces, and states in the United States, that will not use the vaccine we routinely use in this province. Some Third World countries do not use our vaccine but we have a very cheap vaccine. In 1987 Connaught Laboratories was charging $3 an inoculation. It raised it to $8 so it could create a fund for insurance in case it went to court. I have not heard anybody discuss this insurance money that Connaught Laboratories has been stockpiling over the years and how that relates to this issue of compensation. I think that is an area we should be discussing, but because we have public health care in this province—other jurisdictions that do not are able to develop compensation schemes by using the cost associated with what is charged for the inoculation.

We should be looking at the kind of research going on around the world. In Japan they are using split-cell approaches to this vaccine to get a much safer vaccine with documented empirical results that show they have fewer adverse reactions causing death.

As my time is running out I want to put on the record, especially on Patrick Rothwell's behalf, that if you open up this vaccine in this province today, there is a warning that says, "The parents should be questioned about the occurrences of any severe adverse reactions after the previous dose." That is the warning. If you look to the drug formulary books they will tell you that sudden infant death syndrome can be connected to this vaccine. It has been reported following administration of vaccines containing diphtheria, tetanus and toxoids.

There are a lot of important issues about this, the issue of compensation. I commend the member for raising it, but in 1987 we were told there would be a compensation plan and discussion.

1100

The Deputy Speaker: Thank you, your time has expired.

Mr Jackson: It is now five years late. Let's get on with it in this province.

The Deputy Speaker: The member for Scarborough East, you have two minutes to reply.

Mr Frankford: I have very much enjoyed listening to the contributions of the members on all sides. It really was my purpose to try to stimulate awareness of this issue, and I quite deliberately restricted it to the question of vaccination, although I am happy to hear the suggestions about broadening it. I thought that since there is this question, as the Conservative Party Health critic said, of injury in the line of public duty, this makes it particularly pressing to do something in this particular area.

I would like to acknowledge the contribution of the member for Oriole and her reference to the Prichard report, which I certainly am aware of. I do hope it is going to be discussed, because it does raise important questions about combining no-fault with tort. I think this is something which is of great interest in a broad range of areas. It gets into automobile insurance and other areas, so I thank her for raising that question.

Since there is not much time, the question of cost has not been raised all that much and I would have liked to spend more time on it but, as the member for Burlington South said, there is insurance. The companies are paying insurance right now. Physicians are paying their liability insurance, which in fact now gets topped up by the government. I think there are funds which could be reallocated into this but, as I say, the resolution is about consultations and I trust all these things will be brought into it.

FUNDING OF GROWTH BOARDS

Mr Sola moved resolution 28:

That, in the opinion of this House, given that there is extraordinary population growth in the areas of the greater Toronto area immediately surrounding Metropolitan Toronto, and that current development plans, such as the Sandringham-Wellindale development in Brampton, and the pattern of immigrant settlement suggest that such growth will continue indefinitely, and given that in 1991 the growth boards, namely, the Peel Board of Education, the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board, the Durham Board of Education, the Durham Region Roman Catholic Separate School Board, the York Region Board of Education and the York Region Roman Catholic Separate School Board, were seriously underfunded in comparison to their expressed capital requirements, the present government of Ontario should undertake to develop a capital funding formula particular to these growth boards to take into consideration their extraordinary needs.

The Deputy Speaker: Pursuant to standing order 94(c)(i), the honourable member has 10 minutes for his presentation.

Mr Sola: The reason I had to move this resolution was the receipt of a couple of letters, one dated October 2 from the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board and one from the chairman of the Growth Boards' Coalition, Mr Harry Bowes, which was mailed to the former Minister of Education, the member for London Centre, on October 1 this year. Both of them highlight the problems that the growth boards are experiencing.

A little bit of background information to start off with: As we all know, there is an extraordinary rate of growth in the areas immediately surrounding Metropolitan Toronto, and this rate of growth can be described as mushrooming, not growth, because none of the municipalities can keep up with the demand for services the growth has engendered. For instance, in Brampton this new development, Sandringham-Wellindale, will develop a whole community. I will allow my colleague the member for Brampton North to tell us more about the problems that will cause, because they will be causing a few grey hairs in his head, I think.

The growth boards which were named in the resolution requested $796 million for the year 1991 for capital projects and they received a total of $75 million. That is less than 10%. All these boards put together are currently using 3,015 portables. That means that out of a total of 345,000 students enrolled in these boards, at any one time you can have up to 90,000 sitting in portables. That is more than most boards have enrolled.

The extraordinary growth of these boards is just that, extraordinary, meaning that because there are special circumstances, they deserve special treatment. Where else in this province are children taught in such conditions?

I want to give members a breakdown of what the various boards requested and what they received from the provincial government in 1991. The York region separate school board asked for $141 million and was allocated $15 million for capital projects. They are presently employing 365 portables. The York region public school board asked for $62 million and received $11 million. They are employing 726 portables. The Durham region separate board asked for $111 million and received $9 million, requiring the use of 147 portables. The Durham public board asked for $92 million, received $7 million and uses 500 portables. The Dufferin-Peel separate school board asked for $322 million and was allocated only $25 million, requiring the use of 630 portables. The Peel public board asked for $68 million, received $8 million and is using 637 portables.

What are the problems with the underfunding of capital projects? First of all, there is the growth of portables. As I said, there are 3,015 portables in the growth boards, and taking an average of 30 students per portable, which is what the student-teacher ratio is in the growth boards, that comes out to over 90,000 students. This means that a huge number of children are being educated in structures that were designed to be temporary. Some of these temporary structures have been in place now for over 30 years. Because they are temporary, they are causing problems which have nothing to do with education.

Here I would like to refer to the letter from the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board, dated October 2 and addressed to me. It says:

"As you are well aware, the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board has faced and is facing a number of critical issues: inadequate amounts and levels of provincial funding; taxpayer concerns about education costs, and others. As you may have noted recently in the press, we are now encountering yet another serious issue—that of indoor air quality."

It goes on to say later in the letter:

"The report details, among other board concerns, the need for regulated/legislated standards related to indoor air quality; the lack of interministerial consensus on IAQ issues; the complexity in attempting to determine all the variables related to IAQ; the potential considerable cost to the board to install mechanical ventilation units in its portable classrooms if required and the cost to the local rate-payers of studies to determine the nature and extent of our problems regarding IAQ."

1110

They go on to give five recommendations: that the board request the Ministry of Education, in co-operation with other appropriate ministries, to establish regulated indoor air quality standards and to provide adequate funding to ensure that schools meet such standards; that local MPPs be requested to address this issue in the Legislature as soon as possible; that the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board establish a task force consisting of trustees, staff and parents to study indoor air quality issues and to provide recommendations; that in order to assess indoor air quality through the system, the board authorize the expenditure of funds, not to exceed $20,000, to expand the study to determine ventilation rates in a representative sample of portable and portapac classrooms, and finally, that the board authorize the expenditure of funds, not to exceed $80,000, for piloting, at St Basil Elementary School and other sites selected by staff according to criteria which will be reported and approved to the board, a variety of mechanical devices and alternative measures, with a view to finding the best solutions related to indoor air quality issues which can be generalized to the rest of the board.

Members can see from just this one letter what problems result from having too many portables and portapacs.

I would like to touch on another issue and just show members what the students are facing in several schools. Bishop Scalabrini, for instance, was designed to accommodate 500 students. Its 1990 enrolment was almost 1,100 and it was forced to use 20 portables. Father Michael Goetz was designed for 1,100. In 1990 enrolment was 1,900. They were forced to use 25 portables. St Martin, which my two daughters attend, designed for less than 700, had an enrolment of almost 1,500, forcing it to use 25 portables. Loyola Catholic Secondary School, designed for 750, last year had an enrolment of over 1,400, requiring 26 portables. Here is a real interesting one: Our Lady of Mount Carmel, designed for less than 1,100, last year had an enrolment of over 1,400. They were forced to use 15 portables last year, and to date, as I am speaking, they are in the process of putting up their 30th. In one year they have put up 15 more.

I would like to refer now in the last few minutes I have to the letter of October 1 addressed to the former Minister of Education by Harry Bowes, the chairman of the Growth Boards' Coalition. It states, and this was also reiterated by my colleague the member for York North, who is the critic for Education, that the former Liberal government passed Bill 20, legislation which would provide boards of education with the opportunity to put in place lot levies to raise moneys for the construction of new schools. To date, they have waited over 22 months to get authority to hold public meetings and to pass the necessary bylaws and they are really concerned, because not only are they losing money, but the provincial government is forced to allocate additional moneys to meet the needs.

Mr McLean: I welcome this opportunity to comment briefly on this resolution from the member for Mississauga East. I would like to read the resolution into the record again. It says:

"That, in the opinion of this House, given that there is extraordinary population growth in the areas of the greater Toronto area immediately surrounding Metropolitan Toronto, and that current development plans, such as the Sandringham-Wellindale development in Brampton, and the pattern of immigrant settlement suggest that such growth will continue indefinitely, and given that in 1991 the growth boards, namely, the Peel Board of Education, the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board, the Durham Board of Education, the Durham Region Roman Catholic Separate School Board, the York Region Board of Education and the York Region Roman Catholic Separate School Board, were seriously underfunded in comparison to their expressed capital requirements, the present government of Ontario should undertake to develop a capital funding formula particular to these growth boards to take into consideration their extraordinary needs."

I have some reservations about this resolution, because it focuses exclusively on the greater Toronto area and ignores other critical areas of Ontario.

With respect to the Simcoe County Board of Education, there are currently 7,000 elementary and 1,800 secondary school students educated in 340 portable classrooms. With respect to the Simcoe County Roman Catholic Separate School Board, there are currently 2,882 English elementary students educated in 131 portable classrooms and 1,424 English secondary students educated in 89 portable classrooms. As well, there are 176 French elementary students educated in eight portable classrooms.

In Ontario, we are in serious danger of having a generation of students go through school in substandard facilities. As many as four students are forced to share lockers because schools are occupied by twice as many students as were intended in some areas of this province. Some schools have little outdoor recreation space because playgrounds and track facilities are covered with portable classrooms. I have some serious concerns about the health and safety of students who are faced with getting an education under such an outdated system.

Under Ontario's current system, taxes raised through commercial and industrial assessment are shared between school boards, based on the number of home owners who list themselves on the tax rolls as separate or public school supporters.

Quoting from the New Democratic Party's Agenda for People:

"The Liberals like to talk about international competitiveness and preparing for the next century. Yet they've broken their promise of 60% funding for elementary and secondary schools, putting the squeeze on quality education and property taxpayers.

"New Democrats propose raising the provincial share of education costs to 60% over five years, providing a solid base for a better education system and lifting some of the load of property taxes. The cost of this initiative over the next two years would be $1.5 billion. That's also $1.5 billion in property tax relief for Ontarians. We want to reverse the punishing increases in property taxes which hit seniors and low-income people especially hard." This is the same government that has cut back on student funds for university.

I suggest that the NDP Agenda for People and the resolution before us today are examples of inadequate solutions to problems created by an outdated system for raising and distributing money for education purposes. I also suggest the time has come for us to undertake a complete review of education funding in Ontario.

In line with the third recommendation of the select committee on education's third report, I believe co-operation with the education community is essential to define the types and level of programs and services that constitute a basic education, and to calculate the component costs of these services. Provincial support for education would be determined by this new model.

These funding reforms would ensure that every school board in the province has sufficient resources to provide equality of educational opportunity for every child. In the interim, no new provincial initiatives should be introduced without adequate provincial resources for their implementation.

In consultation with the education community, the government should look towards the establishment of an option for the creation of consolidated school boards, where both the public and the separate school boards wish to do so. Consolidated school boards would be composed of one joint administrative board and two educational panels, allowing for greater cost efficiencies and more effective use of resources.

I believe enhanced internal and external audit procedures for school boards are necessary to ensure cost-effective use of tax dollars. I recognize the need to establish a separate capital expenditure budget to cover the cost of renovations and repairs of the existing stock. I also recognize the need for government to work with the development industry to build new schools in growth areas of the province. Under this leaseback concept, home builders would retain ownership of the land, build a school and then lease it back to the school board for a specific period. This would ensure that new schools would be built at the same time as subdivisions, eliminating the need for portables in growth areas.

Perhaps the government should review the education lot levy and allow school boards to issue bonds with preferred income tax rates to finance the local share of capital construction.

Just recently, one of the school board members in my riding had a meeting with the Ministry of the Environment on the reasonable land use policy with regard to school boards in the county. The indication I had from that meeting was that now we are not going to be able to put additions on to schools because of the septic system requirement of the Ministry of the Environment. In a school with an enrolment of 218 pupils, they require an additional 114 acres to put an addition on to that school. In a school in Wyevalle with 245 pupils, the acreage required for 350 students would be 61 and for 500 students would be 87.

There are other examples in East Oro, Guthrie and Medonte East of the additional acreage required to put additions on to schools. What they are really saying is that there are going to be no more additions to rural schools, so the Ministry of the Environment and the Ministry of Education had better start looking at the reasonable land use policy applying to the school boards across this province.

1120

Mr Martin: It gives me some deal of pleasure to rise this morning as the member for Sault Ste Marie and parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Education to speak to this resolution.

First of all, I want to say to the member for Mississauga East that he certainly brings to us today a very real problem, one that I do not think any of us does not recognize, one that I do not think any of us has not in some way been lobbied about over the last number of months.

All of us who represent ridings across Ontario that have school boards therein recognize that the funding of education is a challenge that faces this province in a more critical way now than it ever has in its past. However, this problem is not a challenge—let's call it that—unique to the greater Toronto area. It is a problem all of us experience across the province. It is not a problem the government has not recognized and is not trying to grapple with and come up with some answers to.

I think it is important to recognize two factors. One of them is that the challenge of education is province-wide and that we must consider the whole province when we look at how we fund education. Not only that but, in looking at the funding of education, we must be very concerned as well about where we raise that money, where it comes from and how we do that. It is a much more complicated issue than simply levying taxes on people who are building new homes and that sort of thing.

This government has responded to that challenge, actually, in two ways. We have launched the Fair Tax Commission, which will allow us to look at this problem in its fullness, in all its factors. We recognize there is a problem in the collection of taxes and how we spend them. There is a demand on the government today for moneys as there never was before, particularly in front of the recession that we have raging.

This is the question being asked by the Fair Tax Commission: Is the current property tax system capable of meeting the revenue requirements associated with local governments' and school boards' program delivery responsibilities while imposing a fair tax burden on property owners? If not, what changes should be made to the property tax system and/or other funding sources for local governments and/or school boards to improve the fairness of their revenue-raising requirements?

I think the operative word here in both the collection of taxes and the spending of taxes is "fairness," certainly recognizing that Metropolitan Toronto has a particular problem at the moment. A number of the boards the member for Mississauga East spoke of were in my office speaking very passionately and eloquently about their own particular situation. However, every weekend when I go home I hear the same story from my own boards.

It is also important to know that the Ministry of Education has launched a discussion around this question in an effort to participate more positively with the Fair Tax Commission. It has started an education reform project and put out a consultation paper that will include all the major players. The focus of that particular exercise will be on providing equity to the learner in Ontario and also being fair and responsible to the taxpayer.

As I said in my opening remarks, I appreciate the opportunity to speak to this. I recognize it as a very important challenge in front of us as a government. I suggest that we as a government are responding in a responsible way. We are looking at the problem in its fullness. We appreciate, invite and will consider seriously any discussion or input that members across the floor and particularly our partners out in the communities might have on this important question.

Mr Curling: What an opportunity to remind this government of its responsibilities. It is very easy. I want to just come from a base, all the time, from their bible or charter, the Agenda for People. They are very familiar with that, because it is a document with which they are guiding themselves to destruction, as a matter of fact, because of renegeing.

The member for Simcoe East mentioned exactly the direction in which they felt they would be going and also some of the broken promises of the Liberal government. When we are speaking about broken promises, we just have to see the government across the way. I am very encouraged by the members on the government side who have recognized the importance of lack of funding. Not only have they broken their promise on the operating costs, but they have also reneged on their commitments to capital funding.

We have seen the rapid growth that has taken place, Mr Speaker. I am from the riding of Scarborough North, which I know you have visited very regularly. I encourage many of the members here to visit that wonderful place of Scarborough, specifically Scarborough North, which is an example of the diversity and growth of Ontario and the need for capital funding, especially in the school system.

When the Liberal government was in power in 1990, it allocated to the Scarborough Board of Education grants totalling over $8 million for the construction of two schools. As members will remember, that included child care centres for both schools, quite a forward-looking policy.

The NDP says now that the cupboard is bare. As a matter of fact, they are beyond even thinking properly how to construct the economy. When they looked into that cupboard they said it was bare, but when they reached their hands in there, they found money to pay off the teachers, they found money for Ontario Hydro and the exorbitant salary they are paying Mr Eliesen, and they found money for many other things. But to find money to educate our children—

Mr McClelland: The future of the province.

Mr Curling: The future of the province, as my colleague the member for Brampton North states; no foresight at all, no commitment in that direction. It pains my heart that the cupboard is bare, not for doctors, not for the Ontario Public Service Employees Union, but for our children.

Between 1981 and 1986, Scarborough grew or increased by 9.3%. On a comparative basis the city of York grew by 6% and the city of Toronto by 2.2%. More recent estimates point to even more dramatic growth, with much of our community's population increasingly made up of the many new Canadians who arrive and contribute so well to our population.

The member for Scarborough East nodded in agreement, realizing the urgent need for that funding. I am sure he has visited the portables; if he has not done so, I would encourage him to visit the portables that are there. Many of the students are now studying in portables. They had identified the need when in opposition, then the third party, that this was so needed, so much so that they put it in the Agenda for People.

I would like to clear this up, but I decided not to because I feel they will come to their senses. We have colleagues on this side who are prepared to sit with them to show them where the priorities are, because most times the socialists over on that side talk a lovely talk but they do not walk. It is time for them to walk the walk and scrap the talking. The consultation, the constant consult, consult, "in order for us to consult" is a lot of talk, of rhetoric.

Our children are hurting. For us to compete we must have the equipment and the facilities. I urge them to encourage those ministers who sit close by to change the priority and put the proper funding within the school system.

1130

The Deputy Speaker: The member for Mississauga South.

[Applause]

Mrs Marland: I appreciate the applause, especially from the government members this morning.

It is a pleasure to rise to support the resolution of my colleague the member for Mississauga East. I also congratulate him on the first resolution he has had an opportunity to bring forward in his four and a half years in the House. Since we are on a lottery system, we do not all get to the top of the heap with our lottery draw for this opportunity.

However, the one concern I have about the resolution is that it is limited. I wish it would have gone further into the real problem that exists today for the funding of education in Ontario, not only in terms of the capital cost but also the operating cost for schools and the education systems.

The travesty of what has been going on for the last six years in Ontario is that both the present government and the previous government—the Liberal government—have not made education the priority it needed to be, nor have they fulfilled the responsibility with which they are mandated, to give an equal opportunity for education to every child in this province.

During our Conservative election campaign of last year, we actually put forward a very realistic suggestion, and that was that there should be two separate capital funds to address two different needs, one being the construction and building of new schools and the other being renovation and repairs to existing schools.

We can have schools in older areas of new-growth boards and the Peel Board of Education and the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board are two very good examples of that, but I would like to give members an example of a school in my riding in Mississauga South, which is one of the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board's elementary schools, and it is St James school.

If members were to visit St James school, they would find a facility for education in Mississauga South that they would not believe could exist in terms of its being crowded and with a total lack of facilities for a full curriculum program for those children.

I have stood in this House every year for all the years I have been here and talked about St James school. I have stood in this House and begged every Minister of Education to come and visit St James school and try to understand why each had a responsibility as Minister of Education to make the renovation and repairs to existing stock as big a priority as funding new schools, so that children who are in any part of this province at least have an equal opportunity because they have an equal type of facility. The children in St James school do not have a gymnasium or an auditorium. They have to be bused to outside facilities like church halls to rehearse for school concerts and similar events.

Their physical education program is limited because of not having a gymnasium. Of course, as with so many schools in the region of Peel, a large proportion of the students are in portables. We now have a new Minister of Education and I will be writing my routine letter to him to see if we can yet convince a Minister of Education in this province to care about older schools that need repair and renovation.

I wrote repeatedly to the Liberal ministers of education. I wrote to the member for London Centre, the previous Minister of Education in the current socialist government. As I said a moment ago, I will be writing to our new Minister of Education, the member for Dovercourt.

It is really significant that for the last six years the number of children in portables in this province has increased by 102.6%, over 100% more children in portables today in Ontario than when the Progressive Conservative Party was the government and responsible for education.

We have these horrific figures of children in portables. At this point I would like to mention on behalf of the member for Willowdale that at Brebeuf Secondary School, which is a Metropolitan Separate School Board facility in his riding, 60% of the students are in portables. In the Dufferin-Peel separate school board and the Peel Board of Education in Peel, over 50% of the children are in portables.

At the same time we have all these children in portables, which in my opinion is substandard education in terms of the opportunity of an environment, the cost of education is more and more being transferred down to the lower levels of government, namely, the municipal level of funding. The school boards themselves are now having to debenture and borrow the money to build their new schools. Who pays the cost of that borrowing? The property taxpayers. I have a great deal of concern with what is going on in the province today, and I hope there will be a remedy for it.

1140

Mr Fletcher: I rise not to support the resolution but to show some sympathy for the resolution. As a former trustee with the Wellington County Board of Education, I know too well the problems with underfunding. I have seen the people on our board, the administration work hard with the lack of funding over the years. It is not something that has happened just today. This problem is not a problem that lurks only in Mississauga or somewhere else like that. It is throughout the province and that is something I think we have to address quite clearly.

If members look at the area of Guelph which has seen unprecedented growth over the last few years, that is not just an overflow of people from Toronto; that also brings in people from outside the province and people from outside the country.

The problems in my riding are the same as members would find in most ridings in Ontario: overcrowded schools, busing children long distances so that they can find available space, and administration being pushed out and squeezed out. The problems are there and we cannot just keep throwing money we do not have at the situation. I think my colleague the member for Sault Ste Marie mentioned some of the programs that we are implementing as a government.

When people talk about the quality of education, as I said, being a former trustee I know how dedicated and how hardworking the teachers are in Wellington county. That is why the quality of education in Wellington county is so high; also the administration, which has to work with the lack of funds and try to implement some of the programs the government puts on us.

What it is going to take is some co-operation between school boards and the provincial government, and also co-operation in this House between the opposition and the government, to help us put our programs through so we can start dealing with some of the problems that the underfunding problem has created. We have to realize, as I said before, that this did not start overnight. This started with the extreme right-wing party, when Bill Davis was Minister of Education and was starting to tinker with the system, and it has not stopped since.

When I was a trustee for five years, it was during five years of economic boom and the Liberals were in power and we could not get a penny out of them this way or that way. As I said, it did not start overnight. The problems started there, they continued there and now the member is saying to us to fix it for his area. We cannot do it overnight. We are going to take our time to do it and we are going to make sure that the economy can support our education system before we start throwing more money at it.

Mr McClelland: Let me at the outset address a few comments made by my friend the member for Guelph. His point is well taken. There is a problem that attaches to school boards across the province, and to any that are high-growth areas. I think my friend the member for Mississauga East has tried to focus the issue with respect to the areas in the GTA, because that is where there is a significant problem with respect to growth.

I want to talk very briefly about a point that was raised by the member for Guelph. He said that the former government did nothing. I remind him that the previous government, prior to the Peterson government, had flat-lined capital funding for year after year. In the year I was elected, I say to my friend opposite, it went from $75 million to $300 million. I would say that is doing an awful lot. In the boards I represent, the areas that are contiguous with my riding, more money was spent in the Peel board than was spent previously in the entire province. I think it is important that the record show the former government responded.

I asked the question at that time, "How much is enough?" When it comes to this issue, one could argue that you never have enough. But for the members now in government to have flat-lined what we did in government is really just totally unacceptable. They have betrayed the promise they made that they would address the problem. They have flat-lined. They have in fact done what the Conservative government did and have flat-lined capital funding for schools. I think the member for Guelph should keep that important point in focus.

I want to say to the people of Ontario, particularly those in high-growth areas, that right now school boards are presenting their capital funding proposals to the Ministry of Education. School boards are now presenting their capital needs for the next provincial budget. I would urge every parent who has a child in a portable in the greater Toronto area and indeed across the province, to phone the Premier at 325-1941 and tell him that you are not satisfied that your child is receiving an education in a portable. Call the Premier at 325-1941 or fax him at 325-3745 and make a phone call for every child who is in a portable. In my area alone that would be some 36,000 phone calls to the Premier's office. I urge parents to do that.

I want to tell members what the Premier said when he was just "Call me Brother Bob," before he became the imperial Premier. He said, "Every time they"—school boards—"build a new school in the area a few kilometres northwest of Toronto problems are added right away, which is a direct product of the underfunding of the government. School boards have been wrestling with rapid growth without getting enough money from the provincial government."

A year ago, prior to the election, in the summer of 1990, before he was cloaked in the regal robes he prances around in now, the Premier said, "I'll take care of it." On August 10, 1990, he said, "The Peel Board of Education"—which includes Huttonville—"is one of the largest in Canada and has 18,000 of its 93,000 students studying in portables." He promised an NDP government would increase government spending on education, but he would not reveal the details until later in the campaign. The campaign is past. It has been more than a year since he was sworn in as Premier and I have seen nothing happen in the area board. It has been flat-lined.

I take particular exception to that. We took a lot of heat. We did the best we could and we did not do well enough. I admit we did not do well enough, because when it comes to providing adequate funding for our children, you cannot do too much. But the year before the member for York South became Premier, 28 capital projects were funded in Peel. Last year, under the Premier who promised he would take care of this problem, five capital projects were funded. The people of Ontario and Peel cannot accept that in light of his promise. I again urge them to call the Premier, to fax the Premier and tell him, "Bob Rae, live up to your promise."

Mrs MacKinnon: Education has long been of great interest to me and it continues to be now that I find myself as the elected member for Lambton. Many will be aware that I was serving on the Lambton County Board of Education at the time of my election. I well remember during my term as a trustee the many concerns I, along with my colleagues, had at budget time trying to match the dollars available to the programs we were trying to implement. I very well remember looking at the dollar amounts being requested and the dollar amounts projected by the collection of taxes. I need not tell anyone the two never matched; indeed, the budget dollars were far more than the dollars available.

It goes without saying that it is still that way. With the onslaught of this recession dollars for education are still in short supply. It appears to me that at a time of restraint such as we find ourselves in it is necessary for all school boards in Ontario, including Lambton county's, to become more innovative as to how they are spending their dollars.

I cannot support this resolution because in my opinion all boards of education are experiencing population growth. I really believe the boards named in the resolution are experiencing and will continue to experience extraordinary population growth, but it would be very difficult and unfair for any government to fund different boards of education across the province in different ways.

It would be easy for me to present a case for Lambton county to qualify for such extra consideration. There is no need for separate capital funding. Separate capital funding will only make for severe problems of understanding with other boards of education. All boards of education, including Lambton county's, are experiencing a shortfall of funding because of rising costs.

As I alluded to previously, the recession we find ourselves in makes the job that much more difficult. Our government has formed the first Fair Tax Commission, which will be looking for things to help education financing. Also, the Ministry of Education has set up an education finance committee to take a look at the funding of education. Important as education is to all of us, we as a government are doing and have done all that can be done during a very severe recession.

1150

Mrs Caplan: I am pleased to rise in the debate today and I want to congratulate my colleague the member for Mississauga East for raising this issue during private members' hour.

There is a goal we all share in this Legislature. During private members' hour we have a chance to talk about our goals. I think everyone in this Legislature wants the children of Ontario to have the very best education possible. I think they realize that the very best learning environment will enhance the learning opportunities for the children in the province.

We are also concerned, all of us, about an environment which is substandard or less than optimal or unacceptable, as we have heard from the member for Mississauga East in his description of the kinds of substandard conditions in place, particularly in the GTA, because of the very rapid increases in enrolment over the last few years. This has led to a concern that the learning experience will be diminished and that our children will not be having the best educational opportunity we all want them to have.

What should the government do about it? I can tell members how disturbed and distressed I am that there was no speaker out of the government benches from the GTA and no speaker who really understood the exceptional pressures of rapid growth and rapid enrolment increases that the boards in the GTA are experiencing.

We heard calls for innovation at the boards. There is a real opportunity, and I would like to be helpful this morning during private members' hour in suggesting to the new government what it can do to address this. It is their responsibility to set their priorities. They have to be really clear about what their priorities are and then reallocate available resources. No taxpayer in this province wants to see increases in taxes—certainly I as a taxpayer do not want increases—but there are some resources that could be reallocated.

For example, they came out with a $700 million anti-recession fund. The beauty of using capital to stimulate the economy in education is that there are no operating implications. Their formula for funding education is fixed. They could have used a substantial portion of the $700 million to build badly needed schools, particularly in the GTA. They could have recognized that need and put their money where their mouth was a year ago during the election campaign. They could have done it. They allocated money but they did not set the priority. They are building noise barriers along our highways. It is nice to have noise barriers, but is that their priority? Let's put that money towards schools. There are things they could be doing in setting priorities that could be really clear.

We are in a recession right now. During this recession we are seeing increases in vacancy rates. There are also huge operating implications in building more social housing. Maybe some of those dollars should be going into education capital instead. Those are the kinds of decisions that they as the government can make as they go through their allocation process. They are not making them. They are not managing the available resources. They are not setting clear priorities. They are not sending the message out to the people of this province that they know how to stimulate the economy to get us out of the recession and that they know how to manage the available resources as effectively as possible to achieve the common goals we share. I am very concerned about that.

When I listen to the bureaucratic palaver coming out of the members who spoke this morning, I am really worried. On behalf of my own constituents in the riding of Oriole, the people in the GTA and the people of this province, this government has to get its act together. It has to understand its role. It has to look at reallocation of existing dollars and putting them where its priorities are.

I say very clearly that they have got to do it now. Sending it all off to the Fair Tax Commission and waiting until 1994-95 to take some action is unacceptable. The children of this province need their attention now. The people of this province need their attention now. We are here to help them. They do not accept any of our good ideas when we propose them. At least today they should support this important proposal from the member for Mississauga East and send a message to their government.

Mr O'Connor: I want to thank the member for Mississauga East for bringing this resolution to the House today because I, as the member for Durham-York—I also live in the riding—have four school boards. They are the four growth school boards we are talking about here today. I share a lot of the concerns the member has raised.

Perhaps the motion is somewhat flawed, because it does not address the whole education system. In referring to that, I would like to point out the work done by the standing committee on public accounts and its report this year. It pointed out a couple of different problems with education funding. One of the school boards we looked at was the York Region Roman Catholic Separate School Board. Last year they looked at having a deficit of $18 million, a very serious problem. But some of the problems are basically because of funding discrepancies. Again, high growth becomes part of the problem, and of course their allowance to fund in different ways just exacerbated the problem. They worked quite closely in the minister's office trying to resolve some of these problems. That is what has to be done.

In looking at school boards, we have to take a look at the broader problems right across the province. In public accounts we looked at that. These are a couple of the boards that were looked at by the Provincial Auditor, and the auditor looked at the Lakehead school board up in the north too. They addressed a lot of different concerns and the problem they had was a lack of control of spending and auditing. That needs to be addressed and is something that will be addressed. It is something we have to take a look at right across the province. It is actually somewhat flawed.

The auditor addressed some of the problems at the Ministry of Education regarding inadequate documentation around capital expenditure and forecasting. The ministry has worked with the auditor in trying to meet some of those requirements. It is something that again points out the whole broader issue beyond schools and school boards within the GTA.

I can point out one of the schools in my riding that has an overcrowding situation, which of course causes safety and hygiene problems. The parents there have been calling for a new school for years now—"Build us our new school"—and rightly so. There have been a lot of new schools built within the region and they have not received theirs yet.

I also remember last year in the late spring, when the capital expenditures were being submitted by the school boards for approval, that these parents from the school actually took a look at trying to solve some of the problems and trying to restructure the whole system right within the whole town of Uxbridge. That is creative thinking. It is trying to use money that did not need capital dollars and trying to put a little fairness into it.

There was a request put in for $2.1 billion and the only money we had available was $300 million for capital expenditure funding. We have to take a look at that and we have to recognize it. We also have to remember, as the member for Scarborough East mentioned, that we have only one taxpayer. When we go looking for school taxes we have to keep that in mind. That is something we have to take a look at.

Among the different issues raised during our committee hearings was the lack of accountability as far as some of the school boards are concerned, because of the audit committees they have. There needs to be more public participation. Bring in some of the parents and sit down and discuss some of the needs that need to be addressed within the schools and within the school system.

I think the problem is not just within the GTA. It goes far beyond that. We have to take a look at that as a government and recognize the special needs within the GTA. I thank the member for Mississauga East for bringing this resolution forward today.

1200

Mr Sola: I would like to thank all the members who participated: the members for Simcoe East, Sault Ste Marie, Scarborough North, Mississauga South, Guelph, Lambton, Oriole and Durham-York. I accept some of the criticisms and I welcome the suggestions that were made. I think it is time education stopped being a political football, something used during an election campaign to build up support and conveniently forgotten once the election campaign is over.

As we have noted, delay just magnifies the problem. I realize that my resolution was limited in scope because it concentrated on the areas immediately surrounding Metropolitan Toronto. That is the area I am most familiar with and for which I had the most facts. For instance, when the member for Guelph notes that his area is now a growth area, it shows the danger in the NDP government's response that will put education funding on the back of the Fair Tax Commission for consideration. By the time they finish their deliberations and make their recommendations, we may have several other areas that will be considered growth areas because they are behind in their facilities as far as the number of students is concerned.

If the members accept the principle of the resolution, that we should develop a formula that will look more adequately after the needs of our students, I will be happy. But I would hate to use the limited scope of my resolution for ignoring the problems that have occurred in this province. These problems were there when we had a Conservative government, they were there when we had a Liberal government, they are here under the NDP. Our government tried to do something about it and I hope the NDP will do so as well.

COMPENSATION FOR VACCINE-RELATED INJURY

The Deputy Speaker: Mr Frankford has moved resolution 27.

Motion agreed to.

FUNDING OF GROWTH BOARDS

1207

The House divided on Mr Sola's motion of resolution 28, which was negatived on the following vote:

Ayes—25

Bradley, Brown, Caplan, Carr, Hansen, Jackson, Malkowski, Marchese, Marland, McClelland, McGuinty, Miclash, Mills, Murdoch, B., O'Connor, Perruzza, Phillips, G., Ruprecht, Sola, Sterling, Tilson, Turnbull, White, Wilson, J., Wiseman.

Nays—26

Bisson, Carter, Christopherson, Cooper, Dadamo, Drainville, Duignan, Farnan, Fletcher, Frankford, Haeck, Harrington, Hayes, Hope, Kormos, Lessard, MacKinnon, Martin, Mathysen, Morrow, Owens, Ward, B., Waters, Wessinger, Wilson, G., Winninger.

The House recessed at 1212.

AFTERNOON SITTING

The House resumed at 1330.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

BILINGUISME EN ONTARIO

M. Grandmaitre : Lors de la dernière campagne électorale, l'Association canadienne-française de l'Ontario a circulé un questionnaire concernant les politiques en matière d'affaires francophones. Les réponses du premier ministre ont soulevé les espoirs de la communauté franco-ontarienne. Le premier ministre a déclaré être en faveur de promouvoir les services en français en matière de services de santé. Il a déclaré être en faveur d'établir une université et un autre collège francophone en Ontario. Sa réponse à la question du bilinguisme officiel donnait à espérer à toute la communauté franco-ontarienne. Le premier ministre a répondu sans équivoque, «Oui, le parti néo-démocrate est en faveur du bilinguisme officiel en Ontario.»

Mais en juin dernier, lors du Sommet de la francophonie ontarienne, le ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones a annoncé que l'Ontario ne serait pas déclaré officiellement bilingue. Plus que cela, les Franco-Ontariens n'ont plus de chance de participer dans le processus gouvernemental puisque le ministre a dispersé le Conseil d'éducation franco-ontarien.

Comble de frustration par l'inaction du gouvernement NPD, l'Association canadienne-française de l'Ontario a tenu une conférence de presse hier pour pousser ce gouvernement à maintenir ses engagements envers la communauté franco-ontarienne. L'ACFO a dévoilé un projet d'entente qu'elle veut signer avec le gouvernement de l'Ontario. Cette entente reconnaîtrait le français comme langue officielle en Ontario et donnerait aux Franco-Ontariens le droit à l'autogestion de leurs institutions scolaires et financières.

Maintenant, l'ACFO et la communauté franco-ontarienne attendent un signe de vie du Bureau du premier ministre.

TVONTARIO

Mr B. Murdoch: TVOntario says it helps Ontarians develop the skills they require to successfully participate and compete in the world of rapid change and global challenge. For the sake of the public of this province, I hope TVO is not planning to lead by example and teach its viewers to avoid paying taxes, for that is exactly what this publicly funded community channel is doing.

TVOntario owns 97 acres of land in Grey and uses eight of these acres for a tower. The rest is good farm land, part of which is rented out to a farm family and for which TVOntario receives revenue in the form of rent. I realize TVO is relying on the Assessment Act to avoid paying anything towards the wellbeing of its host municipality, but it seems that such a corporation, which prides itself on serving the public, would realize that it is not held in very high esteem when people see it collecting rent and contributing nothing to the upkeep of the roads.

The municipal tax assistance act enables crown corporations to pay an amount in lieu of taxes at their discretion. I would ask that the Minister of Culture and Communications look into this matter and decree that TVO at least pay the municipality for the portion of land that it rents out. How can TVO purport to serve the public when it is seen by my constituents to be unwilling to fulfil its community responsibilities?

ADULT LITERACY

Mr Winninger: I am pleased to rise in the House today to recognize the work of a distinguished Canadian from London, Ontario. Mary Oliver, administrator of adult education for the London Board of Education, recently received two honours for her work to overcome adult illiteracy. In May she accepted the Lamp of Learning award from the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, and last Wednesday she was awarded the Ivey award for excellence from the London Foundation.

Mary Oliver, a voluntary tutor in 1978, became administrator of the program in 1981 and now oversees a program with 2,000 learners, 140 volunteer tutors and 25 full- and part-time paid teachers. She tells me that the program's success is due to the students' determination and hard work, learning basics with a tutor, then using classroom instruction to refine their skills.

Today's Globe and Mail front page reports 56% of 227 forest products industry employees in British Columbia had difficulty reading at a mid-grade 4 level. Two years ago, an Ontario study found 40% of all adults had below eighth-grade literacy. In London, 20% of the population is functionally illiterate.

The dedication of individuals like Mary Oliver, as well as the $10.5 million in funding for the 184 organizations that provide literacy programs and services for adults throughout Ontario, supports people learning to read and write.

LAND REGISTRATION

Mr McGuinty: A few hours ago I had the misfortune of sitting on the standing committee on government agencies. I describe it as a misfortune for the following reasons.

As members know, the committee was charged with the important task of determining the best way to deal with allegations that a solicitor representing the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations had made statements contemptuous of this House's authority, of the committee's authority and of the privilege enjoyed by each member of this House.

Two motions were put forward in committee today. The government's motion, which of course passed, recommends to the minister that she herself conduct an internal inquiry and take whatever action she deems appropriate. The opposition motion could not even be debated, as the government invoked closure after only one member of the committee had spoken.

The result is that this matter of vital importance to all of us here and to our traditions of parliamentary authority will be investigated by a minister whose own lawyer, who we must logically presume was acting in accordance with the minister's wishes, will now be conducting the inquiry. In effect, the minister will be the judge, the jury and the accused.

Our public and our traditions of fairness demand that this matter be reviewed by a committee of this House. The course that the government members of the committee have embarked the committee upon means that this government has no intention of dealing with this matter publicly and fairly. Government members have accused us of being on a witchhunt. We are on a hunt—a hunt for the facts, and we will pursue those facts relentlessly, rigorously and unfailingly.

WASTE MANAGEMENT

Mr McLean: My statement is directed to the Premier. He is not here, but the Deputy Premier will hear it. It concerns the failure of several ministers to respond to urgent letters from elected officials in Simcoe county.

The warden of Simcoe county has indicated to me that over the past seven months she has written a total of six letters to several officials in the government, including the Minister of the Environment, the Minister of Municipal Affairs and the Minister of Revenue, requesting their consideration of a number of serious situations that have arisen as a result of the county of Simcoe's assumption of waste management responsibilities. To date, the warden has received only two acknowledgements of the six letters.

In the Premier's throne speech he said: "My government will open Queen's Park to those who have never before had an effective voice in the corridors of power. It is a government that will listen to the people and respond to the needs to the best of its ability." Apparently the ability of several of his ministers leaves much to be desired.

I suggest the lack of courtesy exhibited by the ministers in responding to the concerns of the warden of Simcoe county, to individuals in my riding of Simcoe East and even to correspondence from me is forcing the people of Ontario to operate in isolation, without the appropriate direction or guidance from the government. Last week I delivered two letters to two different ministers, the Minister of Labour and the Minister of Transportation, and they immediately got back to me with those.

I tell the Premier I think there is a problem within the ministries of the ministers not getting the letters, and I would ask him to look into it.

CANADIAN WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS

Mr Mills: It gives me a great deal of pleasure to stand in the House today and pay tribute to the Canadian Women's Army Corps as it celebrates its golden jubilee in 1991. I would also like to recognize the fact that the Minister of Government Services attended their 50th anniversary banquet recently.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps was formed on August 13, 1941, to perform services during the Second World War. During that war, 21,614 women, embracing 10 nationalities, answered the call for volunteers. Their commitment, by today's standards, was rather stiff. They made agreements not to marry for six months, to wear their hair above the collar, to abandon all finery and to work long hours and be subject to military discipline.

Time marches on, Mr Speaker, and no one is more aware of that than you and I. Today, most of the former members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps are grandmothers. I ask all members of the Legislature to join in paying a tribute to the members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, who in the bloom of their life made a significant contribution to ensure the freedom we all enjoy today.

1340

ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

Mr McClelland: When one assumes a new role as critic, it is remarkable what a fresh perspective can bring to old material. I thought it would be interesting, and I hope you will too, Mr Speaker, to review some of the Premier's correspondence from the election campaign of just over a year ago.

This particular letter is dated August 14, 1990, and is addressed to organizations such as Pollution Probe, Greenpeace and others. These are all statements the NDP supported: "zero discharge of all toxic chemicals into the air and water by the year 2000; a ban on toxic organochlorine dumping by the pulp and paper industry by the year 1993; an immediate ban on municipal garbage incineration; enact the environmental bill of rights immediately; legislation requiring that all containers be refillable; tough packaging laws to eliminate excess packaging; no new nuclear reactors in Ontario, a plan for energy efficiency and a phase-out of existing reactors; an immediate ban on CFCs in flexible furniture foam and rigid insulation." There is an awful lot of use of the word "immediate."

Yes, all of these were statements that the then member for York South made in August 1990. The letter is signed by Bob Rae and ends with this statement: "I hope these commitments indicate to you that an NDP government would take firm, timely and decisive action to achieve the eight proposals you have put forward."

I simply remind the government that the public is watching, and we are still waiting.

HEALTH INSURANCE

Mr Jackson: I call to the attention of all members of the House yet another example of gross insensitivity towards Ontario's seniors by the NDP. The Ministry of Health has decided it will no longer cover the drug persantine as a non-formulary interim Ontario drug benefit after October 31 of this year. Persantine is a continuous-use drug on the market since the 1960s which normalizes platelet survival in patients with prosthetic heart valves and which was covered for many years as a safe and effective medication for angina and other related heart problems. In other words, it is a drug used by senior citizens.

The NDP decision to discontinue coverage of persantine was made without any consideration for the wellbeing of those seniors who will now have to bear great financial difficulty to obtain this drug, or who may even be forced to forgo the drug altogether.

The Minister of Health this week took over complete responsibility for long-term care in Ontario. That minister should be ashamed of her actions, which seriously compromise the health care of seniors. Where is the NDP minister responsible for senior citizens' affairs in all of this? Is that strangely silent seniors' minister even aware of what is going on here?

This is the second time this week I have stood in the House to speak on this government's socialist slight against seniors. We now know that NDP OHIP cutbacks will force seniors to buy expensive, unregulated private insurance. It would now seem that the Premier should just put out a sign on his front office door that says, "Seniors Are Not Welcome."

I call on the Minister of Health to reinstate coverage for persantine immediately. The NDP says it is listening. It is now time for the Premier to begin hearing what vulnerable Ontario seniors are telling him about their critical health care needs.

NON-PROFIT HOUSING

Mr Dadamo: As the member of the Ontario Legislature representing the riding of Windsor-Sandwich, I am pleased to inform members of this House that the Windsor Young Men's Christian Association residence has been given the go-ahead by my colleague the Minister of Housing to begin developing plans for the 50 non-profit housing units for singles as part of the Ontario non-profit housing program.

As well, the very dedicated community-based group is among the first to be selected to produce non-profit housing as part of the Ontario non-profit housing program announced in last spring's budget. The goal of this program is to produce 10,000 affordable housing units right across this province.

The non-profit housing sponsors will take out mortgage loans to pay the capital costs of the housing and the province will subsidize the annual operating costs. The housing will have tenants with a mix of incomes. Those with the lowest incomes will pay rents based on their incomes while those with higher incomes will pay rents based on comparable accommodation in the local private market.

Those eligible to apply for non-profit housing include families, senior citizens, single people and of course people with disabilities and refugee claimants. Once final plans have been approved by the ministry, construction will commence, enhancing our government's goal of economic renewal.

I would also like to extend my warmest congratulations to the executive at the Windsor YMCA for a job well done in securing these 50 non-profit housing units for singles, a welcome addition to my riding of Windsor-Sandwich as well as to the city of Windsor.

INVESTIGATION INTO RELEASE OF DOCUMENTS

The Speaker: On Tuesday of this week, the Leader of the Opposition (Mr Elston) rose on a question of privilege concerning a visit by police officers to his office in the Parliament Building. He was of the view that the visit was preventing him from carrying out his work and that it infringed the rights of the minorities in this House.

This matter is covered by paragraph 45(1)2 of the Legislative Assembly Act, which provides that the assembly may find that it is a breach of privilege or a contempt to obstruct, threaten or attempt to force or intimidate a member of the assembly.

Having had an opportunity to review Tuesday's Hansard and the relevant parliamentary authorities, I find that a situation whereby outside police authorities interview a member in his or her parliamentary office, in the case at hand, does not amount to intimidation or obstruction in the parliamentary sense of those words.

While the Leader of the Opposition has not established, in my opinion, a prima facie case of privilege, this does not end the matter. I am concerned about how this incident affects other areas of the law and custom of Parliament. Therefore, let me make some remarks and give some directions concerning the proper procedure that must be followed by police forces seeking to interview someone in the legislative precinct. In doing so, I am cognizant that there is no rule or precedent of this assembly on this specific point, and accordingly I have carefully canvassed the parliamentary authorities with respect to the practices and procedures in other jurisdictions.

Maingot's Parliamentary Privilege in Canada states the following at page 146:

"The exclusive privilege of the House to regulate proceedings within its own walls must be respected. 'It is well established that outside police forces on official business shall not enter the precincts of Parliament without first obtaining the permission of Mr Speaker.' To this limited extent, the law and custom of Parliament prevails over the general law. The Sergeant at Arms or a member of the protective service should accompany police officers while officially in the building in assertion of parliamentary authority and to prevent police 'fishing expeditions.'"

The second edition of Australia House of Representatives Practice states the following at page 164:

"Police may not enter Parliament House for the purpose of interrogating anyone or executing a warrant without the express consent of the Speaker or President. There are a number of precedents of such consent being granted in the case of police wishing to interview members. In commenting on one such incident, the Speaker stated:

"'To avoid any misunderstanding as to the powers of the police in this building, I draw to the attention of the House that it is accepted as part of the Parliament's privileges and immunities that the police do not have a right to enter the Parliament building without the prior knowledge and consent of the President and/or the Speaker. The police officers who visited the honourable member yesterday sought my permission to do so before coming to the building.'"

It is clear then that police forces cannot, as of right, interview an occupant of the legislative precinct; they have first to obtain the consent of the Speaker.

I might say to members that there has not been a ruling on this point by any previous Speaker of this assembly because there has never been a request to do so. Now that the procedure has been set out in this ruling, I want to caution interested persons that failure to comply with this procedure in the future may constitute a breach of privilege or a contempt.

1350

PERSONS DAY

Hon Mrs Boyd: With the unanimous consent of the House, I would like to take a moment to recognize Persons Day.

The Speaker: Do we have unanimous consent?

Agreed to.

Hon Mrs Boyd: On October 18, 1929, 62 years ago tomorrow, a 12-year struggle to win equality before the law for Canada's women came to an end when England's Privy Council overturned our own Supreme Court and proclaimed that, yes, women were persons too. What the council was ruling on was whether Canada's five million women—in 1929 almost half the population—were to be included in the legal definition of this word and would therefore be eligible for appointment to the Senate.

This battle was waged by five indomitable personalities, Emily Murphy, Nellie McClung, Louise McKinney, Irene Parlby and Henrietta Muir Edwards, all dedicated advocates of women's rights. Their vision of the full implications of personhood for women persuaded them to take their case to the highest court in this land, and then on to the Privy Council in England.

It is important that we remember and honour the vision and staying power of Alberta's Famous Five, not only out of respect for our history, but out of respect for the constitutional process being undergone in Canada right now. As we stand at another turning point in Canada's affairs and our country works to resolve pivotal constitutional issues, it is important that women, aboriginal people and other marginalized minority people continue to make themselves heard in the constitutional process. The same qualities of vision, tenacity and clear and original thinking demonstrated in the personhood case are urgently needed today as this country seeks to constitutionally perfect itself.

I know this is no easy task, but the stakes are high and so will be the rewards. As we stand to celebrate Persons Day, we know we will all benefit by those who show the same spirit and determination that propelled Canada's women to personhood.

Ms Poole: The Liberal caucus is pleased to join the minister in celebrating the 62nd anniversary of Persons Day. I know it must be amazing to many members of this House that for almost the first third of this century, women were not recognized as persons under our Constitution and under our laws. As the minister mentioned, it took 12 years of concerted effort by the Famous Five, led by Nellie McClung, to win recognition from the British Privy Council that the concept of persons being limited to men was irrelevant.

Those of us who today enjoy all the advantages of personhood, including the right to serve in this Legislature, owe a great deal to those women who worked so hard for so long to advance the cause of women. As I mentioned, one of those Famous Five women who fought for us to be recognized as persons was Nellie McClung. I am sure members are familiar with the enormous contribution she made to the early women's movement in Canada.

I have a favourite story about Nellie McClung and how she fought for the right of women to vote in Canada. Members have to remember that at the turn of the century, the Dominion Elections Act stated, and I will quote: "No woman, idiot, lunatic or criminal shall vote." Nellie McClung did not think this was too fair, so she and an intrepid group of women in 1914 set out to challenge the Manitoba Legislature. She approached Premier Roblin and demanded that women be given the right to vote. The Premier of the day, Mr Roblin, dismissed their arguments by saying: "Now you forget about all this nonsense about women voting. Nice women don't want to vote."

Nellie McClung and her supporters decided that humour and laughter might be the best way to get action from the government, so the next night, at a theatre in Winnipeg, the women staged a mock Parliament in which all members were women and Nellie McClung was the Premier. However, their roles were reversed in this Parliament and it was the men who were asking for the right to vote. Mrs McClung simply used the same arguments that Premier Roblin had used, in reverse. She said: "If men are given the vote, they will vote too much. Politics unsettles men. Unsettled men mean unsettled bills, broken furniture, broken vows and divorce. Men cannot be trusted with the ballot. Men's place is on the farm." Two years later Nellie McClung won the first right of women in Canada to have the vote, in Manitoba.

We owe a great debt to women like Nellie McClung and our early pioneers, who not only established that we are indeed persons, but also that we have the right to vote and fully participate.

While the "persons" decision was not a recognition at the time that men and women were equal, it was certainly a pivotal step in the women's movement. It was a breakthrough making way for the battles we still fight today for pay equity, child care, freedom of choice and the ability to live free from the threat of violence in our homes and communities.

Today as we celebrate that remarkable victory, that Privy Council decision that established what really should have been self-evident, that both men and women are indeed persons, let us show our gratitude to our pioneer women who led and blazed the way for the rest of us.

Mrs Marland: It is a privilege to rise on this occasion on behalf of our caucus. Tomorrow marks the 62nd anniversary of the "persons" case, that historic decision by the Privy Council of Great Britain which declared that women were in fact persons and were eligible under the Constitution Act, 1867, to become members of the Senate of Canada.

The Privy Council's decision overturned a unanimous decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in 1928 that women were not "persons who could hold public office as Canadian senators" because of the terms of the Constitution Act, 1867, and the historical incapacity of women to hold office under common law. In making its decision, the Privy Council called the exclusion of women from public office "a relic of days more barbarous than ours."

The decision on the "persons" case was the result of the efforts of five Alberta suffragettes: Henrietta Muir Edwards, Nellie McClung, Louise McKinney, Emily Murphy and Irene Parlbay. Today is a fitting opportunity to pay tribute to these remarkable women and to the countless others who have worked to remove barriers to equality for Canadian women.

Certainly, as we look around us at the women in this chamber and in the Legislative chambers across our country, we see evidence of the progress women have made in politics. But we cannot congratulate ourselves yet. Women have not achieved equality in Canada, politically, economically or socially.

In this Legislature, for example, only 28 of 130 MPPs, or 21.5%, are female. In the House of Commons women make up just 39 of 295 MPs, or 13.2%. Women who have been elected often recall how difficult it was to obtain the financial support required to run for office, or how draining it is to juggle political and family life when in many cases they still carry a disproportionate share of the responsibility for raising children and running a household.

Canadian women still make, on average, just two thirds the salaries of their male counterparts. More than 1.5 million Canadian women live in poverty. Most disturbing is the link between poverty and motherhood: 75% of never-married single mothers raise their children in poverty.

All women, no matter what their economic status, live with the spectre of violence. One woman in four will experience sexual assault in her lifetime. Vulnerable women, such as the frail elderly and those with disabilities, are especially in need of protection from violence. I was horrified to learn that a recent study by the Toronto-based Disabled Women's Network shows that 73% of the disabled women surveyed have been victims of violence, while 96% of these victims have experienced sexual assault.

1400

Until women no longer live in fear of attack, until women are not subjected to sexual harassment, until women's salaries equal those earned by men, until single mothers receive the community and financial support they need to conquer poverty, until women can count on men to share the responsibilities for raising children and housework, until all this and much more, we cannot celebrate equality. But we can celebrate the gains we have made since the "persons" case. We can celebrate the fact that today our daughters can become politicians or, if they prefer, scientists, judges, welders or doctors.

Tomorrow morning, LEAF-Toronto will hold its fourth annual Persons Day breakfast. LEAF, which stands for the Women's Legal Education and Action Fund, is a national non-profit organization which litigates precedent-setting equality cases and provides public education on issues of gender, equality and justice. I want to congratulate the members of LEAF for their vital work towards achieving equality for women.

While it is impossible to name the many persons and organizations which have followed in the steps of Henrietta Muir Edwards and her companion suffragettes, we thank them all. While government can and must be a leader in achieving equality for women, it is the work of private citizens like the suffragettes or the members of LEAF which can change public attitudes so that Persons Day becomes an occasion of celebration without qualification.

INVESTIGATION INTO RELEASE OF DOCUMENTS

Mr Bradley: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: I have had an opportunity to reflect briefly on your statement which affects the parliamentary precinct as it relates to the use of the police by the government against members of the opposition. While I appreciate the fact that you have, through your statement, it appears, extended your authority and perhaps the authority of the Clerk in order to be notified of the police coming on to the parliamentary precinct, the concern that members of the opposition have quite obviously is not only the parliamentary precinct itself, but that the police would be coming to the homes of members of the opposition or to other offices outside the parliamentary precinct whenever the government deems it appropriate because some information has escaped from the government.

We have had two examples, at the very least, of members of this House—the member for Halton Centre and the leader of the official opposition—who have had visits from the police. I suggest to you, Mr Speaker, that while it is both technically and in your interest a matter of interest that they are having those visits within the parliamentary precinct, our concern is that every time there is an opportunity to open up information, to have open government, to see democracy flourishing at its best, members of the government will send the police in to investigate members of the opposition or members of the news media or anyone else who happens to come into possession of information that is interesting to the public and that certainly the public has a right to know. That is the concern that we in the opposition have.

The Speaker: I appreciate the matter that the member for St Catharines has brought to my attention. I am pleased to review the matter once again. I do not believe the authority of the Speaker extends beyond the precinct and the building and the grounds. None the less, I am certainly pleased to review all of the circumstances one more time.

Mr Stockwell: I too would like to raise concerns about that very same issue. I am very disturbed by the actions the government has taken on this and in past practices in connection with the police and the use of the police against opposition parties. I would suggest that if the government today were in opposition and this had taken place, the reaction would have been very strong and very concise.

I am opposed. I think it is clearly harassment and intimidation, no less than harassment and intimidation, by a government that has prided itself in the past on full and open public disclosure. I find it shocking that a socialist government such as the one we have today would even consider sending the police into the opposition parties' offices for a spin document. That is what has been suggested, a spin document.

I have very grave concerns, if it were really a document that had some teeth, some document that was rather important, about what this government would do to get to the bottom of how that document was in fact leaked. I feel very certain that if they are prepared to send the police into our offices over a spin document—and I ask you to rule on this again, Mr Speaker, in backing up the point made by the member for St Catharines—it would not surprise me at all if they would send the police to our homes and to other places of business. I am not so sure how far they would go.

I am greatly disturbed by your decision, Mr Speaker. I am greatly disturbed by the Premier's attitude. If it were me they had sent the police to, I would be very clear. If they ever sent the police into my office or my home, I would charge them with intimidation and harassment and I would get them in court. I think you should look into that as well.

The Speaker: I am not sure if the member for Etobicoke West was present in the chamber at the time I delivered my ruling. I have dealt with the matter with respect to visits by police officers within the precinct. Of course, while I am taking a look at the authority for the Speaker as it pertains to not just the precinct but beyond, if members have specific instances of visitations by the police to their residences or offices, they may wish to bring those to my attention. I will take a close look at this matter once again and will report back to you at the earliest moment possible.

Mr Elston: Mr Speaker, this has been a troubling week for me in many ways. I heard your ruling and I support your ruling. I have no questions or qualms about that. In this instance you have decided, on the basis of your examination, that there was no intimidation intended. My view is somewhat different than yours, and that opinion, of course, can rest between you and me having examined the facts in a different manner.

While you have indicated that a request for a visit must now be made to you, at least in these precincts, I want to ask you a question for your consideration while you think on other things and perhaps provide us with some detail later of how you will make a ruling or an understanding about the request and its intent when a request is brought to you by the Ontario Provincial Police or any other police force this government directs to inquire into the activities of opposition party members.

I would ask you in that regard to provide us with an explanation of what you will require to ensure that we are not being intimidated, and that in fact the intimidation is not perhaps being directed so much at us, but directed through us to the public servants who believed it was within their ambit of responsibility to the public to make available to the public information which needs to be known, so that we can protect the openness and the interest of our democratic institutions here.

I will not go on much longer except to say that by having the police visit the people who would expose the information, it is my sense—

Hon Mr Laughren: Are you a lawyer? You're not a high-paid, high-powered—

Mr Elston: Although the 20-year veteran from Nickel Belt, the storyteller of fabled proportions over there, is sort of interjecting, I have to tell you, Mr Speaker, that it is my view that we are being used as an example of what will happen to some public servant who does whistle-blow.

I want to say further, in line with the government's release through the auspices of the minister who is in charge of Management Board of the discussion paper on whistle-blowing, that you be particularly interested there in examining what is required to ensure that the public interest is maintained or at least the discussion that follows that.

Perhaps you could provide us, Mr Speaker, with the guidelines you will use to see that we will not be abused, at least in the precinct and perhaps in other places, which I presume might include the constituency offices because they do in some ways fall under the Legislative Assembly, although I know that is a point of academic interest at the moment and not fully determined.

As I say, I only do this because I am troubled beyond belief about what is taking place here in the House in this province and the fact that the Premier decides not to answer questions or to make himself available when occasions are extremely important and contentious.

1410

Hon Mr Cooke: Mr Speaker, I would suggest this is on a different point but a related point. I would ask you to look at the record for this afternoon and the accusations that have been made by the Leader of the Opposition that the government directed a police investigation, that the government was involved in intimidation of members of the assembly by the use of the police. I think those are accusations that are completely out of order and they should be ruled out of order and withdrawn.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Elston: You know exactly why these police investigations are going on, Dave Cooke. You know darned well and you know that the Premier has known about them for a long time.

The Speaker: Order. Would the members come to order, please.

Interjection.

The Speaker: I ask the Leader of the Opposition to come to order, please.

Mr Chiarelli: The time has come to do what you preach. It is dishonest government.

The Speaker: First to the honourable Leader of the Opposition—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. When serious matters are brought before the House, we are not aided by intemperate language.

Interjections.

The Speaker: The member for Ottawa West in a calmer moment might wish to rephrase his comments and to withdraw what he just said.

Hon Mr Cooke: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: The member cannot simply accuse this government of being dishonest and not withdraw it. He has got to withdraw.

The Speaker: The member for Ottawa West.

Interjections.

Mr Chiarelli: I should say, Mr Speaker, that they do not practise what they preach and it is a very secretive government. Thank you.

The Speaker: Is that a withdrawal? I caution members, before we proceed any further, that obviously this issue is one that has evoked some emotion. Unfortunately often with emotion comes language which we wish later we had not used. It is helpful when members who in a calmer moment, more reflective moment, realize that they should not have said something that they did simply use the words, "I withdraw." Then we can move on with the business and try to conduct our public business in a little better way.

I would ask the member for Ottawa West if he would simply say, "I withdraw," and then we can move on and conduct our business.

Mr Chiarelli: I withdraw, Mr Speaker.

The Speaker: There are two issues which have been brought to my attention. First to the honourable Leader of the Opposition—

Mr Conway: It is fine for Bob Rae and Morty Shulman and Ed Ziemba and Dave Cooke—

The Speaker: Order. The member for Renfrew North, please come to order.

Mr Conway: I want to say, Mr Speaker, that it is very difficult to take a lecture from the Dave Cookes, the Morty Shulmans, the Ed Ziembas—

The Speaker: The member will please sit down.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I ask the members to please come to order. I cannot believe this exchange of harsh words is helpful and I ask members to please exercise some restraint. If the House will come to order, I will address the two matters brought to my attention.

First, the honourable Leader of the Opposition makes a very fair and reasonable request and I will attempt to provide as quickly as possible the details that quite naturally follow from the ruling I made earlier this afternoon. I will provide those details to all members of the House.

Second, the government House leader has brought to my attention a concern and I will examine Hansard to see precisely what was said. Often it is not simply the words but the tone and the context in which words are used that help to create disorder in the chamber and that is always a concern to me. If members are now at least a notch or two more calm than previously, perhaps we can move on with the public business.

CORRECTION

Mr McGuinty: It has been brought to my attention that when I made my statement a few moments ago I may have made reference to the standing committee on government agencies. If I did so, I simply want to note for the record that it was my intention to refer to the standing committee on general government.

INVESTIGATION INTO RELEASE OF DOCUMENTS

Mr Phillips: Mr Speaker, back on your ruling: Because you are planning to look into it further, I will say to the House it has been a matter that my caucus will tell you has disturbed me as much as any matter I have seen here in four years. My concern is that we have now had, if I understand it properly, two examples where ministers have launched, I gather unilaterally, police investigations that involved interrogation of the opposition.

It is very troubling to me, Mr Speaker, and I would ask that in your investigation you determine on what basis the government has the authority to launch these investigations. Is it up to each minister to determine whether he or she shall launch a police investigation? On what basis do they have that authority?

The Speaker: I appreciate the concerns brought to my attention by the member for Scarborough-Agincourt and of course note with some interest the concerns he raises. I will attempt to get as much information as is relevant and possible to obtain.

STATEMENTS BY THE MINISTRY

TEACHERS' PENSION LEGISLATION

Hon Mr Silipo: I am pleased to advise that later today I will introduce legislation to amend the Teachers' Pension Act. I believe this legislation will become a model of the kind of partnership this government wants to build. It will establish a framework for the Ontario government and Ontario's teachers to manage the Ontario teachers' pension plan as full and equal partners. That partnership will start on January 1 of next year.

The legislation provides for equal representation of the province and the teachers on the Ontario teachers' pension plan board. It gives teachers an equal say in the investment decisions of the pension plan and an equal share of future surpluses or deficits.

It gives the partners a formal process for negotiating changes to the plan every three years. Changes to benefits and contribution rates may be negotiated as part of this process. If the partners cannot reach agreement on benefits and contributions, these two issues may be submitted to binding arbitration.

I am also pleased to inform members that at the request of both partners, the current chair of the Ontario teachers' pension plan board, Gerald Bouey, has agreed to continue serving in this position. Both partners will look to Mr Bouey to continue providing the leadership that has already contributed to the building of our partnership and to the financial soundness of the plan.

In conclusion, let me also convey my appreciation to my predecessor, the member for London Centre, who recently took on the portfolio of Community and Social Services. She played a vital role in bringing government and teachers together on this issue.

I also want to note the presence in the gallery of representatives from the Ontario Teachers' Federation: Ron Poste, the president; Margaret Wilson, the secretary-treasurer, and Ruth Baumann, legislative liaison.

I am proud to bring this legislation before this assembly. It is the result of both partners' commitment to fairness and co-operation. I believe this bill deserves the support of all members and I ask that they give it their full consideration.

1420

RESPONSES

TEACHERS' PENSION LEGISLATION

Mrs Y. O'Neill: I would like to respond to the statement of the Minister of Education and begin by stating how happy I am that Mr Gerald Bouey will continue as chair. This man has outstanding leadership qualities. Indeed, the original piece of legislation that came in 1989 broke new ground and has had a strong foundation under this man's leadership. I also congratulate those who have served on both sides to this point.

I and my party feel this is a progression from the act of 1989. The option of partnership has been taken fully at this point. Partnership, at every step of the way, always assumes co-operation and respect and we want that in any dealings we have with each other, whether government and associations or indeed one on one. For that we wish this partnership well, because partnerships tend to be healthy.

The commitment of this government to pay off the initial unfunded liability remains intact and that also makes me happy. There is now a full acknowledgement of a responsibility for a deficit that had been at question, may I add, and now this deficit is fully acknowledged to such an extent that the Treasurer last week indicated that one of the reasons we would have to put some stops to spending at this moment was the $215-million need of this pension fund.

There are cautions that I would still like to make on behalf of our party. Arbitration is part of this agreement. Arbitration, as any of us who have done collective bargaining know, assumes an adversarial atmosphere. It often also removes the responsibility for decision-making from those who are accountable and I have certainly seen it in personal experiences. That is a strong concern of mine and of my party, that the taxpayers of Ontario now will have very little in the way of responsibility for financial issues that go to arbitration. I am not saying this always happens, but arbitration sometimes encourages parties, when decision-making gets tough, to remove it to another level.

Negotiating benefits and contributions every three years: There is a real possibility that deficits will be present when this is fully implemented in 1997. Indeed the Treasurer is projecting deficits in the Ontario economy and this fund is not removed totally from the economy. This could result in the limitation or capping of teachers' benefits or an increase in contributions. I think those fears have to be brought forward. I certainly hope the investments of this fund will be wisely and well placed, and that they will be fruitful. I am sure all parties want that.

Retired teachers have already come to me, and to other members of this Legislature I am sure. They again have fears. They have devoted their lives to the children of this province, but they have fears that the contributions they have placed in this fund are now going to be in jeopardy if the right decisions are not made. I think it is the responsibility of this government, and certainly of the teachers' federations in this province, to allay the fears of these teachers, because they have earned these benefits.

I wish this partnership well. There are certainly cautions, and I think they have to be made public. I am sure that will happen. Mr Bouey and his board, I know, have a challenging task before them and we wish them well in their efforts.

Mr Bradley: What I will be concerned about is that, because we heard a promise from the government that it was going to assume 60% of the cost of education, on average, across Ontario by the Ministry of Education, the minister would not be counting, of course, the contribution to the teachers' superannuation fund as part of that 60%.

I noted this year in the transfers that contrary to what I heard in the election campaign and contrary to what I saw on some school bulletin boards across Ontario, the NDP has in fact decreased the amount of money in terms of the percentage to the cost of education in its last transfers. We have just heard from the Treasurer and other prophets of doom and gloom on the other side that those transfers are going to be minuscule in this year. I hope the minister does not play this little smoke-and-mirrors trick that I suspect his colleagues will be advocating.

Mr Jackson: I thought when the member for St Catharines rose that he was going to lament the fact that he is no longer a teacher and that he was going to deeply regret that he was no longer a contributing member to the Ontario teachers' pension plan. However, he had other comments to make which we all listened to with appreciation.

With a small sense of history, I certainly want to acknowledge how pleased the new Minister of Education is that he is able to stand in the House in the week he has become the new Minister of Education, announcing a substantive adjustment in the approach to pensions in this province. But he cannot share the same sense of excitement and thrill as we hear that there are about 300 or 400 University of Toronto students outside at this moment demonstrating. The fact is that all is not necessarily well in public education in this province, and the work ahead of this minister and his government will be rather extensive.

However, what is important is that it is clear that a year and a half ago in this House both I, on behalf of the Progressive Conservative Party—and I would like to acknowledge Mr Karl Morin-Strom, the former member for Sault Ste Marie, who provided leadership for his party in the debate with the then Liberal government on this issue. My respect for Mr Morin-Strom is well known. We worked closely together to fight for some of the principles that have found themselves in this bill.

The fact is that a year and a half ago the teachers' federation made good on its threat that it would bring down the Liberal government of Ontario on this issue. Today we know it was successful in its threat to that Parliament and to that Legislature. But what is important to note is that within several months of being in the government, the Treasurer, a former very well acknowledged teaching professional in his own right in his day, was able to convince his cabinet that the teachers' pension fund should be enriched by $200 million from the general legislative grant top-up to $800 million and that an additional new injection of $240 million would be allocated.

One of the very first decisions made was to transfer that $450 million. There were some on the Liberal side—I should not make excuses for them—but there were some over on that side who missed the point that it is one of the reasons the Liberal projections were off. As the Treasurer knows, that transfer was made the day before the last day of the fiscal year, and it was a very clever move. It did not go unnoticed on my part. The Treasurer essentially made the Liberals pay politically for his decision to honour his commitment from the last election. I thought it was a stroke of genius and he is to be commended for that kind of bookkeeping.

I would also like to suggest today that when we were in a minority government situation in 1985 and 1986, the Conservative Party approached the issue of binding arbitration when it dealt with a couple of issues in this House. In the minority government situation, both the NDP and the Liberals voted against it. I believe the NDP will revisit its record of voting. The NDP House leader was intimate with these votes. Certainly pharmacists were not allowed to go to binding arbitration on matters relative to the government's control of rate regulation. The doctors in the balanced billing debate—

Hon Mr Cooke: Not true. We moved it; you voted against it.

Mr Jackson: I tabled the amendment. The member for Windsor-Riverside knows I tabled the amendment and he voted against it.

We are encouraged that the NDP is finding that some of the policy positions we have taken are worthy of support, and certainly we are delighted that a greater sense of equity and a greater partnership has been approached. But it must be a sad day for the Treasurer, having made the decision to transfer these moneys, that he cannot make true on the statement in the throne speech that the corridors of power will be more accessible to those who have not previously had access to them, because there are costs associated with this decision. Pension reform for the average Ontarian will not be pursued by this government, and there are some expenses to the kinds of decisions implicit in today's announcement.

1430

LAND REGISTRATION

Mr Tilson: Mr Speaker, I wish to rise on a point of privilege. I served you notice that I wished to speak at this time. As you will remember, I rose last week, Thursday, October 10, on a point of privilege dealing with what I felt is a contempt of the Legislature and its committees. In your ruling on Tuesday, October 15, you stated that this was a matter that is before the standing committee on general government and ought to be settled in the committee, not in the House, and that the committee may make a report to the House.

Earlier this afternoon in the general government committee, a motion to refer this matter to the House was defeated by the government members of the committee.

The reason I am rising on this point of privilege on this particular point once again is that I feel it is an extremely serious matter that goes beyond the purview of the general government committee. If this matter is allowed to go unchallenged, it will have wide-ranging implications for all legislative committees and this dark cloud will continue to hang over this House.

By defeating the motion to refer this matter to the House, the government members of the general government committee have signalled to all future witnesses who come before legislative committees that the process is nothing but a sham. The perception elucidated by the lawyer for the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations that committees are nothing but political window dressing and have no consequence will be allowed to stand.

Surely, Mr Speaker, you can see the inherent danger in allowing this perception to stand. The validity and relevance of all committees will be diminished, along with every member's ability to perform his or her duties as legislators. This matter affects all members of this Legislature. It is not so much a single occurrence where a contempt of this Legislature was shown; it has implications for all members and if not dealt with will surely hamper the abilities of this Legislature, its committees and all members. I believe all chairmen of the committees will be continually faced with this criticism, as will all members of this House.

Given the implication of this alleged contempt, Mr Speaker, I urge you to rule that this is a prima facie breach of privilege, and I will be pleased to move a motion referring the matter to the standing committee on the Legislative Assembly for further investigation.

Mr McClelland: I had sent you notice, Mr Speaker, that it was my understanding the member for Dufferin-Peel would be raising this issue with you, and I would like to add, simply from our party's point of view, the following. I think it has been well stated by the member for Dufferin-Peel.

As you know, Mr Speaker, I serve as a member of the standing committee on the Legislative Assembly and have served from time to time on other committees and I expect will do so in future for the while I am here. I think the point was very well taken by my colleague the member for Dufferin-Peel that it calls into question the efficacy and the effectiveness of any individual who comes before a committee in the future.

I remind you, sir, that committees not only have the power to and do meet around the province from time to time to hear the citizens of this province, but have the power to compel their attendance. If the cloud that I think has been raised in terms of the perception of individuals who are compelled to attend or who attend willingly remains, the operation of each committee of this House and the standing committee on the Legislative Assembly, on which I serve, is called into question.

Mr Speaker, I refer you to section 1(b) of the standing orders of the Legislative Assembly. I have reviewed the order. I do not find anything that deals with this matter particularly, but it gives you broad scope to review the matter and to look at precedent and to make a judgement based on the information that has been put before you.

The difficulty is this, Mr Speaker. You made a ruling and referred it to a committee and asked the committee to report back to you. The committee did not follow your instructions. It came to you in the first instance. It went to the committee and you directed it to bring a report back to you. It has been sidetracked. They have done indirectly what you, sir, dictated they could not do. I ask you to review that in the chronology of events and rule, bearing in mind the implications for each and every member of this House and each and every member of the citizenry of Ontario who will appear before committees of this House in the future.

Mr Drainville: Mr Speaker, I just want to speak very briefly to the point that has been raised by the two honourable members who have stood up in the House. In terms of the general government committee, I want to be very clear about this, Mr Speaker. You said in your remarks to the House that this was an issue that has to go back to the committee because it should be dealt with by the committee, and the committee may report back to the House. That is the specific quote: "...may report back to the House."

I want to say, Mr Speaker, it is very clear that when we discussed this issue today—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Two members brought to my attention a matter which they consider to be quite serious and I was able to listen to those two members. The same courtesy must be extended to the member from the government side who wishes to make his point to the Speaker.

Mr Drainville: All I am trying to say, Mr Speaker, is that as we dealt with this in the committee today, as per your instructions, we reviewed the situation. Our side, the government side, put forth a motion which was passed in the committee today, and basically that motion dealt with the situation in a way we believe to be expeditious and advisable at this time. Following your instructions, Mr Speaker, we did not feel there was any need for any report back to the House, because, as I say, the direct quotation as you put it in the House was that we "may" report to the House. We did not believe there was any report to be made. Therefore, that is why we took the position we did. I think both the opposition members who have put forward their points of view do not deal with the substantive reality of what you said in this House when you made your remarks on that day.

The Speaker: To the three members who have addressed this issue and brought it to my attention, indeed I will be pleased to review the matter and report back to you at the earliest possible moment. It is certainly my observation that each Thursday members seem able to find some homework for the Speaker to do over the weekend, for which I am most grateful.

VISITORS

The Speaker: Before continuing, members may wish to welcome to our presence a former member of the assembly seated in the members' west gallery, the former member for Cornwall, Mr Luc Guindon.

Mr Elston: We might also want to welcome Mr Bob Hawkesworth from the belle province of Alberta, a member of the Legislative Assembly, who is also here. He and his spouse are seated in the members' east gallery. The members might want to take note of that.

1440

ORAL QUESTIONS

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Elston: I wish to place my question to the Minister of Energy, who has the courtesy to be here with us today. When trouble brews, I have to say it is nice to see a minister coming and answering questions when they are put, not passing them off and running away from being in the House where the questions of the day have to be dealt with.

Mr Bradley: Who isn't here? The Premier?

Mr Elston: We have kindled somebody's interest in this. There is one notable absence among the eight or nine others who are not here.

I have a very simple question for the Minister of Energy. Will the Minister of Energy guarantee to the public that Mr Marc Eliesen will not receive one cent more than his deputy minister's salary from the time he was appointed until the time the Ontario Energy Board rules that it has a certain view as to his salary limits?

Hon Mr Ferguson: As I have mentioned numerous times in this House during the past number of weeks, we have asked the Ontario Energy Board to look at the whole question of executive salaries for the people at Hydro. It appears at this point that this will be done prior to the Power Corporation Amendment Act being given royal assent, thanks to the unofficial opposition which has chosen to speak on the matter day after day. In answer to the question, we will be looking very closely at what the Ontario Energy Board has to say and we will obviously be looking at the recommendations of the Ontario Energy Board.

Mr Elston: I ask the minister one more time: Will he guarantee that there will be no retroactive cheque for Mr Marc Eliesen, since it is the cabinet, under the current authority, that must set that remuneration?

Hon Mr Ferguson: They have chosen to spend so much time on Bill 118, they ought to know by now exactly what the provisions of Bill 118 are. Quite frankly, Mr Eliesen is performing the duties of chair and chief executive—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I did not hear the response. It is not for the Speaker to judge the response, but the Speaker must be able to hear the response.

Hon Mr Ferguson: Mr Eliesen, for quite some time, has been performing the duties not only of chair but also of chief executive officer of Ontario Hydro. Surely to goodness the members opposite are not suggesting he should not receive the salary that goes along with that position.

Mr Elston: The government of the day is taking credit for the fact that Mr Eliesen receives only a deputy minister's status salary at the moment. Can the Minister of Energy guarantee that there will be no retroactive cheque, a second payment, a supplement to that salary?

Hon Mr Ferguson: The Ontario Energy Board will examine all the executive salaries at Ontario Hydro. They will, of course, put forward their recommendations. Quite frankly I think if somebody is performing a duty on behalf of a private or public corporation, whatever the case may be, he or she should receive whatever salary goes with that position. That is pretty clear. I think that is a basic rule of fairness that certainly the members opposite must agree with.

LABOUR RELATIONS

Mr Offer: I have a question to the Minister of Labour. The minister will be aware today that the All Business Coalition released an economic analysis of the impact of this government's proposed labour amendments. This analysis states that approximately 480,000 jobs and $20 billion in investment could be lost because of these labour proposals. Does the minister not agree that the economic costs associated with his labour policies far outweigh the benefit they may bring to organized labour?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: The answer to that one is obvious. No, I do not agree with the member.

Mr Offer: For some unfathomable reason, the NDP members do not believe business when it tells them their policies are having a dramatic effect upon business confidence and its willingness to invest in Ontario. An example of this is in the cabinet submission which spoke about "neutralizing opposition," which spoke about "the narrow focus of business." People in the business community are asking the government to consult with them regarding the necessity of change and the impact that change may have on them.

Can the minister tell not only the All Business Coalition, but indeed the whole business community in this province, the reasons for his desire for change to the Ontario Labour Relations Act?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I am pleased to do that for the member, to the best of my ability. The need for changes to the Ontario Labour Relations Act has been fairly obvious for some time. There have been no major changes since 1975, and the basic problem we have in Ontario is whether or not we want to change attitudes, given the tough economic times we are facing, and look for a more co-operative and less confrontational approach. That is exactly what is behind our look at changes to the Labour Relations Act. That is exactly what we are going to be doing with the discussion paper, which will be out very shortly.

Mr Offer: The minister shared his thoughts as to the need for change. That is exactly the concern many people in this province have. They have not been able to talk to the minister and his government as to the need for change and what it means to them. When the minister speaks about consultation, it is just empty words when in fact he has already made up his mind. He seems to be unwilling to believe business when it states that proposals could mean the loss of approximately 480,000 jobs in this province.

It is our understanding that the Ministry of Labour has conducted similar research into the economic impact of the minister's proposals. As the minister will know, we have requested this information through the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. Yet the ministry has denied us access to this information and delayed the release of it for 75 days. What is the minister afraid of? Will he release this information immediately and provide to the people of this province the research into the economic impact of those labour reform proposals he is going to be making?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: It is pretty hard to do that when we have not yet made the labour reform proposals the member is referring to. I think it might be useful to go through the process to date.

Mrs Caplan: Table the statistics. What are you afraid of? There will be 480,000 jobs lost. You couldn't be afraid of that.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: Can you get the squeak out of the House, Mr Speaker?

The Speaker: The member for Oriole will please come to order.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I think it is worth going through the process we have gone through so far. We made it very clear that we were looking at changes to the Labour Relations Act. We had a committee from labour and a committee from business file their reports and their suggestions for changes to the Labour Relations Act. Those came back into the ministry. We then started to take a look at their views of what needs to be done in terms of changes to the Labour Relations Act and have produced another document which has now gone to cabinet.

Interjection.

The Speaker: Order, the member for Etobicoke West.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: Anybody who has taken a look at these documents—the first one was made available to anybody who wanted it and the second one was leaked—will know that there has already been a substantive change in the second document, which was the basis for cabinet to decide whether we would put out a consultation paper. That consultation paper will be going out shortly and it is that consultation paper which should become the basis for discussion, because it will much more clearly indicate the direction the government wants to go in.

Mr Harris: I too have a question for the Minister of Labour. He talks today about consultation. We heard from a group today representing 70% of the private sector employees in this entire province. They said that the way they view consultation with the minister is that if they are nice to him, if they speak nicely to the government, the government being the cannibals, it will eat them last. That is the definition of consultation.

The minister further says that he consulted with business and labour at the beginning. He did not. He did not consult with business. The minister consulted with labour lawyers who have a vested interest in having acrimony between business and labour. The minister did not consult with business.

I have repeatedly asked for an impact study on the poor working men and women of this province. How many jobs would be lost as a direct result of the minister's proposal or how many jobs might be added as a result of the minister's labour proposals? The minister would not do that impact study. He was too busy being patted on the back by Bob White and the minister's labour buddies.

The All Business Coalition did the study for the minister. They had a reputable firm, Ernst and Young. This is a firm the government has hired and this is the firm the Treasurer wanted, an NDP firm. They are on the Fair Tax Commission. They are helping bail the government out of lots of things. They know that. The result is that an astounding 250,000 jobs are at risk.

1450

The Speaker: Order. Would the leader place his question, please.

Mr Harris: What does the minister have to say about that?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: At the same time the leader of the third party is asking for consultation and some co-operation between the parties, the statements and comments he makes certainly do not lead one to believe one could get a fair consultation process with his way of doing things. I also want him to know very clearly that the consultation paper, which will be out very shortly, will be the basis for any real discussion on what this government's intentions are in terms of Labour Relations Act changes.

Mr Harris: The minister can point the finger at me. I am quoting what business is saying about how comfortable it feels consulting with him. This is important as a measure of his consulting ability. That is what they are saying. This is a measure of the minister's success. I do not know why the minister will not do a job impact study. Maybe he does not care about jobs. Maybe as long as they are unionized, it does not matter how many there are. Maybe the non-union ones do not check off and give money to the NDP, so who cares. Maybe this is not their first priority.

We are talking about a group representing 75% of the employees. The minister has flipped them off with the back of his hand. Eighty per cent of those firms believe the $20 billion they had planned to invest in the next five years is at risk and may go elsewhere and 90% are saying it is going to cost jobs.

The Speaker: And the interrogative part?

Mr Harris: Since the minister did not do his own study, does he agree with the results provided by the independent firm of Ernst and Young, a firm, as I have said, that the NDP has been quick to call on for other advice?

Hon Mr Mackenzie: As I understand it, the survey referred to today was based on the original Burkett document, as it is called, which is not the document this government is going with. What the leader of the third party should understand is that what we need and will try to do with the consultation paper is constructive dialogue between the parties, not the scare tactics currently being used.

Mr Harris: This survey interviewed 250 chief executive officers across this province, many of whom are not getting paid as much as Eliesen is getting paid. This is the cumulation of those data. They represent more than 70% of the private sector jobs. They are telling us, as they told Ernst and Young, that one in four jobs are at risk, not because of free trade, not because of federal policies, not because of something beyond the government's control, not because of international forces, but because of something completely within the government's control. These are the ones who have survived the recession. They are still actually here. It does not talk about those jobs that will not come to Ontario, just the existing ones that have survived so far. One in four is at risk.

Does the minister not agree that now is the time to scrap the labour proposals he has on the table and get on with bringing business and labour together so that we can create some jobs? Then later perhaps the minister can argue about whether they should be unionized, but let's make sure we have some so that there is something to argue about down the road.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: I find it difficult when the leader of the third party continues to refer to a study that was used for the survey when the government has long since passed it in its own discussions and its own planning in terms of the Labour Relations Act. What is in that study, in many cases, is not what the government is going with, so I am not sure how he can use that as any real basis.

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Harris: I have a question for the Minister of Energy. Yesterday he said and today he has confirmed in his response to questions asked by the leader of the Liberal Party that it is not cabinet's job to set the salary of Mr Eliesen, that it is indeed the job of the board of Ontario Hydro. "The board will decide the salary." Today I think he said: "Surely you don't expect cabinet to set this salary. We don't have anything to do with that."

The board said Eliesen is not qualified for this job; the cabinet overruled it. The board said no to Elliot Lake; the cabinet overruled it and directed it to do something else. The board said no to Kapuskasing; the cabinet overruled it and directed Hydro what to do with Kapuskasing. We have seen example after example since the members opposite have come to power. Whenever the cabinet disagreed with the board, it overruled and directed the board.

Is the minister telling me today then that he does not disagree with the board, that to go to $400,000 plus a 22% bonus, $488,000 a year, from $120,000 a year when the government is appropriately asking those in the public sector to take zero to 3%—

The Speaker: Would the leader conclude his question, please.

Mr Harris: Does the minister think this is appropriate? If not, why does he not stand up and do something about it?

Hon Mr Ferguson: What I cannot believe about not only the questions that the leader of the third party put today but the questions yesterday as well is that he stood in the House, he waved a piece of paper and said the board was not in favour of Mr Eliesen and was not in favour of this government's policies. What he neglects to point out is that it was the board of directors of Ontario Hydro that decided Mr Eliesen was worth $400,000. That is what he did not point out.

Mr Harris: Let me correct the record, because the minister has totally misled this House.

The Speaker: Order. That is not even borderline. The leader of the third party should withdraw that.

Mr Harris: Yes, I will withdraw the comment.

I think what I have to say will be quite apparent. The minister said the board said Mr Eliesen was worth this amount of money. What the board said was that a qualified person in the position was worth this amount of money and Eliesen was not that person. That is what the board said.

I would like to ask the minister this as well: During the—if I may use the words—confirmation hearings for Mr Eliesen—

Mr Elston: That's rubber-stamping.

Mr Harris: We call it rubber-stamping here in Ontario, a little different than in other jurisdictions.

The member for Ottawa South pointed out that eight members of the board of directors had indicated that Mr Eliesen had requested that the board, pending any change in legislation, appoint him as president and chief executive officer. Eight members of the board, respected members, one a labour member, indicated that this was the case by way of letter. Mr Eliesen replied, "That statement is false, sir." Has the minister investigated whether it was Mr Eliesen who was telling the truth or whether it was these eight members of the board who were telling the truth at those hearings?

Hon Mr Ferguson: Mr Eliesen's qualifications are not in question by fairminded people. What I cannot believe about this process is that we have members of the third party accusing me of not doing a job and now they want to expand my duties and go out and play cops and robbers. I am far too busy looking after the energy needs of this province to go out and play cops and robbers at the request of the leader of the third party.

Mr Harris: Does it not bother the minister that eight members of the board of directors of Ontario Hydro are saying one thing and Marc Eliesen is saying something completely opposite? I believe he said, "That is false, sir," ie, those eight members are lying. I believe that is what Mr Eliesen was saying.

Interjections.

Mr Harris: The member for Ottawa South was reading a quote that I have also seen, signed by eight members of the board of directors, in response to the interjections. Is the minister telling me this does not concern him, that he has not investigated this? Would he not agree that if somebody is lying he should be fired right away, eight board members or Mr Eliesen, one or the other, if they are going to bring information forward to a public committee or send information and sign it? Would the minister not agree with that? Why is he not concerned with that?

Hon Mr Ferguson: I think we have to recognize board members, in some respects, for what they are. They are very much political appointments of the government of the day to manage the affairs of the corporation and to develop the long-term policy initiatives of Ontario Hydro. I want to say to the leader of the third party that clearly for a minister of the crown to follow his suggestion and only be concerned about who said what, when and about whom is just not good use of a minister's time. It is not productive use of a minister's time.

1500

ELEVATOR INSPECTIONS

Mr Chiarelli: My question is to the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations regarding the public safety issue of elevator inspections. Two years ago, Ottawa suffered two unfortunate elevator accident fatalities. A coroner's inquest strongly recommended more provincial inspectors than the one who was available in Ottawa-Carleton. At one time Ottawa-Carleton had five inspectors, and that for fewer elevators. The last government added a part-time inspector. Although still far from adequate, it was a move in the right direction. The minister has now terminated this position for budget reasons.

I have now obtained a letter and a computer printout from a ministry director clearly showing that 2,053 elevators in Ottawa-Carleton have not been inspected by the ministry in over four years. The majority of these have passed the ministry's own due dates for reinspection in the past year. The situation is seriously deteriorating under this government. Will the minister immediately provide more inspectors in Ottawa-Carleton? How long does she intend to leave these 2,000 elevators uninspected beyond the ministry's own due dates for inspection?

Hon Ms Churley: It is quite true that there are more elevators than we have enough inspectors for these days. Over the past little while we have recruited nine new trainees. One of the problems we have is a shortage of trained inspectors. We are working with the Ministry of Labour at this time and are actually training new elevator inspectors. The certification and training program that is going on will help alleviate the problem. We are aware of the difficulties.

We are also looking at prioritizing because we do not have enough inspectors for all elevators and doing some kind of risk management. The elevators that perhaps are creating the most risks for people will be inspected more frequently than newer elevators that are creating fewer risks.

Mr Chiarelli: My constituents in Ottawa-Carleton are not interested in risk management, which produces no results. The minister ought to know that last May in this Legislature the Premier, then Leader of the Opposition, raised this very same issue, the lack of inspectors. Nothing has been done by this government.

In fact OPSEU, the Ontario Public Service Employees Union, has made a brief to this government pointing out the problem, as has an all-industry committee dealing with this issue. The ministry is totally ignoring any advice it is getting from either the unions or the industry.

The minister must allocate resources now. There is a public safety risk, as the union would say, as the elevator industry would say, and this minister is doing absolutely nothing. Will the minister pass an order in council approving self-financing of elevator inspectors? Her ministry is a cash cow earning $1.2 billion a year and all the revenue from elevator inspectors goes into the consolidated revenue fund. Will she allocate resources immediately and will she put some more inspectors into Ottawa-Carleton to avoid this public safety hazard?

Hon Ms Churley: It must be millions, not billions. We are in the process right now. We have been studying very carefully the jury's recommendations and have been implementing some of those recommendations.

As I said in my previous answer, the certification and training program which I am working on with the Minister of Labour is ongoing. We have brought on nine new trainees but, as I said, one of the problems is that we have a lack of well-trained inspectors at this time. We are indeed dealing with the problem at this very moment.

LAND REGISTRATION

Mr Tilson: My question is of the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations. Last week I asked the minister why she had agreed to sign a secret agreement involving the sale of our land registry system, also known as the Polaris administration, an agreement negotiated by the Liberal government and signed by her.

I asked why she had agreed to keep the details of this agreement secret for ever. She did not answer the question. She did not even come close to answering the question. She was not even in the ballpark of answering the question. The Treasurer even had the gall to put to me in an aside, "Trust us."

The secret agreement has now had rampant speculation from the people of Ontario as to bid-rigging, improper tendering and giving away our land registration system to individuals who are not even Canadians. We do not even know who these people are.

I am going to give the minister another chance. Can the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations answer to this House, can she tell the members of this House why she has agreed to keep the agreement between the government of Ontario and Real/Data Ontario secret for ever?

Hon Ms Churley: I have to say that the Tory version of reality differs quite frequently with what reality is all about, and this is another case in point. I will certainly make an attempt to answer some of these questions, which have nothing to do with the reality of this particular partnership of the government with the private sector, which I would like to say has been well investigated. It has had an internal and external review since we came to government. We are fully satisfied that it is a good deal for Ontario. We have a lot of privacy safeguards built into this deal.

Mr Stockwell: How do we know?

Hon Ms Churley: Because I am telling the House now. There are three levels of safeguards. The government controls all legislation and regulations governing land registration information. Under the terms of partnership, the government owns 100% of the land registration database. The government has the right to approve any new information products resulting from this partnership. The government controls the fee structure.

I will end here and perhaps go on in a supplementary, but Teranet is fully bound by the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. I am happy to provide any information to the opposition and the third party as long as it is allowed under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

Mr Tilson: The minister has agreed to keep this contract secret for ever. How do we know? She is simply saying, "Oh well, we want to protect this company." That was her answer last week. The answer she has given is no better than last week. It is a stock answer. She is reading it. It has been prepared. Why can she not produce the agreement? What has she got to hide?

Last week I asked the minister about the fact that this secret agreement contained an agreement by the government to guarantee the minimum revenue flows of this private company. Naturally she did not provide an answer, although she said she would be happy to do it later. We have been waiting. A week has gone by and we have yet to receive that answer.

Now is the time for the minister to tell us. I am offering her another chance to answer the second question that I asked last week. How much is this secret contract going to cost the people of Ontario? Is it going to cost $1 million, $2 million, $1 billion? What is it going to cost the people of Ontario?

1510

Hon Ms Churley: I notice the member asking the question was also referring to notes as he asked the question. I think it is okay to read from time to time and I am going to read to him now. This strategic alliance is not a $1-billion industry as outlined in the TV program. The member should know that he should not believe everything he sees in a newspaper or on TV.

In early years the revenues, as I am told, will be around $20 million, and by the 10th year should exceed about—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Would the minister take her seat, please. The member for Etobicoke West. First of all, it really would be helpful if those who ask questions would allow the person an opportunity to respond. If we would just be a little calmer, perhaps we can entertain the response.

Hon Ms Churley: I do not lose my temper very often, but this is the second time this member has falsely accused me of giving inaccurate information on the land registry situation, and I must admit I am losing my temper. I am telling him in this House at this moment. He asked me a question and I am telling him the answer: $20 million in the first 10 years and it should slightly increase from there.

Interjections.

The Speaker: The member for Etobicoke West, come to order.

Mr Jackson: Give us a figure.

Hon Ms Churley: I just gave the member a figure. As I have offered the member for Dufferin-Peel before, I am happy to sit down with him. I am not allowed the time in this House to give him full details, but I am more than happy to sit down and go through the whole detailed plan with him any time.

Mr Bisson: I would like to take this opportunity to thank the pages for the fine work they have done for the Legislative Assembly since they have been here. As most of us know, it is their last day here and another group will be coming in next week. Thank you.

GOVERNMENT TRAVEL EXPENDITURES

Mr Bisson: My question is for the Chairman of Management Board. Recently I had an opportunity to meet with a number of civil servants within the riding of Cochrane South where the employees of the province of Ontario wanted to put their heads together around trying to find ways of being able to save money from the public purse by means that they have within their own control, and we talked about a couple of issues.

One of the things they raised was the whole question of travel for the government. As of right now, the practice is that if you travel on government business, you are not allowed to accumulate travel points in any way. They were wondering if it was possible that travel points could be accumulated but strictly used for the purpose of government business. This would represent quite a saving for the province of Ontario, and they wanted to know if something like this would be possible.

Hon Mr Silipo: I am glad the member raised the question, because although it may seem somewhat insignificant to some members, I think it is one that actually raises a number of issues in terms of the amount of money we spend as a government, as any government does, on travel for our employees as well as for members of the Legislature.

In fact, I recall in some recent travels it is something we did as members of the select committee on Ontario in Confederation, wondering about the use of the points and the fact that we do not take advantage of that structure. It is something I am quite interested in looking at, to see how we might take advantage of some of those possibilities.

Mr Bisson: There were a number of ideas that was raised at this meeting. It was quite a productive meeting actually. It was the first time a member of government had actually taken the time to sit down and speak to the civil servants of this province, trying to find ways to economize within the section, within the public expenses of our government—something they were quite happy about. It was a trying experience but it was interesting.

The other point they raised was the whole question again of travel. One of the things they were talking about was that presently, when booking flights or booking travel for the government, it is done through one central government agency, but the prices, when you look at them, tend to be fairly elevated compared to what they would be if you knew ahead of time you could book on a seat sale, leave on a specific date and come back again. It is not always possible, because at times you cannot really know the exact day you will be coming back from a meeting, but they figure in about 20% to 30% of the travelling they do now, they leave at a specific time and come back at a specific time. They would like to know if it is possible to book that ahead of time to be able to take advantage of seat sales, which would be about 50%.

Hon Mr Silipo: I think the member raises the broader question of travel cost that I alluded to in my answer to his first question. That too is an area that I know we actually are looking at through Management Board of Cabinet, to see how we can best co-ordinate the way in which we go about spending our money with respect to travel and the whole question, particularly of airline travel, but certainly others. There are ways, I think, that we can spend that money a little more wisely than we have done in the past.

POST-SECONDARY EDUCATION

Mr Daigeler: In the absence of the Premier, my question is to the Minister of Colleges and Universities. The minister knows that the students outside this building and all across the province have been asking where the Premier is today to explain his broken promises on higher education. They are also sending him letters, addressed to the Premier, asking about the funding cuts and his tuition fee increases.

Here is what some of them have been saying and are saying to the Premier: "I do regret voting for you in the past election. Many of your promises have either been ignored or put off."

Here is another student: "I voted NDP in the last election, after being a Liberal supporter for years. Your recent actions are making me believe that I have made a mistake."

Another one: "It just seems that you guys can never do anything right. You finally are given a chance and you have really screwed it up. Shape up or you will be shipped out."

The Speaker: Is there a question?

Mr Daigeler: That is what the students are telling him, and I am sending some of these letters right over to the minister so that he will know how the students are feeling. They have explained it to him outside. What is the minister telling the students? What has he told the students outside about his cuts to higher education?

Hon Mr Allen: It has been a great rally outside. Everybody has rehearsed his lines well. The students are concerned about serious problems that were left over in the wake of the Liberal and Tory eras in this province.

The member for Nepean knows very well, regardless of what he is receiving on those cards, that we placed, and still place, $177 million in new dollars in the university system this last year. We doubled the capital dollars available to the system. We expanded OSAP. We introduced a whole series of accessibility programs that had never seen the light of day under the member's administration. I do not think the record is a bad one, but I do understand the students because there is an awful lot of ground to be made up in the wake of those guys.

Mr Daigeler: I accept the fact that I got pelted with macaroni this year. The students were not expecting to have to pelt the minister today with macaroni, and they did. Why did they do it? Because the minister promised them not to increase tuition. He increased tuition. He promised them not to cut funding under education. He did not deliver on his own promises and that is what the students are protesting.

The minister refers to OSAP. Let's be straight about the program. He is so proud that he has not cut back, but I am informed that there is a group right now working in the Treasury to turn OSAP into a loans-only program and that 62,000 students who are presently receiving grants would be affected by this. Can the minister confirm that he is aware of this? Second, who told the staff to do that study? Third, can the minister confirm that he will not implement this new, incredibly dangerous, negative, draconian measure for the students of this province?

1520

Hon Mr Allen: I recall that at the rally the member stood far enough away not to be hit by any macaroni. I was right up front.

Our ministry, in attempting to face the whole question of funding the system and being fair to students, is looking at a whole range of options in order to improve access and get more students studying better at better universities in Ontario. That is the maxim. That is what we are fighting for and that is what all the groups are working on that are working at my ministry.

RETAIL STORE HOURS

Mr Carr: My question is to the Solicitor General. It is an economic question, but as it relates to Sunday shopping, I will give it to the Solicitor General. He will have read the full-page ad from the Ontario Discount Drug Association. It was a letter to the Premier saying: "You keep saying in your government that you are committed to creating jobs for Ontario. As recently as September 23, you stated, 'Job creation is a key priority for this government.'" It goes on to say: "Our member stores will be unable to compete and 3,000 jobs will be lost. Our workers are no less important than other employed people in Ontario."

We have heard the Minister of Labour say today that 480,000 jobs are not important, so I do not know why 3,000 would be to them. I wrote to the Premier on September 9 and said: "Three thousand jobs are important enough. Maybe you should get out and meet them." His letter back said no, he did not have the time to come in. Then we sent another letter and said maybe the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology would be interested. When de Havilland was going to lose the same amount of jobs, they struck a committee and got the Treasurer to open his pocketbook and give them whatever amount of money they wanted. But for these 3,000 clerical jobs—they are cashiers—the Premier, the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, nobody will talk to these individuals.

What is the Solicitor General going to do to save the 3,000 jobs that are in jeopardy because of his legislation?

Hon Mr Pilkey: By his own admission of the actions of this government in the specific examples he raised in terms of other corporate entities, the member should recognize that this government in fact has been very judicious in its attempt to save jobs and encourage job creation in this province. More specifically with respect to the drugstores, the previous Liberal government legislation provided that drugstores might offer their various product lines up to a maximum retail area of some 7,500 square feet. I would think that is a size which is quite large for the distribution of pharmaceutical goods, and I would be surprised if someone suggested it is not.

Mr Carr: Those 3,000 employees will not sleep any better tonight with an answer like that.

I have copies of the minister's remarks that he was supposed to make on September 30. It is Notes for Remarks by the Honourable Allan Pilkey. I suspect I will be getting a visit, because in the back are the questions and answers. As he is the minister responsible for the OPP, I am sure they will be in there this afternoon. I will save them the trouble: My office is 107 north.

I have it right here with me. In it are the questions and answers that have been prepared for the minister by some of his officials. Quite frankly, we do not need to go ahead, because all the questions and answers are in here; it is very thorough. It says they will spend $1 million—in case the minister forgets, it is on the last page—on the Ontario Municipal Board. How can he justify spending $1 million? He cannot save 3,000 jobs, but he is going to spend $1 million at a time this province is bankrupt. How does he justify to the people of this province spending that money?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I cannot respond. Perhaps the member opposite is reading from my copy; I do not seem to have one. I certainly will not be launching any investigation, because I am sure the information the member has there will be very helpful to him as we proceed to clause-by-clause on this issue. Any costs that would be incurred by the Ontario Municipal Board in reviewing the decisions that are made that are made by municipal councils will be money well spent. The reason I say that is that when one contrasts that approximately $1 million to the volume of retail expenditures that will occur as a result of the bona fide tourist exemptions, that number will not even be close to the overall benefit that the province and retailers will receive. It is a solid investment in that way.

The Speaker: The Solicitor General has a response to a question asked earlier by the member for Leeds-Grenville.

REMARKS BY APPOINTEE TO POLICE SERVICES BOARD

Hon Mr Pilkey: I rise today in response to a question that was asked Tuesday, October 1, 1991, by the member for Leeds-Grenville concerning a request for an investigation by the Regional Municipality of Peel Police Services Board. I have studied the matter and have drafted a letter which has been sent out to the Regional Municipality of Peel Police Services Board detailing my particular response. It is a very short letter and with the indulgence of the Speaker I will simply read it:

"I am replying to your letter of September 9, 1991, in which you have asked me to request the Ontario Civilian Commission on Police Services to investigate the alleged comments of a member of your board as reported in the Toronto Star. I have reviewed all of the documents which you have made available respecting this matter, including the newspaper articles in question and correspondence from the board, the Peel Regional Police Association and the member of the board in question.

"It is my considered view that the resolution of the dispute does not lie in my requesting an investigation by the commission under section 25 of the Police Services Act. As you have said in your letter, the positions adopted are contradictory and irreconcilable. The member of the board in question categorically denies stating that Peel police officers will sometimes lie under oath to protect their fellow officers, while the newspaper maintains strongly that the article in question reflects the truth of what was said in the interview.

"In my view, an inquiry at this time would not foster in a positive or significant way the enhanced relationship between police forces and members of the community they serve that we are all trying so hard to effect.

"Yours truly,

"Allan Pilkey,

Solicitor General."

Mr Runciman: That is a very disappointing response indeed, not to me alone, I am sure, but to Peel regional council, to the policemen and policewomen in the Peel force who were very disturbed by the comments of this individual.

He is indicating that it is one person's story against another's, but the reporter for the Toronto Star had a witness present while she posed those questions, re-posed those questions, because she was concerned about the nature of the responses. I think it is incumbent upon this government—this was its appointee, an NDP appointee—and I believe it is incumbent upon this minister, this government, to ensure that it is appointing the appropriate people to police services boards across this province.

I ask the minister, as a supplementary, to review this again because I think this is important in respect to the message it sends right across this province, to municipal councils and policemen and policewomen who are trying to serve the public as best they can.

Hon Mr Pilkey: The member says that this is a purely partisan NDP appointment, and quite frankly he should know as Chair of the standing committee on government agencies, which reviews appointments, that this is simply not true.

We have as a government, quite differently than previous governments, created a listing of all appointments available that has been distributed widely across the province. We have provided generic application forms, we have publicly advertised for applicants and we have allowed the standing committee on government agencies to review whichever appointments it wishes to review.

1530

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Mr Cordiano: I have a question for the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations. On at least two separate occasions in this House the minister has expressed her concern for the plight of consumers in Ontario and has recognized the need to protect consumers, particularly seniors, from the vagaries of the marketplace. Indeed, the minister has stated that she is extremely concerned about the abuse that not only seniors but other consumers in this province are taking.

I would ask the minister today if she is still concerned about price gouging and other issues affecting consumers in Ontario.

Hon Ms Churley: Yes, of course I am still very concerned about abuse of consumers, and particularly the vulnerable consumer. I have said on a couple of occasions in this House that it is a major priority of mine. We have taken the Liberal legislation that had been worked on, which was essentially good legislation, but there were some holes in it that I feel it is very important that we address. I do not want to introduce legislation at this time. In only a very short period of time we can plug those holes and make it a little better for consumers out there, for consumer protection.

Mr Cordiano: We anxiously await that legislation. But in the meantime, the minister must be aware that her government is about to impose a 44% hike in Hydro rates over the next three years. Once the complete 44% rate is in effect, the average consumer in North York will be paying over $360 more per year and the average consumer in Deep River can expect to pay as much as $600 more per year for hydro.

Those individuals on fixed incomes such as seniors, particularly seniors who are most vulnerable, may not be able to afford to pay those rate increases and may be forced out of their own homes. I ask the minister if she still believes it is her mandate to protect consumers against price gouging of this kind and what she has done in terms of protecting consumers at the cabinet table to ensure that price gouging of this kind will not take effect once the rate increases go into effect. What has she specifically done at the cabinet table to make sure those rate increases will not affect those who are particularly vulnerable, those who are on fixed incomes and who will see these kinds of rates push them out of their homes?

The Speaker: The member will conclude his question, please.

Mr Cordiano: What is the minister going to do about that?

Hon Ms Churley: I do not think I can refer this question at this point to the appropriate minister to answer.

Mr Bradley: You're the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

Hon Ms Churley: I certainly know what minister I am. Because I cannot refer it, I will simply say at this point that, as I said in my first answer, I am quite concerned about gouging of consumers. However, this question should be addressed to the Minister of Energy. I certainly will continue to speak up for the consumer at the cabinet table. If the member would ask my cabinet colleagues, they will tell him that I always speak up for the protection of consumers.

COMMITTEE MEETING

Mr Eves: I have a question of the government House leader who also happens to be the Minister of Municipal Affairs. Can the government House leader explain to the members of the Legislative Assembly, and more specifically to the members of the select committee on Ontario in Confederation, why the committee meeting this afternoon, as previously agreed upon by all three House leaders to meet the Premier's personal agenda from 3 to 4, has been cancelled?

Hon Mr Cooke: It is my understanding that when we discussed this in the House leaders' meeting a week or so ago, the opposition House leaders and I agreed we all shared some concern about overlap between a committee meeting and the House still in question period. There was going to be an attempt to get question period over with by about 3 o'clock so that the committee could proceed. I think the Chair of the committee and other members were concerned that because question period was so late starting, it would show a disrespect to the question period process. So I think it was appropriate that the committee meeting was cancelled.

Mr Eves: I have before me the minutes of the House leaders' meeting of October 10, of which the government House leader speaks, drafted by the government House leader's office, I might add. On page 2, it says: "The committee will be authorized to meet on October 17 from 3 pm to 4 pm to accommodate the Premier. If a motion in the House is required, it will be presented by the government."

It was never the understanding of the House leaders that this was conditional, and it does not say so in his own minute, that if the question period happens to be over by 2:59:30, then we will have a meeting, but on the other hand, if question period goes to 3:01, we will not have the meeting. That was never the intention. That was not what was agreed upon by the three parties and the three House leaders. What difference does it make to the Premier anyway? He is not in here for question period in any event.

Hon Mr Cooke: I did not cancel the committee meeting. The Chair made a decision, and I know he was consulting with some members of the House, to cancel the committee. If this is a problem, and obviously it is, then obviously the member and I and the House leader for the official opposition should discuss it.

Interjection.

The Speaker: Order, the member for Willowdale.

Hon Mr Cooke: I did not cancel the committee, and if there has been a problem created by this, we will certainly check it out and see if it can be rectified.

The Speaker: New question. The member for Victoria-Haliburton.

Mr Drainville: It is not a question, Mr Speaker. I am rising on a point of order.

The Speaker: Can this wait until outside question period? The member for Durham West.

WETLANDS

Mr Wiseman: My question is to the Minister of Natural Resources. As this House will know, I have shown a tremendous amount of concern for the wetlands and the waterways of this province. In April 1990 this House passed a resolution requesting the Ministry of Natural Resources to do some further study and to bring forward some protection for the wetlands. I would like to ask the minister if he could give an accounting of where that process is at this time.

Hon Mr Wildman: I thank the member for his question. I share his concern. I know most members of the House share his concern for the need to—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I am having difficulty hearing the response because of not just interjections but a number of private conversations. Would the members of the House come to order so that we can hear the response of the Minister of Natural Resources?

Hon Mr Wildman: In September a draft policy statement on wetlands was released by the ministry. It was circulated across the province and we are currently accepting comment and review from various interested groups. That policy statement is significantly different from the earlier draft that was published in 1989, and that is why we decided there was a need for further consultation with the public. The public consultation period is 60 days. When that is completed, we will take into account the comments we have received and incorporate them in the final statement and we will publish the policy statement under the Planning Act. I will keep the House informed of the progress we make in this policy.

Mr Wiseman: There are more than just development pressures threatening the province's wetlands. As I recall, the standing committee on resources development earlier this year looked at the question of purple loosestrife in the broader context of exotic invading species. I have posters here. I am very concerned that even when the wetlands policy is in full effect—for members who are not aware, the weed was accidentally introduced into North America in the early 1800s. In Canada the plant caused few problems until the 1930s when it began to take over the floodplain pastures along the St Lawrence River.

According to the study for the Ontario Heritage Foundation, purple loosestrife has invaded half the wetlands in southern Ontario and north to a line running from Sault Ste Marie to Kirkland Lake. What is the government doing to ensure that this beautiful killer, as it has been dubbed, does not irrevocably damage Ontario's wetlands?

Hon Mr Wildman: The member is correct that the invasion of purple loosestrife is a very serious problem, as is the invasion of other exotic species into the province, and it does cause significant loss to wetlands. Its impact could indeed be disastrous, and I think it is unfortunate that some other members of the House find this an amusing topic.

In 1990 the Ministry of Natural Resources established a working group to make recommendations this year on the managing of purple loosestrife in Ontario. That group is assembling information now on the effective ways of controlling the spread of purple loosestrife. We are developing educational programs and trying to inform the public about the dangers of this plant that many people see as a rather attractive-looking plant.

I understand also that the Minister of Agriculture and Food, under section 10 of the Weed Control Act, has allowed a number of municipalities such as Bruce county to declare purple loosestrife a noxious weed. That bylaw then makes it incumbent upon the municipality to remove the purple loosestrife within its municipal boundaries and enables weed inspectors to ban the sale—this is very important—of this plant in local nurseries, because unfortunately there are still some nurseries in this province that sell purple loosestrife as a plant for gardens.

1540

The Speaker: The time for oral questions has expired. There are a couple of members who would like the opportunity to address the Speaker. I will certainly allow that.

LEGISLATIVE PAGES

The Speaker: Before so doing, if I could capture the attention of all the members of the House, we have been served extremely well over the past several weeks by a group of young people, 24 in number, who I think you will agree have delivered to us absolutely exemplary service and who deserve our applause.

COMMITTEE MEETING

Mr Drainville: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I think I need to respond to the comments that have been made by the honourable House leader for the third party. There may have been a mistake made on my part—

Interjections.

The Speaker: There is sufficient noise in the chamber to prevent the Speaker from hearing the alleged point of order.

Mr Drainville: I may have inadvertently made a mistake and I want to apologize to the House about this particular thing. This afternoon I was under the impression, as the Chair of the select committee, that when the question period was under way members could not leave to go to committee. I thought it was a rule of the House. It may not be a rule of the House.

When I spoke to the Premier, I indicated that it looked like we would not be finished till 3:40. We were to meet at 3 o'clock and we would not meet until 3:40. At that point in time it was obvious that the Premier had another engagement planned and could not stay for any more than the time allotted. Therefore, under those conditions I decided that we would have to invite the Premier back to the select committee. If I have made any difficulties for the members of the opposition or for members of my own party I deeply regret that.

I was not in any sense trying to make it difficult for those members.

The Speaker: I appreciate the member's point of personal explanation.

Mr Harnick: The government House leader made the allegation, when he answered the question regarding this 3 o'clock meeting with the Premier, that the Chairman of the committee had consulted with the members of the committee and, based on that consultation process, made the decision to cancel the meeting.

I would just like to set the record straight. He did not consult with us. He merely told us that the meeting was cancelled. I point out to the government House leader that this is 90% of the problem with this government. They do not understand the meaning of consultation. It is not telling people an answer after the decision is made; it is getting people involved in helping make the decision. It is not levying a decision and then consulting to tell people what the decision is.

The Speaker: The member for Willowdale will know that it is not a point of order, but obviously it is a point of a great deal of interest.

LEGISLATIVE RESEARCH SERVICE

Mr Chiarelli: On a question of privilege, Mr Speaker: As you know, this afternoon I raised a question concerning public safety and elevator inspectors in Ottawa-Carleton. I want to raise with you a very serious problem, as I see it, with respect to the disclosure of information to legislative researchers. As you know, under standing order 140 you are responsible for the legislative library and consequently for the researchers who work for members from all parties in this place.

Several weeks ago I had an appointment in my constituency office with a retired elevator inspector who raised concerns about the public safety of elevators in Ottawa-Carleton. As a result of that particular meeting, I consulted with legislative research, through the library for which you are responsible, and I placed a number of questions in writing for the legislative research people to investigate. Very briefly, I asked two questions in particular, as well as a number of others. The first one was, "How many elevators in Ottawa-Carleton have not been inspected by the ministry for a period of at least four years preceding September 1, 1991?" and the second was, "Provide a list of buildings where no such inspections have taken place in the four years preceding September 1, 1991."

Legislative research got back to me with a memo, and I will quote from that memo. This is information the researcher obtained from a director of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations: "The information requested under this question would require approximately 91 working days to prepare and would involve a cost of approximately $133,320. It was estimated that approximately 10 minutes would have to be spent on each of 20,000 files at a cost of $10 per quarter hour."

The very professional and tenacious researchers thought that was a little bit unrealistic and it took a considerable period of time in negotiation with the director to rephrase the questions slightly and obtain appropriate answers that would permit me to ask a question in this House to protect my constituents.

I am almost finished, Mr Speaker. I know you are getting a bit edgy about the time I am taking.

The long and short of it is that in order to get the information to protect my constituents, I, as an MPP, was required to pay personally to the legislative library researcher close to $300 to get this information. I want to ask you to refer this matter and other matters to an appropriate legislative committee, so that we can look at the interface between the bureaucracy and legislative researchers.

I raised this point of privilege with you on a previous occasion and I thought it was very serious. As a matter of fact, I received your response, which I did not agree with, but I did not do anything with it because I was prepared to defer to your opinion and your judgement. However, it has arisen again in a very serious matter. On behalf of my constituents, who expect me to be able to get this information on their behalf, I am asking you on a point of privilege, as the person responsible for the legislative library, to refer this type of issue to an appropriate legislative committee where we can all have some input and there is an appropriate flow of information through the bureaucracy, which is trying to stonewall on behalf of this government.

The Speaker: I appreciate the matter which the member brings to my attention and I will be pleased to take a look at it and report back as soon as possible.

PETITIONS

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Ms Poole: I have a petition which is addressed to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas Her Majesty the Queen, at her coronation in 1953, took a personal oath to the people of Canada, and Canadians have always reciprocated with oaths of allegiance and service to the person of the sovereign;

"Whereas it is our right and duty to take oaths of allegiance and service in such form;

"Whereas Ontario regulation 144/91 made under the Police Services Act, 1990, denies Ontarians this right;

"We, the undersigned residents of Ontario, loyal to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to resolve that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor in Council be requested to revoke Ontario regulation 144/91 and restore the traditional oath of service to Her Majesty for police personnel in Ontario."

I have signed this petition.

1550

WINCHESTER DISTRICT MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Mr Villeneuve: This petition is signed by 2,534 constituents and neighbour constituents. It has to do with the approximately $500,000 operating deficit that the Winchester District Memorial Hospital has and is unable to meet, even by the cutting down of hospital beds.

"We, the undersigned, demand that the province of Ontario increase the level of operational funding to the Winchester District Memorial Hospital in order to prevent further loss of health care services to our area."

I have affixed my signature to this petition and strongly endorse it.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr J. Wilson: I have the privilege of presenting a petition to the Legislature of Ontario that reads as follows:

"Whereas the Queen of Canada has long been a symbol of national unity for Canadians from all walks of life and all ethnic backgrounds;

"Whereas the people of Canada are currently facing a constitutional crisis which could potentially result in the breakup of the federation and are in need of unifying symbols;

"We, the undersigned, respectfully petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to restore the oath to the Queen for Ontario's police officers."

That is signed by a number of good people and councillors, actually, on the Tosorontio township council and a number of good people from Wasaga Beach, Tottenham, Alliston and Collingwood in my riding of Simcoe West and I too have affixed my name to this petition.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

TEACHERS' PENSION STATUTE LAW AMENDMENT ACT, 1991

LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT DES LOIS EN CE QUI CONCERNE LE RÉGIME DE RETRAITE DES ENSEIGNANTS

Mr Silipo moved first reading of Bill 140, An Act to amend the Teachers' Pension Act, 1989 and the Teaching Profession Act.

M. Silipo propose la première lecture du projet de loi 140, Loi modifiant la Loi de 1989 sur le régime de retraite des enseignants et la Loi sur la profession enseignante.

Motion agreed to.

La motion est adoptée.

Hon Mr Silipo: Very briefly, as I indicated, I am pleased to introduce in the Legislature today the Teachers' Pension Statute Law Amendment Act, 1991. There are many important things that this act will do. Among the most important is that it creates for the first time a partnership between teachers and the province of Ontario. As members will hear in the debate in subsequent reading, this partnership will become a model for other partnerships which this government will forge with its stakeholders. I trust and anticipate that members will give this bill their fullest attention, and I look forward to their support.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

POWER CORPORATION AMENDMENT ACT, 1991 LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LA SOCIÉTÉ DE L'ÉLECTRICITÉ

Resuming the adjourned debate on the motion for second reading of Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act.

Suite du débat ajourné sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 118, Loi modifiant la Loi sur la Société de l'électricité.

Mr Ruprecht: I am, of course, delighted to join other honourable members in the debate on Bill 118. What I would like to raise today is what the Toronto Sun already indicated a few days ago when it said, "Ontario Hydro is the biggest management screwup in the history of Canadian industry." That, of course, is not a light sentence. To point one's finger and to say to Ontario Hydro and very directly to this government that it is participating in "the biggest management screwup in the history of Canadian industry" is indeed a very serious charge.

I compliment the member for Sarnia, who is the parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Energy, in his attempt to deflect the debate and simply say that the main message that Hydro is trying to propagate today to the members assembled here is that, yes, Hydro will deliver power at cost. But what he does not say is what kind of cost.

The member for Sarnia, who I think is in the House, will probably agree that we have to look at the kinds of statements that have been made previously by the minister, so that his whole idea of deflecting this debate and saying that the opposition is wrong in attacking Bill 118 and that we do not understand and are misrepresenting the facts of what Bill 118 is about—I would like to ask at the same time whether the member for Sarnia is prepared to give us an answer today to the question that was raised yesterday. That is what I would like to continue.

Yesterday the member for Mississauga East indicated what the minister had said just a few days ago, on October 1, 1991. That of course speaks directly to the whole issue of whether Hydro should deliver power at cost or whether Hydro should be used for purposes of economic planning or social experimentation or taking away and using millions of dollars for other purposes than producing hydro and electricity at cost. "For other purposes" means taking millions of dollars and spending it for experimentation, however well it might be designed and however much we might even agree with some of it. But the issue today is that if Bill 118 passes, I think some pretty contradictory problems will arise.

I raised the question of what the Minister of Energy had said previously. The member for Sarnia had said very directly that we have misled the House and that we do not know what we are talking about. Let me just quote, as has been done previously. I am doing this because we did not get an answer. At least for the last 10 days when this debate has taken place, every time we raised the issue of Bill 118 and we said the mandate of Hydro is simply to produce energy at cost and then we talked about social experimentation of millions of dollars being siphoned off into some other direction, the member for Sarnia stood up and accused the opposition, both parties, of not understanding this bill and of not telling the public effectively what this bill is about.

I remind him when I read what the Minister of Energy said in this very House on October 1: "The intention of the bill"—of course I am talking about Bill 118—"is to direct Hydro in order to fulfil the mandate of the government of the day." The main phrase here is, "to fulfil the mandate of the government of the day." The mandate was not what was set down previously, that Hydro deliver power at cost, but the intention of this bill "is to direct Hydro in order to fulfil the mandate of the government of the day." In other words, he is looking for a way out of the mandate that was originally given to Hydro, and that was to supply power at cost.

Then he goes on to say, to the same question that was asked by the member for Ottawa South, "The goal and objective of Hydro is to provide power at reasonable prices." Again, let's be clear about this. He is not talking about power at cost. He is talking specifically about producing power at reasonable prices. There is a vast difference and no one should be fooled about this. Producing power at cost and producing power at reasonable prices is a difference that either will have industry staying in this province or will make industry leave this province. There is a vast difference between producing power at cost and producing power at reasonable prices, because who will decide what a reasonable price for hydro is?

1600

We know of course what some people say is reasonable. I would like to quote from a letter we received from the Ontario Mining Association pointing out quite clearly that Ontario now is the third most expensive electric power producer in Canada, the third most expensive province, very directly affecting the jobs of this province.

The Agenda for People is clear in that it says we try to produce jobs for the working people, but what is clearer is the result and the response, I might add, from people who are in the industry. They say: "The power is too expensive. We can't be competitive. We'll have to move." That means thousands of jobs are being lost again. We know we are tremendously affected by job shortages and industry leaving to go south of the border and to some other places where hydro can be cheaper.

What concerns me today and what has been raised is another question, the promise Hydro made not too long ago to rip out your pipes and move away from oil, move away from other means of heating your home and use hydro.

I think the Speaker, of all people, will remember the jingle. I think I remember it. I will not be able to produce it in the way it has been repeated on the radio but let me try anyway. It said that hydro would be cheaper than any other source of energy, "If you heat your home electrically, you are paying a lot less money," or something like that.

[Applause]

Mr Ruprecht: I appreciate the member for Sarnia providing some applause. It is really a relief to see that there is still some sense of humour in this place.

However, we must not deflect from the seriousness of this jingle because this jingle may be the result of a propaganda mechanism that has cost many thousands of Ontarians to switch from oil and other sources of energy to hydro. The very net effect of this kind of switch is going to catch people short.

It means that many seniors on fixed incomes are looking at their budget and saying to themselves that a promise by Hydro is a promise by the government. I know, and all honourable members will agree, that previously, only a few short years ago, when Hydro made a promise, people believed it because the government backed it. The people believed that a promise by Hydro could never be relegated or broken.

I am not here today to talk about the broken promises of this government. I am talking today about the broken promise that was made, not only to seniors but to every member who is on a fixed income in this province. Thousands were affected by it and now find themselves in a situation where the added bill, the extra cost that would be placed on the taxpayer, on the senior and on those on fixed incomes to pay for their hydro, to pay electrically for heating their homes, is simply going to be tremendous.

The reason I am disappointed is because I know that many of the seniors affected by this increase are going to have to leave their homes. It is going to cost a tremendous amount more next year, a tremendous amount more the following year and at least 44% to over 54% in year three. We know it is going to cost 44%, but if you add GST, the provincial sales tax and all the other taxes, there can only be one conclusion, that in three years those on fixed incomes will have to pay over 50% in added cost of hydro. Think of the scenario. Think of all the people across Ontario who are on fixed incomes. What exactly will their charge be to us who are going to be charged today for letting them down?

We and especially this NDP government are going to be responsible today for thousands of seniors with extra rate increases, and many will consequently have to move out of their homes. The charge will be not only to me representing Parkdale, but to every member of this House, next year and in 1993 and 1994. We are all going to be responsible. All of us are going to be called and they are going to be asking us, "Why are you responsible for increasing hydro rates?"

I ask the members today what our response will be. Will we simply say: "I'm sorry. That's the way we do business in Ontario"? Or are we in the opposition going to say, "Check with the NDP government because it made a promise and broke it"?

We are not to be partisan on this bill, far from it, but the facts are clear. Some people will lose their homes and consequently we, this government and every member of the opposition are going to be held accountable and responsible for the increases. Over 50% in three years is not a pretty sight. We are going to be getting calls no matter where we are, what part of the province we are from and what riding we represent. Right across Ontario we are going to be getting calls and we had better be prepared for an answer.

That is why today, hopefully in co-operation with the government, we will make some amendments to Bill 118 that will be reasonable and non-partisan. We are here to discuss this bill and I remind members that there is a lot more at stake than simply the issue of increased rates and charging some people over 50% in three years.

I think of what the member for Niagara Falls indicated a few days ago in this House. She stood in her place and said: "It may be true that we will be charging people in Ontario over 50% within three years, your residents and mine, but don't worry, folks, because in 1994 the rates of increase for hydro will stabilize and consequently we will be in a much better position to regulate price increases."

Today I ask members, the Minister of Energy and the member for Sarnia, who ought to be a minister—I ask him because I know he is going to give us an answer today and that will be the judgement, the basis of my recommendation—how the member for Niagara Falls can stand in this House and promise again that rates after 1994 will stabilize? What information does she have to tell this House? What kind of promise can we make to the residents based on the assumption of that member for Niagara Falls? Maybe she knows something we do not know. She may know something that is directly connected with the power we get from Niagara Falls. Maybe the member for Sarnia or the Minister of Energy can enlighten us today on why we received a promise by the member for Niagara Falls that price increases will stabilize in 1994.

Has this government discussed this in caucus alone with its members? Is there something that has been withheld from the members of the opposition? If that is the case, if the member of the government raises that question of price stabilization in 1994, is it not the case that we in this House should be notified? There should be a position paper or at least some kind of press release. Certainly the Minister of Energy should be clarifying the position of price stabilization in 1994. That is the way things should operate in this House.

I remind members that in the last few weeks, especially in this session of the Legislature, we have become used to not receiving any information from this government. I should not be so blunt as to say "any" information, but some ministers have chosen not to inform the House—a serious charge—rather than making statements, dropping hints and making innuendoes while some ministers are walking down the hallway in front of the cameras, the press pencils and other things of this nature.

1610

The Acting Speaker (Mr Farnan): Order. The member will take his seat. I appreciate the member's comments in the debate. I ask the member to remain focused on the issue before the assembly.

Mr Ruprecht: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker. I certainly appreciate your remarks, except that we should be informed when some members of the government are standing here and almost as an aside telling this House the new Hydro policy for 1994. This impinges directly on your rights, Mr Speaker, on my rights and on the rights of all the members here. I am simply saying that ministers ought to make statements that reflect the issues of increases or price stabilization.

When we have members making these kinds of ministerial statements and we do not get all the information we ought to be getting, we have to be asking some very hard questions. That was really the connection. The question we ought to ask is, why are ministers not prepared to talk about price stabilization for 1994? Why does it come from the mouth of the member for Niagara Falls, who I think might have some information we are not getting? That raises the bigger issue of ministers not making statements that ought properly to be made.

Talking about the price stabilization of Hydro, I do not expect the member for Niagara Falls would go down the hall, toss all caution to the wind and talk to the press about price stabilization or what Hydro ought to do. She is not the minister. She is not even the parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Energy.

The reason I am suspicious of such a statement is very simply that we cannot rely on this government to make statements through the ministry. They hint at price increases or stabilization which at certain points really should be made in this Legislature.

I want to address the question of competitiveness in Ontario. I point out that many people and many organizations in Ontario, including some of the press members, have said quite clearly that we will lose more jobs, that because of our non-competitiveness we will not be able to maintain a stable workforce and that consequently our recovery, economically speaking, will either fall back or we will not be able to increase the job creation programs the way we should be, thinking about the wealth we have created in this province.

Before I talk about competitiveness I would like to indicate some facts. When many of the immigrants and many of the corporations came to Ontario, they settled really because of the promise of this land. The corporations came because they looked at the hydro rates and thought this would be a great place to do business. The immigrants came from all over the world because jobs were being created, not only by Hydro but by some other industries. We are indeed so rich—the second-largest country in the world, Canada—and the province of Ontario so vast in its natural resources; yet this country and this province have an unemployment rate of over 10%.

The wealth that we have, the natural resources that we have, should by rights make each person who calls himself or herself a citizen of this country a millionaire if this province and this country were governed right. Think about the vastness of this land. Think about the vastness of its people, the talent of its individuals and of its citizens. Yet we somehow seem to be bound by our inability to make progress and our inability to create work. It is almost criminal that in this country, with its great wealth, we are not able to create the workforce and the work necessary to maintain a great deal of prosperity.

I must say that sometimes we share the burden of being unable to govern this province right, of being unable to produce the kinds of jobs that are necessary and the kinds of jobs we could create. The members will remember that there were a lot of studies that indicated, not only in this province but out west and other places in this country, that the west alone, in three provinces, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, these little places alone would have room for over 30 million people if only the infrastructure was being put in place.

What are the ramifications of that for Ontario? We could of course have a lot more people come to this province, but what is the basic fact? The basic fact is that we are so rich, we have such abundance, that we certainly should be able to create jobs for everybody. That should be the right of every Canadian. That should be the social charter of this government. That is the promise that the NDP should have made: a job for every Ontarian. Hydro is the key to such a program.

Today, while discussing Bill 118, what do we find? We find that people are critical of Hydro. We find that the top brass of Hydro make an enormous amount of money, that its chairman alone wants to make at least $400,000. Four hundred thousand dollars. Just think of such a salary. I would think, because of Hydro's inability to produce enough jobs, our inability to produce jobs—this energy-consistent type of industry should have all kinds of jobs created because we should have been the most competitive place in the universe. We should have been the most competitive place certainly in North America, if we cannot say in the whole world, because our hydro possibilities in Canada are probably the greatest in the world.

What we need to do obviously is to focus. The social charter should focus on jobs; Hydro should focus on jobs. But because of the vast discrepancies between $400,000 for the chairman and only $25,000 to $35,000, even $65,000 as the average—these are vast differences. I think if a person in the top brass would be interested enough to think about the competitiveness of Hydro across North America, that would directly lead to industries moving back into Ontario because of the cheapness of hydro, but exactly the opposite has taken place.

1620

Why are we disappointed? We are disappointed because we see into the immediate future and, I might add, into the long-term future. We do not believe for one minute that in 1994 there should be a price stabilization. We see into the future where we become less competitive and where we in Ontario, because of the loss of jobs, will go back to being drawers of water and hewers of wood. We will be back to our birthright.

We have to go back to not being able to process the goods, where we have labour-intensive industries being able to produce these goods but we will again be relegated to ship out our national resources to other places so that products can be created that are labour-intensive. The shift obviously should be taking place right here in Ontario, if only there were a will. That will is now missing, and we who are discussing Bill 118 would like to make some amendments that are right so that we can get back to our competitiveness. It is the competitiveness that I wish to address myself to now.

The Ontario Mining Association is obviously a very reputable organization. The Ontario Mining Association has been around for many a year. We on this side of the House, having been accused by the government of always being wrong and of not understanding the issue, only have to look at some of the ratepayers, at some of the users of energy, at some of the people who use massive amounts of hydro.

What is their story to us? Who are they going to point their finger to? What will the future be in terms of competitiveness? They say to us today: "Wrong policy decisions now will not be reversible in the future. It takes a long time to bring new energy supplies on stream. Decisions made now will affect all of us for decades or later if we do not act today."

Obviously if industries perceive a growing likelihood of serious shortages—we have talked previously about brownouts and shortages—or escalating energy costs, which are just as bad, they are going to have to decide whether it makes sense to stay in this province or whether the company should move to other places. Should the company scale down its operations and even close them down? "A shortage of energy," it says, "would scale them down for us or force us to move smelting and/or refining processes to other jurisdictions."

The point is that those who use hydro and pay millions of dollars for hydro are thinking of scaling down their industries. We are not talking about abundance of jobs. We are going back to being drawers of water and hewers of wood, and even within that jurisdiction, it is being charged today that we will fall short of even the rudimentary development of industry. Even those companies that produce power on the basic level of resources are thinking of scaling down and shutting down because of our non-competitive strategy in hydro rates, a serious charge. Consequently, we cannot promise the job that we should for every Ontario resident.

The letter goes on to say: "The government and other advocates of this present course of action had better be very, very careful about the consequences. If the present approach of Hydro is wrong, it will not be just moderately wrong; it will be disastrously and ruinously wrong." They cannot find words to describe the seriousness of Hydro rate increases and the seriousness of Hydro shortages, because they affect the very jobs we are counting on to bring this province out of the recession. There is an inability of this government to focus and to ensure that there will be jobs for Ontario residents and that this recession will come to an end without giving an incentive to industry to relocate back to Ontario and create the jobs that could flow from such a location.

Instead this government will be accused of being totally wrongheaded by pushing industry out of Ontario and losing more jobs and postponing the recovery that is rightly ours because of one thing. That one thing is an increase in hydro rates that will not only devastate those on fixed incomes but, as this letter indicates, it will be "disastrously and ruinously wrong" for this government to increase rates to the point of non-competitiveness.

It is a serious charge. Ontario's energy dilemma is a very serious issue, one that threatens the building blocks of this province's economy, and it specifically points out mining, pulp, paper, the automotive sector, steel. The implications of a decision either wrong or too late are simply enormous. I am pointing out to members today that when Hydro is directly implicated in increasing rates, and consequently directly implicated in losing the jobs that are necessary for ending the recession, it will not only be disastrous for our economy and for this government—because people will remember the kinds of decisions that are made here today, and they might even remember all of us—I think it will be a policy that will be so devastating for all of us that we will remember the decisions we make today.

Finally, let us think about the kind of competitive strategy that is necessary for industry to move back to Ontario. As it stands right now, the reason much of our industry, and business for that matter, is moving out and relocating and taking with it the engineering and entrepreneurial knowhow and the jobs—there are definite reasons for this kind of an action. People have to make a decision, and Hydro is directly implicated. The decision is simply this: Do we stay in Ontario and get overtaxed by the new labour legislation, extra corporate income taxes, income taxes, Ontario sales taxes, the GST, increases in the minimum wage, market value assessment and inflation? We add all of these together and we are talking about a tremendous cumulative effect that will drive out even more people. Who can withstand these kinds of pressures when the going is easier south of the border?

We cannot stand in the way of progress. We cannot hold back people to maintain businesses in Ontario when they have one fundamental choice to make. That fundamental choice is simply this: "We stay and we have to shut down; we go and we can make a profit." With this kind of choice in mind, I am not surprised that people are taking the jobs and their knowhow and moving south.

Interjection.

The Acting Speaker: Order. The minister will refrain from interjecting. Please continue.

Mr Ruprecht: If I had only heard what the minister said, I probably would have applauded his remark, since he is known for his generosity and sense of humour.

1630

Interjection.

The Acting Speaker: I will have to reiterate first of all that I would appreciate it if the honourable Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology did not interject. I would appreciate also if the member who has the floor addressed his comments through the Speaker and not directly to the minister's interjection.

Mr Ruprecht: Mr Speaker, I have always respected you in this forum and the kind of forum you had previously, but you will remember that the minister sits there. I take him to be a generous person and consequently I will not address myself to him, because he is known to be our friend on this side. I know his comments have always been fair and, as far as I am concerned, have been mostly on target. I have no intention to carry this on any further.

The Acting Speaker: Order. The member will take his seat. The member will follow the direction of the Speaker. I think we have had enough nonsense on this and I would ask that you continue the debate and speak to the issue.

Mr Ruprecht: The present government, including the ministers present here today—we appreciate their presence obviously—has been identified as terrorizing many communities; the business sector obviously, which very directly has a stake in this community. Hydro rates will obviously be an effective instrument in ensuring that industry will come back and maintain the jobs in Ontario. Hopefully in my wrapup this government will understand that the decision it makes on Bill 118, the amendments it permits us to make from this side of the House, will have a direct influence on the future of this province.

Whether we are talking about increases in hydro rates, mismanagement, competitiveness or bringing jobs back to Ontario, what is rudimentary and fundamental today is that hydro rates—some people have described Hydro as the great big Frankenstein monster. I do not believe it is a Frankenstein. It is not a monster. Nevertheless, the point is that if we are unable to rein in these tremendous rates and ensure that Hydro's mandate is being recognized for what it should be—to provide power at cost—we will endanger the very economic health of this country and province.

Finally, this government should obviously and respectfully listen to the amendments we are proposing. With our co-operation, government and even opposition, we could go a long way. In a non-partisan, co-operative way we can manage to rein in these tremendous hydro rates. We can rein in the jobs that have left this province and we can be competitive again to the point where we can say we are Ontario residents, we believe in economic health and development and our new plan for an economic strategy must consequently rest on hydro rates and must be directly connected with what Hydro does. If we fail in this endeavour, we will be judged very harshly and will be unable to face our residents when they ask what we have done to force them out of their homes, to close jobs and push out industry.

Mr Villeneuve: I am pleased to participate for a short time in this debate, which I gather will terminate today. Hydroelectricity and Bill 118, as it will affect hydro and as it will affect everyone in rural Ontario, is of great concern to me and should be to everyone who represents rural ridings particularly, where hydro is really the only source of conventional energy as we know it. Bill 118 plans to put a lot of power in the hands of bureaucrats, and that is of concern to us all.

As most members of this Legislature know, there are alternative uses for some of our byproducts, some of our waste products, and I want to touch on that. I am pleased to see the Minister of the Environment here in the Legislature today. She will be getting a request from the township of Charlottenburgh, which I very proudly represented until 1987 when redistribution placed it within the riding of Cornwall. I got word from the municipality, as a matter of fact, yesterday afternoon that it is looking at a waste-to-energy program which will be using the Ogden Martin waste system. I want to talk about that this afternoon because many people have said: "What's the alternative? A 40% increase in the cost of power." But the government has not provided us with an alternative.

We have had some prosperity in this province and companies that manufacture automobiles formerly manufactured offshore and in Japan have come to Ontario because of two main things: first, an energy supply that was plentiful and economical and, second, a labour force that was available. We are going to lose one of those trump cards. The fact that hydro will be going up in price within the next four years somewhere in the area of 50% is very alarming. Bill 118 is probably one of the contributing factors.

I know Ontario belongs to the North American power grid. In order to belong to the North American power grid, you are supposed to have the ability to produce 25% more energy than you actually need, so you can transfer back and forth when the requirement comes from the United States or western Canada. You belong to this North American power grid and therefore you are able to supply power in times of need and are able to receive power in Ontario in times of need as well.

I know the government is on a conservation kick, which we all agree with, but there is a limit to what you can conserve. When Ontario Hydro starts paying people to go from electric heat to natural gas or some other source, then I say there is something drastically and fundamentally wrong with that type of system. This is what we are being faced with right now.

However, with the waste-to-energy, I had the opportunity of visiting Bristol, Connecticut, in the middle of the summer with a number of my federal colleagues and the majority of councillors from Charlottenburgh township. We spent one day at Bristol visiting Ogden Martin Systems Inc. I have some information here. Again, this will probably be as interesting to the Minister of the Environment as it will be to the Minister of Energy. The Ogden Martin system was set up on 18 acres of land in Bristol, Connecticut. It has two incinerators for 325 tons per day per unit; maximum 650 tons. They take the waste from a population of 250,000 and convert it to energy to generate electricity for 15,000 homes. A city the size of Cornwall is actually electrified by this plant in Bristol, Connecticut, using approximately 650 tons of garbage per day.

1640

We visited this plant and we had one of our most severe environmental critics with us, a man who is a graduate from the late 1950s with an environmental science degree. Both he and his wife have one. He is highly respected. His questions occurred not only that day, but were subsequent to the visit. The man's name is John Milnes, from eastern Ontario. I was speaking to him again recently and he is quite satisfied that the emissions and indeed the method of operation in this waste-to-energy plant are state of the art. The incineration is at very high temperatures.

We can compare that to, say, the Lakeview generating station here in Mississauga, just west of the city of Toronto. I had occasion to be out on Lake Ontario this summer on a fishing expedition on a very warm day, and as the four sisters fired up, we could see the plume coming from the first, the second, the third and the fourth. Remember, this is a coal-fired generator at Lakeview. It was putting a haze out over the city of Toronto the likes of which I could hardly believe. The only reason we could see it well is that we were out on Lake Ontario. It was very obvious that this is a major polluter here in Ontario. When we compare that to the Ogden Martin system of incineration, then we really have no comparison, because we have no plume and very limited emissions.

The Ogden Martin system is most interesting in that I saw not one seagull in the area. Everything is done inside.

It reminded me very much of a large grain elevator, a grain-handling facility, with a lot of height to be able to incinerate the garbage. The trucks come there, they go inside and they dump on a concrete floor. An inspector looks at the material and then gives the payload the okay to put it into the pit, from whence it is hoisted into the incinerator and transformed into steam, with a generator turning out enough power for 15,000 homes—a very slick setup.

I want to tell the Minister of the Environment that the tipping fees are about $45 per ton—I emphasize, $45 per ton—where we in Ontario are well over the $100 tipping fee per ton of garbage and rising. I often have the comparison thrown to me that it is much more lucrative to be tipping garbage or to be receiving garbage than it is to be growing grain in this province, which is food for human consumption. However, that is a story for another day. We do have an alternative. We can turn waste to energy. We can and we will recycle, because this is part of this Ogden Martin project.

I want to state here that the air pollution control equipment is dry flue gas scrubbers and fabric filter baghouses. There is no effluent. There certainly is no visible plume. Since the waste-to-energy establishment has been in place, apartment buildings have been built in the immediate vicinity with absolutely no problem at all.

An hon member: It's low in ash too.

Mr Villeneuve: The ash, yes; that is a very good question. The garbage is reduced by 90% in volume and 75% in weight. The ash, which is both fly ash and ground ash—there is no fly ash that leaves the flue. It is all accumulated at the plant and utilized to seal existing landfill sites that presently are putting out some gases that are very detrimental to the environment. That is what the ash is being used for. Members should remember it is being reduced by 90% by volume, 75% by weight, and that is what happens to the ash. They are using it to seal old landfill sites that are putting out gases and creating havoc for the environment. I believe some of the gases that are coming from these garbage sites are very contributory to the greenhouse effect in our atmosphere. That is what the fly ash is being used for.

We saw absolutely no negatives to this, so this is very definitely a possibility. The facility has allowed the participating towns to focus on recycling and planning. State-wide recycling is mandatory and the communities are looking at an overall waste management system that includes resource recovery, recycling and landfilling. That is, I think, a very viable alternative and it kills several birds with the same rock, so to speak, because it actually generates from waste some very badly needed electricity and it is also really reducing very considerably the requirements for landfill sites, which produce methane gas, which is something that is certainly not very desirable in our environment. I know I may seem to have strayed a bit from Bill 118, but I am providing some alternatives to both the Ministry of Energy and the Ministry of the Environment.

I could not terminate without putting in a word for the production of ethanol, which is also a renewable power source, and it would involve several ministries, including the Ministry of Energy, the Ministry of the Environment, the Ministry of Transportation, the Ministry of Agriculture and Food and the Ministry of Municipal Affairs. It is a renewable resource. It would reduce by one third the carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide in the air.

As we look at the Lakeview generating station and the number of cars in this very city, we must look at both alternatives, the production of ethanol and waste to energy, which are of utmost importance to successfully getting back to a productive economy here in Ontario and doing away with our waste.

I would not want to see any human being trying to divide the garbage that would be so-called recyclable and non-recyclable. I defy anyone to ask any human being to sit there or stand and work at trying to divide that garbage as it is incinerated in the system I had the opportunity of visiting this past summer.

In closing, Bill 118, unless it is amended quite extensively, will not solve the energy problems of the future. Providing a salary, and it has been talked about by almost everyone who has addressed this from the opposition side, in the $400,000 bracket to someone coming from another province with a somewhat clouded reputation—it would be nice to make sure that everyone is on side. When we have eight members of the management of Ontario Hydro showing great cause for questions on this new chairman of Hydro, I say we should have a very close and second look at this.

In summary, I emphasize that we must look at waste management and turning waste to energy in order to stay in the ballpark. We have many electrically fired steel mills in northern Ontario that are just waiting for the first increase in the cost of energy to skip across into Quebec, where they have energy. They have lots of hydro. As a matter of fact, they have a surplus to sell. This inevitably will happen, and I hope the Minister of Energy is listening closely, because he can provide as many dollars as he wants to some of the uranium-producing towns. It is only going to be on short notice, a short stay of execution. If our main industries, our main steel mills, because of the cost of hydro, wind up in the province of Quebec, that will solve absolutely nothing.

1650

Hon Mrs Grier: I cannot let that speech go by without commenting on the member's conversion, or maybe adherence if it is not a conversion, to the principle of incineration of waste, and just setting the record straight and clearing up perhaps some of the misconceptions the member may have left in the minds of other members.

Incineration is certainly not an appropriate way to reduce waste. It leaves you with a residue. Ironically, the kind of pollution control equipment the member indicated was on the incinerator he visited creates ash and waste that is even more toxic than those from incinerators that do not have adequate air pollution controls. The more effective the stack controls, the more toxic the waste that has to be disposed of. A landfill site has still to be found for that toxic residue. The cost to build and operate incinerators is far greater than the cost of landfills. The transfer of the contaminants from land to air is not an environmental solution. More than any of that, incinerators work against reduction, reuse and recycling.

As the member must know, the core of this government's waste management program and policies is that we reduce the amount of waste there is, reuse what we can and then recycle. Having an incinerator, an easy catch-all where you can throw everything, works directly in opposition to that approach. The things that burn at the highest temperature, plastics, wood and paper, are the products for which it is most easy to find secondary uses and markets. I think the member's rather facile characterization of energy from waste as the solution not only to energy problems but to waste problems is very incorrect.

Mr Villeneuve: I thank the honourable Minister of the Environment for her participation. Ash, we are told, is being used. It is amazing that if indeed what the Minister of the Environment is saying has not been proven in the United States and we are still wondering about the accuracy of what was said—because this is state-of-the-art incineration at very high temperatures and we are told that the toxic effect is neutralized because of the high temperatures—we quite obviously have an impasse here. But the people in the know were quite satisfied with the ash as a sealer for existing landfill sites to prevent methane.

The minister keeps talking about landfills. When I hear some city people start telling me my cattle are polluting the air with methane and yet we have landfill site upon landfill site producing methane, spewing it out into the air, and no one says anything except that we are going to create more landfill, I have a little problem with that. I have a little problem with that as one who lives in Ontario but particularly as a farmer. When I am being accused of polluting with methane because I happen to own cattle, I do not accept that.

In reply to the minister's questions, over $1 million was spent on a political exercise in the Ottawa area to prevent the Ottawa Senators from having a 98-acre site for an arena. Is she saving that for a garbage dump? Surely not. The grain that 98 acres will produce will not even bring in two thirds of the price of tipping of garbage.

Landfills, in my humble opinion, are not the answer. It is a matter of creating a monster that someone else will have to deal with in the future.

Ms Carter: Opposition members have been accusing the government of causing Ontario Hydro to abandon the principle of power at cost. This plan is totally unfounded. This is what I want to speak to.

The water-powered generating stations which provided Ontario's first electricity production were and are cheap, clean and durable. Apart from capital costs and regular, predictable maintenance, hydro power is virtually free, but for most of this century Ontario Hydro has pursued a policy of encouraging extravagant power use. As generating capacity and demand leapfrogged over each other, Ontario began to run out of hydro sites. Polluting and non-renewable fossil fuel generation and nuclear power were brought on stream. Nuclear power now accounts for something like half our consumption. Unfortunately, nuclear-powered generation is not as cheap, as long-lasting or as reliable as hydro power.

We are now in a situation where each new unit of power generated costs much more than the average cost of existing production. This average is being held down by the virtually free but proportionally dwindling hydro component. We could say that existing users are subsidizing new users as power rates rise. This is why it makes sense on fiscal grounds to use power more efficiently rather than to allow demand to grow and build more facilities to meet that demand. It can be seven times cheaper to substitute efficiency for new generation. Several states in the United States are discovering this and they are some of the places I think industry is going to.

If consumers are going to pay costs, I am sure they would prefer those costs be kept down. Under the latest technology, there is enormous scope in this province for power-saving through efficiency. We are told that power costs will go up about 40% over the next three years. This is not a departure from the principle of power at cost. This is the cost incurred by previous governments that insisted on the building of more and more nuclear generating stations, although their efficiency and durability had not been proven.

Darlington cost about $14 billion. It does not work. The performance of the older stations has been declining from year to year. When they seemed to be running well, they were run flat out and maintenance was neglected. This government is committed to running them as safely and efficiently as possible. Hydro is also now incurring the cost of renovating transmission lines and catching up with other maintenance work.

The opposition has objected to the suggested remuneration of the chief executive officer of Hydro. At $400,000, that would correspond to one thousandth of the cost of retubing one nuclear reactor, and a lot of them have had to be retubed. The costs of nuclear power come in billions, not millions or thousands. Hydro's borrowing is one underlying cause of fiscal problems in this province and leads to the siphoning off of vast sums in overseas interest payments.

Now I would like to address the concern over the proposed payment by Ontario Hydro to Elliot Lake. When Hydro was paying as much as seven times the world price for uranium to Denison Mines, that was never challenged by the Hydro board of the day as being contrary to the principle of power at cost. The facts were kept secret and power users in Ontario paid the difference. Over $2 billion was unnecessarily spent in this way. By putting a time limit on this contract, Hydro has saved its consumers $1 billion of future expenditure. It was only fair that a small fraction of the sum saved should go to ease the transition in a city which was, after all, built by and for Ontario Hydro. This was a unique situation, not a precedent.

I want to tell the opposition that if we do not work together to hold down our demands for electric power, which can be done without suffering an inconvenience, and make the transition to efficiency and the use of renewable generation facilities, then the cost of power will go up not just 40% in the next three years; if we build more nuclear facilities, the cost of power will escalate out of sight. We shall be forced to use less because we can no longer afford the cost.

Shall we encourage industry to be efficient, thus becoming more competitive and generating more jobs, or shall we drive it away because of expensive nuclear power? Better to plan for efficiency and pay less, both because we are using less and because we have kept the unit costs down, than invest in a power source that has shown itself to be uneconomical. Look at the billions, please, not the thousands and millions.

I challenge the opposition: How would they provide power at reasonable prices? Nuclear will not do it. Energy from waste will not do it. Efficiency will.

1700

Mrs Fawcett: I welcome the opportunity to participate in this increasingly controversial debate on Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act.

The proposed amendments to the Power Corporation Act have certainly caused a great deal of concern for many of the constituents in my riding, as well as the many public utilities commissions in the riding of Northumberland. I have received detailed letters from Alvin Ramer of the Colborne Public Utilities Commission, Gerry Houston of Port Hope Hydro, Bruce Craig of the Campbellford Public Utilities Commission and John Dudley of the Cobourg Public Utilities Commission, who are very nervous and have expressed their concerns about what is in store for the future.

The basis of their concern, and mine as well, is that under Bill 118 the provincial government would be able to issue policy directives that would bypass the democratic legislative process and would be binding on Ontario Hydro. This could force Hydro to do things that are outside its current mandate, which is the provision of safe, reliable power at cost.

I am not suggesting here that the Ontario government does not have a responsibility to ensure that Hydro acts in a manner reflective of the government's policy. However, and more important, Hydro must have the ability to safeguard the interests of its ratepayers.

As was the case under the previous government, ministers' policy statements must relate to Hydro's exercise of powers under the Power Corporation Act. I am most concerned that under Bill 118 this restriction is lifted. There should be no restrictions at all on the kinds of policy directives it can make. This government could order Ontario Hydro, the way this bill is written now, to do anything. We have seen what has happened in Elliot Lake, Kapuskasing and Spruce Falls. The government has used Hydro, and ultimately its ratepayers, to fund its regional economic development plans. This was done carte blanche, and certainly distorted the current mandate of Hydro.

What are we to expect? Is this the thin edge of the wedge? Will we see a whole new mandate for Ontario Hydro in the future as the government slowly manipulates that mandate to suit its own purposes?

I see some members opposite shaking their heads and reacting almost with indignation. Well, they should tell me why I should believe them that this government's intentions are as pure as the driven snow. It closed the fish hatchery in my riding of Northumberland with apparently no reason, or with reasons known only to it, which certainly were a mystery to many people. Then they decided to close two registry offices in Northumberland, and these were making money, something novel for a government. Really, there were no apparent good, economic reasons. We could not find a really solid reason there as to why.

Yesterday we heard the member for Kenora speak of three Ministry of Natural Resources nurseries that are going to be clear-cut. Orono is one of the nurseries that is slated, and while it is not exactly in my riding, it is very close and provides trees for many people in the riding and in the area.

The government apparently consulted with the employees and told them they had nothing to fear, that this was just a revamping to make better use of the resources available. Now their jobs could also be clear-cut. They look at the new organizational sheets and cannot find themselves after being told there was no fear, their jobs were secure. And they say: "Trust us. We're from the government. We know what's best for you." I have a problem with that because I just wonder what is coming next, especially in Northumberland.

At the very least, the proposed amendments to the Power Corporation Act, and this one in particular, are threatening Ontario Hydro's mandate to supply safe, reliable power at cost. Any directive issued by the government must be related to Hydro's mandate of providing power at cost. The ratepayers in my riding are going to be furious when they find out that the projected increases of over 44% over the next three years really have nothing to do with the cost of providing power but are simply a tax grab used to fund this socialist government's agenda.

I would like to remind this government that for many in my riding, Ontario Hydro is a major source of heat and power. We do not have the luxury of natural gas being able to be piped into our homes in rural and eastern Ontario. Ratepayers are not just people who own homes; ratepayers include farmers who, along with their homes that must be heated and serviced with hydro, require a considerable amount of hydro to run their various operations. They are under a great deal of financial stress already, with no immediate relief.

I have recently spoken with Gerben Dejong, a hog farmer in my riding. Gerben tells me his current hydro bill right now is $1,000 a month, $12,000 a year. Should the 44% increase become a reality, as predicted by the government's high-priced chairman, Gerben's hydro bill will be $17,280 by the end of the three years. That is an increase of $5,280. How can Gerben and the other farmers ever be expected to accept this rate and compete in the marketplace? It is impossible.

Just last Friday I spoke with Clyde Frew of MCM Food Processors Ltd in Hope township in my riding. This energetic company proposes to expand—imagine that, a company that wants to expand—its processing lines of production which would generate employment, not lay people off, not only for those who would be working at the plant but for those growers who would be supplying the plant with crops.

To accommodate this expansion, Mr Frew has asked Ontario Hydro for an increase in hydro service to approximately 800 amps. He has been flatly refused by local Hydro officials, who say their policy only allows for 600-amp service to his company. I wonder what the Minister of Agriculture and Food thinks of this. Here we have an enterprising agricultural industry wanting to grow and provide more jobs, and now MCM has to factor into its decision to do this Ontario Hydro's restricting its ability to compete, not only by increasing its rates by 44% over the next three years but by not even allowing it the power it needs to run the expanded operation.

1710

It is this kind of conflicting message that needs to be addressed by this government. Also, there are ratepayers who are employers in the industrial sector, trying to compete and provide jobs that will allow people to fully participate in today's society. There are investors who will be considering places to locate, like the industrial parks in Port Hope, Cobourg, Colborne, Brighton or Campbellford. How can people like Frankie Liberty of the Diamond Triangle Economic Development Commission encourage them to come and invest here when they know that their power source is going to have to be subjected to increases that really have nothing to do with the cost of providing power?

A further concern for those of us in rural Ontario is the amendment that gives Hydro the power to provide incentives or loans to encourage the switch from electrical heat to non-electrical-based space heating systems. Given that electrical space heating is one of the most inefficient of home heating systems, I would concur with an effort to investigate alternatives. However, I would also suggest that this could be more appropriately dealt with and funded through the Minister of Energy.

I remember my late father, when the push was on 10 to 15 years ago for everybody to switch to electric heating, saying: "Don't believe that anything is going to be cheaper. As soon as they hook enough fish in on this, then up goes the cost and away we go." I wonder now, is this just another scheme, another revisitation of the same old story?

It would be safe to say that customers switching off electric heat will likely move to natural gas, which is a more environmentally and economically sound manner of heating, but I would remind this minister that for those with forced-air furnaces, it would be a cost of between $4,000 and $5,000, and for those without a forced-air furnace, it would be between $8,000 and $10,000 to convert. How much of the cost is Ontario Hydro going to ask its ratepayers to subsidize? I would ask the Minister of Energy, should Hydro ratepayers be responsible for subsidizing others to switch off electricity?

In our county of Northumberland, many ratepayers are not serviced by natural gas pipelines and therefore they do not have that option to switch from electricity to natural gas. Yet the government will be burdening them with rate increases to pay for these subsidies to others. While natural gas is currently an economically viable alternative, there is no guarantee that this will always be the case in encouraging people to switch off electricity-based heating.

All the issues surrounding gas, including pipeline capacity cost, reliability of delivery and direct purchase will become more important in developing such an incentive program. All the long-term implications must be considered. I would strongly suggest that this government work with Ontario Hydro and the gas companies to address the issues of communities like the small ones in my riding, like Warkworth, Garden Hill, Morganston, Gores Landing, Wooler and all the rural areas. What are they going to do? They do not have those pipelines and their costs will just bury them. They really need to look at all sides of this conservation issue of theirs before making a decision.

My colleagues the members for Ottawa South and Renfrew North have done an admirable job of outlining many more of the concerns that we in this party have with the bill. Perhaps I could just take a moment to touch on one that will affect every ratepayer, regardless of his ability to pay. Hydro rates indeed are skyrocketing at unprecedented levels. In 1991, we saw an increase of 8.6%. The 1992 rates announced by Hydro will see an increase of another 11.8% on the average, the highest annual increase in over 10 years. Just a couple of weeks ago it was indicated that hydro rates will increase 44% over the next three years.

Surely these amendments will only add fuel to the ever-increasing flames of hydro rates. How much more money can the ratepayers be asked to pay? What about those on fixed incomes like the many senior citizens in my riding? How are they going to be expected to cope with 44% increases? Will this government ensure that its payments to seniors reflect these types of increases?

In closing, I would urge this government to reconsider this Bill 118 in light of the ill-conceived ramifications it would have on many Ontarians. Let Hydro continue to manage our province's most valuable resource under its current mandate of supplying safe, reliable power at cost. Do not turn Ontario Hydro into a catch-all for this government's regional development agenda at the expense of its ratepayers. Lastly do not hide behind the regulatory process. Any future changes must be made with open and full debate in a democratic society here in this House.

Mr B. Murdoch: I would like to speak on Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act, on behalf of the Owen Sound PUC, the Meaford PUC, the villages of Chatsworth, Dundalk, Flesherton, Markdale, Neustadt, Shallow Lake, and the towns of Durham, Hanover and Thornbury, and the townships of Egremont and Normanby, and the rest of the rural people in Grey who have all asked me to assist them in their struggle against this legislation. They are totally opposed to this bill as they feel it threatens to destroy our long-standing tradition of Ontario's offering electrical power to the people at cost. They are afraid that hydro rates will now become simply a new source of tax revenue for this government.

Since the government has bailed out Elliot Lake and Kapuskasing, I am afraid that because of the new powers given to the ministry by allowing them to issue directives, not merely statements, they may well pass this huge cost on to Hydro's consumers. We have no guarantee this will not happen. We feel that government should provide these social safety nets if they wish to, not the ordinary people who need hydroelectric power to go about their daily lives. How many more taxes can our people bear? Now this government is threatening to deny people heat and light if they simply cannot pay more, and we believe that they will have to pay more.

My local PUCs also want to know, as does my caucus, what the long-term projections are in terms of supply and price for natural gas. We do not know. No one has shown us these. Do we have the pipeline facilities to get gas here from Alberta? There are a lot of questions which remain unanswered. But even if we had the answers, this would still be bad legislation. Hydro and our taxpayers should not be subsidizing other forms of energy. If people want to switch, they should not receive public assistance. We should keep a free market system.

My constituents feel that this government will now be able to issue policy directives unilaterally which will bypass the legislative process. I cannot help thinking that this is one more example of the contempt this government feels for those members of this House as it completely ignores the democratic process which we have cherished for years.

I agree with the municipalities in my area that ask that this government withdraw the portions of Bill 118 that deal with policy directives that would change the mandate of Ontario Hydro and force its consumers to bear the cost. They also ask that the government and Ontario Hydro not finance social assistance programs and other government initiatives unrelated to Ontario Hydro's mandate through the cost of power. This is dangerous legislation. It completely disregards the principle of democracy and it will cost the taxpayer dearly.

1720

I also have a letter which was sent to me from the Owen Sound PUC.

"On behalf of the Owen Sound Public Utilities Commission, I am writing to express our opposition to Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act. As you are aware, this bill is now undergoing second reading in the Legislature.

"Bill 118 threatens to destroy Ontario's long-cherished principle of power at cost by making electricity rates a new source of tax revenue for the provincial government.

"Under Bill 118, the provincial government would be able to issue policy directives that bypass the democratic legislative process, are binding on Ontario Hydro, and that could force Hydro to do things that are outside its current mandate—the provision of safe, reliable electricity. In addition, Bill 118 would force Ontario electricity consumers to pay for these policy directives through their rates. A good example is the recent $250-million Elliot Lake bailout. This is unacceptable.

"We also object to the sections of Bill 118 that permit Ontario Hydro to subsidize fuel substitution through electricity rates. This is unnecessary, as market forces alone are enough to encourage certain types of fuel switching. Private gas companies should not be subsidized from electricity costs.

"Bill 118 is flawed legislation that sets dangerous precedents and allows a new hidden tax grab by the provincial government.

"We look forward to your support in our fight to change Bill 118.

"Yours very truly, Harold Gard, general manager."

I also have a motion they sent me that the Owen Sound PUC passed. It was moved by O. L. Jackson, the mayor of Owen Sound, and seconded by W. C. Loughheed, a past mayor of Owen Sound:

"Whereas the government of Ontario has introduced Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act on June 5, 1991; and

"Whereas Bill 118 contains provisions that would permit the government of Ontario to issue binding policy directives to Ontario Hydro to change the mandate of Ontario Hydro and to finance the cost of government policy directives through the cost of power to municipal electric utilities; and

"Whereas Ontario Hydro has recently been forced to make an unnecessary $250-million expenditure associated with the legitimate renegotiation of uranium contracts and the associated community assistance package for Elliot Lake; and

"Whereas there is a growing concern that Ontario Hydro is becoming an instrument for the provincial government's social policies instead of being the provider of safe, reliable, sufficient electricity at cost; and

"Whereas municipal electric utility customers should not be financing the government's social assistance programs in their cost of power in the form of hidden taxation,

"Be it resolved that the Public Utilities Commission of the city of Owen Sound requests the province of Ontario to withdraw the sections of Bill 118 dealing with policy directives that would change the mandate of Ontario Hydro and force electricity customers to bear the costs of these directives in their rates; and

"Be it further resolved that the Public Utilities Commission of the city of Owen Sound requests the government of Ontario and Ontario Hydro to not finance social assistance and other government initiatives unrelated to Ontario Hydro's mandate through the cost of power and, further, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Premier of Ontario, the Minister of Energy, the chairman of Ontario Hydro, Mr Bill Murdoch, MPP and the Municipal Electric Association.

"I hereby certify that the above is a true copy of the resolution of the Public Utilities Commission of the city of Owen Sound passed at its meeting held on September 18, 1991."

It is signed by the general manager.

This is just one of many letters I have received from our public utilities commissions and electrical people in Grey county. They are certainly concerned about this bill and hope this government will change its mind.

Something else happened on October 3 in this House. I would like to read from Hansard a quote from the honourable member for Simcoe West. He stated: "Every year they have to bring in this big portable generator, which is an ungodly sight, at tremendous cost, to get us through the winter up there"—meaning up in Simcoe—"so that industries can continue to have power and so that I and folks at home can continue to turn on our lights and heat our homes."

At that time there was an unparliamentary word said and some people were called birdbrains. I realize maybe that was unparliamentary and the honourable member for Hamilton Mountain said he would withdraw those remarks. At that time the honourable member for Windsor-Riverside quipped in to say, "Why don't we sever it?" not understanding the real meaning of what is going on here in the House.

With remarks like that being said, it only shows that our socialist government does not understand rural Ontario. We do not happen to have gas lines running out into the country where people can heat with it, if that is what they want us to do. Some people only have electricity to heat their homes. They have no other way to do it. Like in so many other bills that our socialist friends want to pass, they do not understand rural Ontario. Until they find out what rural Ontario is all about—

Hon Mr Cooke: And you do?

Mr B. Murdoch: The Minister of Municipal Affairs says, "And you do." I hope I do and I understand maybe he does not at this time. Maybe through the years he will get to understand rural Ontario. Hopefully in his portfolio he does. Obviously at this point he does not when he can make remarks like he does here in the House. That is unfortunate, because birds also have brains over there. The members opposite have to realize that and keep it in mind. It is unfortunate that remarks like that come up. If they understood rural Ontario, we would be much better off and bills like this would not happen. I hope they can reconsider this bill, take a better look at it and come back with something else. They should try again.

Hon Mr Charlton: This is the third day that I have been in here listening to the debate on Bill 118 and I have to start by saying I have been thoroughly disgusted with the level of debate on this bill.

The members across the way have not even taken the time to learn from those who came before them, the members of their own parties, who worked for 15 years on what was originally the select committee on Ontario Hydro affairs and subsequently the select committee on energy. They listened on numerous occasions to the comments of the public utilities commissions across the province, and to the comments of Hydro and a range of other industrial-business groups and energy groups. We sat down and cross-examined evidence instead of just reading out in a rote way the letters that were sent to us.

The members of the Conservative Party and of the Liberal Party on that select committee unanimously supported the approach set out in Bill 118. I recommend to the members of the opposition to take the time to read both the select committee report from 1986 and the subsequent select committee report in 1989, and perhaps we can start to deal with some of the myths that are floating around in this debate. They are real myths.

I have heard a number of concerns expressed about power at cost and losing the concept of power at cost because of government social programs. The first and biggest social program ever foisted on Ontario Hydro by a government was that of the administration of William Grenville Davis in 1977 to the tune of a $600-million interest-free loan to the uranium mining companies in Elliot Lake, the very place I hear members complaining about us providing some assistance to in order to clean up the mess that has resulted from those decisions in the 1970s.

1730

Power at cost. What does "power at cost" mean? Power at cost means that Hydro produces power and charges the consumers of this province whatever the cost of that power is. Does it mean Hydro produces power for the consumers of this province that is the cheapest? No. Unfortunately that has not been Hydro's policy. Why? I will come to that in a minute. Hydro has been bound by the policy of power at cost virtually since its inception, but to Ontario Hydro, power at cost has not meant pursuing a least-cost strategy.

A number of people here today and in the last three days who have participated in this debate have talked about our competitiveness. They have talked about the energy rates and the increases that will happen over the next number of years and how those will impact on our competitiveness as a province. The decisions around what the member for Parkdale called the "strategy for uncompetitiveness" were decisions made in the 1960s by the Robarts administration. Those were the decisions that decided to use Ontario Hydro as an economic development tool to artificially create a nuclear industry in Ontario, an industry that did not exist.

The price increases occurring over the course of last year, this year and the two years following flow, as members well know, out of two basic problems that are occurring right now, but are a result of those strategic decisions made in the 1960s, strategic decisions to pursue the Candu system as our primary source of energy.

I say to the member for Parkdale, who was complaining throughout his speech about the government keeping secrets and not making announcements in the House, that the announcement was made a year ago April by the former Minister of Energy in the Liberal administration, when the 8.6% increase of this year was announced. The increases last year, this year, next year and in 1994 are increases that result from, first, the completion of the Darlington generating station, with in each of those years one reactor coming into service, and the costs of that one quarter of the Darlington system coming due and payable and being dumped into the rate base.

That is the first and primary cause of the significant price increases. The stability to which the member for Niagara Falls referred in her speech is simply a stability which happens at the end of that four-year process of dumping the capital cost of Darlington into the rate base. The stability results when we no longer have to dump $3 billion or $4 billion into the rate base in one shot.

The second major problem also flows out of decisions made in the 1960s by the Robarts administration. These are problems that relate to the operational difficulties being experienced at both Pickering and Bruce—nuclear stations, as members well know because it has been debated in this House a number of times, that were supposed to operate at 80% capacity over their lifetimes and that are now operating at about 50% capacity. Their lifetime average is falling all the time. Every time that operating capacity falls, the cost goes up and the price of energy goes up.

We could make the same mistakes again. I have heard a number of opposition members talk about how we are delaying or are going to delay the construction of the next nuclear plants that Hydro wants to build, and at the same time they are saying we have to make a commitment to eliminating Hydro's debt.

Hydro has a proposal before environmental assessment that is presently going on. That proposal calls for another $61 billion of borrowing by Ontario Hydro. How can we, as members of this Legislature, ask with any honesty that we allow Hydro to proceed to provide the safe and reliable power we want when we know that the nuclear facilities are not working properly, that we have not resolved the reliability problems, and that Hydro wants to increase the debt, which the opposition says is already too high, by $61 billion?

This debate is about serious study that was done by all three parties present in this Legislature. I close off my remarks by commending to the members of the opposition that they sit down and read the two reports of the select committee, reports that were signed and supported unanimously by the members of their parties.

Let's learn from those who came before us. Let's learn from those who took the time to understand what this game was all about and what we had to do over time to change it. Let's learn from the efforts our predecessors made to understand the mistakes of the past so we would not make them yet again today.

Mr Cordiano: I want to say to the member who just spoke that indeed conservation has a price, but certainly the price his government is proposing in order to bring about conservation is quite high for those on fixed incomes if we see rate increases of the magnitude the government is talking about, which will be somewhere in the neighbourhood of 44% over three years.

He can justify that in the name of conservation, but how can he justify that for people who are on fixed incomes or on low incomes? I quite frankly do not agree with him. The result and the consequences of what the government is planning—

Interjection.

Mr Cordiano: Obviously the member is talking about increases in costs which historically have accrued and are now coming due. That is fine; that is understood. We do understand that on this side of the House. But I want to say to the member that I think it is completely unfair when we have those kinds of across-the-board increases that will result from efforts being put forward by this government.

We know what the intention is. We know the chairman of Hydro intends to bring about those rate increases all in the name of conservation. Quite frankly, to bring about conservation by increasing rates is preposterous. It is going to destroy our economy even further and erode confidence even further.

One of the most important pillars of economic growth in this province was the fact that we had ample, relatively cheap power. The government can bring about conservation, and I think it can bring about greater efficiencies, but when it does so with rate increases, it has an effect on the other side of the equation, which says we are going to have a negative economic factor to deal with.

I think the government has to take that into account. They cannot simply say we are going to have conservation, increase rates for conservation, increase the cost of using automobiles for conservation, increase costs all across the board so people will rely less on the usage of their vehicles or on the usage of energy that is available to them.

We are in this country one of the biggest users of energy in the world, no doubt about that. But I think we have to keep in mind that you cannot bring about wholesale changes in a short period of time which have dramatic impacts on the economy. We are in a fragile state of affairs right now, and I do not think those people across the way really understand just how fragile it is and how much of a crisis we are in right now with respect to our economic future.

1740

I think we have to fight like hell to ensure that all the factors that go into making an economy more sound are in place and to structure the economy in such a way that we will have a future outlook that is brighter. If we do not do that, we are seriously going to jeopardize any kind of recovery, which will take, I believe, longer now than it was at first anticipated. None the less, we will have a recovery and it depends on what this government does to a great extent. They have to understand the impact of what they do.

When we talk about what is being proposed, I do not think Bill 118 is necessary to bring about conservation. There is no doubt about that. That may not be the central focus of this but, on the other hand, to provide power at a reasonable cost for people is not really the mandate that was initiated in the first place. I do not think that is going to go far enough in terms of protecting our future economic growth.

When the government of the day decides to change rates it can do so, and that is obviously the intention. I know the minister commented on this the other day. He said the intention of the bill is to fulfil the mandate of the government of the day. That is a wide-open mandate, I would say. The mandate should continue to be some provision for consumers to be certain of what future supply is going to be like and what cost factors should be considered when economic planning takes place. That is what we have had in the past and that is what we will fail to have in the future when this bill goes through.

Demand for hydro is increasing, not decreasing and, as I say, we are in a recession and perhaps the recovery is not as quick as we would have liked and, of course, that brings about conservation. Was it Arthur Dickenson, executive director of the Association of Major Power Consumers of Ontario, who said, and the minister would be familiar with this, "One way to get better efficiencies and demand down for hydro for energy is to get people out of business"?

That is exactly what we are going to do when we bring about rate increases of the magnitude that are being talked about here. We are going to further provide disincentive to people who are thinking of investing in this province. There is no doubt about that. People are flocking to the US by the hordes to shop and to invest. We know that is happening. This will just be another nail in the coffin which says to people, "Look, we are not going to have that advantage of providing you with an efficient, low-cost source of power." It is simply not going to be there.

Hon Mr Philip: Is Bourassa giving them an advantage?

Mr Cordiano: I do not know if Bourassa is giving them an advantage. I am sure he is going to try to give them an advantage, and I know that Quebec and other provinces in this country are going to try to attract investment into their provinces. That is the nature of things. If this government is going to compete with other jurisdictions, it has got to keep that in mind.

Other jurisdictions will continue to provide as much incentive for investors to locate in their province as possible. I do not think there is any doubt about that. If we fail to understand that we are in competition with other jurisdictions for investment, which this province depends on to a great extent, this government fails miserably in understanding how our economy functions.

I say to the minister, who is present, that she has to be concerned about what rate increases she does bring in for those industries that are largely dependent on a low-cost source of power.

I know the government across the way has made the argument many times that free trade has destroyed our economy and free trade has brought about real competitiveness in those industries which are unable to compete and have gone by the wayside. They have got to understand that this would further reduce the ability of those industries that are on the brink in terms of their ability to compete with other companies in their industries, other jurisdictions. I think they should keep that in mind.

I want to raise the issue with respect to Elliot Lake and the directive that was signed on June 6. We had some comment earlier about historical perspective, and I know there is some concern with respect to Elliot Lake recovering from the economic devastation that it faced. We all are in favour of that.

It is quite controversial in the sense that we do not want to make a community like Elliot Lake have further difficulties. But the problem with the directive that was signed is that Hydro provided $65 million through the Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corp, and that certainly is not within the mandate of Hydro. The fact of the matter is that when we look at the whole question of what happened in Elliot Lake, we see that it is not the best way to bring about economic diversification, and I agree with that.

Hon Mr Philip: What would you do?

Mr Cordiano: There are other things that could have been done. The fact is, the minister has done it.

Hon Mr Philip: Why didn't you do them?

Mr Cordiano: We did not have the crisis that the government faced just recently. We did not have that imminently on the horizon. It happened while they were the government. That is why we asked them to do something about it.

Hon Mr Philip: You had no idea it was coming?

The Acting Speaker (Mr Villeneuve): Order, please.

Mr Cordiano: That is fine. I am having an interesting dialogue, Mr Speaker.

The Acting Speaker: Could you please address your comments through the occupant of the chair. If the honourable minister wants to reply during the question and answer period, he is most welcome to. But the honourable member for Lawrence has the floor.

Mr Cordiano: Quite frankly, the issue was a difficult one. I do not want to say it is not. We had a situation where this had been ongoing, but I do not think the solution they brought forward was the correct one. We need to provide a direction, a policy for one-industry towns which we have been struggling for in this Legislature for quite some time over the years. Quite frankly, we simply we do not have the solution at this point in time.

This is a stopgap measure, but it sets a terrible precedent. In the future, it behooves this government to look at creating a policy which will look at one-industry towns and continue to search for the answer and continue to look for economic viability for a number of these communities.

To simply throw money at the problem without having a concrete plan is not the answer. It is not the best way to efficiently use those funds. I say to the members opposite that we have very scarce running resources. They are running a huge deficit, and those funds would be better used to develop a strategy which would be in effect for all of northern Ontario, for one-industry towns and for those communities which have suffered severe setbacks in the last little while.

We will be moving forward with this. There are a number of issues. I want to reiterate the fact that a 44% rate increase is not justified and cannot be justified over a short period of time. It will have serious implications for people on fixed incomes, serious implications for industries that need low-cost power. Those are devastating numbers for those companies in those industries which continue to be vulnerable and on the brink. I say to the government opposite, think carefully on that.

1750

Hon Mr Ferguson: I am pleased to see the interest the members of this House are showing in the amendments now before them. In my concluding remarks, I would like to remind members of the principles of the legislation and take the opportunity to respond to some of the more important points, however misrepresented at times, made during the debate.

We in Ontario are facing energy challenges. Without question, we must protect the environment while ensuring that the province continues to have a reliable supply of energy at reasonable prices. To meet these challenges, the government has announced new energy directions, the primary goal being, of course, to concentrate more of our resources on controlling growth in the demand for energy and to ensure we use energy efficiently.

Since last fall when we announced our new energy policy in the speech from the throne, we have been moving decisively to give effect to the new direction. Ontario Hydro now expects an additional 1,500 megawatts of peak power savings by the year 2000, on top of the 3,700 megawatts already identified in its demand-supply hearings. The total of 5,200 megawatts is equivalent to the capacity of one-and-a-half Darlington-type stations. Ontario Hydro has indicated that these new targets were made possible by the upcoming amendments to this act.

There is no doubt whatsoever that Ontario Hydro has a vital role to play in meeting public priorities, and we expect the provincial utility to work more closely with the government to achieve Ontario's energy goals. To make that possible, we have introduced the amendments to the Power Corporation Act, and honourable members will know that Ontario Hydro will be truly accountable to the people of Ontario for the first time in Ontario history.

When the former Minister of Energy opened debate on Bill 118, she indicated at the time that the government would be listening closely to what is being said. We have listened and we are continuing to listen. The minister also informed the House that the government would be responsive where appropriate, and we are responding.

There has been considerable concern and misunderstanding about the scope and nature of provisions in the bill regarding policy directives. For example, it has been suggested that the amendments would turn Ontario Hydro into a social agency. Concern has also been expressed about Ontario Hydro being used as an economic development tool. I want to remind the House that provisions relating to Ontario Hydro's participation in economic development programs were enacted in 1989 under the previous government. The amendments proposed by this government do not change the provision. Ontario Hydro's participation in Elliot Lake was governed by that provision and this government makes absolutely no apologies about Elliot Lake.

Ontario Hydro has a unique obligation to Elliot Lake in that area. As a statutory corporation and the only remaining purchaser of uranium from Elliot Lake, Ontario Hydro is fulfilling its responsibilities as a responsible corporate citizen by assisting the community to adjust to the winding down of its Elliot Lake contracts. The $250-million package is a cost to Ontario Hydro, but it is a cost to discharge its legal and moral obligations to get out of the uranium contracts that over the past 10 years have cost a $1.2-billion premium. If Ontario Hydro had not cancelled the Elliot Lake contracts, the pricetag would have been an additional $1.5-billion over the next decade, with corresponding increases in electricity rates.

In the longer term, the saving from Elliot Lake contracts and the benefits from buying low-priced uranium elsewhere will be reflected in electricity rates. Rates will be lower than they would have been if Ontario Hydro had continued to buy from Elliot Lake.

Nor are there any apologies for Ontario Hydro's commercial transaction on Smoky Falls, which has ensured an economic future for the town of Kapuskasing. Ontario Hydro entered into an agreement with Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co to purchase the Smoky Falls Generating Station. This is a commercial arrangement from which Ontario Hydro is obtaining a producing asset, a dam and a generating station. Ontario Hydro has also agreed, as part of that purchase price, to provide the new owners of the mill with power and power credits equal to the value of the output of the generating station, and this government has agreed to compensate Ontario Hydro for the cost of that power and power credits if Ontario Hydro is unable to obtain approval under the Environmental Assessment Act.

The member for Renfrew North suggested that the government's plans for the future of Kapuskasing have been put in jeopardy by Hydro's decision to suspend activity on future hydroelectric development in the Moose River basin. I would like to remind the House that Ontario Hydro's suspension applies only to activity beyond the Mattagami redevelopment project. It is the government's intention to provide for policy directives that will enable Ontario Hydro to work more effectively with government to meet public priorities. Ontario Hydro will not become a social agency, or as some people have said a welfare agency. The amendments will equip Ontario Hydro to play an increased role in the implementation of the government's new energy policies.

These New Energy Directions reflect the public priorities of the decade ahead, priorities that mean we must meet our increasing demand for energy with a balanced approach that takes full advantage of energy conservation and efficiency.

It is the government's intention to move changes to the bill during committee to address misunderstandings that have arisen. Reference has been made to press reports about the likelihood of a 44% increase in rates over two to three years, and this is a clear indication that electricity customers will be forced to pay the costs of Ontario Hydro's involvement in implementing government policy directives. Nothing is further from the truth.

Concern has been expressed about the effect of all this on the position of Ontario Hydro electricity rates compared to rates in other jurisdictions. The latest rate increase means an extra $7 on the average monthly bill of a residential consumer. This rate increase is really a result of decisions made by previous governments in the past. Darlington alone accounts for about one quarter of the increase this year, and customers will face additional increases when the rest of Darlington is brought into service. Moreover, they will be paying for the $13-billion cost of Darlington over the next 40 years. What was said was that the rate increases could be in double digits for the next two or three years. That is what was said, not a 44% increase. This, quite frankly, is the result of costly decisions made by previous governments.

Let me reiterate that when this debate opened we stated that the government would listen to opinions and concerns about the bill. We have done that. In particular, we have heard from the Municipal Electric Association, which we have met with on a number of occasions. We have met with a number of municipal electric utilities and environmental groups and we are seeking to respond to their concern. We will continue to listen as the legislative process unfolds.

I want to conclude by thanking the members of the opposition and the third party as well as my colleagues here for their comments on Bill 118. I would be happy to ensure that this bill proceeds to committee. Members should rest assured that I will not only be listening but hearing what is being said, and I will be responsive where appropriate.

The Acting Speaker: Mr Ferguson has moved second reading of Bill 118. Is it the pleasure of the House that the motion carry?

All those in favour will please say "aye."

All those opposed will please say "nay."

In my opinion the ayes have it.

Hon Mr Cooke: Mr Speaker, by unanimous consent, we would put off the vote until Monday, immediately following question period.

The Acting Speaker: Is there unanimous consent?

Agreed to.

Vote deferred.

Le vote est différé.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Hon Mr Cooke: Pursuant to standing order 53, I would like to indicate the business of the House for the coming week.

On Monday, October 21, Tuesday, October 22, and Wednesday, October 23, we will continue the adjourned second reading debate on Bill 83, Income Tax Amendment Act, followed by Bill 84, Tobacco Tax Amendment Act, Bill 85, Fuel Tax Amendment Act, Bill 86, Gasoline Tax Amendment Act, and Bill 130, Retail Sales Tax Amendment Act.

On Thursday, October 24, in the morning we will deal with private members' business: ballot item 39 standing in the name of the member for Oakville South and ballot item 40 standing in the name of the member for Kitchener-Wilmot. In the afternoon we will deal with a new motion of interim supply for the period commencing November 1, 1991, and ending December 31, 1991.

LEGISLATIVE PAGES

The Acting Speaker: Just prior to breaking this evening, may I add our particular and special thanks to the departing legislative pages for work very well done over the past number of weeks. We hope they have a very good fall, winter and spring season. Will ye no return to visit us again? To all the pages, thank you.

The House adjourned at 1802.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND)

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND)
Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Community and Social Services, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/ Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND)
Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Orillia L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND)
Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND)
PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/ Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/ Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/ Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND)
Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/ Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/ Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement

Grandmaitre, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

- Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)
- Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général
- Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
- Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)
- Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement
- Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur
- Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications
- Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)
- Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)
- Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires
- Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie
- Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises
- Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu
- Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)
- Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)
- Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
- Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)
- Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND) Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie
- Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités
- Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND) Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail
- MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on regulations and private bills/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des règlements et projets de loi privés
- Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales
- Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales
- Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
- Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines
- Martin, Tony (Sault Ste Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation
- Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement
- McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)
- McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)
- McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
- McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)
- Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général
- Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
- Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice
- Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)
- Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail
- North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs
- O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
- Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)
- O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)
- O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition
- Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement
- Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle
- Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)

Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General, Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général, ministre des Services correctionnels

Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)

Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des comptes publics

Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND) Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones

Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre, ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales

Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)

Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)

Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux

Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)

Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)

Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet, Minister of Education/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, ministre de l'Éducation

Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)

Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)

Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)

Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)

Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)

Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques

Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West/-Ouest ND)

Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)

Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)

Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie

Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu

Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND) Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation; Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources

Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé

White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND) Chair, standing committee on regulations and private bills/Président du Comité permanent des règlements et projets de loi privés

Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister of Government Services/Ministre des Services gouvernementaux

Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND) PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications

Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)

Winninger, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires autochtones

Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des Services correctionnels

Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)

Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles

Ziamba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND) Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli, Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills, Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan, Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/

Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland

Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison, Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti, Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott, David Turnbull

Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford, Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen, Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil, Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway, W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson, Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson, Drummond White

Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/

Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Drummond White

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher, Leo Jordan, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Jim Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters

Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary, George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp, Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano

Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck, Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod, Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/

Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson

Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves, Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski, Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner

Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan

Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini, Kimble Sutherland

Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Thursday 17 October 1991

Private members' public business

Compensation for vaccine-related injury, resolution 27	2965
Mr Frankford	2965
Mrs Caplan	2966
Mr McLean	2967
Mr Winninger	2968
Mr Wessenger	2969
Mr J. Wilson	2969
Ms Carter	2970
Mr Jackson	2970
Mr Frankford	2971
Agreed to	2979
Funding of growth boards, resolution 28	2972
Mr Sola	2972
Mr McLean	2973
Mr Martin	2974
Mr Curling	2975
Mrs Marland	2975
Mr Fletcher	2976
Mr McClelland	2976
Mrs MacKinnon	2977
Mrs Caplan	2977
Mr O'Connor	2978
Mr Sola	2979
Negatived	2979

Members' statements

TVOntario	2980
Mr B. Murdoch
Adult literacy	2980
Mr Winninger
Land registration	2980
Mr McGuinty
Waste management	2981
Mr McLean
Canadian Women's Army Corps	2981
Mr Mills
Environmental protection	2981
Mr McClelland
Health insurance	2981
Mr Jackson
Non-profit housing	2982
Mr Dadamo
Investigation into release of documents	2982
The Speaker
Persons Day	2983
Mrs Boyd
Ms Poole
Mrs Marland

Investigation into release of documents	2984
Mr Bradley
Mr Stockwell
Mr Elston
Mr Cooke
Correction	2986
Mr McGuinty
Investigation into release of documents	2986
Mr Phillips

Statements by the ministry

Teachers' pension legislation	2986
Mr Silipo

Responses

Teachers' pension legislation	2987
Mrs Y. O'Neill
Mr Bradley
Mr Jackson
Land registration	2988
Mr Tilson
Mr McClelland
Mr Drainville
Visitors	2989
The Speaker
Mr Elston

Oral questions

Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	2989
Mr Elston
Mr Ferguson
Labour relations	2990
Mr Offer
Mr Mackenzie
Mr Harris
Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	2991
Mr Harris
Mr Ferguson
Elevator inspections	2992
Mr Chiarelli
Ms Churley
Land registration	2993
Mr Tilson
Ms Churley
Government travel expenditures	2994
Mr Bisson
Mr Silipo
Post-secondary education	2994
Mr Daigeler
Mr Allen
Retail store hours	2995
Mr Carr
Mr Pilkey

Remarks by appointee to police services board	2995
Mr Runciman
Mr Pilkey
Consumer protection	2996
Mr Cordiano
Ms Churley
Committee meeting	2997
Mr Eves
Mr Cooke
Wetlands	2997
Mr Wiseman
Mr Wildman
Legislative pages	2998
The Speaker
Committee meeting	2998
Mr Drainville
Mr Harnick
Legislative research service	2998
Mr Chiarelli

Petitions

Oath of allegiance	2999
Ms Poole
Winchester District Memorial Hospital	2999
Mr Villeneuve
Oath of allegiance	2999
Mr J. Wilson

First readings

Teachers' Pension Statute Law Amendment Act, 1991,
Bill 140	2999
Mr Silipo
Agreed to	2999

Second readings

Power Corporation Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 118 .	2999
Mr Ruprecht	2999
Mr Villeneuve	3004
Mrs Grier	3005
Ms Carter	3006
Mrs Fawcett	3007
Mr B. Murdoch	3008
Mr Charlton	3010
Mr Cordiano	3011
Mr Ferguson	3012
Vote deferred	3014

Business of the House	3014
Mr Cooke

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities
Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le jeudi 17 octobre 1991

Déclarations des députés

Bilinguisme en Ontario	2980
M. Grandmaître

Première lecture

Loi de 1991 modifiant des lois en ce qui concerne le régime
de retraite des enseignants, projet de loi 140 . . .	2999
M. Silipo
Adoptée	2999

Deuxième lecture

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur la Société de l'électricité, projet de loi 118	2999
Vote différé	3014

Listes des députés

Les députés et leurs responsabilités
Comités de l'Assemblée législative

CA2 ON
XI
-D23

71 1991

71 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Monday 21 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le lundi 21 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Monday 21 October 1991

The House met at 1330.

Prayers.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

POACHING

Mr Brown: I have before me an article which appeared in the Sault Star. It says that according to a Ministry of Natural Resources staff person in Lake Superior Provincial Park, which happens to be located between Sault Ste Marie and Wawa, regulations are not being enforced during the hunting season. Rather than the patrolling and enforcement work, this person is being told to do maintenance work. Last week this employee, who should be lauded for his initiative, investigated on his own time a moose kill in the park. A moose calf had been poached.

While MNR has done some spot checks, this is just not enough. Poaching is a difficult and terrible problem, but it is avoidable. Let's make sure our competent MNR employees are allowed to do the work they are trained to do and should be doing. Poaching is a crime, and its seriousness is amplified when it occurs in our provincial parks.

CANADIAN FOSTER FAMILY WEEK

Mr Johnson: I have an important announcement I am sure everyone will want to hear today. On behalf of the government and all the members of this House, I would like to join the Canadian Foster Family Association in declaring this week, October 20 to 26, Canadian Foster Family Week.

Foster Family Week gives us an opportunity to recognize and celebrate the contribution of approximately 5,000 foster families in this province who provide safe and caring homes for more than 19,000 children every year.

I take great pleasure in declaring this week because my parents, June and Murney Johnson, were foster parents to approximately 30 children. From the time I was nine years old until I was 19, my parents shared our home with up to four children at a time. It was a positive experience for all of us, and I was always sad when the time came for my foster brothers and sisters to leave us. I have had the opportunity to see at first hand what an important role foster parents can play in the development of a child and the significant work they do in providing a secure place for children to grow up in.

The theme of this year's Foster Family Week is, Wanted: Someone to Hug and Bug. I have pins with this slogan for all the members of the House.

I am proud to have been part of a foster family and very pleased to take this opportunity to congratulate foster parents throughout Ontario and tell them they are truly appreciated, not just this week but every week.

HEALTH SERVICES IN BRAMPTON

Mr McClelland: Some months ago in question period I asked the Minister of Health whether she would respond about the status of the Chinguacousy Health Services

Board proposal for a health care facility in Brampton North. I had put a question to her predecessor, who then undertook to look into the matter and advise the House in terms of the status of that project. I was not only dismayed but quite frankly shocked that the current minister was not aware of what was taking place with that project. However the minister indicated to me at that time that she would report back to me in the House in terms of the status of the Chinguacousy Health Services Board project.

Since that time we have had some good news. The good news is that there is a new project under way in Brampton that will bring some 70,000 new people into the community in the next three and one half years; 42 months from now we will have 70,000 additional people. Our population will be approaching 344,000, and we remain with one hospital in the community.

The Chinguacousy Health Services Board has had a project in place on the books for some time. A tremendous amount of work has gone into this. In the spring of 1990 it was at the point of going to architectural drawings, so it was right at the threshold of being under way.

The people of my community are concerned about what we are going to have in terms of the provision of health care. It is an essential ingredient for the quality of life, the things that people deserve, not only for the present population but for those additional 70,000 people who will move into that community. I urge the Minister of Health today to report back to me as soon as possible in terms of the status of this very important project.

WATER QUALITY

Mr Cousens: The government has not called a by-election in Brant-Haldimand and the people are not being represented, so I would like to speak out on their behalf in this House. My concern is with a spring located on the west side of Highway 24 between Cambridge and the North Dumfries township cutoff for Glen Morris.

For decades this spring has been an important water source, often the major water source for many families in the Brant-Haldimand area. Now, because of some apparently conflicting reports on the state of that spring water, this government is playing games with residents in that area. First this government was going to improve the site of the spring, then it said it would shut it down and now it says it will look at it again.

We are all concerned with the safety of drinking water in this province, but as long as this spring remains an important water supply for families, this government must stop splashing around and start making decisions. I call on the government to investigate and clean up the source of any contamination of the spring instead of threatening to shut it down, in effect trying to tell the residents of that area to dry up.

We have a community that is not represented in the House. It is time, since this government is not going to respond to their needs. The government ignores them. Maybe then we can have someone sitting on this side of the House for the Progressive Conservatives to show them how it is going to be done.

1340

SENIORS INFORMATION HANDBOOK

Mr Malkowski: I am very proud to rise today and inform the House that the S. Walter Stewart library of East York hosted a reception for the launch of our East York Seniors Information Handbook. The honourable Minister of Citizenship and the member for Lambton were among the guests there.

The seniors' community in East York is second only to that in Victoria. The seniors' handbook will be of help to the seniors in our community because it provides general community information, housing information and other resources necessary to find the services they require. It is accessible by being done in large print and easy for the seniors to read. We have printed 1,500, which are ready for distribution.

The member for Lambton was there because she is our oldest MPP in the House and an important role model for our senior citizens. She gave a wonderful speech, which was very inspirational to our seniors.

The handbook, which I have right here, is full of information. It can be received through my constituency office.

NEW ENTERPRISE STORE

Mr Bradley: In an increasingly global arena, industrial age standards of conducting business and exporting resources are no longer enough for a country to maintain its standard of wealth. Enterprise, innovation and adaptation to change and technology are what make a country thrive and able to compete. Canada has the potential to join the top 10 industrialized nations. This can be achieved if we provide Canadians with the opportunities and means to be enterprising and self-reliant.

Thanks to leaders in the Niagara region, where unemployment is among the highest in the province, the opportunities now exist. Considered a haven by entrepreneurs—80% of the region's businesses employ less than 50 people—the Niagara region is the perfect business breeding ground. The Lincoln County Board of Education and the Burgoyne Centre for Entrepreneurship are proud to introduce the first venture of its kind in Canada to launch entrepreneurial initiatives. It is called the New Enterprise Store. An actual storefront property in the business district of St Catharines, the New Enterprise Store is where fledgling entrepreneurs have a chance to turn their vision into reality.

With the assistance of the Lincoln County Board of Education, the assistance of Brock University through the Burgoyne Centre for Entrepreneurship and the assistance and enthusiasm of so many volunteers and professionals, we now have that opportunity in St Catharines which has been missing for so long. Thanks to Eugene Luchzkiw, formerly of Governor Simcoe Secondary School and now at Brock University, young entrepreneurs have a chance in Ontario.

AFFORDABLE HOUSING

Mrs Marland: This government has repeatedly voiced its commitment to provide affordable housing. However, its support seems to be misguided. Since September 1990, this government has directed its efforts in supplying affordable housing solely to the construction of non-profit housing.

They have sadly forgotten about those who desire to own their own homes. Affordable housing should not apply only to those who live in apartments. It also includes those who are capable of affording homes of their own. Yet the capability of those who wish to own is seriously impeded by the cost of exorbitant development charges which in some municipalities are currently being tacked on to the cost of a new home. New home owners in municipalities across the province are bearing the cost of municipal development and, as a result, fewer and fewer people can afford to purchase a new home.

These costs are the result of the Development Charges Act, which allows a municipality to pass a bylaw which provides for an increase of 5% in the development charges. This means that in a municipality which has enacted a bylaw, at least 23% of the cost of a new $165,000 home comprises purchasing taxes.

The reality is that the ability to purchase one's own home is becoming more and more unattainable due to these development charges. Yet there is still hope. This government has it in its power to extend the November 23 deadline by which the province has directed all municipalities to enact development charge bylaws. Instead of enforcing this deadline, the province would be better served by opening lines of communication between developers and municipalities to seek better ways of providing affordable housing.

COMMUNITY SERVICES

Mr Frankford: In my riding of Scarborough East, residents are very concerned about security and safety on the streets. Anti-social uses like prostitution and drug offences are understandably most distressing to people who live in affected areas.

Solving these problems requires short- and long-term solutions. Policing is where it starts and I am pleased to inform the House that there has been a concerted response by our local police division. It has been made aware of the local needs and has been providing extra resources. Concerns and suggestions have been brought to the attention of management and security staff of Metropolitan Toronto Housing locally.

Community organizations are of great importance in combating crime and making people feel more secure. The feeling of residents that they are not in control of their streets has led to several community meetings. From these meetings has developed the formation of the Scarborough Neighbourhood Action Committee, which will bring people together from all over the area to identify problems and find solutions.

For the long term, we will not only require policing but also improvements in housing, employment, traffic and social services. I believe that innovative approaches to urban planning can make an enormous difference. It will require co-operation from all four levels of government. I am pleased to see vigorous community organizations starting to stimulate action.

VISITORS

The Speaker: I invite members to welcome to our midst this afternoon, seated in the Speaker's gallery, a delegation of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, United Kingdom branch, headed by the Honourable Robert Boscawen and accompanied by Messrs James Cran, James Dunnachie, Tony Favell, Alun Michael and Lord Taylor of Gryse. Would you please welcome them to our midst this afternoon.

LEGISLATIVE PAGES

The Speaker: I would also invite members to welcome to our midst our newest group of pages. They are:

Ben Alton, Oakville South; Jay Banerjee, Scarborough East; Odelia Bay, Wilson Heights; Sara Bragg, Durham East; Lauren Clarke, Kitchener; Michael DaCosta, Mississauga North; Elyssa Elton, St George-St David; Samantha Farmer, York Centre; Cindy Gangaram, Brampton South; Sara Henderson-Neale, Willowdale; Leanne Hughes, Niagara South; Ilia Karatsoreos, Yorkview; Steve Kuhn, Waterloo North; Jason Lac, Guelph; Janye Lee, Don Mills; Lydia Lovric, Hamilton Mountain; Wesley Netchay, Lincoln; Siobhan Quinn, St Catharines; Justin Thomas, Oakwood; Ben Tinholt, Wellington; John Trueman, York North; Andrew Udit, Mississauga East; Leo Van Wyk, Durham Centre; and Emily Wong, Markham.

Please welcome them to our chamber and to our assembly.

Hon Mr Rae: I believe there has been some discussion about unanimous consent with respect to the commemoration of a significant anniversary in the life of one of our members.

Agreed to.

MEMBER'S ANNIVERSARY

DATE ANNIVERSAIRE D'UN DÉPUTÉ

Hon Mr Rae: As the song almost says, it was 20 years ago today that the Deputy Premier and Treasurer was elected to the Legislature. A number of us, including the member for St Catharines—who I can tell his colleagues spoke with extraordinary effectiveness and eloquence; indeed, I have rarely heard him speak with such trenchancy and effectiveness. Certainly there was a large crowd of people there to hear him, as well as the former Deputy Premier and former member for St Catharines-Brock, Mr Welch, who spoke on behalf of the Conservative Party at a very enjoyable occasion. There were a number of other speakers, I might add, who spoke on an occasion in Sudbury where we had an opportunity to commemorate this event.

I simply want to say today, and I know that I speak not only for members of my own party, that the member for Nickel Belt has contributed as much to the public life of this province as any of us and as anyone. He has shown enormous integrity, great good humour and a capacity for work—work cheerfully performed, I might add. That is, I think, a symbol to all of us.

The Deputy Premier and I have a very close working relationship.

1350

Mr Scott: I thought you were going to say an on-again, off-again policy.

Hon Mr Rae: Well, the Deputy Premier did not support my coming here in the first place, I might point out, but I would say to members that once I got here he proved to be very supportive. So I appreciate that and I know that is a view that will be shared by others.

I want to say that the Deputy Premier and Treasurer contributed enormously to the life of this place when he was a member of the third party and when he was a member of the official opposition, and does so now that he is a member of the government. His capacity for hard work, his effectiveness, his integrity, his commitment to the good of the public life of the province are, I think, something shared by every member. I can only say to the Treasurer that I hope he has 20 more good years as we celebrate this halfway point in his public life as a member of the Legislature of Ontario.

Le député de Nickel Belt a fait une contribution énorme à la vie publique de la province. Il a servi dans le troisième parti, dans l'opposition officielle et maintenant dans le gouvernement toujours avec l'intégrité, la bonne humeur et le bon sens que nous associons tous avec la personnalité du député de Nickel Belt. Nous célébrons cette journée, ce 20^e anniversaire, avec un sens de tradition, de fraternité et de sororité dans la Chambre aujourd'hui.

Mr Bradley: It is, as everyone always says, indeed a pleasure for me to be able to pay tribute to the member for Nickel Belt on this the occasion of his 20th anniversary of election to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. He is an individual who has had not simply a long career; there are a lot of people who have long careers, I suppose, in various occupations. The member for Nickel Belt has had both a long and a distinguished career and will have one for certainly a number of years yet to come.

One of the things I think members of the Legislature have to understand—and I am going to depart from the normal practice of simply referring to his riding, if I may—about Floyd Laughren is the fact that he is an individual who comes from modest roots, and most important has not forgotten those modest roots. There are many people who climb the ladder politically or in business or in anything where they gain a good deal of fame, and those people often forget the people they started out with and their own roots. The member for Nickel Belt is one person who, whether we disagree or agree with him on any specific issue, has not forgotten those principles and has not forgotten those roots.

Indeed, he is one member of the New Democratic Party whom I have always looked to as a real New Democrat, as a person who is never afraid to be called a socialist, as a person who was a member of the Waffle wing of the NDP at one time, the radical wing of the New Democratic Party, and one who, I suspect, in his heart of hearts, as the Premier always says, still believes in the principles he enunciated at NDP conventions over the years as he and his fellow travellers on the left wing of the New Democratic Party put forward their policies for consideration.

I know we can expect to see International Nickel, now known as Inco, as part of the government of Ontario. It will be nationalized in the lifetime of this particular member for Nickel Belt. I know I will be able to drive to Sudbury, my old home town, on a four-lane highway up Highway 69 or Highway 17. I know that many of the things he set out to do in his career he will certainly do.

I guess the thing that most of us on this side, and on all sides, like about Floyd Laughren is that to put it in a rather trite way, I suppose, what you see is what you get. He is a genuine individual. He is not a pretentious individual. He is one who is sincere in putting across his point of view in this House, but who can also do it with a good sense of humour.

One serious point: I know it will not embarrass the member for Nickel Belt, but I think it worthy of saying because in politics this happens to many people. I saw an incident surrounding his wonderful dinner in Sudbury on October 4, one which kept me away from the opening of the National Hockey League season simply to attend. There was one bit of cloud surrounding it. I do not wish to be unkind today, but the member was being criticized by some people because of the location of this particular dinner. It was not located at the United Steelworkers' hall in Sudbury; it was located instead at the Caruso Club.

The reason I think it is worthy of mention is that I find it ironic and unfair, because anybody who knows Floyd Laughren, the member for Nickel Belt and the Treasurer of this province, an opposition critic who was very vociferous over the years, knows that Floyd Laughren has done as much as any member of the Ontario Legislature to defend the interests of people in the mining industry, in the smelting industry, in the milling industry and in the refining industry of Ontario. I know it did not represent the viewpoint of everyone within that particular organization, but I thought it unfair that he should be the target of any criticism over this, considering his long record of defence of the issues that they consider to be important in the Legislative Assembly and to them.

At the end of his political career, whenever he chooses that to be or whenever the electorate chooses that to be, he will be able to look back with some satisfaction and pride, I think, on the fact that he has left his mark on the province of Ontario. Longevity does not ensure that one is remembered, but a record and a set of principles such as the member for Nickel Belt has demonstrated over the years will certainly do so.

Mr Sterling: I am going to be brief this afternoon. Floyd and I learned a long time ago never to say, "I'm going to be short this afternoon."

I have enjoyed the friendship of Floyd Laughren for some period of time. Before Floyd was Treasurer, before I was elected to this place in 1977, I came to know Floyd through his sister-in-law, who lived down the street from me in Manotick.

During that period of time before I was elected to this place, I was one of three subscribers in Ontario to Hansard of the Legislative Assembly. During that period of time, because of the acquaintance of Floyd Laughren, who was a member of this Legislature, I would happen to look through Hansard from week to week to examine what Floyd had said or not said. I can remember remarking to his sister-in-law, I think in 1975 or 1976: "Where is Floyd? I haven't read any speeches that he has made in the Legislature over the past weeks, months, six months." I can remember Floyd meeting me some six or seven or eight months later at a social event down the street, and he was absolutely shocked that anybody would have any idea how often he spoke in this place.

Floyd Laughren came from humble beginnings. He was born in Shawville, Quebec, just up the Ottawa Valley and across the Ottawa River. His beginnings were not unlike my beginnings. I believe he was perhaps brought up in circumstances which were more difficult than mine but not unlike mine. It has always amazed me how two individuals, probably with the exact same goals in terms of what they strive for in the end, can end up so differently in terms of the ends of the political spectrum that they find themselves on.

1400

I have from time to time talked to Floyd over the last 14, 15 or 17 years. I have shared with him and he has shared with me his enthusiasm for the legislative chamber over that period of time. As I and many members of this Legislature who have had the privilege of being here for a longer period of time find—and there seem to be fewer and fewer of us—we go through periods which are high and periods which are low. I am happy that Floyd has been able to withstand those periods when the achievements here seemed to be few and far between and the discouragements were many. Those times come to all of us as legislators, and we should learn from Floyd's tenacity and his dedication to the political process in coming to where he is now.

Of course Floyd, like all politicians, has been ambitious. Now the Premier has ensured he has no political future by making him the Treasurer of this province.

My party wishes him all the health and happiness he can have. When the economic winds change in this province, he should just hope that they are extremely strong, because in a strong wind, even turkeys can fly.

Hon Mr Laughren: That is more like what I have grown to expect around this place.

I will speak very briefly in response and thank the members for their kind words. The Premier is quite right when he indicates that I did not support his being the leader of this party. I supported another candidate for the leadership, but when he got here and I found out that he and I both had been born in log residences, I realized that perhaps we had more in common than I realized. Mine was a cabin, his was an embassy, but so what? We actually have gotten along very well since then.

The remarks today of the member for St Catharines are a lot different from his remarks in Sudbury, at which point he called me something awful. I want to thank him for his attendance at that roast. I appreciated that very much.

To the member for Carleton, I too remember meeting him a number of years ago. I remember I did not realize then how unusual it was—I just thought it was strange—that his lawn always had an NDP sign on it. It was only after he became an elected member that he put one of his signs up as well.

It has indeed been 20 years to the day. There is one thing I want to assure members opposite: Had I spent my entire political career in opposition, I would not have regarded them as wasted years, so take heart. I did enjoy my years in opposition, although I can say that the challenge of being here and trying to fly in a strong wind when the economic winds are blowing against us is difficult indeed but I have enjoyed it very much.

As far as Inco goes, I have always believed there is a good future for Inco in this province. I want to dissociate myself from the comments others have made that if I ever got the chance I would nationalize Inco and call it the People's International Nickel Co, or PINKO for short. That is simply not the truth. That was a rumour started by the former member for Sudbury East, as I recall.

I want to thank the members for their comments. I can remember sitting on the other side and squirming when people would make comments about Bob Nixon's years here. I always swore to myself that I never wanted to be the dean of the Legislature, but it happens anyway.

ORAL QUESTIONS

SALARY OF ONTARIO HYDRO CHAIRMAN

Mr Conway: My question is for the leader of the government. Later today this assembly will be asked to pass judgement on second reading of the New Democratic Party's hydro policy incorporated in Bill 118. There are some questions I would like to ask the Premier on behalf of at least my constituents concerning aspects of this bill and the policy. Some of these questions are ones we have had an opportunity to discuss earlier in this session.

My constituents still want to know whether Marc Eliesen, the Premier's friend and appointee as chairman and chief executive officer of Ontario Hydro, which appointment was made by the Premier earlier this year, will be paid retroactively to that date of appointment in June 1991 a salary in the range of $400,000 to $500,000.

Hon Mr Rae: I can only say to the honourable member that I understand the second reading debate will conclude today. The bill is then being referred for consideration with respect to amendments and discussion of amendments.

Mr Mahoney: So it is already carried.

Hon Mr Rae: No, not at all.

Hon Mr Mackenzie: It is going out for public hearings.

Hon Mr Rae: It is going out for public hearings, and there will be ample opportunity there to consider questions of amendments to the bill or questions surrounding the overall administration of Ontario Hydro.

I think the member is familiar with the situation as it relates to the decision of the Hydro board. The Hydro board has made a recommendation with respect to Mr Eliesen's compensation. That matter is now under review in the form of being referred in general, along with all the other salaries, to the Ontario Energy Board. As well, I think it is fair to say that the general question would also be subject to discussion in the committee and at public hearings.

The Speaker: Would the Premier conclude his response, please.

Hon Mr Rae: I think that is the clearest possible first answer I can give to the member for Renfrew North.

Mr Conway: When the government announced its hydro policy some four or five months ago, it said that the hallmark of that policy would be openness and accountability. I think we all applaud that. Nothing could be clearer than that the man to whom the ultimate responsibility attaches in this matter of the remuneration of the chairman and chief executive officer of Ontario Hydro is none other than the Premier himself.

I repeat, as the leader of the government, as the architect of this policy of openness and accountability with respect to Ontario Hydro, will the Premier, as the leader of the government, confirm or deny that his friend and associate and nominee to the chairmanship and CEO position at Ontario Hydro, Mr Marc Eliesen, will be paid retroactively to the date of appointment in June 1991 the reported salary of in excess of $400,000?

Hon Mr Rae: With great respect to my friend the member for Renfrew North, it would be entirely inappropriate for me to prejudge what the final legislation will look like after it has been considered by committee—if one wants to have a process where the committee process is working, it seems to me that has to be considered—or to prejudge in any way, shape or form the discussions at the Ontario Energy Board. We have asked for a review in those two areas and I think it would be wrong for me to prejudge either of those two things.

Mr Conway: I respectfully submit to my friend the Premier that it is not a matter of prejudging anything; it is not a matter of reviewing anything. We all accept that the buck stops on his desk, and the Power Corporation Act makes it plain that it is his job and the responsibility of the cabinet, of which the Premier is the leader.

So very simply, what were the terms and conditions of the appointment of his good friend, that well known NDP apparatchik, Mr Eliesen, to the chairmanship of Ontario Hydro? I do not need, nor do I want, the OEB view on this. The people of Ontario have elected the Premier to make those decisions. He has the right and the responsibility. What has he decided?

My constituents are looking at these rate increases, now rumoured to be over 45% for the next three years. The salary is in excess of $400,000, triple what Mr Eliesen was receiving as deputy, and there are reports that he has asked for and may very well get a pension benefit of some 75% of his salary base after six years. The farmers and loggers of Renfrew County are appalled to think that could happen, and they want me to ask the Premier what he decided when he appointed this man, accepting that it is his ultimate responsibility to make that decision.

1410

Hon Mr Rae: Let me answer that question in as clear a tone as I possibly can. I do not think the member's characterization of Mr Eliesen is a fair one, but I do not expect it to be a fair one. I do not expect that.

What were the terms and conditions? There were no terms and conditions, either considered by cabinet or discussed by cabinet, other than the fact that Mr Eliesen's appointment took place with the understanding that his salary would be what it is today as we speak, which is that of a deputy minister, and that we would ask the Ontario Hydro board and the board of directors to consider compensation. That is the form of the amendment that was put forward in the Power Corporation Act.

When that figure came out, I think it is fair to say that I said and a number of people said that it seemed to be high. It was the one that was deemed appropriate by the Ontario Hydro board. We have asked for a review of that judgement and we continue to seek that review.

I repeat to the honourable member, rhetoric aside, that there is now the question of the matter going to committee and of the review to the Ontario Energy Board. These are the reviews that are taking place and I want to say to the honourable member that there were no other terms or conditions. There were no other discussions with respect to Mr Eliesen's salary that were held either by me or by members of cabinet. That is the beginning and that is the end of it and that is the full story.

POLICE SERVICES

Mr Sorbara: My question is of the Solicitor General. I just want to say by way of preamble to the Solicitor General and his colleagues wearing orange flowers today that if they were not paying so much attention to British Columbia and Saskatchewan, they would be wearing not orange flowers but black armbands.

I want to tell the Solicitor General that this has been one of the most violent weekends in the history of this province. On Sunday morning, two young men were shot to death in Metropolitan Toronto. A shopkeeper was murdered while he was making a deposit of some $1,000 at a night depository. Two grandparents and one grandchild were murdered in their homes in Chatham. This has sent a shiver of terror among the people of this province.

The murder toll in Metro has risen to some 70, nearly double what it was last year, and it shows no sign of stopping, yet the Solicitor General muddles around trying to defend the abolition of the oath. He equivocates and dallies with the political rights of police officers. We are waiting interminably for his amendments to a Sunday shopping bill. He has not even remembered that his primary responsibility in Ontario is for the safety and security of communities.

While in opposition, these members were the outspoken advocates of reforms that would deal with what they referred to as murder and carnage in the workplace. We have murders of untold proportions on our streets. I ask the Solicitor General, what does he have to say to the parents and the relatives of these victims and what does he have to say to the residents of Ontario, who would prefer not to live their lives in fear?

Hon Mr Pilkey: What the Solicitor General would have to say to the parents and relatives and friends of any person who has been affected by violence and unnecessary crime is that we would extend our sympathy and concern to them in those very trying circumstances, circumstances which none of us appreciate, nor do I think they are circumstances that should be the subject of political motivation either. Quite frankly, I think that reaches a level of questioning that is not very desirable.

In terms of the policing community, I have every confidence and respect in the Ontario Provincial Police, the RCMP and our local police officers, all of whom work on a day-to-day basis to serve and protect the people of this province and indeed the people across this country. We continue to try to implement new circumstances, whether it be through community policing, through additional employment equity on our police forces, sexual assault initiatives, race relations and other programs, all of which try to mitigate these kinds of difficulties, although I must say, notwithstanding any programs this or any other government in this country or this world brings forward, they cannot at all times stop senseless acts of violence.

Mr Sorbara: I will just tell the Solicitor General that if the now Premier had had to listen to that answer in opposition, he would have gone through the roof. This has nothing to do with employment equity; it has nothing to do with race relations; it has to do with the Solicitor General's responsibility for policing in our communities.

While the Solicitor General has just equivocated on this issue, his friend the member for Rainy River, the Attorney General of this province, in a press release was bragging about how much money his ministry had saved by not prosecuting people who are accused of crimes in this province. I quote from a press release from Friday. The Attorney General notes:

"Cancelled court appearances have saved hundreds of thousands of dollars in wages and overtime. In addition, there have been substantial savings in court time, as civilian witnesses were also freed from court appearances."

We have argued over on this side that it is important the justice system bring criminals to trial.

The Speaker: And your supplementary?

Mr Sorbara: I ask the Solicitor General, has he talked to the Attorney General? Has he pleaded in cabinet to take those hundreds of thousands of dollars that have been saved by not prosecuting criminals and bolster the resources our police forces need to provide good quality community policing and deal with this terrible problem that has everyone in my constituency and all around the province living with a sense of fear that is not appropriate for Ontario?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I think the actions of the Attorney General should be applauded. What he did, quite frankly, was to take situations of pleas of guilty and free up the police officers, the policemen and policewomen of this country, to get out on the street, to not be tied up in those matters that are already decided or agreed upon or not tied up with minor infractions, but allow them to be out on the street to combat the very kind of difficult problem the member raised in the first place.

Mr Curling: Crime is the most important issue in the greater Toronto area. It is on the minds of everyone in greater Toronto. This is a good reason why the Solicitor General may not know that in the OPP jurisdiction, province-wide, by last July there had been a 15.8% increase in the homicide rate over the previous year and a 70% increase in the robbery rate, as my colleague just pointed out.

This government has left the municipalities and the private citizens on their own to make their communities safer. The Solicitor General's ministry has been sitting on a report of a Metro Toronto task force calling for a crack-down on illegal after-hours clubs, as well as other measures intended to bring crime rates down. Two weeks ago, when he was asked, he stated that he knew nothing of the report but undertook to review the recommendation and respond. Will the minister advise the House whether he has yet to review the Metro recommendations and whether he will take steps to implement them? Will his government support the citizens of Ontario who want to make the communities safer and places in which they can live?

1420

Hon Mr Pilkey: The answer to the question is that of course we will support the citizens of Ontario, and as a matter of fact every citizen in this country and others who support law enforcement and law and order in our times. I think that is rather a silly question to ask in the first place, but that none the less is the response.

In terms of the question, I believe the member refers to a question asked by the member for Parkdale, to which we are deriving an answer. I would have answered it directly, except that it may fall under the purview of the Ministry of Transportation or within the federal government, but I can assure the member that the answer to that question is being sought. If I recall the question, it was something about people who are involved in drug deals. If they have their driver's licence suspended, somehow it might mitigate this problem. I will have that specific response from the appropriate ministry, but someone mentioned to me that he wondered what kind of concern it would be to somebody who was involved in illegal drug matters that he feared his licence might be suspended. They were not sure that was much of a deterrent for that kind of crime.

SALARY OF POLICE BOARD APPOINTEE

Mr Harris: My question is for the Premier. By the way, before I get into the question, I want to say congratulations to my friend and colleague the member for Nickel Belt, in the spirit of true non-partisanship and co-operation. That being done, I now have a question for the Premier.

I was struck by two different headlines today, "Rising Crime in Ontario," in Toronto, on our streets, and "US Crime Continues to Decline." It seems to bear out views that have been expressed by a number of people that criminals are finding it too tough in the United States and quite easy here and are moving north.

My question, though, is to the Premier. Last spring, despite much opposition, he endorsed Susan Eng as chair of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Services Board. Last Thursday, Ms Eng is reported to have asked for a salary increase that would hike her pay close to 50%, from $90,000 a year to as much as $133,000. With police forces forced to cut back, with the obvious imbalance of resources available to the police to fight the rising crime we are experiencing in Toronto, in Ontario, indeed in Canada, I would like to ask the Premier if he approves of his personal choice for chairman of the police services board's priorities of where these scarce resource should go, ie, "A 50% salary hike for me, Susan Eng."

Hon Mr Rae: I am not aware of the information the member has put forward, but I will ask the Solicitor General to perhaps answer the question.

Hon Mr Pilkey: There is a very direct and brief response to the leader of the third party. On the question about Susan Eng's alleged request for a salary increase, I do not believe there was a direct request. The information I have is that it emanated from somebody asking a question about whether per diems should be raised and the newspapers reported that she perhaps thought the compensation should be on an equal basis with other appointments. I am not aware of any direct request by that person, but even if there were, I would like to inform the House that Metro council, not the Ontario Legislature, sets the salary for the Metro police board.

Mr Harris: Metro council did not appoint Susan Eng as chairman. That was the Premier. It was his appointment. This is his choice. This was the NDP priority for fighting crime in Toronto. Now we find his appointee—in fact, two of them. The article goes on to mention another NDP appointee. Somebody will have to help me here.

An hon member: Laura Rowe.

Mr Harris: Laura Rowe. Their top priority seems to be, "How do we get our own salaries up?"

Metro Toronto hit a milestone we would rather forget, 70 murders committed in this city in 10 months, and two NDP appointees to the police services board are worrying about lining their pockets. I say to the Premier, through the minister, since that is who I now have to direct the question to, even though the minister, I am sure, had nothing to do with this appointment—he has to live with it and I respect that—given the amount of money the province pays for policing, given the fact that it is the province that controls the police board, given the fact that these are his two appointees to the police board, does he agree with the priority of his NDP appointees that this is where scarce resources should go, to hike their own salaries?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I am not sure how long Susan Eng has been chair, but it seems to me it has been quite some time, not too long after the life of this government began. This is the first time I have heard of this suggestion, and therefore it would seem to me to deem that this is not a priority of hers or anyone else's, that it has come up at this late time.

I do not have it verified beyond this context, but it was reported in the Toronto Star on October 19 that the members of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Services Board want no part of a proposal to pay them at the same rate as citizen appointees to boards. After having determined that it is not a priority of the chair and having the board say it wants no part of it, I can only conclude that the question is now one of a political nature and really does not deserve any further response.

Mr Harris: The minister says it is Metro council that sets the salaries. That is not true. It is the police board itself that sets the salaries, and the NDP now, with its appointments, controls the police board. That is the fact of the matter.

I say to the Solicitor General by way of final supplementary that the only thing the Premier's personal choice of boss of the police services board is known for to date is to snub the Queen and to ask for more money. Since Ms Eng is too busy working on her own salary to concern herself with the real problems, I wonder if the minister could tell us whether this government has any sort of plan to bring safety back to our streets here in Ontario.

Hon Mr Pilkey: The government did not snub the Queen. I believe the reference is to the oath. I would remind the leader of the third party that those changes under the Police Services Act, which emanated from the previous provincial government, the Liberal government, which this party then carried on and enacted, had the full consultation of the Police Association of Ontario, the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police and the Ontario Police Commission.

As to the question, in terms of what this government is doing to assist in the prevention of crime in the streets, I believe I adequately covered this in response to a previous question this afternoon.

Mr Harris: They appointed Eliesen, but, "It wasn't me asked for $400,000." They appointed Eng, but, "It wasn't me who asked." Who controls what is going on over there with these appointees? This is really getting silly and I think the Premier would agree.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION

Mr Harris: My second question is to the Premier as well. On April 7, 1988, as Leader of the Opposition, he stood in this House and moved a resolution declaring April 18 as a day of mourning for injured workers. It was a very passionate speech. It was a very emotional speech. How times have changed. Today's headline in the Globe and Mail is, "Injured Workers Say NDP Betrayed Them." If the injured workers of this province cannot trust the Premier, who can?

Hon Mr Rae: Since the member has asked me personally about this, I can only tell him what I know with respect to the details of the situation, and that is that with respect to asbestosis, the board is continuing to review claims and continuing to review the criteria of the claims. I think we all know well the emotion that is felt by people whose claims have still yet to be accepted by the board and I can perfectly well understand and appreciate the emotion that lies behind those who are suffering from illness and whose claims have not yet been recognized.

I would hope the leader of the third party would also recognize that he would be the first one on his feet attacking me personally were I to intervene personally and tell the Workers' Compensation Board which claims to recognize and which not to and on what basis.

With respect to asbestosis, that is something which has to be done by the board. With respect to establishing an association between aluminum and degenerative brain conditions, again, that is something which has to be determined by the Workers' Compensation Board. It is their requirement and they have to do it. I cannot think of anybody who would be attacking me more vociferously than the honourable member were I to simply step in and say to the board: "Look, these people are complaining. Go out and change your policies." That is not the way we can do business in Ontario.

1430

Mr Harris: "Nick De Carlo of the Canadian Auto Workers union, which represents the workers, said Mr Rae...appeared at demonstrations and denounced the previous Liberal government several times for its policies on aluminum poisoning and asbestosis in industrial workers." The Premier had the answer while he was in opposition. He had the answer in 1988. He condemned the Liberals. Now he says it has nothing to do with the government; it is up to the board. Mr De Carlo said he was "told the situation was more complicated now that the NDP were in power." I wonder if the Premier could tell me what has made this situation more complicated now that he is in power as opposed to when he was in opposition?

Hon Mr Rae: Again, if I as Premier were to intervene and tell the board what to do with respect to the assessment of individual claims because of a point made by the president of a local union, can members imagine what the leader of the Conservative Party would say about the New Democratic government and its leader? We all know what he would get into. He would give us his anti-union diatribes and statements and he would accuse us of simply following what the unions wanted us to do.

We have the Workers' Compensation Board, which has very clear responsibilities under the law. We have a requirement that the board has to be satisfied with respect to the relationship between the exposure to a substance and the cause of a disease. That is the way the law works. We all very much want the board to be sensitive to the claims of workers and sensitive to the needs of workers, but it simply is not possible for the Premier to step in and say, "Recognize this claim and do not recognize that one." That is not the way we can do business.

Mr Harris: I find it ironic that the Premier's defence now is that he is concerned about what I, the member for Nipissing, would think. If that is his concern, he can invite me to the cabinet table and I will straighten him out on hundreds of other issues too.

It seems to me a little more than ironic that while the Premier has turned his back on the injured workers of this province, an NDP backbencher, the member for Downsview, is asking the Board of Internal Economy to erect a statue on the lawn at Queen's Park to honour those workers. The injured workers do not need passionate speeches and days of mourning. They do not need statues on the lawn at Queen's Park. They need help and support, not statues. Obviously his commitment while in opposition was not written in stone. We now know that. The statue matter is to be voted on soon by the Board of Internal Economy. Does the Premier not agree that any money for a statue on the front lawn of Queen's Park should in fact go directly to injured workers instead?

Hon Mr Rae: If the member wants to have a serious discussion about the board's policies with respect to compensation for particular diseases or claims, I am happy to do that and I think it is an important thing to do.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Rae: If the honourable member wants to have a discussion about whose lives we should be commemorating and whose achievements we should be celebrating on the front lawn of the Legislature, I am happy to have that discussion as well. I do not see anything wrong with our having a serious reflection on the contribution and the sacrifice made by hundreds of thousands, indeed millions, of workers in the province. I do not see anything wrong with our commemorating their achievements as much as we commemorate the achievements of former premiers.

EMPLOYMENT

Mr Phillips: My question is of the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology. It has to do with jobs and taxes. He will be familiar with the major problem of cross-border shopping. I think his ministry has completed a study which indicates that up to 14,000 jobs have been lost as a result. Later today in the Legislature, as he knows, we will be debating a bill which will increase the tax on gas by, I believe, 30%.

At the same time, the minister will know that the standing committee on finance and economic affairs completed its work on cross-border shopping and that a major recommendation out of that report was, "The Ontario government should produce and make publicly available an analysis of the impact on jobs of any relevant legislation or regulations it proposes to introduce or amend as it relates to cross-border shopping." That was an extremely important recommendation, supported, I might add, by all three parties on the committee.

What is the impact on jobs of this new tax on gas?

Hon Mr Philip: There is no study that shows directly the impact of any one factor on cross-border shopping. We would be happy to share any studies we do have with the honourable member. I shared with him considerable information during the estimates, when he had an opportunity to ask me questions.

Mr Phillips: I asked for three pieces of information at that estimates meeting and I still have not got them. I ask the minister to bring them forward.

This, however, was a commitment made by the committee to do the analysis. If the minister looks at the budget, the Treasurer has done job analyses on virtually all of his tax proposals. It is not impossible to do this. We are not asking a difficult question here. It is an extremely important question for the cross-border communities. It can be done. The Treasurer can acknowledge that it can be done. It has been done on the budget. As I say, it is important for the cross-border communities.

When will that analysis be done? If, as in the case of the gas guzzler tax, it is proven that it is going to cost jobs, will the minister go to the Treasurer and say: "It's simply not worth it. We're going to lose more jobs that it's worth"?

When will that analysis be done? When it is available, will the minister go to the Treasurer and review his gas guzzler-job guzzler tax?

Hon Mr Philip: We will provide the member with the information he requested in the set of estimates. I assure him of that. We will certainly supply to the honourable member any other studies we do.

1440

ASSISTED HOUSING

Mrs Marland: My question is for the Minister of Housing. Today on Ontario 30, Radio-Canada's French-language public affairs show, it was revealed that the Ontario government is subsidizing a housing project in Sudbury called Centreville which consists of 56 one-bedroom units. In deciding who should be accepted for occupancy, this project will give preference to single persons but will also consider couples, married or living together, without children, according to a project official.

Ministry of Housing official, Gabriel Marceau, is quoted as saying there is a demonstrated need for assisted housing targeted at low- and middle-income people who live alone. As well, an official of the project says it is like other affirmative action programs for persons who have historically faced disadvantage or discrimination. Does the minister agree that her ministry should award housing subsidies to a project which will give preference to single persons?

Hon Ms Gigantes: I have not had the opportunity of hearing the program, though I understood that interviews had been going on with some ministry officials. My understanding of the project is that it is one which has been designed to meet specific needs within the community. It has therefore been constructed with one-bedrooms and is suitable for certain kinds of families and single people, including single-parent families.

Mrs Marland: An official of the Ontario Human Rights Commission, Gilles Lapalme, says the Ontario Human Rights Commission has not received complaints from persons who believe they have been discriminated against because they are single. Therefore singles have not been recognized as a group which should receive special treatment under the Ontario Human Rights Code. Mr Lapalme is concerned that the limitations on the Centreville occupants could prevent an apartment being made available to a single mother with one child, for example. He also says the Ministry of Housing should have consulted the Ontario Human Rights Commission about subsidizing a project which will give preference to single persons.

It appears that the Ontario Human Rights Commission was not consulted about the Centreville subsidies. Will the minister agree to meet with the officials of the Ontario Human Rights Commission about the Centreville housing project to ensure that Centreville and similar projects which receive assistance from her ministry do not contravene the Ontario Human Rights Code?

Hon Ms Gigantes: In my view—now I stand to be corrected on this and I will certainly give it more thought—if we have established a need for housing in a community by people who have a core need—in other words, have to spend over 30%, sometimes 40% or 50% of their income in the private market to find a suitable place to live—if a proposal comes forward at the community base and suggests that we should be building single-bedroom units, it seems to me entirely suitable that we should be doing that. In my view, it is not a question of discriminating against anybody; it is a question of providing for the needs of the people in the community.

EASTERN ONTARIO VEGETABLE GROWERS' CO-OPERATIVE

The Speaker: The Minister of Agriculture and Food has a response to a question asked earlier.

Hon Mr Buchanan: On October 16 the member for S-D-G & East Grenville asked a question about the Eastern Ontario Vegetable Growers' Co-operative and the Deputy Premier took it as a question of notice at that time.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Buchanan: The co-operative the member referred to is one of only two remaining vegetable processing plants in eastern Ontario and is very vital to eastern Ontario. Some 12,000 acres of vegetables are in fact processed at that plant. I would like the member to know that all of the processing plants across the province have been experiencing difficulty because of the high dollar and free trade.

My staff, in fact I myself, have met with representatives from the co-operative and from Produce Processors, which is associated with the co-operative. We are studying their request. There is no current program that would deal with their request, but we continue to explore what options we have. We believe the horticultural part of the emergency assistance programs we have already announced will provide the growers with some money. We will continue to have ongoing discussions with the co-operative to do the best we can to make sure this continues to be a viable business in eastern Ontario.

Mr Villeneuve: The Eastern Ontario Vegetable Growers' Co-operative represents 147 farm families. As the member mentioned, 12,000-plus acres of vegetables are grown. Their direct competition in Quebec, La Conserverie Snyder et Fils from Bedford, Quebec, received $1.5 million to cover 90% of the cost of effluent treatment facilities. The Eastern Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association had to pay $1.5 million on its own. They lost $1 million last year. They are making it up at about $40 per acre. They are asking the minister for $500,000 to assist them because 75% of their production goes to the United States; $500,000 is about the salary that Marc Eliesen will receive from Ontario Hydro for one year. We are looking at 147 families here. The minister should have a good, close look and compare.

Hon Mr Buchanan: As I said earlier, we are concerned about this. We are studying it. We are looking for ways to assist this co-operative. The governments of Ontario and Canada have assisted this co-operative and the associated business in the past. In fact several millions in loans and assistance packages have been put together over the last number of years. This government intends to continue to support farm families, the family farm and the processing of food in Ontario. We will continue to do that.

PURCHASE OF CARPETS

Mr Scott: I am sure our television viewers will notice that the NDP members are wearing orange flowers. I understand that is to celebrate not only their own arrival in office but the arrival in office of a government in British Columbia that is NDP and, they believe, of a government in Saskatchewan today that is NDP. What the people of those provinces will want to remember is that when NDP members get into office and get their hands on the taxpayers' money, they spend like crazy.

The Speaker: To whom is your question directed?

Mr Scott: To the Minister of Government Services, the chief buyer for the government. All across government offices in the last two weeks everybody has been getting new carpets. I want to show members. This is only the smallest carpet. They are all monogrammed with the Ontario crest and they are sent out to everybody who wants them. These carpets cost up to $300 each, depending on the quality of the weave and the quality of the monogram.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Scott: I am cutting off my microphone here.

I want to draw to the attention of the Minister of Government Services that these are not replacement carpets, but carpets that sit on top of the carpets we already have.

The Speaker: And the question?

Mr Scott: I want to ask the Minister of Government Services if he will be good enough to let us know today how much these carpets cost, where they were purchased, what the per-unit cost is and how the tendering process was conducted. This government is spending like a drunken sailor and I want to know what it spent on this.

Hon F. Wilson: The information should be readily available. I will see that the Board of Internal Economy releases that information to the House, hopefully today. Also, I will make sure the member gets his carpet, hopefully by today also.

Mr Scott: The minister does not understand. I have a carpet. Everybody who got one of these already has a carpet. They are not worn out. This carpet sits on top of the old carpet. I do not want one. My voters do not want me to have one.

The Minister of Government Services, by way of supplementary, has not been able to answer a single question in this House yet about government expenditures, whether it was Eliesen's salary—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Scott: Members really get quite exercised about this, do they not? I think some backbenchers will be concerned about these carpets, and like me I hope they will reject them when they arrive, because they are unnecessary.

The Speaker: The interrogative part.

Mr Scott: I want to know from the minister—I put this in the same class as the wallpaper, the caucus furniture, the caucus carpets and the new furniture for the Minister of Community and Social Services—when are we going to draw the limit on this kind of unnecessary expenditure, which has not occurred over the last 10 years? The minister should know that sooner or later somebody is going to say to him that this government is using the taxpayers as a doormat.

Hon F. Wilson: The member will notice that the carpet is upside down, for one thing. We are not talking about government expenditures here, we are talking about activities of the Board of Internal Economy, activities of the Legislative Assembly. I will, for the member, take it as my role to find out the information for him and I will proceed to give it to him.

As far as my answering questions in the House is concerned, I will answer questions in the House from wherever they come, from whatever quarter, to the best of my ability. I would hesitate to say that the questions I have been getting have been greatly involved, but sometimes are in three or four parts or three or four irregularly shaped periods. With respect to the member who put these questions forward, I take my time in answering them. My answers will come in due course.

The Speaker: I trust the honourable member will return the rug from whence it came.

Mr Scott: Mr Speaker, I will respond to your question.

The Speaker: No, it is not a question.

1450

REMARKS BY APPOINTEE TO POLICE SERVICES BOARD

Mr Runciman: I have a question for the Solicitor General. It relates to an announcement he made in the House last Thursday. As he is aware, an NDP appointee to the Regional Municipality of Peel Police Services Board was quoted in the Toronto Star as indicating that she believed policemen and policewomen routinely lie in court to protect other police officers.

The Peel regional board, endorsed by Peel regional council, called for an inquiry under the Police Act into the allegations with respect to the NDP appointee to determine if what she said was accurate or if indeed her denial was accurate. The minister has rejected that request and in effect has said: "We can't get to the bottom of this. We have two differing points of view and can't get to the bottom of it." He has not really tried to get to the bottom of it. He has reviewed the correspondence. He has looked at the news articles.

What I am asking the minister today is a very specific question. Is he not concerned, as the top police officer in this province, that he may have appointed an individual to a police services board who is going to sit in judgement of policemen and policewomen, that the person he has appointed may indeed have an anti-police bias? Is he not prepared to take this at least through an investigation, to make the best possible effort to determine whether he has made an appropriate appointment?

Hon Mr Pilkey: I did share information with the House, I believe on Thursday, that I had indicated in a letter to the Regional Municipality of Peel Police Services Board that based on the information forwarded to me, it was not conclusive. As a matter of fact, it was quite contradictory and there appeared not to be any basis that would be fruitful in enhancing the positive relationship we desire with our policemen and policewomen in this province. In the absence of anything more concrete than was forwarded to me, I saw no purpose in engaging in further activity at this time.

Mr Runciman: I do not know how the minister can have a positive relationship when he has essentially done nothing. He has left it hanging in the air. The police officers believe their reputations have been sullied. This minister has a responsibility to try to get to the truth and he has done absolutely nothing. I suggest if these charges or comparable charges were laid against a police officer, the government would go the extra mile to determine whether there was any truth to them, but when it is one of the government's appointees, it is forget it; sweep it under the rug; do nothing about it.

I want to say that we have the police chief, we have Mayor Hazel McCallion, we have very responsible citizens in Peel region who are extremely concerned about this. I ask the minister to reconsider, to go that extra mile to determine whether this individual is an appropriate appointee to be placed in judgement of policemen and policewomen in Peel region.

Hon Mr Pilkey: Certainly if that information was the fact, I would share in the level of concern that has been raised here today. As I indicated, based on the information that came to my desk and to my attention, there is an absolute conflict in the claims of those who are involved. It appears to be irreconcilable. I do not believe there is anything to be gained by fostering information based on the type I personally received.

In terms of these being NDP appointments, I might indicate that we are committed to opening up the government process. Under this government we now have generic application forms. This is a significant change from the previous government. All these employees are in fact screened through a particular committee to see whether they are meritorious for this kind of appointment. These are not just straight partisan appointments.

CHILD CARE

Mrs MacKinnon: My question is to the Minister of Community and Social Services. May I take this opportunity to congratulate the minister on her appointment.

On Friday, the Ontario Coalition for Better Child Care held a news conference on the crisis in child care work in Ontario. As the minister is aware, I am sure, rural child care in Lambton county is a very integral part of the rural riding I represent. Indeed, without such programs, many farm children would be without proper care while their parents keep their farms going. What is the government doing about this child care, as we heard on Friday?

Hon Mrs Boyd: I am happy to have an opportunity to respond to the concerns the child care coalition brought forward on Friday. I join the coalition in those concerns. Child care is a priority for this government and for me. We have already begun, in terms of the number of spaces that were allocated by the previous minister, to ensure that there is more availability. All 5,000 of those new subsidized spaces have been allocated. They are all at various stages of implementation and we expect them to be fully in place by the beginning of next year.

The larger step, of course, is that we need a thorough revamping of the entire child care system. We need to pay particular attention to rural child care. As a result, in consultation with the members of the provider community, we will be releasing a major consultation paper in the new year. It will focus on all the issues, particularly affordability and availability, that were raised by the coalition. That will give an opportunity to the people across the province to build a consensus on how to deliver child care to every child who requires it and every parent who chooses it.

Mrs MacKinnon: The coalition is calling for the government to assume 100% funding of subsidized spaces instead of cost-sharing with municipalities. Will the minister be looking seriously at this, and if so, how soon?

Hon Mrs Boyd: At this point in time we are already paying both the provincial and the federal governments' share of the new spaces. The spaces already announced have to be paid for without the benefit of a contribution from the federal government because of a cap on the Canada assistance plan. This results in a revenue loss to Ontario of over $1 billion. The coalition's request needs to be considered seriously because child care is in a crisis, but it must understand, as must all people in Ontario, that we are facing a very difficult economic reality.

The other issue is that we are in the process of looking at disentanglement between the provincial and municipal governments around such issues as the delivery of child care. This whole issue has to be considered in relation to that disentanglement exercise. So while we are going ahead with the consultation, all these issues will be on the table and will be considered very seriously.

OAK RIDGES MORaine

Mrs Caplan: My question today is to the Minister of Natural Resources. In July 1990, the then government expressed a provincial interest under the Planning Act in the GTA portion of the Oak Ridges moraine. We know the importance of the moraine and that it contains significant natural features, and probably most important for people in this area, the headwaters of some 30 watercourses, which include the Rouge and the Don and provide drinking water for some 10 communities including King City, Aurora and Stouffville.

The June 24 announcement of the Oak Ridges moraine implementation guidelines for the greater Toronto area included this statement: "In areas of the moraine outside the GTA, municipalities will be strongly encouraged by the province to adopt and apply the principles of the implementation guidelines." What specific actions has the government taken with these affected municipalities to encourage adoption of the minister's guidelines?

1500

Hon Mr Wildman: The member is correct in the quote she gave from the announcement made in June regarding the Oak Ridges moraine. As she knows, the statement made at that time, as had the previous government's expression of interest, dealt with the GTA area mainly, but we are indeed prepared to engage in discussions with municipalities outside the GTA to assist them to implement changes which would be of similar import.

Mrs Caplan: I am even more concerned after hearing the minister's response. He said "prepared to engage in discussions." That sounds like a lot of words and no action at all. The fact is that there is not even a process within his ministry to organize any of the biophysical information that is required to be collected. This seems to me to be just a waste of time and energy. This is of importance to the people of the greater Toronto area.

To those who are concerned about safe drinking water as a result of the protection of the moraine, I would say that the Minister of Municipal Affairs recently has refused to declare a provincial interest in the Kirby Estates case. That is located in Durham. He has said it is not a matter of provincial interest. That was requested by the Save the Ganaraska Again community group. We know that the chair of the Ontario Municipal Board has stated that this refusal to declare provincial interest has damaged the public group's case. He also pointed out that the minister's guidelines were just guidelines and they were not etched in stone.

The Speaker: Would the member place her supplementary, please.

Mrs Caplan: Since his interim guidelines are supposed to protect the moraine and the headwaters, what specific contingency plans has the minister prepared and what does he have in place given the test case of the Kirby Estates, which I believe is seriously endangering the headwaters of the moraine?

Hon Mr Wildman: That was a very long and involved question. It reminded me of answers that the member used to give when she was on this side of the House. I would simply say I will not comment on the Kirby case or the statements made by the representatives from the Ontario Municipal Board. The questions raised would more appropriately be directed to the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

I should say that it is most inappropriate for this member to stand in the House and suggest that the statement I made on behalf of the government in June is unimportant, when her party, when it was in government itself, expressed provincial interest in the GTA, and the member knows clearly that the main thrust of the statement made in June was the protection of the GTA section of the Oak Ridges moraine.

VEHICLE LICENSING OFFICES

Mr Turnbull: My question is of the Minister of Transportation. Is it the minister's intention to close the privately operated driver licensing and vehicle registration offices and turn their operations over to the insurance industry as a payoff for their support for his government's forthcoming auto insurance proposal?

Hon Mr Pouliot: The world is upside down but only in the eyes of the beholder. There has never been and there will never be a payoff. This administration is open-minded. It does not get involved in payola. We are satisfied with the 288 people—the private system at its best—since they are dispensing the most essential of services, that of privilege, courtesy and, yes, perhaps the right of those 6.3 million licensees in Ontario.

We have a $30-billion investment in the infrastructure in terms of roads and transfers to municipalities in this province. The system is working quite fine. If it ain't broke, don't fix it.

Mr Turnbull: When it comes to payoffs, I wonder what we would call the appointment of Marc Eliesen and Susan Eng.

An hon member: And Bob White.

Mr Turnbull: Yes.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order.

Mr Turnbull: This minister's government has called for the proposal from the Insurance Bureau of Canada on how it would like to operate these offices. The assistant deputy minister announced at a meeting with industry representatives that the government is planning to establish a schedule 2 crown corporation to be responsible for this service. Surely we do not need any more bureaucracy. Will the minister come clean and tell us why he is going to destroy this efficient, private sector industry in favour of more bureaucracy and a payoff to the insurance companies?

Hon Mr Pouliot: With the highest of respect to the critic and distinguished member opposite, he does not even take yes for an answer. What we have here, I repeat, are 288 small, private enterprises located throughout the province. They are conducting approximately 90% of all vehicle licensing transactions and 63% of all driver licensing transactions—and I am quoting from our records, the honourable member's and mine—and it is working very well.

By way of conclusion, this is what those fine soldiers are doing, and it is not terribly lucrative. They are doing it because they believe in providing an essential service. They process over 12.5 million transactions, collecting approximately 85% That is $665 million. I know the member opposite will want to join me in congratulating those fine women and those fine men who are providing the service for all Ontarians.

CORRECTION

Mr Chiarelli: Mr Speaker, last Thursday, October 17, 1991, I raised a point of privilege in the House. On page 2999 of Hansard, I am reported as having said, "I, as an MPP, was required to pay personally to the legislative library researcher close to $300 to get this information."

What I intended to say was, "I, as an MPP, was required to pay personally to the ministry via the legislative library researcher close to $300 to get this information," and I would like to correct the record.

PETITIONS

SOUTH LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL

Mr Henderson: Mr Speaker, I have a petition to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario and it reads as follows:

"Whereas South Lincoln High School in Smithville, Ontario, is in desperate need of additional classrooms and a gymnasium,

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That they provide the funding necessary for the addition to South Lincoln High School through whatever means possible within the jurisdiction of the Minister of Education."

I have affixed my signature to this petition, and it has a total of 437 signatures.

TOBACCO TAXES

Mr Jordan: Mr Speaker, I have a petition from the Niagara Regional Fair signed by 959 citizens to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, and it reads as follows:

"Whereas the present high levels of taxes on tobacco products are excessive and contrary to the interests of Ontario's two million smokers; and

"Whereas high tobacco taxes are contributing to retail theft and to our province's cross-border jobs and shopping crisis; and

"Whereas these punitive taxes and resulting lost sales are contributing to inflation, as well as costing jobs in Ontario; and

"Whereas high cigarette taxes are regressive and unfair to low- and modest-income citizens;

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That Ontario's tobacco taxes should not be increased in 1991, and further that these taxes should be repealed and a new, lower and fairer tax be introduced."

This is signed by 959, and I affix my own signature.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

POWER CORPORATION AMENDMENT ACT, 1991 LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LA SOCIÉTÉ DE L'ÉLECTRICITÉ

Deferred vote on the motion for second reading of Bill 118, An Act to amend the Power Corporation Act.

Vote différé sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 118, Loi modifiant la Loi sur la Société de l'électricité.

1515

The House divided on Mr Ferguson's motion for second reading of Bill 118, which was agreed to on the following vote:

La motion de M. Ferguson pour la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 118, mise aux voix, est adoptée :

Ayes/Pour—66

Abel, Allen, Bisson, Boyd, Buchanan, Carter, Charlton, Christopherson, Churley, Cooke, Cooper, Coppen, Dadamo, Drainville, Duignan, Farnan, Ferguson, Fletcher, Frankford, Gigantes, Grier, Haeck, Hampton, Hansen, Harrington, Haslam, Hayes, Hope, Huget, Jamison, Johnson, Klopp, Lankin, Laughren, Lessard, Mackenzie, MacKinnon, Malkowski, Mammoliti, Marchese, Martel, Martin, Mathysen, Mills, Morrow, Murdock, S., O'Connor, Owens, Philip, E., Pilkey, Pouliot, Rizzo, Silipo, Sutherland, Ward, B., Ward, M., Wark-Martyn, Waters, Wessinger, White, Wildman, Wilson, F., Winninger, Wiseman, Wood, Ziemba.

Nays/Contre—36

Arnott, Bradley, Brown, Caplan, Chiarelli, Conway, Cousens, Curling, Eves, Grandmaître, Harnick, Harris, Henderson, Jackson, Jordan, Kwinter, Mahoney, Marland, McClelland, McGuinty, Morin, Murdoch, B., Offer, O'Neill, Y., Phillips, G., Poirier, Poole, Ruprecht, Sola, Sorbara, Sterling, Stockwell, Tilson, Turnbull, Wilson, J., Witmer.

Bill ordered for standing committee on resources development.

Le projet de loi est déferé au comité permanent du développement des ressources.

Mr Harris: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: The member for Lambton today asked what I thought was a very important question. I wonder whether the Speaker, the House or the House leader for the government could indicate to the member for Lambton that when she raises a question about the Agenda for People, which she was asked to campaign on, and that promise is not kept, she has the option of being dissatisfied with the answer and debating that at six o'clock, bringing forward that concern. I think it is very unfair that she was asked to campaign on 10,000 spaces this year and 10,000 new spaces next year when the minister refused to honour that. I wonder if you could bring that to her attention.

The Speaker: I appreciate the thoughtfulness of the member for Nipissing, the leader of the third party, in drawing the various rules and standing orders to the attention of other members.

INCOME TAX AMENDMENT ACT, 1991

LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI DE L'IMPÔT SUR LE REVENU

Resuming the adjourned debate on the motion for second reading of Bill 83, An Act to amend the Income Tax Act.

Reprise du débat ajourné sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 83, Loi portant modification de la Loi de l'impôt sur le revenu.

The Speaker: The member for Simcoe Centre had the floor when we adjourned the debate. Then by rotation to the official opposition. Are there any members who wish to participate in this debate? The member for York Mills.

Mr Turnbull: I view the debate about Bill 83 on the surcharge on income tax as a very important measure of the direction this government will take in strangling the economy. It is not just another tax grab. What the government must realize is that the excessive tax burden is driving many people out of Ontario. Speaking as the member for one of the most affluent ridings in the province, I am very aware of the number of entrepreneurs saying to me, "I'm not going to stay and fight; I'm simply leaving."

I am sure the government members are very sincere in their expression of the fact that they want to protect workers and make this a fair place to live, but I suggest that Ontario is a very fair place to live in right now. The province was a very fair and admired place when the Conservative government last was in office here. This province moved so far in terms of social justice that we were the envy of the world.

It is becoming harder and harder to get companies to expand or even stay in this province and it is becoming harder for companies to recruit top executives. Multinational companies are finding it difficult to get executives to come to this province unless they can have a very special tax deal where part of their income is paid overseas, which has the effect of draining away taxes.

This government should not think it can just tax ad infinitum. Eventually the system will back up on them and they will not have the revenue because they will not have the jobs that will drive the taxes to pay for all the social programs I know they are sincere about.

It is one more nail in the coffin of Ontario. I say this with great feeling because I came to live in Canada in 1969 and believe Ontario is a wonderful place to live. It has always been a place that has encouraged the entrepreneurial spirit. More than anything else, the tax grabs of the previous Liberal government, 33 of them, and the $1 billion worth of extra taxes they have levied so far in their last budget, are driving away business.

The ministry estimates that 3% of Ontario taxpayers will be affected by this tax. They may say: "Who's worried? We're the government. We don't have those people voting for this." I guess that is not correct according to what they are going to pay Marc Eliesen, but as members know I do not have a great deal of sympathy in that area. My concern is the loss of jobs, the loss of businesses and the loss of entrepreneurs. Once they have lost the entrepreneurs who create the small businesses that create the greatest number of job opportunities, we will have very little and we will be left with the situation we have: large companies that will be encouraged more and more to have a branch plant mentality.

I would like to turn to the budget, which was the greatest blow, in terms of contributing to the economic growth of Buffalo. Ask anybody who has anything to do with Buffalo—real estate and businesses—and Buffalo is going through a boom. It is very interesting that the rust belt of the United States, which went through a similar downturn in the last recession, has responded by realizing that you do not tax businesses out of existence. You encourage business to locate there because businesses translate into jobs, and jobs into prosperity.

If we continue to spend like drunken sailors there will be nothing left. When we find out the error of the NDP government's way, its knee-jerk reaction is to talk about the federal government's deficit. The fact is that the federal government took over a huge debt and is struggling with it. This government is increasing the debt and taxes the same as the Liberals before it.

The Liberals increased taxes and spending during the best five years this province has ever known. These are not the best five years this province has ever known. These are arguably the worst times we have had since the Great Depression. It is important that we maintain an economy which is capable of employing people, and the confidence of business is the thing which, above all issues, drives the economy. If we have people who say, "No, we can't succeed in Ontario," business will not invest money. They will invest it overseas.

Money is very portable nowadays. Even 20 years ago, when Britain was going through so many of its socialist antics, we saw that money was tied down in Britain. That is not the case in Ontario, because we are one province in Canada and money is entirely portable throughout Canada. So long as the NDP does not control the federal government it cannot keep the money in Canada, but if it did form a federal government I suspect that would be what it would do; it would bring in exchange controls. Exchange controls were the very thing that killed the British economy. It was only when they had a good dose of free market spirit that business developed again in Britain.

When they start controlling spending, as I believe they are beginning to understand they must, that smacks somewhat of closing the barn door after the horse has bolted. To date the controlling of spending is only $460 million, which is in fact deferred to next year. They have to consider reducing the number of services the government gives and privatizing a lot of services. This does not suggest for one minute that the Conservatives are against supporting workers, unemployed people and single mothers. We believe in a healthy social agenda which will consider everybody, but the way the government is going about it is wrong. The government is going to double the provincial debt in just four years.

1530

It is fundamentally unfair, at a time when we know the country will be coming out of a recession, that the government will continue to pile on enormous debts. The minister should be compelled to balance the budget within the term of office. That does not mean in individual years the government has to balance its budget but, unfortunately, we are now dealing with our children having to pay our debts. Pretty soon we will working on our grandchildren having to pay our debts.

The government is going to get this province into the same unfortunate position that the federal government is in, one in which it will never be able to pay back the debt. We know that at the federal level one third of all government spending is with respect to servicing the debt. Is that an admirable direction? I do not think so. Unfortunately, that is what the government is doing.

We look at the accumulated deficit and put it in perspective. When the Conservatives left office, it was $26 billion. The Liberals, in just five years, added $10 billion. I can tell members that for more than any other reason, I ran in the last election because I was so outraged at this galloping spending. I never could have believed in those times that we would be looking at increasing the debt to $70 billion.

I really put it to all the members of the government—and I am not attacking what the members believe is right—that we are on a slippery slope and we may never be able to fix the economy of Ontario unless we address the fundamental problem, which is that government does not efficiently deliver services.

We have only to look at such issues as affordable housing. We are failing with respect to affordable housing and yet we are spending a huge amount of money. For each affordable housing unit that we create in this province, we are spending, on average, approximately 150% of what the private sector would spend to create the same housing. We must build an atmosphere where private business wants to invest in affordable housing. By driving the entrepreneurs out and driving down real estate values, the government will not do this, and this surtax is certainly going to do that.

Having spoken to many constituents who say they are going to leave, I am depressed. I am concerned that perhaps because the governing party predominantly represents the more traditional areas where labour lives, it does not get enough opportunity to speak to business people. I am not talking about the big companies that can afford to effectively lobby the government. I am talking about small businesses that employ three, four, five and 10 people; indeed, the businesses which generate the most jobs in this province. They are telling me they are moving.

I hope the government does not think this is a good sign. I hope it does not think I am making this up. Indeed, when we look at the survey taken last week, we know that something in the order of 500,000 jobs will be lost in this province by the attitude of the government. Attitude does not come from one single item, but when we look at the wage protection bill and some of the very negative messages which were sent out with the initial reading of the bill, and then we look at this surtax and we look at the proposal that it will only take 50% of the people in a business to organize into a union, these are all nails in the coffin, the coffin of Ontario.

When we look at accumulated deficits historically, Ontario's will be the largest deficit in the whole of Canadian history, province by province. Next comes Quebec's. In Quebec, we see that in the 1984-85 period, it was just over $3 billion.

A core issue is piling up debt. It is a millstone around taxpayers' necks for generations. The deficit represents 3.4% of the province's GDP. It was only 2.3% of the GDP in the last recession. By 1994-95, the projected deficit, in GDP rates, will be double. The service cost on Ontario's debt is beginning to eat into the government's ability to spend money on the people most in need. By 1994, the daily cost of debt to taxpayers will be $13 million in interest payments alone.

I cannot help but think back to the early part of this debate, when my colleague the member for Victoria-Haliburton said something I thought was very true. He said that we have to learn to say no to people. One of the parts of his job that he was finding difficult was saying no when groups came to him in his constituency. Indeed, I think all parties have to get their heads together on this issue and learn to say no.

We know that the way politics are organized with the party system, you protect your budget and the opposition parties dump on you. I think the dumping has to stop and we have to get the government to believe that we must cut back. But we in opposition also have a responsibility, and I can tell members that last Friday I was exercising what I considered to be the principles I am talking about. A couple came to me looking for money for a private sector enterprise, because they said they were not making any money. They were producing a television program aimed at seniors. They said they had cut a deal with private television stations that allowed them to get a portion of their revenue from the advertising they could sell during the program, but unfortunately they were not making any money. Could I get some money from the government?

Recognizing that these were people who were probably more likely to vote for the Conservatives than the NDP, the cheap shot would have been to say, "I think it's awful what the government is doing." But it would be hypocrisy on my part if I were to stand up and say that I thought the budget was wrong and the spending was wrong if I were advocating more spending by the government. I told them so very frankly, and they said it was refreshing to have a politician who was straightforward and honest with them, but at the end of the day, I am sure they would much sooner have had the money.

The treadmill of debt is something I have spent a good deal of time thinking about lately. I think we must come to recognize that we cannot buy jobs. When we look at some expenditures that the government is proposing, the de Havilland bailout is going to cost $155.5 million for 4,900 promised jobs; the money is not yet spent. Elliot Lake: $250 million for 650 jobs. The auto insurance scheme: The government certainly got off to a bad start on that. It spent $5 million, and for what? It has reclassified senior civil servants, and that cost the government $17 million.

1540

It has been said by my leader that NDP tax policy is, "If it moves, tax it; if it still moves, regulate it; when it stops moving, subsidize it." This government has had 14 tax increases in the budget and $1 billion in tax hikes this year alone. The biggest hit was a 3.4-cent-a-litre increase in gas tax, which we will be debating afterwards. All these things come together to make us a very heavily taxed administration. We are now the most heavily taxed administration in the whole of North America, and that quite simply drives away business and drives away jobs.

I am sure this government does not want to lose jobs. I am sure that behind closed doors, in its caucus meetings, it has these wrenching sessions where one person says, "Look, if we do this, that's a problem." But ultimately they feel they have to come forward on to the floor of the House and be shoulder to shoulder and support the government. It is their responsibility as backbenchers to persuade the government that this policy is wrong. The increase in the surtax does not affect many of their members. It does affect a few, but more than anything else it means they are going to tax away jobs.

Since 1985 we have had 40 tax increases. There was $18.6 billion more in taxes this year than in 1984-85. This is a 126% increase in provincial taxes in that period. Over the same period of time, per capita income has risen by 55.8%. In other words, people are falling behind, even highly paid people. I was speaking to one of my NDP colleagues from across the floor the other day, bemoaning this fact. To his credit, he understood the need to make sure we keep high-paying jobs in the province, because they are the driving force that set up businesses.

Let's reflect on what you do when you set up a small business. I keep harking back to small business, maybe because I am a small businessman myself. You invest your after-tax dollars and risk them in a business in the hope that you are going to make a profit. When you are successful, the government is in for 50% of the profit. It is very unusual to set up a business and make any money in the first two or three years, so you know that not only are you putting in your initial investment, but you keep on feeding the beast over the years. As you feed it, you go a little bit farther down the tunnel, and you hope the light at the end of the tunnel is not a locomotive coming towards you.

As I say, if you are successful you will probably pay 50% in taxes. Then, if in few years' time you feel you have worked very hard and you want to get out of that business, you sell it and you have capital gains on that. You are taxed at every stage of the game. You have put your after-tax dollars at risk, and at a certain point you say that the risk is not worth it, that you would sooner put your money into a lending institution, where hopefully there is no risk, and get interest. Quite literally, most small businesses in Ontario, and many large businesses too, are hanging on at the moment in the hope they will show a profit again in the future. This is quite literally what is happening; the business is not making money. A lot of traditional cash cows are no longer cash cows; they are fallow.

Nearly 80% or $3.5 billion more in retail sales taxes has been added in the last few years, since 1984-85. A huge 66% has been added in gasoline taxes alone. Some 223.7% more in land transfer taxes since 1984-85 and 80% more in personal income taxes since that time paint a rather dim picture of tax grab after tax grab. What are we going to do that will spell relief? I do not think a Roloids will do the trick. We have to get back the confidence of people that they will be rewarded in this province for investing and working hard.

I am somewhat interested in some of the comments that have been made to me by NDP members who are ex-union people, where they have said that they are working much longer hours than they worked when they were in the union, and they are complaining that their benefits package is not as good as when they were in the union. That is somewhat akin to running your own business. Often small businesses are making less money than unionized workers, and yet the perception is that when they do have a good year and they make a lot of money, the government says, "Oh, we have to tax them, because that's bad."

Sometimes you have to pile up the money in good years for the bad years. It is an old-fashioned concept, and indeed when I think of economics, we know that John Maynard Keynes is often blamed today for flawed economics. I think it is flawed economics, because he did not take in all the considerations that are now considered to be important in arriving at a complete economic picture, but in fairness to John Maynard Keynes, he said, "In the good years you put money away, and then you prime the pump in the bad years."

This province has not put any money away in a long time and consequently we have this huge debt. Quite simply put, when you pile up debt, you are just deferring taxes. It is not going to go away. A few people have suggested that if you have enough inflation, suddenly your debt will be reduced to an insignificant amount. But unfortunately, the way our economy works—if anybody saw the article in the Toronto Star over the weekend, or it may have been today, it is about "Who Drives Interest Rates."

We have heard the NDP often railing about the federal government as being the bad guys who kept interest rates up and kept the dollar up. To a great extent, the fact that we do not have enough taxes to feed the monster of government at the federal and provincial levels means that governments have to go out and borrow money, and because there are not enough Canadians any more who are prepared to invest in Canada, we now know that we have to borrow money overseas.

The treasury bills are auctioned each week at a rate which has to be attractive to investors. They put in their bids. It is not a question of the Bank of Canada saying, "This is the rate which is on the T-bill"; it asks for bids from the various banks. The banks come back and they say how many dollars they are prepared to invest and what the discount has to be. As a consequence there is a barometer as to how high the interest rate will be, because the Bank of Canada simply sets the bank rate at a quarter point higher than that each week, and that is because governments have been spending out of control for many years.

Ultimately I suspect the only way we can solve this is by getting the provincial and federal governments talking together in a more co-operative way. I have heard it said by Bob Rae on several occasions recently that he believes governments at the federal and provincial level should be more co-operative, and yet I have seen no indication that he is prepared to change his ways in order to get greater co-operation.

1550

There was a comment made in a report by the Bank of Nova Scotia dated April 29, 1991, and I would like to read that into the record:

"Ontario is relying increasingly on personal income taxes as a source of revenue. The provincial income tax is expected to account for over 37 cents of every dollar raised this year, up from 26 cents in financial year 1984-85. Over the same period, federal transfers have fallen by six and a half percentage points to 12.4% of provincial revenues. Weak economic activity has significantly eroded retail sales, land transfer and corporate taxes since the onset of the recession, so it has become easier to hike income taxes than to make the tough decisions to control spending."

This is the issue we always get our friends on the government side raving about. We have said, "You need to cut the size of the civil service." I am not talking about a slash-and-cut idea, but the last Conservative government reduced the size of the civil service by some 5,000 people over a 10-year period and they did that through attrition. There was nobody sacked; they simply got rid of people slowly and reduced the size of the civil service, and yet the government was still able to deliver an acceptable level of services. I put it to members that we have to start thinking of doing that kind of thing.

I understand that this is something which runs counter to the NDP's platform, because traditionally they have sought to attract the more junior levels of the government service as voters. When we look at last year's increases we know that there was a huge increase. Officially it was 5.8%, but that was plus merit increases to the civil service of up to 8%. In fact, some top bureaucrats received $11,000 in salary increases, for $512 million. These are serious numbers. These are the kinds of numbers that could fix our agricultural problems in the province. So when we are advocating cutting back, we are simply saying, "You have guaranteed jobs in the civil service, highly paid jobs. Make sure you use that money more wisely and then you don't have to come back and say, 'Well, we can't help agriculture,'" which is a further erosion of our economy.

We look at the Ontario Hydro pension fund, which I am given to believe is fully funded. If we did not put another penny into the pension fund for the next 10 years, it has been suggested by one ex-senior Hydro official, we would still have the pension fund fully funded, and yet this year we are forced to put something in excess of $250 million into the pension fund at a time that we are seeing 12% increases in rates, and it is projected that overall we are going to have a 44% increase in hydro rates.

What I am doing is going through this shopping list, because the members opposite often accuse us and say we do not suggest ways of saving money and readjusting spending. We look at affordable housing and we look at Ataratiri. The project will now cost $2 billion. That is $60,000 in interest charges per day and no homes have been built yet. The Ataratiri units today are projected to cost $258,000 per unit. I really would ask members, is there anybody on the government benches who believes that is affordable housing, at a cost of $258,000 per unit? You can pick up the newspaper any weekend in this city and you can go through the houses for sale and you can find lots and lots of apartments which are half that price.

I know the members opposite are attached to the idea of creating affordable housing. We are not suggesting we should not have affordable housing. As members know, the Conservative proposal is to make sure there are housing subsidies to the people in need. Notwithstanding the fact that I have a very affluent riding, I have people who are paying 40% and 50% of their gross income on rent. We want to help them, but the way the members opposite are going at the moment is they are squandering money and they are not getting value for money. I challenge anyone to pick up the Saturday Star and read about the houses and apartments for sale and see if he cannot find lots and lots of units for considerably less than $258,000 per unit.

Our economic outlook is bleak. Our gross domestic product is expected to shrink by 3.3%. We are losing 12,000 jobs a day in the province and the unemployment rate this year is 10%. When the government came to office it was 6.3%. I am not blaming the government for this. We know that there was a world recession on. Indeed when I spoke to my brother in England a few days ago, he was bemoaning the terrible times in England. When I spoke to some German senators who were here on a visit two weeks ago, they were telling me how bad things were. When I spoke to a sister-in-law in Switzerland two weeks ago, she was telling me how bad things were in Switzerland.

There is no doubt the world is in a recession, but it is important that Ontario bounce out of it. I do not expect us to bounce out of it in the way we have in the past. I do not think that is an option that is open to us no matter which government is in power, in fairness to this government. But the important thing is to create an environment in which people feel like investing, or more especially feel like staying and continuing to invest.

On the question of decentralization of government ministries, we have not seen a proper impact study into the movement of these jobs. We know that traditionally about one third of all jobs move when a ministry moves out of town. We have not seen a fully loaded cost study which includes the cost of travelling back to Toronto for all the meetings they are expected to attend here. If the government is going to go through with decentralization, I would urge the government to look at an ambitious project to make sure that we have electronic communications with media rooms so that people do not have to travel back to Toronto, because the costs of hotels and travel are eating us alive.

When we look at day care centres we see that capital projects for non-profit centres are being funded, and yet at the same time there is no further funding for the for-profit sector, even though there are 3,000 vacant spaces in the for-profit sector in this province and they are not being funded. I put it to the members that I have toured day care centres and there are many day care centres which are every bit as good as, if not better than, the non-profit day care centres, but people wanting to bring their children to those centres cannot because there are no subsidies available for them.

Please, I ask the government to get rid of this notion that the word "profit" is an evil word. I know that behind closed doors there have been discussions among government members that somehow they have to engage in some social engineering and change the whole structure of our society and that capitalism is inherently wicked. If the government really believes that, it should be decent enough to come forward and say it in the open. Do not go through the myth of having the Premier suggesting that he wants co-operation with business and yet he is not prepared to co-operate by changing his policies.

The province's finances are in tatters. I do not hold the government entirely accountable, but believe me, the people of Ontario will hold the government accountable if it runs the deficit up to $70 billion by the time its office term is over. It is unfair to the people who vote for it and it is unfair to the people who do not vote for it because, somehow, somebody has to pay it back.

Tax freedom day in Ontario is coming later and later each year. We are now waiting until close to August. That is the amount of time people have to work before they are working for themselves. The rest of the money goes to the province, the federal government and the municipal taxes.

1600

We need governments to live within their means. More and more I have my constituents coming to me and saying, "David, how can we get this message across?" No wonder people are fed up with governments when they do not listen to the people. The people are not saying to spend money the way this government is spending. They are saying they should live within their means.

Our credit rating in this province of course has been downgraded and if, as we suspect, the deficit comes in this year at some $3 billion greater than was projected, I think it is reasonable to expect our credit rating will be further downgraded.

The impact on business is that it is simply too expensive to do business in Ontario. We have the commercial concentration tax, which was brought in by the past Liberal government. Indeed the NDP joined shoulders with the Conservatives when they were in opposition and said how wrong the commercial concentration tax was, a tax which discriminated against the people of the greater Metro area, who are already sharing a very large portion of the burden of taxation in this province. They added these discriminatory taxes which were applied only to the greater Metro area.

Our tax burden is 16% higher than that in the United States, on average. Companies are fleeing Ontario and, believe me, most of those jobs will not come back. I know because I have spoken to the entrepreneurs who have these businesses, and they have no intention of coming back, no matter what government is in, once they have left.

The Ontario public is going to be left to foot the bill when the NDP leaves government, and indeed I am convinced that after this term of government they will no longer be elected. That is up to the electorate to decide, but the electorate is very clearly telling them, "Reduce taxes."

When I look at the tax revolt in Blenheim, and it seems to be spreading throughout the province, I would say it is wise for any political party to understand the thrust of the taxpayers in saying: "We've got tax exhaustion. We can't pay any more." Probably the only way you are going to kickstart the economy is actually backing off on some taxes, not just holding them where they are.

Susan Murray of S. A. Murray Consulting Inc of Toronto pointed to the recently leaked NDP document on proposed reforms to the Labour Relations Act, which stated, "Consultations should be carried out to neutralize business opposition," in the absence of meaningful dialogue. I am very worried that the government wants to neutralize opposition instead of listening to opposition, because if it is neutralizing opposition, it is neutralizing business. If they neutralize business, there go the jobs of their constituents as well as mine. We have seen a very intrusive government with passage of such bills as Bill 70 and a retroactive rent control act.

The reality is that Ontario is trading north-south with the United States. For years and years the pattern of our trading has been north-south, and it goes right across Canada. We do not do heavy east-west trading. British Columbia trades with the west coast. Ontario trades with the central part of the United States, as Montreal trades with the east coast.

Unless we are competitive and unless we have those jobs—when I say "competitive," the government should not misunderstand this as a suggestion that we want it to go out and hack and cut wages but should understand that it must have people who are prepared to work hard and pay their fair share of taxes, but not too much in taxes. We are not going to be able to build the economy on government-created jobs. In the first two months of this year alone, 650 businesses went under. I think that wrong-thinking government is the problem, and the loss of confidence is significant.

Interjections.

Mr Turnbull: If the gentlemen who periodically heckles me does not believe this, he should go out and meet some small businessmen and ask them whether they are making any money. The member who was heckling me is now nodding his head; he does not believe it. Obviously he has not been speaking to small business. They are not making ends meet.

Mr Wiseman: Yes, but the first thing they tell me is, "Do something about the dollar." Have a secret meeting with your pals.

Mr Turnbull: The member who is heckling, talking about the dollar, obviously did not read the Toronto Star article I read to the members today. The Toronto Star is talking about the interest rates. The interest rates are the driving force of the dollar, and the interest rates are increased by government overspending.

Mr Jamison: The interest rates are going down, but the dollar is going up, right?

Mr Turnbull: The reality is that interest rates in other countries have been going down quicker than ours. They have said it themselves.

The loss of confidence in this province is well seen in the building trade. We are seeing that builders are going out of business at an alarming rate because they do not believe they are going to be able to fill their buildings. I will reflect on the builders of industrial buildings.

There is always a boom-bust cycle with commercial real estate. We know that and we expect it, and you can say that in many respects maybe a lot of small developers are unwise. They do not understand the cycles and there is a lot of luck involved in it. The problem is that if you create an environment where you do not believe there is ever going to be any light—what is happening is that banks are foreclosing on the mortgages of builders who have empty space because they do not believe that in this province we are ever going to be able to fill it.

We need the kind of restraint which says we should not be increasing the amount of parliamentary staff. We know that in fact the present government has made every single member of its caucus a parliamentary assistant if he or she is not a minister or a Chair of a committee so he or she will get more money. To my knowledge, this has not been done by governments before. We have had an astronomical increase in the number of political staff in all the ministries. There has never been as many political staff under any government as there is now.

We have seen an increase in the remuneration year over year for the civil service of 14.6%, which means that not only have we increased pay, but we have also increased the number of civil servants. Yet the imperative is to reduce it.

The chairman of Ontario Hydro, as I said, got an increase to $400,000, yet he was earning only $130,000. I ask this government why. Did they ask him and he said, "No, I won't work unless I get $400,000"? He was prepared to work as a deputy minister. Was he only working one third of the time as deputy minister? I suggest he was not. He is not going to be working longer hours; he just wanted more. He wanted the big political payoff.

All political parties in this country should stop political payoffs. There is no doubt about it that all parties have indulged in it and it is time we have to wake up. We need to get confidence back in the economy and, most of all, we have to have the Treasurer back off his tax plans. As we examine the budget document we cannot escape the fact, based upon the projected increase in revenues and the deficit numbers, that to arrive at the increased revenue numbers he is somehow going to have to get $10-billion worth of extra taxes in there, and $10 billion of extra taxes is going to kill us. It is going to choke us.

If the Premier is serious about co-operation, he should repeal Bill 70, proclaim an abandonment of plans for succession duties and capital gains tax on principle residences, repeal Bill 121 and show some flexibility.

1610

Mr Bisson: I did not intend to debate this particular bill today, but after hearing some of the statements made by my honourable friend from the Conservative Party, I thought I would take this opportunity to raise a couple of issues that were talked about and to talk a little bit about a few other things as well.

It is quite interesting when we get into these debates. Obviously, being three political parties, we bring in a different ideology to how we run government and how we do things in general. The whole idea of how the parliamentary system operates is that supposedly a political party has a particular ideology and brings that to the way it runs government. Obviously each of these political parties is going to talk about how it feels it should do things, that it should be there and how the other person who is there is obviously doing it all wrong. "If only I was there, I would do it better." I would just like to raise a couple of points in that light on what was talked about here.

One of the things the honourable member discussed in his debate, and I listened with great interest, was the whole idea of how governments are run, and specifically how the Ontario government is run, through the civil service in a not very effective, not very efficient way. It is an interesting statement, coming from a member whose political party ran this province for some 40 years. It seems to me the Conservative Party of the day was at the helm for some 40 years. They were the ones who controlled the civil service of this government. They were the ones who controlled and put together much of the policy in regard to how the civil service would conduct itself, how government would do business. They put together a lot of that.

Mr Turnbull: It was a good civil service in those days.

Mr Bisson: It is not to say that everything the civil service did and everything the Conservative Party did in that 40 years was wrong, but for the member to come here and say that all of a sudden, a year after the 1990 election, the civil service is somehow too bureaucratic and is not doing a good job I think is only a statement for political gain and has nothing to do with the reality of what is happening within the civil service of the province. I think most people would admit, including people in the civil service, that obviously any company, any government or any organization must always strive to find better ways to be able to deliver the services the particular business or government or whatever is trying to provide. That is called good management. But for the member to stand here in this House and to start talking all of a sudden about a civil service that is totally bureaucratic, not doing a job the way it should be and that is totally inefficient—

Hon Mr Ferguson: It's an insult.

Mr Bisson: I think it is not only an insult to me as a member, but I would say it is an insult to the civil servants of this province, who actually do a very good job for the people of Ontario. I think the member should think a little bit more when making statements like that, because what he is talking about are some 80,000 people who work for this province who really work hard at trying to provide services for the people of this province.

He should also keep in mind that it was his party that put together the system we have today. Much of it is good, some of it is bad and what this government is attempting to do and what this government is striving to do is to find ways to be able to deliver the services to the people of this province in a way that is effective.

It is a very big process because, yes, we are a big province. There are some 9.5 million people in Ontario who demand service from the government. Those services are provided through the civil service of Ontario. It is not a task we will be able to undertake to change overnight or within a month or within two months or a year. It is a fairly lengthy process you need to go through to find better ways of being able to do the business of the province. We need to be able to put together a system over the long term that speaks about efficiency in the way you deliver services within Ontario.

But for the member from the opposition to speak about the civil service in the negative way he did I think is ludicrous. It does not reflect the reality of what is happening within the civil service of this province, and I would also remind him that it was his party that put the system together, so he should not preach to this government about how things are being done. They put the system together.

A number of other points the member raised are worth mentioning. I would really like to talk about one of them because it is something the constituents of my riding, as well as constituents in other ridings I have visited in the time I have been in this Legislature, have spoken about to me, and I imagine, not only to government members but all members of this assembly. This is all about the question of what kind of message the government is sending to the business community in Ontario.

The opposition would make us believe that trying to provide laws and regulations that speak about fairness to the people of this province somehow is scaring business away, that somehow businesses by the hundreds are packing their bags and moving across the border to the United States. It is not to say there are not businesses going to the United States, but I think we should recognize a few facts. Many of those businesses that have chosen over the past number of years—I would say three to four years—to move to the United States have been directly affected by some federal policies that have been put in place. I think we would admit that.

There was negotiated something called the free trade deal, which most Canadians have not forgotten about, that has devastated not only the economy of Ontario but the economy of the entire country of Canada. It has devastated us. Speak to the hundreds of thousands of workers across this country who have lost their jobs. Why? Companies have moved to the United States because the federal government, through the free trade agreement and other pieces of legislation, has put together a system that makes it much easier for them to get over there and not live up to their responsibility as corporate citizens within this country. That is why they are moving.

They are also moving because of other policies that have been put in place—I know the members of the opposition do not like to hear this, especially the Conservatives whose cousins sit in Ottawa at this time—the high interest policy and the high dollar. When I speak to the lumber sector in my area, around Timmins, Iroquois Falls, Kapuskasing and Kirkland Lake, and to the mining communities, those companies come to me not only as parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Northern Development and Mines but also as a member and say: "The high dollar is killing us. It's killing our ability to be able to compete with the Americans."

What is the opposition really talking about when it talks about creating a climate that is more conducive to business? I think every member in this Legislature will admit and will push towards making sure that we provide the best climate possible. But the difference we are talking about in this government—

Mr B. Murdoch: What high dollar? The dollar's lower than it's been for the last 12 years.

Mr Bisson: I see I have awakened an honourable member on the other side. That is very good.

The point is, what are they talking about when they talk about a climate? Are they, the Conservative members of this Legislature, saying, "The climate we wish to put together should be a climate that says workers have no rights"? Are they talking about a climate that says, "We shall not protect our environment"? Are they talking about a climate in which there is no equity within our society?

When I listen to what they are saying, the message is that they want to create a society that has no equity within it. They want a society that returns to the good old days, what we now see in Chile and other South American countries that have very weak governments which allow companies to come in and do what the heck they want. "You want to open a mine in Brazil? You want to open a mine in Chile? Come and pollute our environment. We don't care."

Is that the kind of climate we want to see in Ontario? Those same countries are saying, "You want to come in and you want open up a business in our country and you want to kick your workers around and you don't want to pay them wages," as they do in Mexico and other countries. Is that the kind of country they are trying to build? Is that the message they are giving?

If that is what the members of the opposition are talking about, especially our Conservative friends, that is not the kind of province we want to see in Ontario. I think a vast majority of Ontarians would say: "Right on. We want to create a society that has equity within it, where we care about those who are not able to take care of themselves because of injury, because they are handicapped or because they may have mental problems with regard to difficulties they may have been going through because of stress or whatever. That is why we have our social programs. We want a society where, if you get sick, you have a medicare system to protect you when you are in need of medical attention. We want a society that says there is equity." That is what this government is talking about.

Excuse me, Mr Speaker, if I feel somewhat—I will not make that remark because it would be unparliamentary to say what I was thinking. If they are talking about putting together a society that says there is no equity and all of the laws are for an élite few, that is not the type of society we as New Democrats believe in.

Addressing myself more specifically to this bill, what are we talking about? The member stood here a little while ago and talked about how this bill is going to do damage to the province, how this bill is going to drive out the business sector of Ontario because it is sending the wrong message. What is the message in this bill? If you make under $22,500 per year and are a single parent and have two children, you will pay no provincial income tax. I think that is a pretty good message to give people.

1620

What is he talking about? Does he want people who cannot afford to pay taxes to pay even more, as his federal cousins did with the GST? No, this government said clearly that we should not be trying to tax excessively those people who do not make enough money and have families at home they have to provide for. We should be trying to help them. That is what this bill is saying. It is saying that if you make under $22,500 a year and have two children at home, you will not pay any provincial income tax. Bravo. It is about time a government spoke up for the little people.

The other part of the bill says—I think this is what is really irking our Conservative friend—if you make over $84,000 a year, you should pay a little bit more. That is what the bill says. The bill specifically says that if you as a citizen of Ontario make $84,000 a year or more, you will pay a little bit more tax—not 50% more tax, not 40% more tax, but a very small amount. We are talking in the neighbourhood of about 10%. I do not know the exact figure offhand, but I know, from the notes I have read, that it is somewhere in the neighbourhood of 8% to 10%.

If you make $84,000 a year, I do not say that is a lot of money, but it is clearly a lot more money than the poor single parent who makes $22,500 a year. Certainly the person with more money should pay his fair share of taxes. That is what we have said in this bill: If you make more, you should pay a little more. You should not be allowed to pay fewer taxes in this society. If you are making $84,000, then you should pay more taxes than a person with $22,500.

This bill talks about equity. That is what irks the member. He does not want equity in our society; he wants a society that caters to one particular segment of our society. This is not to say that this segment is not important. We need that segment of our society. We need the business people. We need the people with the money. We need millionaires. We cannot survive as a society without them. What we are saying is that those with money have to take the responsibility.

In the employment I had before I became a member of this Legislature I made $60,000-plus a year. As a person making over $60,000 a year, I expected I should pay a fair share of taxes. I did so and I did so willingly. I did not argue about it because I believed we should provide for people who were less able to provide for themselves because of circumstances not under their control. One should not go to the persons who are on social assistance because they are disabled and cannot work. There are people in this province, as in any other province, who are in that situation. What do we do? Do the Conservatives advocate that we throw them out in the street to the wolves? Maybe that is the way it was done in the old Conservative governments in the 1930s, but that is certainly not the way we want to do it in the 1990s under a New Democratic government. We need to allocate dollars to those programs to make sure there is enough money to provide for those who are having difficulty.

The government is being very proactive. It is increasing the minimum wage. Why? So that it pays to go to work. Not $5 an hour; that is below the poverty line. We are saying, "Let's try to increase the minimum wage to 70% of the industrial rate over a graduated period of time." Why? Because people do want to work, but they want to get paid for what they do. If a person happens to be on social assistance and is faced with the prospect of going to work and making $7.50 or $8 an hour, and can make more money working than on social assistance, he will work. People want to work but we need to remunerate them for those services.

The social cost is quite positive in the long run. When members in the opposition speak against it, I really wonder why they are doing that. Do they truly not understand what it is about or are they saying, "We want to set up laws for the elite few"? This government is not interested in that. We want to put laws in place that are fair and equitable to all members of society because that is the secret to this.

When looking at any law within Ontario or Canada, we need to write laws that are global laws, laws that do not only speak to a specific group sitting in one corner of the society but laws that recognize that there are other people who are affected by those laws. This is what the role of just government is about. It is about putting together laws that take into account that there is more than one side to any situation.

It is a little like a ball. If we sit here in the Legislature today and say, "This is the issue at hand," some on the Conservative side of the House may say: "We should answer it strictly from this side. We should look at the problem only from this side because that is the only side that matters." But there are people like Mr Speaker who sit in the chair who see it their way and there are people in the opposition looking at it their way. No matter which way we look at it, there is a different way of looking at it. The problem is not uniform. Any situation must be looked at from all sides, not the way they are talking about it on the other side, saying: "Let's look at it just from the one side. Let's look at it only from our side." No, we are not interested in that.

The member made an allusion that I did not object to at the time he said it. I was going to get up on a point of order but I said: "No, we'll let him say his thing. We'll let him have his time." The member talked about the whole question of affordable housing and tried to allude to how affordable housing was something they supported in some way but thought was a bad investment. All the program says is that we as a government will lend money to a co-op housing movement, for example, over a period of some 20 or 25 years. We are asking the co-op housing movement to go out and build the units and to provide rent at a reasonable rate. Over a 20- or 25-year period the government will then get its money back.

That is pretty good business to me. Sure it costs us money up front, but we end up getting it back over the long run and we end up providing affordable housing so that people can live in dignity, so that people do not have to live in squalor, so that people do not have to live on the street. We can provide the housing that is necessary, not only because it is something we want to do but because it is a social responsibility.

If government did not provide services such as affordable housing, social services, welfare and all of those other programs, what would happen to our society? We would not be able to walk the streets of Ontario. If a person did not have a job for whatever reason, because he was laid off because of the free trade agreement, was disabled or was an injured worker who got nothing, what would he do? He would stand on the street corner and say: "Stick 'em up and give me your wallet. I need money to pay my rent and feed my family." This would cost our society a lot more money in the long run because people would get hurt and people would get shot. We would have to spend more money on policing. There are many things we would have to pay for if we did not have the programs in place to serve the public good of society. There is truly a cost to that.

Earlier this year, I say to the members of the opposition, our government handed down a budget of some $9.7 billion. Do you ever notice, Mr Speaker, that they always talk about the "NDP budget," the "socialist budget," in those kinds of terms? They forget to say a couple of things. The obvious thing is that the revenue of the province has decreased dramatically. The revenue this province is taking in this year compared to a couple of years ago is quite a bit less, by quite a few billion dollars. Why? Because of the policies that were set in place, because of the global economy we find ourselves in and because of what the federal government has done to us with regard to putting in the free trade agreement, having a high dollar and having high interest rates. There has been an effect. We have lost revenue because of it. We have also lost revenue because the federal government has cut back on our transfer payments. The cousins of the Tories who sit over here sit in Ottawa and have cut our transfer payments, as they have done to every other province. That is why our deficit, as well as our expenditures, has gone up.

Why? There are many more people today in 1991 who are in need because of the way the economy is for whom we have to provide. We have a million people on social assistance in this province. What do we do? Do we leave them to the wolves? No, we must provide, but we must plan at finding long-term solutions so we do not find ourselves in that position again. This is what this government is interested in doing.

1630

The other thing they do when they talk about the deficit is they try to compare the Ontario deficit to the deficit of British Columbia, the deficit in Prince Edward Island or the deficit in Quebec. You cannot compare apples and oranges. It happens to be that Ontario has 9.5 million people of a total population in this country of some 20 million. Certainly we have a larger deficit compared to other provinces, but we also have a much larger economy.

As an example, we spend roughly $50 billion a year here in Ontario compared to some $16 billion in British Columbia. They have an operating deficit of some $2 billion—we are not quite sure now. I am sure when Mr Harcourt moves in, he will look at the books and maybe find some surprises such as we were left with, but for now it is $2 billion. Two billion dollars on a $16-billion operating budget in British Columbia cannot be compared to $9.7 billion on a $50-billion budget in Ontario. They cannot compare apples and oranges.

The honourable member said the federal government went into Ottawa under the Tories and Mr Brian Mulroney in 1984 in order to fight the deficit. I remember the campaign well. They were going to fight the deficit and they were going to give us jobs, jobs, jobs. What did they do? They doubled the deficit. Some fiscal responsibility. Some managers. They tried to accuse us of not being able to manage. I think they should look at their federal cousins, ask them the same question and say, "Truly, you have demonstrated over eight years you can't manage. That is why the Canadian people want you out, as well as for some other reasons."

The reality is that what happens in this debate is the same message that has been trying to come out of the opposition. They have been trying to paint a doom-and-gloom picture in Ontario. They have been running around in opposition, yelling within the newspapers and through some of their friends in the business sector. I wish them well as far as the business sector is concerned. They accuse us of being allied to labour. I am proud to say I come from the labour movement. I used to work for the Steelworkers, I used to work for the Ontario Federation of Labour, and I say that with great pride. I think that is a great way to make a living and it is a good way to be able to advance social policy.

These people along with their allies within the business community have been running around this province yelling: "Chicken Little, the sky is falling. Ontario is falling apart because the socialist hordes have taken over in Ontario." That is what they have been yelling, and they have been undermining the confidence of the consumers in this province. I say shame on them, because they have been trying to undermine, trying to pursue that kind of tactic and trying to blame all the problems in Ontario on the NDP government. The reality is, we just took power a year ago. The problems that are here are clearly not all problems that were caused by the NDP government; 99.9% of them were here when we got here. That is the reality.

The members opposite run around saying, "Doom and gloom" and "Chicken Little" and "The sky is falling" and "The socialists have taken over at Queen's Park." They try to undermine, for political reasons, the position of the government, but what they end up doing is hurting their friends. They end up hurting the small business sector, which relies on the confidence of the consumer to walk through his or her doors to buy goods.

When I talk to people in my riding, as I talk to people around this province, some people—not all—are afraid to spend their money today because they are hearing all this talk that is going around: "I'm not going to spend money on that new stereo system or the dishwasher or the automobile or whatever, because I want to see what is going to happen. I want to see some confidence in the economy." But the opposition runs around yelling, "Chicken Little," and it is almost like a self-fulfilling prophecy. If they do it long enough, they will undermine the economy to where we are not going to have 10% unemployment, quite possibly it will be a lot higher. That is what they have been doing.

I would like to summarize by saying that the members opposite must be very careful when they start to talk in this Legislature or speak within the society of Ontario. Their agenda should be to try to boost the confidence of consumers. They should be trying to encourage investment in Ontario, not scare it away, as they have been trying to do for purely political gain.

The last point I would like to make is that if the Tories, and to a certain extent the Liberals, are speaking about a society that has no equity, a society that has a let-her-rip attitude that says, "We don't want to provide for a healthy workplace; we don't want to provide for a healthy environment" that is not the Ontario I wish to live in. I think that is why the people of Ontario voted massively in the last election to elect an NDP government. They wanted a change, and that is exactly what we are doing. We are proceeding with caution on all fronts, recognizing that we are in the middle of the worst recession in recent history, to put together programs that are going to find solutions over the long term.

Kapuskasing has served as a model to other communities and other industries that are having difficulties. The government entered into a real partnership. We plan on changing things within the civil service as well, to make sure we have a more efficient government, much more efficient than what we were left with.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Farnan): Any comments or questions on the speech of the member for Cochrane South?

Interjections.

Mr Turnbull: If there is some agreement that we are not to make comments, I will withdraw.

The Acting Speaker: We are continuing the debate.

Mr Stockwell: There has been a lot of talk very recently with respect to the budget, the deficit and exactly the tax position the government is left with at this time.

I thought it was interesting that as recently as this weekend there was a report in the newspaper about this government examining methods by which it could dispose of government assets to raise capital to offset the deficit and debt. To me, it is a rather interesting approach this government uses so early in its mandate. I am not surprised they have requested the report and I am not shocked that these are the avenues they would propose to go down, considering the amount of money they spend. I am rather surprised that so early in their mandate, just over a year, they are already investigating methods by which they will have to sell off assets that this province has accrued over some 125 years so they can bring in a budget that does not enter into double-digit deficit numbers. That double digit of course would be $10 billion.

It is very concerning for me and I think for the people of this province for two reasons. Specifically, we are looking at a government that is prepared to take a lot of the items, a lot of the issues it was investigating, all these jewels we have acquired over the years and in some cases in the Metropolitan Toronto area—I think Ontario Place was mentioned in that report—and examine whether or not it would want to sell them to cover up for its shoddy, shortsighted, mismanaged ability to handle the finances of this great province.

The Acting Speaker: If I may interrupt the member for a moment please, not to make any comment on the member's remarks, but it would be helpful if you could link them to the topic we are debating this afternoon which is Bill 83, An Act to amend the Income Tax Act. If you could make reference to the act every so often it would be helpful.

Mr Stockwell: Yes sir, I appreciate that. I apologize. I digressed. I will try to tie it back in the same vein.

What this government is doing, in my opinion, is investigating and implementing through this piece of legislation taxes and methods by which it can cover up what I consider to be a rather shortsighted, mismanaged approach to financing in this great province.

I also believe fundamentally that this government is totally out of touch with the needs and concerns of the average citizen in this province. They make many grandiose boasts about being in touch with those people in need. I am not suggesting that we all understand the people who are in need, the concerns and difficulties they are facing with the economy as it is today, but may I suggest that there are a great number of people out there who are just getting up to go to work, coming home from work, trying to make a living, paying their mortgage or their rent and raising their children. They are finding it very difficult to do those things under this particular government.

1640

It is becoming more and more onerous to make ends meet or find enough money to survive when government upon government—and not just this government but all levels of government—tax them to the poorhouse. Some people have suggested that is exactly what this government would like to see, everybody at the poorhouse, and then it could potentially corner the market on votes because it would offer the most benefits if one were there.

I do not think that is a proper approach. I often hear from this government about its understanding of the business community, understanding of the taxes levied and understanding of exactly what the people of this province face every day when it comes to surviving in this kind of economy.

I said this in the first session and I will say it again this session: I do not honestly believe the government has a fundamental grounding in business decision-making, and it is becoming more and more apparent every passing day that this government sits in this House.

We are seeing jobs evaporate. Some 200,000 or 300,000 jobs have evaporated from this province under this government. They are talking about the creation of jobs; I do not see it. I do not see a huge job creation taking place in this province. They talk about being fiscally responsible and dealing with the fiscal realities of the electorate today. Frankly, I do not see that. I say to my friends across the floor in direction to this new tax the government is recommending for approval today that I do not hear any one out there in the communities that I visit who honestly believe the government is doing what is best for the taxpayers in Ontario.

In fact, by deficit financing the government is incurring taxes. By increasing spending the government is incurring taxes. By the legislative proposals it is making today under the labour act, etc, the government is driving businesses out of this province, and by some of the other programs the government initiated, such as the Power Corporation Amendment Act, the government is trying to change the history of that organization so that it may implement government policy on the social services side.

There is much concern out there from the electorate about whether or not this government truly understands the business community, truly understands the economic roles we are faced with and truly understands the average taxpayers who simply go to work every day and try to raise their families, pay their rents or pay their mortgages every month or week, whenever it comes due.

I am becoming more and more concerned and obviously more and more in agreement with the electorate that this government is totally out of touch when it comes to the introduction of tax measures, deficit financing and the sorry state of affairs this weekend about the government examining whether or not to sell off assets of this province to cover the debt it has driven up through mismanagement. Fiscally, they are irresponsible.

I offer some words of wisdom to this collection of advocates and union organizers and so on and so forth. I offer a brief word of wisdom to them.

Mr Runciman: Socialist misfits.

Mr Stockwell: No, I did not say that.

I offer a brief word of warning to them. If they do not change their tack very shortly and realize the hardship they are putting average Ontarians under, the hardship they are putting business under—big, small, middle-sized—they are going to find themselves in a matter of three or four years governing nothing. They are going to govern social service payments, they are going to govern processes by the way money flows out, but they are going to be governing nothing when it comes to inflow of capital, inflow of cash, taxes.

This bill is another example of the short-sighted, narrow-minded attitudes of a government that does not understand terms such as investment, entrepreneurs, private sector risk-takers.

Mr Runciman: Profit.

Mr Stockwell: Profit is another word they certainly do not understand.

Until they become a little more in tune with these types of people, they are going to continue to go down the same road. I think the person in charge of the small business community in this province—the name of the organization slips my mind right now but it is the independent small business group—referred to speaking with the members of this government as talking to trees. That was the analogy he made. It was like talking to trees because they simply did not want to hear what he had to say or they did not understand what he said.

Sometimes I think they do not want to hear what is being said, but I just believe in a lot of cases they really do not understand. I suppose they do not understand because the members come from backgrounds that consist of being an advocate or a union organizer—never having to meet a payroll, never having to pay taxes on a business and so on.

Interjections.

The Acting Speaker: Order. Will the member take his seat, please? We are being quite generous in allowing the member some degree of range of comment. I ask the member to speak to the topic and refer to the bill under discussion.

Mr Mammoliti: Why don't you mention Frank magazine as well?

Mr Stockwell: Frank magazine—

The Acting Speaker: Order. First, the member who has the floor will speak to the Chair and, second, there will be no interjections. I ask the member for Yorkview to refrain from such interjections.

Mr Stockwell: Relating it back to the piece of legislation at hand, I request that this government take a long, hard look at any new tax measures it brings forward; a long, hard look at any new taxes it plans on investigating, and a long, hard look at the spending side of this provincial government. I see across the floor a lot of concern and a lot of thought but very little substance, very little concrete information flowing from this government with respect to taxes and the burden it places on the people of this province.

In closing, I would like to think, now that we are into our second year under this government, that it would begin to realize that everyone in this province who is involved in small business, large business, middle-sized business, the private sector and the insurance industries cannot be wrong.

I saw them flip-flop pretty nicely on that and I am happy for them. I am glad they did. It is difficult, I am sure, to flip-flop publicly as obviously as that and maintain any sense of dignity, but they did.

I would think that they must look at what these people are saying to them. Business communities across this province are saying en masse, "You're going down the wrong road." Again, back to this tax bill, I do not think they all can be wrong. I do not think they all can have only their interests at heart. I do not think they are absolutely out of touch or way off base. They must have some sense of credibility. They must know from where they speak. They must understand the business community, the investment community, the tax situation, etc. If government members give them an opportunity to explain it to them, I think they will learn quite a bit, because what is becoming very apparent—and I am closing—is that businesses are closing, jobs are being lost. There is very little, if any, job creation taking place by the government, and it is taking us down a road that has nothing but a rocky ending.

I thank members for their time. I am quite certain I have not swayed too many members opposite, because I think they would have to understand what I am saying before they could act on it. But I hope that someone across the floor would take an opportunity and meet with some of the business community, examine the requests that it is making and maybe give it an opportunity of implementing a few of its ideas so that we do not have constant job loss, so that we have no job creation and continue on down this road of tax and running up the debt. It is not healthy.

Mr Jamison: We have watched ourselves here today talk around the issues and about the deficit and about a number of things. I would like to point out today why these bills are important.

These budget bills are essential to implement the Treasurer's agenda and this government's agenda, as a matter of fact, as contained in the 1991 budget. The budget, as members are aware, is part of our government's commitment to bring Ontario out of the recession we are presently facing.

An earlier speaker spoke about the recession and talked about how in England, Europe and throughout most of the industrialized world there is a recession, but to listen to the opposition benches, we would think this was a recession designed by this government, implemented by this government and is going to be here as long as this government is in office. I simply have great difficulty in understanding the type of rhetoric that comes across the floor at certain times when certain bills are being debated.

1650

The failure to pass measures such as these bills in this session would undermine the Treasurer's plan and budget strategy, as well as increase the deficit. Furthermore, not only would the government not be able to collect the taxes generated by these bills; it could be challenged for collecting the tax without legal authority, including at least in one case the refunding of money already collected.

I understand that taxes are on the minds of the people of this province and of this country, but if one were to listen to the opposition one would sense that this country has learned a tremendous lesson about electing New Democrats. The present history reflects a different tone. We saw a majority New Democratic government elected in British Columbia just a few short days ago, and we expect to see a New Democratic majority government elected in Saskatchewan tonight.

We do not apologize for responding to the needs of the people of this province, who have been so hard hit, when it comes to the provincial budget. The deficit is one this government or any government could not avoid without tremendous—I have to emphasize "tremendous"—dislocation in this province, far beyond the dislocation that has taken place, and yet we hear time and again about having this government cut, slash, cut. The problem is that we do not see the same people on their feet telling us where they would cut and by how much and who would be affected and who would do without.

Government deficits are sometimes—

The Acting Speaker: Order, please. I want to give the same direction I gave to the previous member, that it would be useful if the member who had the floor were to make reference occasionally to the bill under discussion. It may legitimize his argument.

Mr Jamison: Bill 83 is the bill we are discussing here today. I think it is very important to recognize that this bill is important to the future of this province. One might ask, what is the purpose of Bill 83? The purpose is that it increases the surtax on those paying over $10,000 in Ontario tax, from 10% of the tax for 1990 to 12% for 1991 and 14% for 1992 and subsequent years.

Why does it need to be passed, one might ask? I would say part of the government budget policy announced in the Treasurer's budget of 1991 is to implement measures that are fairer. I believe this will happen as a result of the passage of Bill 83.

We have heard opposition members talk about deficits, and yet when we have a deficit and difficult times it is the responsibility of the Treasurer to look for funds to try to allow the Treasurer and the government the means to their ends. Government deficits are sometimes unavoidable, and this is one of those times.

Mr Tilson: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I notice here are no representatives from the official opposition in the House. Is that proper procedure?

The Acting Speaker: It is not customary for members to comment on the presence or absence of other members in the Assembly. What is important is that there is a quorum in the House. If there is a quorum, the business of the House can then continue.

Mr Tilson: Mr Speaker, I was not asking about any specific members. I see one has returned, so I will drop it.

The Acting Speaker: The member may continue with his comments.

Mr Jamison: We are here to talk about Bill 83, and certainly many different areas have been covered today. When we talk about Bill 83 it is part of the provincial budget, and I know much talk has gone on here today about deficits. We plan to reduce the deficit as a percentage of the gross domestic product and balance the operating account by 1997.

The new spending talked about today is not excessive. It amounts to $1.4 billion, not even a 3% increase over last year. Almost half of that went directly towards our $700-million anti-recession program. When opposition members, especially the third party, talk about Bill 83 and about its being irresponsible, I ask them to reflect upon the taxation policies, the GST, that has a tremendous impact on small business. Small business is important in this province. It generates 75% of all the new jobs in this province at this time. Small business and the jobs related to it represent 34% of the jobs in this province.

The provincial budget also brings in new programs like the manufacturing recovery program—$57 million to assist companies that are based here in Ontario.

The other thing is that we sometimes get browbeaten in here about trying to provide for people during tough times, but recent province-wide hearings of the standing committee on finance and economic affairs told me that this was not what we were finding. There was considerable support and admiration for a government that would respond in a different way from the federal government on the same basis.

Bill 83 will also result in an additional revenue of $60 million in 1991-92 and $90 million in a full year. At this point in time we would say that would help us with our economic agenda. In doing this, this government, which has as a priority the economic renewal of this province, needs and wants the support of business.

As I stand in this House and look at the opposition benches, the important thing to realize is that there is a certain degree of fear being generated from the opposition benches. As was said earlier on, this does little for the people of this province. It does little for promoting a business climate here that will provide jobs for those very people the opposition benches claim to represent.

Much of what is said in this House is self-serving, but Bill 83 is an integral part of this government's strategy.

I appreciate the time that has been given me to speak to this bill and I will be listening with interest to other speakers.

1700

Mr Runciman: I appreciate the view of the member for Norfolk, a member I like and respect, but I want to take issue with one of the things he made reference to in suggesting that the opposition parties are raising issues to create concern among the business community in this province.

We have seen, week after week and month after month, declarations from a variety of business organizations and the creation of new organizations, alliances of business people and ordinary men and women in this province who are very much concerned about what this government is doing, what it has done with respect to the deficit and what it contemplates doing with respect to labour law changes. Those are very real concerns out there. We in the opposition are not fabricating them. We are simply conveying in this House the concerns of the people we represent in this province and trying to get the message through to this government that what it is doing is, in the long haul, going to do significant damage to this province's economy.

In essence, I take issue with the member suggesting that we are raising these matters in the House purely for political reasons. Quite the contrary: We are raising them because those concerns are being expressed among the public of this province, especially among the job-creating members of the Ontario population.

Mr Bisson: It was interesting to listen to the member for Leeds-Grenville and his remarks on the comments made by our member.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Villeneuve): The comments are to be addressed to the honourable member for Norfolk's presentation.

Mr Bisson: That is what I am addressing. I agree totally with the points made by our member that the whole question is that we need to have legislation and rules put in place in this province for all the people of the province and not strictly for an élite few, as the member for Leeds-Grenville admittedly said his party represents—his particular friends.

Mr Tilson: I have a few brief comments with respect to the member for Norfolk. He mentioned the issue of fear, that it is developing around this province. He is quite right: There is a genuine fear as to where this province is going. There are businesses going bankrupt and businesses leaving the country, all over the fiscal policies of this government. When you start getting deficits of $10 billion that are going to continue rising—there is no sign this government is going to cut its programs. It is a spend, spend, spend type of government.

Mr Abel: People starve.

Mr Tilson: All right, we are into municipal elections around this province. We are hearing the concerns of tax coalitions throughout the various municipalities.

Mr Abel: You don't care if people starve.

Mr Tilson: Who cares? That is exactly the issue. The people on this side care. The people over there do not care one iota. That is the problem. This government does not care. The people who are running for office in municipal elections are concerned about the continuous increase of taxes on the property owners of this province, and they are concerned about the increase of taxes throughout the province. This government should take note of what is going around in the immediate elections and the fear that is in existence. There is a serious fear this province has gone into a recession that is going to continue farther than we had ever dreamed, all because of their policies.

Mr Mammoliti: I would like to commend—

Mr Tilson: Thank you.

Mr Mammoliti: No, not the member who just spoke; that is for sure. I would like to commend the member on this side who just finished an excellent and commanding speech.

I would like to address one area of his speech, an area that a lot of people in Canada are aware of, the fact that more and more provinces are looking to NDP governments. I am looking forward to tonight. I am looking forward to the next majority government in Saskatchewan. I for one know that people all over Canada are concerned, as the member for Dufferin-Peel is concerned. However, they are concerned for the average person, not for the rich.

The rich are important, let's face it. Without the rich, there would not be the jobs created, there would not be the businesses. That is so important. But the rich are not everything, I say to the member for Dufferin-Peel. He is concerned, I agree. He is concerned for only one thing, and that is to make the rich richer. He is not concerned about the average person. He is not concerned about the ratepayer out there. He is not concerned, surely, about the poor. He is concerned for only one thing, and that is to make the rich richer.

When the member talks about jobs, when he talks about this government and laying off people and about this government being unfair with its policies, I can tell him one thing. The members on this side only care for the public in general, not for the rich. The member is for the rich. He wants the rich richer. I do not like that kind of attitude and neither do my colleagues.

The Acting Speaker: We now have had the maximum number of participants in questions and/or comments. The honourable member for Norfolk has two minutes to reply.

Mr Jamison: It is interesting that my time standing on my feet has caused so much concern here in the House, but I do believe what I have said is correct. I do not normally stand in the House and expound my views. I listen intently. I have listened over the past, and certainly the degree of co-operation in this House leaves something to be desired.

I have great difficulty when the small business concerns during a recession such as we have entered are heaped on this government. This type of rhetoric coming across the floor, even as it is now, really tends to make me concerned about how efficiently a House like this can work and operate. When the rhetoric is at such a stage that it infiltrates the media and gets small business people concerned to that degree, I have to say I wonder if the members on the opposite side of the House understand exactly what they are doing to this province.

I am concerned that no one on the other side of the House would mention some of the very regressive tax policies that are implemented, the value of the dollar, things like that, talk about what manufacturers are concerned about and about the things that are affecting us.

I heard an earlier speaker talk about interest rates coming down. That is very good. I think we can all appreciate that, but at the same time the dollar is going up. That is totally unreasonable and talks about federal policy and business's ability to do business.

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: I want to thank all those who participated in the debate on this bill. Since a number of the members chose this opportunity to talk about the budget generally, I thought I might like to put on the record some of the comments ordinary citizens have made regarding the budget.

As members well know, the standing committee on finance and economic affairs spent the latter part of the summer listening to the views of individuals and groups about the budget. After months of media hysteria and criticism from members of the opposition, these citizens stood up and backed the government for the initiatives it introduced.

I well recall the hearings that were held in my own community; Thunder Bay was the first stop on the northern leg of the committee's travels. During the morning presentation, committee members got a chance to hear a total of 15 presenters. Only two expressed opposition to the government's budget. The rest endorsed it and thanked the government for backing the people of this province when they needed it most.

I recall hearing John Lorenowich, vice-president of IWA-Canada Local 2693 in Thunder Bay, saying, "We applaud you and thank you" for having compassion in the budget. Linda Gambee of the Lakehead Social Planning Council had this to say: "The budget is a major step in the right direction.... It represents an investment in the people of Ontario to lay the groundwork for sustainable prosperity in the 1990s."

Two brothers travelled several hundred kilometres to represent the citizens of Atikokan. They gave a passionate presentation about how the policies of past governments had hurt their families and how they hoped our government would continue to help people out in these hard times.

1710

All over the province reaction was similar. In Sault Ste Marie, in Sudbury, in Windsor, in London and in Brantford presenters said the government had taken bold measures to end the recession and that the alternatives chosen by the federal and other provincial governments were unacceptable.

In Toronto, Dr Adam Linton of the Ontario Medical Association—

Mr Sterling: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I wish the minister, if she would like to proceed in this debate, would stick to the principles of Bill 83.

The Acting Speaker: Thank you. It is not a point of order.

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: In Toronto, Dr Adam Linton of the Ontario Medical Association congratulated the government for its commitment to health care.

Liz Barkley and Larry French of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation said:

"The Ontario government has chosen to maintain its investment in its institutions and its people.... The Ontario budget fights the recession and plants the seeds of Ontario's long-term recovery and renewed prosperity.... We are convinced that there will be broad public support for the enlightened direction taken in the budget."

What people want is politicians they can count on in good times and bad times. A professor at Queen's University, in talking about our budget, said this:

"One of the things that impressed me about Mr Laughren's budget was its honesty. He and his colleagues, by the way they have handled this budget, have restored some of my faith in politicians as persons whom you can actually trust to treat you as an intelligent human being and to tell the truth."

It is clear to me that the main concern of Ontarians who presented their views to the committee is creating and maintaining jobs, as well as improving the level of services the people of this province deserve. The reason so many people applauded the government was because our budget did precisely that.

As we begin the fall session there is very little debate on what is foremost on people's minds: jobs and taxes. But it is more complicated than just more jobs and fewer taxes. Ontarians have been deeply affected by the recession and they are looking to government to make a strong commitment to fighting the recession and providing leadership in the recovery. People also want more value for their money, better management of their tax dollars and less waste in government. People want a working relationship between government and business. They want government, labour, business and the community to work together to co-operate on the major challenges of jobs and renewals.

People want straight talk, not the kind of rhetoric that is so often heard here. They want leadership, not finger-pointing. They want to know that their government has a focus and a plan and they want a government that is committed to and capable of acting to move this province forward out of the recession.

Our government's 1991 budget fights the recession and protects working people and their families. Our government's anti-recession program has created thousands of jobs in 1990 and 1991 through projects to maintain and improve public facilities like schools, hospitals, colleges and universities. Ten thousand new non-profit and co-operative housing units will be built, adding to the supply of affordable housing and creating much-needed jobs in the hard-hit construction industry. Our government's budget provides $97 million for financial support for farmers, including $590 million in interest rate relief.

When we came into government we discovered, as everyone knows, that the budgetary surplus confidently predicted by the previous government was in fact a $2.5-billion deficit. Since then, facing the worst recession in 50 years, we have made tough choices while managing taxpayers' money carefully. We have maintained our universal health care system while moving to contain spiralling costs. We have not let the province's share of education funding decline. We decided to maintain and create some 70,000 jobs, instead of causing layoffs. Our budget will allow us to take maximum advantage of the economic recovery.

There has been criticism of the budget, to be sure, but there are many, as I said earlier, who believe we did the right thing. Just ask working men and women and their families.

Some people say we should have cut costs to prevent the deficit from rising. That might have scored some points with some, but what would have happened if we had slashed costs? It would have cost many thousands of people their jobs. It would have reduced services such as health care, education and social assistance at a time when they are already hurting. It would have also weakened consumer confidence, because when people do not have jobs they cannot buy things. It would have meant less help for laid-off workers. It would have meant fewer opportunities for our young people. It would have made it more difficult for working families to find quality child care. In short, slashing would have ultimately been bad economics because it would have hurt the majority of people in this province. This majority, I would add, does much of the productive labour in this province which produces wealth.

Let me conclude my remarks by putting on the record the words of another presenter at the budget hearings this summer. Paul Born, who is the executive director of the Community Opportunities Development Association of Brantford, had this to say:

"I am not an economist and therefore cannot comment on the issues of spending cuts, transfer payments, tax increases and deficits. As an individual involved in community economic development, I can, though, comment on the issues of vision and hope and their importance on the health of a community. I have already seen how the 1991 Ontario budget has fostered hope for many of the people we serve.”

Once again I would like to thank those here who have participated in this discussion and thank the honourable member for Nickel Belt for his 20 years in this Legislature and his ability to make such fine legislation.

The Acting Speaker: Ms Wark-Martyn has moved second reading of Bill 83.

All those in favour will please say “aye.”

All those opposed will please say “nay.”

In my opinion, the ayes have it.

Mr Turnbull: Mr Speaker, it has been agreed that the vote will be stacked for tomorrow.

The Acting Speaker: I have correspondence here signed by the chief government whip, Mrs Shirley Coppen, which reads as follows:

“Pursuant to standing order 27(g), I request that the vote on the motion by Ms Wark-Martyn for second reading of Bill 83, An Act to amend the Income Tax Act, be deferred until immediately following routine proceedings on Tuesday, October 22, 1991.”

Vote deferred.

Le vote est différé.

1720

TOBACCO TAX AMENDMENT ACT, 1991
LOI DE 1991
MODIFIANT LA LOI DE LA TAXE SUR LE TABAC

Ms Wark-Martyn moved second reading of Bill 84, An Act to amend the Tobacco Tax Act.

M^{me} Wark-Martyn propose la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 84, Loi portant modification de la Loi de la taxe sur le tabac.

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: This bill, An Act to amend the Tobacco Tax Act, implements the proposals contained in the Treasurer’s budget of April 29, 1991, as well as related administrative changes. In addition to the increase of tax on cigarettes which came into force April 30, 1991, the amendments in this bill apply Charter of Rights protection for interjurisdictional transporters. The authority to detain transporters is amended to require that authorities have reasonable and probable grounds to suspect violation. This also applies to other vehicles such as trailers, vessels, rail equipment and aircraft when used to transport tobacco products.

The amendments will make directors of a corporation who are Ontario tax collectors jointly and severely liable for uncollected tobacco tax or tax collected but not paid by the corporation, subject to a due-diligence test.

Regulation-making powers will be broadened to include cut tobacco in Ontario’s exempt tobacco control system.

The changes in Bill 84 reflect responsible management and accountability in tax collection and a recognition of the rights of those who collect tobacco taxes on behalf of the government.

Mr Sterling: I had expected that members of all caucuses would fully participate in this, especially those members who represent tobacco-growing areas. I saw the member for Norfolk leave the Legislative chamber a few minutes ago, and I hope he returns so that he will support his party’s stance on this Tobacco Tax Amendment Act.

Mrs Y. O’Neill: I am certainly pleased—

Mr Bisson: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I apologize to the member for Ottawa-Rideau, but I think the member from the Conservative caucus should understand the standing order not to comment on when people are not in the House. That is what the standing orders say. They are quite explicit.

The Acting Speaker: That is not a point of order, it is a point of view. It is appreciated, but it is not in order.

Mr Runciman: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: The member for Cochrane South’s rising and your not finding it as a point of order is quite appropriate, but I want to pose a question to you. Is there a dress code for the Legislature? If not, we should have one, and that question should be referred to the standing committee on the Legislative Assembly.

The Acting Speaker: It is not a point of order. The member for Ottawa-Rideau.

Mrs Y. O’Neill: I am pleased that the minister has confined her remarks to Bill 84 which she has introduced, because certainly as we finished up Bill 83 there was very little semblance of what we were discussing in her remarks.

The Acting Speaker: Further debate on Bill 84.

Mrs Y. O’Neill: I am pleased to rise today to comment on Bill 84, the Tobacco Tax Amendment Act, 1991. This bill provides the legislative authority to implement the proposals contained in the Treasurer’s budget of April 29, 1991, which took effect that very night at midnight. The tobacco tax rates were increased at that moment by 1.67 cents to 6.5 cents per cigarette and per gram of cut tobacco. This works out to about 33 cents on a pack of 20 cigarettes. The increase in tobacco taxes is projected to raise $250 million in additional revenue per year, bringing the total raised by tax from tobacco to $1.04 billion in annual revenue.

The Treasurer noted in his budget that tobacco-induced diseases cause 13,000 premature deaths each year in this province and that when combined with the three-cent-per-cigarette increase in federal tobacco tax, the additional provincial tax will result in a projected decline in tobacco consumption of 15%.

We all know the negative health aspects of tobacco and we all favour initiatives that will cause or promote a decline in the use of tobacco products, but this is not a dedicated tax. Bill 84 does not present a dedicated tax. The revenue engendered goes into the general revenue mix and not towards health care or education incentives, nor does it encourage, as has already been brought to the floor today, tobacco farmers and manufacturers to explore alternatives to tobacco production. This is not a dedicated tax. It is not directed to education, health measures or the promotion of alternative industries.

The direct result of this legislation will be the loss of more jobs in this province in the tobacco industry, both in farming and in manufacturing. Need I remind anyone in this House that these are the very kinds of impacts the Treasurer and indeed the Minister of Revenue expounded on today, saying that this 1991 Ontario budget was dedicated to avoiding job losses. Bill 84 does not help that.

While in opposition, the NDP championed the cause of ridding Ontario of regressive taxation. I heard that over and over again in the three years from 1987 to 1990. Regressive taxes in all forms were going to be eliminated by the NDP government. Yet once again we see the imposition of another regressive tax measure. This tax will disproportionately impact low-income Ontarians who choose to smoke. To those of limited means, be they pensioners, single parents, the unemployed—and often smoking is one of their last activities—or whoever, the effective message here is that this government is wiser than the Ontarians it is here to serve and it is going to compel people to stop smoking by pricing this product beyond their ability to pay for it, indeed beyond their income. Of course, the higher the income, the higher the ability to pay and therefore the ability to choose. Is that fair, making choices for other people?

The NDP government seems to be using its power to tax to effectively convince Ontarians to make decisions regarding their consumption of products which this government believes they should make. We have seen this principle at work before, and I find it a disturbing principle indeed. I repeat: I find this is a disturbing principle, government making laws that affect choices people can make.

This tax increase unfortunately has already encouraged theft, often with violence, and has led to increased smuggling of untaxed cigarette and tobacco products. I am sure that each person in this House can give instances where variety stores that never used to have extraordinary security measures often have had mesh implanted in their windows and often have had the cigarette and tobacco products well placed so that people cannot even see them. It is becoming increasingly dangerous to work in a convenience store at night, as the tragedies we read about in our newspapers tell us, and indeed as my constituents with firsthand experience, and not very pleasant experience, have brought to my attention. The targets these people are often avoiding and where the thefts are occurring are cigarettes and cash.

The NDP has taken neither sufficient nor effective action to ensure that substantial revenue does not continue to be lost due to lack of enforcement of existing laws pertaining to cigarette smuggling and in my view is encouraging through its neglect the increasingly dangerous trade in illegal tobacco products. I hope that some of the clauses of this act will encourage further measures.

To battle increases in cigarette smuggling, the former Liberal government implemented a new policy of marking tobacco containers on which tax has been paid. I am sure we are all familiar with that.

Mr Grandmaitre: That was a great idea, too.

Mrs Y. O'Neill: It was a very good idea.

The new marking regulations require a tape to be affixed to tobacco packages indicating the taxes have already been levied on the product. Retail compliance with marking regulations was to be in full effect by November 1990. We are almost one year farther along in the calendar and those marking regulations are certainly not enforced to their fullest. The Ontario Ministry of Revenue's estimate of marking costs for manufacturers is in excess of $10 million. However, according to consulting company inquiries, there is little indication that the Ministry of Revenue has made significant attempts to enforce the marking programs, which need to be enforced through increased inspections.

1730

As of March 18, 1991, no charges had been laid under the new marking programs. A Toronto Star investigation published in a series of articles at that time showed that unmarked, untaxed cigarettes were easily purchased within blocks of Queen's Park, in a number of Metropolitan Toronto variety stores, bars and restaurants we can all walk to.

By looking at data available from various sources, we can come to some approximation of the amount of revenue lost to the Ontario Treasury. The forensic and investigative accounting departments of Peat Marwick Thorne estimate total annual federal revenue lost from untaxed, smuggled tobacco products to be $350 million, representing over 12 million cartons. Based on population, it is reasonable to assume that Ontario would have at least a 40% share of smuggled cartons, or at least five million cartons.

The provincial tax on cigarettes per carton, including PST, is approximately $13. The federal tax on cigarettes per carton, including GST, is $18.08. Therefore, based on the Peat Marwick Thorne estimate of five million cartons, we can assume that Ontario suffers $65 million annually in lost provincial revenue, almost double what was given to the farmers. The lost federal revenue is $90.4 million, for a total estimated federal and provincial tax loss due to enforcement of $155.4 million.

These are modest estimates of revenue losses. Some have put the revenue losses for this province alone at as high as $80 million. This means the sought-after reductions in tobacco use are not always—in fact not often—realized by the government tax initiatives. Revenue losses of this magnitude would contribute to the loss, or at least the delay, of much-needed health care and education programs to combat the negative impact of tobacco use. Revenue losses could be used constructively if enforcement were in existence.

I ask the minister to provide this House with the following information concerning the smuggling of tobacco products; I will be sending a request to this effect. I would like the Ministry of Revenue's estimates of lost revenue due to cigarette smuggling and the base data on which these estimates were made. I would like to know whether there have been charges laid with respect to the sale of unmarked cigarettes in the province this year. My facts and figures, the last available data I could obtain, bring me up to the end of March 1991. I would like to know whether the ministry is implementing any new inspection and enforcement measures to put teeth into the marking regulations.

Every member of this assembly knows and understands that the lower price of tobacco products in the United States is one of the major contributors, along with cheaper gasoline and other commodities, that encourages Ontario shoppers to cross the Canada-US border to do their shopping on a weekly, if not daily, basis. As we all know, this compounded phenomenon is inflicting incalculable harm on border communities right across this province.

Tobacco is one of the products consistently named in study after study of cross-border shopping and cited by mayor after mayor as they come to Queen's Park and meet us in their own constituencies. These mayors know that the tobacco and gas taxes encourage people to cross the border to do their shopping. Mayors and community groups all across this province have begged this government—I repeat, begged this government—time and time again for some kind of assistance against this growing problem which is devastating the economies of our border communities. Yet we get the Minister of Revenue standing in this House today and saying that the 1991 Ontario budget avoids finger-pointing.

Every time this subject is brought to the floor of this Legislature, all the Minister of Revenue and the Treasurer, and in fact most of the ministers, do is point to the federal government, day after day, time after time, no matter what issue we bring up with regard to fiscal policy. The minister has refused to listen to the pleas for help from these border communities. She has refused this for over one year. There has been not one encouragement, other than a so-called summit in July, the results of which have been totally unproductive.

Now, with the budget bills and the tax policies of the NDP, she is making the cross-border shopping incentive greater, yet at the same time not even thinking of balancing them by introducing any creative, revenue-based incentives to border communities. They have given many suggestions, such as graduated taxes on gasoline and certainly no more levying of taxes on tobacco, but these claims and cries for help go totally unanswered.

The budgetary policy of this government could hardly have been more damaging to the border retailers, yet this government and this minister have done nothing—I repeat, nothing—to help the situation. All they have been capable of so far is pointing, and they have been here more than a year. The message has continued to be consistent and constant. They do not yet hear the message. No one is arguing that this is not a complex issue. We all agree that there have been any number of contributing factors, but we must recognize that the retailers who are asking for assistance, and the mayors who represent them, are Ontario retailers and that regardless of who is to blame, the Ontario government has a responsibility to do something, to do what it can.

The NDP often says, "We're doing the best we can." Well, nothing cannot be "the best we can" in 1991. We are continuing to burden the retailers. Retailers happen to be employers and the employment sector in the retail industry of this province is certainly suffering. Instead of listening to the mayors and the retailers who speak on behalf of these very threatened communities, we have a situation being made worse. Ontario retailers feel betrayed by this government, and rightly so.

Certainly the revenues coming from the retail sector of this province prove that the retail industry is suffering. Less than halfway into the budget, before the second-quarter report, which we still have not received, we have had major budget changes. The revenue figures we were presented with in April 1991 are not going to pan out. The insecurity of the business community that follows from measures such as Bill 84 has to do with consumer confidence.

I would like to ask the minister whether her ministry has any information on how the tobacco tax increase is going to affect the cross-border shopping communities. No mention comes from the government on any of these issues. What specific impact studies were done before this damaging tax increase and the others that will follow in Bills 85 and 86 were put into the 1991 budget? Finally, is her ministry working on any concrete initiatives? Communities across this province have begun to work on initiatives of their own without any assistance from this government. Is this minister aware of those initiatives? Is she willing to help any of those communities? I do not see that.

Bill 84 is another tax grab by a government having trouble managing. The desired perception, that this government is attempting to assist the antismoking campaign with Bill 84, is nothing but perception. It is certainly not reality. It is a non-dedicated tax with money going into the general revenue fund. Bill 84 is the desperate tax grab of a floundering government for more revenue for the consolidated revenue fund, which I do not consider is being managed efficiently or effectively, and I know I have many who agree with me on that matter.

With that rather sad comment, I close for the moment.

1740

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: I would like to inform the member for Ottawa-Rideau about the shopping summit that was held last summer. There were some positive things that came out, although sometimes it is hard for opposition members to see the positive things we are doing as a government.

The community assistance fund was created. I myself am active on the community assistance committee that was formed in my community of Thunder Bay. They have been doing some marvelous things. The government, through the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology, has put $5 million towards that fund to go to communities that have worked out different ways of increasing shopping in their own communities to decrease cross-border shopping.

I would also like to inform the member across the House about the tobacco marking system. The tobacco inspection program began in March 1991. Since that time, March to September 1991, 5,266 retail tobacco outlets have been inspected by ministry inspectors. Of these, 4,953 retailers were found to be fully compliant; 288 retailers were found to have a small quantity of unmarked cigarettes which they were ordered to remove; another 25 had slightly larger quantities of unmarked cigarettes on which a penalty assessment three times that of the tax value was issued.

Mrs Y. O'Neill: I thank the minister for updating me on the data of the marking inspection. I hope that inspection will continue because, as I say, there are many infractions almost within sight of this building and they have been brought to my attention by several people.

I would like to speak for a second to the community assistance fund, because I know the $5-million fund is in existence. Five million dollars is not very much to be spread over 14 very struggling communities, but it is there. I found it less than helpful last week when the member for Niagara Falls asked a question of the minister about the criteria for such assistance funds, who would make the decision and how the criteria would be developed. I have read and re-read, three times actually, the answers in Hansard on that matter. I can figure out nothing that is the least bit helpful to the communities.

I know there is good work going on in the communities, but unless the Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology comes forward and is specific, it is going to be less than helpful to the communities to know whether they qualify. I do not think any of the $5 million has been dispensed or disbursed into those communities yet, and we are now in year two of this government. We have known this was a problem since day one. It really seems to me it should be on the front burner and it should be accelerated, but I can find nothing at this point that leads me to believe that it is. I hope if there is up-to-date information on that program as well, I will be able to have it or there will be a statement from the minister on that in the House.

Mr Tilson: The subject and the intent of Bill 84 is of great interest to all of us as to exactly why Bill 84 is being passed. I think the people of Ontario have become very cynical on certain other taxes. I am thinking specifically of the tire tax. We have not seen evidence that any of the $5 raised through the tire tax goes towards the environment and the disposing of tires.

We ask the same question with respect to Bill 84. Bill 84 was introduced at the time of the budget and will take effect as of April 30, 1991. Is the purpose of Bill 84 to raise income, to produce revenue for the government for the many programs it is imposing on the people of this province? Is it a health policy? Is it being introduced to reduce smoking? Is it a type of prohibition law that says, "Thou shalt not smoke, so therefore we'll tax the industry to death"? Is it a piece of legislation that is going to affect the farming industry, particularly the area with respect to one of the earlier speakers this afternoon, the area of Norfolk or Delhi or Tillsonburg or places like that where the entire community is based on the tobacco industry from start to finish?

I look forward to hearing the minister speak on that subject, as to why this tax is being implemented, why this tax is being put forward. If it is simply to raise money for the very expensive programs this government is going to put forward, then we need to know what else it is going to do—what it is going to do for what appears to be the health policy of this government, to address the effects of this tax on the tobacco industry and indeed on the subject of cross-border shopping. All those areas need to be addressed, and I look forward to hearing from the minister and other members of the government speaking on those subjects.

As we have indicated, Bill 84 implements the tobacco tax increases that were proposed in the 1991 budget to increase the tax on cigarettes from $1.67 to $6.50 per gram and to increase the tax on cut tobacco by $1.67 per gram to $6.50 per gram. The bill also makes a number of changes to the exercise of the authority, which has been indicated by the previous speaker, to stop vehicles transporting cigarettes in bulk, inconsistent with the protection afforded under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

One of the things we have been hearing about since the budget discussions in the spring is the tremendous amount of illegal contraband, specifically cigarettes and alcohol, that is being brought into this country from the United States. The cost differential is unbelievable. We hear of people bringing it into the country privately. We hear of truckers coming in and selling it at warehouses and firms around this province, literally selling illegal contraband.

Section 3 of the bill provides that where an official authorized by the minister has reasonable and probable grounds to believe that an interjurisdictional transporter is without a registration certificate or is working for an importer or exporter or does not have the proper registration certificate issued pursuant to the act, the official may, without warrant, stop and detain any vehicle operated in Ontario by the interjurisdictional transporter and demand the production of the requisite documents.

Those are very fine words, but they are not going to do anything to stop what in fact this government has created; that is, a prohibition period of time with respect to cigarettes. People are continuing to smoke cigarettes in this province notwithstanding the great discussion of how it affects our health, how it creates cancer, all that type of very important discussion.

The fact of the matter is that this type of activity is going on in Ontario and it has been caused, I would submit, by Bill 84. Its cause is the subsequent bills that are being discussed with respect to alcohol. The question is, when the government realizes that this is taking place—we have seen how it is taking place—are there going to be any amendments put forward to this bill to stop that sort of thing, or knowing that it is causing an effect on cross-border shopping, what is it going to do to the border towns? This is one little item.

1750

Whether you are in favour of smoking or whether you are opposed to smoking really is irrelevant. The fact is that there is now evidence, because we have seen the evidence of what is going on, that this type of legislation is affecting the whole cross-border shopping and the economies of our border towns. I look forward to hearing comments from the government and the minister as to how they intend to deal with this problem they have created.

The bill will also add a new section to the act that subject to a due diligence test, will make corporation directors jointly and severally liable, "If a corporation has failed to collect tax or has collected tax and failed to remit the tax or has failed to pay any interest or penalty" related to a failure to collect and remit. That is very fine. All the legalese being put into this legislation is very fine, and simply, I submit, is to raise revenue for the very expensive programs this government has implemented before and after the introduction of the budget in the spring.

This government is going to have to deal with these other problems, is going to have to deal with the collapse of the tobacco industry. We had last week several motions put forward by this party, the Progressive Conservative Party, in an emergency debate on what we are going to do for the farmers of this province. Believe it or not, the tobacco industry is a part of the farming industry, yet this bill is going to have a major detrimental effect on that industry. What is the government going to do about it? People are going out of business.

There is no question that our party has called for a portion of the proceeds from the tobacco tax to be dedicated to alternative crop programs for farmers, retraining programs for workers involved in the manufacture of tobacco and assistance programs for communities dependent on the tobacco industry.

I do not profess to be an expert on agriculture, but it would appear that many of the members of the government are not either. There is no question that changing the farming industry in tobacco into corn or something like that—I have heard that come forward, "Well, we'll just get out of tobacco and get into corn." It just cannot be done that simply. I think before they start putting industries like the tobacco industry out of business—that is exactly what this bill is going to do—they should realize the effect it is going to have on a large number of citizens of Ontario. I am looking specifically at the southwestern section of this province. I do not think they have done that, and I would like to know from the minister what type of impact study she has done with respect to the effect on the farmer of southwestern Ontario, particularly the farming industry.

If it is simply a matter of: "Where are we going to get revenue? We'll get it from booze and cigarettes." That is a standard line. To be fair to the government, it is being used across this country. In 1991, the Quebec budget increased the province's tobacco tax by one cent per cigarette, from 4.76 cents per cigarette to 5.76 cents, and provided for another increase to 6.88 cents per cigarette that is going to be effective January 1, 1992. The Quebec government estimates these increases will boost its revenues by $94 million this fiscal year, by $100 million next year and by $103 million in 1993-94. In Prince Edward Island, the 1991 budget added an additional two cents per cigarette to the provincial tax, putting it up to nine cents per cigarette. This will raise additional revenue of $26 million this year.

We are talking about a substantial amount of revenue this government is going to have. Where is it going to go? Is it going to help the tobacco farmers in southwestern Ontario, the very people this bill is putting out of operation? What is it going to do for health policy, when statistic after statistic is being put forward on the effects of cigarettes on our health and the whole subject of cancer?

The Newfoundland government increased its tobacco tax by 1.5 cents per cigarette and by one cent per gram of tobacco. What this government is doing is not unusual. The Alberta government inflated its bite on a pack of 25 cigarettes from $1.40 to $1.75, which would increase its coffers by an estimated $41 million. I could proceed with other provinces. So what is being done is not unusual.

Because everybody else does it, surely there is some rationale. Is it simply another, to use the word that was used by the previous speaker, tax grab? Is that all it is, or is the government generally thinking out what the effect of the bill is going to be, the effect on the farmer in southwestern Ontario? What is the government going to do? What is it going to do about the increasing number of young people who are smoking cigarettes? What is the government going to do about the effect on the health of the young people of this province when we have statistic after statistic that cancer is caused by smoking, to say nothing of the smoke that surrounds the people who do not smoke and the effect it has on them?

Municipalities are passing bylaws saying that you cannot smoke in certain sections of restaurants and indeed that may be increased to the entire restaurant. This building is surrounded by people who have moved outside the building to smoke in the snow and the rain.

Mr Mills: Disgraceful.

Mr Tilson: Well, it is disgusting, but the problem is we have a health problem and we have a social problem. Is the way to solve it simply taxing it? Is that what the government is going to do?

I would hope that this government would take a long, hard look at what it is going to do in those specific areas. Are there going to be funds that are raised from the tremendous amount of revenue that is obtained from this bill to assist the border towns? The border towns, the retailers and the people in the communities certainly are not all now falling apart simply because of this bill, but it is a piece that is being added by this government. Bill 84 is typical of the problem that is adding to cross-border shopping.

The word "cigarettes" is continually mentioned. People from the United States, from outside this country, from England, who come over here and find out the cost of cigarettes in this province, as opposed to where they come from, are absolutely shocked.

If the government is saying it is a health problem, then deal with it as a health problem. Do not tax the business. Do not do it that way. That is creating a prohibition and we all know what prohibition did.

What funds are going to be put forward from this government with respect to research? There is no question that funds are put forward. The cancer societies spend vast amounts of sums on that, but what sums are going to be put forward?

There is no question we get into the whole area of cancer. Some people are more vulnerable to particular diseases, such as cancer, than others. Is this government addressing that problem? No. It is just taxing the tobacco industry out of business. That is all it is doing.

Disease is being seen more and more as the interaction of the physical and social environments, such as general and specific pollutants such as smoking and the individual environment, whether it is genetic vulnerability or life-style, all of that complicated aspect which has been dealt with by research and medical people who have talked about the whole effects of smoking.

Smoking is hazardous to health. Then, again, what are we going to do about it? The government's answer appears to be to tax this industry to death.

I have asked a number of questions of this government and I believe they are sound questions. I hope this government will listen to them and spend some time dealing with how it is going to solve the problems the bill has created.

The House adjourned at 1800.

ERRATUM

The date on the front cover of issue 70 1991 should have read:

Thursday 17 October 1991

Le jeudi 17 octobre 1991

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND)

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND)
Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Community and Social Services, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/
Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND)
Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Oriole L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND)
Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND)
PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/
Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/
Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/
Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND)
Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/
Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/
Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement

Grandmaître, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

- Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)
- Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général
- Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
- Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)
- Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement
- Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur
- Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications
- Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)
- Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)
- Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires
- Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie
- Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises
- Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu
- Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)
- Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)
- Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
- Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)
- Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND) Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie
- Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités
- Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND) Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail
- MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on regulations and private bills/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des règlements et projets de loi privés
- Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales
- Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
- Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales
- Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
- Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
- Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines
- Martin, Tony (Sault Ste Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation
- Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement
- McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)
- McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)
- McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
- McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)
- Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
- Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général
- Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
- Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice
- Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)
- Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail
- North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs
- O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
- Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)
- O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)
- O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition
- Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement
- Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle
- Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)
Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General,
 Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général,
 ministre des Services correctionnels
 Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)
 Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des
 comptes publics
Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND)
 Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre
 délégué aux Affaires francophones
Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier,
 Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre,
 ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
 Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)
 Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)
 Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité
 permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
 Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)
 Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)
Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet, Minister of Education/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, ministre de l'Éducation
 Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)
 Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)
 Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)
 Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)
 Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)
 Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des
 affaires économiques
 Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West/-Ouest ND)
 Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)
 Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)
 Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité
 plénier de l'Assemblée législative
 Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade
 and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/
 Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la
 Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie
 Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government
 Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux
Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister
 of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu
Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND)
 Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité
 extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire
 Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation;
 Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/
 Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président
 du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
 Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister
 of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé
 White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND) Chair,
 standing committee on regulations and private bills/
 Président du Comité permanent des règlements et projets
 de loi privés
Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre
 des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires
 autochtones
Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister
 of Government Services/Ministre des Services
 gouvernementaux
 Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND)
 PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/
 Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications
 Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)
 Winninger, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney
 General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap
 du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires
 autochtones
 Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des
 Services correctionnels
 Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)
 Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles
Ziemba, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND)
 Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race
 relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux
 Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes
 handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux
 Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli, Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills, Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland

Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan, Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/

Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland

Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison, Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti, Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott, David Turnbull

Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters, Jim Wiseman

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford, Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen, Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil, Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve

Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant

Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole

Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway, W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson, Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson, Drummond White

Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/

Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Drummond White

Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon

Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher, Leo Jordan, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble Sutherland, Jim Wilson

Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters

Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary, George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp, Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano

Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck, Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod, Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer

Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/

Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville

Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson

Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves, Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski, Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger

Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner

Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan

Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini, Kimble Sutherland

Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Monday 21 October 1991

Members' statements

Poaching	3015
Mr Brown
Canadian Foster Family Week	3015
Mr Johnson
Health services in Brampton	3015
Mr McClelland
Water quality	3015
Mr Cousens
Seniors Information Handbook	3016
Mr Malkowski
New Enterprise Store	3016
Mr Bradley
Affordable housing	3016
Mrs Marland
Community services	3016
Mr Frankford
Visitors	3017
The Speaker
Legislative pages	3017
The Speaker
Member's anniversary	3017
Mr Rae
Mr Bradley
Mr Sterling
Mr Laughren

Oral questions

Salary of Ontario Hydro chairman	3019
Mr Conway
Mr Rae
Police services	3020
Mr Sorbara
Mr Pilkey
Mr Curling
Salary of police board appointee	3021
Mr Harris
Mr Pilkey
Workers' compensation	3022
Mr Harris
Mr Rae
Employment	3023
Mr Phillips
Mr Philip
Assisted housing	3023
Mrs Marland
Ms Gigantes
Eastern Ontario Vegetable Growers' Co-operative	3024
Mr Villeneuve
Mr Buchanan

Purchase of carpets	3024
Mr Scott
Mr F. Wilson
Remarks by appointee to police services board	3025
Mr Runciman
Mr Pilkey
Child care	3026
Mrs MacKinnon
Mrs Boyd
Oak Ridges moraine	3026
Mrs Caplan
Mr Wildman
Vehicle licensing offices	3027
Mr Turnbull
Mr Pouliot
Correction	3027
Mr Chiarelli

Petitions

South Lincoln High School	3027
Mr Henderson
Tobacco taxes	3027
Mr Jordan

Second readings

Power Corporation Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 118	3027
Mr Ferguson	3027
Agreed to	3028
Income Tax Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 83	3028
Mr Turnbull	3028
Mr Bisson	3033
Mr Stockwell	3037
Mr Jamison	3039
Mr Runciman	3040
Mr Tilson	3041
Mr Mammoliti	3041
Ms Wark-Martyn	3041
Vote deferred	3043
Tobacco Tax Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 84	3043
Ms Wark-Martyn	3043
Mrs Y. O'Neill	3043
Mr Tilson	3046
Adjourned	3048

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities
Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le lundi 21 octobre 1991

Date anniversaire d'un député	3017
M. Rae

Deuxième lecture

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi sur la Société de l'électricité, projet de loi 118	3027
Adoptée	3028
Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi de l'impôt sur le revenu,
projet de loi 83	3028
Vote différé	3043

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi de la taxe sur le tabac, projet
de loi 84	3043
Débat ajourné	3048

Listes des députés

Les députés et leurs responsabilités
Comités de l'Assemblée législative

72 1991

72 1991

ISSN 1180-2987

Legislative Assembly of Ontario

First Session, 35th Parliament

Official Report of Debates (Hansard)

Tuesday 22 October 1991

Assemblée législative de l'Ontario

Première session, 35^e législature

Journal des débats (Hansard)

Le mardi 22 octobre 1991

Speaker
Honourable David Warner

Clerk
Claude L. DesRosiers

Président
L'honorable David Warner

Greffier
Claude L. DesRosiers

Table of Contents

Table of Contents for proceedings reported in this issue appears at the back, together with an alphabetical list of members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario.

Reference to a cumulative index of previous issues may be obtained by calling the Hansard Reporting Service indexing staff at (416) 325-7400.

Numbering of Hansard

Effective with the opening of the Second Session of the 35th Parliament, Hansard issues and pages will once again be numbered on a sessional basis. Hansard numbering therefore will become consistent with Orders and Notices and Votes and Proceedings, and with other parliamentary publications throughout Canada.

For the last two years Hansard has been numbered according to the calendar year. Under this system, the numbering of issues and pages was restarted with the first issue in the calendar year, regardless of session or Parliament.

Under the new system, the sequence of numbering started in January 1991 will end with the final House and committee sittings of the present First Session. A new sequence will begin on the opening day of the Second Session, and each succeeding session, which will be issue 1 and begin with page 1. Committee reports likewise will be numbered from the first sitting of each committee in a parliamentary session.

Subscriptions

Subscription information may be obtained from: Sessional Subscription Service, Publications Ontario, Ministry of Government Services, 5th Floor, 880 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 1N8. Phone (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 or toll-free 1 (800) 668-9938.

Table des matières

La table des matières des séances rapportées dans ce numéro se trouve à l'arrière de ce fascicule, ainsi qu'une liste alphabétique de députés de l'Assemblée législative de l'Ontario.

Il existe un index cumulatif des numéros précédents. Les renseignements qu'il contient sont à votre disposition par téléphone auprès des employés de l'index du Journal des débats au (416) 325-7400.

Numérotation du Journal des débats

A partir du début de la deuxième session de la 35^e législature, les pages et les numéros du Journal des débats seront de nouveau numérotés par session. La numérotation du Journal des débats correspondra donc à celle de Feuilleton et Avis et de Procès-verbaux, ainsi que celle des autres publications parlementaires au Canada.

Depuis deux ans, le Journal des débats était numéroté par année civile. Avec ce système, la numérotation des numéros et des pages recommençait au premier numéro de l'année civile, quelle que soit la session ou la législature.

Avec le nouveau système, la numérotation commencée en janvier 1991 s'arrêtera à la dernière séance de la Chambre et des comités de l'actuelle première session. Une nouvelle série commencera le jour de l'ouverture de la deuxième session et des sessions suivantes : numéro 1, page 1. Les rapports des comités seront également numérotés à partir de la première séance de chaque comité pour une session parlementaire donnée.

Abonnements

Pour les abonnements, veuillez prendre contact avec le Service d'abonnement parlementaire, Publications Ontario, ministère des Services gouvernementaux, 5^e étage, 880, rue Bay, Toronto (Ontario) M7A 1N8. Par téléphone : (416) 326-5310, 326-5311 ou, sans frais : 1 (800) 668-9938.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO

Tuesday 22 October 1991

The House met at 1330.

Prayers.

MEMBERS' STATEMENTS

CAPITAL FUNDING FOR SCHOOLS

Mr Daigeler: Today I will do something I have not done before and probably will not be doing again for a long time. I will congratulate and thank an NDP cabinet minister.

Before the Premier and the government backbenchers get carried away with enthusiasm, I should say that my thanks would have come much earlier had the former Minister of Education listened to me in May. It was then that the member for London Centre decided to freeze the capital announcements for the Carleton school boards. This uncalled-for delay was supposedly put in place to let the Ottawa boards find an end to their long-standing accommodation quarrels.

As expected, when Larry Taman released his one-man commission report on October 9, he made one short suggestion: Release immediately the capital funds held back for the Carleton public and separate boards. My thanks go to the former minister for implementing the Taman recommendation and for authorizing an elementary school in my own neighbourhood of Barrhaven. Barrhaven parents have long been waiting for this good news. As I said, though, in a press release on October 10, late funding for Barrhaven is better than no funding.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Mr Harnick: The city of Mississauga has proposed presenting a private member's bill that would replace public library boards with committees of municipal councils that would include citizen representation. The city of Mississauga wishes to implement the above change in order to make its elected representatives more accountable for the library system. But while the proposed changes may work in Mississauga, they should not be imposed universally. Mississauga is not asking this for any other municipality.

The governance of public libraries in this province falls under the jurisdiction of the Public Libraries Act, 1984. The act ensures that a library board is fiscally accountable to the municipality. The proposed bill would allow Mississauga to have control over priorities and spending, but libraries and all cultural institutions must be guaranteed an arm's-length relationship from their political masters.

Libraries must be guaranteed intellectual freedom. The residents of North York do not want politicians determining the priorities and the use of resources for the North York Public Library. Existing legislation guarantees the separation of cultural institutions from elected officials while creating a balance between citizen participation and fiscal control by the municipality.

The city of Mississauga's proposed bill would have the effect of eroding a specific and important principle of public policy for the province, and therefore I ask the government on behalf of the North York Public Library to support the existing legislation.

SURVIVORS PSYCHIATRIC ADVOCACY NETWORK

Mr Drainville: I would like to focus the attention of the House for a moment on a group of courageous men and women in my community who are working to improve the lives of many people in Victoria-Haliburton. I am referring to the organization called Survivors Psychiatric Advocacy Network, or to use their acronym, SPAN.

Founded by Fred James, Doug Mitchel and Dayle MacCharles, it is the first time this government has funded a group of psychiatric survivors to design, develop and run their own programs. The funding of $103,000 was provided by the Ministry of Health through the anti-recession funding program. Services provided by the group include an advocacy network, one-on-one counselling for people who have an ongoing crisis, a 24-hour crisis phone, as well as training and information to professionals and volunteers who work with the psychiatric survivor community.

I think the most important role the organization plays is the empowerment of a group of people who have been marginalized by our society. SPAN has formed self-support groups which are controlled and run by those suffering from a psychiatric illness. SPAN is also encouraging psychiatric survivors to get on the boards of organizations such as the Canadian Mental Health Association and the local hospital to ensure their programs and services will truly help.

The work of SPAN is the type of effort we need to encourage. It is empowering people to work with the system in order to create solutions that meet the real needs of people receiving assistance.

CHILD CARE

Mr Sola: The Peel lunch and after-school program was founded in 1975 with the mandate to provide high-quality, affordable and accessible child care in communities where there is a demonstrated need.

At its annual meeting last night at the Meadowvale Delta Inn in Mississauga, the board of directors reported another successful season of operation. Despite the additional burden the recession has placed on PLASP, it remains responsive to the child care needs of Peel. This it accomplished while maintaining program quality, expanding services, controlling costs to maintain affordable fees, improving communications and recruiting, and developing and retaining staff.

Co-operation between the Dufferin-Peel Roman Catholic Separate School Board and the Peel Board of Education is essential for the success of PLASP. They should be congratulated for this and should serve as a model of good relations for the rest of the province.

Another essential ingredient in the success of PLASP is the collaboration of the cities of Mississauga and Brampton and the town of Caledon, and provincial support through the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

Particularly noteworthy is PLASP's budget. Total revenues of almost $6.7 million were financed 88% by program fees, 11% by provincial grants and 1% by interest and fund-raising, resulting in a surplus of $8,600.

On behalf of the 5,555 kids and 4,415 families enrolled in the program, congratulations to the board of directors, management, staff and volunteers for a job well done.

COMPENSATION TO SHEEP FARMERS

Mr B. Murdoch: Sheep farmers in my riding are growing quickly more confused with the Ministry of Natural Resources policy, or non-policy, on hunter compensation for coyotes that kill their flocks. No one can get a straight answer on this issue from either my local office in Owen Sound or the minister's office in Toronto.

On the one hand, we learn that compensation will be paid to anyone who fills out a form swearing that his or her sheep are being threatened and that certain hunters have been given permission to kill the coyotes within the vicinity of the endangered sheep. On the other hand, we hear that in order to collect compensation, a hunter must present proof of a kill. In other words, he or she must watch a coyote come on to the land and wait until the wolf has attacked a sheep before he can kill it, so that he can give evidence the coyote was doing harm.

This is ridiculous. If this is the case, I can only feel this government has sunk to its lowest level yet in terms of policy decisions. I would ask that the minister and the local office get together on this matter and decide which program is in place, and advise sheep farmers in Bruce and in Grey as soon as possible in order to end this confusion. I realize the wolf has been at most farmers' doors for a very long time, but is this government honestly thinking of now letting it loose in the sheep pen?

1340

COAT DISTRIBUTION PROGRAM

Mr Hope: There is a coverup going on in my riding of Chatham-Kent and I am going to expose it today. It started yesterday and is being carried out by the Chatham Police Association, the United Way, the Salvation Army and several area dry cleaners. To be precise, it is called Operation Coverup. It is a mission to make sure everyone in Kent county will be warm this winter through a coat distribution program.

Over the past few weeks, Kent county residents have been urged through the media to take their used coats to a host of local dry cleaners. In turn, the neighbourhood dry cleaners clean the coats free of charge before giving them to the Salvation Army for distribution. Through Friday, donated coats will be distributed at the Salvation Army Citadel Church on Victoria Avenue. Distribution will be held from noon till 6 pm each day to make the free coats available to every needy person.

This is the sixth straight year the good people of Kent county have participated in this program. Last year, almost 2,000 coats were donated to the residents of my riding. This October we are hoping for an even bigger success. Once again the residents of Chatham-Kent and Kent county have done a great job.

The leader of the third party, who I understand is looking for a new leather coat, ought to stop by. They may even have a coat for him.

COMMUNITY ACTION TEAM

Mr Mahoney: As the Premier and all members of all parties will know, we were visited this morning by a community action group, actually called the Community Action Team, from my home town of Sault Ste Marie. I would like to congratulate them for the wonderful work they have done in putting together an extremely positive report, which I know they presented to the Premier and to the Conservative Party as well as to our caucus.

I would particularly like to note that in their final recommendation or request, they state: "We are not here today asking government to do those things that the community should be doing. We are doing our part, the company and its employees are doing their part and we need government to do its part."

This is a volunteer group with a membership of approximately 10,000 people in Sault Ste Marie and Wawa. It really addresses a very critical problem in that if Algoma Steel were to close, they would lose 10,000 jobs, a 20,000 population reduction would be in effect, and they would lose local tax revenues of $20 million and a payroll of $300 million, an extremely important issue for the people in Sault Ste Marie and Wawa. There would be additional jobs lost in all parts of the province as a result of the lost revenue.

I would like to say that I consider this to be a totally non-partisan issue. I am quite prepared to work with the government, and hope that it will see fit to find a way to help this very progressive, positive group called the Community Action Team from Sault Ste Marie.

BREWING INDUSTRY

Mrs Witmer: My statement is for the Treasurer. In June of this year, I raised the issue of the serious repercussions of the phased-back ad valorem rate to small brewers in Ontario. At that time, the Treasurer indicated that this was a matter which he took very seriously and that he would "take a careful look at it."

In late summer, the Treasurer had an opportunity to meet with representatives of the small brewers of Ontario to discuss the ad valorem tax issue. Since that time, the brewers have had no response from the Treasurer. These small breweries have been paying the increased tax since June 15 of this year and it has caused them considerable economic hardship.

The small brewers would like to be allowed to return to the reduced rate until the review of this issue is completed by the Treasurer. They are also quite anxious to have this matter resolved as quickly as possible, as they are unable to make any future business decisions or provide increased employment opportunities until they receive a response.

I would like to urge the Treasurer to provide assistance to this important local industry by giving it a temporary respite from the increased ad valorem tax until he has completed his review of this matter, and I would encourage him to make a decision at the earliest possible time.

RECYCLING

Mr Sutherland: Environmental concerns are one of the main issues facing us as a society today. As a government we are actively promoting the 3Rs: reduce, reuse and recycle.

Today I would like to take the opportunity to commend the University of Western Ontario for its recently expanded recycling program. The university's green plan is the result of a co-operative effort between the UWO administration, students, employee groups and affiliated colleges.

The campus recycling committee is composed of representatives from faculty, staff associations, students, residence operations, food services and occupational health and safety. A major portion of the program's funding comes from the students themselves. Last year the students on the main campus and at its affiliated colleges approved a $5 levy that goes directly into the green plan.

The green plan includes the recycling of fine paper, newsprint, beverage cans, clear glass, cardboard and computer paper. Under this plan all newsprint, glass and cans are being recycled on the main campus and at the affiliated colleges, and for the first time, cardboard from the UWO bookstore is also being recycled. In the first month the program collected almost 17,000 kilograms of recyclable material.

The University of Western Ontario's green plan is an important step in the right direction for our environment and one that I urge other institutions and businesses to consider as a blueprint. Once again I congratulate everyone, particularly the students, at the University of Western Ontario for a job well done.

ORAL QUESTIONS

GOVERNMENT ASSETS

Mr Conway: My question is for the Treasurer and it concerns the budgetary policy of the government. Like many people in the Legislature and across Ontario, I have read with real interest in the last few days the Treasurer's reported inventory-taking of the capital assets of the province of Ontario. It is plain that a bad budget gets worse as we approach the end of the second quarter, the beginning of the third quarter, and it is increasingly clear that my good friend the member for Nickel Belt and his colleagues, good people all, just do not know what they are doing.

I was struck this morning to read in the press that the Treasurer is now acknowledging that, quoting the Treasurer from this morning's press: "Everyone knows that we're struggling with our expenditures, which are going up, and our revenues are not going up. Maybe there's an alternative to reductions in programs, namely the disposition of some assets."

Does the Treasurer honestly believe that the only substantive way to deal with the budgetary problem that he and his colleagues have written for themselves is to sell off the crown assets?

Hon Mr Rae: That's not what he said. Let him have it; both barrels.

Mr Sorbara: Why don't you sell Howard? He's disposable. He's a liability.

Hon Mr Cooke: We would sell you if we thought we could get anything for you.

Hon Mr Laughren: Do those answers satisfy the member? It is completely inaccurate to even imply that I was inferring that the way to meet our expenditure problems was the disposition of assets. I did not say that was the only way we could stay within our expenditure forecast. That is simply not the case. What I did say was that we should look at the entire allocations of government, which I gather had not been done ever, despite the efforts of the former government, good fellows and persons all. They simply had not done that, and we are doing that. I think it would be irresponsible for us not to look simply at program expenditures but to also look and see if there are some assets which are not strategic assets and see whether the disposition of those assets would go some way to helping us solve our problems.

1350

Mr Conway: I want to say to the Treasurer that no government in the history of Ontario has ever brought to this Legislature a budget and a four-year fiscal plan that contemplates annual deficits in the range of $10 billion. His budgetary difficulties are real. Everyone out there has been telling him that for the last number of months, and now, 13 months into his term, he is awakening to the reality that there are real difficulties, even if he hopes to bring the plan on target at a $9.7-billion deficit for this fiscal year.

Would the Treasurer not agree that his real problem has to do with the program spending, and that contributing to that real problem is the decision made by his government this year to increase the Ontario public service wage bill year over year by 14.5%, to settle with the doctors at a cost of nearly half a billion dollars and, just 10 days ago, to announce that the teachers' pension fund will require another $215 billion, to name but three examples that speak to the unwillingness or the inability of the NDP government to control spending? Selling off the garage surely is not going to help the Treasurer pay the grocery bills.

Hon Mr Laughren: First of all, it is true that no other government has brought in a deficit of $9.7 billion, but I remind the member opposite that no other government has been faced with the recession we have been faced with at this time. I am getting a little weary of members of the Liberal caucus standing in their place and saying that we should be spending more money on programs and then during question period having them tell us we are spending too much on programs. I wish they would make up their minds over there.

As far as being critical of this government for laying out our three-year program of expenditures and revenues beyond this year is concerned, I only wish the former government had had the courage and the integrity to do the same thing.

Mr Conway: Ten days ago the Treasurer, with a mid-course correction—because he is now understanding what people out there have been telling him and his colleagues for weeks and months: that there is a real problem and it lies on the expenditure side—had a chance to show what he was prepared to do around tough decisions, particularly on the expenditure side. He did virtually nothing in this fiscal year. He deferred most of the pain to next year.

I want to ask a final supplementary of the Treasurer, who is clearly casting about for some kind of remedy for his budgetary problem. Members of this government are travelling around telling farmers in communities like the Niagara Peninsula that the NDP government is not going to allow the farmers of this province to sell off portions of their farm to raise revenues to allow them to stay in the beleaguered business of agriculture. Will the Treasurer commit to this House that he is prepared to live by the same advice, that he does not intend to start selling off the farm, selling off the family garage, to pay the grocery bills and that he will get serious about meaningful restraint on the expenditure side, particularly on major programs like public sector spending?

Hon Mr Laughren: First, I tried to say as clearly as I could that any disposition of assets would not be strategic assets; they would be assets that we conclude are no longer appropriately held by the crown in this province. Second, it really does wear a little thin hearing my good friend the member for Renfrew North, the same member who, with his cabinet colleagues, got us into some real messes, along with the third party, whether it was Suncor, whether it was the domed stadium—

Mr Bradley: Not pointing a finger, says Bob Rae.

Hon Mr Laughren: No, I am not suggesting that we do not have difficulties in the middle of the severest recession in this province in 50 years. It would be ridiculous to imply that we do not have expenditure problems, because we are determined to continue to fund essential services in health care and education and social services. We are determined to do that. If the member wants to stand in his place and tell us that he wants us to start cutting those essential services, he should do so, but he should not pretend he can have it both ways.

Mr Conway: Settling electoral accounts with public servants and teachers and doctors is not my view of taking a responsible approach to budgetary planning in the heart of this recession. If I ever thought I would see Floyd Laughren pursuing a Thatcherite/Mulroneyite plan to sell off crown assets, I would have thought I had died and gone to another place.

The Speaker: To whom is your second question directed?

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Mr Conway: My second question is for my friend the member for Hastings-Peterborough, the Minister of Agriculture and Food. A few days ago the Minister of Agriculture and Food stood in his place and to his credit announced a $35-million farm relief program for the beleaguered farm community of this province. My calculations suggest that the $35-million program will provide an average of roughly $600 per farmer in Ontario, and for that we are appreciative and thankful.

Having regard to the fact that the government has just provided a $600 benefit to farmers, is the Minister of Agriculture and Food aware that as a result of the Bob Rae Ontario Hydro policy, a farmer in my community—and there are several like my farmer in the county of Hastings—with a hydro bill of $12,000 a year, is going to have an increase this year of some $1,500? What kind of relief is the Minister of Agriculture and Food going to provide to the thousands of beleaguered farmers in this province who are struggling in the midst of this recession with the government's hydro plan, which is to increase their essential electrical bills by nearly 50% over the next three years?

Hon Mr Buchanan: I am not sure whether that is an agriculture question or an energy question or what category that falls into, but I will try to answer the member.

This government is committed to protecting and preserving the family farm. The $35 million we announced a couple of weeks ago was an emergency aid package. It was not a universal, general policy statement that was going to provide for the future of farming in Ontario. It was an emergency package. I do not think it is fair to divide the number of farms into the amount of aid and come up with a figure and say, "This is all you've done."

We have participated in the gross revenue insurance plan. We have announced we will participate in the net income stabilization account program. All those things have several millions attached to them. We announced last spring a $50-million interest assistance program. We will continue to provide the kind of assistance that agriculture in this province needs in order to continue to prosper and we will not be sidetracked by issues around Hydro. If I might add a comment on that part of the question, we are attempting to provide and pay for the expenses of previous administrations related to Hydro spending.

Mr Conway: I know how well the Minister of Agriculture and Food is working to address the concerns of farmers, and I appreciate that. I want to return to my main question. Having regard to the good work he has already accomplished in providing this relief package, I ask him on behalf of my farmer, who appreciates the $600 he will get this year: What does the minister plan to do about the fact that his government is imposing on my farmer this year an additional cost of $1,500 for his vital, essential and non-replaceable electric bill? What is the minister going to do to provide relief this year for that government-imposed increase in cost?

Hon Mr Buchanan: Again, this question is specifically related to energy conservation and hydro bills, which is tied up in energy. But I would say to the member that I am aware of what Ontario Hydro and the Ministry of Energy are doing in terms of providing energy-efficient light-bulbs, for example, which will benefit the hog producers of this province in terms of cutting back on their consumption.

There are things we can do in the Ministry of Agriculture and Food to promote energy conservation in agricultural activities that I believe will help. Given the fact that there will be rate increases, we need to address this and work with the Ministry of Energy and its policies to make sure that farmers in this province can take advantage of any opportunity they have to conserve energy.

1400

Mr Conway: My farmer is struggling out there with a very difficult market. This year his bill for electricity, for which he has no alternative, is $12,000. The Premier's hydro plan seeks to increase and will increase that bill by more than $5,000 over the next three years. The Minister of Agriculture and Food well understands that in rural Ontario electricity is absolutely vital and that there is not much alternative for most farmers and for many people living in the rural part of the province. I simply want to ask again: What specific programs of relief has the Minister of Agriculture and Food got for my farmer and for those farmers in Hastings and everywhere else who are going to be stuck with a nearly 50% increase in this essential, and government, cost?

Hon Mr Buchanan: Unfortunately we cannot go back in time. If we could do something and go back to 1985, we could have cancelled Darlington and saved ourselves about $10 billion or $13 billion. That is where the fees are coming from. The rural people and farmers in this province were opposed, I believe, to Darlington at that time, yet the government of that day, which was elected on the promise to cancel Darlington, went ahead with it anyway. Now the farmers are going to have to help pay for it.

We are working on long-term interest programs. We are working on the long-term survival of agriculture and we will continue to work on that. Unfortunately the farmers are going to have to chip in to pay for those energy policies that were brought in in 1985, despite the promise of the government that was elected that it would cancel it.

ASSISTANCE TO DE HAVILLAND

Mr Harris: Could the Premier tell me if it is his or his government's intention that Ontario would assume an ownership position in de Havilland?

Hon Mr Rae: I do not like having to give this kind of answer, but I have to give it to the member in these circumstances. All I can say to the honourable member is that there are intensive discussions under way between our government and the government of Canada. I have spoken to the Prime Minister personally about this issue on several occasions and officials have been talking on a regular basis. There have been discussions with a number of other companies, as well as the Boeing company, with respect to the future of de Havilland.

I am sure he will appreciate that in negotiations of this kind, it simply is not possible for us to conduct these negotiations in public. There are a number of factors that have to be taken into account and a number of factors that we are taking into account. We have asked for a very significant assessment of the company. We have been engaged in some ongoing discussions with everyone, but absolutely no decisions have been made with regard to the conclusion of any negotiations and no negotiations of any kind have been concluded.

Mr Harris: I appreciate that and I understand we are dealing with the private sector. We are also dealing, though, with a substantial potential involvement of the public sector and the taxpayers of this province in effect being either subsidizers or potential shareholders. I think with such quotes as "We're not going to walk away from it" and "If it takes an Ontario ownership position to meet the Canadian content rules, Ontario will be there," the Premier would appreciate that the public and the shareholders in this province are correct to assume that we may be willing or unwilling shareholders in an ownership position in this company.

The federal government owned this company and lost money every time an aircraft rolled off the line. Boeing, one of the largest and most efficient aircraft companies, with expertise far in excess, I suggest, of the Premier's cabinet—I do not say that derogatorily—far in excess of any ability anybody in this House, including me and my caucus, might have, has not been able to operate this company without every aircraft rolling off losing money.

The Speaker: Would the leader place his supplementary.

Mr Harris: Surely it would not be untoward, if the Premier has some information, some economic studies that demonstrate that somehow or other this company can be operated in a way different from the feds and from Boeing so that when an aircraft rolls off the line it could make a profit, there is no harm in making that information public. We want to get private sector investors.

The Speaker: Would the leader conclude his question.

Mr Harris: Does the Premier have any economic analysis or study that suggests there is a way Boeing has not found and the feds could not find that he can own this company or somebody else can own it—

The Speaker: Would the leader quickly conclude his question.

Mr Harris: —and it will actually make a profit?

Hon Mr Rae: I want to say to the honourable member there are a number of factors that have to be taken into account. I am not in any way avoiding his question. First of all, whenever the government makes a decision in this regard, it will obviously be a decision that will be announced here in the House. It will be discussed. The information will be made widely available, and there will no doubt be comments both for and against whatever the government decides to do. That level of accountability is one I accept entirely.

The aircraft industry in every part of the world is a heavily subsidized industry. That is true. It is true in Europe. It is true in the United States, only they do not call it subsidization; they call it military contracts. It is true in Quebec. It is true in every part of the world that has an aircraft industry. It has been subsidized by taxpayers in this province to some extent, but not to the extent it has been in other jurisdictions, either by us or by the feds.

The question we have to ask ourselves, and this is really the important question, is how critical is this industry—not just this company, but this industry—for the industrial future of Ontario? It is not just a matter of the jobs at de Havilland, which are significant in terms of engineering, research and development and new technologies being applied in manufacturing; it is a question of the thousands of jobs in the supply industry in this province which also depend on de Havilland.

The Speaker: Would the Premier conclude his response, please.

Hon Mr Rae: These are all factors that have to be taken into account when we assess what is the wisest course for the Ontario government to follow with respect to de Havilland.

Mr Harris: I am really after information as much as anything. Obviously, the Premier has not said anything other than what we have heard, discussions that the vault is open. He is basically saying that I will not be part of the discussions and neither will the taxpayers, that, "You'll judge us afterwards," and we will judge him afterwards, which is our role, and I know the Premier understands that.

One thing that does concern me is that we seem to be prepared to take an ownership position in this company. When we have been dealing with Algoma Steel, when we have been dealing with Kapuskasing, when we have been dealing with some other areas—areas of the economy that are important, significant to their communities—before we committed any taxpayers' money, I believe we tried to look at, what are the factors why that steel mill has been losing money and is the new arrangement going to allow that mill to make a profit? Is the new arrangement going to allow Algoma Steel to make a profit and not be a further drain on the taxpayers? I know this is Bob White's baby and the big-paying union job. Everybody else has said, "We'll take a wage cut to allow this mill to come forward"—

The Speaker: Will the leader place his supplementary, please.

Mr Harris: Has the Premier given any consideration, and has the union and has Bob White given any consideration to saying, "Maybe if taxpayers are going to throw in billions of dollars, we will have to participate by saying maybe $45,000 a year is enough, instead of $50,000, or $40,000 instead of $45,000"? Do you have any indication—

The Speaker: The question has been placed. Would the leader take his seat, please.

Hon Mr Rae: Perhaps the leader of the third party would like to consider the questions we have to consider as a government. What is the impact going to be on 15,000, 20,000 or 25,000 jobs in southern Ontario? What is the position going to be with respect to strategic investments in research and development and in high technology? These are all the factors that have to be taken into account by any government that is seeking to lead this province. These are not issues that can go away or be ignored.

I say to him again that he can make all the attacks on trade unions he wants. I am talking about engineers; I am talking about scientists; I am talking about people who are working in all walks of life in the skilled trades in southern Ontario. The question we have to ask ourselves as a province is, after all is said and done, do we want to have an industry that is functioning and working well in this province and providing a degree of industrial leadership that is essential for us as we head into the 21st century?

Mr Harris: The question is, before $20,000-a-year cab drivers hike their taxes, surely we should ask if those directly involved are willing to contribute something. I think that is fair.

1410

MINISTRY CONFERENCES

Mr Harris: My question is to the Attorney General. On January 22 and 23 of this year, the financial and administrative services branch of his ministry travelled to the Old Stone Inn in Niagara Falls; 43 staff were treated to two days of what they bill as the deluxe seminar package, which includes American continental breakfast, two deluxe coffee breaks, lunch and dinner. Will the Attorney General tell us if he authorized this $10,000 spending spree?

Hon Mr Hampton: In the Ministry of the Attorney General, when staff have a retreat or a conference session, ordinarily I would not see that unless it surpasses a certain level of expenditure.

Mr Harris: Is there some secret about this level of expenditure the Attorney General cannot tell us? For two nights, $10,000 seems astronomical, but it gets worse. It seems the ministry staff had the taxpayers buying drinks all around. The Attorney General's staff ran up a bar tab of $2,500. They tossed back Courvoisier, lit up glasses of Sambuca, savoured Grand Marnier; in fact, $360 worth of Grand Marnier. You cannot help wondering how much work actually got done between the bottles of beer and the Baileys. Does the Attorney General have an explanation for $2,500 worth of booze while they were on this extravagant conference in Niagara Falls?

Hon Mr Hampton: If the allegations raised by the leader of the third party are indeed true, I am very interested to learn that and I will check into it.

Mr Harris: I raise this virtually every week. They are under a restraint program. They are cutting back in many areas we do not think they should be cutting back in, but this is obviously carrying on. Surely, with all the questions that have been asked, he would have been taking a look at this. Last year he spent over $500,000 on conferences and seminars. I would simply ask the Attorney General this: Can he tell us—since I think he would have been interested; we keep bringing them up—how much of that was on a bar tab?

Hon Mr Hampton: I do not know why the leader of the third party would be particularly interested in a bar tab, but let me point this out to him: When we became the government, there were certain policies of the former government that it is fair to say the civil service felt it would be appropriate for it to continue to follow. About halfway through the year we became aware of those and we have put an end to them.

In fact, since last spring, we have curtailed the number of conferences staff within the Ministry of the Attorney General are allowed to attend. We have requested that when those conferences are held, they be held as often as possible in government-owned buildings, and we have, by and large, constrained to a very great degree the expenditure that was going on at conferences under the former Liberal government. I am happy to tell the leader of the third party that if he asks this question again next year, he will receive quite a different answer.

ONTARIO HYDRO RECEPTION

Mr McGuinty: My question is for the Minister of Energy and it is perhaps somewhat along the same line as the question of the leader of the third party.

I have in my hand a copy of an invoice issued by the Compri Hotel in Windsor. The invoice is for a reception held by Ontario Hydro on October 2 and 3. The invoice shows that on October 2, during a three-hour period, 870 drinks were served at a cost of $4,713.14. In addition, the cost of the food was $2,621. Hydro was even so thoughtful as to provide a sound system, at a cost of $274.25. The entire cost of the affair was $7,919.85.

The minister knows that Hydro's ratepayers are presently staring in the face of a 44% rate hike over the next three years. In addition, the Premier has decided to saddle ratepayers with a new chair of Hydro, a friend of the Premier's, who is insisting on a salary of $400,000-plus. How can the minister justify to Hydro's ratepayers spending $8,000 for music, food and booze?

Hon Mr Ferguson: I am not aware of the event that took place. I certainly will attempt to obtain further details on the matter and advise the member.

Mr McGuinty: The minister suggests that since he is not aware of it, he is somehow not responsible and therefore, by implication, not accountable. It does not matter whether we are talking about Marc Eliesen's salary or this particular booze-up. At the end of the day, Hydro is his baby. When a baby's diaper needs changing, you do not talk to the baby; you talk to the parents. The minister is claiming he has no control over Hydro's expenses. Can he have already forgotten that in the last four months he has ordered Hydro to spend $500 million at Elliot Lake and Kapuskasing? That is $500 million Hydro did not want to spend. If that is not control, I do not know what is.

Again, how can he justify adding the $8,000 cost of a three-hour booze-up to Hydro ratepayers' bills?

Hon Mr Ferguson: Maybe I was speaking too quickly when I replied to the question before. I advised the member that I did not have firsthand knowledge of the meeting or the event that took place. I certainly will try to obtain for the member the details of the meeting and the purpose of the event. When I have had an opportunity to do that, I will certainly relay the information to the member.

1420

COURT SYSTEM

Mr Harnick: My question is of the Attorney General. While his ministry has been out quaffing cocktails and running up bar tabs, I notice that he has been running around the province talking about access to justice. Back in December 1990, the class actions legislation was delivered to this Legislature for first reading. We also had the Arbitration Act delivered here for first reading about a year ago. The Attorney General has already told me he cannot do anything to help the plight of Small Claims Court judges or the small claims courts. He has had the report about paralegals sitting on his desk now for about a year; I think it was published in September 1990.

When can we expect to see him doing something instead of just bringing this stuff here, leaving it after first reading and forgetting about it?

Hon Mr Hampton: I am actually quite pleased that the member has asked this question. There were a number of pieces of legislation we wanted to get through the House last spring, but as I remember it, I had to come here and listen to the leader of the third party list off the names of all the lakes in Ontario. Then when we were finished with the lakes, we had to listen to the names of the rivers. I remember having I think $1 million a week of taxpayers' money wasted while the leader of the third party wasted our legislative time and read off the names of the lakes and rivers of Ontario.

I would be quite pleased to bring forward legislation. The problem is that, this far in the fall already, we have been able to pass only two pieces of legislation. When the members of the third party decide that they want to come here and do some serious work, we will be more than happy to engage them with legislation that will keep them busy from sunup to sundown.

Mr Harnick: Let me just tell the Attorney General a couple of things: One, all the initiatives he started were brought here by the Liberal Party, none by him; two, the House leader of the New Democratic Party has never suggested that any of this legislation come back to this House for second reading. He should not try to fool us.

We have a problem in our civil courts. We know that 40,000 cases have already been tossed out of our criminal courts. We now have a problem with our civil courts. I understand that before the court merger we used to be able to have a motion brought before a master within two or three days. I understand that we now have to wait three months until a master is available to listen to a motion. Nevertheless, the Attorney General persists in trying to phase out masters. Will he hire more masters and let them do their job or hire judges and let them do the job of the masters? Please, will he do something? He should not sit there any longer.

Hon Mr Hampton: Once again, I am pleased to hear from the member opposite because it appears his memory of events of the last year may be somewhat different from everyone else's in the province. When we became the government, we became aware that there was a backlog in the courts.

Mr Scott: What do you mean "became aware" of a backlog? Give me a break.

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Hampton: Mr Speaker, it appears I have offended the former Attorney General. I will sit down.

The Speaker: Has the Attorney General completed his response? New question. The member for Peterborough.

Interjection.

The Speaker: To the Attorney General, I did ask if you had a further response and you seemed immobilized.

Hon Mr Hampton: The member for St George-St David erupted again.

The Speaker: Does the Attorney General have a brief response?

Hon Mr Hampton: Let's be very clear on something. When we became the government we discovered that there was a backlog in the court system which the Supreme Court of Canada acknowledged stretched back to when the third party was the government of the province. That is how serious the problem was. It took considerable resources for us, considerable dedication and hard work by judges, crown attorneys and everyone involved in the criminal justice system to deal with that problem in a way that we minimized the effect upon the people of the province. Following that, we brought forward what I think is the most progressive family support legislation in North America.

Mr Harnick: What are you going to do about the masters? Have you ever been in a master's court?

The Speaker: Order.

Hon Mr Hampton: Maybe the critic for the third party does not think these issues are important. I happen to believe the people of Ontario think they are very important.

NUCLEAR POWER FACILITIES

Ms Carter: My question is for the Minister of Energy. The minister and the chairman of Ontario Hydro have said that the large increase in electricity rates next year, as well as paying for Darlington, is needed to restore Hydro's generation and transmission facilities to proper working order. Could the minister tell us more about the performance of Ontario's nuclear plants and how far this falls short of target?

Hon Mr Ferguson: It is generally well known and widely accepted that nuclear generating facilities ought to be operating at around 80% efficiency. That clearly is not the case. In 1990, for example, the nuclear industry operated at an average efficiency rate of 62%. I have asked Ontario Hydro to pay particular attention to the question of operational efficiency and reliability of the system. I think members of the House are well aware that if the system is not operating in a reliable fashion, the additional power obviously has to be purchased. That cost is of course passed on to the consumer. Unfortunately, it appears that the question of the reliability of the nuclear generating stations was not adequately addressed prior to the construction of the facilities.

Ms Carter: Could the minister say what the cost has been to Hydro of the poor nuclear performance, how much is being spent now and how much expenditure has been planned for the future on repairs to nuclear plants?

Hon Mr Ferguson: The cost is projected at approximately $100 million to $125 million. There are also current major repairs taking place. The retubing of Pickering is going to cost an additional $485 million. The upgrades at Pickering A will cost about $170 million and the rehabilitation of Bruce A will cost around $854 million, so I think it is in the interests of everybody in this province that our number one goal has to be getting the plants up and operating efficiently.

The second point I would like to make is that in the past we have had one individual attempting to do three jobs. In fact, one individual cannot do three jobs. One cannot do the day-to-day operation in keeping the lights on at Hydro as well as looking at long-range planning and forecasting for Ontario Hydro. We now have two individuals in place who we believe will be able to fulfil the mandate and the responsibilities the position so richly deserves.

INVESTIGATION INTO RELEASE OF DOCUMENTS

Mr Bradley: I have a question of the Premier. On at least two different occasions his government has sent the Ontario Provincial Police to interrogate members of the opposition who have come into possession of information which, in a democratic system, is of great interest to the public we all serve. The government has sent the OPP to investigate the Leader of the Opposition and the Liberal member for Halton Centre because they have used information received from government sources to expose weaknesses in this administration.

Does the Premier intend to continue to use the OPP as a political police force to intimidate members of the opposition and public servants who are providing important information that he obviously wishes to hide from the public?

Hon Mr Rae: I will answer that question as directly as I can. The allegation the member has made, that we are somehow using the OPP in a political way, is without substance or foundation. It is a false allegation that he has made in the House.

Interjection.

Hon Mr Rae: I hope the honourable member will at least give us some credit. The problem that the Treasury, not the Treasurer, had with the leaks of information is—

Interjection.

Hon Mr Rae: I want to say this to the member if he will simply allow me to answer: What would the honourable member say or do in the event that there was a leak surrounding the budget? He would be the first to stand up in this House and insist on the head of the Treasurer on a platter. He would be the first to insist on that. The Liberal Party and the Conservative Party would be the first to ask for it. This government has not asked the OPP to interview anyone.

Interjection.

The Speaker: Order, the member for Halton Centre.

Hon Mr Rae: It has not authorized or ordered the OPP to discuss an issue with any individual in this Legislature whatsoever. The allegation that we are asking the OPP to interview members of the opposition is utterly and totally false. It has no foundation whatsoever.

1430

Mr Bradley: The Premier's spin doctors do a job attempting to portray him as a civil libertarian, as a person who believes in open and democratic government. The performance of the Premier, when he was in opposition, as a civil libertarian and as one concerned about the government leads me to ask this question. If the Premier is to practise what he preached in opposition and what he portrayed to the people of this province when attempting to get elected to the position he is in now, will he guarantee that this harassment and intimidation of the opposition and public servants by his police force will cease?

Hon Mr Rae: Let me be very clear: If the member opposite is alleging that the Ontario Provincial Police is harassing or intimidating anyone, that is a very serious allegation. Let him stand up in the House and make that allegation with respect to the conduct of the provincial police. If he is making that allegation, let him make it, but to state that somehow we in this government are authorizing any harassment or any intimidation is unbecoming of a member with the experience of the member for St Catharines. He knows perfectly well that the problem this government has had to deal with is of a totally different dimension, and in no way have we ever authorized or asked for or suggested that anyone intimidate or harass anyone else, ever.

Mrs Sullivan: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: I want to speak directly to the response from the Premier. I was interviewed not on a question of tax matters, as the Premier indicated was the issue relating to the member for Bruce, but on a question relating to a document I had received through the Ministry of the Environment. That has absolutely nothing to do with tax matters. Indeed, in that case I had to ask for my own solicitor, because I was told by police that there may well be charges laid against me for participating in the receipt of this information. My privileges were violated, and no one can tell me this Premier does not have standards that will allow my privileges to be violated.

Hon Mr Cooke: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I would simply ask, as I did last week, that you take a look again today at the transcript of the questions that have been asked by the House leader for the official opposition. I think you will see in it that he not only alleges harassment by the OPP of a member of his caucus, but he also alleges that the government—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I know the member for Lanark-Renfrew is waiting to place his question. I ask members to come to order so I can hear the point raised by the government House leader.

Hon Mr Cooke: Not only did the House leader for the official opposition accuse the OPP of harassing them, but he accused the government, and specifically members of this government—

Interjection.

The Speaker: I ask the member for Oriole to please come to order.

Mr Scott: On a point of order, Mr Speaker.

The Speaker: I am only able to hear one point of order or privilege at a time.

Hon Mr Cooke: The House leader for the official opposition accused a member of the House, a member of this government, of directing the OPP to harass members of the opposition. Mr Speaker, that is clearly out of order and you have got to rule that they cannot continue this in this place.

Interjections.

The Speaker: I ask the House again to come to order. To the government House leader and indeed to all members of the House, you may recall this matter was raised earlier. I reported to you at that time that I was taking it under advisement. I will be reporting back to the House as soon as possible.

Mr Scott: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: By the by, when the honourable House leader says, "You have got to rule," if you sense any intimidation in that, I would not be surprised or ashamed.

The point of order is this: In answering the honourable member for St Catharines' question, the Premier said he did not believe there was any evidence that any member had been harassed in his or her interrogation by the OPP. That was the point of order that was raised by the honourable member who spoke last.

The Premier has an obligation to this House and to the province, not simply to the members, to deal with what is going on. We beseech him to give some indication of what the government policy is when we are confronted by a police force that comes around to the chambers of members and interviews them about the extent to which they are getting government documents which disclose misconduct on the part of the government. Who is working for whom? We want to hear the Premier's response to this issue.

The Speaker: First, to the member for Halton Centre who raised a point of privilege with me, I will examine Hansard. I will be reporting back to the House both on your point of privilege and to the points of order raised by the government House leader and various other members.

Interjections.

The Speaker: When the member for St George-St David has come to order, then the patient member for Lanark-Renfrew can place his question.

Mr Eves: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: When the government House leader stood to make his point of order—I am not talking about the point of privilege, which I think the member was quite proper in making—there were about 14 minutes and 30 seconds left on the clock. He talked about a point of order that he had previously raised. I would ask you to consider putting that time back on the clock.

The Speaker: A variety of members rose, starting with the member for Halton Centre. The standing orders are quite clear that points of order and privilege may be raised during question period and the clock continues to run. That is why I have repeatedly asked members, if at all possible, to raise their points of order and privilege outside of oral question period.

ENERGY CONSERVATION

Mr Jordan: It was stated recently in this Legislature by a member of the government that Ontario Hydro is a monster out of control. My question is for the Minister of Energy. Conservation programs have become a major part of this monster. Could he tell the House today what conservation programs are available to the residential sector, the cost of those programs for 1990-91 and the kilowatt-hours saved?

Hon Mr Ferguson: I am a person and an individual, not a computer. I would be more than happy to supply all the information to the honourable member and I will get that to him as quickly as I possibly can. The ministry, as well as Hydro, operates a number of different and varied programs. I certainly would not be able to do all the programs justice by standing here today and giving a brief mention, but I will provide the information to the member as quickly as I possibly can.

Mr Jordan: A recent Toronto Star article reports on a family conducting a $12,000 project on their home, with Ontario Hydro paying about two thirds of the cost. The community of 6,000 in which this family lives is a project where ratepayers of this province are being asked to pay 100% of the insulation, 74% of the siding costs for the house and 50% of the new windows. They are also providing free energy audits at a cost of $125 to $150 each. One of the residents commented, "You'd have to be brain-dead not to accept this offer."

While the farmers and small businesses in Lanark-Renfrew are in desperate economic straits, why is the Minister of Energy forcing them to pay with a hidden tax for others to renovate their homes?

Hon Mr Ferguson: The member is referring to the community of Espanola. Ontario Hydro today is undertaking a comprehensive energy-efficient town program in Espanola, and we are trying out a number of different methods in this pilot project to determine what incentives will and will not work, not only in this community but in application across Ontario. Surely to goodness the member is not suggesting that we ought not to get involved in pilot projects in order to save energy across Ontario.

1440

HEALTH CLUBS

Mr Hansen: My question is to the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations. Consumers in this province continue to have problems with health club memberships. Can the minister advise on what additional consumer protection measures are being considered with respect to the fitness industry?

Hon Ms Churley: I am glad the question was asked. Although the opposition is not really listening, I think they should, because I am sure a lot of their constituents are having these kinds of problems.

The Prepaid Services Act was specifically intended to try to minimize those kinds of consumer losses due to closures and to regulate the industry. I am in the process of enhancing that consumer protection in the new fair marketplace code. One of the things we will be looking at is extending the cancellation period from, I think it is five days now, to at least one week. We are also looking into ways to tighten the pre-sale agreements and the use of alternative facilities.

Mr Hansen: What advice and suggestions can the minister offer to consumers who are about to enter into agreements with fitness or health clubs?

Hon Ms Churley: There are a number of things consumers should consider, and this is very important. I will just name a few of them. They should read their contracts carefully, because sometimes that does not happen before signing. As I have mentioned before, a lot of contracts are not written in plain language and people get confused. They sign contracts and get themselves into a lot of trouble.

Interjection.

The Speaker: The member for St George-St David, please come to order.

Hon Ms Churley: People should not be pressured into signing those contracts unless they are sure that is what they really want to do. Also, they should try to pay on a monthly basis. There is often a lot of pressure to pay for up to one year. If they pay on a monthly basis—

Interjections.

The Speaker: Interesting activity. It appears the members would rather sit and watch the clock tick by, and that is fine.

Interjections.

The Speaker: If members insist on making noise and drowning out a response which the Speaker is obliged to hear, this clock will continue to run.

Hon Ms Churley: Mr Speaker, I am really shocked. I cannot tell you how shocked I am to see members of the opposition, and especially the former Attorney General, laughing at the fact that people are being given advice.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Would the minister conclude her response.

Hon Ms Churley: As I mentioned before, contracts are not written in plain language. Often people cannot understand them.

The Speaker: New question, the member for Mississauga West.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Would the member take his seat for a moment. I asked the minister if she had a further response and then she sat down. Do you have a further response?

Interjections.

The Speaker: If there isn't something in the water, maybe there should be.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Member for Mississauga West, you will get your question.

Mr Mahoney: And my supplementary?

The Speaker: No, but you will get a question. Will you wait?

I ask the members for some co-operation. Has the minister concluded her response?

Hon Ms Churley: Mr Speaker, I sat down because I thought you were indicating to me that I should sit down because of the noise.

The Speaker: Would you conclude?

Hon Ms Churley: Yes, I will.

One of the problems that happens, as I was saying, is that often people do not understand and are not really clear on what they are reading in the contract and therefore sign things that end up getting them into trouble. So people should make sure they have the right to rescind the agreement within five days of signing the contract. That has to be done by registered mail. It is important that they do that so that if the club has to close down, for whatever reasons, they can be reimbursed.

The Speaker: The member for Mississauga West.

Mr Mahoney: I do have a question, Mr Speaker. I point out to you, sir, that while there was a lot of heckling, there were three separate occasions when this minister was allowed to rise to re-answer a question.

The Speaker: Would the member please place his question.

Mr Mahoney: Subsequent to that, I am able to get a question in—

Interjections.

The Speaker: You will get the question; just wait a moment. I do not know which is worse, the levity or yelling at each other, but I would ask that members come to order. The member for Mississauga West is being allowed to place his question, to which there will be, I take it, a response. Could you please identify to whom you wish to address your question.

TRANSFER PAYMENTS TO MUNICIPALITIES

Mr Mahoney: My question is to the Minister of Municipal Affairs, and I would just again ask you to consider, sir, the length of time and the number of times ministers are allowed to re-answer, and then wind up not giving an answer. In any event, since you are not going to allow me a supplementary, I would ask for your indulgence so that I can at least get all the points out.

Mr Abel: Just ask the question.

Mr Mahoney: Well, I will.

The former government instituted a report which was referred to as the Ballinger-Hopcroft report, named after the former parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Municipal Affairs, Bill Ballinger, and Grant Hopcroft, the president of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario. Those two gentlemen were commissioned to do a study on what has commonly been referred to as disentanglement. Disentanglement deals with the money that is spent on municipal issues that are indeed supported by provincial transfer payments, etc. That report outlined a number of recommendations, and to the credit of this government, it adopted that report. They deleted Mr Ballinger's name from the title for some reason but, in any event, they adopted the report. The total cost of that report was $170,000 over three years.

My question has to deal with the latest commission instituted by this government, which is the John Sewell commission investigating planning in this province. This particular commission, complete with its fancy reports—

The Speaker: Briefly.

Mr Mahoney: I am getting there, but you will not allow me the supplementary.

The Speaker: Would the member place his question.
1450

Mr Mahoney: Considering the fact that our government spent $170,000 to study $10 billion—

Interjection.

The Speaker: Order. Just a moment. Would the government benches come to order. The member for Mississauga West, I am sure, will very quickly place his question.

Mr Mahoney: I do not know why they get excited. They have not even heard the question.

Since the former government was able to study $10 billion in interrelated transfer payments, etc, between the municipalities and the province for $170,000 over three years with the AMO president and the then parliamentary assistant, why does this minister need $3 million to create a six-figure job for a party hack so that he can be chairman of a commission and spend $3 million of the taxpayers' money to go around and study what we already know is a problem? Why does he not use AMO? Why does he not use the municipalities and listen to some of the recommendations they would make to him about how to improve the planning process, instead of squandering $3 million to give John Sewell a $100,000-a-year job?

Hon Mr Cooke: I am not quite sure whether the question deals with disentanglement or the Planning Act. I found it interesting that the member who wanted to lecture the government benches about how long it took us to answer questions took about two and a half minutes to ask one. He wants to be leader of the official opposition. Give me a break.

I also wonder why the critic does not even understand that the Hopcroft report was not completed by his government; it was not completed at all. It was not completed until about six months after we were in government.

Mr Mahoney: That is what I said. The minister can read Hansard.

Hon Mr Cooke: We had to wait for that report. In other words, the previous government—

Mr Mahoney: Why does the minister not listen to the question?

Hon Mr Cooke: Why does the member not listen to the answer? Mr Speaker, he does not want an answer.

The Speaker: No. It would appear so.

MEMBERS' COMMENTS

Mr Mills: On a point of personal privilege, Mr Speaker: Like you, I am very fond of Ontario and our traditions, as is everybody here. I took exception during question period to a member who is not here—I will not identify him—who referred to the province of Ontario as a banana republic. I ask that you attend to that, Mr Speaker.

The Speaker: To the point of order: I did not hear the remark.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. Will members come to order. Indeed if the member was present in the chamber at the time when you raised it, I would of course ask the member to reconsider the remark and to withdraw, but you stated that the member in question is not in the chamber at this time. I will be pleased to take a look at Hansard as well.

Mr Huget: On a point of privilege, Mr Speaker: I too have very great difficulty in accepting remarks made by a member of the third party, who is not in this House, who referred to the Ontario Provincial Police as brownshirts. That, to me, suggested that the police of this province should be compared with something out of Nazi Germany. I take great offence to those remarks, and I want that member to apologize to this House, to the people in this province and to the OPP.

Mr Eves: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: That is not what the member said or interjected. At least the members opposite, if they had been here for a while, more than a few months, would have the class to know that if they are going to talk about another member—speaking of parliamentary tradition over there—common practice is to do it when the member is present. If the members opposite do not want to be described that way, they should not act that way.

An hon member: He is here now.

Mr Eves: He is here now; he was not here—

Mr Stockwell: Mr Speaker, I was not in the chamber when the member stood up and made those comments. I never referred to the provincial police; I said this government was treating this police force as its own brownshirts and that it was a banana republic and it was a Third World way to handle a situation. If that is the way they want to do business, those are the kinds of accusations they are going to get and I am not withdrawing my statement.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Just a minute, relax, before we turn the heat up another notch.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Order. I would ask the House to come to order.

Before we can conduct any more public business, we need the House to come to order.

To the honourable House leader of the third party, indeed on the point of order, it is practice that if any member of the House has a concern with respect to anything that has been said by another member to raise it immediately, if possible, and of course when the other member is in the chamber.

I realize members are torn between not raising a point during question period because the clock is ticking. If at the end of question period the member in question has left the chamber, then the other member is left at a disadvantage, and I fully realize that.

At the same time, I also realize that these contentious issues sometimes provide an atmosphere in which members say intemperate things, remarks which later they regret. It certainly does not elevate the public discussion in this chamber if members make references to places and times which are not part of the culture and history of our fine country. I would certainly ask all members to please temper their language.

Hon Mr Cooke: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: As soon as the member says something—and the member for Etobicoke West is now indicating again on the record that the government, and pointing to one of our members, sent the OPP into MPP's offices; he cannot do that.

Mr Stockwell: On a point of order, Mr Speaker—
Interjections.

The Speaker: No. The member for Etobicoke West, if you would take your seat and just relax.

Interjections.

The Speaker: Just a moment, please. There are often accusations made from both sides of the chamber and there is often a difference of opinion as to what is fact and what is not fact. It is not up to the Speaker to determine what is fact, but it is indeed up to the Speaker to determine if order can be maintained in the chamber.

I have also indicated to the government House leader as well as to others that I am examining the Hansard based on the concerns raised earlier, and I am most pleased to do so. I always enjoy reading Hansard in any event.

Mr Scott: Mr Speaker, on the point of order raised by the member for Sarnia: I did not hear the words either, but they may indeed have been said. I do not know. I think it should be brought to the attention of the House that the first person who ever used language like this in this House was E. B. Jolliffe, the leader of the NDP, the CCF at that time, who referred specifically to the Ontario Provincial Police as a Gestapo. If the government is getting a little of its own from the third party, it cannot really be surprised.

1500

Mr Kwinter: Mr Speaker, on the same point of order and on the comments of the government House leader: It is a matter of fact that the police did call on opposition members. It is also a matter of fact that the police just do not call on members unless someone asks them to, so it was obviously asked by either a ministry or a minister. In either case it is the responsibility of the government. That is the point.

Mr Stockwell: Mr Speaker, the point was raised that this government is suggesting we are accusing it of sending the police into our offices. I will be clear. That is the accusation that I am making. The government should make no mistake about it. If that is not the case, I would ask this government to come forward and prove it. Since to this point it has not done so, I can only assume its silence is an offer of guilt. That is why I make the charge.

Mr Huget: Mr Speaker, I still find references to Gestapo and brownshirts, whether made in this House today or in the past, offensive. I would ask those members respectfully to withdraw those remarks. I believe they do not serve any useful purpose whatsoever.

The Speaker: To the member for Sarnia, I say that indeed I agree those references are not suitable in our chamber. If there is a member in the House currently who made such a reference, I would ask the member to voluntarily withdraw the comment.

Mr Harnick: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: Those comments may have been made to characterize the way the government uses the police, not to describe the police. It is a characterization of the way this government uses the police force in this province and nothing more.

Interjections.

Mr Harnick: I'm not ashamed of myself. It's you who used the police. How did they get there? Who sent them if it wasn't you? Who was it?

The Speaker: Order. Will the members come to order. The member for Willowdale and the member for Guelph, both of you just relax a bit.

Mr Fletcher: It was justified.

Mr Harnick: Tell that to the Leader of the Opposition, that it was justified.

The Speaker: The member for Willowdale, please come to order. I have already ruled on this. I have informed the House several times now that I am looking at Hansard and I will report back.

Mr Harnick: Hansard isn't going to help you to find out who sent the police in.

The Speaker: The member for Willowdale is being asked quite firmly to come to order. I do believe it is time to move on with the public business, if members are ready to do so.

MOTIONS

COMMITTEE SITTING

Mr Cooke moved that the standing committee on general government be authorized to meet for not more than two hours on the morning of Thursday, October 24, 1991, to consider its draft report to the House relating to the closure of land registry offices.

Motion agreed to.

PETITIONS

CHURCH OF SCIENTOLOGY

Mr Poirier: To the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:
"Whereas the province of Ontario is a leader in human rights and expresses, under the Human Rights Code of Ontario, that all persons, regardless of race, ancestry, place of origin, colour, ethnic origin, citizenship, creed, sex, sexual orientation, age, marital status, family status or handicap, have equal treatment; and

"Whereas I am a member of the Church of Scientology, a religious body which is accepted and recognized around the world, with churches in 90 countries; and

"Whereas the ministers of our church have applied for many years without result to the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations to be licensed to solemnize marriages; and

"Whereas our ministers are licensed in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Yukon, and our ministers' applications have been supported by many faiths in Ontario, such as the Baptist Conference of Ontario and Quebec, the Presbyterian Church of Canada, the Anglican Church of Canada and the Seventh Day Adventist Church of Canada; and

"Whereas I have protested our discrimination by being married in front of the Legislative Assembly this afternoon and having my marriage solemnized by a minister of another faith,

"I, Tereasa Leann Buttnor, as a resident of Ontario, petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"1. To intervene and direct the Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations to license our ministers to solemnize marriages, so that no one else in our faith suffers the indignity of being denied legal marriage within our church.

"2. To investigate the office of the Deputy Registrar General for unwarranted discrimination based on religion or other criteria so other faiths will not be hampered by prejudice."

I have signed the document.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr J. Wilson: I have a petition to the Legislature of Ontario. It reads as follows:

"Whereas the Queen of Canada has long been a symbol of national unity for Canadians from all walks of life and from all ethnic backgrounds;

"Whereas the people of Canada are currently facing a constitutional crisis which could potentially result in the breakup of the federation and are in need of unifying symbols;

"We the undersigned respectfully petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario to restore the oath to the Queen for Ontario's police officers."

It is signed by a number of good people from the Simcoe West provincial riding association. Once again, the Ontario PC Party goes to bat for Ontario police officers.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Mr Harris: I have a petition signed by 723 people.
"To the Legislative Assembly of Ontario:

"Whereas grain and oilseed farmers in the province of Ontario are experiencing the most severe shortage of cash flow in the history of the industry;

"Whereas the government of Ontario has failed to provide sufficient cash flow assistance to farmers during the transition from old ad hoc programs to new safety net programs in order that they may meet their financial obligations;

"We the undersigned petition the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

"That the government of Ontario provide an immediate 1% contribution to NISA (net income stabilization account) for Ontario producers and waive the one-third producer premium deduction with the Ontario grain stabilization program and take other necessary measures to ensure the survival of the family farm in Ontario."

I too have affixed my signature to this petition.

WAYNE LAROSE

Mr Dadamo: I have a petition from my riding today with 2,185 names. It is addressed the Legislature of Ontario:

"We, the undersigned, do respectfully petition the chief coroner, Dr Young, the Solicitor General and any other parties concerned with this matter to provide answers by way of an inquest, which has been denied, into the death of Mr Wayne Larose, June 5, 1990.

"With due respect to the medical profession we, the undersigned, feel that due to a shortage in physicians, Mr Larose remained in hospital an unnecessary nine days before an attempt was made to correct his broken hip. This delay resulted in his death.

"We also feel that an official inquest should be requested of necessity, to relieve the family of all their questions surrounding the death of a very healthy husband, father and valuable citizen of the city of Windsor."

I would like to affix my name.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

Mrs Marland: This is a petition. It reads:

"To the Honourable Lieutenant Governor and the government of Ontario:

"Whereas the government of Bob Rae has placed our heritage in danger; and

"Whereas we live in a constitutional monarchy; and

"Whereas a symbol of our national unity and identity has been removed;

"We, the undersigned, petition the Legislature of Ontario as follows:

"To immediately restore the name of Her Majesty the Queen to the oath of allegiance sworn by police officers."

There are several hundred names here and I am happy to add my name to them.

1510

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

ONTARIO WATER RESOURCES AMENDMENT ACT, 1991

LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI SUR LES RESSOURCES EN EAU DE L'ONTARIO

Mr Hansen moved first reading of Bill 141, An Act to amend the Ontario Water Resources Act.

M. Hansen propose la première lecture du projet de loi 141, Loi modifiant la Loi sur les ressources en eau de l'Ontario.

Motion agreed to.

La motion est adoptée.

ORDERS OF THE DAY

INCOME TAX AMENDMENT ACT, 1991 LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI DE L'IMPÔT SUR LE REVENU

Deferred vote on the motion for second reading of Bill 83, An Act to amend the Income Tax Act.

Vote différé sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 83, Loi portant modification de la Loi de l'impôt sur le revenu.

1517

The House divided on Ms Wark-Martyn's motion for second reading of Bill 83, which was agreed to on the following vote:

La motion de M^{me} Wark-Martyn pour la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 83, mise aux voix, est adoptée :

Ayes/Pour—63

Abel, Bisson, Buchanan, Carter, Charlton, Christopherson, Churley, Cooke, Cooper, Coppen, Dadamo, Drainville, Duignan, Farnan, Ferguson, Fletcher, Gigantes, Grier, Haeck, Hampton, Hansen, Harrington, Haslam, Hayes, Hope, Huget, Jamison, Johnson, Klopp, Kormos, Lankin, Laughren, Lessard, Mackenzie, MacKinnon, Malkowski, Mammoliti, Marchese, Martel, Martin, Mathysen, Mills, Morrow, Murdock, S., O'Connor, Owens, Perruzza, Philip, E., Pilkey, Pouliot, Silipo, Sutherland, Ward, B., Ward, M., Wark-Martyn, Waters, Wessenger, White, Wilson, G., Winninger, Wiseman, Wood, Ziemba.

Nays/Contre—37

Arnott, Bradley, Brown, Caplan, Carr, Chiarelli, Cleary, Conway, Cousens, Curling, Daigeler, Eves, Fawcett, Grandmaitre, Harnick, Jackson, Jordan, Kwinter, Mahoney, Mancini, Marland, McClelland, McGuinty, Miclash, Murdoch, B., O'Neill, Y., Phillips, Poirier, Poole, Ramsay, Sorbara, Sterling, Stockwell, Sullivan, Tilson, Villeneuve, Wilson, J.

Bill ordered for committee of the whole House.

Le projet de loi est déféré au comité plénier de la Chambre.

TOBACCO TAX AMENDMENT ACT, 1991

LOI DE 1991 MODIFIANT LA LOI DE LA TAXE SUR LE TABAC

Resuming the adjourned debate on the motion for second reading of Bill 84, An Act to amend the Tobacco Tax Act.

Reprise du débat ajourné sur la motion visant la deuxième lecture du projet de loi 84, Loi portant modification de la Loi de la taxe sur le tabac.

Mr Tilson: I would like to make a few concluding remarks to the points I was putting forward yesterday with respect to Bill 84, which of course is the Tobacco Tax Amendment Act, 1991.

As I indicated yesterday, from the 1985-86 period to now the tobacco tax has been increased four times, and yesterday I referred to a number of other provinces, other jurisdictions that have been doing similar increases with respect to their respective provincial tobacco taxes.

The 1991 budget increases for this province are expected to raise $220 million for the government in this fiscal year and $250 million in a full year. The reason I put these statistics forward is simply to ask what the government intends to do with this revenue. Is this strictly being put forward as a tax grab to pay for the massive expenditures being undertaken by this province, or is it being put forward to address other problems, such as cross-border shopping or the farming problems in the southwestern part of this province, specifically the tobacco tax and agricultural sector?

Is it with respect to health? Is it with respect to the smuggling issue that has been on the increase in the last number of years and that has certainly increased since the increases that were announced with the 1991 budget? Those are the specific areas in which I will be looking forward to asking the minister specifically what she intends to do, or what the government intends to do, with this tremendous increase in revenue that it is obtaining.

Is it going to be like the $5 tire tax, which was put forward initially to deal with an environmental issue—"What are we going to do with all the tires that are being produced and discarded? Are we going to recycle them?"—the severe problem that was raised then. Of course, it has become common knowledge that the revenue from the tire tax has not gone to the environment at all; it has gone into the general revenue of this province. Is that the intent of this government, to put the revenue from the tobacco tax into the general revenue?

I mentioned yesterday the problems occurring in the agricultural industry, specifically in the Delhi-Tillsonburg area, where the whole agricultural industry has had considerable problems in the last number of years. I would like to relate to the members of this House, many of whom I am sure are aware of them—in case they are not aware, they should be—the problems the Ontario tobacco industry has.

There are currently 1,200 growers in the Delhi-Tillsonburg area of Ontario; this number is down from 2,500 in the early 1980s. I do not think one can say this has been caused specifically by this tax, because this has been a gradual decline in the tobacco industry.

There are two main programs for assisting tobacco farmers. There is the alternative enterprise initiative, also known as the AEI, and the tobacco transition adjustment initiative. The AEI, as many members know, is a federal initiative which contains funds to be distributed to tobacco producers. The money is intended to increase the production of alternative crops in tobacco areas. The second program, the tobacco transition adjustment initiative, is renamed Redux. This is a joint federal-provincial program to help farmers move out of tobacco and into other areas of employment.

The subject I raised yesterday was whether the government has studied the effect of this specific amendment, this specific tax on tobacco, and the effect it is going to have in this area. Has it studied that? I would hope the minister would put forward the results of that study if indeed she has done that. I doubt very much that she has. My assumption, and I stand to be corrected, is that she is simply grabbing money to pay for other programs that have nothing to do with the tobacco industry and nothing to do with the other problems this amendment is creating.

As I indicated, Redux is a joint federal-provincial program to help farmers move out of the tobacco industry and into other areas of agriculture or employment. Redux, as I understand it, has to date put $54 million into the pockets of tobacco farmers who have taken land out of production. There is $14 million in federal funds in Redux. However, this money is currently frozen because the province has stopped funding the program.

Acknowledging that—and I assume the government is going to acknowledge that—the question is: Is any portion of the $220 million that is being raised by Bill 84, that specific money this year, going to be put into Redux? The federal government is doing its part. What is the province of Ontario going to do to assist the farmers in southwestern Ontario? Is it going to do anything? Is it just going to move on and spend the $220 million in its other programs that perhaps could be questionable in light of the devastating effect it is going to have in southwestern Ontario?

In response to the government's initiative to increase tobacco taxes in Ontario, it has been submitted, certainly by our side, that provincial money should be redirected to the Redux fund. Again, I challenge the minister to indicate today whether she intends to do that.

A further fact that I think should be considered before we further debate this bill is that, as the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board has pointed out, of the $31 billion in money collected through Ontario taxes, only $70 million has gone back into the industry. So they raised $31 billion—not million—and $70 million has gone back into the industry. What has happened to the rest of it? It is perhaps like other provinces, but why cannot this province be different?

Mr Chiarelli: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: Is there a quorum in the House?

The Acting Speaker (Mr Villeneuve) ordered the bells rung.

1531

The Acting Speaker: I have been advised by the Clerk that a quorum is now present.

Mr Tilson: The fact I was putting forward again emphasizes that I do not expect that very much of this money, this tremendous amount of revenue, the $250 million, is going to be put towards any of the other problem areas this bill has created.

I have indicated that the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board has put forward statistics that of the $31 billion in tax money that has been collected for tobacco taxes, only $70 million has gone back into the industry. That has been the attitude of this government and, I would submit, the previous government as well, as to how to address the problem in the southwestern portion of Ontario. It has nothing to do with the health issue, which I propose to get into, or the cross-border shopping issue, which I propose to get into further. It has nothing to do with that. What are they doing to help the farmers in southwestern Ontario? The Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board has indicated that the future of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's crop transition team, established to help farmers out of tobacco into other crops, is simply now in a state of limbo since the NDP has taken office.

I think it is time, if they are going to pass this bill, to give some indication as to how they are going to help the farmers in southwestern Ontario. They should not just take the money and put it into perhaps some of their other programs that are costing the taxpayers of this province a tremendous amount of grief.

The tobacco industry now employs some 20,000 people the province. That is currently. The support sector for tobacco farmers are the equipment manufacturers and the processors here in Ontario. These are not elsewhere; these are industries here in Ontario. We have had information, as I understand it, that a number of these companies have gone out of business in the past number of years, taking jobs out of an already depressed region. I think this government has to look not only at the agricultural section of this industry but at the equipment manufacturers, the processors, the whole process of curing in Ontario. All these people are being affected by this bill. I assume that when the minister sat down with the Treasurer and decided what to do as to how to raise money, in making the decision to put forward this bill she looked at that and how she will be addressing that problem.

Further, with respect to the farm income crisis, our party has had several emergency debates in this House, and all of it is relevant. Certainly this government has not put the emphasis on agriculture it should. There was an announcement made on October 1 that $35 million in provincial funds would be directed towards the farm crisis. The Minister of Agriculture and Food announced that. He announced an additional $11 million to the $50-million farm interest assistance program. He announced a $15 million payment to grains and oilseeds producers. He announced $5 million to producers of edible horticultural product crops, $3.5 million to farmers experiencing financial stress due to the drought conditions of 1991 and $1 million to apple, onion, honey and fur producers. But there has been nothing in the announcements that I have seen that has anything to do with alleviating the problems that are being caused by Bill 84. We have been very critical as to the small amount of assistance in other areas, but there has been nothing with respect to assisting the tobacco industry.

I will not spend any further time with respect to agriculture. I am sure other members in this House will. I will be interested in hearing from some of the members from southwestern Ontario. Particularly from the Tillsonburg-New Delhi area, correspondence has come to many of us expressing the fears of and the effect on these many families who are being affected by Bill 84.

The issue with respect to smuggling has been raised. Statistics have come forward that cigarette smuggling across this country has become a $500-million-a-year business. The Imperial Tobacco report estimates that smuggling represents $370 million lost annually. These are statistics, of course, from across the country. To be fair to this government, it cannot accept the full blame, because this type of philosophy of simply taxing the tobacco industry is widespread across the country. The question is, what are they going to do about it? What are they going to do about the problems with respect to smuggling, knowing that smuggling is going on, knowing that all one has to do is go into many plants where there is transportation back and forth across from the United States in buses and automobiles? What are they going to do about that?

There was some initiative put forward, as I understand it, with respect to new tear strips which indicate duty paid that were introduced in the fall of 1990, making it easier to detect smuggled tobacco, but that has nothing to do with the tobacco that is being sold like alcohol in the good old days of Prohibition. It is going on. The question is, what are we going to do about it? Again, I assume that if they are levying this type of tax, they have addressed this problem, they have studied it, they knew it was going on before they introduced Bill 84. I assume they have looked at that, and I will be looking forward to hearing how they intend to deal with the smuggling issue.

1540

Just before I leave the issue of smuggling, there have been a number of comments made in Canadian newspapers across the country talking about the whole attitude with respect to taxing tobacco. One is from the Ottawa Citizen in June of 1990: "Raising cigarette taxes is a popular way for a government to get more money without losing votes, but eventually they will kill the cow that gives the milk, and then what will they tax?"

If the fiscal policy of this government is to rely on taxing this industry, knowing full well that the industry is going to be killed by Bill 84, eventually the government will tax the industry to such a degree that it will simply disappear or it will become very negligible.

The question is, studying the government's fiscal policy, then what will it tax? If the purpose of this bill is to kill the tobacco industry, the government should come out and tell us, "We're taxing it because we're concerned about the effect of smoking, the whole issue of whether smoking causes cancer." Of course there are statistics after statistics that say it does. If that is the case, let's hear some policy decisions from this government on the health subject. That problem is not going to go away simply because the government is going to tax the industry to death. What will happen is that we will have a whole slew of more illegal smuggling going on, contraband cigarettes being brought into this country. How is the government going to address that? So there is the issue of health.

Finally, the issue of cross-border shopping: Obviously these people will stand up and say it is because of GST and free trade, but there are other things I will be interested in hearing members speak on. I am sure they will spend most of their time saying that cross-border shopping is solely the result of those things, but there are other things that need to be addressed: the other bills that are being put forward, the effect of the gasoline tax. What is the common reason that goes through your head as to why people go down to the United States to shop? One is that they can buy cheaper fuel there. Another is, they can buy cheaper alcohol there. They can buy almost everything cheaper because of the tax structure that is being put forward by the governments of this country, and that includes this government.

This government must not go pointing fingers at other governments; it should point fingers at itself. Look at the series of bills the government is putting forward now. I ask members to look at Bill 84 and ask themselves whether Bill 84 in any way whatsoever has any connection with respect to the cross-border shopping issue. Do people go down to the United States to buy cigarettes? If members say no, they have problems, because I suggest to them that is one of the many reasons why people go down. Certainly they go down to buy alcohol. They go down to buy clothing. They go down to buy equipment. It may be as a result of taxes from other jurisdictions, but they certainly go down to buy cigarettes.

People from other countries, not just the United States, who come to visit us are simply shocked at the cost of tobacco in this country. Again, I do not think we should ignore the health issue. We cannot ignore the health issue because that should be addressed by the government, but the fact is that people buy cigarettes. People are hooked on cigarettes. Young people are hooked on cigarettes. What is the government going to do about that? I suppose one theory is that the government will make it so expensive that they will not buy it. It is not working. Members should just talk to any of their children who are going to the schools around this province and ask whether smoking has been reduced in the schools. I think they will find that many of the children of members are still continuing to smoke even though it may be a health hazard. The idea of raising the cost of cigarettes is not working.

Getting back to the issue of cross-border shopping, of this tremendous amount of revenue that is being generated, the $220 million this fiscal year and $250 million for a full year, if the government acknowledges that Bill 84 is part of the problem of cross-border shopping—I do not see how it can help but acknowledge that—what percentage of the funds is being used to assist the communities in our border communities that are suffering, the retailers who sell tobacco? Rightly or wrongly, they sell tobacco. That is another debate, which presumably will come forward in some health initiative put forward by this government, but currently we are debating Bill 84 and what the moneys are going to be used for.

I will bet that the minister will simply be silent on the subject and will not say that it is being addressed specifically to deal with health, to deal with cross-border shopping, to deal with smuggling, to deal with solving or assisting the agricultural problem in southwestern Ontario. My guess is that she will not say that at all. She may say it will be indirectly, but of the $250 million for the next full year or the $220 million for this fiscal year, what portion of that will it be and how is she dividing it up? Is she dividing it up to solve these problems, most of which are pre-existing?

I am not saying that these specific problems were caused by Bill 84, but Bill 84 has added on to these pre-existing situations. They are making them worse. They are making the farmer worry where his next mortgage payment is going to come from. They are making the employee who is working in the manufacturing of equipment in the tobacco industry worry about whether he is going to be laid off, and whether there are going to be more firms closing up and moving to the United States where the tobacco industry seems to be flourishing. I hope we do not hear announcements in the coming months of segments of the tobacco industry closing up, worrying what we are going to do with those people who are losing their properties or their jobs. It is a great concern that the government puts forward these types of bills, these series of bills, and has not studied the overall impact.

I do not wish to debate at this time any further areas of the subject. I will only again summarize that I am concerned with the subject of health and the government's lack of policy with respect to the effect of smoking on health, whether it be firsthand smoking or secondhand smoking, that whole area. I am sure there are many in this House and medical people in this House who could debate for hours the effect of smoking as a cause of cancer. I am sure there are many in this House—perhaps you yourself, Mr Speaker—who could spend many hours debating the effect on the downward turn of the tobacco industry and the farmer in southwestern Ontario.

I leave it for people of more authority than I to deal with those areas. I encourage more people to debate and discuss their views on the effect of Bill 84 on the whole issue of cross-border shopping and the smuggling that has resulted from that issue.

The Acting Speaker: Questions and/or comments, the honourable member for—Victoria-Haliburton.

Mr Drainville: Mr Speaker, I am surprised, after looking across the House at you for so long, that you have forgotten my constituency of origin.

I would like to respond very quickly with just a couple of comments. It is certain, as usual, that the member for Dufferin-Peel has raised a number of issues that are worth mentioning in such a debate on this particular matter. I would like, though, to challenge him on one little part of his presentation. He quite rightly alludes in his comments to the fact that other provinces are also using a tax on tobacco as a means of raising revenue and this is something about which he says—I am paraphrasing him when I say this—that just because they do it does not mean Ontario has to do it.

1550

I guess all I want to do is put it into some perspective here, because this is not something that began with the New Democratic Party. For 43 years, the Progressive Conservative Party here in Ontario taxed tobacco. It may not have been for 43 years, but for a substantial period of that 43 years they certainly taxed tobacco. I remember very well those halcyon days in the past when, as a citizen, I was reading Hansard and was engaged in the affairs of this province, reading of these incredible increases in the amount of taxation the Progressive Conservative Party was raising for the people of Ontario through this form of taxation. Nowhere in the member's statement did he give any indication that this had been a historical reality on the part of his own party, the party he is a member of and the party he represents.

I must say that is an omission that really needs to be corrected. Of course, if he is saying that in the past his government or his party was wrong in doing that, then he should admit that, and we, being open-minded individuals, are willing to hear that at any time.

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: I would like to make a few comments to the member for Dufferin-Peel on his presentation this afternoon. The revenue that is collected for the tobacco tax goes into the consolidated revenue fund, which pays for our health, social and education programs here in the province.

He also mentioned the tire tax and what we have done with that. I would like to inform the member that the Minister of the Environment announced a few short weeks ago a $7.9-million infusion into the National Rubber Co to pay for recycling tires. I can say that on that end we are doing something with the tire tax and we are letting the people of Ontario know that their tax is going towards what it is supposed to go towards.

As far as meeting with the tobacco farmers and the tobacco industry is concerned, I have done that. The Treasurer has also done that and I have asked the Minister of Health to meet with them and talk about tobacco and how it affects our health and our health care costs in Ontario.

It might also be pointed out that the federal government increased its tax by three cents a cigarette in the 1991 budget, so perhaps the greater part of assistance to tobacco farmers should come from that level of government, and I would encourage the member for Dufferin-Peel to speak to his counterparts in Ottawa about that.

I would also like to inform the House that the ministry began a retail inspection program as of March 1991. We have inspected over 4,000 retailers at this point that I have statistics on. Of those retailers, we have found 25 where we have issued penalty assessments three times the tax value in these cases.

I would like to conclude my remarks this afternoon by also informing the member that cross-border shopping, if he noticed in the press today, has decreased since our summit meeting this summer on the cross-border shopping issue.

Mr Jordan: Actually Bill 84 will increase the cost of a pack of cigarettes by 30 cents per pack. These taxes are hurting our economy and are actually encouraging criminal activity. Many feel they are infringing on the civil rights of thousands of people. Tax on a package of 25 cigarettes in Windsor is $4.38. The same package in Detroit has 74 cents in tax. Cigarettes and alcohol are cited as the major reasons driving Ontario shoppers across the border into the United States. As my colleague has previously stated, this, along with the gasoline and the general taxing policies of this government, is really encouraging people to go across the border for these items.

It is also a major cause of cigarette smuggling and it is becoming one of the major areas of criminal activity in this province. The information I have states that it is up more than 40% in the last two years. As stated by one of the speakers yesterday, you can buy illegally imported cigarettes within blocks of Queen's Park. You can have a carton of smuggled cigarettes delivered to your home in this city for $20. Buying a carton legally could cost you as much as $50. This taxation is further encouraging this type of activity.

Mr Cousens: I would like to go on the record, because when the member for Dufferin-Peel has an opportunity to share some of the comments he had in this presentation, it gives us an understanding that quite frankly is lacking on the other side of the House and from the Liberals. When the Liberals were in power, all they could do was raise taxes. Part of the problem the New Democrats have today is that they have to live up to all the promises and failures of the Grits while they were in power with their spending spree. Now these people, though they do not know how to cut back on their spending, have to find ways of increasing taxes. They are wrong to do so, but the fact of the matter is that when my friend the member for Dufferin-Peel is able to come forward in this House and articulate the situation, the problem, as well as he has, it reflects very well on the people from his riding.

It also says something about all the other ridings that did not elect a Tory. I think it is high time they began to think about it, because every time they go and pay more taxes, what this gentleman has done is remind them of the fact that there are other choices out there, and the other choices are ones that are not going to cost them as much money. That is the kind of thing the member for Dufferin-Peel has been raising in his presentation. I think we are looking at a House that needs more people like the member for Dufferin-Peel, who has the kind of experience and background that he brings to all the issues in the House, and I want to thank him for his excellent remarks this afternoon.

Mr Tilson: Just very briefly on two issues raised by the member for Victoria-Haliburton and the minister, with respect to the minister's comment that referred to the tire tax, the whole purpose of my address to this House was to simply ask the question, specifically what are they doing with the $250 million? What are they going to do with that? Is it going into other areas? I am sure they could stand up and say, "Yes, there are some moneys going to cross-border shopping and some moneys going to the schools to educate our young people with respect to the hazards of smoking," and they could even refer to some examples where moneys have gone to southwestern Ontario to assist some of the farmers there, although the statistics I have read to this House indicate that there does not appear to be any, or very little, going to southwestern Ontario.

The whole purpose of my address comparing it to the tire tax was that when you look at the tire tax, we have yet to see statistics showing specifically what they are doing with the vast amounts of money that have been raised from the tire tax. Is that going to the environment, or is it going into the general coffers that allow them to spend on the various expensive programs that they have been initiating?

That was the purpose of that question, simply to ask, where is the $250 million going?

With respect to the comments made with respect to our party and other provinces raising revenue from tobacco taxes, of course that was my whole point in reading that into the record. That party has maintained that it is going to be different, that it is not going to continue the mistakes of the past or the mistakes of other provinces, "This party is going to be different." They are no different from the rest of the provinces of this country in raising money and destroying the tobacco industry in this country.

Mr Winner: I suggest the members have to be mindful of the veritable challenge this government faced last April in the face of declining revenues and soaring costs, $6.2 billion over the last fiscal year. The government has two choices, as everyone knows: It can borrow the money—members of the opposition have already chastised this government for borrowing too much—or the government can raise taxes.

This particular tax being raised under Bill 84 serves numerous purposes. First, it is part of a budget designed to ease us out of a recession, return people to work and get the economy moving again. We do not fight the deficit on the backs of the poor and unemployed. We design a budget that is reasonable and compassionate, a budget for difficult times.

1600

I remind the members of what John Kenneth Galbraith had to say in an article entitled How to Tame the Recession. He said:

"With the notable exception of the province of Ontario, governments everywhere are tightening their belts, curtailing services, reducing payrolls, furloughing workers or promising to do so. Individuals immediately affected, needless to say, have their spending promptly reduced. Many, under threat of unemployment, are impelled to retrench. So are those receiving welfare and other payments not being curtailed or threatened with curtailment.

"It is in this regard that the Ontario government is leading the way. It has decided to cut taxes for people with low incomes"—as we have seen with Bill 83, just passed—"to provide more income for social assistance, affordable housing and capital projects, to offer loans for businesses hurt by the recession and to look seriously, moreover, at creating its own pool of investment capital to help reinvigorate the provincial economy."

Our challenge as a government was threefold: How were we to deal with the $3.5-billion reduction in federal transfer payments? How were we going to maintain existing programs, without speaking about improving and extending them, which would cost us $3.2 billion? Finally, how were we going to deal with the wildly escalating costs of social assistance?

This budget, as I noted, was designed to put people first in building a productive and more humane community. It was a budget committed to economic renewal, a fresh, new economic vision of sustainable prosperity to move us out of the worst recession in 50 years with an environmentally and socially sustainable, renewable economy.

That is what the $250 million raised under the Tobacco Tax Act is designed to create. It is a tax designed to ensure that necessary revenues flow through to meet this government's growing expenditures and contain the deficit at $9.7 billion. This legislation put before the House represents, I submit, a concerted effort both to contain tax increases for the middle class and to reduce taxes for our low-income earners.

Bill 84 is certain to reduce our health care costs. It is a positive step, as noted by our Treasurer, towards reducing the 13,000 premature deaths in Ontario every year.

Let's not forget that it was the Liberal government, during much more prosperous times than we are currently suffering through, which raised the tax rate on cigarettes in 1988 by 35.3%, and again in 1990 by 26.1%. Our rate of increase is 34.6%, certainly less than the Liberal increase in 1988.

Dealing specifically with the programs this money is being spent on, money is being used to create jobs in a climate of burgeoning unemployment. The anti-recession fund created 70,000 jobs. The anti-recession fund has translated into $4.3 billion spent on capital projects this year, including hospitals, schools, water and sewer systems and transit networks; funding for research; funding for development so that we may better compete internationally, as the members for the third party constantly urge; to improve the funding that is flowing through Innovation Ontario to invest in the growth of high-technology firms, and research and innovation to change our products and to change our production processes.

Recently $35.5 million has been announced to aid our farmers who are hard hit by drought and diminishing incomes. Money raised through this revenue tax is flowing through to the farm community.

Furthermore, taxes have been flowed through to fund social assistance reform to get one million members of Ontario society back to productive work and off welfare. There is $250 million being spent to improve welfare benefits to those in greatest need. Money is also being used to help people get back into the labour force, to increase the fairness and accessibility of our welfare benefits and to assist municipalities with funding social assistance.

At a time when 250,000 jobs have been lost in Ontario and social assistance is up 40%, to $1.4 billion, should there be any question as to why a modest increase in the tobacco tax should take place to ensure that those who are in greatest need receive the assistance they so vitally need in this troubled time?

Money is also being used to create affordable housing, 35,000 units of co-operative and non-profit housing to support the homeless.

What about the prevention of violence against women? Money that was never spent before is being spent to expand the shelters, to improve counselling and prevention programs, to provide immediate social assistance to battered women, to expand pay equity, to improve day care and to introduce employment equity into the workplace.

What we need is appropriate and reasonable spending so that we can work towards social and economic renewal as a basis of recovery and so that we can create jobs, retrain workers and encourage new forms of productive investment. We need to secure well-paid jobs at high levels of employment. We need to provide that the benefits of growth are shared equally. We need to ensure that our economic renewal is environmentally and socially sustainable.

This government is promoting the recovery of the manufacturing base. It is ensuring that industry is productive and competitive as we move into the second millennium. We need to enhance workers' skills. We need to make them more adaptable. We need to adopt new technologies and managerial practices. We need knowledge-based economic restructuring and innovative investment capital for emerging businesses.

We—labour, business and government—can be true partners in economic renewal, but only if all members of the House realize that revenues have to be maintained at a modest scale to ensure that the kinds of social spending programs that are indeed progressive and in keeping with the times can move ahead.

1610

Mr Cousens: I cannot believe this group of people elected by the people of Ontario. The people of Ontario, who are usually very intelligent, have ended up putting in place people who do not know the balance between what industry is all about and the social needs of our province.

The member expounds eloquently about the social agenda this government has. He expounds about what it is doing to help certain municipalities, but his speech does not bring with it any kind of significant commitment to the business community to help get the economy going. If people had more confidence in the minister and his government, we would see more investment and an expansion of jobs in this province. Instead, we are seeing unemployment levels increasing and the general economy on the decline. It takes leadership at the highest level.

I can only suggest that the honourable member, whom I know personally as a friend, should be looking at more than he is. I happen to like the member. He happens to fight for some good things in his community. We have talked about those things. I want to see this member and other members of the New Democratic caucus bring a little more strength. The pendulum keeps swinging farther and farther to the left and what we need to do is bring it back a little. That would mean a balance that respects the needs of the business community. This government never brings that up. They do not know how to talk about it. They do not know what a payroll is all about and they do not seem to understand the drastic problems that exist out there in our economy right now.

I challenge the members of the New Democratic caucus to alert themselves to the real needs of our society. It is not to increase taxes to the level they are. It is becoming something we need to control. We need to control spending and we need to control the expectations of the public, to bring these things under control. The fact of the matter is that this government is not beginning to do that. The member's speech tells us that.

M. Bisson : Merci beaucoup. C'est avec un grand intérêt que j'ai écouté mon collègue le député de London-

Sud, qui a parlé un peu de la situation des taxes. Toute cette question autour des taxes est vraiment une question qui tracasse n'importe quel gouvernement dans n'importe quelle province ou juridiction où on se trouve.

D'un côté de l'équation la population vient nous voir, nous en tant que députés, en nous disant : «On demande des services. C'est important qu'on donne les services nécessaires à ma communauté.» Il faut assurer qu'on ait en place un système d'éducation, des systèmes médicaux, toutes les affaires que veut le monde pour avoir une société avec un peu d'équité. De l'autre côté, comme n'importe qui de n'importe quel gouvernement dans n'importe quelle juridiction, on a le problème d'un monde qui nous dit, «On ne veut pas payer ça.»

C'est vraiment une des grosses questions qui tracassent n'importe quel gouvernement. On se retrouve, en 1990, au seul d'une économie globale. Comment être capable, comme gouvernement, de mettre en place les revenus nécessaires qui donneront les services nécessaires pour appuyer notre société, et, comme l'a dit le député de Markham, mettre en place les programmes nécessaires pour appuyer le secteur des affaires de la province ? Je pense que c'est exactement ça qu'a dit mon collègue le député de London-Sud. D'une manière ou d'une autre, un gouvernement a besoin de payer le prix pour mettre ces services-là en place.

Il n'est pas facile pour n'importe quel gouvernement de trouver les ressources nécessaires et d'avoir de l'argent en place pour payer les programmes. Je pense que la plupart des députés ici, comme la majorité de la population de l'Ontario ou de n'importe quelle autre province, vont dire, «Des taxes c'est correct, mais parle pas des taxes à mon porte-feuille.»

C'est vraiment là le problème dans lequel on se trouve, comme n'importe quel politicien dans n'importe quelle juridiction du Canada, d'ailleurs : de quelle manière peut-on aller rechercher les ressources naturelles dont on a besoin pour être capable de payer nos services ?

Le président suppléant (M. Villeneuve) : Merci infiniment au député de Cochrane-Sud pour sa participation. Further questions and/or comments?

Mr Bradley: One of the items that was not noted, as it should have been, with the same emphasis it has been noted by members in the opposition, is the effect of this tax on cross-border shopping. Many people who reside in areas which are close to the border, or who know of people in those areas, know that there are loss leaders that send people across the border. There are things which attract people almost on a weekly basis to do their shopping in the United States. One of those is the cost of tobacco products. Another is the cost of alcohol, and meals as a result of the cost of alcohol. Third, and probably the most important, is the cost of gasoline. There are many people now who make a habit of going over to the other side of the border to do their shopping. That is what leads them in that direction.

Few people would quarrel over the years with what we call sin taxes. Ordinarily an easy tax to put on is the one on alcoholic beverages. Second is the one on tobacco. Both of them have a detrimental health effect. One would make an argument for an environmental tax in terms of a tax on gasoline, or an energy conservation tax. All these, in a certain context, probably were tolerable to the public. What has happened, however, is that because of cross-border shopping, because of the not millions but billions of dollars that are going to the United States to purchase products, many people now understand that we have reached the maximum in terms of taxes on these products.

That is why those of us in the opposition have advocated that these taxes be withdrawn. Of course, there will also be a diminishing return on them, but that is another issue. My main plea to the government is to look at the fact that it is sending people to the United States to shop by increasing taxes on what I call the loss leaders.

Mr Stockwell: It has become painfully obvious that the issue the member forgot to address is exactly what his government is doing for the farmers who were growing tobacco. Maybe he will offer up some particular pearl of wisdom in his response. I would like to hear it. I think the farmers in southwestern Ontario are waiting with bated breath. They are very concerned.

Although the member addresses a lot of issues with respect to pay equity and so on, he does not deal with the real issue involved here. If he is prepared to raise taxes, he has to give people the opportunity to convert their farms to something other than what he is really driving them out of the country to buy. I do not think anyone is going to give anyone any argument about the fact that people are leaving this province to buy tobacco because it is cheaper. It is dramatically cheaper. If that is a decision the government is prepared to make—and I guess it is, it increased the taxes—then he has to offer an alternative to the farmers in southwestern Ontario.

My friend across the floor has offered nothing to the farm family, nothing to the growers, nothing to the people attached to the industry about what they are supposed to do in this economic uncertainty, with a declining base of consumers and a government that is very clearly opposed to the consumption of this product.

I think the other point that must be made to the member for London South is that, I agree with him, resources are very hard to come by. He suggested it is very difficult to find places where he can raise taxes. I am not saying that is not true too, but with all due respect, it is neither fish nor fowl.

If the government is prepared to put forward some serious recommendations and raise the taxes of the people in this province, it should have been prepared to tax the people for it. I firmly believe the people should be taxed for the government they get. If the government was truly fair and suggested that all its initiatives, which cost a tremendous amount of money, should be funded, they should be funded from the tax base. But not only did the government increase taxes to selected industries, it ran up the debt by some $9.7 billion. I do not think the government made a decision. It offed the decision on to future generations, which I think is the most reprehensible thing it could have done.

Mr Winninger: I certainly appreciate the mixed commentary from the member for Markham. He is certainly pleased with some of the initiatives this government has taken. He has said on more than one occasion that he wants to see more done on behalf of the environment, and certainly the kind of money that is being raised through Bill 84 by way of revenues will help fund the kind of environmental remedial work the member for Markham has so often and so cogently called for.

The member for Markham and his party did not have a monopoly on private business. I ran my own law firm. I know what it means to meet a payroll each week; I know what it means to meet expenses. Quite frankly, when your costs are soaring and your revenues are down, you have to seek ways of ameliorating that situation. You either raise taxes on a modest level or you go out and borrow the money. In this time of recession, the member for Markham will understand that one has to do both.

In response to the remarks made by the member for Etobicoke West, certainly I do not hold any intimate knowledge of farmers in the agricultural community and I would rather defer to some of my colleagues who represent rural ridings and who have a better grasp on the issue facing tobacco farmers.

I come from London. There are many tobacco communities nearby such as Delhi and Glencoe. I am not diminishing the threat they are facing these days and the threat that all farmers are facing at a time when their revenues are declining, when they are dealing with the ravages of drought and an insensitive federal government that is not providing the kind of assistance that this provincial government has committed itself to.

1620

The Acting Speaker: Further debate on Bill 84, An Act to amend the Tobacco Tax Act, the honourable member for Ottawa East.

[Applause]

Mr Grandmaitre: Well, isn't that great?

First, I want to let members know that I am not a tobacco farmer but I am very much interested in the taxing of the product.

I know exactly what the minister is going through. I have sat in her chair previously. She has to put through these bills, which are not easy to put through when you are talking about increasing taxes on tobacco, gasoline, liquor and all these great things that need to be taxed. But there is a limit to taxation. Even the former Minister of Revenue will agree that there is a limit to taxation.

What really concerns me is the way we are going about taxing tobacco. I know this government needs dollars. It was pointed out by the member for London South that they need to balance their budget. I do not think by increasing the tobacco tax, they will balance their budget, but all these needed dollars are necessary to provide us with a reasonable way of living.

It seems every government on this side of heaven loves to tax three substances—let's call them substances—liquor, gasoline and tobacco. I know when we speak of tobacco, we are talking about a product that kills people.

Studies have indicated very clearly that every year 13,000 die prematurely because of tobacco misuse—and I use the word “misuse.” This government is not only satisfied to tax people who smoke, and tax them dearly, but it has now instituted a Fair Tax Commission that will make sure that when you die, you will pay a death tax. So they will get you coming or going. They want to make sure of this.

I think the Ministry of Health is doing great things promoting good health. I am told that 15% of our population quit smoking last year, and this is good news. But this is not good news for Ontario or for the present government, because it takes advantage of losing smokers, 15% of our population, every year. What they are doing is increasing the opportunity of creating more revenue by increasing the tax, as they did the last time around, from 1.6 cents per cigarette to 6.5 cents per cigarette.

There is a limit, as I pointed out, for the simple reason that people who quit the habit quit buying tobacco. There are repercussions, and our farmers are suffering because of the lack of smokers or the lack of tobacco use. I think it is the responsibility of this government to provide adequate funding for tobacco farmers who are going bankrupt every day in this province. It is shameful for this government not to provide adequate funds not only to tobacco farmers but to all farmers in Ontario. I realize that only a few weeks ago a $35-million program was instituted to improve the quality of life of our farmers, but this is not enough, especially when we look at the record taxes that are being raked in by this government.

Mr Duignan: Established by the Liberals.

Mr Grandmaitre: The member across is saying it was started by the Liberal government. I do not think it was started by our government. I think it has been perpetuated by every government for the last 120 years, ever since tobacco has been on the market. I dare the British Columbia socialist government and the Saskatchewan government not to increase tobacco taxes. That is the first thing they will do. I hope they will be using the funds for better things than this government will.

By increasing the tax by close to five cents per cigarette, this government will amass a $1.04-billion revenue. As I pointed out, $35 million will be going to help farmers earn a better living. I think more money should be provided to farmers converting to another crop.

Talking about a tax grab, I have to address the issue of cigarette and tobacco smuggling. This government has to do a better job in stopping smugglers. It is happening every day. I know in the past a former Liberal government tried to introduce a tobacco-marking system. Is it working? I am asking the minister to respond to my question. Is it working? How effective is it? I know the tobacco manufacturing people spent $10 million of their own money to institute such a program, and I think a worthwhile program.

I know the ministry is losing millions of dollars every year. The ministry knows this; the minister knows this. I think the minister should provide her ministry with the adequate tools, the adequate human resources to prevent the tobacco smuggling that is happening every day. I would like the minister to tell me if she or the ministry have hired more tobacco inspectors. I would like to know. I would like to get an answer to my questions, and I have more questions.

As I pointed out, the minister has a tough job in introducing these bills and pushing them through, but I am asking her questions today. I have six questions to ask the minister.

I would like to know how helpful the tobacco marking program is. Has the ministry hired more tobacco inspectors? How many charges have been laid since instituting this new program? Why not appoint tobacco manufacturers as tax collectors? If we were to appoint tobacco manufacturers as tax collectors, I think we would prevent smuggling. I am not saying we would abolish smuggling, but I think we could cut it back by 75% or 80% if taxes were paid right at the manufacturers' level. In other words, we should make them tax collectors. I remember this is something we were looking at in my own day, but no answers were given.

Also in my day, we had a problem with Indian reserves and I hope the ministry has solved this problem. I know a lot of things were happening on Indian reserves. A lot of tobacco and cigarettes were being sold untaxed, not only from Ontario but also from other provinces.

1630

I know that most of the answers the minister will give to my six principal questions will be no. If the answers to my questions are yes, her ministry will be doing its job, the job it is supposed to be doing, and that is to collect taxes in Ontario. Why should we introduce legislation if we are not going to follow through? Why can the ministry not hire the human resources needed to do a good job? I think it is very unfair to the ministry.

Maybe the minister thinks I am speaking in favour of her bill. I am not, but I am sympathizing with her people, because they simply cannot do a good job when she does not have the human resources. She has been cutting back on her human resources budget every year, and this year she is doing the very same thing. She is cutting back. If it is not on tax collection, it is on assessment. I know what is going on in her ministry.

On tobacco smuggling, I would like to quote from an investigation that was conducted by the Peat Marwick Thorne forensic and investigative accounting department. They estimate that the total federal loss of revenue from untaxed and smuggled tobacco products totals $350 million for over 12 million cartons of cigarettes. Ontario should have a share totalling at least five million cartons. That is about a 40% share of the smuggled cartons, based on our population. The provincial tax on cigarettes per carton, including our provincial sales tax, is $13 per carton. The federal tax on cigarettes per carton, including GST, is $18.08.

Let's go back to the five million cartons referred to as Ontario cartons and multiply this by $13. It amounts to $65 million in lost provincial revenue. That is close to half of what they gave farmers to resolve their problems. Five million cartons at $18.08 represents $90.4 million in lost revenue, for a grand total of $155.4 million. That is what it adds up to. Why? Because of lack of enforcement.

I think smuggling and cross-border shopping go together, because most people smuggle cigarettes when they shop in the United States. This is getting to be very expensive, not only for the tobacco growers in Ontario but for all products that are being bought in the States and transferred or driven through the border of Ontario free of tax. This government has to do a better job in enforcing our present laws. We are losing money. I think it is very unfair that other people in Ontario have to pay extra taxes because of lax laws or lack of enforcement of our present laws. I think it is a crime that this government knows about these problems but is not reacting to them.

I could go on and on, but my throat is drying up. I would just like to remind the minister that she has to do a better job and the ministry has to do a better job.

I would like an answer to my six questions. If she needs help to twist her deputy minister to get more people to enforce her legislation, I am offering my services and she can keep her salary. We are not here to take advantage of taxpayers. We are simply offering good opposition.

Mr Jordan: I was interested in the comments made by my colleague, but I find it is really just another way of hammering the Ontario farmer. Besides the income loss and the job loss, the farming community is receiving no incentives from this tax. The government is taxing tobacco and is putting the farmer out of business, but there does not appear to be any proof that some of the tax money is being used to do research on tobacco plants. Perhaps there are other uses for the plant that would not be harmful and could sustain the industry.

In my riding of Lanark-Renfrew, companies like Somerville Packaging in Smiths Falls, a division of Paperboard Industries Corp, are constantly under the gun, facing legislation like Bill 84. The 171 plant staff and 21 office staff rely exclusively on the tobacco industry. The plant manager confirms that any investigation of alternative packing or manufacturing has been done completely at the company's expense. There has been no government assistance whatsoever to return some of the tax that has been placed on this product. The government must think through such legislation before bringing it in. It must consider the importance of 192 jobs in communities like Smiths Falls in eastern Ontario.

The increase in taxes is expected to raise an additional $250 million. This revenue goes directly, as we understand it, into the general coffers. Not a penny is set aside to encourage the manufacturers and tobacco farmers to explore alternatives to tobacco production.

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: In my constituency of Port Arthur, I live in a village called Murillo and we have a baseball team out there called the Murillo Mud Hens. They are very good. After three strikes, you are out. This is the third member on Bill 84 who has asked about the marking program and what our retail inspectors have done so far, so I am going to tell him again and hope that all the other members who wish to speak on this bill who are not in the Legislature at this time, but are going to speak, have this answer so they do not bring it up again, as if they are not listening to the replies they are getting in the debate.

The retail tobacco inspection program began in March 1991. Since that time, 5,266 retail tobacco outlets have been inspected by ministry inspectors. Of these, 4,953 retailers have been found to be fully compliant; 288 retailers have been found to have small quantities of unmarked cigarettes which they were ordered to remove. Another 25 had slightly larger quantities of unmarked cigarettes in stock, and penalty assessments of three times the tax value were issued in these cases.

I would also like to inform the member for Ottawa East that, yes, we are working with native reserves, with the Attorney General also involved, regarding native tobacco quotas, so that issue is being dealt with.

Also, I would like to remind the other member who spoke about the $35.5 million that the Minister of Agriculture and Food announced to go to all farmers that the minister is working with the tobacco farmers. He is listening to the issues they have and is hoping to have some answers and some solutions that he can bring back to us as a cabinet to help the tobacco farmers.

The Deputy Speaker: Are there any further question or comments? If not, the member for Ottawa East has two minutes to reply.

Mr Grandmaitre: I think the minister tried to answer some of my questions, but I am going to repeat some of them. Why not consider appointing tobacco manufacturers as tax collectors? That is very clear, very plain. How many new inspectors have you hired since you have been sitting in this office? Are you taking notes of those questions?

1640

The Deputy Speaker: You should address your questions to the Chair, please.

Mr Grandmaitre: I am trying to wake up the minister, Mr Speaker.

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: On a point of order, Mr Speaker: I was awake and I was listening to what the member for Ottawa East was saying.

Mr Grandmaitre: I do not want to surprise her, but I still maintain that I should get answers to my two questions: How many new tax inspectors has her ministry hired, and why not consider tobacco manufacturers and appoint them as tax collectors?

Mr Cousens: I am really surprised. I look at my good friend the member for Ottawa East as he allows a little lady like this to come along and beat him up. Here we have David and Goliath, but David—

Interjection.

Mr Cousens: No way. The new Minister of Revenue is in the job the member for Ottawa East used to have and can just out-talk and outmanoeuvre him. I do not think she could begin to out-think him, but the fact of the matter here is that the former Minister of Revenue is coming along and going after the present Minister of Revenue saying, "How terrible."

The problem started with those guys in 1985. David Peterson came to power and had the big dream the New Democrats and Liberals cooked up together. They were so far up in the clouds with all those wonderful concepts on how they would spend the taxpayers' money and how they would build a kingdom, and as they looked down on it they started to plan and plan and spend and spend. What we are living through today is just a further extension of those dreams that were started by David Peterson, and then the member for Ottawa East and all the Liberals because, let's face it, it was a coalition between these two groups. Once the Liberals came to power they were propped up in the first place by the New Democrats and the province went along with it.

To me, there are not that many Conservatives left in this House. There are 20 of us now. There were days when there may have been more, but we will continue to exist. There is a motto that says, "Tough times don't last; tough people do." We are into tough times right now and the people of Ontario will survive. They will come through. They will survive the budget, the deficit and the things the New Democrats are doing, but let's not just forget the history of what has happened. The Liberals helped bring this to pass.

They started the spending that has now caused the New Democrats to be in a position where they are having to spend in excess of what will be brought in through the Treasury this year. The deficit will jump to $9.7 billion. That is within their budget. The feeling we have now is that the deficit will be well in excess of that. It could be $12 billion or maybe even $13 billion. Though the people of Ontario will not pay that bill this year, with the increase in taxes and the way this government is carrying on, our children will. Those who succeed us will have a big bill to pay.

Ottawa has had to face up to that problem over the last several years, and the fact of the matter is that 35 cents of every dollar of our federal taxes goes to pay off the deficit, to pay the interest rate. We are not even close to meeting a balanced budget in Ottawa, and now in Ontario we are going to project an increased deficit over the next several years and increase the hole. The hole will get bigger and bigger as the people of Ontario live beyond their means.

Spending by this government is another reason for this tax. Spending was estimated to go up by 13.4% in their budget forecast; spending will be up in excess of that because of the welfare rolls, social assistance, a number of things—some of them legitimate, let's face it. We are not going to see the people of this province suffer when we are into a deep recession; we have a duty to fulfil those responsibilities. But when you see government spending up by that amount for reasons that have to do with the size of the ministers' offices and the size of the bureaucracy they are building—

An hon member: The bar tab.

Mr Cousens: And the outstanding example that was raised today by our leader, the member for Nipissing, in the spending by the Attorney General, allowing $10,000 for a couple of days' visit out to the Niagara region. It sure helped the economy.

The Deputy Speaker: Please come back to the issue.

Mr Cousens: It is part of the issue. If you want to disagree with me, Mr Speaker, I take exception. I am talking about the spending by this government and the deficit, and I am talking with relevance to the bill we are on.

The Deputy Speaker: Talk about the tobacco tax.

Mr Cousens: The problem we have is the deficit created by this government, and the tobacco tax is part of the whole problem. I am sorry, Mr Speaker, I take exception to it. I am pointing out an example where the Attorney General had a party for his staff, which he did not attend, but they spent $10,000 on this party; again, part of the deficit, and here, in order to cover that deficit, they have taxes. It all fits into a picture.

If for that event they had bought only Niagara wine with the $2,500 bar bill instead of the Grand Marnier and the Baileys Irish Cream, there might have been a little happiness for the member for St Catharines.

Our concern has to do with government spending. There are illustrations galore where this government has not yet faced up to the need to reduce its spending. Instead of reducing its spending, which is the illustration I tried to give to the honourable Speaker, they are increasing taxes. The tobacco tax becomes a way in which this government tries to approach the problem.

I am going to talk about the tobacco tax and its ramifications, but I also feel there is a much a larger picture of a government out of control and the sense of confidence that is being lost by people like myself and those in my riding and across the province who are saying the New Democrats have an opportunity to do what they want. We in this House will, I hope, bring to their attention the problems they are creating through their measures and their actions, due to their inaction in other areas. There is a sense of responsibility that we have to make sure the New Democrats understand it before they continue to spend with abandon.

When we start looking at the way this government is spending money, the only way it is able to solve its problems is, one, by increasing taxes or, two, by increasing the deficit. The one thing they have not thought about is cutting spending.

Very recently the Treasurer came forward and said, "I'm coming in with the new R word: restraint." There was some talk of restraint; $600,000 in the first year is all it amounts to. That is just a bag of shells. That does not begin to show any effort of restraint on a budget as large as Ontario's. They have not begun to really say, "We're going to cut back on certain things."

It is very easy to make the symbolic gesture of saying MPPs will not have a salary increase. Everybody takes great pleasure in thinking the MPPs are paid too much right now for what they do. In the view of many people politicians get too much money. I just take some exception to the way this government has come along and said, "We're going to have restraint," and the one thing that has happened is that during the last year, every member of the New Democrats has probably made more money than he or she has ever made before, and they have made every effort to change the cost figures for our salaries. But we do not talk about it. There is no public support for me to talk about members' salaries, so why get into it? That is not my intention.

My talk here has to do with the serious problem of the farmers who are trying to eke out a living. They happen to be growing tobacco, which has become a product where people in Ontario have said, "We don't want smoking." This building is a non-smoking place. We have helped bring in non-smoking legislation across the province. In fact, we have an understanding now of the effect smoke has on health in a large number of ways, not just the primary smoke of the smoker but secondary smoke. What we have ended up doing is rationalizing the increase in taxation very easily, saying there is one way to stop people from smoking and that is to add to the tax on a package of cigarettes or on a gram of tobacco. So while people are doing something that is called a sin, we are able to get more money for the government coffers.

1650

How much money do members think the government has brought in over the last number of years? In 10 years both the federal and provincial governments have taken in excess of $31 billion in tobacco taxes, $31 billion by both levels of government in tobacco taxes. Yet how much money has gone back to support and assist the tobacco farmers and the tobacco industry? Has $1 billion gone in? No, it is less than that: $70 million has gone back into the tobacco industry over a 10-year period. What has happened is that well over $30 billion has gone into the coffers of both levels of government and meanwhile the number of tobacco farmers in Ontario, where we had something like 2,500 tobacco farmers, has gone down to maybe 1,200.

The 1,300 who are no longer farming tobacco are into other products, they are out of business, their farms have been sold or the banks have taken them over. They certainly do not have as much to rely on as they once had. Their dream has been taken away. The lack of assistance and support from any level of government to significantly address the needs they have has become a matter of concern to all of us.

I am going to talk about the programs the governments had. I think that is part and parcel of the picture. When we see the $31-billion golden egg that has been given to the governments of Canada and this province over a 10-year period of time, that huge amount of money, a very minuscule amount has gone back to help that industry. Only $70 million has gone back to them.

So what do we do? We have to look at the different programs that have been available to help tobacco farmers. For one thing, I am a non-smoker. I was not at one time and I could still easily start smoking again. It is one of those things. Having done it, I enjoyed it. I think there are many people right now for whom smoking is a very important part of their existence. I happen to believe we can only go so far in trying to force people to do what we want them to do.

It is called civil liberties and it reaches a point where, having taxed them to such a level, it is almost like Prohibition. During the 1930s we said, "There will be absolutely no alcohol," and so at that time there developed a whole underground network of trade so that people could buy alcohol. Now what happens here in Ontario, because we have increased the cost of tobacco to such an extent, as has been previously mentioned by other speakers in this House, is that people do cross-border shopping. Tobacco is certainly one of the items that comes across the border in large quantities, because it is so much cheaper south of the border than it is here in Canada.

Is it our plan to get people to stop smoking? Certainly the tobacco tax is a tremendously large disincentive to a smoker. All they have to do is add up the cost of their habit and begin to say, "I could do other things with the money." There is another disincentive to smoking, and that is the health consideration. I have no idea what the costs are for emphysema, cancer and other sicknesses related to smoking. They certainly puts a large cost on our health system. It is of concern to me and it is of concern to everybody that there are primary and secondary illnesses because of smoking.

I think the whole problem of whether or not people should smoke is not a matter for me as a legislator to decide. I think that is something for an individual to decide on his own. Let them weigh the merits of whether they can afford it. Whether it is their willpower, whether it is all the reasons or whether they have to go and get help to quit smoking, let that be their decision.

Has it become the decision of the province to say, "We don't want people to smoke"? We have reached the point where we have said, "We're taxing it to such a level that it is now threatening the industry of the tobacco farmers and all those who are related to it." The industry is an integral part of Delhi and Tillsonburg in Ontario, where there are many people whose livelihood depends upon tobacco. It is not just the 1,200 farmers who are left; it is the thousands of other jobs in curing and providing manufacturing equipment, the whole marketing of their products and the world markets they open up. It is a combination of things.

Are we making a philosophical decision in this House that we do not want people to smoke? If that is the case, I wish someone would say so, because then we could come along and do something in particular for those who are going to be disaffected, the industry we are talking about, the tobacco farmers and those related to the tobacco industry. Then we can come along and say, "All right, we are restructuring it so smoking will not be allowed in this country and we are now going to do specific things to assist you." I do not think this government has said that. We have called it a sin tax. We have called it Bill 84. It becomes just another way for the government to raise money to spend on other things.

I apologize for my earlier comments to the Speaker. I respect him very highly in the chair and out of the chair. The fact of the matter is that a tobacco tax for Ontario is part of a much bigger picture and is not something you can just take in isolation and say, "Okay, just examine specifically the effect on the smokers or the cost of this extra amount of money for a cigarette or a gram of tobacco." It has much wider ramifications than that. If a certain percentage of the money we are raising through taxation went back into the tobacco farmers' assistance program in different ways, so that they could transist to other forms of farming, then we in the province could somehow justify the large revenue base that comes through the tobacco tax.

The tobacco transition program is run by both the federal and provincial governments. It is a fund in which there is money right now from the federal government that can be spent to assist farmers in this whole transition program. In fact, this program has already put something like $54 million into the pockets of tobacco farmers who have taken land out of production from tobacco to soybeans and other products. But there is still $14 million in the tobacco transition initiative, in the federal coffers, which could be used to assist tobacco farmers right here now in Ontario.

The key to get that money is for Ontario to have its own parallel program to assist the tobacco farmers, but the Ontario government has seen fit, in its own wisdom, not to participate in that program. Therefore, the $14 million the federal government has set aside will not be spent to assist Ontario tobacco farmers. I cannot accept that when I see this government coming along and raising a tax on tobacco right now, if at the same time it cannot look at the needs of the tobacco farmers. Something is very inconsistent.

Let's face it: It has been done by every government. I cannot say it is just the problem of the New Democrats' closed minds. It was certainly the case when the Liberals were in power, and we can go back to earlier days when Tory governments in Ontario taxed tobacco as well.

It is a matter of degree. We are now at the point that the number of tobacco farmers continues to decline. We have an industry in trouble and there is not a sou going back. They will probably find a few dollars, because of some of the other programs, but a significant understanding of the need of the tobacco farmers is not being taken by us in the Ontario Legislature.

I have to take great exception to that kind of callous disregard of the needs of people who have their own personal investment at stake: their land, their families, their homes. The whole industry that surrounds this is not getting the support from government it should receive.

I look across the House and they just laugh. I do not sense the commitment that should be there on the part of all of us, saying, "We want to do something to assist those who have a specific need." We have an industry, a totally indigenous industry to Ontario, and this industry is now in jeopardy. If we as a government, if we as a Legislature—I am not part of the government; I am part of the Conservative opposition to this bill. I could not be part of the government on this. I would be voting against the bill. I really sincerely hope the government will have second thoughts on just why it is continuing to tax at such a level and why it is that it will not consider a more balanced approach to the budget of the province and the needs of the people within it.

1700

I am specifically talking about the needs of the tobacco farmers and the tobacco industry. What will Elmer Buchanan be—that is the Minister of Agriculture and Food—doing in the future? I think of Elmer Fudd and I probably have a bit of a laugh in my mind when I think of the Minister of Agriculture and Food—

The Deputy Speaker: Order, please. I would prefer that you refer to the Minister of Agriculture and Food either by his riding or as the minister, please.

Mr Cousens: Okay. I will refer to him as the Minister of Agriculture and Food, because it would be wrong to refer to him as a cartoon person. That would really put him down as a funny, useless person who does not show respect for the high office. But if people have in the back of their minds, when they think of a person's name, a certain cartoon figure whose name is Elmer Fudd, and the Minister of Agriculture and Food, a very highly respected person by the New Democrats and not by many others, is in a position that he is being ridiculed, I can only say he is being ridiculed because of his failure to deal with an issue that has to do with the very livelihood and wellbeing of a significant industry in our province—significant if you are in it. There are many other industries that are in trouble. We saw the people this morning from Algoma who came to talk to us about their needs.

Hon Mr Hampton: Saskatchewan farmers had a chance to reflect on this yesterday.

Mr Villeneuve: They are in trouble too now, a lot more than they realize.

The Deputy Speaker: Order.

Mr Cousens: The people of Saskatchewan have a problem all right, but I will tell members, they do not grow tobacco in Saskatchewan. They do not have tobacco farmers in Saskatchewan. I do not know what they would be doing about it. I am talking about Ontario and what we can do here in this province to help the tobacco farmer.

The honourable members opposite are very glad to try to divert me on to other subjects. I not about to be side-tracked on to other subjects. I think there is sufficient to talk about just in dealing with the tobacco farmers and the tobacco industry, which is an indigenous Ontario industry, and we have to do something about it.

The issue will not be resolved until we see some action taken by this government to do something about its deficit. It should not keep spending with such abandon that it has to increase the size of the debt, which will increase to proportions that future generations will have to pay.

Our caucus, under the leadership of the member for Nipissing, is trying to at least make a statement—

Hon Mr Hampton: The Taxfighter was out in Saskatchewan, was he?

Mr Cousens: He is known as a taxfighter, and the fact of the matter is—

Interjections.

The Deputy Speaker: Order. There is a period of two minutes per member after, if you wish to ask any questions of the member for Markham. The member for Markham, please address the chair.

Mr Cousens: I think I will have to start at the beginning, to go back over all the points I have tried to make, because with these interruptions that are coming forward—

Interjections.

The Deputy Speaker: The member for Durham West, please. The member for Markham, address the chair.

Mr Cousens: I would be pleased to address the chair. I would just hope there is something all of us can do to deal with the New Democrats.

There was an ad we put in the paper when this government brought down its budget. It is a picture of the Treasurer and the Premier having a great laugh. That is when they dumped the budget on Ontario. It has to do with what we are talking about now. If the government did not have the extra spending that it is going on with now as a government, if it did not allow itself to go on without abandon, then it would not need to be raising the kind of taxes that it is right now. Why not, at this time of economic recession, have some kind of holding back from a government that is just not keeping in touch with the reality out there?

I am concerned about a number of issues as they pertain to this. I think other members of the House will want to speak to it. I do not think there is any doubt that the members of our caucus are strongly opposed to the tax increases that are being brought forward by this government. We have gone through the bill with care. We realize that the bill is just giving more heavy-handedness to the government in its collection procedures. We see that the bill is going to add to the cost of each cigarette so that it is 6.5 cents on every cigarette purchased and 6.5 cents on every gram or part thereof of any tobacco that is purchased. We are seeing the cost of living go up. It is part of that business where the cost of living in Ontario becomes all that more difficult.

We are losing our competitive position in Ontario. I do not think we can blame it on a tobacco tax bill, but it is just one of those reasons why it becomes more costly to live in this province than in other jurisdictions. Is it any wonder people are looking at Buffalo or places south of the border more seriously because it is more costly to live in Ontario?

Can they tell me what is not more costly in Ontario? Tobacco is more costly, but everything else seems to cost more, and what do we get for it? Probably more government, and the one thing people are getting too much of in this province is more government. If there could be a sense of bringing government down, bringing it under control, bringing its expenses under control, then we would have a chance to see the future with a sense of confidence.

There are a number of issues we have to raise on this. I do not think the subject will end with this debate. The government will, with its strength of numbers, come forward and vote down any amendments we make. The government will, in its own wisdom, go ahead and spend the way it has. They have freedom for three and a half or four years, however long it takes, and at that time hopefully the people of Ontario will remember something of the disastrous kind of government they had in this province. Here they are being bled again and again by a government that just cannot keep its hands out of our pockets and is just taking the money and then frittering it away.

There are more examples coming forward as people point out to us the failure of this government to deal with it. If this government—and in fact I have not discussed it with our own caucus—came forward with some measures immediately, before this bill was passed, that would help the tobacco farmers plow back a certain percentage of the money that is going to be raised through this extra tax and through the taxes that come in through the tobacco tax to assist farmers in Brant-Haldimand and other areas, then I would have a sense that this bill has some equity to it. At this point the money just goes into the government of Ontario coffers. We are not even taking advantage of funds that are available from the federal government. If there were that kind of movement by the government, then there would be less anger from someone like myself because I would see something being given back to the people who really have a need for it.

The tobacco farmers have a need. Let's understand that. Just to continue to tax tobacco is to try to discourage people from having any kind of smoking at all. It may be right, but I do not think we are the people who should be doing it. If we are going to do anything, it can be education at the schools or education in society, but it is not for us to become the civil libertarians who are going to make the laws for everybody. I think we have to set a context for a society to live within and to be part of, but just to come along and arbitrarily move things out of the range of people because of what we are doing is wrong.

I know the New Democrats do not like a word I have said, and I just cannot help it. I wish there was some way in which we could all come back and haunt the caucus room of the New Democrats and cause them to rethink their whole budget approach to Ontario. That is the reason I stand on the floor in this House today, because if we could get them to live within their means, live without this huge, monstrous deficit, to reduce some government spending, to establish a balance so that business can prosper in the province, so that there is confidence in the economy for the future, then I would begin to feel that we have done something here that is beneficial.

1710

What I hear on the other side of the equation is that there is no business sense coming out of this government. That just is not the way to build a prosperous society. Our society is in trouble right now, and what it needs to have is leadership from a government that has empathy and understanding for the needs of business, industry and workers who want jobs so that there is an environment there for them to make a profit, to make a business and to look after their families, instead of this biased, one-sided view that really does not have everything in perspective.

I just hope there is some chance the New Democrats will reconsider this bill. Bill 84 does not need to pass. We could make some amendments to it that will allow it to be far more palatable for the people of Ontario.

The Deputy Speaker: The member for Cochrane North—South.

Mr Bisson: That is twice today that I have been referred to as the member for Cochrane North. I take that as a compliment. I think Cochrane North and Kapuskasing have done a lot to serve as an example of the type of things that are possible, such as what happened in Kapuskasing last spring, when people really do come together to try to work out solutions.

More specifically, the member for Markham talked about creating a business climate, creating an environment where it is more conducive to do business in Ontario. I do not think anybody will argue with that statement on the surface. I think everybody wants to have a better business climate for people to invest in this province.

But what kind of climate is the member talking about? If the member had been here yesterday, he would know that is exactly the point I talked about. Is he talking about creating a climate that says we do not want equity in our society? Is he talking about an environment that says, "It's okay; you can come to Ontario and start up a manufacturing plant and pollute all you want"? Is he talking about a society that says, "No, you don't have to have protection for the workers"?

If that is the kind of environment he is talking about, then I would charge that the member is one-sided and should not accuse this government of being one-sided on the way he is looking at things, because I think he is being somewhat self-serving in the way he puts that.

He spoke more specifically, and not at very much length, I might add, to the question of the tax on cigarettes. As a smoker, obviously I have some difficulty with that, but I understand the reality, and that is what I spoke about a bit earlier.

He started getting off track quite a bit, and what he was basically trying to say is that governments had to be, I guess he was saying, uninterventionist in the way they do things and if government would just back off and leave everything alone, society would be a much better place.

It is interesting when you look at some of the figures on exactly that question where governments do try to take an attitude of leaving things open to the private sector in a much more positive way in the type of atmosphere the member for Markham speaks about. You end up with some of the figures I will quote now very quickly. When compared to places like New York and Michigan, where there is that kind of climate, the homicide rate is four times what it is here in Ontario. I will speak of that at a little bit more length during my turn in the debate.

Mr Villeneuve: I too want to congratulate my colleague the member for Markham, who is neither a farmer nor a smoker but certainly understands the problem thoroughly. I want to congratulate him for that. As the member for Cochrane South has just mentioned, he is a smoker and it is hurting him and it is pinching him.

This particular member does not have tobacco products in his riding and he does not smoke personally. However, he understands very well what has been happening, not only in Bill 84 but in a whole raft of bills that are increasing the taxes to the consumers of this province, to the tourists, and certainly contributing very extensively to the cross-border shopping problem we have in certain areas. It was expressed to us this morning by visitors from Sault Ste Marie and it is being expressed to me, coming from an area close to Cornwall, where we have an Indian reservation called Akwesasne where there are no taxes at all, so people go there for tobacco products. They go in droves and come back with illegitimate purchases of tobacco.

This government is forcing many of our outstanding, honest citizens in Ontario to break the law, to become crooks actually. It is certainly very disconcerting when indeed this is one of the few little pleasures that some of the people can enjoy. I realize that now a majority of Ontarians are non-smokers, but we do have a minority of smokers in Ontario and I believe, if indeed they have chosen to continue to be smokers in spite of what the government has put out regarding the health risk, they should be allowed. They should not be priced totally into a situation that puts them almost to the point of driving them underground, to be closet smokers.

Hon Ms Wark-Martyn: I would like to mention some points of information to all those people listening today. When the Tories were in government, there was an excess of money in Ontario. Things were booming. They spent. They created programs. They had extra money at the end of the year. "Let's create a program and somebody can tap me on the shoulder."

When the Liberals were in government, they did the same thing, except they realized at some point that there was going to be a deficit. We were going into a recession and it was going to affect them. So what did they do? They called an election. But they did not plan on losing and we as New Democrats did not plan on winning.

Now that we are here, we are proud of the budget the Treasurer brought in. If we had to do it again, we would not have done it any differently, knowing what we know, knowing the financial situation we are in, the recession.

Yes, we are looking at all the programs that all those past governments have created. We are looking to see, who are the people they are serving? Are they effective? Is there a better way of doing business in this province so that all people can benefit from the taxes they pay?

The Minister of Agriculture and Food is working with the farmers. He has done a lot of work with the farmers. He meets with them all the time. He will continue to do that. As I said before, the federal government also raised tobacco tax three cents a cigarette. I hope members opposite also are talking to their federal counterparts in Ottawa.

We are going to have better health care in this province through these taxes, and I am sure, for the first time in this province, as we heard through the budget hearings this summer, people who never before benefited from a budget are now speaking in praise of this government's first budget.

Mr Bradley: When a bill is going through the House and you watch the role the minister plays in that particular situation, you do not expect some partisan rant to go on. You expect that from the rest of the House perhaps when a bill is going on, but I heard the same speech yesterday about how great a budget it was and so on.

One has to wonder why a year ago the government was not going through the exercise it is going through now. It is as though they invented it. If you read back in the speeches that were made on this side of the House by the opposition parties, the caution was put forward to the Treasurer and to other members of the government that they should be evaluating each of the programs extremely carefully to see which were still relevant in 1990 or 1991 and which are not relevant, which programs can be delivered better and so on. Now we get a lecture from the Minister of Revenue on how this is what they are doing and the opposition somehow should know this is what they are doing.

The problem is that we are running a deficit of $9.7 billion. Instead of trying to pare that deficit down to something more reasonable, the exercise now is to bring it on line, that is, within $9.7 billion.

Those of us in opposition think that is too much. The spin doctors on the government side and some of their writers in the newspaper, such as Gerry Caplan, who writes his column in the newspaper and so on, say: "Of course you have to understand this is the way things must be done. You have to understand that we have special programs that have to be put into effect. You have to understand it's the feds' fault, it's somebody else's fault."

This was preached to the government some time ago, that it has to exercise this. Now I suspect the government will come in at $9.7 billion and say it is some great accomplishment. This exercise was to trim it from that unprecedented figure.

Mr Cousens: I would like to just address some of the comments made by the Minister of Revenue. Probably the most significant and telling statement the minister made was that the Minister of Agriculture and Food is working with the farmers. That is just not good enough. They can keep on telling me they are working with the farmers and they are talking with people, but if they do not have a program or a commitment to help them and to address the concerns and grievances they have with this government and with our taxation levels on the tobacco industry right now, then it is just empty words and for us to continue to listen to this bafflegab is just to waste everybody's time and attention.

For the Minister of Revenue to come along and say the Minister of Agriculture and Food is talking with the farmers is not doing one bit of good for the people in Brant-Haldimand, and it is high time this government woke up to it. Maybe it could also call a by-election so the people down there can have a bit of a statement about what the government is not doing to help the tobacco farmers.

1720

I would like to thank the honourable member for S-D-G & East Grenville. He brings up the point that people going into an Indian reserve and going to other places to buy tobacco is an illegal process. What kind of an act is that? We are forcing people into some kinds of deeds that they do not want to do. I appreciate the kind of thing he sees in his own riding, and we have to do something about it.

I will not even comment on the member for Cochrane North. I think the member has not understood what I am trying to say about the balance of government working with industry. I will say that the New Democrats have lost my confidence in their ability to do that. I do not think they know what it is all about, and their comments just reflected that.

The Deputy Speaker: Thank you. Are there any other members who wish to participate in this debate? The member for Cochrane South.

Mr Bisson: Thank you for very much. I remind the member for Markham that it is Cochrane South and not Cochrane North. No, I did not miss the point the member was making, what he was alluding to just a little while ago. It is a whole question of trying to create a balance within society that speaks about laws that are equal for people, so that no matter where you are in society you have a reasonable chance of being able to access government services or the legal system or whatever it might be in a way that has some equity built into it.

That is what we talk about as New Democrats. We talk about a democratic socialist party. We talk about putting together principles by which people can have access and equal opportunity get services that the government provides.

When the member for Markham speaks about how he thinks we are trying to create a government that is somewhat one-sided, I tend to argue, because exactly what the member for Markham is talking about is what his party's government did for years and, I think, what the Conservative government in Ottawa under Mr Mulroney has demonstrated over the past years in Ottawa. Mr Mulroney has been there for eight years and the laws that have been changed—it is not to say they are all bad. I am the first to admit that some of the laws the Conservative government passed in Ottawa were good, but some of those laws have been quite regressive. That is the crux of this whole discussion. If we look at what has happened lately in British Columbia and what we have just seen in Saskatchewan, people within Canada are starting to say: "We don't believe the rhetoric that we've been getting from the Conservative Party. We don't believe in a Canada that threatens our very existence as far as the things we hold near and dear to us with regard to our social values, the programs that are available to us as Canadians and the whole social fabric of what this country is all about."

I see the member for Etobicoke has awakened and is flashing the Agenda for People. It is a document that I have no problem defending and a document that I think makes a lot of sense. What this government is doing is coming at this with a practical approach. But after September 1990, when we came into government, we opened up the books. When we opened up those books, we found a couple of surprises. One of them was quite large, about $2.5 billion, if I remember correctly. Under those kinds of conditions and with the economy the way we found it when we got here, obviously we had to rethink how we did some things and how we were to accomplish some of our objectives over the long term. That is what this government is doing. It is coming across the whole idea of presenting issues and dealing with the various things we think of as important within Ontario in a very pragmatic way and a very realistic way.

But let's be specific about what we are here to talk about today. We are here to talk about Bill 84, which is basically a tobacco tax. Yet again, a government in Ontario, like other places, has decided to increase taxes on tobacco. I have sat here quite patiently in the House listening to my colleagues in the Liberal caucus who spoke before me and to my colleagues in the Conservative caucus, who are again sitting over there—such as the member from Etobicoke, who I see is paying great attention—listening to them talk about the virtues of what they would do if they were the government of Ontario and how they never stood for and do not stand for today what the government is doing in Ontario with regard to the tobacco tax.

Excuse me, but every Canadian and every Ontarian will realize that what is happening here today is no different from what has happened in the whole history of taxation, either in Ontario or within the federal jurisdiction. Let's talk about the brass tacks. The brass tacks are that we as governments have to raise capital in order to pay for the programs that we as Ontarians or Canadians want. Somewhere along the line you have to get the revenue to do that.

There are a couple of options that a government has. It can say, as the Conservative Party would talk about, and the Liberals talk about the same theory in Ontario, as when the government passed down its budget in April 1991, that we have a decision, we have some choices, and it is saying clearly that it is not accepting the $9.7-billion deficit.

The reality is that there were not many options left open to us. There was the little surprise left in the till when we got there of losing $2.5 billion. There was the little surprise of the federal government cutting back on transfer payments and also the whole state of the economy that we inherited. We were not the government in the 1980s. We inherited a mess.

Mrs Caplan: Stop whining.

Mr Bisson: The member for Oriole talks about whining. I sit here in this House day after day and listen to the member for Oriole do exactly what she is doing now.

Mrs Caplan: It's not a mess? You knew the federal government was cutting transfer payments. Tell the truth.

Mr Bisson: Do not imply that I am not telling the truth.

The Acting Speaker (Mr Farnan): The member will take his chair. The member will be seated. The member will speak directly to the Speaker, and the member for Oriole will refrain from interjection.

Mr Bisson: What I am getting at is that for people to stand here in the House from whatever opposition party, either the Liberal caucus or the Conservative caucus—

Interjections.

Mr Bisson: Here we go again, Mr Speaker.

The Acting Speaker: Order. A member can participate when he has the floor. A member participates best by listening when he does not have the floor, and I think if we co-operate, all of us on both sides of the House, we can get on with the business we are here to do for the people of Ontario.

Mr Bisson: We are here today talking about the whole question of Bill 84. The province of Ontario has made a decision around taxation of tobacco. The point I am trying to make is that we all sit here as politicians on the virtues of what we would do if we were the government: what I would do if I were a Liberal member or an independent member or a member from the Conservative caucus, and how I would do things better. Obviously that is part of what we do as politicians. We are trying to put forward our ideology as being somewhat better than the other political party's. There is political gain in that and everybody has participated in that one, being in opposition or, quite frankly, being on the government side. The reality is that we as a government have to make decisions that are realistic to the situation that we find ourselves in, in light of where we are with the recession.

The point I was making and what got the opposition upset was the reality that when we inherited the government in 1990 by the will of the people of Ontario, who said, "We elect a majority government to rule the province of Ontario for the next four to five years," we got here and there were some things wrong with the economy. Businesses were leaving to go to the United States. Why? Because of the policies of our federal government. We cannot hide from that. Free trade has not helped us, deregulation has not helped us, and a host of other policies that were put in place by the federal government have added to the situation that we find ourselves in today. It has not set the kind of business climate that we as Canadians need to develop our economy.

I said a little while ago that what the Conservative government has done over eight years has not been all wrong. No government on the face of the world has done all wrong—

Interjections.

The Acting Speaker: Order. I am going to ask the member to make reference to the bill and try to focus on the bill. You will find you will have fewer interjections if you speak to the issue before the House.

Mr Bisson: Yes, Mr Speaker. It is somewhat difficult because the point I am trying to get to on Bill 84 is that as a government we have to make some harsh decisions. Specifically on Bill 84, where is a government able to generate revenue to provide for the programs that are necessary for the people of this province? That is the whole point of what we are getting at. Governments have very tough decisions along the way.

There is another question when we are speaking specifically to Bill 84. We have another responsibility to the people of Ontario, because we provide health care through our OHIP system to the citizens of this province, of trying to save on the money we spend within our health care system. I am a smoker myself and wish I could stop; it is an addiction I have and I freely admit that. But I realize as a consumer of tobacco products that the longer I smoke the more difficult it is going to be for my health, and at the end there might be a cost to the taxpayers of this province due to the health costs they will have to pay for health care I require because of smoking.

1730

One of the things governments have done over the years, not only on this side of the House but also the Liberals when they were in power from 1985 to 1990, is to raise tobacco taxes pretty well every year. It was not only that they were trying to raise revenue—I do not accuse the opposition of that—but they were also trying to cut expenditures on the other side. There is a cost to people smoking too much; there is no question of that.

There are places where we can bring forward ideology, into the debate on particular bills that speak about how we want to see this province run, how we want to create a business climate and all the rest, but let's be specific when we are talking about Bill 84. There are some harsh decisions we have to make as a government, the same decisions my colleagues on the other side of the House would have to make if they were sitting here, but the people of Ontario made a choice in 1990 and elected a New Democratic government to make those decisions.

If we do not spend the dollars on the programs provided by government, there will be consequences and social costs, if we do not go out and do those things. If the government decides it is not going to raise revenues through bills such as Bill 84 and decides it is going to cut expenditures on the other hand, that it is not going to provide social housing, medicare or a multitude of other programs that add and contribute to the life and health of Ontarians, then there is a cost.

There is an interesting figure in the 1991 budget related to what this is all about. Members should look at the crime rates in other jurisdictions where there is not as much spending by the government on social programs, on providing for those people who are having difficulties. When you compare our numbers on homicides in Ontario to those in jurisdictions within the United States, they are 8, 10 or 14 times higher, depending on the jurisdiction, than here in Ontario. If the government does not spend the money on social programs and on building the infrastructure, that is the price we pay.

We have a decision. Would we rather walk the streets of Ontario with a certain amount of security, a certain amount of dignity as human beings in this society, and support that through our taxation systems, or follow a political ideology like that of my friends in the Conservative opposition, leaving it totally in the hands of the private sector and running the risk of having higher crime rates?

It is the same thing with infant mortality rates. The infant mortality rate in Ontario, compared to other jurisdictions such as New York and Michigan, is significantly lower, by 30%, 40% or 50% in some cases. It is not a question that in Michigan and New York they do not have the medical technology that we have in Ontario—in some cases it may be superior—but the average citizen cannot access those services because the ideology of those governments is the same as our Conservative friends' when they talk about governments intervening in the private sector.

That is what this bill is all about. This bill is about the stark realities of decisions you have to make as a government to provide services for the people of your province. As a government, at times you are going to have to take flak, because somebody must pay. If I as a consumer decide tomorrow, "I need to invest in my home because my windows are falling out of the walls, and it is going to cost me $10,000," the consumer borrows money from his or her banker to pay for that. If the consumer says, "I need to borrow money from my banker to provide an education for my child who is 18 or 19 years old," he goes out and borrows that money.

That is a decision we have made as a government. We admit it freely; we have no problem with it. On the last budget, we had some decisions to make. We have a wholesale rampage on our economy. Do we fail to provide the services necessary to support the people of this province, not directly but through the social programs we have, medicare and other programs necessary for our very way of life? Do we throw the people to the wolves—I hope that is not what my opposition friends are saying—or do we go ahead and try to fight the recession in such a way that we allow Ontarians, the people living in this province, to walk the streets of Ontario with a certain amount of dignity and feeling as if this Ontario society also belongs to them?

In closing, there are some tough decisions we have to make as a government, such as those on Bill 84, having to raise revenue at the same time as trying to balance off what the social cost is to health care if we try not to deter the cigarette smoking that is happening in our society. They are very tough decisions and this government is prepared to make those tough decisions, realizing that not everybody is going to agree with them.

I would just leave this with my friends from the opposition, especially the member for Markham who spoke before and who talked about having a society that we are creating as New Democrats that is unjust somehow to the business sector. I completely and utterly disagree with him, because what this government is talking about is building partnerships, building real equity within our society that says, "You as a corporate citizen also have a responsibility, not only to the people of the province and the country, but to the environment, to your workers and to the general society around you." All of us are going to share in that responsibility, not just the government of Ontario, but every citizen within Ontario.

If the member for Markham is advocating that we build a society that says, "Let's create a more just business climate by allowing people to pollute our environment; let's allow a more equitable business climate by not paying or remunerating workers for just services; let's provide a better business climate by not providing the proper protection for workers with regard to health and safety, and let's not provide for government in those kinds of terms," I say no.

I support what this government is doing through Bill 84 because what we are talking about in this bill, as in the rest of our legislation, is building a fair, just and equitable society for the people of this province.

Mrs Caplan: I want to point out to the member opposite that his flower is wilting and the reason for that is because of the hot air he has been spewing during this debate. The flower has not survived the discourse he has just treated this Legislature to. He was factually incorrect.

My constituents who watch the proceedings in the House and who know the facts often say to me, "You know, he wasn't telling the truth," or they will say things such as, "He was really misleading the House." I will say he was not lying and he was not really misleading the House; he was trying to create a perception. That is why people in this province sometimes become so cynical. He stood in his place and the perception he created was quite inaccurate.

One of the goals the government set for itself was to have a balanced operating budget by 1996 or 1997. This is a laudable goal. I point out to the member and to the people of this province that he inherited a balanced operating budget that had been in balance from 1986, 1987, 1988. In fact, it was a fully balanced budget in 1989-90, and what he inherited was a triple-A credit rating.

Yes, the province was in a recession, the economy was in decline and the fiscal policies of the government have done nothing to instil confidence in the people of this province. It has done nothing to encourage business to come to Ontario, and the job loss under this government's fiscal policy has been in excess of 250,000 jobs since it took office. That is a shameful record and that happens to be the truth.

I have been a proponent of taxes on tobacco from a point of view of healthy public policy, not just revenue generation. What he has described to this House borders on—

1740

The Acting Speaker: The member's time has expired. Before we continue with questions and comments, I ask for the co-operation of all members of the House to allow the individual who has the floor to make his comments. If members want to participate, maybe they can use a two-minute time period to make comment, but please refrain from interjections.

The member for—the honourable leader of the third party.

Mr Harris: That is one way of doing it if you cannot remember my riding. It is Nipissing, Mr Speaker. None the less, thank you very much. I do have a few comments to make.

We are dealing with the cumulative effect of governments over a period of 10 years or so in this province that have now adopted of policy of saying: "The reason we are hiking these tobacco taxes all the time is so you will stop smoking. We want to eliminate smoking in Ontario." That was the goal and the objective. That seems to be why it is okay to raise taxes on tobacco to such astronomical levels.

Today, this cumulative effect is that we are now taking in $1 billion from tobacco alone in this province. What I object to very strongly is that successive governments have continued to hike this taxation to a level where, along with gasoline and booze, it is affecting tourism, it is affecting cross-border shopping, it is affecting the image and the perception of Ontario. As the tourists say: "I am getting ripped off there. Goodbye. I am not going there any more."

What I really object to is this: They are putting nothing back. I suggest it is a tax grab and that is all it is. The government is grabbing extra tax dollars and the effect of what it is doing is putting tobacco farmers out of business. It is setting up tremendous imbalances now with reassessment going on in Haldimand and in Norfolk.

If they put one tenth of 1% of this money back into the very farms they are putting out of business—with the impact the government is having on the economy, I would say maybe that was the goal; it was not just a tax grab. But they grab this money from the industries and the businesses and the farmers and they give nothing back. It is nothing but a tax grab and we will not support that.

Mr Johnson: I want to thank the member for Cochrane South for many of the fine comments he made with regard to the reasons why we have to implement these sorts of taxes.

I was in Delhi prior to the election in the spring of 1985 and I met with a tobacco farmer down there. I was actually down there to purchase a car from him. When I was there he said he would like to show me around his community.

He said: "This is a farming community. It has been a farming community for many years but terrible things are happening here. Farmers are going out of business for many reasons."

He smoked, but he said: "The health of our people is important, so I guess people think smoking is not good, so they are not doing it as often as they did in the past. People are quitting. The new generation is not smoking like older generations did and things are changing."

The leader of the third party has said some things, and certainly I know the member for Markham said that our government had callous disregard. I wonder if it is the same callous disregard the Conservative Party that was the government in the spring of 1985 had when all the tobacco farms in the area of Delhi were going out of business.

Mr Harris: It is exactly the same. Are you proud of being rotten like every other party?

Mr Johnson: The member from the third party agrees. Well, I am glad to know that.

The Acting Speaker: May I interrupt, please? I remind the member that he is making comments and questions on the speech that was made by the government member and not on the opposition comments.

Mr Johnson: Thank you, Mr Speaker. I regret that. I just want to conclude by saying that the member for Cochrane South made some very substantial points and I hope the members of the opposition were listening very clearly to what he said, because they were most important.

Mr Brown: I appreciate the comments from the member for Cochrane South, and I think he should practise his speech over and over again because what this is, of course, is a revenue bill. It is a bill to raise taxes. This is a bill that requires the people of Ontario to pay more for a certain product.

What we know about this government is that when it took power on September 10, members in this House will remember that the Treasury officials said the budget of the province had deteriorated. We were in a position where the deficit was projected to be $700 million for that year. By October 1, the new Treasurer suggested it would be $2.5 billion. That is what he said it was. Even given that, we were in surplus.

The crime here is that this government has come before us with a reckless budget and with a reckless deficit of $9.7 billion. The only way to pay for $9.7 billion is through increased taxes. That is the bottom line. The $9.7

billion is a tax. It is just a deferred tax. It is a tax that we are going to pay over and over again, and our children are going to pay it.

It is a tax that they have knowingly put before the people of Ontario for no good reason that any of us can think of, except that they do not have any sense of financial and fiscal management. No one suggests there would not be some deficit, but the $9.7-billion deficit is something our children will pay for, we will all pay for, and the flexibility of this government will be gone. It will be gone.

Mr Bisson: I suggest that the member for Algoma-Manitoulin practise his speech better, when he talks about passing on deficits to our children and our children's children and our children's children's children. The reality is we got here in 1990 and it was a big surprise, when we got here, what we were left from the members opposite.

The other reality is that the member for Oriole talked about her constituents—and she said that very carefully so that she would not be ruled out of order, I might add, implying that somehow I was misleading the House. She was very careful. She talked about her operating budget while the government here in Ontario was balanced. She failed to mention that its capital deficit was actually not balanced at all. As a matter of fact, in 1990, the year of the election, they did not quite report the facts until we got into government afterwards.

When we take a look at the operating budget for the current government in 1990-91, I can boast the same thing. This government has a balanced operating budget in the interim of 1990-91. It is balanced. There is no question that we have to be able to raise revenue over the next number of years to be able to pay for the programs Ontarians want, but I would suggest that the member for Oriole, when she talks about my misleading the House, is being very selective in her terms.

Also, the last point—I only have a couple of seconds—is that the member for Nipissing calls this a tax grab. That is clearly not what I talked about in this debate. There are a number of issues that are current to Bill 84. Yes, it is the raising of revenue through taxes, but also it is a question of being able to protect people through our health care system over the long term and have fewer smokers.

The member for Nipissing speaks about tax grabs. His federal cousins in Ottawa have plenty of experience at that and I am sure he cannot lecture us here in this Legislature about doing the types of things his federal cousins are doing.

Mr Bradley: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker, for the opportunity to address the House and you, in particular, as the Speaker, on the bill that is before us, the one that deals with the tax on tobacco in Ontario.

If we look back on the history of taxes in this province, or perhaps even federally, we will see that tobacco was often the choice of many. The reason tobacco was the choice, just as alcohol was the choice, was that it was an easy thing to tax in our province because everybody knew it was a health hazard of some kind and everybody knew it was not essential, at least for most people in the province it was not essential, and it was an easy one to pass off.

There may have been some reason for that. If we were in good economic times, the opposition would still say the government should not be taxing, but it would be with less conviction than at the present time. It is not even the fact that we are in difficult economic times that some of us make the argument against the tobacco tax. We make it because of its effect of driving people to other jurisdictions to make those purchases. It is difficult to drive them to other provinces, because in Canada other provinces tend to like selecting tobacco products and alcohol products for the purpose of taxation as well, but it does send them to the United States.

1750

The member for Lincoln is in the House this afternoon. He represents an area that has part of the city of St Catharines, and to the west and to the south of St Catharines, and he understands there are people in his constituency who from time to time, and more frequently than in years gone by, decide to go over the river to get their products, as we say in our part of the province. This has always happened. Anybody who lives in a border area knows it has always happened that there has been a certain amount of shopping on the other side of the border.

I am not a smoker. I have never smoked a cigarette in my life, ever—or anything else. I have never smoked anything. I could be a candidate for the Supreme Court of the United States because I could say with a lie detector test that I have never smoked anything in my life, so there it is. My brother, who may be watching on television this afternoon, can turn any argument or discussion in the world into an anti-smoking lecture; I assure members of that. I come from a family where there is not necessarily a lot of sympathy for smoking, and therefore perhaps not a lot of difficulty in terms of seeing this kind of tax.

In fact, one member of the family quit smoking after Michael Wilson put the last tax on cigarettes. I can understand it as a tool, if it were a tool to stop people from smoking. The member for Scarborough East is here, and as a member of the medical profession he would know the devastation smoking has brought about with many people in terms of their health.

My concern at this time is that the major effect of this tax, combined with the tax on alcohol, which is going up and with the gas tax that is going up, will be more people going over the border to make their purchases, people who did not do so before, perhaps people who do not want to purchase clothing or other products but since they are going over to buy their gas, their cigarettes and their alcoholic beverages, or perhaps to have a meal which is cheaper because of the cheaper price of alcoholic beverages, that will become a habit and the billions of dollars will begin to be even more billions of dollars heading to the other side of the border. This is pretty serious, to say the least, for those of us who reside in border areas.

The member for Sarnia was in the House this afternoon and he was concerned about this. I remember having a discussion with my friend the member for Sault Ste Marie on this same matter. He faces the same situation of people heading to the other side of the border. The members on the government side will vote for this tax because they have to or they will stay out of the House, one of the two. They do not have a choice in our present system. They certainly will not vote against it if they want to be in the cabinet or ever hope to be in the cabinet or curry any favour from the government. I am not criticizing them. That is the system. I do not expect they are going to break with that. I could be mischievous and say they should. I do not expect that is going to happen.

The reason I am very concerned about this tax, and I normally would not be, is that it is going to drive people to the other side of the border. The effects are quite devastating in our communities. There are stores closing down left and right in border communities. There are some stores which have been in business for 70, 80, 90 or 100 years that are closing down, largely because of the competition on the other side of the border, part of that competition coming about because people are heading over the border for the loss leaders, as I describe them—the cigarettes, the alcohol and the gasoline—but at the same time making other purchases. I do not think we can afford for that to continue to happen in this province or in this country.

I remember it used to be a case where we said people from St Catharines, Beamsville and perhaps up to Grimsby went to the other side of the border. That is now spreading into Metropolitan Toronto. It is spreading into the Kitchener and Oakville areas. We are having people coming from 100 to 150 miles away, not to make these specific purchases but to make purchases on the other side of the border.

When people are thinking of these taxes, I wonder who they are. I wonder whether they are the people to whom the member for Welland-Thorold made reference in one of my favourite television shows, called Hack from Queen's Park. Certainly the guest who was on last week provided a lot of Hack from Queen's Park.

Mr Stockwell: What did he have to say?

Mr Bradley: He had this to say about the people making decisions, and I do not know if it would be the people making decisions on this tax, but I suspect this is the case.

The Acting Speaker: Order, please. First, I ask the member for Etobicoke West to refrain from making interjections, and I ask the member who has the floor to address his remarks to the chair and not to have a dialogue with somebody who is interrupting the process.

Mr Bradley: Exactly. That is why I thought the members of the House would like to hear what the member for Welland-Thorold had to say about those who make decisions on these kinds of taxes. He said, "The problem is you've got politicians up there in Toronto who won't take the time to get out of their limousines and talk to real people." I am sure he must have been thinking of the people who dreamed up this particular tax. That is how I relate it.

He went on to say, "When people are told, for instance, that some pinhead made a decision about eliminating the oath to the Queen for police officers, they say, 'What kind of nitwit could possibly think that somehow people in this province are demanding that?'"

Asked by the member for St Catharines-Brock what he had to say to these politicians, the member for Welland-Thorold said: "The government should stop using $1,000-a-day consultants and go straight to the people to get their input. The disdain the people feel about politicians, well, I'll tell you, politicians have earned it."

I think what he was saying on this, about another issue, and he was not just picking on that particular issue—it is unfortunate that I forgot who was the Solicitor General at the time when I raised that—I really did—but I think he probably was not thinking of the Solicitor General. He was probably thinking of the people who advised the Premier to advise the Solicitor General of the day to do that. I blush because I like the member for Cambridge and I feel badly about that.

However, to get back to this tax, he was wondering where the people come from who dream up these taxes. It is certainly not the members of the civil service, because they do not think of these things. They may put options in front of people, but it is really a political decision that is made. It must be the people who are making more money than the members of the Legislature, even more money than the Attorney General who now makes $90,000 a year and the people he referred to, the pinheads.

The Acting Speaker: Order. I hate to interrupt the member when he is on a roll, but it would help if he referred to the bill occasionally and we had a sense that we were dealing with a specific piece of legislation.

Mr Bradley: The member for Welland-Thorold probably would have felt more comfortable if he knew that the taxes being derived from this particular bill were going to assist Niagara farmers, who are now in a position where they want to sell their land. I well remember, as you may, Mr Speaker, the Premier of this province calling his press conference in Vineland—that is probably what turned the tide in Lincoln at this time. He castigated—I pronounce that carefully—the members of the then government for not saving the farm land and the farmers, and at the same time he suggested they would be helpful.

Maybe they brought in this tax for that purpose. We have a tax that apparently is going to pay off only a huge deficit to cover parties that were held in the Attorney General's office.

Hon Mr Hampton: We want to know about that new lottery the former Minister of the Environment created. That was a good tax.

Mr Bradley: He intervenes. I did not want to mention those parties, but I know that when people say, "What can this tax be for? Is it for the Baileys that is being served at the minister's reception? Is it some other alcoholic product that is being paid for by the people of this province for a big wingding in the Solicitor General's department?" I do not think so. Certainly, if they have to meet the deficit, part of that deficit is being incurred by the parties the government is having in various ministries. That may be why they decided to have this tax come forward.

I cannot at this time support this tax, a tax I would normally support.

Hon Mr Hampton: How about a lottery? Would you support a lottery?

It must be close to 6 o'clock.

The House adjourned at 1800.

Mr Bradley: I know another option would be a lottery. I know the government of Ontario, which was against lotteries, has now abolished the Ontario Lottery Corp.

ERRATUM

No.	Page	Column	Line	Should read:
71	3027	2	13	Mr Hansen: Mr Speaker, I have a petition to the

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF ONTARIO
ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE DE L'ONTARIO

Lieutenant Governor/Lieutenant-gouverneur: Hon/L'hon Lincoln M. Alexander, PC, QC/CP, CR

Speaker/Président: Hon/L'hon David Warner

Clerk/Greffier: Claude L. DesRosiers

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Committees/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des comités: Smirle Forsyth

Clerk Assistant and Clerk of Journals/Greffier adjoint et Greffier des journaux: Alex D. McFedries

Sergeant at Arms/Sergent d'armes: Thomas Stelling

Abel, Donald (Wentworth North/-Nord PC) government whip/Whip du gouvernement

Akande, Zanana (St Andrew-St Patrick ND)

Allen, Hon/L'hon Richard (Hamilton West/-Ouest ND)
Minister of Colleges and Universities, Minister of Skills Development/Ministre des Collèges et Universités, ministre de la Formation professionnelle

Arnott, Ted (Wellington PC)

Beer, Charles (York North/-Nord L)

Bisson, Gilles (Cochrane South/-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Northern Development and Mines, PA to minister responsible for francophone affairs, Vice-Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/
Ap du ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires francophones, vice-président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Boyd, Hon/L'hon Marion (London Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Community and Social Services, minister responsible for women's issues/Ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires, ministre déléguée à la Condition féminine

Bradley, James J. (St Catharines L) opposition House leader/
Chef parlementaire de l'opposition

Brown, Michael A. (Algoma-Manitoulin L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on general government/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales

Buchanan, Hon/L'hon Elmer (Hastings-Peterborough ND)
Minister of Agriculture and Food/Ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation

Callahan, Robert V. (Brampton South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Président du Comité permanent des comptes publics

Caplan, Elinor (Orillia L) Chair, standing committee on social development/Présidente du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Carr, Gary (Oakville South/-Sud PC)

Carter, Jenny (Peterborough ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiles, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales

Charlton, Hon/L'hon Brian (Hamilton Mountain ND)
Minister of Financial Institutions/Ministre des Institutions financières

Chiarelli, Robert (Ottawa West/-Ouest L)

Christopherson, David (Hamilton Centre/-Centre ND)
PA to Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/
Ap du Trésorier de l'Ontario et du ministre de l'Économie

Churley, Hon/L'hon Marilyn (Riverdale ND) Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Cleary, John C. (Cornwall L)

Conway, Sean G. (Renfrew North/-Nord L)

Cooke, Hon/L'hon David (Windsor-Riverside ND) Minister of Municipal Affairs, government House leader/
Ministre des Affaires municipales, chef parlementaire du gouvernement

Cooper, Mike (Kitchener-Wilmot ND) Chair, standing committee on administration of justice; deputy government whip/
Président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice, whip adjoint du gouvernement

Coppen, Hon/L'hon Shirley (Niagara South/-Sud ND)
Minister without Portfolio, chief government whip/
Ministre sans portefeuille, whip en chef du gouvernement

Cordiano, Joseph (Lawrence L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on social development/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des affaires sociales

Cousens, W. Donald (Markham PC)

Cunningham, Dianne (London North/-Nord PC) Progressive Conservative chief whip/Whip en chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Curling, Alvin (Scarborough North/-Nord L) opposition deputy whip/whip adjoint de l'opposition

Dadamo, George (Windsor-Sandwich ND) PA to Minister of Transportation/Ap du ministre des Transports

Daigeler, Hans (Nepean L)

Drainville, Dennis (Victoria-Haliburton ND) PA to Minister of Municipal Affairs; Chair, select committee on Ontario in Confederation/Ap du ministre des Affaires municipales, président du Comité spécial sur le rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Duignan, Noel (Halton North/-Nord ND) Chair, standing committee on the Legislative Assembly; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président du Comité permanent de l'Assemblée législative, coprésident du Comité extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire

Elston, Murray J. (Bruce L) Leader of the Official Opposition/
Chef de l'opposition officielle

Eves, Ernie (Parry Sound PC) Progressive Conservative House leader/Chef parlementaire du Parti progressiste-conservateur

Farnan, Mike (Cambridge ND) First Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Premier vice-président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative

Fawcett, Joan M. (Northumberland L)

Ferguson, Hon/L'hon Will (Kitchener ND) Minister of Energy/Ministre de l'Énergie

Fletcher, Derek (Guelph ND) PA to Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations/Ap du ministre de la Consommation et du Commerce

Frankford, Robert (Scarborough East/-Est ND)

Gigantes, Hon/L'hon Evelyn (Ottawa Centre/-Centre ND)
Minister of Housing/Ministre du Logement

Grandmaître, Bernard C. (Ottawa East/-Est L)

Grier, Hon/L'hon Ruth A. (Etobicoke-Lakeshore ND)
Minister of the Environment, minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ministre de l'Environnement, ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto

Haeck, Christel (St. Catharines-Brock ND)
Hampton, Hon/L'hon Howard (Rainy River ND) Attorney General/Procureur général
Hansen, Ron (Lincoln ND) Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Président du Comité permanent des finances et des affaires économiques
Harnick, Charles (Willowdale PC)
Harrington, Margaret H. (Niagara Falls ND) PA to Minister of Housing/Ap du ministre du Logement
Harris, Michael (Nipissing PC) leader of the Progressive Conservative Party/Chef du Parti progressiste-conservateur
Haslam, Hon/L'hon Karen (Perth ND) Minister of Culture and Communications/Ministre de la Culture et des Communications
Hayes, Pat (Essex-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (agriculture)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (agriculture)
Henderson, D. James (Etobicoke-Humber L)
Hope, Randy R. (Chatham-Kent ND) PA to Minister of Community and Social Services/Ap du ministre des Services sociaux et communautaires
Huget, Bob (Sarnia ND) PA to Minister of Energy/Ap du ministre de l'Énergie

Jackson, Cameron (Burlington South/-Sud PC) Chair, standing committee on estimates/Président du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
Jamison, Norm (Norfolk ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology, responsible for small business/Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie, délégué aux Affaires des petites entreprises
Johnson, Paul R. (Prince Edward-Lennox-South Hastings/Prince-Edward-Lennox-Hastings-Sud ND) PA to Minister of Revenue/Ap du ministre du Revenu
Jordan, W. Leo (Lanark-Renfrew PC)

Klopp, Paul (Huron ND) PA to Minister of Agriculture and Food (food)/Ap du ministre de l'Agriculture et de l'Alimentation (alimentation)
Kormos, Peter (Welland-Thorold ND) Chair, standing committee on resources development/Président du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
Kwinter, Monte (Wilson Heights L)

Lankin, Hon/L'hon Frances (Beaches-Woodbine ND) Minister of Health, minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ministre de la Santé, ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
Laughren, Hon/L'hon Floyd (Nickel Belt ND) Deputy Premier, Treasurer of Ontario and Minister of Economics/Vice-premier ministre, Trésorier de l'Ontario et ministre de l'Économie
Lessard, Wayne (Windsor-Walkerville ND) PA to Minister of Colleges and Universities/Ap du ministre des Collèges et Universités

Mackenzie, Hon/L'hon Bob (Hamilton East/-Est ND) Minister of Labour/Ministre du Travail
MacKinnon, Ellen (Lambton ND) Vice-Chair, standing committee on regulations and private bills/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des règlements et projets de loi privés
Mahoney, Steven W. (Mississauga West/-Ouest L) chief opposition whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition

Malkowski, Gary (York East/-Est ND) PA to Minister of Citizenship, responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race relations/Ap de la ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux Relations interraciales
Mammoliti, George (Yorkview ND) PA to minister responsible for the provincial anti-drug strategy/Ap de la ministre déléguée à la Stratégie antidrogue provinciale
Mancini, Remo (Essex South/-Sud L) Chair, standing committee on general government/Président du Comité permanent des affaires gouvernementales
Marchese, Rosario (Fort York ND) PA to the Premier, PA to Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Ap du premier ministre, ap du ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
Marland, Margaret (Mississauga South/-Sud PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on estimates/Vice-Présidente du Comité permanent des budgets des dépenses
Martel, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Sudbury East/-Est ND) Minister of Northern Development and Mines/Ministre du Développement du Nord et des Mines
Martin, Tony (Sault Ste Marie/Sault-Sainte-Marie ND) PA to Minister of Education/Ap de la ministre de l'Éducation
Mathysen, Irene (Middlesex ND) PA to Minister of the Environment, government whip/Ap de la ministre de l'Environnement, whip du gouvernement
McClelland, Carman (Brampton North/-Nord L)
McGuinty, Dalton J.P. (Ottawa South/-Sud L)
McLean, Allan K. (Simcoe East/-Est PC) Vice-Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Vice-Président du Comité permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
McLeod, Lyn (Fort William L)
Miclash, Frank (Kenora L) opposition chief whip/Whip en chef de l'opposition
Mills, Gord (Durham East/-Est ND) PA to Solicitor General/Ap du Solliciteur général
Morin, Gilles E. (Carleton East/-Est L) Deputy Speaker and Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Vice-Président et Président du Comité plénier de l'Assemblée législative
Morrow, Mark (Wentworth East/-Est ND) Chair, standing committee on the Ombudsman; Vice-Chair, standing committee on administration of justice/Président du Comité permanent de l'ombudsman, vice-président du Comité permanent de l'administration de la justice
Murdoch, Bill (Grey PC)
Murdock, Sharon (Sudbury ND) PA to Minister of Labour/Ap du ministre du Travail

North, Hon/L'hon Peter (Elgin ND) Minister of Tourism and Recreation/Ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs

O'Connor, Lawrence (Durham-York ND) PA to minister responsible for the greater Toronto area/Ap de la ministre responsable du Bureau de la région du grand Toronto
Offer, Steven (Mississauga North/-Nord L)
O'Neil, Hugh P. (Quinte L)
O'Neill, Yvonne (Ottawa-Rideau L) opposition deputy whip/Whip adjointe de l'opposition
Owens, Stephen (Scarborough Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister of Financial Institutions, government whip/Ap du ministre des Institutions financières, whip du gouvernement

Perruzza, Anthony (Downsview ND) PA to Minister for Skills Development/Ap du ministre de la Formation professionnelle
Philip, Hon/L'hon Ed (Etobicoke-Rexdale ND) Minister of Industry, Trade and Technology/Ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la Technologie

- Phillips, Gerry (Scarborough-Agincourt L)
- Pilkey, Hon/L'hon Allan (Oshawa ND) Solicitor General,
Minister of Correctional Services/Solliciteur général,
ministre des Services correctionnels
- Poirier, Jean (Prescott and Russell/Prescott et Russell L)
- Poole, Dianne (Eglinton L) Vice-Chair, standing committee on public accounts/Vice-Présidente du comité permanent des
comptes publics
- Pouliot, Hon/L'hon Gilles (Lake Nipigon/Lac-Nipigon ND)
Minister of Transportation, minister responsible for francophone affairs/Ministre du Transport, ministre
délégué aux Affaires francophones
- Rae, Hon/L'hon Bob (York South/-Sud ND) Premier, Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs/Premier ministre,
ministre des Affaires intergouvernementales
- Ramsay, David (Timiskaming L)
- Rizzo, Tony (Oakwood IND)
- Runciman, Robert W. (Leeds-Grenville PC) Chair, standing committee on government agencies/Président du Comité
permanent des organismes gouvernementaux
- Ruprecht, Tony (Parkdale L)
- Scott, Ian G. (St. George-St. David L)
- Silipo, Hon/L'hon Tony (Dovercourt ND) Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet, Minister of Education/Président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, ministre de l'Éducation
- Sola, John (Mississauga East/-Est L)
- Sorbara, Gregory S. (York Centre/-Centre L)
- Sterling, Norman W. (Carleton PC)
- Stockwell, Chris (Etobicoke West/-Ouest PC)
- Sullivan, Barbara (Halton Centre/-Centre L)
- Sutherland, Kimble (Oxford ND) PA to Chairman of the Management Board of Cabinet; Vice-Chair, standing committee on finance and economic affairs/Ap du président du Conseil de gestion du gouvernement, vice-président du Comité permanent des finances et des
affaires économiques
- Swarbrick, Anne (Scarborough West/-Ouest ND)
- Tilson, David (Dufferin-Peel PC)
- Turnbull, David (York Mills PC)
- Villeneuve, Noble (S-D-G & East Grenville/S.-D.-G. & Grenville-Est PC) Second Deputy Chair of the Committee of the Whole House/Deuxième vice-président du Comité
plénier de l'Assemblée législative
- Ward, Brad (Brantford ND) PA to Minister of Industry, Trade
and Technology with responsibility for trade and technology/
Ap du ministre de l'Industrie, du Commerce et de la
Technologie et délégué au Commerce et à la Technologie
- Ward, Margery (Don Mills ND) PA to Minister of Government
Services/Ap du ministre des Services gouvernementaux
- Wark-Martyn, Hon/L'hon Shelley (Port Arthur ND) Minister
of Revenue/Ministre du Revenu
- Warner, Hon/L'hon David (Scarborough-Ellesmere ND)
Speaker; Co-Chair, special committee on the parliamentary precinct/Président, coprésident du Comité
extraordinaire de l'enceinte parlementaire
- Waters, Daniel (Muskoka-Georgian Bay/Muskoka-Baie-Georgienne ND) PA to Minister of Tourism and Recreation;
Vice-Chair, standing committee on resources development/
Ap du ministre du Tourisme et des Loisirs, vice-président
du Comité permanent du développement des ressources
- Wessinger, Paul (Simcoe Centre/-Centre ND) PA to Minister
of Health/Ap de la ministre de la Santé
- White, Drummond (Durham Centre/-Centre ND) Chair,
standing committee on regulations and private bills/
Président du Comité permanent des règlements et projets
de loi privés
- Wildman, Hon/L'hon Bud (Algoma ND) Minister of Natural Resources, minister responsible for native affairs/Ministre
des Ressources naturelles, ministre délégué aux Affaires
autochtones
- Wilson, Hon/L'hon Fred (Frontenac-Addington ND) Minister
of Government Services/Ministre des Services
gouvernementaux
- Wilson, Gary (Kingston and The Islands/Kingston et Les Îles ND)
PA to Minister of Culture and Communications/
Ap de la ministre de la Culture et des Communications
- Wilson, Jim (Simcoe West/-Ouest PC)
- Winninger, David (London South/-Sud ND) PA to Attorney
General, PA to minister responsible for native affairs/Ap
du Procureur général, ap du ministre délégué aux Affaires
autochtones
- Wiseman, Jim (Durham West/Durham-Ouest ND) PA to Minister of Correctional Services/Ap du ministre des
Services correctionnels
- Witmer, Elizabeth (Waterloo North/-Nord PC)
- Wood, Len (Cochrane North/-Nord ND) PA to Minister of Natural Resources/Ap du ministre des Ressources naturelles
- Ziembra, Hon/L'hon Elaine (High Park-Swansea ND)
Minister of Citizenship, minister responsible for human rights, disability issues, seniors' issues and race
relations/Ministre des Affaires civiques, déléguée aux
Droits de la personne, aux Affaires des personnes
handicapées, aux Affaires des personnes âgées et aux
Relations interraciales

COMMITTEES OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY
COMITÉS DE L'ASSEMBLÉE LÉGISLATIVE

STANDING COMMITTEES/COMITÉS PERMANENTS

Administration of justice/Administration de la justice

Chair/Président: Mike Cooper
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Mark Morrow
Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Jenny Carter, Robert Chiarelli,
Derek Fletcher, Charles Harnick, Irene Mathysen, Gordon Mills,
Jean Poirier, Gregory S. Sorbara, David Winninger
Clerk/Greffière: Lisa Freedman

Estimates/Budgets des dépenses

Chair/Président: Cameron Jackson
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Margaret Marland
Members/Membres: Gary Carr, Hans Daigeler, Mike Farnan,
Paul R. Johnson, Wayne Lessard, Dalton McGuinty, Lyn
McLeod, Lawrence O'Connor, Anthony Perruzza, Gary Wilson
Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Finance and economic affairs/

Finance et affaires économiques

Chair/Président: Ron Hansen
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Kimble Sutherland
Members/Membres: David Christopherson, Norman Jamison,
Monte Kwinter, Gerry Phillips, Norman W. Sterling, Chris
Stockwell, Barbara Sullivan, Brad Ward, Margery Ward,
Jim Wiseman
Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

General government/Affaires gouvernementales

Chair/Président: Remo Mancini
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Michael A. Brown
Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Gilles Bisson, Dennis
Drainville, Margaret H. Harrington, George Mammoliti,
Rosario Marchese, Bill Murdoch, Yvonne O'Neill, Ian G. Scott,
David Turnbull
Clerk/Greffière: Deborah Deller

Government agencies/Organismes gouvernementaux

Chair/Président: Robert W. Runciman
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Allan K. McLean
Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Jenny Carter, Robert
Frankford, Bernard Grandmaître, Pat Hayes, Rosario
Marchese, Dalton McGuinty, Chris Stockwell, Daniel Waters,
Jim Wiseman
Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Legislative Assembly/Assemblée législative

Chair/Président: Noel Duignan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant
Members/Membres: Mike Cooper, Robert Frankford,
Norman Jamison, Margaret Marland, Irene Mathysen,
Carman McClelland, Gilles E. Morin, Hugh P. O'Neil,
Stephen Owens, Noble Villeneuve
Clerk/Greffier: Douglas Arnott

Ombudsman/Ombudsman

Chair/Président: Mark Morrow
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Vacant
Members/Membres: Alvin Curling, Joan M. Fawcett, Christel
Haeck, D. James Henderson, Peter Kormos, George
Mammoliti, Bill Murdoch, Margery Ward, Paul Wessinger,
Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer
Clerk/Greffier: Franco Carrozza

Public accounts/Comptes publics

Chair/Président: Robert V. Callahan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Dianne Poole
Members/Membres: James J. Bradley, Sean G. Conway,
W. Donald Cousens, Christel Haeck, Pat Hayes, Paul R. Johnson,
Ellen MacKinnon, Lawrence O'Connor, David Tilson,
Drummond White
Clerk/Greffière: Tannis Manikel

Regulations and private bills/

Règlements et projets de loi privés

Chair/Président: Drummond White
Vice-Chair/Vice-Présidente: Ellen MacKinnon
Members/Membres: Donald Abel, Mike Farnan, Derek Fletcher,
Leo Jordan, Frank Miclash, Tony Ruprecht, John Sola, Kimble
Sutherland, Jim Wilson
Clerk/Greffier: Todd Decker

Resources development/Développement des ressources

Chair/Président: Peter Kormos
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Daniel Waters
Members/Membres: Ted Arnott, John C. Cleary,
George Dadamo, Bob Huget, Leo Jordan, Paul Klopp,
Sharon Murdock, Steven Offer, David Ramsay, Len Wood
Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

Social development/Affaires sociales

Chair/Présidente: Elinor Caplan
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Joseph Cordiano
Members/Membres: Charles Beer, Christel Haeck,
Randy R. Hope, Gary Malkowski, Tony Martin, Lyn McLeod,
Stephen Owens, Paul Wessinger, Jim Wilson, Elizabeth Witmer
Clerk/Greffière: Lynn Mellor

SELECT COMMITTEE/COMITÉ SPÉCIAL

Ontario in Confederation/

Rôle de l'Ontario au sein de la Confédération

Chair/Président: Dennis Drainville
Vice-Chair/Vice-Président: Gilles Bisson
Members/Membres: Jenny Carter, Alvin Curling, Ernie Eves,
Charles Harnick, Margaret H. Harrington, Gary Malkowski,
Irene Mathysen, Steven Offer, Yvonne O'Neill, David Winninger
Clerk/Greffier: Harold Brown

SPECIAL COMMITTEE/COMITÉ EXTRAORDINAIRE

Parliamentary precinct/Enceinte parlementaire

Co-Chair/Coprésident: David Warner
Co-Chair/Coprésident: Noel Duignan
Members/Membres: Dianne Cunningham, Remo Mancini,
Kimble Sutherland
Clerk/Greffier: Smirle Forsyth

CONTENTS

Tuesday 22 October 1991

Members' statements

Capital funding for schools	3049
Mr Daigeler
Public libraries	3049
Mr Harnick
Survivors Psychiatric Advocacy Network	3049
Mr Drainville
Child care	3049
Mr Sola
Compensation to sheep farmers	3050
Mr B. Murdoch
Coat distribution program	3050
Mr Hope
Community Action Team	3050
Mr Mahoney
Brewing industry	3050
Mrs Witmer
Recycling	3051
Mr Sutherland

Oral questions

Government assets	3051
Mr Conway
Mr Laughren
Assistance to farmers	3052
Mr Conway
Mr Buchanan
Assistance to de Havilland	3053
Mr Harris
Mr Rae
Ministry conferences	3054
Mr Harris
Mr Hampton
Ontario Hydro reception	3055
Mr McGuinty
Mr Ferguson
Court system	3055
Mr Harnick
Mr Hampton
Nuclear power facilities	3056
Ms Carter
Mr Ferguson
Investigation into release of documents	3056
Mr Bradley
Mr Rae
Energy conservation	3058
Mr Jordan
Mr Ferguson
Health clubs	3058
Mr Hansen
Ms Churley
Transfer payments to municipalities	3059
Mr Mahoney
Mr Cooke

Members' comments 3059

Mr Mills
Mr Huget
Mr Eves
Mr Stockwell
Mr Cooke
Mr Scott
Mr Kwinter
Mr Harnick

Motions

Committee sitting	3061
Mr Cooke
Agreed to	3061

Petitions

Church of Scientology	3061
Mr Poirier
Oath of allegiance	3061
Mr J. Wilson
Assistance to farmers	3061
Mr Harris
Wayne Larose	3062
Mr Dadamo
Oath of allegiance	3062
Mrs Marland

First readings

Ontario Water Resources Amendment Act, 1991,
Bill 141	3062
Mr Hansen
Agreed to	3062

Second readings

Income Tax Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 83	3062
Ms Wark-Martyn
Agreed to	3062
Tobacco Tax Amendment Act, 1991, Bill 84	3062
Mr Tilson	3062
Mr Drainvill	3065
Ms Wark-Martyn	3066
Mr Jordan	3066
Mr Cousens	3066
Mr Winninger	3067
Mr Bradley	3068
Mr Stockwell	3069
Mr Grandmaître	3069
Mr Bisson	3075
Mr Villeneuve	3076
Mr Brown	3080
Mrs Caplan	3079
Mr Harris	3080
Mr Johnson	3080
Adjourned	3083

Lists of members

Members and their responsibilities
Committees of the Legislative Assembly

TABLE DES MATIÈRES

Le mardi 22 octobre 1991

Première lecture

Loi modifiant la Loi sur les ressources en eau de l'Ontario,
projet de loi 141	3062
Adoptée	3062

Deuxième lecture

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi de l'impôt sur le revenu, projet
de loi 83	3062
Adoptée	3062

Loi de 1991 modifiant la Loi de la taxe sur le tabac, projet
de loi 84	3062
M. Bisson	3068
Débat ajourné	3083

Listes des députés

Les députés et leurs responsabilités Comités de l'Assemblée législative

045620028

FEB 26 1992

